The Florida Flambeau

Senate Argues Rat Court Powers (See story below)

Florida's Only Semi-Weekly College Paper

VOL. XL, NO. 28 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1938

Move Started To Recognize Court Legality

Senate May Back Rat Court; Protests Policy On Athletics

A movement to extend social recognition and endorsement to Rat Court before Wednesday afternoon in Student Senate. The session also included the adoption of two resolutions criticizing certain policies regarding Florida State University intercollegiate athletics.

A resolution introduced by the freshman senators lauded the Rat Court system as an aid in orientating freshmen to the university and as a boost to school spirit. The measure stated that Rat Court set-up is valuable, worthwhile function of the freshman and sophomore classes.

The resolution, which stated its purpose as extending official recognition to the annual program was referred back to a committee of the old Freshman senators in the face of opposition on two counts.

Opposition was present to the effect that recognition should be withheld by a bill instead of a resolution. A bill would make possible enforcement of the Rat Court rules, and would be of a more permanent nature than a resolution, it was pointed out several times.

Senator Jimmy Sales protested against making Rat Court a compulsory affair, commenting that the "less of a rule is lost when it has to be enforced."

Senator Lis Cerny expressed the opinion that a bill requiring the freshman and sophomore classes to attend Rat Court would be unconstitutional by the Attorney General, but he was not opposed to a President Joe Simkoff would probably be the case.

Mrs. Mona Vice - President Shipp Gaither also asked for a clarification of the resolution, and Hank McCann suggested the adoption of a substitute motion. On motion the six freshman senators, McCann, Cerny, Polly Shaver, Betsy Dunn, Bonnie Sale and Bill Seigert, were appointed to a committee to draw up a definite problem.

Senate passed two resolutions protesting official attitudes toward Florida State University intercollegiate athletics. They passed a third resolution commending the football and basketball teams and the March-ing Chiefs.

The first resolution protested the University of Florida's action of not competing with Florida State University in several sports.

The second requested an equal distribution of race track receipts between Florida State University and the University of Florida.

The third resolution commended the band and the March-ing Chiefs.

The text of the first:

WHEREAS, the Board of Control of the University of Florida removed all restrictions prohibiting athletic contests between the Florida State University and the University of Florida and limited this prohibition competition be inaugurated between the schools, and

WHEREAS, pursuant to such action of the Board of Control, Hon. Seagrd G. Sharp, Director of Athletics at the Florida State University, made every effort to inaugurate athletic competition with the University of Florida, and

WHEREAS, Mr. Robert Woodruff, Director of Athletics at the University of Florida, has stated that Florida will schedule FSU in golf, tennis, track, and swimming, and then only if FSU does not to seek athletic competition with Florida in other sports, and

WHEREAS, efforts by the various directors of both universities have failed to bring about the inauguration of competitive athletic competition between the two schools,

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Student Senate of the Florida State University request the President of the University of Florida, President Conner, to take the matter of intercollegiate athletic competition between FSU and the University of Florida with the appropriate governing authorities of the universities."

The second resolution read:

WHEREAS, the State of Florida has provided funds through its extra day of racing for athletic scholarships at state institutions of higher learning, and

WHEREAS the need for good athletic material exists at present in the same at FSU as at the University of Florida, and

WHEREAS successful athletic teams at FSU will bring as much favorable publicity and credit to the State of Florida as successful teams at the University of Florida,

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Student Senate of the request President Doak S. Campbell to present to the Board of Control the request of the Student Senate that an

(Continued on Page 4)

Campbell Presents His Report Today At Gainesville Meeting

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University, is scheduled to present to the Board of Control at Geinesville today his report on the case of a former professor who charges he was forced to resign from the university without just cause.

In a hearing before acting governor Charley Johns on December 28, former assistant professor of economics, Dr. Ernest L. Leathers repeated his charges that he was pressured out of the university due to his work on a faculty committee investigating athletics.

Leathers will not be present at the hearing today, his attorney announced. The Board of Control has announced its willingness to give Leathers another hearing in Tallahassee.

Dr. Campbell's office had no statement on either Leathers's charges criticizing the president's administration or on the nature of the report which the FSU executive is to give in Gainesville today. The report will be made public, Board of Control Chairman J. Lee Ballard has said.

To a reported claim that he misrepresented a piece of plant from West Campus Leathers asserted he took only a rural health of pupil which to fix a leaking coke box in his classroom, and that with the full knowledge and aid of a campus policeman.

He again considerable time in denying a charge that he had committed a gross impropriety student to write on an extra-credit paper on campus homosexuality.

Leathers pointed out that the girl whose name he would not mention, seemed upset by his mention, in a private con-

(Continued on Page 4)

January 18 Is Tryout Date For Sandspur

Tryouts for Sandspur, annual dramatic production written, produced, and directly enacted by students, will be held January 18 in Longmire Auditorium, announced Chairman Frank Stokes, yesterday.

A musical comedy written by Dick Richards and entitled "Prince of the Extra," the show this year will be presented March 22-26 in Opperman Music Hall. The late performance will be a matinee followed by the Sandspur Dance that evening.

There will be two male and two female leads, said Miss Stokes, as well as several singing dramatic parts and singing and dancing choruses. Students trying out for vocal parts must come prepared with a song and accompaniment or else sing something that is given them there, she added. Students chosen for parts in the production will be notified by mail.

Students interested in working on scenery, costumes, publicity, lighting, or props should also come at the above time to sign up. Author Dick Richards will arrange and conduct the music, with the director and chairmen of other committees to be announced later.

The story concerns a prince and his valet, who leave their mythical kingdom and come to America. There they change places and fall in love with two American girls. Their troubles start when the prince is called back to his country and the two sweethearts go to find a way to get together again.

Written about two years ago, "Prince of Extra" was presented once before, at Rollins College. "Reverend" said Miss Stokes, "the show is full of clever lines and

Registration Appointments Mailed Today

Cards Tell Students When To Pick Up Registration Papers

Appointment cards for preregistration are to be mailed today, Assistant Registrar H. Lyn Pyle said Wednesday.

He said that the cards would be taken to the post office today and probably by all distributed by Monday.

About 600 to 650 appointments will be made for each day between Wednesday, January 19, and Saturday, January 28, Sunday excepted, Appointments will be made in alphabetical order, beginning with the letter A.

The appointment card will state at what time the student may go to Westcott ticket booth to pick up his registration materials, Price said.

The assistant register noted that a student need not complete registration at this time, since the object of distributing the cards by appointment will be to insure a smooth, uncrowded registration procedure.

Although a student may wait until February 2 to complete registration, at which time new students will register, he emphasized that it would be in the student's advantage to complete the process in advance.

He pointed out that many classes will be closed by February 2, the final day of registration.

Price said that a student may collect his class cards and pay fees later, if a student wishes to wait until February 2 to do this the Registrar's Office will attach the appointment and class cards in advance and hold them pending payment of fees. If they're not paid by February 2, Price said, the student is reinstated his class cards.

He added that returning students will not have to sign an Honor Pledge card, noting that Dean's administration on the nature of the report which the FSU executive is to give in Gainesville today. The report will be made public, Board of Control Chairman J. Lee Ballard has said.

Freshmen To Begin Work On Carnival Slated For March

Freshman class officers this week advised the first meeting of the Freshman Class is coming up soon. It is the annual Freshman Carnival on March 12.

The officers asked for help in the business in putting on the show. They said for interested girls to contact Betty Lou Hall, committee members as listed below as soon as possible: Publicity, Mary Frances Hall, 1037; King and Queen, Sylvia Willis, 258.

Food, Barbara James, 346; Invitations, Wilma Parrott, 849, or Susie Fisher, 1008; Tickets, Jackie Aullman, 1237; and Prizes, Karl Edwards, 836 Forest Drive, Tallahassee.

Columbus Boychoir Sings Here January 11, 12

Good Seats Remain Open; Program Is Same Both Nights

The Columbus Boychoir will appear in two concerts Tuesday and Wednesday, January 11 and 12, at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. The program will be the same both evenings, and will include "O Filii et Filiae," by Leisring; "Ecce sum pauper et dolens," by Grnec; "Regina sumt omne," by Handel and "Stabat Mater," by Perogiesi.

The choir will also sing the traditional Italian air, "Mara the Mountain"; Mozart's "Lullaby"; Lowell Riley's arrangement of McGinnes's "Shadrack," and the carol "Old Woman."

Six rows of center aisle seats on the bottom floor are still open for distribution to students, Miss Lucile Aiken announced said yesterday afternoon.

The auditorium balcony and side aisle seats go on sale today in Westcott booth to faculty and staff members, and will be open to students who do not get their choice seats in the first sale. Students may get a reserved ticket by exchanging tab number 15 from the Student Activities booklet. Remaining seats will go on sale to the public Monday, January 10.

The celebrated choir will be under the direction of Herbert Huffman, founder-director of the organization. Donald Bryant is accompanist.

The Boychoir is expected to draw capacity crowds, as did the Ballet Theatre, which was sold out days before performance.

The Boys

first program was the Ballet Theatre, December 8 and 7.

This performance followed another appearance by the Ballet Theatre three years ago in the old Westcott Auditorium. This was in the Spring of 1934, just a few months before the structure was condemned.

The Boychoir is expected to draw capacity crowds, as did the Ballet Theatre, which was sold out days before performance.

ROTC Cadets Employ Music Of Les Elgart

The Suwannee Room will be the scene of the 1938 Military Ball, to be held on Friday night, February 11, from 9 to 12 a.m. A formal affair, the dance will be the first of the year for the local ROTC Cadets and their dates.

Les Elgart and his band, now playing at the top in the band hands in the country, will provide the music. Recently signed Elgart third in the nation, under Les Brown and Ray Anthony.

The military theme will be carried out in the decorations of the Suwannee Room. The walls will be red, white, and blue, with an Army insignia and an Air Force insignia on each side of the band. The decoration chairman for the dance is Roy Edd.

From the 21 candidates for the Military Ball Queen, six finalists will be announced at the dance. The candidates are: Sandra Scott, sponsored by Alpha Phi; Alice Pierce ROTC; Margaret Donaldson, sponsored by Zeta Gamma; Jeani Kitchens, sponsored by Jennie Murphree Hall; Ann Williams, sponsored by Florida Hall.

Nancy Warner, sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma; Jean Sloan, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta; Mary Ann Gentry, sponsored by Bob Foley, ROTC; Joan Brinkmeyer, sponsored by Phi Mu; Betty Lee Whittle, sponsored by North Carrihon; Myra Lee, sponsored by Alpha Omicron Delta.

Nancy Horn, sponsored by Ray Wagner, Air Force ROTC; Dot Hanson, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi; Jane Hall, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta; Ann Gwynn, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi; Joan Tavel, sponsored by Pi Beta Phi; Diane Bowden, sponsored by Jim Tanaka, Air Force ROTC.

DENTAL FIRM NEEDS

An Atlanta dental supply firm announced recently that it has an opening for a sales representative in the Florida area. The firm is interested in hiring a young man who may have no drop out of school mid-year for reasons other than failure in school work.

Preference is for a man over 25 years of age and married. For further details see the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 305 Westcott Building.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

All unofficial delinquent in required tests may make them up a the Health Service before Graduating Seniors who have not satisfied these requirements will have their diplomas withheld. Other students who have not taken these required tests will be penalized to register. A delinquency fee of fifty dollars will be charged due. Stop by the Test Service Bureau, 210 Education Building, to make your Free Pee Blanks.

All first semester Juniors who have failed to take the General Culture test may take it at this time without penalty.

4 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12 —A. C. E. Psychologists.

5:15 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12—Kiwanois Personality.

7:15 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 18—General Culture (Junior and Seniors).

These tests will be given in room 124 Science Building.

Cavaliers, Cotillion Give Annual Semi-Formal

BETWEEN DANCES—Reread Lucuons, Gail Jackson, Ann Callahen, Betty Ferris, Bob Serfass, Sally Fussell, Carolyn Alford, Lyda Yarbrough, Jim Fagan, Sara Cuthbert, Jack Cuthbert, Betty Lou Meyer, Pat Meredith, Billy Joe Norris, Ann Gardner.

Cavalier and Cotillion, men's and women's dancing honorraries, will present their annual dance tomorrow in the Woman's Gymnasium from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Tickets are now on sale for one dollar per couple by all members, and will be sold at a booth in front of the Student Center all day today. The dance will be semi-formal.

Music will be furnished by the "Universals," a Negro combo which has just finished playing in the Martinique at Daytona Beach. Members said many of the guests will be Dixieland.

New taps of both groups will be presented during intermission, and there will also be a short floor show.

New members of Coalition to be presented at the dance are: Betty Gooch, Barbara Henderson, Gail Jackson, Karlin Kent, Shirley Jackson, Janice Grosser, Joyce Docko, Ann Cockran, Claire Dardis, Winnie Cannon, Jane Davis, Sylva Willis, Jean Strickland, Arine Jackson, Clara King and Annie Kathryn.

Cavalier taps to be honored at the dance are Ida Durham, Wilbur Hawkins, Buddy Jorden, Hank McKain, Coot Jackson, and John Rodger.

English Coffee Hour Features Milton Illustrated With Music

"Music and Milton" will be featured at today's presentation of the English Coffee Hour.

The program will be presented at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House as part of the "Meet the Author Series." Musical recordings illustrating Milton's poetry will be presented by Miss Milton Ellis and Dr. Sarah Herndon, in an attempt to show the part that music of the class thinks Milton may have had in his mind in some of his compositions in it.

Members of the class will read brief passages about dance music with virginal and lute, madrigals, sacred music, songs and airs, and organ music with instrumental music. Milton's contemporaries will sacred symphonies.

These will each be illustrated with records from the music library in the School of Music Library and with introductory comments by some of the music students in the class. Selections will include "The Earl of Salisbury," a popular dance piece during the Renaissance; the madrigal recorded by John Milton, Sr., for the Company of Orianis "Hence Vain Quere Elisabeth; "Regina Coeli," by Palestrina; the motet "Tribus Miris" by Jacob Jackson, Dolands, and the sacred cantata "O Lord, How Vain" by Henry Lawes.

Sponsors of the English course for the study of Milton said there is no one part of Milton's work in the class in finding relationships between the poet and the musician of his time. The poet's father was a composer, according to his own right, and the close bond between father and son is evident in the musical allusions in much of Milton's poetry, they concluded.

Members of the class putting on the program include Phoebe Jackson, Judith Bilich, Barbara Williams, Janet Sipes, Jerome Jones, Kenneth Bookout, Betty Lou Meyer, Frances Tucker, Frank Tucker, Blanche Weddon, Mary Ann Gentry, Barnard Hancock, with Dr. Herndon, the instructor.

SIMONDS PRESENTS PIANIST TOMORROW

Carolyn Simonds, pianist, will present a Senior Recital in the auditorium of the Education Building, Music Hall tomorrow at 8:15 p.m.

Numbers on the program are "Sonata in E Major, Longo 21" by Scarlatti; "Sonata in C Minor, K. 475," by Mozart; "Sonata in F Minor, Op. 57" by Brahms; Ravel's "Miroirs" and "Prelude," by Dmitri Kabalevsky.

32 Students Will Appear Who's Who

Thirty-two Florida State University students have been selected to appear in the new edition of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

They were chosen from the Senior Class for t ting outstanding in the several fields, before the Christmas holidays, and have been approved by the national organization.

Those chosen are Lillian Avis, Robert Berry, Julius Blinck, Harriet Canada, Dorothy Cooke, Charles Coulter, James Crews, Delano Driver and James Pledger.

Robert Foley, Betty Joanne Grubbs, Richard Gutting, Nancy Hillman, Donnie Hollis, Jack Houser, Rue Humphrys, Jo Ann Jackson, Dolores Jackson, Dr. Johnson, David Kennedy and Harry Massey.

Jean Meminee, Betty Jo Miller, Charles Miner, Betty Ann Murphree, Jane Norwood, Jo Ann Setzer, Mary Grace Shoemaker, Alma Sunberg, Dean Teal, Mary Belle Twitty and Ann Yates.

Japanese Gift Tree Slated For Planting Next To Longmire

An authentic Japanese Cherry tree, gift of the Japanese International Christian University, will be planted on the Florida State University Campus in ceremonies January 13.

The event is scheduled to take place at 2 p.m. on a narrow strip of land between the Science Building and the Music Building parking lot.

The gift is a token of appreciation for money given the group of Japanese students by Florida University Campus in ceremonies January 13.

The event is scheduled to take place at 2 p.m. on a narrow strip of land between the Science Building and the Music Building parking lot.

The gift is a token of appreciation for money given the group of Japanese students by Florida University Campus in ceremonies January 13.

An authentic Japanese Cherry tree, gift of the Japanese International Christian University, will be planted on the Florida State University Campus Chest Present at the ceremony will be President Doak S. Campbell, Vice-Consul K. E. Martin, University Chaplain Sam Chiles, Japanese students, the Campus Chest Committee and others.

Anthropologist Says Whistling At Monroe Is Cultural Action

By ROCK PAYNE

Through the eyes of an anthropologist, the desire to whistle at Marilyn Monroe is natural form of behavior, but to express desire by whistling would be cultural. Any way you interpret it, you will even look at her, the scientist said.

Dr. Hale G. Smith, professor and head of the Dept. of Anthropology at Florida University here, used this example in illustrating the basic principles of behavior, biological organism and the super-biological, or cultural factor.

Dr. Smith, who is also in charge of the university museum, said in a speech to journalism students in Dr. Sidney Koke's reporting class that the desire of an elephant would be designed much like that of a human, except for the physical development in that animal. If elephants had culture.

Professor Smith declared that there was no connection between types of marriage institutions and biological organisms but that it was brought about strictly by the cultural organisms of the human.

He said the biological aspect is a fundamental factor that we are often mislead by external appearance. He amplified this point by the case of Mt. Dora, where Sheriff Willis McCall was sued for millions of one family out of public schools there because of the external appearance of the sons of a girl in the family.

Dr. Smith went briefly into an explanation of "what man is" among men.

He said culture alone determines behavior. "What man becomes of the economic factors of culture and society, not by biological factor," he concluded.

All societies, Dr. Smith indicated, do not look on it business as they do in our society. He said, for instance, "Some students think all college professors are eccentrics."

The speech which he titled, "An Anthropologist Looks at Human Behavior," was presented to the journalism reporting class of the School of Journalism.

Tickets Gone For Dedication Of Audtorium

Formal Ceremonies Feature Governar, Dohnanyi, Kilenyi

All available tickets for the formal dedication of Westcott Auditorium Monday night were distributed by yesterday afternoon.

Vice - President Martin said yesterday that a portion of the five-hundred tickets reserved for distinguished guests by President Doak S. Campbell will be placed on general distribution today or Monday. He could not give any indication of the actual number.

Those which are made available will be distributed in the general public on a first-come, first-served basis, as were those which ran out yesterday.

The program features internationally known Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi and Edward Kilenyi, FSU faculty members, in a concert of music for two pianos. Governor LeRoy Collins will present the dedicatory address.

The program given by Dr. Dohnanyi and Kilenyi, who in the past have drawn overflow crowds to Westcott Music Hall, will include the Concerto in C Major by J. S. Bach, Variations on a Theme of Beethoven," Saint-Saens; The Debussy-Ravel Petes, "Rossignol," forerunner of Stravinsky's ever "Valse Boiteuse" and "Valse de Feu."

During the ceremonies Colin English Jr., president of the class of 1954, will present a portrait of President Campbell to the University. The portrait, painted by Frederick Rocker of Palm Beach, is the gift of the class of 1954.

Westcott Auditorium, completed by the PWA during the term of its predecessor, is named after James Dargens Westcott, who was born in Alabama and who was graduated from the West Florida Seminary, forerunner of FSU. He died in 1887 he left his estate to the university and in part to aid Leon County students attending the school.

FSU's administration building, which bears Westcott's name, was completed in 1890, and included an auditorium. As addition to the auditorium was made in 1911. The foundation of the 1911 addition failed and in 1948 the building was condemned. The completion of 1951 made no appropriation for its reappropriation.

The new auditorium, constructed at a cost of about $460,000, is air-conditioned with r sensing capacity of 1,038.

Far East Survey Replaces Course In Japan's History

The History Department has made a course change since the class schedule booklet was distributed, it was announced. The Far East, will be offered in place of History 353, Modern History of Japan, said a department spokesman.

The new course, Hy 355-356 (3-3) gives a general survey of Far Eastern history, with emphasis on the civilizations of China and Japan. Using slides and audio-visual aids, the course is designed not only for history majors but as background information for those students who will eventually use the Far Eastern situation today, he continued.

Held on Tuesday and Thursdays from 9-10 to 10:45 a. m. in 126 Science Building, the class is taught by Dr. George A. Lanyon.

Dr. Lanyon received his doctors degree in Chinese and Japanese from Columbia University, and has also studied in Japan. He is Japan as a Pulbright research grant. His book "Report From Kanazawa", currently on sale here, is a study of the remains of Russian culture in Northern Japan.

FLAMBEAU HOLDS BUSINESS MEETING

A meeting of the Florida Flambeau business staff will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 in the staff office.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

In order to prepare for the period of registration slated for January 19, 1938, it is necessary all need to confer with their faculty counselors concerning the proper courses to be pursued in writing for the spring schedule of classes. This will be given by educational counselors as a result of this conference. Dr. Ernest L. Williams is to the name and office location of your educational counselor, which is available in the Office of Co-ordinator of Counseling, Education Building, by personal visit or telephone call. Extension 351-352. This office will assist you in determining the faculty counselor to whom you have been assigned, the office location, and the office hours of the counselor.

DR. MELVENE HARDEE,
Co-ordinator of Counseling,
Education Building,
Ext. 351-352.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

student newspaper

1955

Florida State University

Tallahassee, Florida

1971

This filming - THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU - is directed by Mrs. Gertrude Mozley Roche, Head, Micro-Materials, Florida State University Library from the originals in the Library Archives. Through the efforts of Student Senator Jeffrey Jones and SOLTAS, student organization, funds were provided in Bill 76, 23rd Senate, Student Government, FSU, 1971.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP—Kay Haines, president of Sigma Tau Delta, English honorary, is shown presenting author Rubylea Hall a certificate of membership in the honorary, as members of the honorary look on.

Final Curtain Goes Up Tonight On 'The Beautiful People' Play

By PAT MARSTON

Tonight the curtain will go up for the last time on the speech department's production of "The Beautiful People." With an experienced and capable cast and an excellent setting, the play leaves the viewer with a feeling that perhaps there are "beautiful people" in the world, also.

Eb Thomas as Owen Webster, a poet and son, does a very good job with his part. His pantomimiac at the beginning of the play is one of the highlights of the evening.

The part of Josiah, the father is done by Franklin Adams. Adams, a veteran actor on the Conradi stage, does his usual well thought out characterization. At times his very cultured accent was too thick but on the whole his performance left little to be desired.

The part of the daughter, "Si, Acacia of the mine", is portrayed by Kitty Culpepper. Her performance is uneven, with Miss Culpepper seeming to lose her characterization at times.

Gray Sills takes the role of Miss Harmony Bluebloosom, an ultra-modern young lady who is "in the know." A newcomer to FSU, Miss Sills at times had only a surface characterization. She could easily have gone deeper into her character portrayal.

The important role of Ilsa, a drunk, was played by David Dreis. Although his characterization seemed overdone at the beginning, he improved greatly as the play went along. Here, as with many of the other characters, the pantomime rather than speeches made the performance outstanding.

Duane Landhester and Harold Poe Hardie their respective roles of the policeman and the Catholic priest with a crest fest of authority. Both seemed easy in their parts and gave a very convincing portrayal.

Special orchids should go to Charles Rommer for the setting and technical end of the production. Done with a stylized scene, the set gave the proper atmosphere to the play.

Again the speech department has proved that a talented director, Dr. Davee, a hard working cast and a good back-stage crew can give a production of which Miss Harmony Bluebloosom, an university can be proud of.

Demarcation

If national trait post- 51
ask a veteran when it was he first saw an issue of a certain magazine, read a certain novel, see a particular movie —all things that he or we would abhorrence to be seen about—and he can almost always tell you whether it was B. W. or A. W.

When the veteran got out of the service he made a point of shunning all the favorite places of the night clubs, ball fields, campuses—he had remembered so famously while away. And to some extent each such visit was a failure. The places, most of them, were exactly the same. And there was the difficulty. They had not changed, grown, improved or deteriorated with the observer. The sink loneliness simply a veteran felt on his first visit to the old familiar places perhaps lasted only an instant. Whether that or longer, it was not bittersweet in its quality—merely painful. It was a reaction to severed lifetimes and a drifting out of reach.

Such considerations are luxuries that only the live have. The whole can indulge in, but they are a luxury no part of the live and the whole. Important than places were the faces of people related with. could no longer be friends How long into greetings, how followed so an hour's deadly exchange of incomprehension? The common interests which bonds a few years before enabled two people to climb to wonderful heights along the alternative steps of each other's thought were gone. And in their place was no love, little sympathy and a merely intellectual understanding that made for caution and hypocrisy. Many did friends, of course, remained friends. All the half-conscious probing into conversation, the buttons and tastes had to be made again, as if the was a new meeting for the first time.

That was it: homecoming was a time for remaking. And many veterans tried to make it a time for renewing. The physical and harsher spiritual devastation of World War II we all could see for ourselves. Some of the subtler changes perhaps have taken time to become visible.

—From Topes of The Times.

WHAT WON'T THEY THINK OF NEXT?

SYRACUSE N.Y. (ACP)—Syracuse University students are expected out on the town and through the streets of downtown Syracuse.

The Daily Orange reports that University spokesman said that this is a direct violation of University rules.

Any students apprehended will be severely reprimanded.

Carousel Approval Registered; Individual Performances Noted

By OSCAR JOHNSON

If R. Rodgers and O. Hammerstein, composer and lyrics-writer of the hasty Carousel, could view the university Little Opera Guild's version, their reaction would probably be approval.

They might be surprised to see a production of the scope of Carousel attempted on such a relatively small stage, but both would most likely call it a success—due in large part to the outstanding individual performances.

The story itself traces the life of one Billy Bigelow, played by John Zilles, as he begins as a barker before the from ex-tractor at a carousel and winds up at the rear entrance to Heaven. During his course he marries Julie Jordan (Delano Driver), neglects her and realizes his fault only after it is too late.

Other principal characters in the production include Ellen Brow as Carrie Pipperidge—a cheerful fluff who weds Enoch Snow, played by Wendell Barnhell; an industrious fisherman used as a contrast to Bigelow. Peter Peck and Martha Sanders, as Jigger Craigin and Nettie Fowler, him in what are probably the most polished performances given in Ballet and Recitative were well to register any complaint, would probably be against John Zilles, whose voice at times dwindled to an inaudible murmur.

This production of CAROUSEL lacks to a large degree the fantastic lure, mixture and nonsense often associated with student performances. This feeling was echoed in the applause given by the packed houses at early performances. The last showing will be tonight at 8:15 in Dopeman Music Hall.

The music of Carousel includes such well known tunes as "If I Loved You," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over" and "You'll Never Walk Alone." The orchestra provides accompaniment of a very high quality, and the supporting actors and actresses rarely appear to think that the audience is only watching the principals.

Choreography for CAROUSELS ballet is by Florida State University's Frances Babbitt and Ed Hamilton, who are in the graceful Barbara Vickers and Ed Hamilton and Richard Pendell of "Flying Seminole" fame.

Carousel's production and musical direction are by Robert L. Bitzes, while the choral direction and staging are by Betty Jane Grimm.

Former Professor

(Continued From Page 1)

1945, at the risk of "committing professional suicide."

Leathers claims that he was allowed an alternative, resignation with vacation pay and letters of recommendation.

The former professor has been reported to have said his resignation took place on October 10, 1951. He is now working as a shipping clerk in a Tallahassee electrical supply firm.

Newspaper clippings which appeared over the weekend continue Leathers' story from this point. He reportedly left and asked the Board of Control for an open hearing last December through FSU channels.

Earlier, Leather Flamberg that a hearing was held Nov. 12 this year. He said that although he had been given adequate time to present his case for reinstatement, and had been promised that the actual charges against him would be revealed, he was told at the meeting that he would be limited to a five minute speech and upon that notice he changed his request from reinstatement to a hearing before the board.

Leathers denies reports that he was allowed time for rebuttal after Dr. Dunk S. Campbell, university president, presented charges against him. He also said that when Dr. Campbell addressed the Board the president referred only to charges given in front of him and made no specific charges.

The Tampa Tribune reports that "according to the minutes the Board of Control went into executive session' and ruled to keep Leathers.

Leathers, commenting upon the charges he has been made in 1953, said that he had told jokes from Reader's Digest and Arthur Godfrey in class. He said that his appropriation of a "recent paper" from West Campus to fix a leaky cokebot was responsible for the charge of stealing.

Other than that he said the charges involved items which are my personal interests.

In his letter to Acting Governor Johns, Leathers has charged that "the maneuvering of the board was hasted, and his prejudice and his open hearing has resulted from a desperate act. That law, and politics and malpractices at FSU would become known to the public."

Culpepper Says

(Continued From Page 1)

ro his talk would be reviewed either by the executive committee or by anyone so delegated by the president and thereby hate the matter screened and advice which could in all probability preclude the occurrence of an unfortunate incident such as the Dr. Dave matter.

"Dr. Vernon L. Fox, associate professor of social welfare at FSU, spoke in a youth group last summer on narcotics. He talk aroused widespread and mostly favorable comment around the School. Fox, according to the Democrat, claimed a Tampa newspaper report of the speech misrepresented it. After the incident, the Democrat continued, Dr. Campbell issued a statement of policy regardint public speeches which was approved by the Board of Control. The policy, which Dr. Campbell has said is still in effect, follows:

"It has been generally accepted in this democracy that a professor in an institution of learning should be free to speak or write the truth as he sees it in the field of his competence without fear of intimidation or reprisal.

"This freedom is not an unlimited freedom. A professor who enters the privileges of academic freedom is under the obligation to present facts that can be verified, to be accurate, to refer to appropriate setting and context, and to present his inferences or opinions with due caution.

"He is also obligated to speak in good taste and in the especially guarded in his statements regarding matters of controversy or those likely to involve strong emotional reactions."

In reference to this policy, chairman Ballard made his statement to the effect that professors may discuss forthcoming legislation with hisfther authority for the heads of the institutions are sol required to do so.

"I wish to make it perfectly clear that this would not imply a recommendation and not a mandatory order from the board and it is entirely up to the individual as to whether he wishes to avail himself of this recommendation.

"It is not unusual that the board would make recommendations to the heads of the various institutions after which they may use their own judgement."

Abstract Subjects Characterize Glass Exhibit

18 Panels Displayed At FSU Art Gallery Through This Friday

By MARTY REEVES

Abstract as well as religious subjects characterize the stained glass panels which are now being exhibited in the Florida State University Dining Hall.

The display, which began last Sunday, and will run thrush Friday, is made up of 18 panels, all done by contemporary American artists.

One of the most abstract panels is one using pastels, in contrast to the vivid colors of the others. Designed and made by Robert Harmon in 1953, the work has an unusual appearance.

Another panel has the unique feature of being made of tea leaves, about an inch apart with a design on each, so that as the viewer walks by, the picture changes. Created by A. Ricc Pereira, it is made up of vertical and horizontal lines.

Among the more realistic panels is William E. Buley's portrayal of Noah in the ark. A dove is shown bringing the twig to the ark while a vivid rainbow stretches overhead.

An example of unusual technique is shown in Lee Lloyd Grant's work in which he has achieved a three dimensional and fluid effect by the process of spreading tar on and fired in real stained glass pigments. The panel has red glass of different textures.

This might be described as "painting with stained glass."

Another panel, designed by Walter Tandy Martin, is unusual in that it is neither abstract nor religious but the "Bill Life of a Bird Watcher." Shadows are created by means of painting on the back side of the glass panel, which is combined with that used in medieval windows.

Other artists represented are Pierre Bourdelle, Francis Deck, Adolph Gottlieb, Hans Moller, Joop Nicolas, Alfonso Ossorio, Andre Racz, Abraham Rattner, Siegried Reinhardt, William Schickel, Max Spivak, Marcelius Maes, and Peter Ostiot.

"The same basic techniques for stained glass are being used today as in the 13th century on the windows of the Cathedral of Chartres, but here have been some advances." Dr. Adolph Katt, Director of the University Art Gallery said.

He added that "Stained glass is a technique requiring an extensive apprenticeship, and it is not unusual for the artist or designer does not execute the work." Only one of the 18 artists represented on the touring exhibition, Maes and Ostiot, executed as well as designed their work.

The artists' preliminary sketches are also on display in the gallery.

ABSTRACT SUBJECTS ON GLASS—Shown are some of the stained glass exhibits on display at the Art Gallery.

Although most are small paintings, one is of tile mosaic, almost as fine as the finished work.

Also on display is a book on stained glass called The Language of Art, by Robert Sawyer, described by Dr. Katt as "excellent." It may be obtained at the University Bookstore. The English the director finds with the book is the title, because he thinks that nothing is less pleasing to the art of stained glass.

The touring exhibition is sponsored by the American Federation of Arts and The Stained Glass Association of America. Special gallery hours the rest of the week for the exhibition are 1:30 to 5 p.m. Dr. Katt said. Admission is free and the exhibition opens on Christmas afternoon so that more Tallahassee and holiday guests can see the panels. There will be an exact announcement of this special opening, he said.

Communist Press

(Continued From Page 1)

cents of the population due to lack of education.

Mr. Ramagnan Raman, from Bombay, India, brought out a fact noted here recently by John Scott, Time-Life correspondent on his visit to FSU following a trip throughout the Middle East.

Scott said that the basis is that while the U. S. is spending a few billion dollars in a long term program to build up their defenses, Russia is spending a billion dollars in all the same type of job. He said that American apathy towards the sientific race of the world will have caused an unfavorable reduction in the amount of money allocated the Agency in 1951 and 1957.

Since then, he added, the Americans are actually taking up to the fact that more and more will be needed to combat Communism effectively in the countries where its press is allowed to reach a large number of receptive minds

Mr. Raman added the lack of interest as the part of Americans in their understanding and appreciation of the problems of other parts of the world and the lack of knowledge of the American economic conditions to those countries as another factor to the lack of understanding.

Mr. Mansoor Uddin Ahmed Deeca, Pakistan, stated that while American newspapers average 60 to 68 pages, papers in Pakistan average only 12 to 20 and circulation is not large due to the illiteracy of the majority of the 42 million people living in that country. Deeca alone.

The newsmen, in answer to questions asked by the class said their main interest is being in the United States is to study any religious, educational, political and economical aspects.

Mr. Alim Iran, said he was particularly interested in the youth movement in the U. S. and Mr. Ahmed, religious activities.

Their main objective, in and out of the Agency work, they said, is to learn as much as they can about us and take it back to their countries where they will use it to counteract the communist press statements.

Theta Chi Wins

(Continued From Page 1)

lave yard line might have been another Theta TD had he not been too interested in the fellow behind him. McCarron had the ball momentarily but it squirted out of his hands to end what looked like a sure touchdown. The Theta team did manage to carry the ball to the Lambda one foot line only to see it fail on a fourth down.

With less than four minutes left to play the Lambda team came to life, and so did the Lambda rooters. Jim O'Neal broke through the Theta forward wall, turned as the steam and carried the ball all the way to the Theta 18 yard line.

The crowd went wild and it appeared the Lambda Chi team was on the way to pantlet. But after moving the ball to the 4 the Lambda quarterback elected to pass. This was the upset. A Theta man intercepted and ran it back to the 50 yard line to end the game.

Only one major casualty occurred, and this went to Mel Hunter. Theta Chi right end. He suffered a broken nose and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

An estimated crowd of 250 saw the game.

Oelschlager Cites

(Continued From Page 1)

student benefits more by volunteering for this sort of work.

The laboratory work not only supplements class work but supplies the repetitious necessary to memorize a foreign language.

For persons who have never studied a foreign language class room work is necessary, Dr. Oelschlager explained, but it would speed the learning process.

Each of the lab workers listen to recordings of foreign language and follow along the text in words and stick-pictures. This way you can hear the word, see the word, and get a visual comprehension at the same time.

The lab also has wire recording equipment and a short wave radio. Dr. Herbert Lacayo, associate professor of Spanish, also teaching the 2nd year Spanish period, pointed out that with the short wave radio and the recording equipment, broadcast speeches from foreign countries could be picked up and used for listening at a more convenient time.

For students' reading pleasure the modern language department has placed the study laboratory with books and magazines of various languages. Included among these are magazines from Reader's Digest in French and Spanish, Texas, a Spanish magazine, France Actuelle, an English periodical about France.

Dr. Dee says serious misinterpretations there are come strips translated into various languages.

Frank Sinatra Sweeps Annual Down Beat Poll; Climbs Again

Frank Sinatra swept the male singer categories in the 1954 Down Beat Annual's Readers' Poll by the largest vote in the history of the publication. Just a few years are practically forgotten and running the former Tommy Dorsey bandsinger is now back on the map-heap again.

Now on the Capitol Records he has had several hits this year along with many successful albums and film roles. Sinatra's winning performance in a non-singing role in From Here To Eternity, along with his TV variation shots, have all added to the tremendous build-up which even exceeds that which he had in the early '40's.

Frankie

Nat Kenian took first place in the Hall of Fame classification which found Louis Armstrong and Benny Goodman run-ners-up. In the second-year classification Ella Fitzgerald was the female singer plaque and Stan Kenton took also a win for Top Jazz Band.

Dave Brubeck not only won the small combo but again showed up as the Top Jazz Artist along with coming in second to Oscar Peterson in male classification. Lee Konitz repeated in the dance band division while The Four Preshmen swept the Vocal Group and Pop female Personality title went to Rosemary Clooney with Lucy Ann Polk, and Tommy Mercer again with the top tenor singer title. Ruth Brown won the R&B Top Personality award. Top Latin-American personality.

Making up the 18th All-Star Band are Chet Baker, trumpet; Bill Harris, trombone; Charlie Parker, alto sax; Stan Getz, tenor sax; Gerry Mulligan, baritone sax; Buddy De Franco, clarinet; Oscar Peterson, piano; Ray Brown, bass; Johnny Smith, guitar; Shelly Manne drums; Terry Gibbs, vibes; Art Van Damme, accordion; and arranger Pete Rugolo.

Miscellaneous Items—Band headings were won by Dorothy Donegan, Johnny Guarnieri, Ernesh horn; Budd Shank, flute; Candido, bongos and Oscar Pettiford, cello.

New filter cigarette brings flavor back to filter smoking!

WINSTON

FINER FILTER!

FINER FLAVOR!

KING SIZE, TOO!

Winston tastes good—like a cigarette should!

■ Now there's a filter smoke college men and women can really enjoy! It's Winston, the new, king-size, filter cigarette with real flavor—full, rich, tobacco flavor!

You're bound to enjoy Winston's finer flavor. And you're sure to appreciate Winston's finer filter. This exclusive filter is tasteful, different, truly superior! It works so effectively—yet doesn't "thin" the taste. Winstons are king-size for extra filtering action. Easy-drawing, too—there's no effort to puff!

Try a pack of Winstons—the filter cigarette that brings flavor back to filter smoking!

WINSTON... the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

Winston FILTER - CIGARETTES

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"DESIREE"
Marlon Brando
Jean Simmons
WED. THRU SAT.
"SITTING BULL"
Dale Robertson
Mary Murphy

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY & WEDNESDAY
"A WOMAN'S FACE"
Joan Crewford
Melvin Douglas
PLUS
"TARZAN ESCAPES"
Johnny Weissmuller
Maureen O'Sullivan
FRIDAY-SUNDAY
"SEA OF LOST SHIPS"
Wanda Hendrix
Will Bronson
"RIOT IN CELL BLOCK 11"
Neville Brand and Emile Meyer

STATE
TODAY
"THE LAST TIME I SAW PARIS"
Elizabeth Taylor
Van Johnson
Walter Pidgeon
Deanne Reed
WEDNESDAY-SATURDAY
"SUDDENLY"
Frank Sinatra
Sterlyn Heyden

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & WEDNESDAY
"TRADER HORN"
The most spectacular movie to come out of the dark continent.
PLUS
Ray Rogers and Dale Evans
"DOWN DAKOTA WAY"
PLUS
"CREATURE OF THE BLACK LAGOON"
Julie Adams

Going Christmas Shopping ?
Try Bennett's-
Colognes, perfumes, giftsets, compacts, stationery, fountain pens & pencils, candies by Whitmans, Hallingswarth and Norris. Also a large assartment of kodaks, films & flashbulbs.
Christmas packages of cigars, tobaccas, pipes, Christmas cards & wrappings.
All Gifts Wrapped Free.
Bennett's DRUG STORES INC.

The Florida Flambeau

Senate Argues Rat Court Powers (See story below)

Florida's Only Semi-Weekly College Paper

VOL. XI, NO. 22 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — FRIDAY, JANUARY 7, 1955

Move Started To Recognize Court Legality

Senate May Back Rat Court; Protests Policy On Athletics

A movement to extend legal recognition and endorsement to Rat Court began Wednesday afternoon in Student Senate. The session included the adoption of two resolutions criticizing official policies regarding Florida State University intercollegiate athletics.

A resolution introduced by Joe Newsham senators lauded the Rat Court system as an aid to orientation freshmen to the university and as a boost in school spirit. The measure stated the Rat Court set up a valuable, worthwhile function of the freshman and sophomore years.

The resolution, which stated its purpose as extending official sanction to the annual program was referred back to a special committee of the nine Senate senators in the face of opposition on two points.

Opponent was present to the effect that recognition should be avoided by a bill instead of a resolution. A bill would make for enforcement of the Rat Court rules, and would be of a more permanent nature than a resolution pointed out several senators.

Senator Jimmy Seles protested against making Rat Court a compulsory affair, commenting that "one of its value is lost once it has to be enforced."

Senator Lu Cerny expressed doubt that a bill requiring the freshman and sophomore classes to conduct Rat Court would be more upon as constitutional by the Attorney General. If he won't so approve it, President Joe Sumkoff would probably veto the measure.

Mr Men's Vice-President Stan Gaither also asked for a clarification of a resolution. Bill Clark McCann suggested the addition of the phrase, On Gaither's motion the six freshman senators, McCann, Cerny, Polly Baker, Bonnie Ehrlich, Bernard Sue and Bill Seigert, were appointed a special committee to study the problem.

Senate passed two motions pertaining official attitudes toward Florida State University intercollegiate athletics. The first board a third resolution condemning the football and basketball scores and the coaches by Chiefs.

The first resolution protested the University of Florida's decision of not competing with FSU annually in several sports. The second requested an investigation of recruiting practices in money between Florida State University and the Southern Conference.

The text of the first:

WHEREAS, the Board of Control, at its meeting in February, 1954 removed all restrictions prohibiting athletic contests between the Florida State University and the University of Florida, and indicated that athletic competition be inaugurated between the schools, and

WHEREAS, pursuant to such action of the Board of Control, Dr. Howard D. Bruton, Director of Athletics at the Florida State University, made every effort to inaugurate athletic competition with the University of Florida, and

WHEREAS, Mr. Robert Woodruff, Director of Athletics at the University of Florida, has stated that Florida will schedule FSU in golf, tennis, track, and swimming, and then only if FSU agrees not to seek athletic competition with Florida in other sports, and

WHEREAS, efforts by the Florida directors of both universities have failed to bring about the inauguration of competition between the two schools,

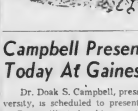
BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Student Senate of Florida State University requests the Board of Control to use its influence to bring about competition between the two schools in golf, tennis, track, and swimming, as a matter of intercollegiate athletic competition, through the University of Florida, with the approval and permission authorities of the two universities."

The second resolution read:

WHEREAS, the State of Florida has removed funds from athletic use of racing for athletic scholarships at state institutions of higher learning, and

WHEREAS the need for good scholar-athletes in all sports is the same at FSU as at the University of Florida, and

WHEREAS successful athletic teams at FSU will bring added favorable publicity and support to the State of Florida as successful teams at the University of Florida,



BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the Student Senate request President Doak S. Campbell to present to the Board of Control the request of the Student Senate that an

Continued on Page 4)

Campbell Presents His Report Today At Gainesville Meeting

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University, is scheduled to present to the Board of Control at Gainesville today his report on the case of a former professor who charges he he was forced to resign from the university without just cause.

In a hearing before acting governor Charley Johns, on December 28, former assistant professor of geography Robert L. Eastburn repeated his charges that he was pressured out of the university during his work on a faculty committee investigating athletics.

Leathers will not be present at the hearing today, his attorney announced. The Board of Control has announced its willingness to give Leathers an other hearing in Tallahassee.

Dr. Campbell's office had no statement on either Leathers's charges criticizing the president's administration or on the nature of the report which the FSU executive is to give in Gainesville today. The report will be made public, Board of Control Chairman J. Lee Ballard has said.

In the hearing before Johns and several members of the State Board of Education last month Leathers refuted certain charges that he had been employed orally, and not in writing, to force his resignation in the Fall of 1953.

To a reported claim that he misappropriated a piece of pipe from West Campus Leathers asserted he took only a few yards of pipe with which to fix a leaking coke box in his apartment, and that with the full knowledge and act of a superintendent.

He spent considerable time in denying a charge that he had attempted to get certain students to write on an extra-credit paper on campus homosexuality.

Leathers insisted not that the act, whose name he would not mention, seemed upset by his mention, in a private conversation.

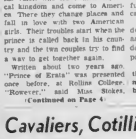
(Continued on Page 4)

January 18 Is Tryout Date For Sandspur

Tryouts for Sandspur, annual dramatic production written, produced, and directed entirely by students, will be held January 18 in Longmire Auditorium, announced Chairman Fred Stokes, yesterday.

A musical comedy written by Dick Richards and entitled "Prince of the Evils", the show this year will be presented March 22-26 in Opperman Music Hall. The late performance will be a matinee followed by the Sandspur Dance that evening.

There will be two male and two female leads, said Miss Stokes, as well as several strikingly dramatic parts and singing and dancing choruses. Students trying out for vocal parts must come prepared with a song and accompaniment or else sing something that is given them there, she added. Students chosen for parts in the production will be notified by mail.



Students interested in working on scenery, costumes, publicity, makeup, or props should also come at the above time to sign up. Author Dick Richards will arrange and conduct the music with the director and chairmen of other committees to be announced later.

The story concerns a prince sad has ever been free from his cal kingdom and come to America. There they change places and fall in love with two American girls. Their troubles start when the prince is called back in his country and the two couples try to find a way to get together again.

Written about two years ago "Prince of Evils" was presented once before, at Rollins College. "Romeo and Juliet," said Miss Stokes,

(Continued on Page 4)

Cavaliers, Cotillion Give Annual Semi-Formal

BETWEEN DANCES—Rafeal Lucuona, Gail Jackson, Ann Callahan, Beth Farris, Bob Setzer, Lana. Sally Fussell, Carolyn Alford, Lyda Yarbrough, Jim Fadigan, Carol Rodgers, Jerry Rowe, Jerry Gaither, Ruth Ward, Ernie Stavens, Karlan Kent, Jim Harkins, Nancy Mayer, Pat Meredith, Billy Joe Norris, Ann Gardner.

Cavalier and Cotillion, men's and women's dancing honoraries, will present their annual dance tomorrow in the Women's Gymnasium from 8 p.m. to midnight.

Tickets are now on sale for one dollar per couple by all members, and will be sold at a booth in front of the Student Center all day today. The dance will be semi-formal.

Music will be furnished by the "Universals." a Nearn combo which has just finished playing in the Martinique at Daytona Beach. Members said many of the songs will be Dixieland.

New taps of both groups s ill be presented during intermission, and there will also be a short floor show.

Other members of Cotillion to be presented at the dance are: and John Hodge.

Betty Gooch, Barbara Henderson, Cbil Jackson, Martin Kent, Shirley Jackson, Janice Grosser, Joyce Docko, Ann Cockran, Claire Dardis, Winnie Cannan, Jane Davis, Sylva White, Jean Strickland, Anne Jackson, Clara King and Anne Rayburn.

Cavalier taps to be honored at the dance are Bill Durham, Wilbur Hawkins, Buddy Jordon, Hank McKain, Coon" Jackson,

Registration Appointments Mailed Today

Cards Tell Students When To Pick Up Registration Papers

Appointment cards for preregistration are to be mailed today, Assistant Registrar H. Hoyt Price said Wednesday.

He said that the cards would be taken to the post office today, and probably be all distributed by Monday.

About 6,000 appointments will be made for each day between Wednesday, January 19 and Saturday, January 28, Sunday excepted. Appointments will be made in alphabetical order, beginning with the letter A.

The appointment card will state at what time the student may go to Westcott ticket booth to pick up his registration materials, Price said.

The assistant register noted that a student need not complete registration at this time, since the object of distributing the cards by appointment will be to insure a smooth, uncrowded registration procedure.

Although a student may wait until February 2 to complete registration, in which time new students will register, Price emphasized that it would be to the student's advantage to complete the process in advance.

He pointed out that many class sections will be closed by February 2, the final day of registration.

Price said that a student may collect his class cards and pay his fees that day. Students may obtain and class cards in advance and hold them pending payment of fees. If they're not paid by February 2, Price said, the student will relinquish his class cards.

He added that returning students will not have to sign an Honor Pledge card, notice that the Honor Pledge is being made a part of the Application for Admittance procedure.

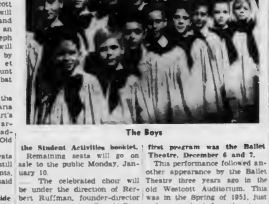
Freshmen To Begin Work On Carnival Slated For March

Freshman class officers this week started the first big project of the Freshman Class is coming up soon. It is the annual Freshman Carnival on March 12.

The officers asked for help from Freshmen in putting on the show. They said for interested girls to contact Betty Gooch. committee members as listed below as soon as possible. They are Stanley Bess, 508 Decorations, Joyce McRay, 588, Booths; Peter Stevens, 317, Floor Show, Bill Roache 674, Publicity. Mary Ann Bennett, 317; Kim Ann Queen, Sylvia Willis, 259.

Food, Barbara James, 585. Invitations, Wilma Brown, 589, or Susie Fisher, 1068. Tickets, Jackie Aultman, 1227, and Frances, Karl Edwards, 839 Parent Drive, Tallahassee.

Columbus Boychoir Sings Here January 11, 12



Good Seats Remain Open; Program Is Same Both Nights

The Columbus Boychoir will present two concerts Tuesday and Wednesday, January 11 and 12, at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. The program will be the same both evenings, and will open with "The Apotheosis," an opera in one act, by Joseph Haydn. Choral selections will include "O Pilli et Pilae," by Leisring; "Sao sum pauper et egeno," by Gretchaninoff; "Simple summe," by Handel and "Stabat Mater," by Pergolesi.

The choir will also sing the traditional Italian air, "Maria del Mare, Mountain"; Moran's "Lullaby"; Lowell Riley's arrangement of McGregor's "Shadrack," and "The Deaf Old Woman."

Some rows of center aisle seats on the bottom floor are still open for distribution to students, an Artist Series spokesman said yesterday afternoon.

The Boychoir sponsor and side aisle seats go on sale today in Westcott ticket booth, faculty staff. These seats also are open to students who do not get center aisle seats. They may get a reserved ticket by exchanging tab number 13 from the Student Activities booklet. Remaining seats will go on sale to the public Monday, January 10.

The Boys

The celebrated choir will be under the direction of Herbert Ruffman, Director-Founder of the organization. Donald Bryant is its accompanist.

The Boychoir is the second Artist Series program this year at FSU, also being the third production to be held in the new Westcott Auditorium. The first program was the Ballet Theatre, December 6 and 7.

This performance followed another appearance by the Ballet Theatre three years ago in the old Westcott Auditorium. This was in the Spring of 1951, just a few months before the structure was condemned.

The Boychoir is expected to draw capacity crowds, as did the Ballet Theatre, which was sold out days before performance.

ROTC Cadets Employ Music Of Les Elgart

The Suwannee Room will be the scene of the 1955 Military Ball, which will be held Friday, January 15, from 8 p.m. to 12. A formal affair, the dance will be highlighted by the color dance bands in the country, will provide the music. Reservations are rated Elgart third in the nation with Les Brown and Ray Anthony.

The military theme will be carried out in the decoration of the Suwannee Room. The colors of red, white, and blue, with an Army insignia and an Air Force insignia in the center will be used. For the decoration chairman for the dance is Bob Eddy.

From the 23 candidates for the Military Ball Queen, six finalists will be chosen at the dance. The candidates are: Sandra Scott, sponsored by Kappa Sig Bliss. Air Force ROTC; Margaret Donaldson, sponsored by Alpha Gamma Jean Kitchens, sponsored by Jennie Murphree Hall; Ann Ellis, Air Force ROTC; and Florida Hall.

Mary Palmer, sponsored by Kappa Delta; Shirley Ison, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta; Marion Geeter, sponsored by Bob Foley, ROTC; Joan Hamilton, sponsored by Sigma Nu; Betty Lou Whittle, sponsored by North Cavithon; Myra Ann Stevens, and Gail Stevens by Delta.

Nancy Horn, sponsored by Ray Wagner, Air Force ROTC; Dot Hansen, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega; Pi; Carol James, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta; Jean Hall, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi; Joan Tavel, sponsored by Pi Beta Phi; Diane Bryan, sponsored by Delta Zeta; Faye Anthony, sponsored by Bob Bevis, Air Force ROTC; Mary Hill, sponsored by Alpha Chi Omega; and Jane Enoch, sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha.

Ann Gwin, sponsored by Sigma Kappa Mu; Sandal is the dance sored by Bryan Hall. Beverly Laurent, sponsored by Jim Brewer, Air Force ROTC; and Leyte Bowden, sponsored by Jim Tabb, Air Force ROTC.

DEMAND FIRM NEEDS

An Atlanta dental supply firm announced recently that it has an opening for a sales representative in the Florida area. The firm is interested in hiring a young man who may have to drop out of school mid-year for reasons other than a poor record, it said.

Preference is for a man over 25 years of age and married. For further details, contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement on Westcott Building

OFFICIAL NOTICE

All students delinquent in required tests may make them up in the hour listed below. Graduating Seniors who have not satisfied these requirements will have their diplomas withheld. Other students who have not yet taken these basic tests will not be permitted to register. A delinquency fee of $1 will be charged for making up secure the Test Fee Blanks.

All first semester Juniors who have failed to take the Graduate Record Exam may do it at this time without penalty.

4 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12 — A. C. E. Psychological.

5:15 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 12—Minnesota Personality.

7 p.m. Thursday Jan. 13—General Culture - Junior and Seniors.

All tests will be given in room 134 Science Building.

English Coffee Hour Features Milton Illustrated With Music

"Music and Milton" will be featured at today's presentation of the English Coffee Hour.

The program will be presented at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House as part of the "Meet the Author Series." Musical recordings illustrating Milton's poetry will be presented by the Milton class of Dr. Sarah Herndon, in an attempt to show the relation of the music the class thinks Milton may have had with words from the text and various references to it.

Members of the class will read brief passages about dance music with virginal and lute, madrigals, choral motets, harps and lyres, and organ music with instruments, which Milton's contemporaries call sacred symphonies.

These will each be illustrated with records from the music library in the School of Music Library, and with introductory comments by some of the music students in the class. Among the records will be "The Earl of Salisbury," a popular dance piece during the Renaissance, Monteverdi's madrigal by John Milton Sr., for the "Triumph of Orinth," honoring Queen Elizabeth; "Regina Coeli," by Palestrina; the motet "Tristis est anima mea," by Orlando Lassus, and the sacred cantata "O Rest Intir' by Henry Purcell.

Sponsors of the English course for the study of Milton said there is a great deal of interest in the class in finding relationships between the poet and the music of his time. The poet's father was a composer of music in his own right, and the close bond between the two men is evident in the many allusions to music in Milton's poetry, they concluded.

Members of the class putting on the program include Phoebe Jackson, Judith Blitch, Bob Williams, Janet Bilgen, Jerome Jones, Kenneth Bookout, Betty Jane Nichols, Jackie Sanchez, Frank Tucker, Blanche Weddon and Lois Barnard. Dr. Bostock, with Dr. Herndon, the instructor.

SIMMONS PRESENTS RECITAL

Carolyn Simmons, pianist, will present a recital in the music studio of Carlisle Floyd in Opperman Music Hall tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Numbers on the program are Sonata in E Major, Lonae by Beethoven; Sonata in C Major, K. 475, by Mozart; Sonata for P Minor, Opus 5, by Brahms; Ravel's "Miroirs" and "Preludes," by Dmitri Kabalevsky.

Anthropologist Says Whistling At Monroe Is Cultural Action

By ROCK PAYNE

Through the eyes of an anthropologist, the desire to whistle at Marilyn Monroe would be animal behavior, but to express desire for amazing would be cultural. Men of some societies would not even look at her, the scientist said.

Dr. Hale G. Smith, professor and head of the dept. of Anthropology and Archaeology here, used this example to illustrate the close relationship between behavior, biological organism and the super-biological, or cultural level.

Dr. Smith, who is also in charge of the general culture course, said in a speech to journalism students in Dr. Sidney Kobre's reporting class, that culture is behavior is developed to fit the needs of man. To illustrate this he pointed out that a chair for an elephant would be designed much bigger and stronger because of the physical development in that animal, if elephants had culture.

Professor Smith indicated that there was no connection between the cultural development and the biological organisms but that it was brought about strictly by the cultural organism of the human.

He said the biological aspect is a subconscious factor and that we are often mislead by cultural appearance. He amplified his point with the case of Mt. Dora, where Sheriff Willis McCall turned the relatives of one family out of public schools there because of the external appearance of the race of one of the family.

Dr. Smith went briefly into an explanation of why wars occur among men.

He said culture alone determines war. "Wars start because of the economic factors of culture and not because of a biological factor," he concluded.

All societies, Dr. Smith indicated, do not look up to leaders as they do in our society. He said, for instance, "some societies look at college professors as obnoxious."

The speech which he titled "An Anthropologist Views Human Behavior," was presented to the Introduction to Journalism class of Joe School of Journalism.

32 Students Will Appear In Who's Who

Thirty-two Florida State University students have been selected to appear in the new edition of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

They were chosen from the Senior Class for being outstanding in scholarship, fields, before the Christmas holidays, and have now been approved by the national organization.

Those chosen are Lillian Ava, Robert Berlo, Judith Blitch, Robert Canada, Dorothy Cooke, Charlotte Dodder, James Crews, Delano Driver and James Fadigan.

Robert Foley, Betty Joanne Grubbs, Richard Guthine Hazel Hillman, Donnie Hollis, Jack Houser, Sue Humphrys, Jo Ann Hutto, Jackie Jackson, David Johnson, David Kennedy and Harry Master.

Jim Meadows, Betty Jo Miller, Charles Miner, Betty Ann Munroe, Peter Pappoutsi, Jo Ann Setzer, Mary Grace Shoemaker, Alan Sumbry, Don Tosi, Mary Belle Twitty and Ann Yates.

Japanese Gift Tree Slated For Planting Next To Longmire

An authentic Japanese Cherry tree, gift of the Japanese International Christian University, will be planted on the Florida State University Campus in ceremonies January 13.

The event a scheduled to take place at 2 p.m. on a narrow strip of ground between the Science Building and the Music Building parking lot.

The gift is a token of appreciation for money given the group by FSU students through the Campus Chest. Present at the ceremony will be President Doak S. Campbell, Vice-President A B Martin, University Chaplain Sam Neel, Japanese Consul Andreia, the Campus Chest Committee and others.

Tickets Gone For Dedication Of Auditorium

Formal Ceremonies Feature Governar, Dahnanyi, Kilenyi

All available tickets for the formal dedication of Westcott Auditorium Monday night were distributed by yesterday afternoon.

Vice-President Martin said yesterday that a portion of the five-hundred tickets reserved for distinguished guests by President Doak S. Campbell will be placed on general distribution today or Monday. He could not give any indication of the actual number.

Those which are made available will be distributed to the general public on a first-come, first-served basis, as were those which ran out yesterday.

The program features internationally known Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi and Edvard Kilenyi, FSU faculty members, in a concert of music for two pianos. Governor LeRoy Collins will present the dedicatory address.

The program given by Dr. Dohnanyi and Kilenyi, who in the past have given overflow crowds to Opperman Music Hall, will include the Concerto in C Major by J. S. Bach, Variations on a Theme of Beethoven" Saint-Saens; The Debussy Suite, "En Blanc et Noir," Rachmaninoff, and Dohnanyi's own "Value Boiteuse" and "Valse de Bravura."

During the ceremonies Colin Kaphlin, of the graduating class of 1954, will present a portrait of President Campbell to the University. The Portrait, painted by Frederick Roecher of Palm Beach, is the gift of the class of 1954.

Westcott Auditorium, completed in the fall of 1954 and one of the predecessor, is named after James Westcott, Florida's first citizen born in Tallahassee in 1826 and graduated from the school in the seminary forerunner to FSU. When he died in 1887 he left his estate to the university, which is to be sold Leon County students attending the school.

FSU's administration building, which bears Westcott's name, was constructed in 1902 and included no auditorium. An addition to the administration was made in 1911. The foundation of the 1911 addition failed and in 1949 the building was condemned. The cornerstone of 1951 made an appropriation for the present auditorium.

The new auditorium, constructed at a cost of about $465,000, is air-conditioned with a seating capacity of 1,826.

Far East Survey Replaces Course In Japan's History

The History Department has made a course change since the class schedule booklet was distributed, Professor Ta Chen Far East, will be offered in place of History 453, History of Imperialism of Japan, said a department spokesman.

The new course, Hy 355-356 3-3 gives a general survey of Far Eastern history, with emphasis on the civilizations of China and Japan. Using slides and audio-visual aids the course is designed not only for history majors but for backgrounds in preparation for all those interested in understanding the Far Eastern situation today, he continued.

Held on Tuesday and Thursdays at 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the History, the course will be taught by Dr George A Lanyi.

Lanyi received his doctora degree in Chinese and Japanese from Columbia University in 1941 and has just returned from a year in Japan on a Fulbright research grant. His book "Land Reform in Modern" currently on sale here, is a history of the economic and Russian culture in Northern Japan.

FLAMBEAU HOLDS BUSINESS MEETING

A meeting of the Florida Flambeau business staff will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 in the staff office.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

In order to prepare for the period of registration slated for January 19-28, students will need to confer with their faculty counselors concerning the proposed program. Approval in writing for the Spring schedule of classes will be given by educational counselors as a result of this conference If you are uncertain as to the name and office location of your educational counselor, get in touch with the Office of Coordinator of Counseling 307 Westcott Building by personal visit or telephone call. Extension 3321-3322. This office will assist you in determining the faculty counselor to whom you have been assigned the office location, and the office hours of the counselor.

DR MELVENE HARDEE, Coordinator of Counseling
301 Westcott Building
Ext. 3321-3322

Called Into Question

One of the charges leveled by the administration against former Professor Leathers was that he made an improper assignment to a female student.

It was revealed at the open hearing before Acting Governor Johns that Leathers said he had reported this student for cheating.

Evidence was presented at the hearing alleging that this student cheated on an examination in order to get a higher grade. If this is true then this girl's word upon which, we understand, the administration's case against Leathers was very largely based, is now itself called into question.

The Comic Book Offensive

The wide frothing over objectionable literature has reached the local scene. An advisory committee of nine Tallahassceans has been appointed by the mayor to determine in advance of sale what may be objectionable literature under a new city ordinance.

That ordinance prohibits publications that describe crime and those that, read as a whole, are obscene.

The committee is said not to be a "censoring" group nor possess enforcement powers over objectionable literature. If, however, objectionable literature is distributed or sold in opposition to the committee's ruling, the committee, or an individual of the group, may make charges. It would then be up to the City Court to make the legal determination if there was a violation.

We have never found this sort of thing appetizing, and the city from all indications, has failed to see or just disregarded existing measures covering objectionable literature. The Tallahassee Democrat pointed out flaws in the city program, and showed how contradictory the ordinance is.

The Democrat notes that the ordinance forbids sale on local "newsstands of publications which could not reach the public's eye except by violation of federal laws and which could not be displayed here except by violation of state law."

And they say "what we have is about what we would have with an ordinance punishing violators of the narcotics laws with 60 days in jail, in the face of more severe federal and state laws, on the theory that a committee, lacking legislative power and charter authority, might define cigarets as narcotics."

The problem of juvenile delinquency has been widely associated with the objectionable literature one today's newsstands. Certainly much of this literature contains nothing but trash, merely there for purchasing power.

This newspaper recognizes the need for a set of publication standards which would at least take this literature out of the garbage pile.

In this respect, a comic book czar, Charles F. Murphy, former New York City Magistrate, was appointed by the newly formed Comics Magazine Association. He is administering a code of ethics which includes the banning of horror and terror comics. 28 publishers representing three fourths of the comic book industry signed a voluntary code to follow these ethics back in October.

To also help raise the standard, better training in choosing reading matter should be exercised by both teacher and parent.

To have an ordinance which is incomplete, which is a duplication of effort and at the same time more weakening, too, slips decidedly in an attempt to solve this publishing growth.

Strange Concept of Fairness

A former member of the Federal Trade Commission recently had some words to say about the so-called "fair trade" laws and his remarks added up to one more reason why the states are being themselves more to unfair trade than any other kind.

The immunity from prosecution under the anti-trust laws which the McGuire Act grants is right now under question by Attorney General Brownell's commission studying the anti-trust laws. Yesterday our Mr. Clark, in his story on the Eisenhower legislative program for the coming year, wrote that the Brownell commission is "almost sure" to include a proposal to repeal the Federal "fair trade" law.

The point has often been made that it is a strange concept of fairness that holds that a contract signed between a manufacturer and one retailer in a state should bind all other retailers to a set price for certain goods. Now, to this point, Mr. Albert A. Carretta, Washington attorney, adds another; that of the double standard.

"It is totally immoral, unethical and illegal for the same manufacturer to distribute identical merchandise to two distributors in competition with each other and then compel one distributor to abide by a fair trade agreement and permit a competitor of that distributor to disregard the fair trade prices."

The suspicion has existed for some time that some of the cries about the discount houses violating the fair trade laws were uttered more for the record than anything else; we never could quite understand how the so-called price cutters could sell the goods unless the manufacturer blinked the selling. Mr. Carretta has forthrightly put his fingers on one aspect of that puzzle.

And the answers he gave are one more reason why the laws aren't working—as, indeed, laws which are intended to change the habits of people seldom can be expected to work. It is a habit of people to try the best goods at the least possible cost; and other people habitually are willing to supply the goods.

It is a sad thing that some of the fair traders so critical of free traders are themselves setting up the double standards Mr. Carretta described. Yet finally it may be a good thing; for the sooner the unfairness of the price setting laws is disclosed in all its manifestations, the sooner will fair competitive trade return to the market place.

—From The Wall Street Journal.

What Adults Haven't Heard

The next time journalistic and radio-TV dignitaries assemble to affirm "The People's Right To Know," we hope they will examine certain data just released by Dr. Gallup's Public Opinion Index. For the material raises grave questions as to who's keeping what from whom.

This poll dealt with the Dixon-Yates contract. That contract, its arrangement, engineered without competitive bidding under the cloak of unexplained secrecy, and with lavish concessions to the utility interests, may deeply affect the future of public power in the U. S.—and, thereby, the livas of millions of Americans.

What is startling about Dr. Gallup's report is not the even division of opinion on the subject; it is the fabulous number of Americans who don't know there has been an argument.

To be precise, 62 per cent of those interviewed said they had never heard or read of the Dixon-Yates contract. Of the 37 per cent who had heard of it, only about one-third had any clear notion of its nature of the agreement.

Admittedly some of the details of the transaction are complicated. Dispatches dealing with the Congressional debate were often crammed with gray statistics and dry drab technicalities. Certainly the controversy had more intimate interest to the people living in the TVA area than elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the figures on noninformation are pretty sensational. This has been an age of surveys, we think it might be well to discover how many Republican gazettes in one newspaper towns buried the Dixon-Yates story on the front page of metropolitan papers gave it any real notice? How many radio-TV debates were held to air the story?

This was the backroom deal that had all the elements of a steal; but GOP orators preferred to avoid the subject in most places. The statistics suggest that, by accident or design, they were incredibly successful in hacking out the facts.

Conceivably it is useful for Senators and essayists alike to be reminded periodically that many people get the news late, if at all, and survive. Anyway, let us not despair; the truth eventually gets around. By the autumn of 1956, a lot more Americans will have ceased to confuse Dixon and Yates with a vaudeville team or a minor-league battery.

For those who may have come to this class late, the Dixon-Yates contract authorizes a private utility syndicate to build a plant to supply energy to TVA to replace a similar amount which TVA now furnishes in an atomic energy plant. The alternative would have been to let TVA expand its facilities when necessary.

—From the New York Post.

"Where's The Exchange Department, Jack?"

The Lift File

A Highspot In Congress

For the first time in a couple of years—and that's a long time, indeed — Congress will have an opportunity to expose the impact and influence of "big money" — our industrial and financial giants—upon our politics and our government.

This chance to check again into the continued activity of our American politics comes because Democrats are in control of Congress, because they are looking for issues, because the political free-for-all Republicans—have been and continue to be responsible for the management of government, and because Republicans are vulnerable.

How much of this story we will get remains to be seen. It will be limited, at best, by the fact because the big money plays both sides of the political street and Democrats are vulnerable and guilty of "payoff" favors, and, as this will naturally try to play down the part of the story that involves them—and that is quite a part in '50 years.

We hardly will get, for example, anything near the complete story of how big oil operates in our politics, though we know already how government moves in special privileges, including the tax bonanza in the 27½ per cent depletion allowance which the big companies just mark off before they begin to figure their income tax. You and I get nothing of that sort; but we pay for that handout.

That windfall gives the big oil a political "kitty" which it has been using, as we know, in lavish expenditures to keep its friends in Congress and to weed out those who question its special favors. Many of the free-and-easy political dollars originate with the fabulous oil barons of Texas who drip them all over the land after they carry.

Texas, as we know, is well-entrenched in the seats of power in the incoming Democratic Congress. Sam Rayburn still seems assured of protection from any great exposure.

It is to two Republicans—and not Democrats—that we are indebted for an attempt to use that Congress to reduce the oil depletion bonanza to a reasonable future. 15 per cent. But Senator Williams of Delaware and Aiken of Vermont and one begs at all from their own Republican Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey.

Humphrey was, in fact, the only Secretary of Treasury in over 20 years who failed to recommend a cut in the oil depletion allowance which was written into the law when it was in 1927 in the Republican Coolidge Administration and has been retained ever since by a bipartisan coalition in Congress.

So the two senators lost their fight. It is hoped that Senator Williams, who did such a superb job of uncovering internal revenue bureau scandals of the Roosevelt-Truman regimes, and has Vermont colleagues will keep on trying in the new Democratic Congress, at least at last the public may keep reminded of how big oil operates to get what it wants in politics.

The public got a good look —one in the last Congress on the so-called "tidelands" oil bill promoted by big oil. It will get another when big oil begins to operate in the new Congress to try to put through a bill to "repeal" in effect a recent supreme court decision upholding the authority of the federal power commission to go clear back to the producer in the investigation of natural gas rates.

Oil, owner of the bulk of our natural gas reserves, is deep in this issue which has been before Congress and courts for years.

Once again we should get a glimpse in the new Congress into the operations of the electric utilities in politics, even if not as minutely and detailed a view as that furnished by the first of the big business-in-politics expose of that other era—the federal trade commission's exhaustive, documented story of utilities-in-politics which ran in the late 1920s and early 1930s.

This new look into the same old story will be by the Senate Judiciary Anti-monopoly subcommittee which, under the direction of Senator Lester of North Dakota, already has given us a sample.

It showed how Mississippi Power and Light and Arkansas Power and Light, which are parties in the entrancrooked Dixon-Yates contract involving TVA, formerly their parent Middle South utilities, spent their customers' money in election.

That was not only testified to by former Governor Coleman McMath, whom the utilities helped to defeat for re-election, but was documented by cash vouchers specifying election expenditures.

Congress also will set a new of the drift of government favors to big business when it receives a report, which is subject to its approval, that will recommend that the bulk of the synthetic rubber plants built at the peak expense for World War II, be sold to the rubber companies.

It will be another chapter in the saga of our era—the big ones get bigger and the little ones are swallowed up or die.

We only can hope that we get as much of the story as possible in the coming Congress. Every citizen ought to know who really owns the government and what really moves

(Continued on Page 4)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Bibler

The Point Is

Broadening Students' Understanding

By BOB FOLSOM

A number of programs have sprung up here that encourage students to think in broader terms than the security of specialization.

One, the American Studies plan, there since 1948, and which of late is receiving overdue recognition, is administered under the fine eye of Dr. William Randel. The plan is aimed at a humanistic treatment of American life, institutions and ideals—all designed towards broadening the students' understanding of fundamental principles of America.

One of its features is to bring into the classroom faculty members to speak on art, education, politics, religion and others. To attend the American Studies program, students have added time, but have nothing but superlatives for it.

Another is a course called "Basic Problems of 20th Century" sponsored jointly by the departments of economics, history, political science and the School of Education. It is designed as an approach to these issues, which Dartmouth initiated a while back.

The last is "American Government in Crisis and Controversy" instituted here under the Honors program, an intellectually stimulating reading course.

On the agenda of the great issues are such questions as "Is Capitalism necessary?", "Should we allow freedom for the thought we hate?", and on the world scene, "Is coexistence possible?" In the Honors course are such works as Orwell's "1984" and Faulkner's "Requiem for a Nun" and "The Lonely Crowd." DeTocqueville's "Democracy in America" besides briefs concerning the four freedoms, Hiroshima, etc.

Great decisions reached as various cases of far-reaching significance.

Both of these courses are based on the objective study of controversy, in addition to pinpointing the time honored value to be aware of issues that confront them as citizens, and acquainting them with books and briefs by which they can inform themselves on issues in our society.

Even though our society has supposedly been set up complete to give an individual a comprehensive view of his environment I must admit this isn't exactly an original phrase! It should not overshadow the liberal arts tradition. The aims of education still remain a two-way affair. Students and Public Administration, for example, can study Governmental Administration and the Legislative Process, and at the same time be privileged to observe and discuss the fundamental problems confronting this political process.

It's encouraging to see these programs here even in the face of the recent University Study Report that recommended gradual cutting of general education courses. While this is a possible reality, it will be a definite step towards fostering specialization. While it is rightly demanded that courses such as mentioned above be expanded and others created, it is a mistake to remain on that type of footing.

Even if educators explain away the traditions of solving problems in the basic fundamental principles so as to rely on specific problems of practical nature it should open the student from a narrowing his own education. It is a step that will benefit him though he may not think so now.

The Dissenter

Some Other Ways To Skin A Gator

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Student Senate this week roared a hearty, unanimous "Aye" to a resolution asking for athletic competition between the Florida State University and the University of Florida.

The resolution noted the failure of diplomatic relations between the two athletic departments, and requested that Presidential Complaint take up the matter with "the appropriate governing authorities of the universities"—the Board of Control.

The writer would like, as much as anyone else, to see full-fledged competition between the school and Florida in football, basketball and baseball, as well as the sports Florida's Auburn rival says he's willing to allow. Golf, tennis, track and swimming. Incidentally, FSU does compete now with the University of Florida, in the Gator Bowl Basketball Tournament, and it appears as if Woodruff is trying to escape from competition with regard to the future.

We must face facts, however. The University of Florida doesn't want to compete with FSU on the gridiron or the diamond.

Whatever the reason, it's not FSU on the gridiron or the diamond.

Whatever the reason, it's not going to do Florida State University any good whatever to force an engagements with the University of Florida. It puts this school in the uncomfortable situation of the beggar, and it puts too great an emphasis on athletics as a standard for comparing the two state universities.

To paraphrase an old saying, there are other ways to skin a Gator.

First, we could concentrate on building up our scholastic foundation, which already compares favorably with that of any school downstate.

While athletics are fine for the sake and interesting to watch, we are too prone to let the success of our athletic teams stir a gasp of pride in the minds of our state's alumni, while shaming football is good publicity, but so is outstanding scholarship. For that Florida State University educators, and they in turn influences a considerable number of future Floridians.

If getting students to come to FSU to take part in activities as circus, Gymkana, are many music groups and other extra-curricular activities, these activities aren't getting due credit for the time projecting such they do—they should be the class of students.

While not forgetting our role as an institution of artistic endeavor and higher education we can well afford to go back and increase our athletic prowess short the exposure of other universities—winning some games here losing some there, and in the long run—

(Continued on Page 4)

Etcetera Etchings

Yearly Slams And Plaudits Made

By DAVID DREIS

Get out of the way, everyone. It's time for the FLAMBEAU probably last annual new year's column. This is the column where we take out our slams and plaudits at individuals and things who have in the column of predictions for the coming year.

To begin with, my plaudits to my fellow cast members of the last production of the year play The Beautiful People. Three fine players who rose enough to step out of the spotlight as I upstaged them. After all this is their play and I'm glad to see it because of two good reasons: 1) The student dollar will go for a good cause and for these things is limited, I know I'm going to see this play and 2) I'm glad to see some of the students with these comments.

Now my PREDICTIONS FOR 1955: Jave F. Morgan recently signed with RCA Victor to be the top new sonstress this year. Last year I predicted Marvin and Dimaggio to merge after a split-up I predict it again for awhile. Although with the "win one lose one" attitude I've missed a few, I'm batting a .500 mark.

Now a nice-fat slam at whoever is making out the dates for events on this campus. When Carnival and The Beautiful People are held simultaneously Sandspur and Tarpon clash. Last year, we were bombarded with questions of "who's to blame?" There are so many weekend and evenings when nothing's going on it seems to us something might be done about it. Perhaps a couple of nights a show runs does not do a disservice to everyone to see it because of two good reasons: 1) The student dollar will go for a good cause and for these things is limited, I know I'm going to see this play and 2) I'm glad to see some of the students with these comments.

Now my PREDICTIONS FOR 1955: Jave F. Morgan recently signed with RCA Victor to be the top new sonstress this year. Last year I predicted Marvin and Dimaggio to merge after a split-up I predict it again for awhile. Although Marlon Brando's efforts in On the Waterfront and Humphrey Bogart's work in The Caine Mutiny has garnered for them Academy Award applause, watch for an outsider to win the prize: maybe Bing Crosby or James Mason. Julius LaRosa is the rising star to watch for: see Robert Cummings also in the running. Best movie: I Love Lucy or Dragnet. Who's Douglas Russell returns from Hollywood to play the role of Shakespearian costumina. The Department of Drama will utilize his know-how in the biggest production to date. NEBRASKA will beat Navy switching from Capitol records to RCA Victor. Elvis Presley is ready with a big waxing. Then did for The Ames Brothers when the quartet moved from Coral and sang "You, You, You." NBC devoted an hour to Ernest Hemingway with star-studded performers reading from his works. Hollywood has pictures making Broadway stars. Gold Cadillac was musical for Judy Holliday. That

(Continued on Page 4)

Reflections

Athletics And Its Growing Pains

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The PSU athletic program wasn't quite on an even keel during the latter part of 1954. Here are three reasons why.

After FSU dropped the University of Louisville from its 1955 football schedule, Athletic Director Howard Danberg revealed in a meeting with the U. of F. Athletic Director Bob Woodruff about football between the two state schools. He said he told Woodruff that FSU wanted to play U. of F. Woodruff was quoted as saying in reply that he was agin' it, whereupon Danberg gave up in disgust with the comment that he wasn't getting anywhere by talking to a brick wall.

This seems to show, if anything, the touchy football relation between FSU and U. of F. Bill unexplained, however, is the Gators' reluctance to meet the Seminoles. It's possible that Woodruff, and other U. of F. educators, feel that such a game would do more harm than good. The only way to tell would be to try it, but the only sport FSU and U. of F. meet in is basketball.

* * *

FSU lost 68-72 to U. of F. in the Gator Bowl Basketball Tournament on December 28 in the game played before a crowd of over 2,500 fans, who packed themselves into Jacksonville Junior College's Swisher Gymnasium.

To me, it was an excellent demonstration of how the psychological impact of solid backing can affect a game. While this is not to reckon the loss even Gator rooters who saw the game will admit that the applause had much effect. We now come to the startling conclusion that the same thing might happen in a football game. When FSU reaches or surpasses U. of F. in size, if the two play each other in football, the thing that will count is home support. FSU will invariably win in Tallahassee and U. of F. in Gainesville.

* * *

Adding spice to the sports picture is the case of Robert M Leathers, while apparently grew out of his investigation of athletics here. His case can be considered an athletic problem in the sense that it affects everything from a full Vice-Pres. office to the staff that [illegible] was avenging C. was made improper assignments.

The principal character first began his meteoric rise in publicity by saying that he was made to resign for teaching job here because of his athletic indulgence. In December, he was given a public hearing at the request of the acting governor. It was at this time that he branded FSU President Doak S. Campbell a "dictator," a statement aired in newspapers throughout the state. The president has not denied the charge, nor has a statement been made at this writing.

Since that episode, not a word has been heard of Leathers, who is now in the awkward position of a martyr who never heard about fighting city hall.

And that's PSU's athletic growing pains—the only thing that will stop it is a good dose of castor oil.

The Florida Flambeau

BOB FOLSOM—Editor
Jay Robertson, Managing Editor

Asst. News Editors: Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Feature Editor: Joyce Porter
Sports Editor: Jim Joanos, Dick Victory
Sports Staff: Bob Gunning, Alan Whitmarsh, David Merina
Photographer: Laird Anderson, Al Robbins

Copy Editors: Willie Smith, Pat Marston, David Dreis, Franklin Adams, Con Dreis Amusement Editor
Art Consultant
Cartoonist
Junior Staff: George Goldstein, Jerome Bernstein, Mario Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradfield

JOE CALDWELL—Bus. Mgr.

Business Staff: Mary Wilson
Distribution: Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Ad-writing Staff: Nina Kyle, Bill Tetrick
Staff Artist: Interested in National Ad-writing
Struble, 430 Andrews Ave. New York 17

The Florida Flambeau is published every Friday of the school year except holidays and examination periods by students of the Florida State University.

Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821

Member Associated Collegiate Press

Printed by the Students of Florida State University.

Second Period Decisive In El Paso Sun Bowl Duel

Director Says Schools Will Hurt Football

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—Charging that the Big Ten, Notre Dame and the Pacific Coast Conference are ready to sink the entire programs of all other teams in their eagerness to appropriate the TV dollar, Robert Hall in Wednesday's issue of Sports Illustrated, made a plea for the preservation of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's TV controls.

Hall, former director of Athletics at Yale and chairman of the 1951 NCAA TV committee which set up the present system of TV limitations, insists in SPORTS ILLUSTRATED article that if the few big schools are allowed to force a lowering of the NCAA limitations now imposed, "college football, as it is played every Saturday in the fall by over 400 teams throughout the country, is in grave danger," and consequently doomed, also, would be the stadium and training programs of most of the colleges since the are almost completely financed by football receipts.

The blast, which coincides with the opening of the NCAA meeting at the New Yorker Hotel here, also charges that the Big Ten, Notre Dame and the Pacific Coast Conference "already know that pulling out of the NCAA is unnecessary in order to get an NCAA ruling "will weed the NCAA and clear the way for the large schools with monolithic football organizations to negotiate the pick of all commercial television unhappily has to offer."

The accusations against the groups which are seeking to weaken the present NCAA TV system. Hall writes: "There is no way to say that the colleges who oppose the NCAA are doing anything deliberately to hurt the country or even the athletic programs at other colleges.

On the effect of the proposals which they have in committee at the NCAA convention, he must have one or more Gator Bowl results And unless one mistakenly assumes that these goals are coordinately attained in the sum of $141 666 66 with the rising price for TV game this past season, the attitude remains incomprehensible."

Hall writes that the minority faction has received "a surprising amount of support from a public that can only believe it misinformed." He cites a number of misinformation, thousands campaigns waged by some of these colleges, some TV networks, a trade association representing TV set manufacturers; and a few newspapers which own or control stations.

The basic limitations now in effect and now under attack are: (1) an NCAA ruling that New York area 1 a team can appear on TV only once a year, and 2 there must be at least relecast a season from other eight geographical areas within which the NCAA has divided the country.

These restrictions would be reduce or dilute the schedule-building value of which otherwise results in the increase in the attraction of the strongest teams in the season."

"NCAA action came as a result of a report prepared by the NCAA and the networks in 1950. In the belief that such a study would show that TV would promote the game by offering general public and, therefore increase attendance, the University of Chicago's National Research Center was asked to make an objective sta-

(Continued on Page 4)

STAR GUARDS — Picture above are FSU's two very outstanding cage guards, Ham Wernke (left) and Jim Oler. Both were chosen to the All Florida team last season.

Cagers Boast 6-2 Record; Play Fla. Southern, Tampa

By ALAN WHITMARSH

With one of their best seasonal records in stadet, the Florida State Seminoles resume their quest for the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference crown tonight in Lakeland, tangling with the Moccasins of Florida Southern College. Tomorrow night they continue conference play against the Tampa Spartans, in Tampa.

The hoops in the last three games have reduced FSU's mark to 6-2 for the season, but they are undefeated in conference competition, having downed Tampa, Stetson and Miami, respectively.

The cagers do not return home until a week from tomorrow, when they meet the University of Georgia, whom they have already once defeated, 97-87 in the Gator Bowl consolation game.

During the holidays, Florida State ran up a 3-2 mark, including two conference victories, a tip to the Jacksonville Gator Bowl tournament and a one-day excursion to North Carolina to meet the Duke University Blue Devils.

Beginning with the conference wins, on Dec 18, the Seminoles met and easily defeated Stetson, 96-78, on the home court. Coach Ham Wernke, who has come into his own in the last few games, poured in 22 points in the last half to pull FSU away to an easy win.

Wernke, who has been interviewed to the Helms All-American, raced 28 points altogether, and Jim Oler contributed 21 more. Stetson was in the contest only the first 10 minutes, and after the Seminoles opened up a 44-33 halftime margin, the Hatters never threatened the rest of the way.

December 21, Florida State ran its record ninth straight win on the home court, by coming from behind to defeat the University of Miami in another conference clash, 71-66. The FSU cagers have lost but twice in the local Tallahassee stalls.

After Miami took overcome a 5-point halftime deficit to take the lead with four minutes remaining, 6-6 Sophomore center Dallas Williams dropped in a couple of free throws to give the Seminoles a lead which they never lost as they pulled away to victory. Oler was the only other hoopie in that one, banging 20 points, as against Rick Benson's 19.

The Seminole cagers lost their perfect record in the first round of the Gator Bowl tournament when a fighting Florida team rama from 12 points behind in the last 16 minutes to nip Florida State, 83-78.

FSU held a 45-36 margin over the Gators at halftime, and were leading 67-55 with eight minutes remaining, but couldn't contain Florida's late spree and suffered their first defeat of the season. Rick Benson took Seminole scoring honors in the game with 19 points, followed closely by Wernke with 16.

However, the following night there was no stopping Wernke as the Seminoles stole one from the Gator bag of tricks and roared from behind in the final minutes to defeat Georgia in the consolation affair, 97-87.

Pouring in 36 points in the last half, Wernke set a new Bowl scoring record with 32 points to lead the Seminoles to victory. FSU trailed 45-46 at the half and with five minutes to go in the game were still down, 80-79. However, the Seminoles ripped the nets for 14 points in the last three and a half minutes to obtain a handy winning margin.

In addition to Wernke's record-breaking 32 points, guard Jim Oler, his All-star counterpart, added 25 points to assure victory for FSU.

The one-day trip to North Carolina proved to be a disastrous one for the Seminoles as they were outclassed and soundly trounced by Duke on the latter's court, 85-75. FSU was in the game only in the first three minutes, mainly thanks to the shooting of Jim Oler, whose 20 points led the Seminole range. Benson contributed 16 for second spot in the scoring.

Both Oler and Wernke hit their stride during these two games and Coach Hal Bradley's committee would not approve such a proposal, and that even if it did he was even more sure "than our alumni would appreciate."

When the subject at the (Continued on Page 4)

Whittenon Paces Victorious Miners

By DICK VICTORY

As a rule, after the home team loses 47-20, much less 47-20 in a bowl game, much much less to a little unknown college named Texas Western, the good things go unsaid and the bad things get shouted.

How much simpler it is to throw an "F" into conversation and leave the rest to conjecture.

And how obvious it is that the "F" must be: If it hadn't been for that miserable and maddening second quarter fumble—if we could correct the errine and you will see, as the man said, for yourself.

El Paso was dry and the temperature was in the mid-seventies. It had rained a few days before, but the sun had time to bake the turf and it was hard-packed.

Texas Western won the toss and elected to receive. The Seminoles chose the east goal with the sun at their backs.

Tom Feaunier kicked off for FSU and a month of waiting was over.

The first Miner drive bogged down after three plays and they kicked, a good one that sailed to the FSU 22 where Lee Corso gathered it in. The alert safety race the Miner safety man, who had gotten down under the ball to the four.

Fumble! It was Corso again, ramming ahead to the two and setting up Harry Massey's scoring plunge from there later on.

The "F" formulas.

Quarterback Jack Graham added the point and FSU had tasted the fruits of glory. They did not relish the taste, but it was a marvelous whole. For three minutes later the Miners had the ball, 1st and eight and a half minutes later the Texans were off to the second quarter races.

Texas got the points that tied it up in the third quarter following a pass 56 yards. Graham deflected the ball into the hands of right end arms of Miner ballback Rusty Whittenon who ran it up.

On the second period's second play, Western ponied with the sun and split behind their backs. Backed by it, the FSU deep men weren't quite able to get there cleanly and a bounced losses and was finally recovered by Miner linebacker Bob Purvis. On the first Corso was carried off the field after he had been hurt earlier and aggravating a leg he had been favoring. Graham replaced him, turned later and watched the remainder of the game from the players' enclosure in the stands.

On the third down following the fumble the Western All-Star ender Converse quarterback. Whittenon, circled right and for 14 yards and a touchdown. He came over the goal from seven yards out. The Miners led, 20-0.

Poor punts set up the next two Texas Western touchdowns. The first came late in the second as kicked one off the side of his foot than went out of bounds on the FSU 45.

On the second play following Bob Forrest went all the way on a delayed buck with the help of a couple of blocks, and Whittenon his twin brother. Dick Whittenon added the point. The score: 27-0.

Another quarterback, Vic Prinzi, got off the second sour Seminole punt, this one traveling one yard less than Massey's—13. Both boys were rushed hard. Prinzi's carried in the Speard kickoff zone.

From there the Miners got another score in four plays. It was that man Whittenton again, this time passing—a nineteen yarder to Dick Forrest, all by himself in the endzone. Whittenon's kick was good. 27-7.

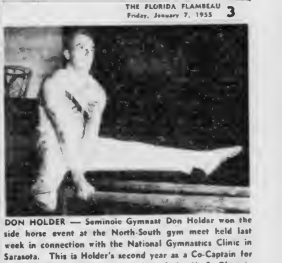
The Miners got their final score of the first half in the closing seconds. This time on interception by Bob Forrest put them in business on the Tribe 36. Six plays and the Texans had it as Whittenton fired 16 yards up the middle to Bill Hudgins. Wonderful Whittenton, later to be named the game's most valuable player, then added the extra point, making it 34-7 at the game's midway.

The band's colorful panorama at intermission kept the fans happy and most of them stayed around to see what was going to happen in the second half. As it estimated 16,000 people were there at the beginning and few left.

As the second half got under way, it looked like it was going to be a repeat of the first, except worse, as the Texans marched to a touchdown in five plays. Bob Purvis, Miner fullback, was outstanding the most valuable player voting in the game, scoring the 41-yard explosion over center. Whittenton iced the point made it, 41-7.

The second touchback quick by with a 47-yard scoring drive in nineteen plays. Graham added the point and FSU had tasted the fruits of glory. They did not relish the taste, but it was a marvelous whole. for three minutes later the Miners had the ball, 1st and eight and a half minutes later the Texans were off to the second quarter races.

Texas got the points that tied it up in the third quarter following a pass 56 yards. Graham deflected the ball into the hands of right end arms of Miner ballback Rusty Whittenon who ran it up.



On the second period's second play, Western ponied with the sun and split behind their backs. Backed by it, the FSU deep men weren't quite able to get there cleanly and a bounced losses and was finally recovered by Miner linebacker Bob Purvis. On the first Corso was carried off the field after he had been hurt earlier and aggravating a leg he had been favoring. Graham replaced him, turned later and watched the remainder of the game from the players' enclosure in the stands.

On the third down following the fumble the Western All-Star ender Converse quarterback. Whittenton, circled right and for 14 yards and a touchdown. He came over the goal from seven yards out. The Miners led, 20-0.

Poor punts set up the next two Texas Western touchdowns. The first came late in the second as kicked one off the side of his foot than went out of bounds on the FSU 45.

On the second play following Bob Forrest went all the way on a delayed buck with the help of a couple of blocks, and Whittenon his twin brother. Dick Whittenton added the point. The score: 27-0.

Another quarterback, Vic Prinzi, got off the second sour Seminole kost.

DON HOLDER — Seminole Gymnast Don Holder won the side horse event at the North-South gym meet held last week in connection with the National Gymnastics Clinic in Sarasota. This is Holder's second year as a Co-Captain for the FSU team. He was a member of the U. S. Olympic team in 1952.

Illinois Whips FSU Gymnasts At Sarasota; Minnesota, Third

By BOB GUTTING

At the recently completed 4th Annual National Gymnastics Clinic held at Sarasota Dec 28-31, Florida State's team was represented by Don Holder, Jack Mims, Joe Taylor, Jim Tanaka, Austin Ireland, Ken Bowen and Jeping for FSU and the south in last competition. The famed Seminole gymnast who graduated last June.

In the team war meet between Illinois, Minnesota and FSU, a powerful Illinois team led by Bob Stephenson, Olympic and Gardiner took first place with 53 points to 34 for FSU and 21 for Minnesota.

In the first event, side horse, Lloyd Eisen placed first with Joe Taylor fourth to give the Seminoles an early lead in the first event. Stephenson and Illinois' Gardiner Joe also placed second and third, respectively.

FSU's Don Holder scored the most points for a single event with a nine point total.

(Continued on Page 4)

U of F Won't Play Football With USF Declares Woodruff

University of Florida is not interested in meeting Florida State University in football according to athletic director Howard Danford.

Danford made the statement while telling of a meeting he had with athletic director Bob Woodruff late in December. He said Woodruff brought him a proposal that U.F.-FSU athletic relations.

"Coach Woodruff said UF would be very happy to meet us beginning in the spring, in track, tennis, golf and swimming, provided—and only provided—that we would not ever contests with them in any other sports" said Danford.

Other sports would include basketball, football and baseball.

"I was shocked," continued Danford. He said he told Woodruff that the FSU athletic committee would not approve such a proposal, and that even if it did he was even more sure "than our alumni would appreciate."

When the subject at the

(Continued on Page 4)

Dick Dunkel's COLLEGE BASKETBALL POWER INDEXES

EXPLANATION

The Power Index ratings are goal performance averages. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team, against equally rated opposition.

(Ratings through Jan. 2)

Higher Scores	Lower Scores
Games of
FRIDAY, JANUARY 7
AMONG TOP 100
Calpoly 72.0	Nevada 67.0
E. Illinois 69.5	Ill. Illinois 65.5
Bradley 69.0	Wichita 68.0
Lafayette 68.5	Gilmerton Pa. 66.5
Holy Cross 68.0	Rutgers 67.0
Boston U. 67.5	Connecticut 66.5
St. John's (NY) 67.5	Niagara (NY) 65.5
Penn State 67.0	Temple 66.0
Villanova 67.0	Seton Hall 66.0
Duquesne 66.5	Syracuse 65.5
Canisius 66.0	Loyola (Md.) 65.0
Fordham 66.0	Manhattan 65.0
Georgetown 66.0	Belmont Sh. 65.0
Marquette 66.0	Xavier (O.) 65.0
Bucknell 65.5	Kentucky 64.0
Dayton 65.5	Miami (O.) 64.0
Louisville 65.5	Bowling Gr. 64.0
Totals 36 22 73	Totals 40 17 67
Halftime score Duke 51, State 39
Free throws missed: Fla State—Benson, Johnson 2, Oler 2, Wernke 2, Doherty, Lassila 2, Benson.
Duke—Hagan 2, Roberts 2, Barnhill, Dougherty 2, Jones.

Kahler's free Sodas & Sundaes

Bring A Friend or Drag A Date

— AT OUR EXPENSE —

Through January 15th All Soda Fountain Orders Will Be Duplicated "FREE" DURING "BUDDY HOURS"—2:00 P. M. TO 4:00 P. M.

We Want Your Business—Come In and Get Acquainted

Buddy Hours at

KAHLER'S

formerly AMBER HOUSE

Cavanaugh's Restaurant

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

CLOTHES MAKE THE BMOC

A few weeks ago I discussed fashions for coeds. I pointed out then that coeds who wish to succeed in the groovy campus had to be bold and ingenious when it came to clothes. This is no less true for the male students.

Believe me, men, you'll never get anywhere if you keep skulking around in those old plaid flannel shirts. You need a sleek, suave, perverse, some investments in your apparel. Don't be imprisoned by the traditional conservatism of men's clothing. Brighten up your appearance with a purple earring, or a cavalry saber, or a gold derby.

However, great caution is cautious. If, for instance, you are having a gold derby, do not also wear a cavalry sabre. This is too much. Wear a dagger instead, or, for informal occasions, a Bowie knife.

Speaking of Bowie knives, I wonder how many of you know what a great debt they owe to Davy Crockett? You all know, of course, that Colonel James Bowie died in the Siege of Texas during the Battle of the Alamo. One of the many other important contributions to culture for which we are indebted to Colonel Bowie is the knife that bears his name. It was actually Colonel Harry Clasp invented the Clasp knife! Or that Colonel Harry Jack invented the Jack knife? Or that Colonel Harry Putty invented Putty knife? Or that Colonel Harry Cannon invented the tower.

By a strange coincidence, every member of the graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy in 1808 was named Harry, save for Colonel Jared Sparks. Colonel Sparks was also involved in the history of American education, though, of course, quite common Harry.

But I digress. We were talking about men's campus fashions. Let us turn now to a persistent rumor that a garment called the "suit" is on the verge of making a comeback. If you don't know what a suit may remember the "suit," it was an ensemble consisting of a jacket and trousers made of the same cloth. And I know it will be music to one coeds you try that crazy vintage tobacco.

The "suit" ever came back, it will be because it was happened in fall on and in the campus newspaper, "WIN A COMPLETE WARDROBE" said the ad. "Today's Togger jibes with a leading men's store, announces a contest to pick the best dressed man on campus. The winner of the contest will receive, absolutely free, a blue hound's tooth jacket, a yellow button-down shirt, a black knit tie, a tattersall vest, gray flannel trousers, argyle socks, and white buck shoes with two inch crepe soles."

By mouth watered at the thought of such a splendid wardrobe, but how could anybody possibly pick me as the best dressed man on campus—me in my "Paris" sweater? The contest must be rigged. I settled pen in hand and wrote a letter to the editor of the campus newspaper:

"Dear Sir, I see by the paper that Toubly's Togger is going to give a complete wardrobe to the student picked as the best dressed man on campus. What a ridiculous idea!

"Obviously, to be the best dressed man on campus, you must first have a lot of clothes. And if you have a lot of clothes, what do you need with another one?

"Toubly's Togger should give a new wardrobe to the worst dressed man on campus. For instance, I am a sophomore, I have only a row in town that will come near me. Three times this month the Salvation Army salvage truck has stopped and picked up the best dressed man on campus. What a ridiculous idea!

"I submit that a vote for me is a vote for reason, a vote for equity, in short, a vote for the American way."

With a flourish, I signed the letter and sent it off, somehow feeling certain that very soon I would be wearing a complete new wardrobe.

And I was right—because two weeks later I was drafted.

© Max Shulman, 1954

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS who think you would enjoy these cigarettes.

Last Junior English Exam Scheduled 3 p.m. January 17

The last Junior English examination of this semester will be given from 3 to 5:30 p.m., Monday, January 17, in rooms 306 and 307 Westcott.

Students required to take the examination will transfer who have not had it before; all juniors and seniors who for special reasons were deferred; and all sophomores who will be Juniors next semester. Students are not permitted to repeat the examination.

Eligible students who fail to take the examination will be assigned a 55 delinquent fee to be paid prior to the next registration. Such students who were passed delinquent for failing to take the last examination will present their delinquents fee receipts at the door January 17.

All sophomores who had in September, 1954, a minimum of 42 hours are expected to take the examination.

Students whose examination invitation is need for remedial work will be enrolled for Junior English classes at the next registration.

Before the time of the examination, students who have conflicts should clear their schedules in the Junior English office.

There will be another Junior English examination given for students transferring to FSU for the spring semester of 1955. The examination will be given on February 1.

U. of F. Won't

(Continued from page 2)

number of Southeastern Conference games FT plans was brought up. Woodruff declared he "not interested in playing FSU in football and basketball."

Concluding her report of the meeting, Danford said he was convinced that any further efforts on his part through Mr. Woodruff would be a waste of time and energy.

High Spot

(Continued from page 2)

Those who are supposedly elected as public servants.

Thomas L. Stokes

(Copyright, United Feature Syndicate)

This is the tree
That stopped Speedy Reid
When physics failed me
He was lavish out.

Basso Jerome Hines To Sing At Thomasville January 24th

Jerome Hines, Metropolitan Opera bass, will appear at the Municipal Auditorium in Thomasville, Georgia, January 24 at 8:30 p.m. Single tickets are on sale for $3.

His performance is sponsored by the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation.

The first American bass in 30 years to win international acclaim in the great bass roles of the Metropolitan and in the opera houses of Europe and South America, Hines began his career as a boy of 15 singing as a freshman at UCLA in "H.M.S. Pinafore."

As a result of this performance, Hines was so razzed by the San Francisco Opera's curator he bowed the following season as Mephisto in "Faustus."

Unwilling to leave school, where he majored in chemistry and mathematics, the 19-year-old Hines managed to combine a full-time college program with specialized music training.

That the New York Times' critic Olin Downes described Hines' bass voice as "certainly one of the best to be heard in opera anywhere," and that the world-famous manager, S. Hurok, signed Hines to his group of concert stars, is tribute to an American voice that was destined from the first to be great.

By the time he had received his B.A. in 1943, Jerome Hines was a member of the staff with Leo Ariedes Philharmonic and Hollywood Bowl. From graduate studies in physics, he then took time to sing in opera festivals in Denver, New Colorado and with the New Orleans Opera.

Since his debut with the Metropolitan Opera during the

MALONE'S BOOK STORE

For Your Everday Needs

WE BUY USED BOOKS

107 S. COPELAND

Illinois Whips

(Continued from Page 3)

Hutt came on to cram for points scored was Carmine Reana with 10 followed by Joe Tarpley with eight and Don Holder with six.

At the North-South meet held several days later, the North gridders took a 21-8 win. The powerful northern team was represented by such outstanding gymnasts as Ed Scrnow, two time Olympic team member, Bob Richards, Pole Vault star of Illinois, both former National champs, Frank Ahnen and Bill Fina, former National all around champion. To compete against these top flight stars Don Tanner and Ray Sorensen, both former members of Olympic teams, and former National tumbling champ Frank Wells. Hodel, however, only entered two events due to the fact that he was recovering from a painful back injury suffered from a fall from the bath bar.

Bob Sullivan of Illinois was voted the outstanding performer at the meet and was presented a special trophy. FSU and the south came in for its share of this honor however, when Jack Miles, veteran Seminole gymnasts, was voted second best performer.

Here lies the bones
Of Nels Bright
She got out her left hand.
And turned to the right.

Director Says

(Continued from Page 3)

tinued study of the 1954 football season.

"The NORC's first report, published in 1951, stressed that one," Sports Illustrated says. "It said that a well-coached football team could defeat a 40-, adverse effect on attendance And its later report revised that to 27.

Hall's reaction to the regional plan" now being offered as substitutes or compromises is also very emphatic. He says the plan, if the National Opinion Research Center is to be believed, is beautifully designed to completely wreck football in the other colleges of the Midwest and the Pacific Coast.

All available evidence indicates that any lessening of the NCAA limitation within a proportional area would result in even greater attendance than that in those from which the same is already suffering. Such a plan would cut the jugular vein of many schools.

Hall admits the present plan is not the whole answer, but he says it must be strengthened, not weakened; "In order to provide for the public interest the colleges have had to wittingly enrich a few schools—11 teams have "won" under the year the plan has been in operation. Nevertheless the plan has offered a basis protection to the many.

"But today, when the NCAA should be trying to evolve a plan to heal the wounds of those colleges that are being hard to death, what is happening" The Big Ten, Notre Dame and the Pacific Coast Conference—representing seven of the 11 repeaters—are attacking the best plan, unsatisfactory as it is, that has yet been offered for controlling college football from the onslaughts of television.

"It seems to me absurdly obvious." Hall concludes, "that those who already have the money cannot, in good conscience, justify their attempts to get all that's left."

CAMP APPLICANTS ASKED

A representative from the Camp Echo Hill, Clinton, New Jersey, will be in Lonnmire Building tomorrow from 1 to 4 p.m. to interview students interested in camp work.

Florida State University students who would like camp work this summer should send application now with the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement. Dr. Christine Foster, professor of physical education for women, or Dr. W. J. Tait, associate professor of physical education for men.

Here lies till final trumpet peal
The bones of Willie Sharp;
He dored while holding a steering wheel.
And woke up holding a harp.

Quickest Delivery In Town at the

QUAKER HOUSE

GOOD WHOLESOME FOOD

at the COUNTER, on the CURB, at your DOOR

Sandwiches Shakes, Splits, Sundaes, Regular Meals

Phone 2-8677 Open 6 a.m. to Midnight Seven Days a Week West Tennessee Street

Tri Delt's Sponsor Scholarship Exams For FSU Women

The 1955 Tri Delta General Scholarship Competition will be held January 7-February 15, 1955.

Women students at Florida State University are eligible to apply. They do not need to be Tri Delt sorority members but they should be well-qualified by their records as being valuable citizens in their future communities, said sponsors. The amount of awards on say one of the 14 campuses included at the competition will not exceed $200.00.

The Delta Delta Delta Awards Committee will judge the respective merits of the applicants. The successful candidate will be notified by May 1, 1955, and scholarships will be forwarded to them at the beginning of the term for which the award is made.

Application blanks are available at the office of the Dean of Women in 205 Westcott Building.

Campbell Presents

(Continued From Page 1)

versation, of homosexual activity on campus. He related that he suggested to her that she write down her thoughts for the benefit of her self as a counselor, could confer with specialists.

Also an alleged accusation of vulgarity in the classroom Leathers replied that he had repeated only words from the Reader's Digest and the Arthur Godfrey show.

During the hearing a long list of character witnesses took the stand on testify for Leathers. They included his former boss at the Leathers Hotel and other friends, instructors, professors and neighbors.

Leathers also asserted that his resignation was forced because of his work here as the local American Association of University Professors committee investigating academic freedom.

Leathers had maintained that he had been falsely accused and denied him a fair hearing and prejudiced acting governor Bryan and a review board set up by John consented to hold such a hearing, which was something any personal authority in the question.

During the course of the hearing Leathers charged that the faculty of Florida State University is working under pressure. They are afraid to speak out on any matter when they think they are wrong, and, of course, that affect each individual in the State.

Leathers further intimated that the faculty of the Methodist representative of the faculty, Leathers charged that having the president of the University serve as chairman of the Faculty Senate is an "unhealthy situation."

Leathers noted that actions of the Faculty Senate are supposed to be sent to the President for his veto or for his approval and transmission to the Board of Control for its approval.

Insinuating that this procedure is not observed, Leathers said, "but the senate have legislative powers, and he does not have the veto power."

Asked whether the President has ever vetoed actions of the Faculty Senate, Leathers charged "No because he doesn't veto. He changes it to "But today when it left it. That's what I intend to show you right here."

Another instance of Dr. Campbell's violation of the Constitution "Of Florida State University," Leathers added later, was in refusing to submit to the Board an amendment that was passed unanimously by the FSU faculty but instead submitting his own version."

Leathers charged that the faculty Senate was not consulted, in those who already have the money cannot, in good conscience, justify their attempts to get all that's left."

Move Started

(Continued From Page 1)

rgnal distributions of funds be made between the Florida State University and the University of Florida."

Although similar resolutions were passed by Student Senate last year, it was pointed out Wednesday that no action was ever taken on them.

The third resolution stated:

"Be it resolved that this Senate: Hereby extend a resolution of fellowship to our respective al band, heroic football and basketball teams for their sacrifice of time in diligently preparing for the holiday contests and for their magnificent display of the F.S.U. spirit on the football field and basketball courts over the past Christmas holidays."

The appointment of Nancy Graham to the vacant Junior women's seat in Senate was confirmed upon receipt of a report al Senator Jim Moore's Elections and Appointments Committee.

Women's Vice-President Joan Tavel noted that Mary Louise Dee who was elected to the seat last Spring, will return for the second semester and was seated the Graham appointment be confirmed as an interim or temporary, appointment only. When told that this would require the rejection of the appointment and a re-nomination by President Doyle Conner declined to support such a measure.

Other appointments confirmed were those of Evelyn Brown, Martha Grizzard, Gordon Tetzlaff, and Clive Thornton to the Secretary of Organizations' Committee Jacqueline Burns to that committee as a non-voting member, and Betty Jane Woodward, under-secretary of honor.

The appointments al Jack Norton and Bruce Fletcher as assistants to the Attorney General were also reported on by the Elections and Appointments Committee and should come up at the next Senate session, along with the appointment of Jack Vanderbilt as the Secretary al State Committee.

Senator Johnny Jordan, chairman of the Senate Recreational and Social Committee, announced that the Men's Intramural office will distribute 25 used footballs to Intramural teams for their permanent possessions.

After lengthy discussion, Senate called off its regular meeting for Wednesday of the Wednesday before final exams.

Some Other

(Continued from page 2)

mentator developing into an all-around athlete power.

Finally the University of Florida will find itself in the embarrassing position of having to ask UK for athletic reputation to stave their face. But by that time, if we devote ourselves to the ideal of education, there will be no need for the people al Florida to use athletics as the yardstick.

Say it with brakes and save on the flowers.

Sandspur

(Continued From Page 1)

"the stipulation of Sandspur is that it is issued, which it is, and written by a student enrolled in FSU, which he is. I and the Sandspur committee feel that since it has been produced before, we should get an even better production, benefitting from our past mistakes." A few changes have been made in the script and some new tunes added, she said.

Let's heave a sigh
For Henry Desk.
He didn't commute
His brakes were broke.

Church News

HILLEL

Hillel will hold a business meeting this Sunday night at 8:15 p.m. Students who attend the affair will meet at Temple Israel located at the corner of Copeland and St. Augustine.

Choir rehearsal will begin at 7 p.m. for those interested in singing.

NEWMAN

It was announced by officials of the Newman Club in the Orientation Handbook that there will be a program at 4:30 p.m. in the Newman House this Sunday.

Pizza supper and a spiritual program for examinations will be the main events. The date for this occasion is January 21. The following Tuesday from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. the moonlily coffee hour will be held.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Christian Science organization of Florida State will hold its weekly testimonial meetings on Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 7:45 p.m. in room 017 of the music building.

Christian Science literature and study facilities may be obtained in room 240, Suwannee Room Arcade, each Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 2 to 5 p.m.

Yearly Slam

(Continued from page 2)

man in Hollywood who labels the stars as heroes. Dec 1 has been at work now there's a new comer named Lance Fuller . . . darnit! . . . What is Vista-Vision? Well, after some careful study . . . the screen is taller if not wider—and the people in the foreground are sharper in contrast to a blurred background. Dan Dailey was just filling in his contract with Twentieth Century Fox. They could hardly wait to get rid of him His first picture is a year set Na Thanksgiving. Show Business. Now MGM and Warners warn him, but Fox is picking up his option . . . Linda Christian now slashing loose Tyrone Power in Italy . . . high strides with Edmund Purdom now that he's wiggling from his wedlock. Sinatra and Gloria Vanderbilt are far from just being friends . . . this may be it.

'So This Is Paris,' 'Drum Beat' Head Week's Theater Billing

Two completely different types of movies play at the Tallahassee theaters this weekend. At the State theater, a technicolor musical, "So This Is Paris" reads the program while "Drum Beat," a saga of the west plays at the Florida.

"So This Is Paris" tells of three foot-loose American sailors on leave in Paris. Tony Curtis meets and dates beautiful headline singer Gloria DeHaven. Paul Gilbert gets involved with Mara Corday the nightspot cashier and Gene Nelson takes Corinne Calvet, a French heiress.

The group sings and dances its way through the film to nine new songs written specially for the picture. Dance routines in the film are Christine Martel, 1953 "Miss University" and Myrna Hansen, 1953 "Miss United States."

Adopted from a factual sequence in history, "Drum Beat", shows Alan Ladd as a taciturn Indian fighter turned peace commissioner at the request of President Grant. Others in the

Expert Shoe Repairs PALACE SHOE SHOP established 1914

across from Florida Power Office

PAUL TURNER JEWELER

Keepsake Diamond Rings Bulova & Elgin Watches

107 S. Monroe St. Phone 3-1443

Public Administration School Announces Internship Program

The School of Public Administration at Florida State University has announced a new internship program in cooperation with the Florida League of Municipalities. The program is open to all Juniors and Seniors.

Beginning next semester, students will be selected for interim positions in Florida cities, leading to possible further employment during the summer and/or after graduation jobs for Seniors.

As outlined by Dean Wilson K. Doty of the School of Public Administration, the internship period will be from 6 to 8 days during March, April and May of the Spring Semester or June and July of the Summer Session. Students will be selected on the basis of character, scholarship, academic achievement, and knowledge of government for the positions. The internship carries two hours of credit.

Fields in the program include accounting, agricultural science, biological science chemistry, civil engineering, clothes electrical engineering, general administration and management, general fiscal administration, horticulture, hydraulic engineering, personnel management, planning, police administration, recreation, sanitary engineering and statistics.

Dr. Doyle said that the League of Municipalities has sent notices to Florida cities asking them to report any possible openings.

STUDENTS!

EARN '25!

Lucky Drodlers' are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So send every original Doodle in your possession with its descriptive title, to Lucky Drodles, P.O. Box 67, New York 46, N.Y.

©1954 LBT CO. Cigarettes rated at Target Price

LUCKY STRIKE

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

CIGARETTES

STUDENTS ARE ECSTATIC about Luckies. That's the word, straight from the latest, largest college survey ever. Again, the No. 1 reason Luckies lead in colleges over all other brands, coast to coast — borders to border: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. This famous Lucky Strike process tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. So be smart, like the student in the Drodlie above, tilted Lucky smoker swinging in hammock. Swing to Luckies your-self. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER... Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother.

BATCO, PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

'What's This?' For solution see paragraph below.

LIBRARY
FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY
TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA

Dorsey Brothers Will Appear Here (See Below)

The Florida Flambeau

Florida's Only Semi-Weekly College Paper

VOL. XL, NO. 23 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — TUESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1955

Dorsey Team Engagement Is Scheduled

Famed Brothers To Give FSU Concert Under Artist Series

Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey will be on campus next month to perform at two evening concerts.

The news was released today that the FSU Artist Series using the major names in the field, announced for Thursday evening February 10 and all that is needed for admission will be a little reads and activity book ticket, combined two Concerts will be at 6:30 and 8:30 in Opperman.

The Dorsey Brothers, who need no little introduction, will be heading for a Miami Beach hotel engagement following this show and are doing more-or-less of a "homecoming" in Tallahassee.

The duo, formerly leading their own orchestras, united last year and feature another orchestra leader, Buddy Rich, on the drums. Television's number one star, Jackie Gleason, signed them to his summer replacement last past year and unlike other summer programs, this show upped a fine poll rating. Gleason recently booked his two-week vacation to coincide with their stay here and had the Dorsey Brothers' spaces him.

With the exception of Ray Bolt, who did a quick substitute for Mike Barrett at the famous FSU piano major bands conducted the year, Lee Kizzire played last night at the Millionaire Ball. Bolt is making a big comeback on March 26th, and May's IFC "Capers" has asked Mercurcy record's Buddy Morrow for its offering.

Campbell Replies To Charges That He Pressured Resignation

FSU President Dork S. Campbell replied before the Board of Control, Friday, at Gainesville, to charges by former Assistant Professor Robert L. Leathers that he was pressured resigning from the university because of his work in investigating alleged athletic malpractices here.

In an eight-page brief Dr. Campbell defended the policy and administration of the Association of Leaders, questioned the validity of the athletic investigation referred to by Leathers, affirmed the existence of evidence against Leathers, and blasted as a diversionary tactic the former professor's reference to campus homosexuality.

Dr. Campbell stated that a former student body president of Leathers' had signed an oath to the effect that her teacher in a geography class had exhibited behavior which was such as to cause her extreme embarrassment. Dr. Campbell's report intimated that similar testimony was obtained from other girl students.

"Mr. Leathers makes much over the fact that he was not presented with written charges when charges were not yet preferred against him," declared Dr. Campbell. "This was at his own election."

Dr. Campbell said that when complaints are registered against any faculty member of such a nature as would tend to involve his personality or the University, a careful investigation is made of all alleged facts in the case. In each instance the person making the complaint is told of the serious nature of the complaint and is asked whether, should it become necessary, he would be willing to repeat his statement under oath. If the answer is affirmative, all pertinent facts and statements are reduced to writing and are properly attested.

The FSU president said that "the faculty member is then called into conference by the dean of the school or college concerned, and in the presence of at least one other person, is given an oral statement of the complaint. The question of the incorrence or guilt of the faculty member is not raised at this point. He is told that the complaint is of such gravity as to impeach the position and he is given the option of either one of the following courses of action:

"a. The faculty member may assume the initiative and present his resignation, or.

"b. The faculty member may

(Continued on Page 4)

Senate Plans Consideration Of Appointees

Three presidential appointments, two of which were made before Christmas, are expected to receive consideration by the Student Senate when it meets tomorrow afternoon at 4:15.

The appointments are those of Bonnie Carter and Jack Norton as assistants to the Attorney General, and of Gail Crutchfield to the Secretary of State Committee.

Norton and Fletcher were appointed to assist Attorney General Dave Kennedy several weeks before Christmas, but like Senate Elections and Appointments Committee was not ready to report on their nominations then week.

Two bills will be introduced tomorrow, according to vice-president Doyle Moore who sponsored by Senator Polly Atwater, would provide for the construction of two suggestion boxes to be placed on campus to provide a means of assisting conversing student government.

The other, backed by Ken Gaitlin, would provide for an audit of the student activity fee income, and the publication of the results of that audit.

These bills, however, will not be voted on until the first meeting of the second semester, unless Senate rules are taken to allow voting on the first reading. In anticipation of final exams, Senate has cancelled its meeting of January 18. The next Wednesday of classes would occur on February 8.

A committee composed of the six freshmen senators may report on a resolution to extend official recognition to the annual Rat Court program.

A resolution introduced last week, which lauded the Rat Court system as an aid in orientating freshmen to the university and as a boost in school spirit, referred to the committee after lengthy discussion.

Those opposed to passing the resolution objected that such recognition would be out of permanent nature unless it was to be changed each year. It was added that they felt Rat Court

(Continued on Page 4)

VA Explains Proclamation Ending GI Bill

Veterans Administration today explained the effect that a Presidential Proclamation ending eligibility for certain Post-Korea veteran benefits will have on the Korean GI Bill Education and Training Program.

The Proclamation sets January 31, 1955, as the date for purposes of acquiring eligibility for certain GI benefits, including Korean GI Bill Training. Those who enter the armed forces after January 31 will not be entitled to Education or Training under the Korean GI Bill when they are discharged or released. Those who enter service before that date will hold up entitlement for Korean GI Training only up to Nine months beyond January 31. Under present law, they will see nonregular training entitlement before after January 31.

Entitlement is computed on the basis of one and one-half times the length of military service up to and including January 31, 1955.

For example, a man who entered service December 1, 1954, would receive Training Entitlement only for the period between December 1, 1954, and August 31, 1955—almost three months of schooling.

Under present law those who enter service this month will be entitled to still lose GI Training if it is several months in most. But those any veteran can qualify for GI training under other laws is that meet two other requirements of the law. He must have been separated from active service or other-than-dishonorable conditions with at least 90 days of service, unless discharged earlier for a disability incurred in line of duty. Not all the 90 days need be before January 31; any part of it could come after that.

Two Korean veterans already out of service and affected by January 31 end-of-the-emergency period, so far as starting Korean GI Training is concerned, are: Under the law, they still may start their courses within three years after discharge or release from active duty. This applies to all eligible veterans but the date does have a bearing on the ending of the Korean GI Training program. The law states that all training must be completed within 9 years after the termination of the emergency period, or 9 years after a veteran leaves the service, whichever is earlier.

The only 9-years-from-end-of-emergence date—the final date for GI Program—now has been set as January 31, 1965. The President's Proclamation also affects Public Law 894, Vocational Rehabilitation Training Program for veterans disabled in service since the outbreak of Korean hostilities.

Veterans disabled on or before January 31, 1955, may be eligible for training, provided they need it to overcome the handicap of their disability. But veterans disabled after January 31 will not be eligible for the vocational training.

(Continued on Page 4)

International Institute Offers Opportunities To Study Abroad

Opportunities for foreign study are being published today by the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City.

Study awards at the University of Ceylon and the University of Teheran in Iran, and the Free University of Berlin are described, as well as other awards administered by the schools themselves, private study groups, and governments in Europe. Undergraduate, graduate, and senior awards offered by American students for the 1955-56 academic year. More detailed information on these grants is available from the offices of the Institute.

Earliest deadlines for application are January 15 for the two awards at the University of Ceylon and January 22 for advanced study in Brazil. Closing dates of other competitions are in February, March, April and May.

General eligibility requirements for the fellowships and scholarships, designed mainly for graduate students, are: U. S. citizenship; proof of good academic record and capacity for independent study; good character, personality and adaptability; knowledge of the country to be used, write, and speak the language of the country of study when a requirement for most awards.

The Institute of International Education administers exchange programs for public and private agencies in the U. S. and abroad. Each year approximately 4,000 persons from 60 countries study or train in a country other than their own under its auspices.

ATTENTION FOREIGN STUDENTS

Foreign students attending Florida State University must fill out their annual alien address report cards, this month, reminded Sam Baptista, foreign student advisor.

If the foreign students will drop by Baptista's office, 302 Westcott, he will help them file their reports, he announced.

Baptista commented that the reports should be filled out "as soon as possible."

Hearing Slated On Dormitory Representation

Sub-Committee Hos Lost Public Hearing In Longmire Today

A special Student Senate sub-committee will hold its last hearing on suggestions for dormitory representation in student government, this afternoon at 4.30 in the Senate Chamber.

The sub-committee, composed of vice-president Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn, met before Christmas but turned to hold further hearings when the few house presidents and officials present requested time to talk over the matter with other students.

According to Moore, letters have been sent to all house presidents and other interested parties, inviting their attendance. He urged all interested students to come.

Although there are various plans for providing dormitory representation, which have been discussed, it would seem that some of the representation may from the classes and allot it to various dormitories and areas. Some plans would concentrate representation entirely in precincts.

There appears at the present no organized sentiment for dormitory government to incorporate some such plan of precinct representation. Differences of opinions are widely at difference as to what plan shall be employed.

The sub-committee studying the problem is part of a larger committee set up during the year to study student government in FSU's student government.

Tournament Slated For Bridge Players Here In February

Phi Beta Phi sorority and the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity are sponsoring a duplicate tournament for bridge players starting next month. Ten games will be played over consecutive Tuesday nights and the awarded to each of the winning pairs and high scorer in the tournament.

If the trophy is won in three consecutive semesters by the same group, the trophy will be retain the award, according to sponsors. A new prize will be awarded to the winning pairs in the tourney after the triple winners receive theirs.

Bridge instruction will be given to those members desiring to learn the game. The exact time members are working on schedule which will not interfere with normal aids are being made so to simplify the game for beginners.

Information of the tournament obtained for national bridge meets, it was that the Phi Phi Phi may be a representative from Florida State University.

On the following dates games will be played in Longmire building: February 8, 10, 17, and 24; March 10, 17, 24, and 31; April 7, 14, 21, and 28; and May 5. The time for each game is 7:30 p.m. Room at present is unknown.

Premiere Of Susannah' Stars Curtin, Harrell February 24th

"Susannah," a new two-act opera written by Carlisle Floyd of the music faculty will make its world premiere at Florida State University, February 24.

Phyllis Curtin of the New York City Opera and Mack Harrell of the Metropolitan will sing the leading roles in the opera based on the apocryphal story of Susannah and the elders, and will be supported by an all-university cast.

The musical setting of the original story was changed by Floyd to a setting the mountain folk ways of Tennessee where he presents the folklore, dialect and customs of a primitive people. Susannah appears as a spirited, ingenuous young girl in the backwoods of the U. S. and accuses a hard, cynical woman due to misunderstanding. The elders and Daniel become an itinerant evangelist "embodied in events concerning Susannah's bathing."

The two prominent New York opera stars have agreed to come to Tallahassee a week in advance of the premiere to rehearse with the cast, which includes ten faculty members, several graduate students, undergraduate music majors, and a chorus of 40 students.

Included in the cast are Phyllis Curtin as Susannah, Edith Krup, understudy; Mack Harrell as Olin Blitch, an itinerant evangelist, and Gauter, understudy; Walter James, as Sam, Susannah's brother; and Eb Thomas, as "Little Bat" McLean. Harrison Davis, Darylin Smith, Bob Nelson and Lee Timing play the elders; McLean, Hays, Gholson and Ott respectively. Martha Kay Wilda, Joan Nicky Catherine Murphy and Bessie Armstrong portray the elders wives.

Carlisle Floyd Jr.

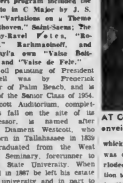
Conductor of the opera is Dr Karl Kuerstener, dean of the Florida State University School of Music, while Rober: Sedore of the faculty is concerningmaster.

Senior Class Gives FSU Portrait Of President

Westcott Dedicated By Governor Collins At Formal Concert

Governor LeRoy Collins gave the dedicatory address for the new Westcott Auditorium last night preceding a duo-concert by faculty members Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi and Edward Kilenyi.

An overflow crowd of students, faculty and guests heard a two-piano program by the distinguished FSU musicians. During the ceremonies Colin English, Jr., president of the class of 1954 was scheduled to present a portrait of President Doak S. Campbell to the university.



Subject of the dedicatory address was not known at press time, as Collins had no prepared speech.

Concert program included the Concerto in C Major by J. S. Bach, "Variations on a Theme by Haydn, Brahms," Sadig-Saraz, The Debussy-Ravel Folies, "Romance, Rachmaninoff, and Debussy's own "Value Ballroise" and "Valse de Feiv."

The oil painting of President Campbell was by Frederick Roecher of Palm Beach, and is a gift of the Senior Class of 1954.

Westcott Auditorium, completed this fall on the site of its predecessor, is named after James Deamis Westcott, who was born in Tallahassee in 1820 and graduated from the West Florida Seminary, forerunner to the State University. When he died in 1887 he left his estate to the university and it was to aid Leon County students attending FSU.

FSU's administration building, which bears Westcott's name, was completed in 1936 and included as auditorium. An addition to the auditorium was made in 1951. The foundation of the 1951 addition failed and in 1953 the building was condemned.

AT CEREMONIES—Shown is portrait of President Campbell unveiled at Westcott dedication last night.

The Legislature of 1951 made an appropriation for its reconstruction.

The new auditorium, constructed at a cost of about $465,000, is air conditioned with a seating capacity of 1,836.

Mamatey Will Give Definition Of Current USSR Propaganda

What is behind the current Soviet flood of propaganda for peace and coexistence?

Dr. Victor S. Mamatey, assistant professor of history, will attempt to answer this question when he speaks on affairs in Russia since the death of Stalin, tomorrow night in the Augusta Conrad theater, beginning at 8 p.m.

Briefly outlining the points on which he will elaborate in his lecture, Dr. Mamatey said that current Soviet peace propaganda is due to the struggle for power among Stalin's heirs, and to what he terms a breakdown in civilian morale following the Second World War.

His talk will be sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary, and the history department, and will be open to the public without charge.

Dr. Mamatey has attended Comenius University in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Wilberberg College, Springfield, Ohio, the University of Chicago, Harvard University and the University of Paris, where he received his doctorate.

During World War II he traveled in Europe, Sofia, Rumania and China as weather observer with the Air Force.

"A specialist in Slavic and East European affairs, Dr. Mamatey brings to his subject a great reservoir of information in respect to the history and accomplishments of the Soviet Union," said Earl R. Beck, faculty advisor to the sponsoring history honorary.

EVENT POSTPONED BY DANCE GROUP

The Annual Theatre Dance Group presentation, which was originally slated for the night of January 13-14, has been postponed until February 28-March 1.

This is due to the delayed opening date of Westcott Auditorium, according to Nelle Bond Dickinson, director.

Art Gallery Features Exhibition Of Modern Surrealist Paintings

"Fantastic Landscape," an exhibition of 22 paintings by outstanding surrealist artists, and one can artists, is the current feature in the Florida State University Art Gallery.

Located upstairs in the Dining Hall building, the gallery is open without charge Tuesday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. Fantastic Landscapes" will be exhibited through January 30.

The new display in the University Museum, adjacent to the Art Gallery, is the Gunther Antillian Collection containing 206 reproductions of prehistoric Indian relics. The museum is open the same hours as the Art Gallery, and the Gunther collection will be there until January 26.

Featured in the "Fantastic Landscape" exhibition are the works of Surrealists Ernest, Morvitte, Delvaux, Bermen, Max Ray, Tanguy, Peter Blume and Kay Sage. Also represented are Marsden, Donati, Morch, Brauner, Dubuffet, Gonzalez-Ginace and Alice Raken.

Art Department acting head Adolf Karl said that the paintings selected for the exhibit demonstrate there can be many different kinds of modern fantastic landscapes.

As an example, he pointed to Surrealist Paul Delvaux, who "creates his fantasies through an segregation of seemingly incongruous objects assembled together within a perfect frame.

Tanguy's biologmed shapes, made of stone-like substances, "seem to come in a horizontal wasteland." He continued that the work shows of Kay Sage devote some of the finishing aspects of the dream world.

The University Museum Antillian collection was presented by FSU last year and opened in November. The donator was Iwan Goodman Ferle, of Havana, Cuba, who made the replicas himself using as models originals located throughout the world.

Museum officials said that Gundrum's replicas of baked clay have such fine texture, and the technique of his work is so accurate that is has fooled authorities.

Flying High Requests Men For 'Clowns'

Men who want to make a serious business of "clowning around" are requested to try out for Flying Bob's Clown Alley, tomorrow at 4 p.m. at the circus lot.

Coach Hakim announced today that 15 men will be chosen for Clown Alley and any man registered at FSU is eligible. Each of those chosen will have a chance to actually perform in a rehearsed skit to determine talent for the positions open.

In addition to clown tryouts, open tryouts will be held for men students who are interested in working in featured acts in the show. With the beginning of the second semester, several new teams will be formed, using approximately 20 men and girl performers who are not already in the show, said Hakim.

The circus coach asked that those interested contact him or Assistant Coach Jim DeGraaf before registration starts for second semester.

McCarthy Subject Of Ogburn Address

Dr. William F. Ogburn, visiting professor of sociology, will deliver an address on sunday's "Why We Had a McCarthy," Thursday at 8 p.m. in Longmire auditorium.

Sociology department spokesmen emphasized that his speech will be open to all students, faculty and townspeople. It is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Delta fraternity.

Nine Activity Tabs Assigned For Next Semester's 'Books'

Nine of next semester's activity book slips have been assigned, according to a list released today by student organizations Fred Voss'.

Tickets for which it will be assessed as needed, the notice added.

The present assignment reads, f, basketball, Florida Southern, Feb 7; 2, Artist Series, Richard Tucker, Feb 8; 3, Artist Series, Dublin Players, February 18-19; 4, Basketball, Mississippi State, Feb 21; 5, Basketball, Loyola, Feb. 22; 6, Artist Series, Yma Sumac, March 6-9; 7, Third Mason Speech Production, March 11, 12, 14, 15; 8, Fourth Mason Speech Production, April 22, 23, 25, 26; and 9, Curtain, May 4, 5, 6, 7.

Fashions Institute Founded; Officers Elected For Year

The Student Fashion Institute at its first meeting recently elected officers to serve for the coming year.

Elected as president was Joanne Sell while Gerry Lehew will serve as vice-president. Barbara Emmett is the new secretary. Donna McNab treasurer, and Marcia Donaldson will carry out the duties of program chairman.

This recently organized club has been founded to provide a professional interest group for those interested in fashion, and to provide facilities in meeting the educational needs of the group. It is open to all students interested in any aspect of fashion.

At the present time, the group is meeting on the Tuesday of the first week of each month in room 316, Westcott. The dues consist of $2.00 per member a semester.

The immediate plans for the year are the holding of a fashion show at the annual Advertising Convention, which is being held in March.

A Musical 'First'

The world premier of Professor Carlisle Floyd's opera. "Susannah," on February 24th will be a significant musical event and something entirely new for Florica State University.

Not the first work of the relatively young pianist and composer, "Susannah" is of such a calibre that two New York Metropolitan Opera stars, Phyllis Curtin and Mack Harrell, consented a long time in advance to sing the leading roles in the premiere.

Our best wishes are extended to Professor Floyd and to his opera. We hope that the work, modern in nature with a distinctly colorful folk-lore setting, will go on from here to become a successful part of the musical repertoire.

Though the premiere of "Susannah" is scheduled as a part of the State Symphony series, we understand that tickets will be made available to students. We hope that this will be the case, as it would seem most unfair for the student body not to share in what will be a true "first" for this university.

A New Twist

We are now slightly confused in our thinking because of the report headlined yesterday criticizing the too frequent trips made abroad by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

The report was released by Republican Senator Styles Bridges, outgoing chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and prepared by Julius Klein, who was special consultant to the committee and formulated the opinions after a trip abroad last September and October.

His reasons for this seem rather thin, if we are to judge them by Monday's newspaper reports.

He said during the Western European Union meeting he had an opportunity to see Mr. Dulles under the most creditable circumstances, yet "admirable as was the part he played, I feel impelled to offer the judgment that it is a mistake to send our Secretary of State to Europe as often as we have" since it cuts "the ground out from under our ambassadors."

We have often heard of Secretaries of State not visiting other countries enough, and we have even heard of secretaries not knowing actually where some foreign countries were located, but this is something new.

We don't think Secretary of State Dulles has visited abroad any more than what has been actually required of him. He has been sent on presidential missions, he has attended alliance conferences and he has gone on other missions, all of which have required the presence of a top official.

In meetings which have serious bearing on the world's outlook, it would seem only feasible for the top policy of the State Department to learn at first hand of the bearing of these events, rather than gauge them from the reports of his representatives.

It would seem, too, that sending a top post to another country to negotiate would only go further to cement relations between the countries, if only because of the prestige of his position.

What Happened?

We are glad to see Governor Collins appoint an investigator to probe the Platt case for possible violation of civil liberties, but what happened to the FBI investigation that was started back in November?

Massive Retaliation

Eric Sevareid is a news analyst for the Columbia Broadcasting System. This is the text of a broadcast he made on January 4.

It looks like co-existence is getting off to a pretty poor start, after all. The area for existing co has been shrunk considerable. After sweet-talking us for months, Maleokov has slapped thirty per cent of Russian territory off-limits to American visitors; and yesterday, J. F. Dulles slapped twenty-seven per cent of the United States off limits to Russian visitors; maybe he did take a three per cent loss on the transaction, but this was the first time he's been able to put his massive retaliation into effect, and anybody can be pardoned three per cent failure when it's due to overeagerness on the job.

He certainly did give them tit for tat. They rule out Solnechnogorski (that's easier done than said); he rules out Kalamazoo. They off-limit Krasnolpolvanski; he off-limits Andrascoggin in the State of Maine. They say, you can't visit sunny Sevastopol; he takes Atlantic City away from them. They keep us away from the Ramenski region northeast of the Moscow and Pekhorka rivers; and Dulles says, okay, you stay away from the Mississippi from the mid-lowa line down to Cairo, Illinois.

Of course, the Russians got there fustest with the mostest, but then they had more to git with than we got. I was always weak on percentages—I had the flu during the fourth grade—but by my figures they have snatched away two million, five hundred, thirteen thousand plus square miles of Russia and we have snatched away one million, thirteen thousand plus square miles of the United States.

On a real estate market-value appraisal basis, however, any hard-headed type statesman like Mr. Dulles knows we're 'way ahead of them. Our whole foreign policy is based on countering aggression with strength, and forcing a Russian retreat or rollback, and I wouldn't be surprised, when they see they're too places like McHenry County, North Dakota, if they gradually give way. They'll probably give us back part of Balashinkan as a starter. We'll probably test their sincerity by hanoing back part of Deaf Smith County, Texas; if the world goes well, if the East Germans and Senator Knowland are quiet, we may get a real detente, as the French call it, and pretty soon our folks will be back to their starting point—at the Metropole in Moscow with a folder of intourist tickets in their hand, and their folks will be back at the Waldorf with a wallet full of American Express checks.

It won't all be easy, though; there are problems. Take Brooklyn. Brookiyn is declared off-limits, the only part of New York so designated, and Brooklyn is as proud of this it may not want to go back on limits. Take Armstrong County, South Dakota. It's declared off limits, too, but it doesn't exist. It wasn't anything but grassland and gumbo and jack rabbits anyway, so South Dakota abolished it a year ago.

I feel mixed emotions about McHenry County, North Dakota, which is graced by my home town of Velva. McHenry is off limits to Russians, but Pierce County, next door is not. This is logical; Pierce never had anything worth hiding anyway except some thuties and dusty alkali ponds they brag up and call lakes. But I'm a little bothered about how Velva folks are going to like being shut off and mysterious and all in fact, we always used to say Velva wasn't a bit scared of those Russians; just let them get one good look at the new school and the clinic, and the new north bridge over the Mouse River where the spring rise always used to flood Johnson's chicken yard, and, we'd say, they'd quit being foreigners and settle right down there and be good Americans . . . now it looks like we've lost our chance.

Anyway, it's pretty interesting, the way J. F. Dulles has carved up the land of the brave and the home of the free. It sort of reminds me of the fellow who said he believed in Cleveland and Akron and Santa Claus, but had his doubts about Toledo.

Did-Ja-Ever . . .
Observe the shapeless that grace our school?
Don't ask questions man—Just Drool—
Just Drool.
—Don Rapp

The Florida Flambeau

BOB FOLSOM—Editor
Joy Robertson, Managing Editor

Asst. News Editors ..... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dickman
Feature Editor ..... Joyce Potter
Sports Editors ..... Jim Jrarson, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ..... Bob Gutting, Alan Whitenarsh, David Morris
Photographer ..... Land Anderson, Al Robbins

JOE CALDWELL—Bus. Mgr.

Business Staff ..... Mary Wogan

Distribution ..... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2 8000, extension 6821
211 213 Lawrence Bldg.
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Copy Editors ..... Willie Smith, Pat Mahoney
Amusement Editor ..... David Dres
Art Consultant ..... Franklin Arpaia
Cartoonist ..... Con Horn
Junior Staff ..... George Goldsteu, Jerome Bernheim, Marty Reeves Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield

Mory Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Cox
Advertising Staff ..... Nina Rule Bill Talnah
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service 420 Madison Ave. New York 17

The Florida Flambeau, weekly newspaper of the students of Florida State University.

"Can You Win Some Seats For Us Too, Mister?"

The Booklist

Articles Reviewed

Below are reviewed a number of magazine articles which may be of noteworthy interest to students. The magazines are in the FSU library.

"Some Negative Thinking About Norman Vincent Peale" by William Lee Miller, a professor in the Department of Religion at Smith College, appears in the January 13 issue of The Reporter. Mr. Miller rejects the picture smiling of Dr. Peale. He asks "What does the Peale phenomenon mean?" And answers, "It means that an old wrong answer to our new American problems is very popular, and that we have a hard choice to make. We are people accustomed to simplicity and success and unprepared for tragedy; nothing but thrust into mammoth responsibilities to a complex world and a tragic time. In the face of hard and unexpected facts we can rise to a new maturity, or we can turn instead to lose what we've got on the head and say it isn't so at all, like the Reverend Doctor Norman Vincent Peale."

* * *

The January issue of The Atlantic has an excellent 74-page supplement on the "Perspective of Japan" which contains a current look on Japanese drama, arts, architecture, literature including stories for reproductions of sculpture and paintings and a lot of fiction, all of which is contributed by Japanese writers. It gives as an up-to-date picture of their contemporary scene as any piece of work so far.

Elsewhere in the issue are two pieces on the current Dixon-Yates contract squabble. Senator Estes Kefauver and NY Herald Tribune columnist Roscoe Drummond give the negative and affirmative side, respectively. It bears wide reading as also does the lead article in The Atlantic by Harvard Professor, Zechariah Chafee, Jr., entitled "The Freedom To Think."

* * *

In Harper's Magazine for January, Edmund Taylor, an American journalist living in Paris, gives a rundown on the present French premier in "The Private Life of Mendes-France." The article offers a concise and complete sketch on the "tough little lawyer" who has "specialized in miracles" since he took over the premiership.

Also in the same issue is a provocative piece by George S. Odiorne, "The Trouble with Executives," which should get the engineering business on its ear, make pre-engineering somewhat disillusioned, and lastly cause a deluge of letters.

* * *

Commentary, December 1954, contains an article by James Rorty, "Desegregation Along the Mason-Dixon Line" which was elaborated with Moshe Decter on the recent best seller "McCarthy and the Communists." The Commentary article tells how educational segregation was ended in Baltimore and Washington, and cites the rise of NAAWP and its interference in the desegregation cause.

* * *

Moscow's Courtship of Tito" in the January 10 issue of The New Republic is a factual presentation on the recent wooing of the Yugoslav by the Russians. It rises up the degree to which they have retained or surrendred to Russia's advances, and enlightens the reader in general on current happenings between the two.

* * *

The Nation for January 8 contains an article on the U.N. Charter Revision John Henry Merryman, assistant professor of law at Stanford University, argues "The Case is Favor." He says among many things that "It is unrealistic to suppose that a Charter-review conference will not be called in 1955. Other nations which attend that conference will present good ideas, constructive proposals, hopeful solutions. We cannot go to the conference table equipped with the paraphernalia of a tired and disillusioned diplomacy, repeating the worn and threadbare slogans of a pre-atomic approach to world affairs. Realism requires that we go to that conference with full recognition that we are discussing the fate of the world, knowing that the United States must play a prominent part in that discussion."

This week's issue will contain the anti-evolution case by Merele Kling associate professor of political science at Washington University.

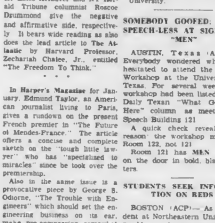
SOMEBODY GOOFED; GIRLS SPEECH-LESS AT SIGHT OF 'MEN'

AUSTIN, Texas (ACP) — Everybody wondered why girls hesitated to attend the Speech Workshop at the University of Texas. For several weeks the question had been taped in the Daily Texan "What Goes on Here?" column as meeting in Speech Building 121

A quick check revealed the reason: the workshop meets in Room 122, not 121

Room 121 has MEN printed on the door in bold, black letters.

STUDENTS SEEK INFORMATION ON JEWS



BOSTON (ACP)— As a student at Northeastern University, I would like to intervene in a series of lectures on the nature and effects of Communism?"

The question was asked in a Student Union poll.

Results showed that 40 lectures on the theory of Communism, Communism in the Middle East, Russia, and International Communism were sponsored by the Student Union.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

by Dick Sibley

"I was Freda finally got a date with her basketball player."

Reflections

Citizens Urged On By 'Homefolks'

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The latest novelty to be dangled before the eyes of the public is the "Fighting Homefolks of Fighting Men." This episode is headed by an all-star cast including Senators Jenner and McCarthy and Representatives Velde and Martin Dies, who assume their customary roles of shovel-boys.

Publicity for the organization is addressed to the "The Kin of American Boys Killed Or Abandoned To Die in Red Hands in Korea" and to the "Editors of the Grass - Root Weeklies of America." Its supporters urged citizens to send $20 each to carry on the fight. Big max of the group is "Eugene R. Gold, Captain, United States Army, Ret.," who, unfortunately - displayed, pathetic picture lends an air of honesty to the proceedings.

Guild's message is that Communists within the government have prevented the return of American soldiers now in Red hands. So parents of the boys plus other patriotic Americans are banding together, "starting with one combined tremendous lawsuit against our government." Proceeds of the suit, says Guild, go after care of dependents to "purging our government of the Reds who caused the death or captivity of the men, and who now threaten the security of our nation and its liberating Gls still living in Red hands."

I have one question. These are Fighting Homefolks?

If they are really sincere it seems silly that they should be merely suing the government for solitaire toward the Communists who are detaining Gls. "And there must be many Reds in our government, because the McCarthy syndicate tells us so." I can easily suggest a better suit for the Homefolks."

Sue the United States for plotting against its citizens to deliver the country into Communist domination. The lying politicians that have been and are in power (Truman, Eisenhower, et cetera) have been installing Reds into top positions so that they can take over. We should not trust these any longer. We should put someone in power that we can trust—someone who will get rid of all the Communists.

Now that we have found a new purpose we have to establish a new organization—we'll call it "The Oppressed Households of the Communistic Hypocracy." Its purpose, like the original will, of course, be to make United States citizens once again confident in their government by relinquishing it to the tight Red network now covering it. And the best way to make people confident in the United States government is to use it.

Since it would be hard to beat the FHFM's method, we'll use the same shovel-less. They should be adequate and we'll ask all red - blooded Americans to bleed the Reds from Alaska. To do this, we need $20 to us so we can run the governmenat.

Once the purposes of the OHOC have been achieved our standing will be in fine shape. We should have it so good!

Etcetera Etchings

Negro Entertainers Gain Popularity

By DAVID DRESS

It used to be that a Negro entertainer found doors shut tight to him in the business of show business . . . today it's different. The Negro entertainer can find relatively few doors closed to him because show business with all its flair and great-talk is probably the most liberal of professions.

Paul Robeson, before he turned red, found some doors closed to him because of his race. Today he is free and found so many open to him he left for England on the strength of "The Vagabond King" on the screen.

Negroes used to have very little chance of moving into any direction but the rhythm and blues side of entertainment's industries. Today, with the popularization of R&B many Negro performers are moving into other fields of career fields. Nat King Cole and his trio were first hired by Capitol Records because the company was first starting. This was a little over ten years ago. He played his type of swing-jazz and it caught on. Today, Nat Cole sings without his trio melodic ballads which score on the turntable at home and on the jukebox. Cole probably is the highest paid Negro performer in the business today. Frankie Laine is another of Negro singers into classes but for the sake of the article I must.

Known as the "Velvet Fog" and as the "Great Mister B." Billy Eckstein's name to Negroes is a National label to MGM records was a great move for the singer and a great merit for his race. While Eckstein's disc "Prisoner of Love" remains the number two Negro hit earlier in the music industry. This summer we had a chance to see him in person at the famed Concord hotel in upstate New York and the throngs who heard him, principally white, cheered like bobby-soxers.

Billy Daniels brought back the favorite "That Old Black Magic" and established himself as a night club star and recording artist. Mercury Records is certainly not complaining nor is Columbia pictures who have teamed him successively with Frankie Laine. This fellow was smart when he teamed up with one of the last-a-tranger Benny Payne who furnished fifty per cent of the earnings.

With the popularization of Negro singers, Nat King Cole, a million a release of "You'll Never Walk Alone" teamed heavily on the hit charts for Epic records. This guy is moving up but fast and has the nation's popularity ladder.

Comedian Sammy Davis Jr. who has labored in vain for a pop singer has been dating Doris Kitt of late and time's two very lovely young ones. Just about two years ago sammy Davis was involved in an experimental. Davis recently lost his left eye in an automotive accident, but is back on his feet and the crowds are still roaring.

"Carmen Jones" made a smash hit on the stage and screen and the screening of the stock of Dorothy Dandridge and Harry Belafonte in the part

(Continued on Page 4)

The Dissenter

On Conducting Smear Campaigns

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It appears certain that the terrorist, white-supremacy faction which is trying to take over the Democratic Party in the South will not be tolerated by Florida's Governor LeRoy Collins.

Knowing this, certain unknown persons began a smear campaign against Collins who sponsored Florida's anti-Klan laws. They are trying to defeat Collins by distributing literature and letters and by whispering that Governor Gerald L. K. Smith wallow today.

I would be willing to bet quite a lot that this campaign is run by direction from demagogue Byram Barnett, former chief of his own National Association for the Advancement of White People.

Bowles, who led the Delaware race riots and incited trouble in Baltimore, has in many speeches indicated he is not merely anti-Negro, but anti-everything else.

Bowles, speaking in Jacksonville over the Thanksgiving holidays, attacked not merely Negroes, all Jews, Catholics, propagandists are quite clear. They want to — they know they MUST—discredit LeRoy Collins, and they are an anti-semitic as they are anti-Negro. It therefore follows that they will try upon all-too-common prejudices, that the Jewish faith with governmental connections is the real associate LeRoy Collins with Nazi indoctrination.

This is the type of filth which was slung by Father Coughlin's Social Justice, or by the thirties and forties and by Gerald L. K. Smith wallow today.

I would be willing to bet quite a lot that this campaign is run by direction from demagogue Byram Barnett, former chief of his own National Association for the Advancement of White People.

Bowles, who led the Delaware race riots and incited trouble in Baltimore, has in many speeches indicated he is not merely anti-Negro, but anti-everything else.

Bowles, speaking in Jacksonville over the Thanksgiving holidays, attacked not merely Negroes, all Jews, Catholics, the mayor of Jacksonville, Eisenhower, Secretary of State Dulles and Attorney General Brownell, among others. He then tried to link them all with Communism.

Bowles, for his own sake has to be anti-LeRoy Collins. The reason is simple.

Bowles' chief cohort is William Shroeder of Lake County who has been trying to generate publicity by evicting the Platt children. Mr. Does school house the children they looked to him as their friend who have moved to enforcing the law "with liberty and justice for all."

His antics in supporting Bowles, in making speeches out-of-state for Bowles, while at the same time publicizing his office as a Florida sheriff, were distinctly out of place for a public officer.

Acting Governor Charley Johns refused to call a halt to McCall's activities. But Johns, who once voted against the Florida anti-Klan bill, is out of the governor's mansion—Collins is in. Collins has already

Continued on Page 4)

A Better Measure

Draft Plan Is Ready For Congress

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

President Eisenhower is said to be ready to submit to Congress a new draft plan, which if passed, will lower the monthly draft quota and give the country's Reserve program a new look.

What it means to the average college student is easier exemptions for schooling. It also means a chance to avoid the draft by taking a six months training course and participating in the active reserve for 5½ years after that.

To the veteran, who was in uniform during or after 1951, it means serving in the Reserves for 8 years instead of the present 6 years and in addition to the 6 months of active duty served. It also means that individuals who are now on inactive status may have to return to the active reserves. But if prior service warrants it they may remain inactive for the balance of their 8 year obligation. Veterans of World War II are not involved in this new plan.

All this is a result of the "new look" attitude by the President which he believes will be more beneficial to the country both economically and militarily. Under this "new look" the first line of defense is to rest more on the Navy and Air Force, based upon volunteers and the Army, which is to be reduced from 1,500,000 to 1,000,000.

The Army will be the proving ground for the draft and a growing backbo ne of the Reserves.

It was under the present system that the war in Korea was fought at the start. As a result World War II veterans were drawn into uniform on an emergency basis. This new plan will correct the situation by stressing the importance of the Reserves. The Air Force to provide a Reserve force capable to move in case of a national emergency. A force of their 8 year obligation. Veterans of World War II are not involved in this new plan.

All this is a result of the "new look" attitude by the President which he believes will be more beneficial to the country both economically and militarily. Under this "new look" the first line of defense is to rest more on the Navy and Air Force, based upon volunteers and the Army, which is to be reduced from 1,500,000 to 1,000,000.

The Army will be the proving ground for the draft and a growing backbo ne of the Reserves.

It was under the present system that the war in Korea was fought at the start. As a result World War II veterans were drawn into uniform on an emergency basis. This new plan will correct the situation by stressing the importance of the Reserves. The Air Force to provide a Reserve force capable to move in case of a

Winter Sport Teams Play This Week

Florida State University's winter sport teams swing into a varied week of activity Thursday.

Coach Bim Stulls' Seminole swimmers open their 1955 season against Georgia's Bulldogs here Thursday night with a 15-meet unbeaten string dating back to the early stages of the 1953 season, hanging in the balance.

Georgia and FSU tankmen have met 11 times previously with the Seminoles holding a 7-4 edge in the series. The Bulldogs were the last team to defeat State in a dual meet, conquering the Semidudes by six points in 1953.

Seven lettermen, headed by All-American Ernie Stocks, make FSU's swimming outlook bright again this season.

Coach Bud Kennedy's high-scoring basketball team, ranked fifth in the nation in offensive tests Georgia's hot - and - cold cagers here Saturday night.

Averaging more than 85 points a game, the Seminoles thrasted the Bulldogs, 97-81, in the second round of the recent Gator Bowl basketball tournament. Georgia is 6-4 on the year in the rivalry, however.

Also on Saturday, State's nationally-famous gymnastics team goes after its sixth straight and AAU championship and its 32nd team title in six years.

Coached by Hartley Price, the Seminole gymnasts are expected to have things their own way in the strictly second State gym squads.

Sparked by United States Olympic star Don Holder, the Seminoles haven't lost a dual meet since they shaved them-there by three points in 1952.

FREESTYLER—James Julian, a freestyler on Coach "Bim" Stulls' 1955 FSU swim team is expected to be a valuable entry for the Seminoles in their home encounter against the University of Georgia January 13. Julian, who hails from Jacksonville, was a member of the 200 yard medley relay team that set the school record last season.

EDUCATIONAL TV PROGRESS IN ALABAMA

University of Alabama—ACP[1]—Construction of a 200-foot television tower on campus to serve the University of Alabama marks a forward step in the state's $1,000,000 educational television set-up, the weekly Crimson-White reports. The Educational station will be operated by the University in conjunction with the Birmingham public school system and Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"The significance attached to the erection of the tower is the culmination of the tedious years of television education in the country," the Crimson-White said.

From The Sidelines

By Dave Morris
Sports Staff

University of Florida head football coach and athletic director Bob Woodruff recently announced that he was "not interested in playing FSU in football ever."

Though it aroused the indignation of aven some Florida alumni, in one respect this statement was welcomed for it meant that Woodruff after much bedging had finally and publicly stated his true position on the tasue.

The occasion for this statement was the pre-Christmas meeting of Florida State athletic director Howard Danford and Woodruff at which the Gator headman offered to meet FSU in track, tennis, golf, and swimming—provided FSU would not seek contests with them in any other sports.

This obviously meant football, although basketball and baseball were included under the same excuse—Florida's Southeastern Conference obligations.

These same SEC obligations don't seem to hinder popular football rivalries between sister state institutions such as Georgia Tech and Georgia, Alabama and Auburn, LSU and Tulane and Vanderbilt and Tennessee.

True the Gators also have the Miami game, but added to the six required SEC games the total only reaches seven, leaving three other dates to be filled.

Standard scheduling criteria dictates that the competition be (1) a stiff athletic test and (2) a good drawing card.

It is truthfully stated that Florida State is yet to receive the same drawing as the Gators, who have fielded teams continuously since 1906 with the exception of 1943. Since coming to Gainesville, Woodruff has commendably built up one of the toughest schedules in the nation. However, Florida has stated a home game this year against George Washington University, a well known Southern Conference school located in the District of Columbia. VMI, losers to the Seminoles twice in the last two years, downed the Colonials this past fall.

The Gator-Georgia game carries little appeal for the paying customers, while an FSU-Florida battle would fill any stadium in the state with the exception of the Orange Bowl.

FSU is certainly as acceptable as George Washington.

But let's forget about obligations and get down to what might more nearly be called reasons.

Looking from his angle, it is easy to see why Woodruff should shy away from FSU. There is nothing to gain except a lot of good will from this the state's sports fans) and everything to lose Should our former girls school upset the highly favored Gators in an early meeting it would mean humiliation in Gainesville and perhaps have a bearing on the attendance of the State of Florida's biggest employee check ($17,000—the governor takes a back seat by two grand). Woodruff's present contract runs out two years from now.

Some speculate that Bob will be more disposed to consider FSU if he gets a long term renawal of his present pact, while others think the Gator czar is attempting to hold back the growing Seminoles by non-recognition in the form of holding them unacceptable.

This writer feels that Woodruff's own "never" remark will bring on pressure from higher up that will force athletic relations.

Too bad two institutions built and supported by the same public can't co-operate in the field of sports.

Basketballers Win Twice

Top Tampa 96-61, Southern 73-69

BOUNCING BENSON—Rick Banson, one of FSU's starting forwards, lays one through the cards in a workout at the Campus gym. Banson, a senior, has been called the most improved player on the squad by Tribe coach Bud Kennedy. The Maitland, Fla. native is avaraging 16 a game.

FSU's basketballers, hot and getting hotter, swept to two more court victories over the weekend, smothering Tampa 96-61, and edging Florida Southern, 73-69.

In Friday night's clash at Lakeland the Seminoles dominated play for the entire first half and part of the second before southern whittled the margin down in the last minutes. FSU froze the ball at the end to preserve the win.

Jimmy Oler was high point man for the Tribe with 14 points, eight saltered at the foul line

Saturday was the Seminoles down the Spartans in Clearwater for the second time this season as Helms All-American Ham Weinke scored 30 points.

Weinke got strong support from Oler, who found the range for 23, Oler is averaging over 20 points per game.

The victory was the eighth against two defeats for the Seminoles, who have lost to only one State school, Florida. The defeats were the eighth straight for Tampa.

FLORIDA STATE	FG	FT	TP
Armwood	3	3	11
Benson	3	2	8
Bonnell	7	1	15
Williams	4	0	8
Oler	9	5	23
Rhodes	1	0	2
Harris	2	1	5
Wooding	0	0	0
Weinke	13	4	30
Totals	38	21	73
Halftime score

FLA. SOUTHERN	FG	FT	TP
Hall	3	0	6
Hollis	2	0	4
Cody	3	4	10
Bennett	2	0	4
Beckstra	3	0	6
Woodley	0	0	0
Collins	4	5	13
Totals	19	9	43
Halftime score

Referee: Bob Wertz, Orlando. Referee: T. Schultz, Florida Southern; Referee: E. Demetrio, E. Cruz, Caribbean, Brogden.

FSU	G	F	T
Benson, f	3	1	11
Armwood, f	3	2	8
Bonnell, c	7	1	15
Patton, c	0	0	0
Rhodes, g	1	0	2
McClark, g	1	0	3
Williams, g	4	0	8
Oler, g	9	5	23
Wooding, g	0	1	5
Weinke, g	13	4	30
Totals	73	14	96
Halftime score

Tampa	G	F	T
O'Berley, f	4	5	9
Bowden, f	1	1	3
Ringgold, f	1	0	2
Brown, c	2	1	5
Gerlandy, g	1	0	2
Dominy, g	0	0	0
Bryant, g	0	0	0
Fitzgerald, g	0	0	0
Prophet, g	3	0	6
Ellis, g	0	0	0
Totals	71	61	61
Halftime score

John made a swift And reckless turn His ashes repose Within this urn.

CAMERON'S
TEXACO SERVICE STATION
Need Oil Change; Grease Job?
Get Your Car Ready for the Vacation—
Avoid the Rush.
SPECIAL RATES FOR FACULTY & STUDENTS
CORNER W. TENNESSEE & COPELAND
Phone 3-0619 Tallahassee

STUDENT WRITING SOUGHT

YELLOW SPRINGS, O.— ACP[1]—A new national review of the best college student writing will be edited by Nolan Miller and Judson Jerome, members of the Antioch College English department. First issue will be published by Bantam Brooks in 1955. Subsequent issues probably will appear annually.

Contributors will be limited to students at North American colleges, or those who have attended such colleges within the past three years.

Plans for the review, to be called Campus Writing Today, include sections in cover stories, poems, portions of novels, short plays and sketches, essays and articles. Material must not be published except in a campus publication, and it is recommended by a member of the teaching faculty, the editors say. Deadline for the first issue is May 1, 1955.

JUNIOR COLLEGE ENROLLMENTS BOOMING

ACP—Junior college enrollment in the United States is continually increasing, Elmer Warren notes in a Daily Texan article In 1952-53 there were 594 junior colleges in the nation with a total enrollment of 560 722. The 1953-54 summaries indicate that 597 junior colleges in the United States have a total enrollment of 623,765.

"Surveys on the value of junior colleges indicate that the junior college student does as well as a junior or senior when he transfers to a senior college as a student who attends a senior college his first two years," Miss Warren said.

"F" CLUB MEET

The "F" Club will hold an important meeting at 7:30 tonight to elect officers for the spring semester. All members are requested to be present. Location is the Women's Gym.

SIGMA CHI INITIATES

Four men were recently initiated into the Epsilon Zeta Chapter of Sigma Chi social fraternity. Those honored were Bill Dorn, Carlos Fraudden, Niles Ray and Maurice "Bickie" Steinberg. A buffet dinner in honor of the new members was held at the chapter house following the initiation.

The chapter was honored to have Mr. William Wade, Grand Proctor of the Province, as its special guest this past week-end.

Del Wilson and Tommy Winfield were received into pledgeship earlier this week.

Phil Tuffli said

His car couldn't skid;
This monument shows
That it could and did.

Science Foundation Gives Three Grants To FSU Professors

Three chemistry professors at Florida State University have been awarded new basic research grants totaling $46 800 by the National Science Foundation.

Dr Ernest Grunwald has been granted $25,000 for a three year project on Ion Solvation and Ion Association in Various Solvents.

"The Toxic Constituents of Lantana Species" will be studied by Dr. Werner Herz on a two-year $13,600 grant.

Dr Earl Freden will work on a two year project on "The Properties of Ascorbic Acid Oxidase" His grant is for $7,400.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: No. 1

In this day and age, as I like to call it, everybody should know something about science. Unfortunately, however, the great majority of us are majoring in elocution, and we do not get a chance to take any science. But we can at least learn the fundamentals.

Though this column is intended to be a source of innocent merriment for all sexes and not to concern itself with weighty matters, let us mind the makers of Philip Morris when I might not find time to tune use this space for a short lesson in science. "Makers," I say to them, "might I not from time to time use this space for a little lesson in science?"

"Sure you, lad!" cried the makers, chuckling. "You may certainly use this space from time to time for a short lesson in science." So we very benign men, the makers, fond of children, small animals, community singing, and simple country food. Their benevolence is due in no small measure to the cigarettes they smoke, for Philip Morris is a cigarette to soothe the most savage of breasts. I refer only to the quality of the tobacco—which, as everyone knows, is amiable, humane, and gracious—but also to the quality of the package. Here is no fiendishly contrived container to fray the nerves and rack the nerves. Here, instead, is the most simple package you pull a tab; a snap is heard, and there, ready at hand, is your Philip Morris Cigarettes. Strike a match, take a puff, and you're a delicious little rippling sigh of pure contents.

With the cordial concurrence of the makers, I will from time to time in this column to a brief lesson in science.

Let us start today with chemistry. It is fitting that chemistry be the first of our series, for chemistry is the oldest of sciences, having been discovered by Ben Franklin in 123 B.C. when an apple fell on his head while he was shooting the hiveis with Pythagoras one day outside the Acropolis. (The reason they were outside the Acropolis and not inside was that Pythagoras had been thrown out for drawing right triangles all over the walls. They had arterial bleedings outside the Acropolis, but finally Franklin said, "Look, Pythagoras, this is nothing against you, see, but I'm no kid any more and if I keep laying around on this wet grass with you, I'm liable to get the break-bone fever. I'm going inside." Pythagoras, friendless now, moped around Athens for a while, then drifted off to Brussels where he married a girl named Harriet Sugleon and went into the bread oil game. He would also certainly be forgotten today had not Shakespeare written "Othello.")

But I digress. We were beginning a discussion of chemistry, and to best way to begin is, of course, with fundamentals. Chemicals are divided into elements. There are four: air, earth, fire, and water. Any number of delightful combinations can be made from these elements, such as firewater, darron, and chef's salad.

Chemicals can be further divided into the classes of explosive and non-explosive. A wise chemist always touches a match to his explosive before he begins an experiment.

A great variety of containers of different sizes and shapes are used in a chemistry lab. There are tubes, vials, beakers, flasks, pipettes, and retorts. (A retort is also a snappy comeback, such as "Oh, yeah?" or "So's your old man!")

Perhaps the most famous retort ever made was delivered by none other than Noah Webster himself. It seems that one day Mr. Webster's wife was hanging up neatly into Mr. Webster's office and found Mr. Webster's secretary sitting on Mr. Webster's knee. "Why Mr. Webster!" cried Mr. Webster's wife. "I am surprised!"

"No, my dear," he replied. "I am surprised. You are astonished."

Well, sir, it must be admitted that old Mr. Webster got off a good one, but still one can not help wishing he had spent less time lolling with his secretary, and more time working on his dictionary. Many of his definitions show an appalling want of scholarship. Take, for instance, what happened to me not long ago. I went to the dictionary to look up "houndstand" which is a band that you pass around the leg and neck of an animal. At the time I was planning to pass bands around the legs and necks of some animals, and I wanted to be sure I ordered the right thing.

Well sir, thumbing through the H's in the dictionary, I happened to come across "horse." And this is how Mr. Webster defines "horse"—"a large, solid hoofed herbivorous mammal, used as a draft animal."

Now this, I submit, is just plain sloppiness. The most cursory investigation would have shown Mr. Webster that horses are not mammals. Mammals give milk. Horses do not give milk. It has to be taken from them under the most severe duress.

Nor is the horse a draft animal, as Mr. Webster says. Man is a draft animal. Mr. Webster obviously had the cavalry in mind, but even in the cavalry it is men who are drafted. Horses volunteer.

But I digress. We were discussing chemistry. I have told you the most important aspects, but there are many more—far too many to cover in the space remaining here. However, I am sure that there is a fine chemistry lab at your very own college. Why don't you go up the afternoon and poke around? Make a kind of fun day out of it. Bring ukeleles. Wear funny hats. Toast frankfurters on the Bunsen burners. Be gay, be merry, be loose, for chemistry is your friend.

© The Bottom, 1955

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS who think you would enjoy their cigarette.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young manufacturing expert pioneers in automation at General Electric

In 1964, our greatest shortage may be working people. This country's demand for electrical goods will be 100% greater than it is today. But there will be only 11% more workmen. How can production per man be boosted enough to close the gap?

For one answer, 31-year-old P. H. Alspach, Manager of Manufacturing Development at G.E., is exploring automation.

Automation: Continuous Automatic Production

Automation is a way of manufacturing based on the continuous-flow concept. Products will be made, inspected, assembled, tested, and packaged by a series of integrated machines in one uninterrupted flow. As industry evolves toward greater automation, more workmen will become skilled machine specialists or maintenance experts able to control complete systems.

Phil Alspach and the men under him now draft layouts for automatic systems, tackle the engineering problems involved, design automation equipment, and even build some.

23,000 College Graduates at G.E.

This is a big and important job. Alspach was readied for it in a careful, step-by-step program of development. Like Alspach, each of G.E.'s 23,000 college-graduate employees is given his chance to grow, to find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, and the country.

PHIL ALSPACH joined G.E. shortly after graduation from Tulane (B.S. in M.E., '44), has completed G.E.'s Engineering Program, Class of 1945, and the Creative Engineering Course, 1950.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

IT'S THE LITTLE THINGS THAT COUNT

A new electron microscope, which permits examination of particles measuring as small as one-billionth of an inch in diameter, has been purchased and installed by the Department of Petroleum-Refining Engineering at the Colorado School of Mines.

Imported from Holland, the microscope cost approximately $10,000 and is the first of its kind to be installed anywhere in the country, according to the Oredigger, student publication of the Colorado School of Mines.

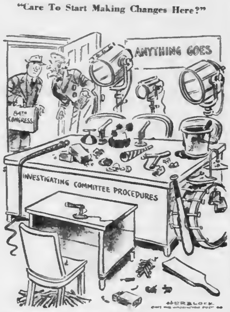
The main use will be for analysis of metal content in oil and grease samples. Considerable research is also planned in the fields of waxes and fibrous structures.

The instrument forms cross-sectional images on a fluorescent screen for visual examination and can take 40 micrograph exposures on 35 mm film, which can be enlarged 12 or more times without loss of semifinent detail. Variable magnification of the microscope ranges from 1500 to 15,000 times the size of an example specimen.

MARIETTA, O. (UP)—Proposals by a Faculty-Student Committee at Marietta College have resulted in a definite smash hope taken by the faculty to eliminate cheating during examinations.

Specific rules have been formulated by the faculty committee to help eliminate the problem. The committee proposed the following measure to become effective immediately:

Adoption of an alternate seating plan, equivalent aisles and the refusal of professors to permit students to leave the classroom at any time or for any reason during an examination, unless he is permitted to turn in his examination paper.



Students will not be permitted to carry any books or examination notes into the classroom unless he has been instructed to do so by the instructor. A statement concerning these and all other rules that have adopted concerning examination etiquette will be printed and given out at examination schedules to avoid unnecessary controversy between professors and students.

Gone from this life
Is Speed-along Bill
He would pass other
Cars on a hill.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA	STATE
Today "Martin Luther" with Niall MacGinnis Wednesday & Thursday "Hamlet" with Jean Simmons Felix Aylmer	Today "Down 3 Dark Streets" Broderick Crawford Ruth Roman Wednesday & Thursday "Deep In My Heart" Jose Ferrer Merle Oberon Helen Traubel
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR	CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow "The Glenn Miller Story" James Stewart Jane Allyson Thursday "Bengal Brigade" Rock Hudson Arlene Dahl also "Massacre Canyon" Audrey Totter	Today & Tomorrow "Miss Sadie Thompson" Rita Hayworth Jose Ferrer Thursday "All Ashore" Mickey Rooney Dick Haymes also "Brave Warrior" Jan Hall

"Care To Start Making Changes Here?"

On Conducting

(Continued From Page 2)
begun an investigation of McCall's arbitrary action in evicting the Platt children from the Mount Dora schools.

The Governor, being an intelligent man with a good citizen's regard for law and order, could even use his power to remove Willis McCall from the office he has so flagrantly abused. Let's hope he does.

But whatever the outcome of that case, Bowles, McCall, and all the other pseudo-Fascists know they have little chance in Florida now. The present smear campaign is only an omen of things to come.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

All students who were notified that they had been scheduled to do intern teaching the first semester of 1955-56 should get application papers from the Internship Office immediately so they can be filled out and filed in the Internship Office by not later than noon, Friday, February 11. It is desirable that they be filled before that date if possible.

Students who did not receive a notice that they had been scheduled to intern the first semester and who particularly desire to do so should see Dr R L. Goulding Internship Office, as soon as possible.

BENNETT'S OFFERS YOU TUSSY'S SPECIAL

Wind & Weather Lotion
Regular $1 Size for 50c

Cream Shampoo
Regular $1.75 Size for $1

COMPLETE SODA AND LUNCHEONETTE DEPARTMENT

LARGE ASSORTMENT OF FILMS, CAMERAS, FLASHBULBS

FOR FAST MOTORCYCLE DELIVERY CALL 2-8980 or 2-4450

Bennett's DRUG STORES, INC.

$CASH$

SELL THE BOOK, YOU NO LONGER NEED

MALONE'S BOOK STORE

Award Winning Hamlet Shows; Romberg Musical Starts Soon

"Hamlet," Laurence Olivier's Academy Award winning film, plays at the Florida Theater Wednesday and Thursday.

Brought to Tallahassee through the efforts of the humanities department of FSU, the historical Shakespearean play co-stars Jean Simmons as Ophelia and Olivier as Hamlet.

Instrumental in obtaining the film for local Shakespearean fans was Shirley Hyde, FSU student, daughter of the manager of the Florida Theater.

Hamlet along with other Shakespearean works is studied in Humanities 102 at FSU. This is a very good opportunity for students enrolled in Humanities 101 or 102 to see the film, according to Miss Eva May Alwood, head of the department. She urged that everyone attend the show.

The film which won the Academy Award as the best picture of the year also won for Olivier the Award as the best actor of the year.

"Hamlet" is the second Shakespearean film made by Olivier to win an Academy Award. His "Henry V" was widely acclaimed and won a special Award in the year in which it was released.

Olivier once again performs a three-fold role in "Hamlet"—star, producer, and director.

The only previous filming of Hamlet was made in the silent film days. As early as 1907 a French pioneer film-maker produced a short film of the ghost scenes. Other shorts were filmed about this time.

The first really important effort however, was made in 1913 in England when the entire production was filmed. The title role then was played by Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, one of the most famous Hamlets of all time.

"Deep in My Heart," a new M-G-M musical based on the life and melodies of Broadway's famous composer Sigmund Romberg, starts at the State Theater tomorrow.

The film has 19 stars, 104 speaking roles and 21 songs, with music from 10 Romberg operettas represented.

The cast is headed by Jose Ferrer in the role of the composer; Merle Oberon, making her return to the Hollywood scene after a long absence abroad and Helen Traubel, the celebrated opera star in her film debut.

Others in the film are Doe Avedon, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Henreid, Rosemary Clooney, Gene Kelly, Jane Powell, Vic Damone, Ann Miller, William Olvis, Cyd Charisse, James Mitchell, Howard Keel, Tony Martin and Joan Weldon.

This film tells the story of Romberg who had two loves, his wife and his music. The taunts of the theatrical agent against the "Oom-pa-pa" of his Viennese waltzes goad Romberg into writing his first popular song and leads to his beginning of a distinguished career.

1200 MEN AND A GIRL

LAWRENCE, Kansas (ACP)—Mighty strange things happened out in Kansas at year-end. A pretty, blonde freshman coed at the University of Kansas here didn't know what to do, because as many as 1,200 men students ganged up at 1 p m on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays in front of her classroom building to cheer and whistle as she walked by.

"She caused mass near-riots," the Daily Kansas said.

Two photographers for Life magazine followed her about the campus taking pictures for a possible picture story, the newspaper said, but she would not discuss the matter with reporters.

Over at Emporia, the student council president of State Teachers College felt she would be much happier on his campus. "Our men like to look at pretty girls, you understand, but beauties are not rarities on our campus," he wrote. "In other words," he continued, "you would be appreciated but not conspicious."

Meanwhile, the Arkansas City Daily Traveler thundered in an editorial: "The University of Kansas failed to turn out football players this year, but as a jelly bean factory it is tops. Witness the pretty coed being harassed by male students who must be successors to the panty raiders.

". . . There'll be days like that, and any girl appreciates a few whistles now and then . . . The incident would have been so much more pleasant if KU could have picked 11 men out of the 1200 who could have stopped one opponent on the football field this season," the editoral concluded.

(Now how did football get into the act?)

(ACP) — Contact monthly publication of Belmont Abbey (N C) College, headlines a story on dormitory menues: "What Food These Morsels Be."

The person who considers all others are fools is, at least, a very safe motorist.

Campbell Answers Charges

(Continued From Page 1)
elect to contest the complaint. In this case formal charges would be filed in writing and the usual procedure in academic institutions would be followed.

"In discussing these possible options," Dr Campbell continued, "it is made clear that option (a) makes it unnecessary to bring the names of the principals into a public trial. Further, it leaves the faculty member in better professional position so far as his record is concerned; whereas, option (b) makes necessary the filing of open charges and the holding of open hearings which would tend to be injurious to all parties concerned, regardless of whatever final decisions might be reached.

"The soundness of such a policy would seem to commend itself to all who want justice to be done to all parties concerned."

Dr Campbell maintained that the above procedure was followed. He called to attention that "At no time did Mr Leathers make any appeal, either orally or in writing, to the President," subsequent to the action on the part of his superiors.

He added that Leathers never requested a faculty Senate committee, whose members "are not appointed by the President," to review his case.

Attacking Leathers' charge that he was forced to resign because of his work in investigating alleged athletic malpractices, Dr. Campbell called attention to Leathers' two re-appointments (1952-53 and July, 1953) which followed the investigation.

"Furthermore," said Dr Campbell, "if such 'investigation' had been a factor, it would be reasonable to ask why reprisals were not effected with regard to the other faculty members on the committee.

"The 'investigating committee' made no investigation so far as the records show," added Dr. Campbell.

"If any member of the faculty, whether a member of some committee or not, has information that indicates unethical, improper or immoral conditions in the University, it is the duty of such individual to make the information available to the administrative authorities of the University," Dr Campbell declared.

"To date no such information has been reported to the President or to the Committee on Athletics either by Mr Leathers or by his committee," Dr Campbell asserted.

Dr Campbell termed Leathers' references to homosexuality on campus as "A vain attempt to discredit the University in an effort to divert attention from the real cause for his separation from his position as a member of the faculty."

Maintaining that all such matters are quietly investigated and disposed of when they occur, Dr. Campbell declared, "The reported assertions of Mr Leathers in this connection tend to convict him of bad faith, of evasive tactics, and dereliction of duty. It must be noted:

"He infers that he has information of organized homosexual practice on the campus. As a responsible member of the faculty, to withhold such information from the officers of the University is an unpardonable lapse of duty. At no time has he reported to any administrative officer any such information. The action becomes reprehensible in view of the fact that such information, if actually possessed, has been withheld until such time as he could use it in an attempt to discredit the administration of the University and thereby draw attention from the real issue."

"He endeavors to convey the impression that, as a member of the group of academic counselors, he was free or was even obliged to extend his counseling of young women students into the field of sex irregularities. Obliquely, he leaves the inference that he was dealing with a student whose own character in this regard might well be under suspicion."

One of the charges Leathers claims were used against him was that he assigned a girl student to write a paper on campus homosexuality.

Student Illustrates Wildfire Book For Fla. Forest Service

Barbara Lou Lester, Junior commercial art student at Florida State University, is the illustrator of a newly-printed publication of the Florida Forest Service. The publication is an eight-page bulletin on forest fire prevention.

Officials said that Miss Lester's drawings include a striking front cover design printed in black and red of a towering forest fire silhouetting charred trees, a rear cover illustration showing a healthy, unburned stand of young planted pines, and six small interior drawings illustrating portions of the text.

The Forest Service's first use of its new bulletin, which is entitled "Wildfire!", is in its annual forest fire prevention campaign currently in progress. Copies have been mailed to selected addressees throughout the state and other copies distributed by hand in personal contact work. Also in connection with the campaign, one city newspaper distributed 7,500 copies of the pamphlet with a Sunday edition.

SIGMA CHI

Sigma Chi Fraternity has announced its new slate of officers. They are:

President: Pete Nimkoff, replacing John Cooper.

Vice-president: Ray Kickliter, replacing Billy Kelly.

Pledge-trainer: John Cooper, replacing Carlos Heaton.

Treasurer, Chris Johnson, replacing Bob Canada.

Recording secretary: Bob Fallin, replacing Ray Kickliter.

Corresponding secretary: Gary Nahrstedt, replacing Drew Boggs.

Associate editor: Graham Carothers, replacing Gary Nahrstedt.

Sergeant-at-arms: Maurice "Sticks" Steinberg, re-elected. Committee chairmen are to be appointed sometime this month, said a fraternity spokesman.

Negro Entertainers

(Continued From Page 2)
up ten-fold. The film, a Negro version of "Carmen" has shown that not only their race appreciate Negro films despite what some people would have you believe and Hollywood is on the verge of making some more films and barring color distinctions. The Twentieth Century Fox picture comes here next week or so.

To my mind the Negro is an equal individual and will eventually be treated as such. His culture should be treated as part of our culture just as our culture is treated as part of his. The entertainment industry has long upheld these beliefs.

This rock withstood
A terrible whack:
It beat Speedy Goon
He never bent back.

EXAMINATION SCHEDULE
First Semester 1954-55

Classes will end Thursday, January 20 10 00 p m. Examinations will begin 8 00 a m Friday January 21, and end 12 30 p m Friday, January 28, 1955. Examination periods are of two hours.

All sections of the following courses have examinations at the same time and will be held at the place announced by the instructor.

COURSE	TIME OF EXAMINATION
Accounting 201 202	Friday, January 21, 8 00-10 00
Biology 101, 102	Monday 8 00-10 00
Business Law 321 322	Monday, 3 30-5 30
Chemistry 101, 102 103, 105 111	Saturday, 8 00-10 00
Economics 301, 202	Thursday, 1 00-3 00
English 100 101	Friday, January 21, 10 30-12 30
English 102	Thursday, 10 30-12 30
Food and Nutrition 105	Wednesday, 3 30-5 30
Geography 101, 105, 301	Tuesday, 2 30-5 30
Health Education 115	Friday, January 28, 8 00-10 00
History 101	Thursday 8 00-10 00
History 102, 105, 106	Tuesday, 7 30-9 30 p m
Humanities 101, 102, 103	Friday, January 21 3 30-5 30
Library Science 500, 315	Saturday 7 30-8 30 p m
Management 165	Wednesday, 10 30-12 30
Marketing 365	Thursday, 8 00-10 00
Mathematics 105	Tuesday, 8 00-10 00
Mathematics 117	Thursday 7 30-9 30 p m
Meteorology 105	Thursday, 1 00-3 00
Military— Air 101, 201 301 401	Saturday, 10 30-12 30
Army 101, 301, 301 401	Saturday 10 30-12 30
Modern Language—First and Second Year	Wednesday 10 30-12 30
Personal Development 105, 106	Wednesday, 3 30-5 30
Physical Education—Men 116	Monday, 1 00-3 00
Physical Education—Women 115, 118 215, 318, 217	Monday, 1 00-3 00
Physical Science 101, 102	Saturday 3 30-5 30
Physics 105	Tuesday 1 00-3 00
Political Science 221, 222	Monday, 7 30-8 30 p m
Secretarial Science 220	Wednesday 3 30-5 30
Social Science 101, 102	Tuesday 8 00-10 00
Social Welfare 105, 305, 315	Friday, January 28, 10 30-12 30
Speech 105	Wednesday, 1.00-3 00

Examinations for courses not previously listed are listed below. They will be held in the class room where the sections of the courses meet. EXAMPLE: If you have an 8 00 or 8 30 class on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday and if that course is not listed on the first page or above, you will take the examination in your regular class room Friday, January 21, 10 30-12 30.

COURSE	TIME OF EXAMINATION
8 00 or 8 30 M W F
8 00 or 8 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Friday, January 31, 10.30-12 30
8 00 or 8 30 T Th S
8 00 or 8 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week
8 00 to 8 15 T Th	Wednesday, 7 00-8 00 p m
8 00 or 8 30 M W F
8 00 or 8 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Tuesday, 10 30-12 30
8 00 or 8 30 T Th S
8 00 or 8 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week
9 30 to 10 45 T Th	Saturday, 1 00-3 00
10 00 or 10 30 M W F
10 00 or 10 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Wednesday, 8 00-10 00
10 00 or 10 30 T Th S
10 00 or 10 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Saturday, 7 30-8 30 p m
11 00 or 11 30 M W F
11 00 or 11 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Monday, 3.30-5 30
11 00 or 11 30 T Th S
11 00 or 11 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week
11 00 to 12 15 T Th	Thursday, 10 30-12 30
12 00 or 12 30 M W F
12 00 or 12 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Monday, 8 00-10 00
12 00 or 12 30 T Th S
12 00 or 12 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week
12 30 to 1 45 T Th	Saturday, 10 30-12 30
1 00 or 1 30 M W F
1 00 or 1 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Friday January 31, 1 00-3 00
1 00 or 1 30 T Th	Friday, January 28 8 00-10 00
2 00 or 2 30 M W F
2 00 or 2 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Saturday 8 00-10 00
2 00 or 2 30 T Th
2 00 to 3 15 T Th	Friday, January 21, 7 30-8 30 p m
3 00 or 3 30 M W F
3 00 or 3 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Thursday, 10 30-12 30
3 00 or 3 30 T Th
3 30 or 4 45 T Th	Thursday 10 30-12 30
4 00 or 4 30 M W F
4 00 or 4 30 meeting 4 or 5 times a week	Monday, 10 30-12 30
4 00 or 4 30 T Th	Tuesday 1 00-3 00
Courses meeting one hour each week	Tuesday, 8 00-10 00

Courses meeting two hours each week will take the same schedule as the three-hour courses unless otherwise shown on this schedule.

In case of conflict the examination which appears first on this schedule will have preference over the other examinations. Make arrangements with the instructor of the conflict examination to take the examination Monday 7 30-8 30 p m.

Students are not permitted to change sections for examinations.

Night classes will have their examinations at the first regular class period time during examination week, except those having group examinations.

Classes meeting on Saturday only will have their examination Saturday, January 22, 10 30-12 30.

Students who have more than three examinations scheduled for one day contact Mr Price, Assistant Registrar, 107A Westcott Building. In case of four examinations in one day, the third examination in the student's schedule will be changed.

A candidate for graduation may be excused by his instructor from taking the final examination in a course in which he has maintained without question a "B" average when the examination is scheduled. Candidates for degrees who are required to take examinations will have them scheduled with their instructors not later than Wednesday January 26 1955.

The lecture period of a laboratory course will determine the examination time.

Instructors who find rooms with bad lighting check with the Registrar's Office for another room.

This examination schedule is published with the approval of the Faculty Senate Committee on examinations.

Scholarships Open To Student Majors In Radio, Television

The National Academy of Broadcasting in Washington, D. C. is offering a scholarship to college and university trained students wishing to prepare for a career in broadcasting.

According to Miss Alice Keith, president of the Academy, which trains and places its graduates, there is a greater demand now for trained writers and announcers than ever before.

The scholarship, worth $300, pays for one semester's tuition. College graduates with a background in English, speech and languages can obtain a professional certificate upon completion of a semester's study at the Academy.

Applications should be made to the National Academy of Broadcasting, 3338 16th St., N.W., Washington 10, D. C.

Veterans

(Continued From Page 1)
benefit. As a result of the Proclamation, the end of the Vocational Rehabilitation Program for eligible Post-Korea veterans will be January 31, 1964, or nine years after release from active service, whichever is earlier.

No training may be provided beyond those dates except for certain hardship cases which, under the law, are granted an additional four years in which to train.

Senate Plans

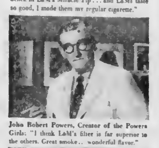
(Continued From Page 1)
should be backed by statute in any case.

Attorney General Dave Kennedy, however, remarked unofficially this week that he would not be inclined to view as constitutional any bill recognizing Rat Court, as a judicial body of its nature is nowhere mentioned in the constitution.

The resolution was referred to a committee composed of freshmen senators Hank McCann, Bill Swigert, Ronnie Blue, Liz Cerny, Polly Atwater and Petey Dunn.

Beneath this sod
Lies Sammy Farr
He couldn't pet
And drive a car.

MUSIC FOR ALL OCCASIONS



The Raven Quintet

Dial 2-5454 Evenings — 225 Flemming St

MIRACLE TIP

L&M's Got Everything!

Janet Blair, Actress: "I have the fullest confidence in L&M's Miracle Tip . . . and L&Ms taste so good, I made them my regular cigarette."

John Robert Powers, Creator of the Powers Girls: "I think L&M's filter is far superior to the others. Great smoke . . wonderful flavor."

Patricia Morison, Musical Comedy Star: "I love L&M Filters. Never dreamed a filter cigarette could filter so thoroughly, yet taste so good!"

Stands Out FROM ALL THE REST!

STANDS OUT FOR FLAVOR. The pure, white Miracle Tip draws easy, lets you enjoy all the taste.

STANDS OUT FOR EFFECTIVE FILTRATION. No filter compares with L&M's Miracle Tip for quality or effectiveness.

STANDS OUT FOR HIGHEST QUALITY TOBACCOS, low nicotine tobaccos, L&M tobaccos . . . Light and Mild.

MUCH MORE FLAVOR — MUCH LESS NICOTINE

America's Best Filter Cigarette!

Duke Ellington Signed
For FSU Dance
(See below)

The Florida Flambeau

Florida's Only
Semi-Weekly
College Paper

VOL. XL, NO. 24 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — FRIDAY, JANUARY 14, 1955

Ellington Band Contracted For IFC 'Capers'

Duke To Play At FSU And FAMU After Joint Efforts

Duke Ellington will play for Inter-Fraternity "Capers" on Friday night, April 1 in the Suwannee Room.

Added to the fact that the IFC and a fraternity at Florida A&M are splitting expenses to meet his top-name fee, Ellington is all but officially signed to the deal. Negotiations are now going on for a possible afternoon concert free-of-charge to the student body.

Ellington is probably the biggest-name orchestra FSU has ever had on campus and in the past few years the annual musical events have had top stars. Les Elgart plays tonight at the Military Ball and Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey are set for concerts here on February 10.

Recently Columbia records released an album of original recordings of Ellington's playing and this long-playing disc has been on the best-selling lists for quite some time. Capitol records, Ellington's new label has released an album of Ellington playing songs he made famous. The album features what is termed "standards" but it's interesting to note how many top tunes this band has produced.

For the record, Duke Ellington was the first to record Hoagy Carmichel's "Stardust" at the New York Cotton Club.

Ellington and his aggregation will be housed at Florida A&M during their stay. They will give two concerts at A&M while here for the weekend.

Ogburn Cites Climate Producing McCarthy

Sen. Jne McCarthy will not be on the front pages of newspapers much during 1955 unless the new look in Russia means a stepping up of the cold war.

This view was cited by Dr. William F. Ogburn, world renowned sociologist and visiting professor here, who spoke last night in Longmire Auditorium. Sponsored by Alpha Kappa Delta sociology fraternity, his talk was given before students and faculty members.

Co-existence and McCarthyism cannot be teamed together," he said.

Discussing "Why We Had a McCarthy," Dr. Ogburn did not deal with the man, Senator McCarthy, as hero or villain, but described the social climate that produced McCarthyism, finding the answer in "social psychology."

"Senator McCarthy and his methods resulted from a demand for an outlet of our fighting spirit. Our belligerent reflexes were organized and became a habit mechanism during the war from 1941 to 1945, and we responded to the stimulus of the word Hitler with a mighty war psychology, and went marching off to battles." Dr. Ogburn said.

He explained that a new potential enemy appeared in Russia two years after the war ended. "Our belligerent reflexes were still with us. But there was nobody to shoot. It was a cold war. We called the enemy 'Communism' which was a stimulus like the word 'Hitler.'

"But we could not go marching off to battles. So we began to see Communists under the bed, behind the trees. And we vented our belligerent views on Communists everywhere, but especially in the government where they should have been excluded. As Patton was a hero in the bloody war, so McCarthy became a hero in the cold war."

Dr. Ogburn pointed out how we tolerated and applauded McCarthy's methods, just as once we tolerated barbarous methods in fighting the American Indians and driving them out of their land.

"Any group has two kinds of methods: One for the members of his own group, the 'we' group, and another for 'outsiders'. We can be highly honorable and chivalrous and fair-minded in our own 'we' group, and at the same time quite brutal and unchivalrous to enemy outsiders. We used to say 'the only good Indian is a dead Indian.'

"Communists, and this often included anyone we did not like, fellow travelers, associate leftist persons, new dealers, radicals, subversives, members of un-American groups who were seen as outsiders, enemies of America. They were like snakes in the grass, and did not deserve fair treatment.

"As the cold war wanes we hear less of Senator McCarthy. If it is thought that he cannot command the votes, but may even alienate them as we return to the methods of the 'we' group, McCarthyism declines."

Dr. Ogburn said that mass hysteria cannot be sustained at a high pitch for long.

"If McCarthy had never been born, something like McCarthyism would have arisen in America anyway under another leader such as Senator William Ezra Jenner or someone else."

Senate Makes Appointments; Bill Is Argued

Hot Debate Is Held Over Bill Providing For A Money Audit

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The appointments of Jack Norton and Bruce Fletcher as assistants to the Attorney General passed the Student Senate Wednesday with little opposition and just as little discussion.

They have been under consideration by Senator Jim Moore's elections and appointments committee since President Pete Nimkoff submitted their names before Christmas.

Men's vice-president Gordon Gaster and Senators Bob Berto, Hank McCann and Ronnie Blue constituted the opposition to Norton's appointment, while only Gaster and Berto stood in the way of confirming the Fletcher appointment.

The appointment of Gay Crutchfield to the Secretary of State Committee was approved without dissent.

Senator Ken Gatlin's bill to provide for an audit of the Student Activity fee money occasioned some hot words between Gatlin and vice-president Gaster, when the former moved to dispense with the rules to allow the bill to be passed on its first reading.

Gaster, protesting a lack of urgency for immediate passage declaimed "I can't see waiting until one week before something and then rushing it through—and Senator Gatlin is the guiltiest party."

Gatlin's desire to see his bill passed then and there may have come from the fact that Senate will not meet again until Wednesday, February 9. His bill provides for the Undersecretary of Finance to undertake an audit of the funds allocated for the student activity fee, complete it by Feburary 5, and make is available to The Florida Flambeau for publication not later than February 12.

Senator Jimmy Joanos defended Gatlin's move for immediate passage, pointing out that Gatlin drew up his bill before Senate decided to dispense with next week's meeting.

The Senate disregarded Gaster's protests and agreed with Gatlin's stand that the student body would like to know how its money is being spent. The bill passed without opposition.

The six freshmen Senators introduced as a bill a measure which they brought forth as a resolution at the previous meeting Entitled an Act to Give Official Recognition to the Freshman Rat Period and Rat Court, it read,

"Be it enacted by the Student Senate That:

"Section 1. The student body Senate officially recognize the Freshman Rat Period and Rat Court as a valuable and worthwhile function of the sophomore and freshman classes and urge all members of these classes to participate wholeheartedly.

"Section 2. Said Rat Court and Rat Period shall be planned and officiated at the discretion of the sophomore class."

The bill will receive its second reading and vote at the meeting of February 9

Senator Polly Atwater's bill to provide for student suggestion boxes received brief discussion in Senate on its first reading. Some Senators felt that the care of the boxes should be entrusted to the executive branch, while others felt it should be retained by Senate

Vice-president Coyle Moore announced that a special sub-committee to study the legislative branch of student government will make its report on proposed changes in the representation system within the week.

The Senate resolved by a unanimous vote that Negro entertainers should be allowed to perform at various social functions on this campus.

The resolution, sponsored by vice-president Gordon Gaster, was passed primarily to back up the request of Inter-Fraternity Council dance committee chairman Jerry Klonsky for permission to engage Duke Ellington's band for the IFC weekend, April 1 and 2.

Klonsky spoke in favor of the resolution concerning Negro entertainers, which was drawn up by a student and sponsored in the Senate by Gaster.

The resolution declared:

"WHEREAS, the morale and spirit of the student body is advanced immeasurably by the acquisition, from time to time, of first-rate dance bands to play at various campus functions,

"AND WHEREAS, many of the best dance bands in the country are composed of Negroes, led by Negroes or contain Negroes as members,

"AND WHEREAS, we, the

(Continued on Page 4)

University Symphony To Play In Westcott Monday With Sedore Conducting

Professor Victor S. Mamatey, center, talks to two students.

Orchestra Is Now In 28th FSU Season

First Public Concert Of 73-Man Group To Open At 8:15

The curtain will rise on another "first" for Florida State University's new Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., Monday, when the University Symphony Orchestra presents its initial public concert of its 28th season.

Robert Sedore, now in his eighth year as conductor of the symphony, has been waiting for Westcott for his annual winter concert.

Tomorrow night's concert will mark the first student organization to perform in the new auditorium.

Sedore said the calibre of musicianship in his orchestra is worthy of Westcott. With 73 members, it is larger and stronger in strings than any in the past at FSU. Thomas Stone, a candidate for a doctor's degree, is concertmaster.

The orchestra will play Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D Major as an opening number, an FSU premier for the work. Following intermission, Rachmaninoff's "Isle of the Dead" a Florida premier, will be offered. "Isle of the Dead" is a tone poem inspired by a painting bearing the same title by the great master Brochlin.

Wagner's Prelude to the third act of Lohengrin will conclude the program, which is expected to last about one hour and 15 minutes.

The concert will be free, and the general public is invited, said a spokesman. Tickets may be obtained from any of the orchestra members. Tickets are available, also, at the office of the FSU School of Music, Jenkins and Gridley's music stores, and Baker's Music Center in Tallahassee, and will hold seats in Westcott until 8 p.m.

The winter concert will be presented the one night only instead of two nights as in previous years in Opperman Music Hall. The new auditorium seats more than three times as many as the music hall.

The newly constructed auditorium with seating capacity of 1,800 was formally accepted by Governor LeRoy Collins for the people of Florida in dedication ceremonies on Jan. 11.

Poetic Experimental Film Show At English Coffee Hour Today

Today's English Coffee Hour will feature a new literary-art form, "Image in the Snow," called by sponsors a poetic experimental film.

The film showing is sponsored by the English and art departments. It will be shown at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House.

Dr. Adolph Karl, acting head of the art department, made arrangements for the poet-artist, Willard Maas, to show and explain his film at Florida State University.

He will also give a demonstration-lecture at the University of Miami on his trip to Florida from New York.

Maas commands a wide reputation as poet, experimental film-maker and lecturer. He is author of two books of verse, Fire Testament and Concerning the Young, and winner of Poetry's Guarantor's Prize.

His work has been featured in such publications as Harpers, the Saturday Review of Literature, New Directions, The New York Times Book Review and Virginia Quarterly.

When working for the Motion Picture Division of the Signal Corps, Maas became interested in films as a medium for poetic expression. With the English poet, George Baker, he made "Geography of the Body," called by critics "An American film classic in its genre."

With his wife, Marie Menken, abstract artist, he made "Image in the Snow," considered controversial as well as experimental. It was premiered at the Theatre de Lys in New York, and has been circulated at a number of cinema clubs and universities. Voted one of the 18 best films of New York's Cinema 16 seasons, it won top honors at the Film Festival at Cannes.

In demand for lectures and film showings, Maas was presented recently at The Institute of Arts and Sciences, Columbia University. He conducts a series, "16 mm: New World of Cinema" for the Brooklyn Academy of Arts and Sciences.

As a lecturer, he appears as a creative artist in two fields, poetry and audio-vision. He discusses the potentialities of the medium, the film-poem, which he hopes will help restore poetry to the great audience it commanded in earlier centuries.

Dorsey Tickets Go On Sale Starting Today

Tickets for the Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey band appearance go on sale today at Westcott booth, said Mrs. Kay Vernon, Artist Series secretary.

The famed musical team will give two evening concerts, at 6 30 p m and 8 30 p.m., Thursday, February 10, in Westcott auditorium, and not Opperman Music Hall, as erroneously reported in last Tuesday's The Florida Flambeau.

Students may exchange tab No. 16 out of their present activity book. New students registering for next semester may exchange tab No. 2 from the book. Seats will not be reserved.

Mrs Vernon said tickets will be available for students only through Feb. 3. On Friday, Feb. 4, tickets will be made available for faculty and staff, if any are left, she said. She doubted if any would be left for the general public.

She added that the band will give the same show at both performances. The first show will be over at 8 p.m. and Mrs. Vernon asked that students exit through the side doors at lower end of the auditorium since the entrance will be crowded with people entering for the second show.

She noted that women's house meetings will be held that night, and women students should attend the first concert in order to be at the meeting.

TRYOUTS ASKED FOR 'CRUCIBLE'

Monday and Tuesday have been set for tryouts of the latest speech production, "The Crucible," by Arthur Miller.

Auditions will be held Monday from 3 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Time scheduled for Tuesday is 7 to 10 p.m.

Those interested in trying out sign for the time on the call board in the History Building. All Florida State University students may try for parts.

Lawyer Replies In Leathers Controversy

A public statement was issued yesterday by R. Worth Moore, attorney for former assistant professor Robert L. Leathers, concerning the controversy over whether Leathers' resignation in October, 1953, was unjustly pressured because of his work on a committee investigating alleged athletic malpractices.

Moore's statement was released in answer to that of Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU President, given to the Board of Control last Friday in Gainesville.

"The Gainesville statement by Dr. Campbell contains unfamiliar charges. It appears that the FSU administration is trying to make a completely new case against Mr. Leathers," charged Moore. "The blustering blast issued last Friday can only be interpreted as a miserable public admission that no case can be substantiated against Mr. Leathers."

In his answer to previous Leathers testimony Dr. Campbell had accused the former assistant professor of geography of using "diversionary tactics" and had defended the method used in obtaining his resignation.

Blasting Dr. Campbell's report, the Tallahassee attorney said that it was "A carefully planned dodge of a challenge." He said, "The FSU administration has been defied to openly present any specific charges. Instead of sticking to the issue, a vicious, unsupported and public attack has been made against Mr. Leathers' good name and character. The following very significant facts tell the story:

"1. Not one iota of evidence was presented against Mr. Leathers.

"2. Not one witness was presented against him.

"3. No attempt whatever was made to deny a single statement or a single charge made by Mr. Leathers during the day-long hearing before Governor Johns and members of the Board of Education.

"4. No attention was given the complete refutation by Mr. Leathers of the original charges against him."

(Leathers had claimed that he was charged with assigning a girl student to write a paper on campus homosexuality, with vulgarity in class, and with stealing a piece of pipe from West Campus.)

"5. Not one statement was made questioning the testimony of the many witnesses who appeared voluntarily to testify to the good character and good morals of Mr. Leathers and his qualifications as a college professor.

"6. Not one single incident could be found to mar the outstanding record established by Mr. Leathers during the many years he served at FSU.

"7. It was not denied that Mr. Leathers' students considered

(Continued on Page 4)

Ending Of Armaments Race Is 'Danger Test' Of Coexistence

It would be "highly dangerous" for America to test the Russian doctrine of peaceful co-existence by laying away its guns, declared Dr. Victor S. Mamatey in a talk at Augusta Conradi Theater Wednesday night.

He spoke on "Soviet Russia Since the Death of Stalin."

The assistant professor of History said that Russia's call for peaceful co-existence abroad and the relative liberality there in recent years are not signs of any basic change in the nature of the Soviet system.

While preaching peaceful co-existence, the Soviets have abandoned no positions abroad and abdicated no powers at home," he continued.

"The armament race continues in full swing."

Dr. Mamatey centered the early portion of his lecture on what he termed the "three basic factions or power groups in Soviet Russia," telling the events that led to their success before and after the death of Stalin.

He said that Malenkov, Stalin's ultimate successor, has his chief strength in the government apparatus he controls; others are Krushshev, who has made the Communist party his power vehicle, and the military leaders, whose political importance is now "far greater than any time before."

"No one can say what the ambitions of such army men as Marshal Zhukov are, but it may well be that this group now holds the balance of power and therefore perhaps the ultimate decisive voice in Soviet internal politics."

In commenting on Stalin's death, Dr. Mamatey declared that the red leader was preparing to hold a party purge similar to the great purge of the 1930's, which "rolled on for five years until there was hardly a familiar face left in the upper strata of Soviet officials." He revealed that Stalin's fear of his successors caused him to establish a Party Presidium composed of

(Continued on Page 4)

'Garnet Key' Taps Members For Next Year

Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary, recently tapped twelve new women. These juniors and seniors are Bebe Bisbee, Judy Blitch, Delano Driver, Martha Garrett, Donna Lou Harper, Ann Hayes, Frances Helms, Carolyn Johnson, Pat O'Brien, Frances Stokes, Jeanine Stokes and Sara Whitehead.

The women were chosen for their contributions of leadership, service and spirit to the university through their activities on campus.

Besides recognizing outstanding women students, Garnet Key's purpose is to promote those activities which foster the progress and spirit of Florida State University.

Lambda Chi Alpha Honors Graduating Seniors At Dance

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity recently honored graduating Seniors Bill Corbett, vice-president, and Harold Carrin, ritual director, at a banquet and dance.

The affair, held at the Hotel Duval, was highlighted by music furnished by Benny Stevens and his "Jumpineers" from Florida A. and M.

Approximately 53 couples attended the dance which was chaperoned by Mrs. Pauline Yne, housemother, Dr. and Mrs Lewis, and Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Harter, faculty advisor.

Last Junior English Exams Scheduled For Next Monday

The last Junior English examination of this semester will be given from 3 to 5:30 p.m., Monday, January 17, in rooms 303 and 307 Westcott.

Students required to take the examination are all transfers who have not had it before; all juniors and seniors who for special reasons were deferred; and all sophomores who will be juniors next semester. Students are not permitted to repeat the examination.

Eligible students who fail to take the examination will be assessed a $5 delinquent fee to be paid prior to the next registration. Such students who were posted delinquent for failing to take the last examination will present their delinquent fee receipts at the door January 17.

All sophomores who had in September, 1954, a minimum of 42 hours are expected to take the examination.

Students whose examination indicate a need for remedial work will be enrolled for Junior English classes at the next registration

Before the time of the examination, students who have conflicts should clear their schedules in the Junior English office.

There will be another Junior English examination given for students transferring to FSU for the spring semester of 1955. This examination will be given on February 1

FORD FELLOWSHIPS NOW AVAILABLE

The Ford Foundation announcement of program for faculty fellowships has been received in the office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, it was announced yesterday.

Closing date for filing application is January 31.

AZD HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

Students, faculty and staff have been invited to an Open House Sunday from 2 30 to 5 p.m in the Alpha Xi Delta sorority house, 461 West Park Avenue.

Committee On Representation Set To Report

A sub-committee of the special Senate Committee to Study Student Government will make public this weekend its report on various plans advanced for changing the system of Senate representation.

Sub-committee members are vice-president Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn.

Working under the avowed purpose of increasing student interest in government, the sub-committee has conducted hearings on the idea of dormitory, or precinct representation in Senate The second and last hearing was held Tuesday afternoon.

Vice-president Moore said that the committee will recommend in its report a change in the present set-up. He added that the report would probably include a model constitutional amendment for the Senate's consideration.

"Most people are opposed to an all-out precinct system," Moore advanced, "but are in favor of a combination system to include representatives from dormitories and from the various classes, to be elected in the Spring.

"We are trying to devise a plan that most of the people are in favor of, and one that will prove the solution to our problems, with the fewest possible disadvantages."

Several different plans for precinct representation were advanced to the committee. Some would have had the Senate consist exclusively of representatives elected in the Fall by various living areas, and by the day students. Others would retain some parts of the present class representation, and would provide for election of dormitory representatives in the Spring by those students assigned to the dormitories for the coming year.

At Tuesday's hearing vice-president Gordon Gaster suggested a bicameral, or two-house system. Due to a lack of interest among the other students present at the hearing Gaster's idea was not pursued further.

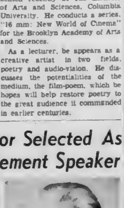
Senator Ken Gatlin is counted among the strongest Senate backers for a change in the present system of representation. The members of the sub-committee have found no opposition to changing the system, although opinions vary as to what this change should be or how extensively it should be carried out.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY ZETA TAU ALPHA

Zeta Tau Alpha announced its new slate of officers elected recently for the coming year.

They are: June Yates, President; Betty Gooch, Vice-President; Beth Lawrence, Corresponding Secretary, Sue Herndon, Recording Secretary; Lucy Council, Treasurer; Eileen Werts, Social Chairman; Carolyn Pearson, Rush Chairman; Virginia Ann Cook, Pan-Helenic Representataive; Nancy Watkins, Ritual Chairman; Ann Wall, Assistant Ritual Chairman: Jo Jones and Carol Owen, Co-Song Chairmen Crystal McRae, Historian; Billie Jean Beal, Scholarship Chairman and Marie Wadsworth, House President.

Former Professor Selected As Next Commencement Speaker



Dr. Ben M. Cherrington, formerly director of the Social Science Foundation and professor of International Relations of the University of Denver, will be the Commencement speaker at graduation exercises January 29.

Dr. Cherrington, who is now Director of the Rocky Mountain Office of the Institute of International Education, will speak to graduating Seniors in Westcott Auditorium at 4 p.m.

He was one of the organizers of Students in Industry in 1920; a co-organizer of the first American Seminar in Europe in 1921, and director of the International Student Seminar in Geneva in 1929.

At the invitation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Dr. Cherrington, in the summer of 1938, accepted the task of organizing the work of the newly-created Division of Cultural Relations in the State Department.

In 1946, Dr. Cherrington was appointed as a consultant to the Department of State as a member-at-large of the United States Commission on UNESCO matters and elected by the commission as a member of its Executive Committee. He was appointed as adviser to the U. S. delegation to the Third General Conference of UNESCO in Lebanon in October, 1948.

Ben M. Cherrington

During 1951-52 he was president of the American Adult Education Association. He holds the following degrees: A.B., University of Nebraska, 1911; A. M., University of California, 1922; Ph. D., Columbia University, 1934; LL.D., University of Nebraska, 1946; Doctor of Public Service, University of Denver, 1953.

Pep Club Sponsors Dance Tomorrow Night After Game

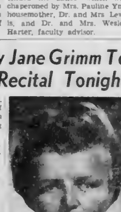
With a basketball theme in mind, the Warpath Club is sponsoring a dance to be held at the Student Center after the FSU-Georgia game Saturday night in the new Florida High gym.

According to Marian Benson, project chairman, the pep club is sponsoring the dance in order to stimulate attendance to the basketball games. Music at the dance will be supplied by the Commodants, a five-piece combo, who will play until 12:15.

There will be a bus at the bus-stop in front of Bryan Hall at 7:45 to carry students to the game.

Contralto Betty Jane Grimm To Give Faculty Recital Tonight

Betty Jane Grimm, contralto, will be presented in a School of Music faculty recital tonight in Opperman Music Hall beginning at 8:15.



Miss Grimm, who will be accompanied by Miss Mary Ester Winslow at the piano, will sing 11 selections ranging from "Der Tod ist kuhle Nacht" (Death is like the cool night) by Johannes Brahms, to "Afraid, am I Afraid?" by Gian-Carlo Menotti.

The program will present a range of selections from arias from Samson and Delilah, "Printemps qui commence" (Spring comes with gifts) and "Mon Coeur s'ouvre a ta voix" (My heart at thy sweet voice) by Camille Saint-Saens to African-American folk songs arranged by Roland Hays.

The folk songs, written according to biblical texts, will be "I'll Make Me a Man," "A Witness", "Ezekiel Saw de Wheel" and "I'm Troubled".

Also on the program are "Cara Sposa" (Beloved one, where art thou?) from Rinaldo by G. F. Handel, and "Erinnerung" (Rememberance) by Johannes Brahms.

Miss Grimm is a former member of the Robert Shaw Chorale and has toured with that group. She has done recordings for Victor and Columbia. Miss Grimm has been soloist at National Music Camp, Interlochen, Michigan, and is well known in the south for her solo appearances in many southern cities.

Betty Jane Grimm

She will also appear on the Artist Series of Shorter College, Rome, Georgia, on January 25.

"You Hoo There, My Good Friend"

Precinct Representation

The old rallying cry, "It's time for a change!" is echoing through the halls of Longmire Building these days.

Just about everybody connected with or interested in student government is convinced that the present system of class representation in Senate is not true representation at all. The feeling is widespread that the set-up is incapable of arousing interest in student government, and all recognize the fact that student government is ineffective if interest is lacking.

One of the most concrete proposals ever advanced for revitalizing student government is that of precinct representation. This subject has been under consideration by the Legislative Branch Sub-Committee of the Special Senate Committee to Study Student Government. The sub-committee's report on hearings it has held, together with certain recommendations of that group, will be made public this weekend.

There are many varying opinions as to what form of representation should be inaugurated. Many are in favor of retaining some vestige of the present system: the classes would elect representatives in the Spring, and the dormitories would elect representatives at that time for the coming year.

This would work for the women's dormitories—the girls are assigned their next year's residences early. But with the men, residence is an uncertain factor. An additional drawback to this representation would not be numerically equal.

The most liberal suggestion is that of pure, out-and-out precinct representation. The campus would be divided into a number of precincts on the basis of the number of students living within them, and each precinct would send a representative to Senate. The day students would elect a certain number.

There are clear problems inherent in this suggestion, as well. Zoning of precincts alone could result in considerable controversy.

It appears most likely that the sub-committee will recommend a modified system of precinct representation—electing Senators partly from the classes, partly from the dormitories, and partly from large fraternity and sorority groups as well.

It will have to be in the form of a constitutional amendment—indeed, several amendments. The student body will be asked to ratify the amendments.

Senators are trying to devise a change for the better—they need the help of the entire student body. If the audience remain silent on this issue there is little hope for student government.

Mr. Benson's Private Government

The Ladejinsky affair has reached a fantastic climax worthy of earlier chapters in this gruesome saga of a security program which has bred general insecurity.

Cleared initially by the State Department's Scott McLeod, then summarily fired and smeared by Ezra Benson's Agriculture Department as a "security risk," Ladejinsky has now been hired by Harold Stassen's Foreign Operations Administration for a key post in Southeast Asia.

That valuable government servant is thereby permitted to return to the front lines of the battle against communism—but with the stigma of the Agriculture Department's attack unremoved and a dread cast over all his future service.

For neither Benson nor his know-nothing associates—including the strange fellow who released an anti-Semitic letter as a justification for the Ladejinsky outrage—have retracted. Benson made it clear that he still considers Ladejinsky unfit for service in his bailiwick; he passionately defended the two subordinates responsible for the scurrilous campaign against Ladejinsky.

Presumably they are now free to judge other men by the wretched standards which resulted in Ladejinsky's exile.

No wonder what the Republican press would have us believe if this monstrous drama of bureaucratic bungling, confusion, and political illiteracy had been unfounded during the administration of Harry S. Truman.

What kind of program is it which contains standards so loose and procedures so feeble that a man can be damned as a hopeless risk in one department and later employed by a humanitarian anti-Communist mission in another?

Obviously it all makes no sense. If the State Department and the FOA are right —and the evidence is overwhelmingly on their side—the Agriculture Department has been guilty of inflicting an irretrievable injustice on a man who has given long and conscientious service to his country. Yet the President has lacked the courage or decency to intervene.

Some men may smugly agree with the Administration that the matter is now happily resolved since Ladejinsky is again employed. To do so is to miss the meaning of the episode. For one thing, a human being has been damaged and his usefulness critically impaired. In larger terms, the question arises as to how many lesser men have been the victims—driven by the kind of ignorance and intolerance which originally led to Ladejinsky's dismissal.

—From The New York Post.

Did-Ja-Ever
Go to a restaurant and wait
And wait and wait-and wait—
—And seat?
—Don Rapp

Desegregation

A Glance At Southern Happenings

Two major school problems—Negro salary appropriations and the segregation-desegregation issue—will vie for attention in southern and border state legislatures convening this month, reports the Southern School News, a publication of the Southern Education Reporting Service, an agency given over to informing information on the desegregation plan in affected states.

This is how the region, at a glance, stacks up.

The Georgia legislature is expected to enact at least three new laws to strengthen the state's segregated school system. The South Carolina legislature will receive new recommendations, yet unpublicized, from a special state commission which has been studying the Supreme Court decision of last May.

Leaders of the North Carolina General Assembly do not favor any legislation on the subject but the mao slated to be Speaker of the House recommends that some expression of the state's sentiment about segregation be sent to the Supreme Court.

A Tennessee legislator says he will introduce a bill to bring local school boards wide leeway to assign children to designated school, and in Mississippi, a special session of the legislature will consider a new program for equalizing white-Negro facilities as a move to preserve "voluntary" segregation.

Florida, Louisiana and Arkansas legislatures will be mainly preoccupied with complex school financial problems, but Arkansas Education Commissioner Ford Reynolds announced that the legislation designed to carry out the Supreme Court ruling.

The Maryland and Texas legislatures will also meet, but no specific proposals concerning the segregation-desegregation legislation have been made.

The Florida legislature doesn't meet until late spring, but a new set of laws making it unlawful between those who favor some form of the "interposition plan" for preserving segregation, and those who prefer Atty. Gen. Richard Ervin's "gradualism" approach to integration.

In Missouri, St. Louis made plans for a second major desegregation step—the redistricting, effective Feb. 1, of the city's seven white and two Negro high schools to eliminate racial segregation.

On Jan. 11, the District of Columbia took another step in the ten-year integration program when 1,200 graduates of white and Negro junior high school started attending high schools nearest their homes. School officials in the District are considering drawing lines to administrative and social problems growing out of desegregation.

The first complete summary of West Virginia's desegregation problem show that 32,545 white and Negro students are attending 133 integrated public schools. Delaware repealed the designation of the State Supreme Court on its role in seeking the readmission of Negro students to the 36 white high school, scene of protests and picketing. In Oklahoma, public opinion referenda have set up large majorities against integration.

Virginia saw the chartering of a new anti-integration—National Protective Individuals Rights, Inc.—which favors seceding from the states and local communities to work out problems posed by the Supreme Court decision.

In Alabama, formation of several White Citizens Councils was featured in the news. In Kentucky, the state board of education promised "the most careful consideration" of a plan to minimize problems posed by the desegregation of the schools, particularly the effect on the employment of qualified Negro teachers.

And in Louisiana, a federal district court ordered the admission of seven plaintiffs to McNeese State College at Lake Charles—the second Louisiana undergraduate institution to be so opened.

From Other Colleges

A Significant First

The University of San Francisco is the first Jesuit only American university to inaugurate a required course in the philosophy and tactics of Communism.

In May, 1951, a committee consisting of University professors Dr. Alphonse Fiore, Andrew Bouscaren, Wesley MacKenzie, and Rev. Raymond Feely, S.J., finished a study of the confusion of world leadership caused by the tactics of Communism. The committee reported:

Present compulsory courses in American institutions now required of all graduates have proven inadequate to meet the modern crisis. Leaders in Government, in labor, in science, and in all walks of life, even though strongly committed to the Democratic way of life, have nevertheless been constantly outwitted by a failure to understand the true nature and tactics of Communism.

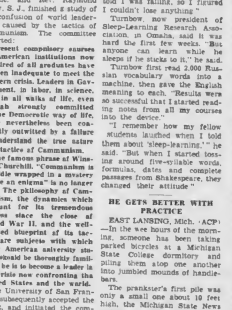
Yet the President has lacked the courage or decency to intervene.

The frankster's first pole was only a small one about 10 feet high, the Michigan State News estimated, and contained about 20 bibles. He got braver on his second try and made a pole a little higher, with a few more bikes added.

The third time he really reached new heights. Students estimated he piled their bicycles piled in a heap that reached the windows of the first floor of the Abbott dormitory.

SUNNY DAY BRINGS SUNNY THOUGHTS

So says Jack Kole in his Kolegiana column in the Arizona State News. Seems there was the married student who phoned the Dean of Women to place two classified ads—each offering a different automobile for sale. Evidently the arrival of a baby curtailed his aspirations for one of the two purchases.



Or take the student who drove into a deep mudhole on the Lansing and turned on the headlights the other night. Kole writes:

Abdominal behavior, you may think at first glance. But this student who has just completed and fixured the lights would at once think of busa for specimens.

The one who burned in a few days when later weren't thinking in this academic vein, however. He explained that he really wasn't ready for the men with white coats.

Hope the professor gave him an A.

The Dissenter

Injustice Is Done In Lake County

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Lake County, in central Florida, contains some of the state's most beautiful countryside. Rolling hills, lined with symmetrical rows of citrus trees, stretch in some directions as far as the eye can see.

The climate and economy are good. Yet this county of 36,068 people is earning at the present only infamy—and that on a nationwide scale.

No one who reads the papers needs to be told how serious Lake County's race problems can be at times. Masters aren't helped by the injustices perpetrated at every opportunity by white-supremist Sheriff Willis McCall.

It's happened again. "Threatened on Racial Status, Bustin Family Moves" read the headline in yesterday's Tampa Tribune.

"Monroe Taylor, a fruit packer, packed his Croatan wife and his young sons into their car today," read a story datelined LEESBURG, Jan. 12. "and headed for South Carolina, after being threatened last midnight by a mob of men.

"Taylor and his wife said a crowd of men came to their garages apartment and told Taylor to take his stepsons out of the school and leave Eustis."

The boys had been in school two days, after transferring from Acton Park, when the mob visited their new home and told them that they, like the Platts of Mt. Dora, weren't wanted.

The Platts were evicted from school by Sheriff McCall because he said that they looked as if they might have Negro blood, evidence to the contrary notwithstanding.

The children involved in this latest case are in the seventh grade, 15 years old, and sandy-haired, one dark haired.

Taylor is quoted as saying "I could make a case of it but I want to protect my family, so I'll leave."

Or is it that the man knows he could get no protection from county authorities? Is it that he is aware that the mob rules in the county where Sheriff McCall is the law?

Florida does have a constitutional provision against teaching Negroes and whites in the same schools. The injustice of any form of racial segregation is beside the point that, but sometimes we wonder if the state's people realize that they have been proven to have Negro ancestry.

What matters is this: Willie, a people who claim to respect law and order continue to tolerate mob rule and persecution in the Lake County or for that matter anywhere in the state?

Are we going to create small men, like Sheriff McCall, to set themselves up as gods and presume to dictate upon men with no regard for the rights of humanity?

If we have no conscience, justice or decency in our souls we will sit back peacefully and wait until the mobs come to our own front doors.

Editor Hardy Collins has already seen to an investigation of the Platt case. His decision is, as of yet, not known.

But if he should care to remove Sheriff McCall, the man who has done the most to betray good government in the state of Florida in the past year, he would undoubtedly be more resolved on this score if the citizens of people of Florida would back him up.

Etcetera Etchings

Booking Bands Is Big Business

By DAVID DRIES

Don't get me wrong. I like working with student government in trying to book name orchestras. But—Vaughn Monroe was great, but some of his records came from Jacksonville.

Another point of argument is the booking agent. These fellows must have a heart some where. Hiring a band for $1,000 a thousand dollars a a drop in the bucket the university can afford, very few are in our price range.

Suppose we were lucky enough to book Ray Anthony, who may be the comer's better band in the bizzinas today. Some people (I don't like his music and I'm sure I'm not alone) say Ray Anthony's music is not available for dandapur or any date here, at present.

Recently one of the major reasons for a band's popularity was their theme song or mike-ercteras and their labels. COLUMBIA: Harry James, Les Elgin, Percy Kapsik, Dave Jurgens, Benny Goodman; VICTOR: Ralph Flanagan, Artie Shaw, Freddie Martin, Perry Finnegan, Wayne King; DECCA: Lawrence Welk, Teresa Brewer, Ralph Marterie, Richard Hayman, Xavier Cugat; MGM: LeRay Kaye, Jimmy Durante's Trio, Art Mooney, Blue Barron, Woody Herman; CORAL: Les Brown, Johnny Long, Neal Hefti, Ernie Rudy, Tex Beneke; DECCA: Guy Lombardo, Hal McIntyre, Fred Waring, Louis Armstrong. By Oliver, Dick Todd; CAPITOL: Ray Anthony, Duke Ellington, Johnny Mercer, Nelson Riddle, Jesse BELL: Dorsey Brothers, Larry Clinton.

VICTORIA ETCHINGS: Rick Hollister, whose "Hello, Little Hiawatha" should do as his title suggests in stretching to one a'yem if we Seminoles decide to hibernate.

Bob Troxer, WTAL's ace personality, is quite an actor with his Shakespeare Little Theatre . . . he has Dan Durrey a leading role in "The Little Foxes" coming up soon also.

Hal LeVay and Charles Alexander broadcast Lovola basketball over a New Orleans station on the PSU basketball network . . . Hey Hal, how's the Tiger? . . .

Ted Clevenger of the Radio Arts Dept. of Seminole is starring on a series of PSU dramas . . . nice work if you can get it. Everybody who took time out to audition for the Dramas at the beginning of the year should smile Monday's audition list. "The Crucible" a must on their list. Should be some other new-comers are being forward to with an eye toward polishing.

Sketches

People I Knew

By DICK VICTORY

It was dark inside the theater and Mr. and Mrs. Stanford sat most collided with people three times before they finally got down the aisle far enough for Mrs. Stanford. Her seats were not on the end, so they had to crawl by people sitting in three seats before they reached their own.

After they got seated Mrs. Stanford leaned over and whispered something in Mr. Stanford's ear but she got too close and it was not distinguishable. Mr. Stanford nodded in affirmation anyway.

There were some young boys on each side of the theater and they were sitting on some kind of war with popcorn boxes. They were tearing them up and throwing them. Occasionally hands across the beam of the projector and they looked like flying insects. Mrs. Stanford in front of a car's headlights before they hit the screen is a visual end on the front of the car. Mr. Stanford was fatally amused.

A little later Mrs. Stanford leaned over to say something again. This time she spoke loudly, and he could tell what she said, in fact, he didn't think anybody else could either.

That man in the seat in back of me. George. He keeps pushing with his feet.

He knew it was useless to try to buck her so he turned and sat back, trying to avoid his eyes. They looked at his wife, frowned and seemed to be surprised. He removed his feet and took the arm rest back at Mrs. Stanford's seat. But Mr. Stanford knew it was still going to be another bad night when two ladies a couple of seats away stopped talking and his wife told him. We have to move.

They did. Just in time to the screen. His wife mumbled something about having to ruin her eyes just because a couple of old hens come to the movie to gab. He nodded again though he hadn't heard.

The noise of the popcorn boxes were flying almost directly given head now arching over in gigantic unlikely fashion. Mr. Stanford wanted to reach high up there where they were flying and grab them and show them to the boys and say, See. I am one of you. But he didn't.

George, his wife was saying, that man in front of me won't be able to see for a minute. Will you do something?

Mr. Stanford heard, and as he began to sink slowly down in his seat he knew that when you are a man the good part of your life is behind the carefree part, the part that had you standing in the line of cannon fire, with your arms round your two best friends, the three of you singing your guts out in a last defiant song.

SD Day Is Less Than A Success

Now that Safe Driving Day has turned out to be something less than a complete success, perhaps the country is ready for "Safe Auto Day."

A letter from a friend recently appearing on this page alleged that the time had come to evaluate the responsibility of the automobile manufacturer for the frightful slaughter on our highways. The letter urged the production of "safe, sturdy reliable cars, rather than 'low, flashy, over-powered' ones."

Practically all of the 1955 models have been introduced to the public by now and there is no gainsaying that they are impressive in terms of color, chrome and power. But certainly, with an average of about five persons meeting death on our roads daily, it seems reasonable to inquire whether or not these new cars are as safe as modern medical and industrial research can make them.

Researchers at Cornell University, for example, have been hard at work staging crashes with an instrumented dummy using life-sized dummies and photographing what happens to them when the car comes to a violent halt. Chalk on these models further indicated the parts of the automobile's interior which they struck in a collision.

These studies have revealed, Harvard s a dangerous fallacy that safety belts, adequately padded dashboards and padded steering posts would reduce automobile injuries and fatalities.

In speaking to the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons recently Dr. H. E. Campbell prescribed four safety devices for automobiles capable of reducing injuries and deaths considerably. He stated that front seats should be so securely anchored to car frames as to be capable of withstanding a deceleration force of 20 times the force of gravity." and that the pressure sensitive instrument panel be made a "crash panel" with no more than four inches of affective padding.

Dr. Campbell additionally advised that car doors be secured with at least three bolts so that they would "not pop open upon impact" and that safety belts be provided for all seats. He estimated that these life-saving changes would cost manufacturers about $30 per car.

Certainly American car makers have not been indifferent to the importance of building safety factors into their products. Recessed knobs, better brakes, improved visibility, shatterproof glass have been added to automobiles in the past. But the mounting carnage as our roads is convincing evidence that much remains to be done.

While more careful driving habits, improved highways and the more thorough enforcement of traffic regulations can reduce accidents, the number of vehicles on our roads makes some crashes inevitable. Thus it would seem incumbent upon automobile manufacturers to view every car coming off the assembly line as though it may be involved in a crash, and to design it with that assumption in mind. Preoccupation with the design of hoods and tail lights should give way to a concern with the inside center and interior of the car, where after all, its occupants are.

Serious consideration should

(Continued on page 6)

The Florida Flambeau

BOB FOLSOM—Editor
Jay Roberton, Managing Editor

Asst. News Editors ..... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Feature Editor ..... Jim Joanos
Sports Editors ..... Jim Joanos, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ..... Bob Gunning, Alan Whitworth
Photographer ..... Dick Morris
..... Laird Anderson, Al Robbins

JOE CALDWELL—Bus. Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Coe
Distribution ..... Members of Alpha Psi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Copy Editors ..... Willie Smith
Pat Marston
Assistant Editor ..... David Dias
Art Consultant ..... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist ..... Con Horn
Junior Staff ..... George Goldsmith, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Revere, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield

Mory Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Advertising Staff ..... Frank Tillett

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17, N.Y.

The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

Two FSU Teams Will Compete In Sixth AAU Meet

By BOB GUTTING

At the 6th Annual Florida AAU meet tomorrow, Florida State University will be represented by two teams. One team will be the Univeristy Team, composed of the varsity squad, and the other will be the Gymkana Team, composed of members ineligible for collegiate competition, but eligible for AAU meets.

The Seminoles, entering the meet that they have consistently won since its installation on the campus in 1940, are heavily favored to retain their Florida AAU title.

Competing for FSU will be four outstanding gymnasts as Joe Holder, Jack Miles, Rafael Lecuona and Jamile Ashmore.

Jack Miles will defend the long horse, flying rings and calisthenics title he won last year. Two of these titles—the flying rings and long horse—Jack has held for two consecutive years.

Joe defending champs include Rafael Lecuona on side horse, Benny Wallace on rope, Don Ireland on trampoline. Don Holder in the all-around event, and Joe Taylor on still rings.

Taylor is also defending a title he was held for the past two years.

Last year's champs who will be on hand to defend their title will be Carmine Regna, who also holds the parallel and high bar title and Larry Weaver, who last year tied for first in the tumbling event with FSU's Dick Cutting.

Breakdown of both teams is as follows:

UNIV. TEAM	GYMKANA
Holder	Lecuona
Fedizza	Ashmore
Wallace	Rudo
Yaraha	Miles
Taylor	Sharpe
MacDonald	Pretsser
Hanks	Murray
Ireland	Hearn

Entering a Florida AAU meet for the first time for FSU will be freshman Bob Sharpe of Jacksonville, who turned in such a fine performance for the Seminoles in the first meet for the university at the recent gym clinic at Sarasota.

SD Day

(Continued from page 5)

be given to incorporating the results of the findings at Cornell and the suspension of Dr. Campbell in 1956 models. With automobiles now often traveling at the speed of early aircraft, safety belts—which have done so much to reduce air fatalities—should at least be offered as optional equipment to new car buyers. The present trend toward padding the dashboard should be accelerated so that amply cushioned dashboards may become standard for all cars.

It becomes clearer every day that the American motorist must be protected against himself. It would seem that the automobile manufacturer is in the best position to give such protection. Safety, not color and power, should be the outstanding feature of the 1956 American automobile.

—From Topics of the Times

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
A & Monroe St. Phone 3-1607

Expert Shoe Repairs
PALACE SHOE SHOP
established 1914

across from uptown Post Office

121 PARK AVE.

THE TALL AND THE SHORT—Pictured above are four members of the Florida State University basketball team. From left to right are 5-8 freshman guard Tommy Garcia, 6-7 senior forward Rick Benson, 6-8 sophomore center Bob Williams, and 5-10 junior guard Jimmy Oler. The Seminole cagers meet the University of Georgia here Saturday night. The game will be played in the New Domonstration School gymnasium.

High-Scoring FSU Quintet Returns To Home Court For Bulldog Game

By ALAN WHITMARSH

The Florida State cagers return to the friendly confines of a home court for the first time in five games tomorrow night, when they meet the University of Georgia Bulldogs at the Florida High gymnasium.

The varsity contest will be preceded by an opener between the Florida State "B" team and Jacksonville Junior College. The first game is scheduled to get underway at 6:45.

After having convincingly proved that they are definitely the team to beat in the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference (their conference record is now 5-0), the Seminoles leave conference competition for a couple of weeks, following up tomorrow night's clash with a trip to Spring Hill and Mississippi State next week, then returning home for an exhibition contest with Phillips "66" on January 28.

FSU has already met and defeated the Bulldogs once this year, doing so with a come-from-behind 87-87 triumph in the consolation round of the Gator Bowl tournament in Jacksonville.

Since then, both teams have been on the rampage. Hardly rated as a power, Georgia has surprised the Southeastern Conference with upset wins over Louisiana State and Tulane, and rushed to a surprising 3-1 record in conference play.

In addition to their Gator Bowl meeting, both teams have met one comin opponent this season, the University of Florida, and the games came out to the letter on point margins. FSU lost to the Gators, 82-79, while Georgia suffered their only conference defeat at the hands of Florida, 81-72.

For the year, the Bulldogs have a mediocre 4-5 mark but the important fact is that they have won their last three games in a row. With three wins in their last four games, the FSU cagers now possess a proud 6-2 slate for the season.

The most consistent high point man for Florida State this year has been steady guard Jim Oler. Oler has been in the double figures in nearly every contest this year, and alongs with his fellow guard Ham Wernke forms the nucleus of the Seminole scoring punch.

The stelar backboard work of 6-7 Rick Benson cannot be overemphasized in pointing to the team's 85.3 point-per-game average, however, and neither the work of Dick Artmeier, who has improved with every game.

Bobby Williams and Gary Weld have done good work in holding down the center position.

Top man in the Georgia attack is also a guard, Murphy McManus, who has averaged 21.5 points per game thus far this season. The other guard, Morris Dinwiddie is also a good scoring threat.

Captain Lamarr Potts holds down the center position, while Horace Knight, Allen Parrish and Billy Exley alternate at the two forward posts.

Rebels Dominate Dormitory League After Two Sports

The Rebels currently with a score of 300 after completion of basketball and volleyball lead the Dormitory Intramural League. In the Fraternity League Phi Delta Theta and Alpha Tau Omega are deadlocked for the top with 303 points apiece.

The fraternities have completed three sports, basketball, volleyball, and tennis.

Currently in the finals of dormitory competition in tennis singles are Senior Hall and the Penthouse Gang. Jack Mathis is the Senior Hall entry and his competitor is Joe Davis of the Penthouse.

Intramural touch football began last week. At press time in the fraternity league five squads had won both of their first encounters. These include Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Chi, Theta Chi, Alpha Tau Omega, and Phi Delta Theta. In the Dorm League because of rain, only one round of play has been accomplished with the Penthouse Gang, the Air Force, the Pirates, Methodist, and Magnolia Hall emerging victorious.

Overall Intramural Standings

Fraternity League	Pts.
Phi Delta Theta	303
Alpha Tau Omega	303
Sigma Nu	278
Theta Chi	258
Tau Epsilon Phi	243
Sigma Alpha Epsilon	238
Lambda Chi Alpha	216
Kappa Alpha	215
Delta Tau Delta	212
Sigma Phi Epsilon	205
Sigma Chi	185
Pi Kappa Alpha	165
Kappa Sigma	171
Phi Kappa Tau	155
Pi Kappa Phi	148

Dormitory League	Pts.
Rebels	300
Penthouse Gang	295
Baptist	208
Methodist	198
Pirates	193
Magnolia Hall	158
Senior Hall	150
Newman Club	138
Air Force	113
Lutheran Students	70

Touch Football Scores

Fraternity League

Jan. 6
SC	15	TEP 6
SPE	7	PKP 0
TC	7	LCA 0
ATO	21	PKT 0
DTD	13	KS 6
PDT	7	SAE 0
KA	TPD	SN 6TD

Jan. 11
DTD	20	TEP 0
PDT	25	KS 0
SAE	12	SAE 0
PKT	8	PKA 0
KA	8	KA 0
SPE	22	SPE 0
ATO	6	LCA 0

Dormitory League

Jan. 5
PH Gang	18	Rebels 6
Air Force	8	Baptist 0
Pirates	12	Senior Hall 6
Methodist	6	N'man Club 0
Mag. Hall	6	Lutherans 0

ALL AMERICAN — Ernie Stock is a main cog of Coach Bim Stults' 1955 swimming team.

Tank Star Preps

The Seminole tank men opened their current campaign last night in a dual meet in the Women's Gymnasium against the University of Georgia.

Dormitory League

Jan. 5
PH Gang	18	Rebels 6
Air Force	8	Baptist 0
Pirates	12	Senior Hall 6
Methodist	6	N'man Club 0
Mag. Hall	6	Lutherans 0

MUSIC FOR ALL OCCASIONS
The Raven Quintet
Dial 2-5454 Evenings
225 Flemming St.

Your Speedy Wee Wash It Laundry
New One Day Shirt Service
2 HOUR FLUFF DRY SERVICE
1 DAY DRY CLEANING SERVICE
629 W. Tenn. St.
Right Off College Campus

Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars with the greatest choice going of engines and drives! Look at all the ways you can go when you go Chevrolet!
You can have the new 162-h.p. V8—or you can take your pick of two new sweet-running 6's.
Then there's Super-Smooth Powerglide, new Overdrive (extra-cost options) and a new and finer Synchro-Mesh transmission.
Come in and see how much fun it is to drive the Motoramic Chevrolet of your choice.

6 exciting new ways to go!

NEW "TURBO-FIRE V8" WITH STANDARD TRANSMISSION
NEW "TURBO-FIRE V8" WITH OVERDRIVE
NEW "TURBO-FIRE V8" WITH POWERGLIDE
NEW "BLUE-FLAME 123" WITH STANDARD TRANSMISSION
NEW "BLUE-FLAME 123" WITH OVERDRIVE
NEW "BLUE-FLAME 136" WITH POWERGLIDE

Everything's new in the Motoramic Chevrolet
CHEVROLET
More than a new car...a new concept of low-cost motoring!
SEE YOUR CHEVROLET DEALER

LOOK! LOOK! LOOK! LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS?
For solution see paragraph below.

HOLE IN ONE
Leonard W. Bann
University of Kansas

PHOTO FINISH OF HORSE RACE
BY SLOW CAMERAMAN
John Dann
Bucknell University

PAINTBRUSH FOR PAINTING BAYSIDE POLE
Eugene Heller
Columbia University

FLY SWATTER DESIGNED TO GIVE FLY SPORTING CHANCE
Alan M. Barker
Pomona College

ALL-DAY RICKSHA FOR DIETERS
Judith Lee Midgley
American University

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

OBVIOUSLY, THE TITLE of the above Droodle is: 47 insectology students enjoying better-tasting Luckies while studying 3 -fireflies. All kinds of students are bugs about Luckies. Matter of fact, college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands—and by a wide margin—according to the latest and greatest of all college surveys. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

Better taste Luckies...
LUCKIES TASTE BETTER
CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

STUDENTS! EARN $25!
Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P.O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.
*Trade-MISLED. Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES

O.A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company — AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

Kappa Delta Pi, Education Society Taps 34 Members

Kappa Delta Pi, national education honorary, recently initiated thirty-four new members.

They are Charis Coulter, Patricia Cummins, Nancy Douglas, Tenho Hermanson, Katherine Murphy and Christine Palmer, Patricia Ann Miller, John Stanley, Winifred Alman and Neil Crapo.

Elvira Alvarez, Susan Baxmiller, Betty Beseke, Patricia Courier, Irene Cress, Mary Davis, Sylvia Earle, James Poppier, Bernice Fermo, Mary Freeman and Betty Farmer.

Patricia Jones, Bettye C. Kirkland, Harriet Love, Margaret Mallor, William Lee Proctor, Barbara Rudin, Corrie Simmons, Ann Southerland, Wand Stokes, Elizabeth Sapp, Iva Thornton and Howard Willson.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON ELECTS OFFICERS

The Florida Beta chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon announces its slate of Spring semester officers.

They are Joes Harris, President; Norman Shipler, Vice President; Joe Tarbuck, Recorder; David Medford, Correspondent; Gary Roth, Herald; Sonny Titus, Warden; Johnny Lunren, Chancellor; Bob Hudson, Pledge Trainer and Chaplain; Jerry Meyer, Critic; and Howard Andrews, Treasurer.

LIBRARY BOOKS DUE JANUARY 28

All students, including graduate students, must return library books on or before Wednesday, January 26. An additional charge of 25 cents per book will be made for each book not returned by this date.

Students are asked to check with the library to make sure their record is clear.

George E. Owen Speaks To Society On Ervin Duties

Mr George E Owen, Assistant Attorney General, spoke to the Tallahassee Chapter of the American Society for Public Administration at FSU Tuesday night.

He outlined the duties of the Attorney General and discribed the organization of the office. In charge of the Law Enforcement Division, he reviewed methods used by illegal race wire services to obtain racing results and displayed devices used by gamblers operating in this that had been seized in raids.

The FSU branch is the only chapter of the American Society for Public Administration in Florida.

Buy Classified Ads

KODAK Duaflex III FLASH OUTFIT

Ideal For Pictures at Night or Indoors

Outfit contains camara, flash unit, film and bulbs. Everything needed to take perfect flash snapshots every time.

$21.75 inc. Fed tax

Tallahassee Camera Center
122 N. MONROE ST. PHONE 2-8771

Senate Makes

From Page One

Student Senate feel that musical talent is irrespective of race and race of having no bearing on musical talent.

"AND WHEREAS the absence of any official university policy either for or against the hiring of Negro entertainers for campus-wide functions hampers the efforts of a group to obtain a top-rate band at this time.

"BE IT HEREBY RESOLVED that the Student Senate of the Florida State University recommend to Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of Florida State University, that an official policy be established to allow the services of Negro entertainers on this campus."

A copy of the resolution was given to Klonsky for inclusion with his request for permission to emcee Duke Ellington for the IFC weekend.

Armaments Race

From Page One

25 members instead of the Politburo's less than ten, so that the importance of each cootestant for power was lessened.

"There is no evidence of foul play, added the speaker, "but many foreigners could not help feeling that Stalin's associates certainly had a motive to hasten his departure into eternity."

Comparing Malenkov with Stalin, Dr. Mamatey considered him to be less powerful than the former dictator, who caused Russia to be "strewn with thousands of his statues and millions of his pictures, usually illuminated like Klans or saints."

Russia's "relative liberality" cited by Dr. Mamatey included its dealings with the Russia Orthodox Church, once brutally persecuted.

"The authorities respect the law on freedom of worship and have surprisingly allowed the reopening of many churches closed for decades and even provided funds for their restoration. The reason for this seemingly seems to be that the government does not regard the Russian Orthodox Church as politically dangerous any more."

In his lecture, Dr. Mamatey stressed that Russia is currently taking about re-existence because of domestic problems, the main ones being the struggle for power between Stalin's heirs and a severe crisis in Soviet civilian morals.

A DIVIDED PEOPLE

We are appalled when we realize that the most active opposition to integration thus far has come not from the deep South but from a state just down the river from Philadelphia.

The border states should be leading the way toward the desegregation of their schools. We are concerned that the citizens of Delaware, the best-known border state, should be hanging back now.

We are particularly distressed because from newspaper accounts it seems that students are not responsible for the boycott. It is the parents who are causing the trouble.

Perhaps the parents who keep their children from school—perhaps the members of the "National Association for the Advancement of White People"—have forgotten that their ancestors cast their lot with democracy on Dec. 7, 1787 by being that date, Delaware went down in history as the first state to ratify the Constitution of the United States.

It is indeed a sad commentary upon the people of Delaware that they, who were the first to ratify the letter of the Constitution, should be among the first to violate the spirit of it. —Connecticut Campus, (University of Conn., Storrs).

Miss Gymkana Is Runner-Up In Maid Of Cotton Contest

Faye Anthony, Florida State University's "Miss Gymkana," was named as first alternate in the 1955 Maid of Cotton contest January 4.

A Junior, she was chosen second to Miss De Lois Faulkner of Sallisaw, Oklahoma, from a field of 22 college beauties representing the southern states.

The 22 finalists in the contest represented 13 cotton belt states. Selection of the new Maid of Cotton was announced over a nationwide NBC radio network. Mrs. Elizabeth Maderia, fashion editor of Woman's Home Companion magazine, headed the seven-member judging committee.

Lawyer Replies

From Page One

him a better than average professor and that he was one of their favorites.

8. It was not denied that orders were sent down to "get him."

10. It was not denied that the cord who was used as a tool against Mr. Leathers was trying to make a deal and even cheated on her examinations in order to remain at FSU.

11. It was not denied that Mr. Leathers was following the FSU administration's specific and written instructions to the letter while counselling the cord with reference to her social problems.

12. It was not denied that a combination of blackmail and bribery was used to force the resignation of Mr. Leathers."

Dr. Doak S. Campbell declined yesterday to comment on the foregoing allesations issued by Moore.

"The Leathers case is closed, as far as I'm concerned," declared the FSU president.

ADD "HAZARDS" OF NIGHT DRIVING . . .

LOS ANGELES—ACP—Tinted automobile windshields can be a significant hazard to night driving, according to Heinz Haber, UCLA professor in transportation and traffic engineering.

Studies have indicated that tinted windshields reduce visibility at night as much as 45 percent, he said.

This is not only hazardous, under conditions of low brightness caused by poorly reflecting targets and backgrounds but it is also a problem for night drivers, he said.

Presently the one advantage of tinted windshields is the ability to absorb radiant heat on hot summer days.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA ELECTS OFFICERS

New officers for the comnin year were elected recently by the Zeta Rho Chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha.

The new officers are: Gordon Gaster, President; Wayne Patton, Vice President; Clarence Smith, Secretary; Jack Holmes, Treasurer; Fred Mansfield, Rush Chairman; Eddie Wycoff, Social Chairman; John Tuppin, Pledge Trainer; and Bill Pharris, Ritual Chairman.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
Today & Tomorrow
"GUN FURY"
Rock Hudson
Donna Reed
Sunday Thru Tuesday
'Gone With tha Wind'
Clark Gable
Vivien Leigh
Olivia deHavilland
Leslie Howard

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today & Tomorrow
"BENGAL BRIGADE"
Rock Hudson
Arlene Dahl
also
"Massacre Canyon"
Audrey Tatter
Sunday and Monday
"Gambler From Natchez"
Debra Paget
Dale Robertson

STATE
Today Thru Tuesday
"DEEP
IN MY HEART"
Jose Ferrer
Merle Oberon

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow
"ALL ASHORE"
Mickey Rooney
Dick Haymes
also
"Brave Warrior"
Jon Hall
Sunday and Monday
"Carnival Story"
Anne Baxter
Steve Cochran

Garrett Is Awarded Borden Scholarship

Martha Garrett, a senior in home economics, has been awarded the $300 Borden Home Economics Scholarship Award.

Given by the Borden Company Foundation, Inc., the award goes annually to a Senior student, majoring in home economics, who has completed two or more courses in food and nutrition, and has attained highest scholastic average eligible students.

The award was made at chapter meeting of Omicron held in Lonnmire Dr. Rose Cale, head of the FSU food and nutrition department, made presentation.

CASH

FOR YOUR USED BOOKS at MALONE'S BOOK STORE
107 South Copeland

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!
No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!
P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos! That's why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Bobbie Brooks
SPORTS FASHIONS
a dreamy tapestry print circular skirt
9.95
BOBBIE BROOKS NEW BLOUSES . . . 2.98 and 3.98
BOBBIE BROOKS captures a new world of fashion with the a stunning circular skirt deftly fashioned in a colorful tapestry print.
Wonderful colors . . . sizes 7 to 15
SPORTSWEAR—SECOND FLOOR
P. W. WILSON CO.
JUST RECEIVED . . .
NEW GANTNER
SWIM SUITS

Sports Car Fashions
by Cover Girl dress flats by PRIMA.
The New Law Open Look
Racy And Smart As
The Latest "Jag" Still
With The Steady Camfort
Of A Cadillac.
7.95
THE CIRCE
☆ Black Patent
☆ White Kid
☆ Pink Kid
☆ Turquoisa Kid
☆ Lilac Kid
7.95
Ours Alone
MILLER'S Cootery
College Ave.
THE NEW CONVERTIBLE
☆ Black Kid
☆ Navy Kid
☆ Red Kid
☆ Yellow Kid
☆ Pink Kid
☆ Turquoise Kid
☆ White Kid
☆ Black Suede
7.95
The strap on the Convertible can be removed for wear as a Pump, or turned over for Contrasting Two-Tone . . . The new Convertible is lower Heel, new last, with a new type lining and taped binding.

Students Donate To Blood Bank (See Story, P. 1)

The Florida Flambeau

Florida's Only Semi-Weekly College Paper

VOL. XL, NO. 25 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1955

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Committee Recommends Combined Representation Plan For Senate Action

235 Seniors Will Graduate On January 29

First 1955 Group To Receive Degrees; Cherrington Speaks

A group of approximately ... Seniors and Graduate ... will hear Dr. Ben ... ngton speak at ... ment exercises ... 29.

Dr. Cherrington, formerly di... the Social Science ... n and professor of In... Relations, will be ... speaker during the ... slated to begin at ... m.

New director of the Rocky Mountain Office of the Institute of International Education, he has been active in many national educational organizations.

... event will take place in ... Auditorium. Those ... are.

School of Nursing, BS in Nurs... Dorothy Ball Fancher, ... Virginia Ricks, Patricia ... Thomasson; BS in Nursing ... Ann A Furgione.

School of Business, BS—Wil... Avnes, Frances Elouise ... Hubert Emory Clayton, ... B Corbett, Jr., Jose... Fabian, Samuel Layton ... Robert P. Foley, John ... Howard and Bobby L ...

... Gilbert D. King, Irving ... Lafitte, Delma Algie Led... F DeWitt Miller, Jr., Hor... Rexford Wwen, Jr., George ... earn Jr., Beryle Ream ... Barbara Carol ... and Hubert Garland ...

... Veleska McW. Taxwood, ... M Tavinr, Jr., James ... William V. Telisak, ... Patrick Tromblay, James ... Charles E Van Mid... William M Watson, ... Thomas Williams, Jr., ... E Wilson, George Mc... Wood and Howard Dale ...

BA Robert Casteel Ford, Jr School of Journalism, BS—... Armour Cooksey and ... am Octavia Sawyer BA—... Lovellen Bishop and John ... Mathis.

School of Public Administration, BS—Bennett Thomas Eu... Vernon Eugene Greene, ... Richard Kelley and Ed... C Prince School of Social ... BS—William Lefoy Ar... Patricia Dare Browder, ... Victoria Coulter, Janet ... Hamrick, Charlie M. Har...

Also Steve Kalenich, Jr., Mar... Elizabeth Scott and Gloria ... Worthing. BA — Herbert ...

Library School, BA—Runjuan ... umhana, Alice Jean ... Alice Elizabeth Miller ... Helen Coleman Redcay.

School of Music, BA in Music ... on—Howard Harvey Aug... Edward Pendleton Birch, Carolyn Neil Bradshaw, ... Wilmer Carrin, William ... Holston, Robert Knox ... n, Jr. and Vic H Mic...

Also Grace Schatzman Smith, ... Jean Sommerkamp and ... Kirkland Williams BM ... Jane Byl and Carolyn ...

School of Home Economics, BS—Mary Louise Babcock, Laura ... Christian, Joy Elizabeth ... Margie Dillard, Evelyn ... Henley and Patricia ... James.

Also Janie Donna Johnson, ... A. Napoli, Virginia ... Sheldon and Myrtle ... Simpson.

School of Education, BS—Derel ... Philip H Alvers, Annie ... Benjamin, Frank Buk III; ... Dale Brown, Marjorie C. ... Ballard, Vivian Joyce Camp... Martha Almeta Chesnut and ... D Childers.

Also Dorothy Alma Cooke, ... Ellen Crews, Neil Shea ... Bobbie Sue Davis, Cary... Davis, Kalliope Economos, ... Jean Holm Evans and ... m Robert Evans.

Also Henry Earl Ferrell, Jua... D. Geary, Harold Vincent ... Velma Jones Graham, ... Malvern Hall, Shirley Ruth ... Mildred Jeanette Hatch, Elizabeth Ann Hayes, Charles H Hooper, Dorothy Ann John... Oscar J. Locklin and Anne ... Manee.

Also Ina Jean Marshall, Mar... P McCall, Beri McIntosh, Donald Lucius McMillan, Jr., ... Lynn McNab, Mary Eliza... McNatt, Evelyn Jones Mc... Rae, Oscar Ornpeza and Florence ... Ross, Hazel Katie Rowell, ... Pace.

Also Gladys R Parrish, Nan... Fae Price, Martha McAr... Ross, Hazel Katie Rowell, ... Schwarzman, Richard Dun... Slade Freddie Patricia Solo... Ann Phillips Southerland, Elizabeth Stacy Stasinos and ... Graddy Strong.

Also Spafford Craig Taylor, ... Elbert Thombleson, Bar... Ann Thompson, Stephen ... ence Walker, Benny Charles Wallace, Nelda Anne Whittle,

(Continued on Page 3)

Photography By Simmons

AND NOW, MILITARY QUEEN—Additional laurels are handed petite Marlies Geasler upon being crowned Queen of the Military Ball Friday. With her are, left, Nancy Warner and Nancy Harn, runner-ups.

Speakers Favor Basic College At Recent AAUP Meet Here

The establishment of a basic college program was favored at a recent meeting of the American Association of University Professors here.

Dr. Hugh Stickler, Director of Educational Research and Services and Dean Laurence R Campbell of the School of Journalism, spoke in support of such a program.

Dr. Gregg Phifer, associate professor of speech, chairman of the special program pointed out the importance of the topic of basic colleges, emphasizing that the program was arranged to provide information about the nature of basic colleges: what they have meant elsewhere, and the reasons for the University Study Committee's recommendation of such an institution.

Dr Stickler told of the 1950 FSU study of general education results. As a typical basic college he gave as an example the University of Minnesota, which provides for both general education and terminal education. It is a two-year institution, offering vocational courses. At the end, students with a "B" average could transfer to the university program.

Thus, anyone may enter college for two years, but only good students may enter the university.

Dr. Campbell, the next speaker, said he supported the recommendation of the committee that a basic college be established here within the framework of the university.

"The focal center of our effort is the student," he declared. "We should not fit the student to some preconceived administrative theory." He pointed out that the committee had recommended a terminal institution of two years, saying that 50 per cent of the FSU students leave at the end of the second year.

The advantages of the basic college which would grant a degree of some kind at the end of the two years and would be fitted to the needs of a certain number of students were listed as better curriculum developp-

(Continued on Page 2)

Student Party Plans To Hold Mid-Year Meet

Plans for a mid-year convention of the Student Party, to be held Wednesday, February 9, have been announced by Jimmy Joanos, party chairman.

In explaining the purpose of the mid-year convention, Joanos said that it was to hear the progress that was being made on the platform for the party's campaign and the proposed amendments to the constitution that are being formulated by a committee headed by Hans Tews. "If the amendment calling for election of officers at this mid-year convention passes, new officers of the party will also be elected at this time," Joanos added.

Committees working with Joanos on the convention are Graham Carothers, arrangements, and Mac Harden and Vern Williams, publicity.

Members of the Executive Committee of the Student Party are: Jimmy Joanos, chairman; Jean Carr secretary; Germaine Murray and Phoebe Jackson, sorority women; Edna Runnels and Gretchen Kerr, independent women, Graham Carothers and Mac Harden, fraternity men; and Ken Gallin and Vern Williams, independent men.

FLAMBEAU HAS JOBS OPEN

Students interested in working on The Florida Flambeau beginning in the Spring semester are requested to make application at the newspaper office, second floor Longmire Building, between February 4 and 11. Openings are available for reporters, feature writers, sportswriters, re-writers, headline writers, typists and on the advertising staff.

Price Reveals Reorganization Of 'Gymkana'

Student performers will in the future be responsible for the producing and planning of the annual Gymkana show.

Dr. Hartley Price, Gymkana director, said that the new procedure came in accordance with a complete revamping of the Gymkana organization.

The reorganization presently calls for plans to recruit more performers.

"You don't have to be an acrobat or a gymnast to be in Gymkana. There are numerous activities for girls in Gymkana including dancing acrobatics, adagio, public relations, secretarial work, managerships, art, properties, costume design and wardrobe planning," stated Dr. Price.

Dance classes are in progress for girls who want to learn or to brush up on what they already know. Students are also asked to work out specialty acts such as pantomimes, sketches and impersonations.

Among the other advantages to the new system is the fact that the gymnasts will now be free to practice and keep in shape for national competition, he explained.

All coeds interested in working on Gymkana were asked to report to the Women's Gym on Wednesday nights at 7:30 p.m.

Among the girls now at work are Gail Hicks, Gerry Lukner, Margaret Donaldson, Janice Eberly, Gail Byrd, Joyce Vasquez, Pat Mosely, Ruth Shuman, Vivian James, Mary Stewart Batton and Anita Anderson.

Layte Bowden, Jan Clark, Faye Anthony, Jean Haight, Barbara Rynski, Kathy Panos, Joan Bryan, Leslie Bauer, Sidney Burr, Mary Margaret Williams, Anita Wall, Barbara Vickers, Peeper Null, Mary Gallagher, Irene Hughes, Pat Wallace, Barbara Murray, and Judy McCoy.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

L. S 500 Exemption Examination will be administered Thursday February 3 at 5 p.m., Cockrell Building, Room 103, instead of February 1, as announced in Graduate Bulletin.

OFFICIAL LIBRARY HOURS

Library Hours—Exam Week End:

During Exam Week-end, January 21-24 (Friday-Monday) the library will have extended hours as follows:

January 21—Friday, 8:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.

January 22—Saturday, 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

January 23—Sunday, 2:00 p.m.-10:00 p.m.

January 24—Monday, 8:00 a.m.-11:00 p.m.

After 10:00 p.m. Friday and Monday, and after 5:00 p.m., Sunday, the reference, periodical and reserve rooms will be open for use as a study hall. Other divisions of the Library will close at the usual time.

Library Hours — Between semesters:

Friday, January 28 —8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Saturday, January 29 — 8:30 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Sunday, January 30—Closes.

Monday, January 31—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Tuesday, February 1 — 8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Wednesday, February 2—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Beginning Thursday, February 3, open regular hours 8:00 a.m.-10:00 p.m.

Men's Pajamas, Vitamins Head List Of Lost And Found Items

By STAFF WRITER

Such odd items as boys' pajamas, some vitamins, a shaving kit, toothbrush kits and horns can be found on the shelves of the lost and found department located in Longmire building.

Articles like belts, pipes, medicine, sweaters, and jackets all combine to make the shelves of the department resemble the odd assortment of an old-fashioned store.

And, like the old fashioned store, the department often holds its wide assortment of articles on its shelf for some time.

Miss Jane Adams, director of the Longmire building, who handles the lost and found department from her office, says that most of the things turned in to her are commonplace.

Probably the most valuable item ever turned in was a diamond ring. There was no trouble in locating its owner . . . she came rushing in to inquire about it only minutes after it had been received.

Many valuable and not-so-valuable items are never called for. At present there are two watches, a tennis racket, several raincoats, and jackets, umbrellas, and a large number of glasses among the unclaimed articles.

Wallets, keys, glasses, books, watches, and "oodles of scarves" make up a large percentage of the items handled by the department in a year's time.

The largest number of lost items are sent in from the student center and library. Occasionally batches come in from the cafeteria and gym.

Neither sex can call the other the most careless, according to Miss Adams, who points out that the number of people inquiring for lost articles is about evenly split among the men and women students.

Men students are generally seeking lost notebooks and text books. Women students most frequently seek sweaters and raincoats that are lost or strayed.

So far, Miss Adams says, she has had only two "live" lost articles. One was a three-year-old boy, who probably never realized he was a "lost item" and played happily in the lounge until his worried mother came for him.

The other live item was a large collie who spent his brief time in the department sleeping in front of Miss Adams' desk.

After a year's time, if the articles are not claimed they are offered for sale. If they do not sell, they are given to some welfare society where they can be used.

I-F Plans Laid By Committee In First Meet

Program Designed To Present Current Issues On Religion

Committees laying plans for the annual Intelligent Faith Week, to be held Feb. 20-23, met Sunday night in the Westminster House.

The names of speakers who have been secured so far was released. Among them will be Dr. James K. Mathews, Executive Secretary of the Division of World Missions of the Methodist Board of Missions; John William Hughes, orator and world traveler from Wales, Great Britain, currently a candidate for Parliament; Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, born in Latvia and a first-hand observer of the Communist Revolution of 1917; The Right Reverend Henry Irving Louttit, D.D., Bishop, Protestant Episcopal Diocese of South Florida.

The Rev. Russell A. Stevenson, secretary for the Near East of the Foreign Missions Department, National Council of Churches; Dr. Hunter Blakely, Secretary of Higher Education of Southern Presbyterian Assembly, and Dr. Richard Evens, pastor of the Labor Temple, N. Y., and recent visitor in Russia.

Dr. Sam Neel, university chaplain, commented that Miss Anne Queen, representative of the Society of Friends, or Quakers, who was an Intelligent Faith Week speaker last year, may return.

Intelligent Faith Week, which is designed to present the current issues concerning religion in the life of the college student, will begin on a Sunday, February 20, and last through Wednesday night, February 23.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, is honorary chairman. Co-chairmen are the Rev. Harcourt E. Walker Jr., Rose Hall; and Miss Joan Gothridge. Dick Moorer is vice-president, Jo Anne Setzer and Mrs. Jean Maynard of the chaplain's office are secretaries, and the Rev. Austin Holladay, the Rev. Richard Lehmann, and Ray Spears are treasurers.

On the executive committee are Miss Miriam Wilson, Dr. Neel, Miss Louise Woodford, Dick Moorer and Jo Ann Setzer.

Miss Setzer heads the program committee. Other committee chairmen are Harriet Lowe, Breakfast; Jimmy Joanos, Hospitality, Coyle Moore, Organized House Committee; Bob Crenshaw, Arrangement; Naomi Young, Book Display; Tom Simmons, Transportation; Evelyn Moll, Publicity; Betty Jean Nichols, Seminar, Jerry Jones, Worship; Sylvia Britt, Open Meeting; Carolyn Close, Mass Meeting, and Dr. Hugh Stickler, Faculty Luncheon.

Gift Tree Planted Next To Longmire By Oglesby, Martin

A cherry tree from Japan was recently planted on the Florida State University campus.

Dr. A. B. Martin, University vice president and Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students, supervised the ceremonies.

The tree, a gift of the International Christian University of Japan, was given as a token of appreciation for the $300 donation FSU sent from its campus chest fund.

The ceremonies were attended by representatives of the student organizations, administration and members of the International Students Club.

Dr. Sam Neel, university chaplain, gave an invocation. The University singers sang hymns.

The tree was planted in the small park between the Old Demonstration School and the Longmire Building.

'Susannah' Rehearsals Begin; Dr. Lynn Orr To Direct Musical

Drama Differs From Musical Comedy As Most Of The Entire Work Will Be Sung

By MARTY REEVES

Stage and orchestral rehearsals have begun on "Susannah," a musical drama written by Carlisle Floyd of the music faculty. It is scheduled for its premier performance February 24 at Florida State University.

Directed by Dr. Lynn Orr of drama area of the university and starring Mack Harrell of the Metropolitan Opera and Phyllis Curtin of the New York City opera, the drama is contemporary in setting and treatment.

Composer Floyd said that it deviates mainly from traditional operas in that less importance is given to arias as such and more to plot, characterization, and relevancy to plot.

The opera is not built around the singers as was sometimes done in earlier works, but rather the singers are made an integral part of the sets and stage action.

"There are no arias which do not arise naturally from the narrative and the singers do not move to the front of the stage without proper motivation," he added.

"Susannah" as musical drama differs from musical comedy such as the recent "Carousel" in several ways. Chief among these is that by its very nature its theme is more serious and also in the fact that almost the entire work is sung while in musical comedy spoken dialogue is interspersed with songs and chorus.

The idea for the two-act opera is based on the Apocryphal book of the same name with more stress put on certain moral issues which are not necessarily inherent in the original account.

"The most salient one, I feel," said Mr. Floyd, "is the omnipresent conflict between Puritanism (which at its most virulent has at its roots fear, tyranny, narrowness of spirit, and narrowness of spirit, and, perhaps most terrifying and grotesque of all, the projection of individual feelings of guilt to innocents which inevitably results in persecution) as opposed to the compassion, forbearance, and sympathy embodied in genuinely Christian teachings."

"Susannah" is not Mr Floyd's first experience in composing operas. He has written two others, both of which were produced at FSU and elsewhere.

Supporting players to the two leads are all university people, both students and faculty. Dean of the School of Music Karl

(Continued on Page 3)

Malloy, Greenfield Win Trophy In Agnes Scott Debate Tourney

By NORMA TRIPPODO

Florida State University's debate team, consisting of Margaret Malloy, junior, and Arnold Greenfield, freshman, won a trophy for the best affirmative team at the Agnes Scott Debate Tournament in Decatur, Georgia, last weekend, January 14-15.

The Agnes Scott Tournament was the first tournament and first intercollegiate debating experience for both debaters, although Greenfield has previously done high school debating at Coral Gables Senior High School. Their record was four wins and two losses.

Fred Roberts and Bruce Fletcher represented FSU on the negative side of the national collegiate question "Resolved that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist Government of China." Roberts and Fletcher broke even in the tournament, winning three out of six. Fred Roberts formed some fast friends for FSU with his wit, which was the talk of the tournament.

The best negative team trophy went to Howard College and second place to Tennessee Tech. Second place for the best affirmative team went to South Carolina, which won the best affirmative team trophy at the University of Florida Invitational Tournament. The Sweepstakes Trophy for the best all round team, affirmative and negative, went to Tennessee Tech.

The quality of the the debating was good throughout the tournament, according to Theodore Clevenger, Jr. who served as FSU coach and judge. Among the schools attending the tournament were Emory University, Howard College, University of Georgia, Georgia Tech, West Georgia, Tennessee Tech, Furman, FSU, University of South Carolina, Agnes Scott, and David Lipscomb.

Blood Donors Program Starts Next Semester

Students will have a chance to add to the Florida State blood bank's fund when the Blood Donation Program gets under way Friday, February 11.

Transportation will be provided every Friday morning for four weeks from 9 to 1 to take donors to the blood bank. Both students and faculty may participate, but to save time anyone planning to give blood should have a check-up at the infirmary the Friday before he plans to donate.

Committee chairmen, Graham Carothers, Mary Will Davis and Margaret Neller, spokesman, stressed that women under 21 and men under 21 and not in ROTC, must have written permission from their parents before they will be eligible. Those donating blood will receive a medical excuse for the remainder of the day.

OFFICIAL NOTICE

Any woman holding a valid Red Cross Water Safety Instructors card and desiring to work as a student assistant is asked to contact Miss Frances Hall in Room 106 of the Woman's Gym.

WHO'S THAT WITH THE SOMBRERO?—Shown are members of ATO fraternity taking time out for a picture during their annual Help Week project, when they painted and redecorated the Episcopal church in Lloyds, Fla.

System Would Elect Senators In Two 'Areas'

Sub-Group Suggests Class, Dormitories, Not By Precincts

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A system of combined dormitory and class representation in Student Government has been recommended to the Student Senate by the sub-committee on the Legislative Branch of the Special Committee to Study Student Government.

The sub-committee, composed of Vice-President Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn, recommended that senators be elected from classes and from dormitories, instead of solely from classes, as they are elected now.

The sub-committee turned down suggestions for plain precinct, or living area representation and for a bi-cameral, or two-house legislature.

In a ten-page, single-spaced report mailed to all members of the Senate and other interested parties the sub-committee related all proposals advanced to it for changing the present system of student representation, listing all advantages and disadvantages brought to its attention.

The sub-committee listed five factors which it said were considered by those who attended its hearings to be desirable for effective student body representation in the Senate: having each Senator represent approximately the same number of students; having as many men in Senate as women; having at least one Senator for each dormitory; having approximately equal class division in Senate, and having various interest groups represented.

The last factor, however, the sub-committee termed "incompatible with the first four."

"The primary and fundamental objective of the system of representation adopted," stated the report, "should be to provide every Senator with a definite group of students to whom he is responsible and answerable and that these students should be closely associated and acquainted with the Senator so that he will be aware of their problems and needs."

The sub-committee reported that the present system of class representation is unsatisfactory. "The majority of those appearing at the hearings," it said, "seemed to feel that the present method of electing senators (i.e. solely by classes) did not provide for the most effective possible representation.

Pointing out that each individual senator now represents a group consisting of between 650 and 1700 persons, the report declared, "The group that each senator represents is so large that it is practically impossible for a senator to be acquainted with each individual. In groups so large and diversified, communication between the senators and students they represent is considerably hampered and a senator can seldom be held responsible and answerable for his actions to the group he represents."

The sub-committee also noted that at present no senator resides in Bryan, Gilchrist, Landis or Florida halls, and that West Hall, with approximately 600 students, had no senator in residence until one was elected in the freshman elections this year.

Discussing the several proposed alternatives to the present system, the sub-committee dismissed a bi-cameral legislature as tending to create "A large, unwieldy legislative branch which would take considerable time to act on any measure because bills would have to be introduced and passed through each house to become official."

Examining the proposal for precinct representation which would have senators elected from various precincts on the basis of their place of residence and population of the precinct, the sub-committee agreed that the senators would be directly responsible to and familiar with the groups which elected them. "Interest in student government would probably be increased and possibly a larger number of students would vote in elections," commented the report.

Precinct representation as such was looked on as unfavorable, however, due to certain disadvantages.

(Continued on Page 4)

One Lecturer Amongst Mass Entertainment

After seeing that packed auditorium at Professor Mamatey's lecture on Russia last Wednesday night, we had high hopes that maybe things were changing around the campus.

Maybe most students didn't want all entertainment. Perhaps they wanted some knowledge from an individual who is an expert in his field. Perhaps they were curious to see what he had to say. Or perhaps this was even the start of a trend towards a thirst for some outstanding and knowledgeable figures to come to Florida State University and lecture. A trend that, we think, has long been missing among FSU students.

Instead of having the Artist Series loaded with musical events, perhaps if just one outstanding figure was slipped in as a lecturer, it would help this trend. After all, there are the numerous and often fine musical events put on by the School of Music (there have been two since this was written and published: the University Symphony performance and the Betty Jane Grimm recital), there are the professional-type plays produced by the Speech Department, there are the countless number of dances sponsored by all kinds of groups where local bands, combos and quartets play listenable music, and there are even the juke boxes at the eating places—just drop a nickel and your favorite jump number of the day swings on.

So among all this, the Wednesday lecture, we thought, might be starting a trend. We were going to rush right to those critics who say outstanding lecturers can't be brought to this campus because it's embarrassing to talk to an empty chair, and give them the word. But the following night, Thursday, Professor Ogburn was to talk on "Why We Had a McCarthy," so we decided to wait and get even more substantiation for this trend. Longmire auditorium was half filled, primarily with faculty.

Then we heard that the students who attended the Wednesday lecture were mostly history students and did so only to gain parallel reading credit.

There went our trend. We are now crawling back in the desk drawer, where a lot of FSU students really belong.

On Discrimination

Yesterday's Tampa Tribune carried a letter to the editor which revealed a very interesting philosophy, ignorant though it may be.

Deploring the recent incident in Eustis, in which a man was forced to take his wife and stepsons and leave town because of the boys' part-Indian ancestry, the letter writer declared, "Who do they think they are to give people orders to move out of town because they are Indians?

"Who do they think were the first Americans? My wife and I are both part Cherokee. I was born in South Carolina. She was born in North Carolina and we have never had anything like this happen to us.

"We do not feel that Negroes should be mixed with white children but what is wrong with the Indians?"

This letter writer, who signed his name W. C. Johnson, is partly right. Only partly. And he unwittingly illustrates how wrong he is when it comes to Negro segregation.

Indians are, it is true, the first Americans, and there is no more sordid chapter in our American history than that of the broken treaties, one-sided law enforcement and ruthless invasions which drove the Red Man out of his cherished homelands and forced him to brutal and bloody retaliation.

The condition in which this nation keeps its Indian wards today is also nothing to be proud of.

That is beside the point in the Eustis case. That family was chased out of town by a small mob because children of similar ancestry had been evicted from the Mt. Dora schools after Sheriff Willis McCall decided (or said he decided) that they looked as if they had Negro blood.

Yet Mr. Johnson, letter writer extraordinary, appears to condone this when it happens to Negroes, but oh, no, not when it happens to his own!

There is no difference between a Caucasion (pink-skin) and a Negro than between our same so-called "whites" and the Mongoloids, from whom the American Indians are extracted.

If Negroes, then, are to be excluded because they are not "white", should we not do the same to Indians ?

Mr. Johnson wouldn't like that. We wnuldn't, either.

There is no justification for segregation or any other form of discrimination based on race or religion. We are all human beings. We are all committed to the pursuit of happiness. We all believe in justice for ourselves and our families—many extend this pathetic token of humanity's ideals to those whose skins or hair or stature or religion is different from theirs.

Why cannot we all live together as men dedicated to the common goal of bettering our lot? Why must we destroy whatever we have wrought with the negative effect of irrational hatred?

And moreover, how can a man justify persecution of another group and not of his own?

Democrats Caught Working Inside The Democratic National Committee

The staff of the Democratic National Committee has been caught in the act. The offense is clear; the evidence is beyond dispute. It is now plain that committee operatives are guilty of circulating criticism of President Eisenhower.

Republican leaders have been quick to express shock at the deed. What makes the satire broader is that Democratic dignitaries on Capitol Hill appear equally horrified by the revelation that some of their brethren have dared to put such thoughts down on paper.

The facts in the case are incontestable. Last week Ike delivered his State-of-the-Union message to Congress. Democratic Congressional leaders, reflecting the mellow mood of Senate chieftain Lyndnn Jnhnson (D-Tex.), were almost uniformly fainthearted and weak-voiced in offering their comments. They seemed to be accepting Johnson's view that public disagreement with Dwight D. Eisenhower is not cricket, and very risky.

Some bolder spirits within the Democratic committee, however, were unable to contain themselves. They drafted a detailed analysis of what the President said—and failed to say—and asked some pointed questions. Samples:

Eisenhower boasted of the "improved and strengthened security system" fashioned by his Administration. Could he have been referring to the monstrous muddle and injustice unfolded in the Ladejinsky case?

The President asserted that "we must assist friendly nations whose own best efforts are still insufficient to provide the strength essential to the security of the free world." A noble generalization, but what ever happened to all the inspired reports of an inspirational "Marshall plan for Asia"?

Ike recommended "a firm program of 35,000 public housing units in each of the next two fiscal years." With a wicked gleam in their eyes, the committee analysts asked:

How much of a dent will the Ike program of 70,000 public housing units make in solving our housing problems, since the 1950 census showed that 15,000,000 homes were classified sub-standard and 7,000,000 urban homes either required replacement or lacked proper plumbing?

The memo included many similarly sharp inquiries. The question seemed fair enough, but such questions are not supposed to be asked these days. Even the committee fellows seemed a trifle nervous about their own daring; they marked the document "confidential." Nevertheless the material quickly fell into the hands of newspapermen, and soon it was making page one all over the place. For, after all, it is big news these days when Democrats publicly voice such reservations about Dwight Eisenhower.

The repercussions have been long and loud. The Republicans cry that bipartisanship has been betrayed; next, we suppose, Lyndon Johnson and his Southern Democratic cohorts will move to expose this infiltration of Democratic liberalism into the very mimeograph machines of the national committee, and to root out those trouble-making Democrats who have questioned the eternalness of the verities propounded by our Republican President.

— From The New York Post.

Did-Ja-Ever . . .
Listen to a Toastmaster toast?
When they boast in their toast,
I'm no longer engrossed.
—Don Rapp

"Now Run Along And Play"

A Better Measure

Better Relations

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

Last Wednesday a precedent was established on the Florida State Campus when the administration gave its okay to the Inter-Fraternity Council hiring of Duke Ellington and his band for the forthcoming IFC dance.

This new policy of having any big name band which is willing ta come to our campus shoald be applaaded. For such action will prove to be beneficial as well as enlightening to the student body and faculty alike. There is, however something of great significance connected with the hiring of the Duke Ellington band. That given a chance, twa Universities can and will work together in harmony toward goals that will benefit both

For a long time, Florida State University and Florida A&M University have crossed swords over student participation in viewing concerts and other entertainment. The last example being the Marion Anderson concert at Florida A&M.

The acquiring of Duke Ellington by the Inter-Fraternity Council came about because of the close cooperation given by IFC and A&M in getting together and solving the dilemma of raising enough money to pay Ellington. The result was that a Graduate Fraternity at A&M and the IFC decided to split the cost on a two night stand. It was also arranged for the "Duke" and his band to be housed on the A&M campus.

This action should prove once and for all that a better understanding between the two schools can and should exist. There is no reason why future events like this one can't happen again.

There also is no reason why a joint committee from both colleges cannot get together and work something oat where students could get tickets to the different concerts that occur an the two campuses.

Many FSU students would like to see and hear Count Basie or Louis Armstrong if and when they appear at A&M, and many A&M students would like to come to some of our concerts, like the Jazz Concert held last year or the forthcoming Dorsey Concert next month.

To this reporter the door has been open part way and Florida State, as a up-and-coming university of the South, should open it all the way.

At The Movies

'The Beautiful Animal'

"The Barefoot Contessa," starring Ava Gardner in the title role starts at the State Theater tomorrow aod will play tnrough next Tuesday.

Miss Gardner plays the role of a cabaret dancer out of the slums of Madrid who rises to dizzy heights as an international film star.

Featuring a new twist the movie begins in a graveyard at a burial. The occasion is Miss Gardner's funeral. Humphrey Bogart who plays the movie director is telling the life story of the actress. The scene then switches back to cover her life.

Miss Gardner, as the slum girl who rises through various strata of society, including movie stardom, to become the wife of an Italian nobleman takes her shoes off with great frequency throughout the film.

In the course of "The Barefoot Contessa" she takes off her shoes in such varied spots as a hotel room, an Italian palace, a Hollywood place and in the studio of a sculptor who is making a statute of her.

"The Barefoot Contessa," was writteo and directed by Joseph L. Mankiewicz, four-time Academy Award winner.

Other stars in the film are Edmund O'Brien, a press agent, Marius Goring, as an international overly rich sponger and pleasure seeker, Elizabeth Sellars as Bogart's girl friend, Rossano Braziet, as an Italian Count with whom Miss Gardner thinks she finds the love she's looking for

"Gone With The Wind" Margaret Mitchell's best selling novel, now in its third tour of the nation plays for the last time at the Florida today

"Carmen Jones' a musical starring Harry Belafonte and Dorothy Dandridge, with an all-Negro cast opens tomorrow at the Florida theater.

The movie is made from the play of the same name, with the music of the opera, "Carmen," by Georges Bizet The plots are almost identical, except that of "Carmen Jones" uses a modern setting modern events, and of course, Oscar Hammerstein's modern lyrics. Time magazine rated it as of the top ten 1954 movies.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"I thought perhaps you didn't know—there are three higher possible grades besides 'D' and 'F'."

The Dissenter

Student Representation Is Surveyed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

In considering the several proposals for changing the present system of Student Government representation, Student Senate will be hampered by three main misconceptions.

These are:

1. That it is important, even necessary, to have the several classes equally represented in Senate.

2. That Student Senate must begin operating immediately in the Fall, necessitating election of senators in the Spring.

3. That because certain fraternity and sorority groups might not get along amicably within precincts they can therefore not be zoned off as such.

Because of these fixed ideas the only suggestion a Senate sub-committee could come up with after weeks of exhaustive work is to have both class and dormitory representatives in Senate, on the theory that the day students and Greeks would dominate the class elections, as they have in the past.

The report represents progress, we must make no mistake of that. It is a departure from the present, completely ineffective system of representation, but its chances of being passed are slim, since it does not guarantee the Greek-letter societies or the day students equal representation. It provides for Spring elections in the precincts. These elections would, for the women, be among girls who wouldn't yet be living together. And, we may ask, isn't the whole purpose of precinct representation defeated when senators are chosen partly by people who won't be there to be represented the next year, as would be the case with the men's dorms.

It is unnecessary to have equal class representation in Senate. No issue, as far as I or any senator can remember, has been fought along class lines.

Ability is what counts—and if every Senator were a senior, it would be fine as long as he were the most competent person from his group.

Wouldn't it be silly if all the 20 to 30 year olds in Florida elected one representative to Congress, the 30 to 40 year olds another and so on? Age doesn't matter—interest does, and interests on campus aren't determined by class, but by environment.

Student Senate doesn't need to begin operating immediately in the Fall, either. There ... it is true, many matters ... pile up and need action ... they could easily wait for ... sake of better represent... for senators to be elected ... the Fall. Election campa... would not be widespread, co... ly or lengthy if confined ... dividual living areas. Sen... could be elected two weeks ... er school began — Freshm... are pretty well orientated ... that time.

An objection to dividing fraternity and sorority ... into precincts, which keeps ... precinct idea from bein... plied to them, is that ... sons would be chosen ... strongest houses within ... dividual precincts.

"The most qualified p... wouldn't be chosen" ... Granted. But are ... qualified always ch...

If there are any fra... and sororities which co... cooperate under a pre... system for the sake of be... government, that's their m... fortune We mustn't p... rest of the campus w...

Some false notions are ... that stand in the way of necessary change.

Amusements

Etcetera Etchings

By DAVID DREIS

The Academy Award presentation aired over audio and video networks last year was both the most interesting and the boringest spectacle ever presented. To begin with, the technical awards far outnumber the awards that the average movie goer cares about. Not only that, by the time the most important awards came around Walt Disney had copped six or seven oscars—I forget how many—and my eyes were just about closed

Donald O'Connor emceed the show in somewhat of a poor fashion. The unwritten rule of the Motion Picture Academy is to select the top movie comic of the year to handle the affair. O'Connor had poor taste in his introductions about Ann Blyth who was 'expecting' at the time; "Miss Ann Blyth and family." Ed Sullivan, himself a video emcee and a newspaper columnist, lambasted O'Connor for his comment and also for the fact that when the 'Best Actress' award was to be announced, he hesitated for a minute with, "You'd really like to know, wouldn't you?" O'Connor said Miss Blyth thought the joke was cute and he thought his jesting was part of his job of master-of-ceremonies. This year Bob Hope gets the nod as master-of-ceremonies and he will be a complete master I am sure

It's strange how fast a man can change Edmund Purdom, now considered by many as the biggest new player on the screen, is a disgusting character personally. His wife states that wheo he and she lived in dire poverty in London, he was the most wonderful husband a woman could ask for. Now that he's on top he is planning divorce proceedings. In the "Student Prince" he tried to coach Louis Calhern in his acting. Calhern came back with "only one director to a script, my boy." Last week's Saturday Evening Post tells about Hollywood's Impudent Newcomer." He says he is bringing to the screen the suaveoess of the late Leslie Howard. Aw!

The Military Ball last Friday night shouldn't bring too many complaint, for Les Elgart has a styling and a personality which endeared him to the crowd. His rendition of "It Ain't Necessarily So" is terrific More than Elgart, the crowd got an added pleasure in newcomer Don Farbes, whose singing style is similar but not copied from Frank Sinatra. The 24-year-old has only been with Elgart ... weeks. He was discovered ... hometown of Syracuse, New York, when Elgart played ... If this kid doesn't zoom ... own, which is a pretty ... guess, he'll go all the way ... Elgart.

Get out the sheets, men ... umbia Pictures announced ... cently that "The Wheel" w... be produced by Otto Preminger this year. It's the story of Ghandi, India's fighter for independence and a great leader. An ... dian from India, not Utah ... play Ghandi with a mixed ... ish and American cast. Co... bia's pouring plenty into ... film. Preminger is qualified ... do something like this. I'm g... to see it.

SURFACE NOISE: Ellington set for a late-afternoon con... before the IFC dance ... Hollister receives the award ... the only deejay in town to p... the Talking Record "The High and the Mighty" ruled out of Best Movie Song category be... cause it was used as a b... ground after the music had be... recorded ... Victor's Rec... Price cut '12" $3.98 ... brought other labels tumb... down . . . the 78's move up ... 98 cents, though and 45's re... main at 89

Reflections

Model Schedule To Avoid Confusion

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Students arise! Revolt! Take the university from the hands of the capitalist averlords!

The time has come to rid ourselves of the bounds of tyrannical control—we ask for the Student Senate's support. Once it has passed the Resolution below, we will be well on the road to success:

WHEREAS the practice of administering final exams has breached the point of decency, fair play and expediency, and

WHEREAS this malpractice is continued only through the combined talents of greed, avarice and ignorance, and

WHEREAS such conditions of intolerance are, in fact, communistic.

BE IT THEREFORE RESOLVED that the nniversity shall this semester forego the use of such torture methods (dating back to medieval times) which have caused antold suffering, mental anguish, etc., among varians persons in the student body. The resnlts of such actions as hava been urged shall be: to relieve the university as a whole from the blighted hand of fear and to cause peace once again to descend an the campas.

The above Resolution will bring into the open a movement which has been gaining strength the past week Students have been noticed standing around in small bunches, talking in low whispers about a Revolt. The aim is to have a showdown, once and for all, between the students and the state militia which would of course be called to uphold "order".

This brings to another point: Pre-registration will be held during final exam week this time to give students something to do for kicks. The plan asks that students take trial schedules to their counselors to be approved. This has caused much confusion, so, as a service to the student body, herewith is presented a model schedule.

(1) Political Silence 114—How to Win Friends and Influence People Introduction to campus political structure, how to be an independent in one easy lesson. MWF 8 a.m.

(2). Anthropology 335—The Study of Ants. Social status and social stratification Power, prestige and social opportunities of the upper middle and lower classes, etc. MWF 7 a.m.

(3.) Book Learning 839 (Formerly Education 439)—How to Read. Advanced instruction in comprehending the printed word. Prerequisite, Kindergarten 181. MWF Midnight.

(4) Shoe Shining 225—The Last Resort. Designed to meet requests for individual work by doctoral students. Alternates with Dish Washing 3... TThSun 4:06 p.m. to 8:34

Then there are the courses failed this semester which have to be taken over again. Which brings us back to the little groups of people standing around, muttering. Arise! Revolt!

The Lift File

On The Ways To Get A Raise

Cartoonists have bunches of fun with the stock situation of an employe standing before the boss' desk asking for a raise. But then cartoonists are free-lance people who don't have bosses and don't have to ask for raises.

As free-lances they have problems of their own which are not to be under-estimated, they do not have to work themselves up to a do-or-die state of mind with weeks of preparatory interior monologue and then suddenly one day when the time seems most propitious rise like wraiths from their desks to push themselves into the lion's den with no more weapon in hand than a tooth-indented pencil.

The housewife, college boy or other unsalaried observer might think of raise-asking as a simple economic proposition: the seller of his own labors asks a higher price than the current one for his goods; the purchaser makes his estimate of their worth against the going rates and delivers a reply.

Needless to say, it's more complicated than that. In the first place, asking for a raise is a one-sided struggle. There is a basic inequity in the drama which goes far beyond the fact that the beseecher is a subordinate and the beseeched is a boss. Every boss is an expert in the matter of raises. Meeting raise requests, either affirmatively or negatively, is standard executive equipment. He is not only brought to the test often, he also experiences extreme variety: gentle supplications, sly indirections, soul-stirring entreaties, businesslike expositions and brash threats.

Whereas the employee, who often lacks even a single confidant among his co-workers in the matter, is limited by the facts of his own case, the extent of his own interested perspective and the greater or lesser devices of his imagination. Oh, it's a one-sided affair, there is no doubt.

What are the frames of mind an employe establishes before making his pitch? Most often it probably is the simple, and to the employe seemingly undeniable, one of my-work-has-been-good-and-I-think-a-raise-would-be-in-order. Apart from the objective merit of the work and even apart from the boss' conception of it, if he is inclined to refuse the raise need only tell the employe that his work has been not so good at all. And unless the worker is doing a job like selling where the quality is numerically ascertainable, the struggle stops there.

Usually, of course, the boss is loath to apply this like-it-or-lump-it type of closer. Preferably he will admit a certain quality in the work but point out that a co-worker's labors have been perhaps superior and that he is not asking for a raise. This, too, tends to end it, since, foolishly or not, raise-seeking employes are not noted for pleading the causes of others along with their own. Since bosses, even the most generous and sympathetic must necessarily deny many raises and do it artfully, gambits like this prove invaluable.

Among the employe's gam-

(Continued on Page 4)

The Florida Flambeau

BOB FOLSOM—Editor

Asst. News Editors ... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Feature Editor ... Joyce Potter
Sports Editors ... Jim Joanos, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ... Bob Gutting, Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Photographer ... Laird Anderson, Al Robbins

JOE CALDWELL—Bus. Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager ... Irma Cox
Distribution ... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

JAY ROBERTSON, Managing Editor

Copy Editors ... Willie Smith, Pat Marston
Amusement Editor ... David Dreis
Art Consultant ... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist ... Con Horn
Junior Staff ... George Goldstein, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Advertising Staff ... Frank Tillett

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.

The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

FREESTYLING FREESTYLER ...Mike Tschirret, a sophomore letterman, will be handy when the FSU swimmers travel to Dallas, Jan. 31 to meet Southern Methodist, winners of the SW Conference title for the past two years. In their first meet the Seminoles easily trimmed Georgia, 62-22.

FSU "B" Team Loses 74-63 To Dolphins

Chuck Brendler, a 8-7 skyscraper center, paced the Jacksonville Junior College Dolphins to a 74-63 victory over FSU's 'B' team here Friday night. Brendler scored 29 points.

Brendler was the big gun from the beginning. Only two other Jacksonville players, J. W. Clory and Larry Strom, could get to double figures, both hitting for 11 points.

Tommy Gareis, who played the next night with the varsity against Georgia, led the Baby Seminoles with 18 points. Bob Ward had 12 and Darryll Mahoney got 11.

The Tribe trailed from the start, and was beaned at halftime, 37-29.

JAC			FSU "B"
	fg	ft	tp	fg	ft	tp
Gregory, f	4	1	9	Ward, f	5	2	12
Strom, f	4	3	11	Mahoney, f	5	1	11
Clory, c	5	1	11	Gareis, c	7	4	18
Brandeberg, g	1	2	4	Shuler, g	2	0	4
Garcia, g	3	3	9	Littlefield, g	1	0	2
Redd, g	0	3	3	Mahoney, g	0	1	1
McKerling, g	1	3	5	Thomas, g	1	1	3
Totals	18	22	74	Totals	26	11	63

Halftime score: Jacksonville J. C. 37, Florida State "B" 29.

HISTORIC HANDSHAKE?—Hal Schaus, (left) FSU's 1954 tennis captain and rated this year's top squadman, and youthful coach Keith Pitchford will be hoping to improve on last year's act record that included 13 victories in 18 outings. The team opens with Presbyterian College here March 14.

Tennis Squad Faces Tough 1955 Slate

Florida State University's tennis team will tackle the most formidable Seminole net schedule ever this Spring—a 16-match card including four Southeastern Conference teams and two from the Big Ten.

Athletic Director Howard Danford said the Seminoles coached by Keith Pitchford will meet Georgia Tech, and Ole Miss from the SEC, and Ohio State and Indiana from the Big Ten.

All of these teams will appear in Tallahassee.

A half dozen lettermen, headed by No. 1 squadman Hal "The Mouse" Schaus are back from last year's team that won 13 of 18 matches against blue-ribbon tennis competition.

Schaus, 5-10, 160-pound junior from Mansfield O. captained the Seminoles to 34 and figures to be the No. 1 singles player this season. Accordingly, in the recent Gator Bowl tennis tournament Schaus teams with senior Tom Cundy of Bellevue Ky., to give FSU one of the top doubles combinations in the Southeast.

FSU opens against Presbyterian College here March 14, then entertains Georgia, Georgia Tech Auburn, and Ohio State in a long home stand.

The schedule:

March 14—Presbyterian College at Tallahassee; 17—Georgia at Tallahassee; 18—Auburn at Tallahassee; 21—Ohio State at Tallahassee; 22—Presbyterian Navy at Tallahassee; 24—Georgia Tech at Tallahassee; 31—Florida Southern at Lakeland.

April 1—Rollins at Winter Park; 5—Clemson at DeLand; —Indiana at Tallahassee; 8—Mississippi at Tallahassee; 16—Emory at Tallahassee; 18—Auburn at Auburn; 19—Georgia Tech at Atlanta; 20—Emory at Atlanta.

May 7—Pensacola Navy at Pensacola.

FSU Tops Bulldogs In Court Fray, 90 - 81

Florida State University's basketball team had to appeal the pressure but three minutes of the time against Georgia as Saturday night in the new Florida High gymnasium, then shucked off and coasted the rest of the way, to win 90-81 before more than 12,000 fans.

It was the 10th straight home victory for the Seminoles and FSU's win in their last 29 games in Tallahassee.

The Florida State record now stands at 9-2, the best mid-season mark ever. The chasers are proud that the Tribe ran up an 11-game win streak before their last team.

FSU travels to Mobile on next Tuesday to meet Spring Hill and Loyola's in New Orleans Wednesday and Thursday.

Before it was over, Kennedy sent a steady stream of subs into the game, allowing Georgia to trim a one-time 25-point FSU advantage to the final nine points.

Otis and Ram Wernke FSU's premier guard combination combined their assault on the basket. Otis scoring mostly on one-hand push shots from far outside as was the center's habit several years. He finished with 26 points, 18 of them coming in the first half. Wernke rounded in 25 points, 11 of them in the last period.

GEORGIA	FG	FT	PF	TP
Hall, f	4	2	4	10
Hunt, f	1	0	1	2
Bowen, f	2	0	3	4
Sumner, f	1	0	2	2
Bell, c	3	0	3	6
Brewbaker, c	0	0	0	0
Mathews, c	1	3	1	5
Hall, g	2	0	2	4
TOTALS	14	5	16	33
FLORIDA STATE	FG	FT	PF	TP
Kennedy, f	1	3	4	5
Otis, f	9	0	3	18
Bennett, f	0	0	0	0
Wernke, c	11	3	3	25
Williams, c	1	0	0	2
Wernke, g	2	1	2	5
Mahoney, g	1	0	1	2
Ward, g	4	0	2	8
Gareis, g	2	0	1	4
Shuler, g	0	0	0	0
Littlefield, g	0	0	0	0
TOTALS	31	14	24	90

Florida State 51 (Otis 18, Wernke 11, Ward 8, Kennedy 5, Gareis 4, Williams 2, Mahoney 1, Shuler 1, Littlefield 1). Georgia—Hall 10, Hunt 2, Bowen 4, Sumner 1, Bell 6, Mathews 5, Hall 4, Brewbaker 1. Referees—Hinton, Wood. Umpire—Kennedy.

Susannah'

(Continued from Page 1)

...ember will attend the Fla. State Symphony and ...hoir before will act as chaperones.

...he production of "Susannah" ...nounced by the Tallahassee ...e League as part of the ...rida State Symphony concert ...

Speakers Favor

(Continued from Page 1)

...ed general education ...ing the numbers of stu... quit the university ... the professors ... it is would be better ...ing and remedial ... would be improved, and ...rents would be relieved of ...ense of an academic nature.

If FSU had a static enrollment there would be little problem in connection with the size of the library as well as the teacher-student ratio, he maintained. Dr. Campbell added "but in a decade we will be twice as many students."

Vocational Office Announces More Job Opportunities

Representatives of E. I. Du Pont, Gulf Oil and White Sands Proving Ground will be at the Vocational Office of Guidance and Placement Wednesday to interview Seniors and Graduate Students.

Mr. John Shanks of Dupont and Mr. Donald W. Autry of White Sands will interview students for jobs as chemists, but Mr. Carter is also interested in engineers, mathematicians and physicists.

U. S. Aud. Agency representative, Mr. John L. Shafer, will be in the Placement Office January 20 and 21, to interview Seniors and Graduate Students for accountant position. A group meeting will be held the first day and interviews the second.

Students interested in obtaining interviews should contact Mrs. Fay Farmer at the Placement Office at 203 Westcott, extension 5281.

Time Moved Up On Dorm Meetings For Dorsey Concert

Women's house meeting for Thursday night, Feb. 10 has been moved up to 10:15 p. m. for the Dean of Women's office announced yesterday.

This will enable women students to hear the last performance of the Dorsey Brothers on that night, and not be tardy for the dormitory meetings.

The celebrated Dorsey aggregation will give two concerts in Wescott auditorium at 8:30 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. Feb. 10. Tickets are still on sale in Westcott beside Tab and from the student activity book may be exchanged for a ticket, along with an additional price of $.50.

Ticket sale were moving "real fast" and it doesn't look like there will be any left for the faculty or students at Florida" spokesman said. Those patrons however, who have been seeking tickets may be able to buy tickets to this performance, reminded the spokesman.

Gymkana Team Successfully Defends Florida AAU Title

By BOB GUTTING

The Florida State Gymkana team defended the FSU varsity gym squad Saturday night to successfully defend the Florida AAU title they have held for five years. It is also the 22nd team title won by the Seminoles.

There were no outside entries, so Dr. Hartley Price split the gymnasts into two groups, one composed of NCAA-eligible gymnasts and the other made up of those eligible only for AAU competition.

With Cuban Olympic star Rafael Lecunza and Jack Miles leading the way, the Gymkana team had little trouble with the regular NCAA crew.

Lecunza and Miles finished one-two in the all-around competition, with FSU's Joe Taylor, who placed third. This event was won last year by Don Holder who did not defend the title this year. Don is still taking it easy after a back injury knocked him temporarily out of competition on December, entered only three of the events.

Jamile Ashmore took the calisthenics title held last year by Miles and the tumbling title that was not defended by last year's co-winner, Dick Gump.

Miles has retained his long horse and flying rings titles for the third straight year, beating out Ashmore and Taylor. Taylor, however, successfully defended his still rings championship, also for the third straight year.

Olympic ace Holder edged out Lecunza to take the side horse championship and also won the parallel bar event, to take two firsts of the three events he entered. Don also placed second on still rings.

In the rope climbing event two newcomers to the team, Laird Anderson and Jimmy Hanks, took the first two places in sport last year's winner Benny Wallace.

In the last event, trampoline, last year's winner Dick Leland was edged out by Jon Fadman in a rerun of last year's event competition. These two boys have been competing against each other with varying results for over three years.

Long horse: 1 Jack Miles, (G); 2 Jamile Ashmore, (G); Benny Wallace (FSU), tie.

Calisthenics: 1 Ashmore (G); 2 Miles (G); 3 Rafael Lecunza (G).

Side horse: 1 Don Holder (FSU); 2 Lecunza (G); 3 Miles (G).

Rope climb: 1 Laird Anderson (G); 2 Jimmy Hanks (FSU); 3 Wallace (FSU), tie.

Horizontal bar: 1 Lecunza (G); 2 Miles (G); 3 Bob Sharpe (G).

Parallel bar: 1 Holder (FSU); 2, Lecunza (G); 3 Miles (G).

Still rings: 1 Joe Taylor (FSU); 2 Holder (FSU); 3 Ashmore (G).

Tumbling: 1 Ashmore (G); 2 Al Ross (G); 3 Miles (G).

Flying rings: 1 Miles (G); 2 Taylor (FSU); 3 Jack Tatum (FSU).

Trampoline: 1 Jon Fadman (FSU); 2 Dick Ireland (FSU); Don Prentiser (G).

All-around: 1 Lecunza (G); 2 Miles (G); 3 Taylor (FSU).

235 Seniors

(Continued from Page 1)

Faye Allen, Williams, Helen Jane Williams, Janice Sandusky Williams and Richard Allen Williams.

BA —Elvina Alvarez, James Austin Jone, Patricia May O'Brien and Loretta Ann Woods.

College of Arts and Sciences, BS—Lewis Roscoe Aiken, Jr., Charles Harold Ash, Jr., Anita Richardson Ayres, Barbara Jean Baldwin, George E. Benedict, Jr., Margaret E. Bray, George Wilmot Brown, Jr., and John Knox Brown.

Also Robert Carr Cobb, Jr., George Thomas Crichton, Walter I. Dolan, Sylvia Alice Eagle, James Franklin Enyeart, Clarence Beverly Grantham, Rosalesa G. Laffitte, Jr., Herbert Russell Martin, Jr. and Frances Patricia Mayo.

Also James Lee McKeown, Carolyn Frank Moore, Charles Paul Nelson, Wilson B Reynolds, Jr., Susan Gould Risher, Harry Edward Senske, Ramon M Simmons and Norman Joseph Smith.

Also Alan Carl Sundberg, Sandra Ann Tyler Cum Laude, Ruth Elin Ward, Kenneth R Williams and Willian Anton Wisner, Jr.

BA—Franklin Adams, Joanne Cusack Crane, Vincent Y. Cremata, Jr., Michael Desmond Doran Cum Laude, Sandra Louise Fisher, James Mitchell Kirby and Geraldine Ortiz.

Also Helen Salace-Dolmatyl, Hildeard Wagner, Blanche Johanna Weedon and Barbara Ruth Williams.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

MME — Thaddeus Stowe Grimes, Jr.

MM—Elizabeth Josephine Armstrong.

MS — Marvin Lewis Amish, Richard Clancy, Bruce Dupart, Frederick C. Eckmann, Allie Elizabeth Ferguson, William Gerald Fretch, Hoover Curtis Gentry and Howard Harvey Hanks, Jr.

Also John Benjamin Herndon, Patti Greer Hill, Beverly Myers Holland, Marelle Vincent Jeter, Ray Glenn Jones, Jr., John Blythe MacQuiddy and Richard S Malone

Also Claudet Calhoun Matheny, Annie Douglas Neel, William Dean Reese, Wendell L. Roberts, Josephine Paula Rochrer, Robert Lee Rowlett, Carl Edwin Rude and Joanna Rogers Ryan.

Also Jesse James Shiver Jr., Jesse William Smith, Jr., Ratana Suddharatt, Lloyd W. Tourville, Gertrude Evans Van Cleef and Eleanor Westervelt.

MA — Nevyle Powell Beadal, Ruth Ann Anita Lisette Kast, John Stroop Newberry, Jr., Peggy Marie Sutor, Clara Stringfellow Thompson, Lillian Troesel Urschel and Hiram A. Whitton, MSW—Verona Wiser Krumb and Jeanne Strickland.

EdD—Jane Elizabeth Guinnane

PhD—Calvin Buell Acer, Benjamin Joy Berkowitz, William Gerald Dugan, William D Ament, L. L. Dolphin, Irving Y. Fishman, Frederick M Hornyak and Thord Mason Marshall.

Steyerman's That's my store!!

say the college Girls

Carlye Dresses
Haymaker Sportswear
Jantzen Shorts, Sweaters and Bathing Suits

Steyerman's
THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR QUALITY

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

A GUIDE FOR THE DATELESS

While the cost of dating rising higher and higher seems the pleasure that costs the same these days is Philip Morris, and no wonder that so many of us men are turning to discus throwing. Naturally, we would prefer nuzzling warm coeds to flinging cold discs, but who's got that kind of money? Prices being what they are, the average man today has a simple choice: eating or eating.

Unless the average man happens to be Finster Sigafoos.

Let me tell you how Finster Sigafoos, a man no smarter, no richer, than you or I, solved his dating problem. Finster came to college with the normal ambition of any average man: he wanted to find the prettiest coed on campus and make her his. He looked long and carefully, and at last he found her—a tall, statuesque Kretchma Inkip, with hair like Golden Gate. He asked her for a date. She accepted. He appeared at her sorority house that night, smiling, eager, and carrying a bouquet of modestly priced flowers.

"Now then," said Kretchma, tossing the sleazy flora to a passing, "where are we going tonight?"

Finster was a man short on cash, but long on ideas. He had considered several attractive plans for this evening. "How would you like to go out to the Ag campus and see the milking machine?" he asked.

"No," she replied.

"Well then, how about running over to the dental school to feel with the drills?"

"Bah," she replied.

"Well, what would you like to do?" he asked.

"Come," said she, "to a fuony little place I know just outside of town."

And away they went.

The place was Millionaires Roost, a simple country inn made of solid ivory. It was filled with beautiful ladies in backless gowns, handsome men in dickeys. Waiters scurried about bearing really rain on flaming swords. Original Rembrandts adorned the walls. Philip Morris trays adorned the cigarette girls.

Escorted to each table was a gypsy violinist.

Finster and Kretchma were seated. "I," said Kretchma to the waiter, "will start with shrimps remoulade. Then I will have lobster and capon in madeira sauce with asparagus spears. For dessert I will have loads of out-of-season fruit."

"And you, Sir?" said the waiter to Finster.

"Just bring me a pack of Philip Morris," replied Finster, "for if ever a man needed the soothing, steadying, beneficent aromas of mild vintage tobaccos, it is me now."

By smoking the best of all possible cigarettes, Finster watched Kretchma ingest her meal and calculated that every time her fortune young adam's apple rose and fell, he was out another fin. Then he took her home.

It was while saying goodnight that Finster got his brilliant idea. "Listen," he cried excitedly, "I just had a wonderful notion. Next time we go out, let's go Dutch treat!"

By way of reply, Kretchma slashed him across the face with her house mother and stormed into the house.

"Well, the heck with her," said Finster to himself. "She is just a gold digger and I am well rid of her. I am sure there are many girls just as beautiful as Kretchma who will understand the justice of my position. For after all, girls get as much money from home as most, so what could be more fair than sharing expenses on a date?"

With good heart and high hopes, Finster began a search for a girl who would appreciate the equity of Dutch treat, and you will be pleased to hear that he soon found one.

Today Finster goes everywhere and shares expenses fifty-fifty with Mary Alice Hootenanny, a lovely three legged girl with sideburns.

©Max Shulman, 1955

This column is brought to you for your enjoyment by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS. And speaking of enjoyment, try a pack today.

WANT TO RENT

Two and three bedroom, furnished houses for legislative session beginning April 1. Good rental price by responsible person

TELEPHONE 2-0230 OR WRITE
P. O. BOX 549, TALLAHASSEE

OWNED AND OPERATED BY FRANK AND JOHN CHASE

Skyline Restaurant

U.S. HIGHWAYS 90 AND 27
1 MILE WEST OF CITY LIMITS
TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA
Telephone 2-9144
"Serving Good Food For Fine People"

College smokers are sure going for Winston!

FINER FILTER!

WINSTON

the filter cigarette that really tastes like a cigarette!

■ No wonder Winston's so popular with college smokers! It's got real flavor—full, rich flavor you'll really enjoy. Winston tastes good—like a cigarette should!

Along with finer flavor, Winston also brings you a finer filter. The exclusive Winston filter works so effectively, yet doesn't "thin" the taste or flatten the flavor. Winston lets you draw smoothly, easily—there's no effort to puff!

Try Winston, the filter cigarette that tastes good—like a cigarette should!

Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Bus Driver Surveys Campus Needs, Changes, Happenings

By MARY LIZ KING

"There should be a schedule board at the bus stop for students and faculty to see when the buses leave, the number of the bus, and where it is headed," campus bus driver Arthur Aday commented during an interview last week.

"Everyday, every trip, four or five students ask if this is the West or East campus bus," he continued.

Aday's route saw 336 students each day with his cheery smile. His shift is from 7 to 2, with eight trips to West Campus. He has been on the job for eight years and previously drove a truck for the City.

When asked if he had more troubles and questions from boys or girls, he related how a few years ago some of the 'GI boys drank right smart at the main driving. Now it is just like a family going to school. We don't have any trouble but get along peacefully."

The only two times he has taken students to the infirmary were when a boy had "some sort of a spasm" and Aday took him to the hospital, and also when a girl knee cap was hurt. Two policemen picked her up at the airstrip and took her to the infirmary by bus.

Like the other drivers, Aday receives nearly 200 Christmas cards from students. "I like my work pretty good," he stated. After he obtained the job, he rarely had to check with the "boss," whom he feels is a very good boss. "If I know the schedule, I just go to work."

There is no lunch hour provided for bus drivers because there is not time. They must bring their lunch or grab a sandwich in their five minute breaks at the end of each trip.

This year when he took a trip to his home in West Palm Beach, he met many students who had recently graduated. "Lots of students come back and look me up when they're traveling through Tallahassee."

Three buses are running on campus, one to West Hall, and two in West Campus. After 3 o'clock, only one bus goes to West Campus, and the last bus runs at 11 p.m.

Aday sometimes drives for field trips to Rain Field taking ROTC boys for flying experience.

He recalled that many of the West Campus students miss the "O" club, a building on the order of the Student Center, which burned down last year.

There was also a bowling alley and mess hall on West Campus, he remembered, but they were closed several years ago.

"I get tickets the same as other cars if I make a mistake in parking," he says.

On The Ways

(Continued From Page 2)

bits, one of the noblest demands asking for nothing. Like a clever diplomat he makes an appraisal of his power or real worth and his boss's willingness and ability to pay for it. Then he quietly lines up another job which provides the salary he seeks. Finally, in the friendliest fashion, he announces the attractive offer in his boss and waits.

Thus, of course, is a dangerous game for the man who does not want to change jobs. He must have driven the line at the proper point or else the boss is apt to conratulate him on his good fortune and express sorrow at his forthcoming departure from the firm. It might be mentioned that employes have known to fabricate "other jobs," a stratagem which passes from the realm of gamble to gamble of similar appeal to the devotee of hub adventure is the moneymore-or-I-go technique which, if it does bear pecuniary fruit, rarely sprouts the blossoms of goodwill.

But certainly the most satisfying approach of all is the simple question or elucidation, "Can I have a raise?" and the simple rejoiner, "O. K. how much?"

—From Topics of the Times

Herblock On The School Problem

"Yeah, Uh Huh, Sounds Fine ——"

"It Breaks My Heart To See Those Sad Little Tykes"

Senate Committee Recommends

(Continued from Page 1)

Students living in one dormitory in the Spring will "frequently" be assigned to other dormitories for the next year, said the sub committee. This would mean that a Senator elected from one group would represent another the next school year.

Although the problem could be eliminated by holding the elections in the Fall and incumbent senators could serve until such time as a new body be chosen, the sub-committee said that Senate should begin its work immediately in the Fall and begin it with the senators who are to serve all year.

The report said that freshman women might be at a disadvantage if elections were held in the Spring among girls assigned to the respective dormitories, in that they would be competing for offices along with girls who had lived together for some time. The sub-committee related that upon held that although several meetings could be held and residence halls furnished to candidates, "it would be unwise to eliminate representation by class entirely and select ALL of the women's senators from precinct."

The sub-committee thought that the men's dormitories, whose membership is said to "more stable from year to year," could elect representatives in the Spring with little trouble.

The sub-committee felt that fraternity, sorority and day student representation would not be aided by a precinct system.

"It would be impossible to have a Senator living in every fraternity and sorority house, and the living quarters of day students are so widely scattered that election of Senators from the day student group itself would not assure that day student Senators would be any better acquainted with the students they represent than under the present system," declared the report.

The sub-committee conjectured that fraternities and sororities within a precinct might rotate the Senatorship from one house to another, thereby denying opportunity to the most qualified candidates.

"Some will contend, however, that capability at senators might be sacrificed if representation were improved," they pointed out.

"The system might result in the loss of capable individuals as senators. For example," noted the report, "in some cases where two highly capable senatorial prospects lived in the same precinct only one could be elected. Whereas, in the open election both qualified individuals could be selected. Again, the idea of according capability for improved representation might be injected.

Other objections listed were possible unequal class representation, "although . . . some expressed the opinion that representation by classes is of no significance." The complications of administering a multitude of precinct elections, and the inability at times of Senators to run for office unless against her freshmen in the Fall.

"Practically all of those present for the hearings expressed the opinion that the present system of Senate representation should be changed," emphasized the sub-committee. However the majority, including dormitory presidents and governors, were opposed to a precinct system due to the aforementioned disadvantages. Majority opinion favored the following method of electing senators which is a combination of representation by dormitories and the present system of representation by classes:

The sub-committee outlined a Combination System Senators would be elected:

Two men and two women each from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Classes, elected in the Spring;

Three men from Freshman Class, elected in the Fall.

One Senator each from Gilchrist, Lantis, Florida and Cawthon, elected in the Spring by those having reserved rooms for the next year;

One Senator from Magnolia and Senior Halls, and two from West Hall, to be elected in Spring by present residents;

One Senator each from Jennie Murphree, Reynolds and Bryan-Broward combined, to be elected by those dorms at the time of freshman elections, any freshmen living in Gilchrist to vote with Bryan-Broward group.

"Senators representing dormitories must live in the dormitory they represent during the year for which they were elected," stipulated the outline

After detailing the elections procedure the report stated, "Students would, of course, be eligible to run for the Senate as a representative from their class regardless of their place of residence."

The plan, the committee said, would provide for approximately equal men-women representation.

Symphony Gives First Performance In New Auditorium

The Florida State University Symphony opened its 28th season on the new Westcott Auditorium last night.

Robert Bedore conducted the 72-piece orchestra which rendered selections from Brahms to Wagner. The concert marked the first program of the kind to be open to the general public.

It was also the first student production to perform in the Auditorium since it was rebuilt and inaugurated earlier this year. The symphony orchestra's opening number of Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D major was reportedly a premier for the university.

The orchestra performed Rachmaninoff's "Isle of the Dead." a Florida premier, after a short intermission.

The program which lasted only a short hour and a quarter, ended with the strains of Wagner's prelude to the third act of Lohengrin.

Graduate student Thomas Stone was concert master.

Conductor Bedore, now in his eighth year in that capacity, earlier reported that his group was "worthy" of the new auditorium. He said that the present orchestra is larger and heavier in strings than any in the past.

every dormitory except the two smallest would have at least one senator each, each class would have approximately equal representation and each senator would represent about the same number of students.

The proposal, significantly, does not provide for day student and fraternity-sorority representation as such. It points out, however, that the Greeks and day students are usually much better represented in Senate than those living in dormitories.

At present, all but three Senators are members of fraternities and sororities and five are day students.

Majority opinion of those appearing before the subcommittee," it said, was that it would be unwise to attempt to divide the campus into groups that problems before the Senate were problems of the student body as a whole—independents, fraternities, sororities and day students alike —and that further complicating the system by adding additional precincts of this nature would be unwise. Adoption of the combination proposal would in no way affect the representation of day students, fraternities and sororities."

Actually, if precedent holds true, the fifteen senators to be elected from the classes would, in the majority, be Greeks, and would outnumber the dormitory representatives.

Lengthy and probably heated discussions on the matter are expected to occupy Senate during the second semester. Observers foresee opposition largely on the lack of guaranteed Greek representation

14-Man Rifle Team Competes In Third Army Rifle Matche

The fourteen-man ROTC rifle team of Florida State University is competing in the Third Army Intercollegiate ROTC Rifle Match this month.

Each Monday and Tuesday the team, coached by Sgt. Hubert A. Stewart, shoots for score at its rifle range under Doak C. Campbell stadium, with an official observer present. The scores are compiled at district ROTC headquarters and forwarded to the Third Army.

The three top teams, announced by the Third Army, will compete in the National Intercollegiate ROTC Rifle Match.

Some fifty-five schools in the seven southern states comprising the Third Army district are participating in this month's competition. The three winning teams will get cups.

According to Sgt. Stewart, the FSU team plans to compete against Mercer University in Macon, Ga., later this year, in what is termed a shoulder-to-shoulder match. Both teams fire at the same firing line. FSU has not been in any such meet so this year.

Members of the rifle Coy Daniel Winchester, William Charles Reason Tomberlin, Daniel, Edward Pyle, Ben B. Powell Jr. Brandis, Joseph J. Thr ry W. Barr, Paul A George R. Day.

Patronize Our Advertisers And Buy Classified Ads

THOSE LIBERALS

Many violent anti-Communists use the term "liberal" as a synonym for Communist, left-wing, or radical. Strictly speaking, a liberal is one who advocates improvement, change, and reform.

Although the sober opponents of Communism realize the vast difference between a liberal and a left-winger, many McCarthyites continue slurring the memory of the world's great liberals through their use of the word.

Among history's famous "fuzzy thinking" reformers were:

The French peasant girl who led her country's army against the British but was burned at the stake for offending the Church.

An Italian astronomer forced by the Pope to quit teaching his heretical doctrine that the earth travels around the sun.

The tall, ugly Emmon rail-splitter willing to fight a war to protect the rights of slaves in the South.

—The Daily Texan

Faiver's For Chicken

NOON DAY LUNCH . . . . . 60c up

PIZZA PIE . . . . . 1.00 & 1.50

WAFFLES 35c

FREE DELIVERY SERVICE
PHONE 2-4578
1312 W. Tenn.

Quickest Delivery In Town
at the
QUAKER HOUSE
GOOD WHOLESOME FOOD
at the COUNTER, on the CURB, at your DOOR
Sandwiches, Shakes, Splits, Sundaes, Regular Meals
Phone 2-8677
Open 6 a. m. to Midnight
Seven Days a Week
West Tennessee Street

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
Today
"Gone With The Wind"
Clark Gable & Vivien Leigh
Wednesday thru Jan. 22
"Carmen Jones"
Pearl Bailey
Dorothy Dandridge
Harry Belafonte

STATE
Today
"Deep In My Heart"
Jose Ferrer
Wednesday thru Jan. 25
"Barefoot Contessa"
Ava Gardner
Humphrey Bogart

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today & Tomorrow
"Living It Up"
Martin & Lewis
Janet Leigh
Thursday thru Saturday
"TEXAS LADY"
Wayne Morris
plus
"THE BIG CAT"
Lon McAllister
Preston Foster
Peggy Ann Garner

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow
"Magnificent Obsession"
Jane Wyman
Rock Hudson
Thursday thru Saturday
"TANGANIKA"
Van Heflin
Ruth Roman
Howard Duff
plus
"BATTLE OF ROGUE RIVER"
George Montgomery

Sell for Cash the Books you don't want or Trade them on Second Semeter's Books—
at
MALONE'S BOOK STORE

PUT A Smile IN YOUR Smoking!

Try CHESTERFIELD Today—
You'll smile your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness — mildness — refreshing taste.
You'll smile your approval of Chesterfield's quality — highest quality — low nicotine.
IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD NO CIGARETTE Satisfies LIKE CHESTERFIELD
© LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

Representation Comes Before Senate (See Bulletin Below)

The Florida Flambeau

Florida's Only Semi-Weekly College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 26 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1955

American Life Lecture Series Starts Tonight

Director Cites Study Of Americon Way Is Program's Purpose

A series of lectures under the title "Studies in American Civilization" will be offered here this semester beginning tonight.

Designed to familiarize studeots with American life and background, the seminar-type lectures are under the supervision of Dr. William Randel of the Department of English. Required of majors in American Studies, the lectures may be attended by any studeot.

Dr. Randel, also head of the American Studies Program at Florida State University, urged that students of any major feel free to attend.

"The ardinary student can learn something about the couatry which he is a citizen af," he declared.

By attending the lectures Dr. Randel feels that students will learn about the interrelationships among different subjects that relate to American life. "Above all," he said, "they should learn more than he knows about America's place in the world today."

All lectures will be held in room 227 of Opperman Music Building beginning at 7:30 p. m.

The schedule of lectures is: Feb 8 "The Portrait Outlined", by William Randel; Feb. 15, "Impressions Abroad", by George Lensen and a group of foreign students; Feb 22 "People and Resources", by Henry Becker.

March 1 "The American as an Individual" by Lewis Killiao; March 8 "Radicalism Since 1918", by Benjamio Rogers; March 15, "Judicial Review." by Marian Irish March 22, "The Position of the Military" by Lt. Col. Paul Campbell

March 29 "The Consumer in the American Economy," by Richard Morse April 5, "American Newspapers" by Sidney Kobre and Daniel Wozniak April 12, "Educational Patterns", by Hugh Stickler

April 19, "Science in American Civilization", by Seymour Hess; April 26, "American Life Reflected in Art", by James McDonough; May 3, "American Life Reflected in Drama", by Lynn Orr.

May 10, "Perspective and Prognosis" by Robert Miller; May 17, "The Portrait Reviewed", by William Randel.

By atteoding these lectures, Dr. Randel feels that students majoring in Americao Studies get a basic general background in American life instead of being restricted to one field. To obtain a degree, majors in American Studies take courses in such fields as history, political science, sociology, art, music and journalism under a curriculum approved by the American Studies Committee here.

FSU Debate Team Recipients Of Two Awards In Tourney

Florida State debators, represented by Fred Roberts, Bruce Fletcher, Barbara Chambers, and Karl Edwards, returned from the annual West Georgia College Debate Tournament, February 4-5, with two awards.

Roberts and Fletcher, debating negatively, won 4 out of 5 debates; this record gave them the third-place award, ranking over 11 schools. Chambers and Edwards debating in their first tournament, won 3 of their 5 debates, giving Florida State a total win-loss record of 7-3. This total placed FSU third among the 14 schools participating in the tournament.

Schools attending this tourney were Agnes Scott, David Lipscomb Howard, University of Georgia, Emory, Tennessee Tech, Auburn, and Reinhardt. Florida State debators defeated David Lipscomb, who placed first in the tournament.

At the University of Miami Debale Tournament, held Jan. 27-29, FSU also chalked up victories aver a number of schools. The affirmative debate team, composed of Narma Trippodo and Arnald Greenfield, defeated the University of Texas, Wake Forest, University of South Carolina, Florida Christian, and Emary.

Thursday morning of this week Florida State debators leave for two tournaments, the Annual Southeastern at Emory, and the Gulf States Speech Festival—Mississippi Southern College Miss Elizabeth Flory and Dr. Gregg Phifer will accompany the groups.

LOST MONEY FOUND

Assistant Business Manager of the University Don Farqhuarson has announced that he has found some money "probably belonging to some student"

He said that any person claiming it would receive it if they could identify it as to amount and time and place believed lost.

Farqhuarson's office is located in Westcott.

Tha Dorsey Brothers and drummer Buddy Rich

Famed musicians will give two concerts here on Thursday at 6 30 and 8.30 p.m.

Elections, Changes, Highlight Student Party Meet Tomorrow

The Student Party convention will elect new officers and consider proposed changes in its constitution on Wednesday, party officials have announced.

Registration of delegates will begin at 6:30 in the Geology Building lecture hall.

Outgoing chairman Jimmy Joanos, who says that be will not be a candidate for re-election, explained that new officers will be elected now instead of later in the Spring because "in the past party officials have been chosen just before Spring elections and haven't had time to get the party organized before the voting."

Also up for election will be the job of party secretary. Jean Carr holds the office at present.

A constitutional revision committee whose chairman is Hans Tews has been considering a number of amendments, one of which would require a mid-year convention instead of leaving the matter up to the chairman's option. Another proposed amendment would provide for the office of party treasurer and would have him, the chairman and the secretary of the party elected in February as a matter of course.

Other amendmeats under consideraiion by the 12-member committee would provide for separate conventions to nominate elass officers, secret ballots during conventions and revision of the system of selecting delegates to party conventions.

A stiff floor fight is forecast if the latter two amendments survive the committee. The group's final vote, however, was scheduled for late yesterday afternoon, too late to make Tuesday's Florida Flambeau.

The proposed revision in delegate selectioo would require interested persons to sign up in order to be delegates. Those approved by the party's executive committee acting under strict limitations would be voted upon by their respective dormitories or representative groups.

On the amendment committee, in addition to chairman Tews, are Betty Willmoo, Margaret Ann Ballinger, Coyle Moore, Larry Moore, Russell Johnson, Bruce Fletcher, Norma Trippodo, Beverly Duperrouzel, Pat Thornton,

(Caatiaaed on Page 4)

5164 Students Enroll At FSU This Semester

A 5164 full-time enrollment at Florida State University this semester has been announced by President Doak S. Campbell.

In announcing the record Spring semester registration, President Campbell said that the figure does not include many students other than full-time. These are sub-collegiate, special, off-campus and part-time, extension and correspondent students.

Last semester's full-time enrollment of 5638 students was brought to 9588 when all studants for which the university was responsible were included. President Campbell said that the oomplete total of all atudents for this semester will be released in several weeks.

Last year's spring semester eorollment of full-time atudents was 4588, he added. Full-time students are classified as those taking twelve or more semester hours of university courses.

The decrease in enrollment this semester as compared with the Fall semester amounted to 474 students, of which 232 were graduated.

In commenting on the Sprina semester enrollment, President Campbell said the increase was "anticipated," and comparable to increases of other recent years.

OPEN HEARINGS SET FOR COURT SYSTEM

Attorney General Dave Kennedy will conduct hearings tomorrow evening concerning proposed revisions in the court system All interested students are asked to be present at 7 p.m. in the Senate chamber, Longmire Buildina, with their suggestions, Kennedy said.

300 Tickets Left For 6:30 Dorsey Show

Approximately 300 tickets remain for Thursday's 6:30 p.m. Artist Series Program featuring the famed Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey orchestra Tickets are sold out for tha 8:30 p.m. concert.

T b e oationally acclaimed band will present the same shaw at both performaoces, eodina the first concert at 8 p.m. Students have been reqaested to exit through the side doors at the iawer end of the auditorium to prevent congestion with crowds entering for the second performance.

Remaining tickets may be obtained at tha ticket booth in Westcott by presenting the Number Two coupon from the new activity books and 50 cents.

Women's h a n s a meetings, originally scheduled for 10 p.m. the same night, have been rescheduled for 10:15 p.m. to allow women students time to return to the darmitories.

This year the Dorsey brothers celebrated their first anniversary as a team, although Tommy Dorsey has had his orchestra for twenty years.

Now on their way to a Miami Beach hotel engagemeot, the Dorseys will later return to New York to begin a TV contract with the CBS network.

The Dorseys were inrluded in the Jackie Gleason multi-miliion dollar television eautract and will have a spot in the time segment fallawing the comic's show "The Honeymooners."

The Dorsey Brothers are now featuring Buddy Rich on the drums and songster Lynn Roberts as vocalist. Their new recording company, Bell Records, has been giving a big play to the group for the past year. Their rendition of Mr. Rainbow has shown strength recently in national record polls.

ANNUALS AVAILABLE

There are a limited number of 1954 Tally Ho's in 17 Longmire for students who want them.

Drive Directors Establish Goal For Donations

120 Pint Minimum Set, Group Hopes For Blood Record

Students and faculty will be asked to donate a minimum of 120 pints of blood to the campus account between February 11 and March 4.

The 1955 blood drive is under the direction of Graham Carothers and Margaret Neller, members of the Student Body President's Cabinet which was responsible for the initation of the drive.

Spokesmen revealed that at the present tima there are anly twenty-five pints af blood in the FSU blood account.

As long as it remains at this level, a person drawing from the account must repay with two pints for each pint used.

Sororities, fraternities, and dormitories will be called upon to be responsible for the donatioo of 30 pints of blood during one week of the drive. Each week, four sororities, four fraternities, two women's dorms, and one meo's dorm will work together to solicit donations.

Each Friday morning, beginning February 11, a car will transport donors to the blood bank from the infirmary between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Students under twenty-one years of age and not in ROTC must have written permission from their parents. Those who desire to donate must sign up at the infirmary and receive a checkup the week they plan to doonte.

Donors will receive a health permission slip excusing them from classes for the remainder of the day.

According to Miss Neller, ill health and colds may prahibit donors from giving blood in the week his fraternity, sorority, or darm is scheduled to doonte.

However, she added, this does not mean the donor cannot give blood at a later date.

Although 120 pints of blood is the minimum goal, directors of the drive expressed their hopes that the donations would far exceed the planned amount.

Mary Will Davis and the members of the womeo's advertising organization are in charga of drive publicity.

Second Susannah Presentation Set At Reduced Rate

Davee Chooses Cast For Next Speech Department Production

After two weeks of tryouts, the cast has been chosen for Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," to be presented next month by the Speech Department uoder the direction of Dr. Paul W. Davee.

In the major role of Jahn Proctor, made famous on the New York stage by Arthur Kennedy, is Franklin Adams. Forrest Altman appears as the witch-calling Reverend Parris and Dorothy Womble plays Proctor's wife. Ruth Harvard appears as Titaba, Margaret Malloy as Abigail, Barbara Waddell as Ann Putnam, and David Dreis as Tom Putoam.

Also, Melinda Brown as Mercy Lewis, Libby Mauch as Mary Warren, Barbara Graham as Rebecca, Hal Poe as Giles Corey, Duane Lanchester as Hale, Virgil Austin as Francis, John Davis as Joho Willard, Don Spivey as Hathorne, Hal Bergman as Danforth and Mary Alice Newton and Sheldon Musgrove in the roles of Sarah Good and Hopkins (NOTE: The character oames appear for the benefit of those who did not win roles and those who have not been ootified.)

Concerning tryants, Dr. Davee said "I wish I could have cast all of them. I heard many, many good readings."

"Arthur Miller is one of the two or three leading American playwrights still alive today who really makes ao effort to deal with ideas," says Dr. Davee. His other works include "Death of a Salesman" and "All My Sons."

Charles I. Reimer will direct the scenery and lighting while Frances Levine has charge of costumes.

Tickets will go on asle about two days before opening night, asid Dr. Davee.

World Premier Tickets Selling At $3 Apiece

Student Tickets For Second Showing Will Be Sold At $1

Students will be able to attend a performance of professor Carlisle Floyd's opera, "Susannah," at reduced prices, the composer said Friday.

A performance intended primarily for the student body will be given in Westcott Auditorium Friday, February 25, at 8 15 p.m., at one dollar per person.

The world premiere of the opera will be held the night before, with individual tickets costing three dollars per person.

Professor Floyd, who has written two operas before "Susannah," said that the Service League of Tallahassee, which sponsors the State Symphony of Florida, has agreed to underwrite the high expenses of a second performance. The opera was originally scheduled as part of the State Symphony series.

He said that tickets were to go on sale yesterday at the Music Building ticket office Student activity ticket oumber 14 bas been assigned to Susannah"

Tickets will also be on sale at the Westcott Building Ticket booth.

Mack Harrell, Metropolitan Opera baritone, and Phyllis Curtin, soprano of the New York City Opera will sing the lead roles in "Susannah," which is taken from the Apocryphal story of Susannah and the Elders. Floyd has set the action in the mountain valleys of Tennessee to present folklore, dialect and a form of primitive religion.

Supporting members of the cast will be Walter James, Harrison Fisher, J. Dayton Smith, Ken Nelson, Lee Liming, Martha Kay Willis, Joan Nichy, Catherine Murphy, Betty Jo Armstrong and Eb Thomas, who speaks—not sings—his role entirely in rhythm.

Edith Kaup is Miss Curtin's understudy, Hermao Gunter is understudy to Mack Harrell.

Franklin Adams is designing the scenery. Stage direction is by Dr. Lynn Orr, costumes by Catherine Murphy and choral direction by Dr. Wiley Housewright. Dr Karl Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music, will conduct the State Symphony.

Miss Curtin will arrive for rehearsals an Tuesday, February 15, with Mr. Harrell arriving the next night.

The opera's composer hopes for a full house both nights. When asked if he has any plans for "Susannah" after its premiere on the FSU campus, he replied that he has but that they can't be revealed as yet.

Dance Tryouts For New Script Scheduled For Tomorrow Night

Dance tryouts for the 1955 Sandspur production SO-EM-BA will be held tomorrow night in the Student Lounge of the Longmire Building.

Students interested in other areas can also sign up then, said Chairman Frances Bailey Stokes.

The new script, featuring South Sea Islands, native girls and botany was written by Donn Teal and David Ward-Steinman of the FSU music department.

SO-EM-BA replaces the original script "Prince of Errata" which was withdrawn because of technical difficulties.

The cast will feature John Zilles as a native prince on the island of So-em-ba located off the southern coast of Borneo. David Dreis plays the television quizmaster who gives away free trips to the island.

Mary Jackson is seen as a girl who is more interested in botany than in men, at first. Duncan Gray plays the king of the island with Karen Kimpel and Pat Arrants as native girls. Jack Rogero plays Arnold, the botanist, with the playwright, Teal, portraying the elderly biologist, Dr. Burnfield.

Nancy Cubbins plays the canoibal Queen, Gray Salla plays a native girl and Micky Dobbins is seen as a TV-happy mother.

Herb Rhinehart will serve under producer Frances Stokes as director for SO-EM-BA.

Recently returned from service in the Navy, he directed the Sandspur production for 1950 when he was attending here before.

SOPHOMORE-SENIOR BREAKFAST

The Sophomore-Senior Breakfast bas been rescheduled for Sunday morning, February 20 at 8 30 in the Suwannee Room. Further information will be printed Friday.

State Party Calls Meeting Friday, 4 p.m.

Warren Cobb, chairman of the State Party, has announced a meeting of officers and interested party members, slated for Friday, February 11, at 4 p.m. in the Student Lounge, Longmire building

Cobb stated that the meeting will cover formation of Party's platform for the coming elections, setting a date for a Party convention, and revision of the State Party's constitution.

Organized a year ago this month, the State Party, in its first two rounds of opposition with the Student Party, won only two out of 16 offices in the Student Government elections last Spring, but came up to win 16 places in the Class Elections

State Party members say they hope to achieve a "better than ever position" in student government this year.

FROSH SCHEDULE DANCE

The Freshman class holds its first social event of the year, February 11, sponsoring an informal dance at the Student Center The hours designated for the dance are from 8 30 until 11:30 p.m. The Ravens will furnish music.

There will be no charge for admission to the dance. Social Chairman Karen Kimpel has invited all students to attend.

Film Club Selling Tickets For Movies Left On Schedule

Students may now purchase tickets at reduced rates for the remaining seven movies sponsored by the Florida State University Film Club, according to secretary Mrs. Bobbie Lensen.

Price of the tickets is $1.25, and entitled the member to bring a guest on two occasions. Mrs. Lensen said that checks should be sent to her at box 3049, FSU, along with the member's name and address.

The remaining movies are: February 17, "Topaze" (French); March 3, "Chekhov Film Festivals" (Russian); March 17, "Maria Candelaria" (Latin American); March 31, "Louisiana Story" and "Song of the Prairie" (American); April 14, "Lavender Hill Mob" (English); April 28, "Symphonie Pastorale" (French), and May 12, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" (American).

All will be shown in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Too Impatient—

Understanding The Asians May Help Relations

By BOB FOLSOM

Impatience, rather than understanding, has shaped modern American foreign policy.

Dr. George A. Lensen, assistant professor of History, made this assertioo while taking a couple of hours off the other day to discuss the critical situation in the Far East.

"Our diplomacy has beeu that of a good-natured buffalo in a China shop. Our motives have beea good," he said, "but though we planned for the best af all concerned, we did so without consideration af the cultural values and sensibilities af other peoples."

He said that what has held China together has been its culture—just as the Democratic way has held the American people together. And be underlined that to understand the Chinese people—even the Communists—we must study Chinese literature and philosophy as well as Chinese history.

"It is a sad reflection on our own Western civilization," be asserted, "that a nation gains our respect by military strength rather than culture. For a century we looked upon the Chinese as laundrymen. We liked them, but we didn't respect them. Today we don't like them, but we respect them."

Dr. Lensen, boyish looking in spite of his thirty-one years, sat in his small office amidst an array of foreign language publications. The setting seemed appropriate, but his looks were deceptive, for behind them lies a vast knowledge of the Far East and an incredible amount of linguistic ability.

Bilingual in Russian and German from early childhood, be has studied Latin, French, Spanish, Japanese, and Chinese. He speaks English without any accent.

His background adds a further cosmopolitan touch. Born of White Russian parents in Germany, he completed grammar school there, attended school in Austria for four years, and studied a year in Switzerland before immigrating here in July, 1939. His immigration card summarized his background to that time: 'Country af birth: Germany. Country of Immigration Quota: Russia. Citizenship: Stateless. Nationality: Indefinite.'

He completed high school in New York City, and earned three degrees from Columbia, including a Ph.D. from the Department of Chinese and Japanese. During World War II he served as a military intelligence officer in China, India and Japan. He came to FSU "in the rush of '49," and is presently the history department's Far Eastero specialist.

Mrs. Lensen is Chinese, a graduate of St. John's University in Shanghai. They have two daughters, one Episcopalean, one Presbyterian. Other faiths represented in their immediate family are: Catholic, Greek Orthodox, Buddhist, Mohammedan, and Jewish. "No Hindus to my knowledge," he observed.

Dr. Lensen expressed deep concern over American attitude toward Orientals. "It is startling how much more people in Asia know about Americans than we know about them. The average American does not know enough about the Orient to form an adequate judgment," be asserted.

"The newspapers? They could help a great deal, but they give the public what it wants to read, and I'm afraid the public is more interested in spotrs, comic strips, and local news than in the problems of Asia"

He thinks that the traditional courses on the Far East in American college curriculums have portrayed the countries of Asia since the 19th century at their "weakest" He said to understand the contemporary Far East we must go back further and must use a more cultural approach. To do this, he said, the customs, literature, philosophy and thoughts of those peoples must be examined.

In a course he will teach this semester, History 355, The Far East, Dr. Lensen will use this approach, supplemented by the use of audio-visual aids and other material he gathered in the Far East.

Dr. Lensen reasoned that the retention of American flyers by

(Continued on Page 4)

West Hall Crowns Sweetheart; Honors Governor With Ball

The coronation of the West Hall Sweetheart will highlight that dormitory's inaugural ball this Saturday.

Candidates for the Sweetheart, who will be chosen by vote of the dormitory's populace, are Jerry Barber, Betty Lou Whittle, Regina Francescon, Mary Margaret Williams, Betty Jean Cushman, June E. Sillay, LaQuita Renfroe and Betty Wilmon.

The newly inaugurated governor of West Hall will be presented. The Sweetheart will be given a trophy.

REPRESENTATION ACT SCHEDULED IN SENATE

A constitutional amendment to change the present system of representation in the Student Senate will be brought before that body at its meeting Wednesday afternoon in Longmire Building.

Vice-President Coyle Moore, whose sub-committee studying the legislative branch has recommended a system of combined dormitory-class represeotation, said that the amendment will embody most of the main points of the report, which will also be officially presented to the Senate Wednesday.

Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn, the two members of the sub-committee, are authors of the amendment.

Be My Valentine—This is the modern style in Valentine's Day greetings. Replacing traditional cards and boxed candy are Bert Braun, Joan Cassidy, Shirley Metts, Sarah Jane Griffin and Mary Ann Kelly, one of whom will reign as Sweetheart of Jennie Murphree Hall at their annual dance Saturday night from 9 p.m. to midnight in Longmire Auditorium. Billie Bowles and his Devilairs will play for dorm residents and their guests.

Bridge Fans Asked To Enter Tourney Representing FSU

Students interested in participating in the 1955 Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament have been invited to sign up in the office of the Counselor of Student Organizations, 17 Longmire Building

The tournament is an annual contest in duplicate Contract Bridge in which men and women undergraduates throughout the country compete for national and campus championship titles and trophies, awarded by the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament Committee.

A minimum of 16 players registered in the Longmire Building office is requuired by February 15, if Florida State University is to compete in the tournament. Requirements for entering students are that they must meet the eligibility requirements here governing participation in comparable intercollegiate competitive activities; and be a full-time student here working for a degree.

Expenses will be covered by an entrance fee of 50 cents per contestant. On March 9, tournament directors will be mailed a kit containing the prepared hands, score sheets and necessary instructions for conducting the tournament.

Signs Of The Times

The "Chile Development Nursery School" on West Call Street. When we went to school it was simply a kindergarten.

Just A Few Kinks

The system of pre-registration employed for this semester had a few kinks, but as a trial run, we'd say it was a success.

Reactions were varied. Some students breezed through in a matter of minutes. Some took thirty minutes to get one class card. At times the place was almost totally empty. At other times it was thronged.

Many students, undoubtedly, didn't begin registering until long after appointment cards would have permitted them, thereby overcrowding the registration area at the end. In some cases final exams made this necessary. In others it didn't. The students who caused a last minute rush because they hadn't registered on their given day only penalized themselves.

On the whole, the system worked a bit hardest of all. One student who returned after a semester away went in to register at nine on the morning of February 2, and came out at three in the afternoon. The large number of students who had already registered and came back early to change courses helped to account for this.

Many faculty and administrative personnel liked the arrangement. Others detested it. In some instances, the same things got both criticism and praise.

One valid criticism is that there were only a few tables from which all class cards were given out. The clerks behind the tables weren't particularly rapid, either.

Such subjects as education and English were in the same trays with unpopular courses such as library science; a student seeking one of these or an advanced section had to weed out the lines awaiting the more numerous subjects.

It would definitely expedite the process if there were ten or more lines, instead of just a few.

While there were criticisms, it is obvious that this system has many possibilities. At its best, the tension and pressure which characterized the old system will be no more. Further efforts to develop pre-registration are in order.

The Real Questions

Governor LeRoy Collins has announced that only the courts can decide whether or not the Elian Plat case and those of Mr. Dora can be admitted to the white schools of Florida.

These children were thrown out of school by Sheriff Willie McCall of Lake County on the grounds that to him they looked like Negroes. Their parents produced evidence to show that they are Croatan Indians, who are not classed as Negroes.

Governor Collins says that the facts of the case are for the courts to decide. He pledges his support to the judicial decision. He points out to Elian Plat, however, that whether the courts say yes or no the damage has been done to his children.

The Governor, however, is asking the courts to decide on the basis of Florida's constitution, which says that Negroes shall be taught in separate schools. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that this provision is contrary to the Constitution of the United States. How long do we continue, then, to follow the unconstitutional precept?

But real questions are these: How much chance does Allen Platt, a boy of fruit picker, have to bring expensive legal action? How much chance does he have of getting help from the blindly prejudiced people of Lake County? How much chance do his children have of ever leading normal, happy lives?

Their case is a tragedy and a travesty of justice. We would like to see the American Civil Liberties Union intervene in this case.

That Red Rose!

Should the rose be our national flower? Some people don't think so, and they have written to Sen. Margaret Chase Smith saying so. They object that the rose is already the British national flower, and horror of horrors, it comes from the Orient.

We wonder why no public-spirited, loyal, courageous, intrepid, forthright American Citizen has not further brought us to our senses by pointing out that while some roses are white, most vary from a light pink to a deep, dark, sinister red.

The Object Of Life . . .

Our text for today is provided by Senator William Fulbright, a thoughtful gentleman from Arkansas who is engaged in a lonely campaign to raise both the level and the spirit of American political debate.

Speaking at the National Book Award luncheon the other day, Fulbright, a legislator who possesses a rare intellect, discussed the state of American freedom.

He began by noting that the oppressive hand of conformism had been felt in America a long time before the McCarthy era. Back in the 1830s Alexis de Tocqueville was lamenting what he found to be the subtle despotism of conventional wisdom in America, men were seldom "forced to act" but they too often "refrained from acting."

The republic survived and eventually prospered; dissenters had their great days. All of which may be cited as proof that Tocqueville's diagnosis was excessively gloomy.

But in applying de Tocqueville's words to present-day America Fulbright offered some devastating testimony.

The Senator wasn't primarily talking about the gross excesses of a Junior Senator from Wisconsin. McCarthy had what he used to be. What Fulbright was discussing was a stealthier thing—pressures to remain silent, to avoid "controversial" positions, to cultivate unorthodox thought. It is not so much what men are saying that disturbs him, as what they are failing to say.

For much of the timidity he blames the near-monopoly control of our communications industries.

> The general effect of what approaches monopoly control is that people hear, see, a-lich, read and listen to only one side of public questions. And this is true, to an adversely affect the public man to whom the guidance of public affairs is entrusted. He has never had the chance to learn to speak. Yet he doubts whether his views, as transmitted to his constituents by the present cultural communication channels, will be fairly presented, or presented at all. So there often follows from this a chain reaction of cynicism leading to corruption.

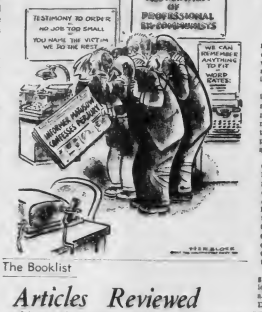
This public man, to achieve anything at all, still set use the space ready but will ever find himself into the path of his intrigue. He will not boldly accept what is offered for the occasion. He will bend the weight of his energies to the end of having everything stand still. He will voice no proposition of what ought to be. He will speak only the sterile dogmas of the street, and only those bits of truest which bear the general sanction of the lords of communication.

Yet even more disturbing than the inhibitions which paralyze grown politicians are those which afflict young men and women. As a preposterous example of national absurdity Fulbright cited the Army-Navy ban on debate over recognition of Red China at West Point and Annapolis.

For his most gruesome exhibit, however, he acknowledged his debt to a spirited article in The Princeton Alumni Weekly. The article lamented undergraduate apathy toward the world's social issues and bluntly placed part of the blame on the "pressures to conform exterted by our great industrial corporations." The article then quoted from a personnel pamphlet used by the Standard Vacuum Oil Company, telling students how to behave in college in order to achieve post-graduate success in life. This "order of the day," Fulbright described it, warned the students:



> "Personal views can cause a lot of trouble. The 'isms' are out. Business being what it is, it naturally looks with favor on the wild-eyed radical or even the moderate pink."

Fulbright commented:

> Consider the implications of this text. With one hand, it eats the breath of student curiosity. With the other hand, it dandles bread before his mouth as a reward for obedience, unbroken awe by a moderate gurgle. It says to the student, "You will be saved only if you consider yourself a beast of burden or a beast of prey." It says to him: "Production and not the pursuit of truth is the chief of life on earth." It says to him: "We ourselves are the judge and the jury of what a wild-eyed radical and a moderate pink is. And if you ask us what it is, in the act of asking you become the very thing we don't want."

It has become fashionable to say that our national aberrations are trivial in contrast with the total oppression that blankets Communist countries. That argument is the last resort of men who make poor defenders of freedom. For a democracy of the faint-hearted and the self-seeking, of men who, in Fulbright's phrase, falsely equate "honor" with "fame and notoriety," will neither inspire free men nor confound the totalitarians.

—The New York Post

The Booklist

Articles Reviewed

Below are reviewed a number of magazine articles which may be of particular interest to students. The magazines are in the reserve library.

David Riesman and Nathan Glazer, collaborators on the Lonely Crowd, are back again with another article and wrestling American trends; this time in The Partisan Review—Winter, 1955- in an article, "The Intellectuals and The Discontented Classes and it's hoped the title doesn't scare anyone away).

They attempts to point out what has shifted "the character of American politics and political thinking since the Second World War . . . and they . . . offer some very tentative interpretations pointing toward the revival of a liberal political imagination, if possible. . . the decay and the liberals in their days of influence realized something they had specific reforms in mind and specific tasks. Today the atmosphere is really has no desire to change the face of the nation, and is not even interested in changing the face . . ."

* * *

"Pilgrims in our Thinking About Sexuality" by Rollo May, Sidney Hook in the New York Times Magazine, Jan. 30. Dr. Hook takes a long and critical look at our security system, and points out that "we are in the pass, not even in wartime, has the same excited as much public attention and provoked as much controversy." He just adds more coal to the fire of opinion among that our security system needs a thorough overhaul, and soon.

* * *

Max Freedman, Washington correspondent for the Manchester Guardian, is now writing a weekly article in The Nation called "Washington in Focus. It's some of the best writing that is coming out of Washington now, and his article in the Jan. 29 issue is an excellent piece of interpretative reporting and something that will never be found in the Republican press.

* * *

The Christian Science Monitor for Jan. 29 devotes two pages to Edmund Clark, one of the few better newspapers, the Monitor is of its correspondents on a very fine job on asking, and trustworthy, important subjects. Clark's piece on "Choosing the Right College" John Dickson for Dean of Men and Deans and ponders the Liberal Arts and specialization issue.

* * *

The Atlantic for February has quite a number of fine articles. Walter Lippman starts off with "The Decline of Western Democracy," the first of three excerpts. Atlantic will print each from his new book. The Public Philosophy, that will be published next month. He says Conformity.

almost many things: "With exceptions so rare that they are regarded as miracles and freaks of nature, successful democratic politicians are timorous and intimidated men. They advance cautiously only as they placate, appease, humor, seduce, bamboozle, or otherwise manage to manipulate the demanding and threatening elements in their constituencies."

There is also "Textbooks Under Fire," by Virgil M. Rogers, a particularly pertinent piece. Charles J. Rolo writes on Alberto Moravia, and a piece by Mr. A. McLeish, "The Poet as Playwrite."

* * *

February's Harper's is also filled with readable stuff. W. W. Rostow writes "Marx Was a City Boy or, Why Communism May Fail," in which he also surveys the Chinese Communists. Another excellent report on the Alastair Buchan of the London Observer on "Pitching Up the Parliamentary White House" and there is even an article on "Florida: The State with the Two-Way Climate," wherein you learn there is "scarcely a Florida town with a population of more than 2,000 that doesn't maintain a C of C ready to send out glossy photographs on request." It's by a U. of F graduate.

* * *

Southern School News is a tabloid-size monthly publication (since last December) devoted to progress reports on school activities in the affected states. There are 14 columns from each of the 18 states written by a local newspaper and News correspondents. They go to extremes to keep the reports factual and objective. It is a excellent research material and deals just going deeper a thorough round-up on desegregation happenings. Incidentally it is distributed free to interested individuals and organizations upon request.

* * *

And for George Orwell Admirers, there is "Orwell's Nineteen Crumbs" by Richard J. Voorhees in the Jan. 28 Commonweal. The sub Orwell's hostility to religion seems to have gone largely unnoticed, but it appears constantly in many of Orwell's works.

B.F.

MIDDLEBROW

Most Americans want to be cultivated, but only comfortably cultivated. They debate with the intellectual just enough to avoid being lowbrow and escape being highbrow. Middlebrowism looks like cultivation because it is so clearly superior to vulgarity, but to be satisfied with it is to make the good the enemy of the best. It merely dresses up the vulgar with fancy trimmings and domesticates the commonplace.

—Alan Valentine in The Age of Conformity.

Les see—I got "INCOMPLETE" in math 215, WITHDRAW in English II, CONDITIONAL in social studies, and a "D" in PHYS ED—Boy! Think goodmass I didn't flunk anything this term."

The Point Is

Dirty Mouths, Money Often Mix

By BOB FOLSOM

The gentlemen with the long noses in Herblock's editorial cartoon today must indeed be worrying. For one of their money-making band is now telling us he is a liar.

The "Influence Matnowe" in the cartoon is Harvey Matnowe, an ex-Commie, who became a member of the cult in 1943 after running to a literary newspaper, the NY Compass, American and pulling his story down in red and black.

In the same year Joe McCarthy gave him a job and Matnowe really went to work pointing the finger. The finger caught up with him the other day in the form of a affidavit he signed swearing that he testified falsely in the case of the 10 Hollywoodians after receiving advice from that pillar of democracy and justice, Roy Cohn. Cohn denies the whole thing.

To be between pointing the finger at various persons for juries, congressional committees and W. R. Jr., Matnowe was a Dallas disc-jockey who found time to write his memoirs on his life as an ex-Commie. His title: "Backfiring In My Business."

A publishing firm, Cameron and Kahn, bought it up, and was going to publish it this spring, but the outlook seems gloomy now. On second thought, though, it might really be a best seller now that Matnowe is a two-time confessor.

It is rumored that the book contains a somewhat story about Westbrook Pegler calling up Joe McCarthy on Senate letterhead to almost sweeping over the phone while Joe was in a speed smile on his face, fibbed that he was losing. This is the kind of stuff that may make the book a best seller, at least among some groups.

Matnowe has plenned himself in the same position as Paul Crouch, another ex-Commie, and now a professional anti-Communist, a top-flight commercial informant a lawyer. He's also up for investigation.

At last check there were about thirty-five of these people whom the government gives the

The Dissenter

Game Is Actually A Test Of Merit

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It's a football game between FSU and the University of Florida is brought about either through public outcry or through legislative action, the status of higher education in this state will so down—not up—another notch.

There would hardly be any more interesting or more bitterly fought contest than a football game between the two schools and it would be a good idea to schedule one for real in the near future. And not under the present circumstances.

As things stand now, a football game between the two state institutions would be regarded by the people of the state as the World Series between them.

With both schools trying to built up their academic programs and attempting to accumulate more students than their present physical limitations permit, such a football quilt-look would be disastrous.

Suppose the University of Florida had the football squad, to many people, that FSU had finally "arrived" as a university—something it has done educationally long ago. We'd be overrun with all kinds of students: those interested in an education and those interested only in going to a school that has a winning football team. The former group would be stranded among the latter.

And suppose the University of Florida won an eventually which it attains, the academic standards of the two institutions would be so far apart as to be ridiculous. An interesting sports angle is that it provides spectator sizes—both for the home games and for draws more of that group than ever either of campus or campus competition — in many of the same way a Talahassee roots for the Dodgers and a citizen of St. Louis drums on the old Gashouse Gang.

When it's used for a battleground between two yellow-dog state institutions it does that and becomes, as the Frankenstein monster, something to fear.

I suggested in an earlier column that we relax and let our get about the University of (Continued on Page 4)

Amusements

Etcetra Etchings

By DAVID DREIS

Jackie Gleason's new eleven-million-dollar deal has created a maze of bewilderment to the entertainment world. I, for one haven't been so fortunate as this writer in seeing a great amount of television. The name of Jackie Gleason meets relatively little to you. Possibly, however, you've heard that Paul Gapitol record albums to find that he doesn't have a voice as a rule, but plays hush instrumental music.

Gleason now, however, has become a public figure and has other commitments for me that when they latch onto a sponsor in the future, a new comedian may come along and swipe it from under them. Herbie Fisk of all people—that when Rulo, his sponsor, dropped Herbie's contract and offered his comedy-routine to seen—a fatter stipend.

Gleason has recently covered a Jackie Gleason session which took him from dawn to dusk. It appears that Gleason's comedian has to stay with the boss for every show and nothing to worry about money-wise, but prestige—an all-important factor in show business, is the hardest thing to retain. Red Buttons can testify to this.

Buttons rocketed for 17 years in the Catskill mountain summer resorts of New York. He wasn't discovered, but was a slight sensation on the Texaco hookh circuit. Then finally the networks grabbed him for their search for a new star. Buttons hit the top fast and has ratings that have climbed upward. His thama-song "Strange Things Are Happening Me" made a hit song for Columbia records and he was considered "the comedian of the year. Time however, and looks change and the unbridled comic gets muzzled to the extent that his natural comedy is immediately, in a vain attempt to build a "good" personality as a rival network signed him but not to a multi-million dollar deal. Gleason's case. To retain what standing he had left Buttons had to bow to the leys of writers and today it's a standing joke in the trade about the many people who credit themselves as comedy writers for Buttons' show. Buttons came zooming back using only two writers for the first few shows, but now there are six. Gleason's show is a small budget, the show at least had some nice spots. It was a mi-

Reflections

Ousted Prof Continues His Fight

By OSCAR JOHNSON

From a standpoint of publicity, Homecoming and dedication formed a telling combination. This has been proven in the case of Robert L. Leathers, who has been waging a one-man war against the FSU administration for months.

The potency of the brew, however, was not fully realized in recent weeks. No longer are sensational reports written after each meeting of the Leathers-Administration slugfest. Also missing are the news like latest body blow thrown by Leathers at his opponents. It was a letter addressed to Board of Control Chairman Millard Caldwell in which Leathers thanked the board for granting him a hearing to be held during April in Tallahassee. The letter expressed Leathers' determination to continue his fight.

The silence of his cause, says the letter, is to get the university to level specific charges against him and give proof them.

But this letter, unlike previous statements issued by both sides, received very little publicity. It is also to be recalled that the original charges by Leathers attorney's last statement that he should have been given a chance to work off steam and get some of the human anger group opposition — in many of the same way a Talahassee roots for the Dodgers and a citizen of St. Louis drums on the old Gashouse Gang.

When it's used for a battleground between two yellow-dog state institutions it does that and becomes, as the Frankenstein monster, something to fear.

I suggested in an earlier column that we relax and let our get about the University of (Continued on Page 4)

The Florida Flambeau

BOB FOLSOM—Editor

ORCHID ALONSO, Mng. Editor
Asst. News Editors ..... Oscar Johnson, Willie Smith
Mercer Cockrum
Sports Editors ..... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ..... Alan Wheatley, David Morris
Amusement Editor ..... David Dreis
Photographer ..... Laird Anderson, Al Robbins

JOE CALDWELL, Bus. Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Cox
Distribution Staff ..... Members of Alpha Phi Omega

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

JAY ROBERTSON, News Editor
Copy Editors ..... Pat Marston, Frank-lin Adams
Art Consultant ..... Con Horn
Cartoonist ..... Junior Staff George Goldstein, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradfield

MARY LIZ KING, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff ..... Nona Rue, Don Rogers

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by the students of Florida State University.

Giant-End Feamster Drafted By Baltimore Colts

Litwhiler To Coach Seminole Ball Club

Danny Litwhiler, former National League outfielder, has been signed to coach baseball at Florida State University.

According to Dr. Doak S. Campbell who made the announcement, Litwhiler will also head basketball theory and physical education.

He replaces Ralph Mayberry, who resigned several months ago.

It will be the first college coaching job for the 38-year-old Litwhiler, who has managed and major league baseball since leaving the majors as a player in 1950.

"But something I've always wanted to do," said Danny. "I've always had college coaching in the back of my mind. I like teaching and I hope to do some private work at FSU too."

Litwhiler, an outfielder, headed his major league career with the Philadelphia Phils in 1940, and also played with the St. Louis Cardinals, Boston Braves and Cincinnati Reds.

He once played an entire season of 154 games as an outfielder without making an error, and established the all-time fielding streak to 187 before it was broken.

After serving as a Cincinnati coach in 1951, he managed teams in Fargo, N. D., Williamsport, Pa., Jamestown, N. Y and Austin, Minn.

Litwhiler, who started baseball at Fox 3 had a turnout of about 50 candidates.

Included in the group were 11 returning lettermen — most of them regulars—from the team which won 16 and lost nine. They include outfielders Lee Cerne (.466) and Bo Hudson (.313) and infielder Fred Twomey (.347). Billy Campbell (.318), Gary Ashley (.311), Bob Bondi (.194) and Joe Hendrix (.182).

Also back are five lettermen pitchers—are Max Long (3-1) Jim Atwood (3-4) George Hebenton (2-0) Hugh Wernke (1-0) and Bobby Walls (6-6).

Danny Litwhiler

Litwhiler said that he plans to drill the candidates in two groups—the veterans and newcomers—until he can align his starting nine. He will also handle the newcomers, for the present, on FSU's East Campus diamond while freshmen Coach Hal Wiggin will drill the veterans on the West Campus field.

Litwhiler added that if enough progress is made during the coming week, an intrasquad game may be on tap for next Saturday. The Seminoles open an ambitious schedule March 11 at Lakeland against a long-time opponent—Florida Southern.

Sports-At-A-Glance

Thursday—Swimming: FSU vs. Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

Friday—Swimming: FSU in Southern Collegiate championships, Atlanta.

Saturday—Swimming: FSU in Alabama Open championships, Gadsden.

Gymnasts Upset Tired Illinois Team

In the first team meet of the year, the Florida State gymnasts defeated a tired Illinois team by ten points.

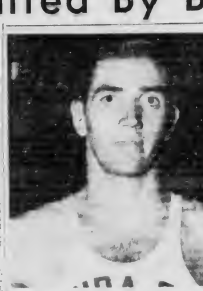
The meet, which Dr. Bruce had feigned to lose by four points, turned out unexpectedly for the better when the Illinois team missed many routines.

Dr. Price was working his team with most of his best men either ineligible or away. Tarzuc Rafael Lecuona is at the present time in Cuba trying out for the Pan American Olympic team, Jamie Ashmore, Jack Niles, Al Kuhn and all the freshman gymnasts are still unable to compete under NCAA ruling.

Upon greeting Illinois team Coach Harold Fry, Dr. Price said: "Well Harry, this looks like one time you'll give us a drubbing." But the boys from the Navy Pier branch of the University of Illinois were tired from the long trip by car from Chicago. They had also competed the night before in Atlanta, and defeated Georgia Tech.

FSU took an early lead in the meet on the first event, trampoline, and held it throughout the evening.

Olympic ace Don Holder came up with a perfect performance, winning first place in the three events he entered. Other first place winners for the Seminoles were Joe Taylor on flying rings and Dick Ireland on trampoline.



FSU entered the last event, tumbling, with a 18 point lead and claimed only one man, Ed Fedisah, who placed third with only Illinois top numbers. Final score of the meet was FSU 52½, Illinois 42½.

THE RESULTS

Trampoline—1. Ireland, FSU. 2. Fadigan, FSU. 3 Clark, Illinois. Side Horse—1. Holder, FSU 2. Tate, Illinois. 3 Taylor, FSU. Flying Rings—1. Holder, FSU 2. Tanaka, FSU. 3. Muspicko, Illinois. Parallel bars—1. Holder, FSU. 2. Kosick, Illinois. 3 Taylor, FSU.

Flying rings — 1. Taylor, FSU 2. Hel. Illinois. 3. Danner, Illinois. Tumbling—1. Acker, Illinois. 2. Hell, Illinois. 3. Fadigan, FSU.

FSU took an early lead in Top Cager, Dick Artmeier, veteran Seminole forward, has been instrumental in helping the FSU cagers this season.

Four Teams To Vie For District Crown In Basketball Tourney

The District 25 NAIA (National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics basketball playoffs will be held in Tallahassee's Florida High School gymnasium February 28-March 1, District Chairman Bud Kennedy announced.

Four teams, from Florida and Georgia, will battle for the district championship and a spot in the national NAIA tournament at Kansas City, Kan., beginning March 7.

Kennedy, Florida State University basketball coach and the four district tournament teams will be selected on the basis of ranking in the Jamal Basketball Rating Service as of February 15.

Nine schools—FSU, Stetson, Rollins, Tampa, and Florida Southern in Florida, and Georgia Teachers, Mercer, Piedmont, and Oglethorpe, in Georgia—are members of the NAIA's 25th district.

FSU, Georgia Teachers, Stetson, Mercer, and Piedmont are currently leading in Dunkel Ratings.

The two-day tournament will be a sudden-death affair, with first-round victors playing for the district title March 1 There will be no consolation game.

Tournament pairings will match Dunne's No. 1 and No. 4 and No. 2 and No. 3 teams in the opening round.

Coach Dick Morland's Stetson Hi-Hasters are defending district champions, but Florida State (13-2) and Georgia Teachers (12-3) are early favorites to win a national tournament berth.

Top Teams Will Meet This Week

The Florida State athletic family will be out to stretch its visible winning streaks during next weeks Seminole sports action.

Coach Bud Kennedy's amazing basketeers, 4 time 12-3 record raises among the south's best, looked for their eighth consecutive collegiate victory and 14th straight home triumph against Florida Southern College last night.

The high-scoring cagers were favored to take their eighth Florida Intercollegiate Conference victory without a setback.

Sparkling the Seminole drive will be guards Hom Wernke and Jim Oler, who are averaging 20 points apiece. Wernke bucketed 28 points and Oler 21 in the December win over Stetson.

Coach Bim Stokes' winners will be the busiest Seminoles this week from a Texas trip that resulted in victories over two highly-regarded Southern Conference entries—SMU and Texas A&M—State's mermen will take on Georgia Tech in Atlanta Thursday and vie in the talent-laden Southern Collegiate championships in Atlanta Friday and Saturday.

FSU's swimming underdraist in more than two years, have won their last 15 dual meets.

On color front the Seminole baseball, track, tennis, golf and wrestling squads will be put through routine practice paces. Spring football practice opens February 14.

Tough Schedule Is Slated For Golfers

Florida State's golfers will play a 16-meet schedule this spring, the longest and toughest links card ever attempted by an FSU team.

The schedule, announced by Coach Don Veller, lists 13 dual tests including four Southeastern Conference encounters—Georgia, Georgia Tech, Auburn, and Kentucky—plus strong Independent Miami.

In addition, the Seminoles will compete in the annual George Washington Birthday event here Feb. 24 and in the Florida and Southern Intercollegiate championships later the season. The GW meet is the season opener.

Veller, starting his third term as FSU's golf coach, has four of his top six players back from last year's squad which won eight of ten matches. They are Bunk Berry, Jack Vaghn, Bob Shumaker and Vernon Edge. Berry only a sophomore, was runner-up in the state intercollegiate meet last spring.

To balance the veterans Veller has his finest freshman crop in history headed by Dick Hauff, Bobby Dean, and Billy Shelton. Hauff, the Tampan was captain and was medalist in the PGA-sponsored National Caddy Tournament last year. Dunn and Shelton won the Georgia and Alabama prep crowns respectively.

Bill Proctor Tabbed By Cleveland

By BOB QUTTING

Although he still has a year of college eligibility remaining, Florida State University's mighty end, Tom Feamster, was still the fourth choice of the Baltimore Colts in the National Football League's annual player draft.

Whether or not the 6-7, 250-pound Seminole ends his bet with the professionals is still a matter for speculation. When asked which move he would make, Feamster said in all seriousness: "I don't know."

Coach Tom Nugent said, however, that Feamster had him earlier that he would complete his college education before joining the pros.

Feamster has a bright professional career ahead of him." Coach Nugent said. "He also may have hopes this year he will become FSU's first All-American.

He isn't the first time Feamster has been involved in a professional player draft. The Chicago Bears put the finger on Feamster last year, but the Bears' more vitalized standard draft procedure. He was not eligible for the draw.

Although the rules prevent the professional clubs from signing a collegian until his original class is graduated, Feamster falls into an eligible category, since he did not play during the 1953 collegiate season.

Feamster practically rewrote FSU's football record book last fall. In 11 regular season games he played, his appearance in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, he caught 32 passes for 420 yards and 4 touchdowns. During one stretch he caught 20 straight.

Big, fast, and possessor of a sure pair of hands, Feamster was instrumental in earning the Fall ill honor of having the nation's most productive passing attack during 1954. He is also a defensive standout.

Big pros also drafted another Seminole. The Clegg and Browns chose tackle Bill Proctor, who hasn't played a minute in a Seminole game. A transfer from Stetson, Proctor sat out last season, waiting for his chance in 1955. It is believed that Proctor, as well as Feamster, will remain at FSU.

Tallahassegans Receive Senior Night Classes In Business Law Courses

A beginning course in Business Law, designed primarily for nonprofessional, will be offered here from 7 p.m. to 9:40 p.m. on Monday, according to Dr. Wesley C. Maxey, head of the department of business law and insurance.

Casualty Claims and Property Loss Adjusting, a new course, will be offered 7 p.m. to 8:15 p.m. on Tuesday and Thursday with Dr. George M. Weichelt as professor.

Other night classes include Real Estate Management, and Property Insurance by Dr. Herbert J. Vogt as teacher.

Karl Zerbe Sole Judge In Sarasota Association Of Art Annual Exhibit

Karl Zerbe, artist in residence at Florida State University, recently accepted an invitation from the Sarasota Art Association to act as sole juror for its January exhibition, "Explora-tions in Art."

Long active as the head of the painting department in the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts, Zerbe is currently on leave of absence from the Boston institution.

Zerbe, who has had extensive experience as an art juror in many parts of the country, made his selections on January 28.

New Hurricane Bureau Head To Explain Plan For Forecasting Storms

Hurricane forecasting will be the topic of an address by Gordon E. Dunn, acting assistant chief of the United States Weather Bureau in Washington, D. C. tonight at 8 in the Geology Building auditorium.

The History and Development of Hurricane Forecasting" is Dunn's subject. Sigma Xi, under the presidency of Dr. Sam Meyer, director of the Oceanographic Institute and head of the botany department at FSU, sponsors the speaker.

Dunn takes the place of the late Grady Norton as Chief Forecaster for the Weather Bureau at the Hurricane Hunting Station in Miami.

Dames Fashion Show To Be Held Tomorrow

The third annual Fashion Show sponsored by the Florida State University chapter of University Dames will be held tomorrow starting at 8 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Sponsors and that clothes will be modeled by members of the club in cooperation with the French Shop and Starkette Shop. Hair styles will be by Mrs. Louis Gibbs of the French Shop.

President Campbell Puts Off Comment On Football Issue

President Doak S. Campbell has postponed comment on the current football controversy between the University of Florida and Florida State University until a decision is reached.

When questioned yesterday as to the outcome of a recent meeting between the presidents of the two universities, President Campbell explained that the meeting was a monthly one, held with the Executive Secretary of the Board of Control, but unfortunately the postpone comment until the matter is finally settled was the question, as was rumored; said the President, although the matter is under discussion at the present time.

The President said that he will postpone comments until the matter is decided and reports made to the Board of Control.

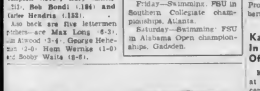
Veterans Interested In Commissions Must Take AROTC

All veterans of any branch of the service who are interested in a commission in the United States Air Force Reserve must enroll in the Air Force ROTC the same semester they enter Florida State University, according to Lt. Colonel Paul W. Campbell, professor of air science.

The professor of air science can waive as much of basic course as he considers equivalent to the active service period, providing he does not have any portion of such a cadet can complete prior to entrance into the advanced course, Colonel Campbell stated.

He also stressed the fact that veterans who begin university courses as a full time student, but who are unsure for ROTC training during a semester,

Veterans who desire information on their own particular case may visit the Air Force ROTC office, Room 212, ROTC Building.



Seminole Flying Club Seeking New Members

Several openings for new members are currently available in the Seminole Flyers, the university flying club.

The limited-member organization is for the benefit of FSU students or faculty who are interested in minimum-cost flying The club owns it's own planes.

The first meeting of the year will be held in the Trophy Room tomorrow at 8:30. All interested students are invited to attend the meeting.

Previous flying experience is not required for membership and members can learn to fly.

THE TREEHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON

Spring is just around the corner, and with spring, as always, will come tree-sitting contests. This I applaud. Tree-sitting is healthful and jolly and as American as apple pie. Also it keeps down the arrests.

Tree-sitting is not, however, without its hazards, as you will presently see when I tell you the dread and chilling tale of Manuel Sigafoos and Ed Pancress.

Manuel and Ed, friends and room-mates, were walking one day past the folk music room in the School of Dentistry and Fine Arts. Suddenly they stopped, for coming through the door of the folk music room was a clear and thrilling alto voice singing the lovely folk tune, I Strangled My True-Love with Her Own Velvet Bridle, and I'll Never Eat Her Sorghum Any More.

When the last shimmering notes of the ballad had died away, Manuel and Ed rushed into the room, and there they thought their swelling hearts must burst asunder. For the singer was so beautiful as the song! Fair as the morn she was, doe-eyed and ravishlenz.

"My name is Manuel Sigafoos," cried Manuel Sigafoos, "and I love you madly, wildly, tempestuously!"

"My name is Ed Pancress," cried Ed Pancress, "and I love you more than Miguel Sigafoos."

"My name is Ursula Thing," cried the girl, "and I've got a sun-dandy idea. Why don't you two have a contest, and I will sit steady with the winner?"

"What kind of contest?" cried Manuel and Ed.

"A tree-sitting contest," cried Ursula Thing. "Natch!"

"Done and done," cried Manuel and Ed, and they clambered and adjoining sapens, taking with them the following necessaries: food, water, clothing, medicaments, bedding, reading matter, and—most scential of all—plenty of Philip Morris cigarettes.

For who lives on the ground, with all the attendant advantages, know how important Philip Morris cigarettes are. Think, then, how much more important they must be to the lonely tree dweller—how much more welcome their vintage tobacco, how much more soothing their mild pure flavor, how much more comforting to know as one sits in leafy solitude that come wind or weather, come light or dare, Philip Morris will always remain the same dependable, reliable, flavorful friend.

Well supplied with Philip Morris, our heroes began their contest —Manuel with good heart, Ed with evil cunning. The shocking fact is that Ed intended to win the contest with a Machiavellian ruse. It seems that Ed, quite unbeknownst to Manuel, was one of three identical triplets. Each night while Manuel dozed on his bough, one of Ed's brothers—Fred or Jed—would sneak up the tree and replace him. Thus Ed was spending only one-third as much time in the tree as Manuel. "How can I lose?" said Ed with a crafty giggle to his brother Fred or Jed.

But Ed had a surprise coming. For Manuel, though he did not know it himself, was a droid! He had been abandoned as an infant at the hut of a poor and humble woodcutter named Winthrop Mayhew Sigafoos, who had raised the child as his own. So when Manuel got into the tree, he found to his surprise that he'd never fell so at home and happy in his life, and he had absolutely no intention of ever leaving.

After four or five years Ed and his brothers wearied of the contest and conceded. Ursula Thing came to Manuel's tree and called him to come down and join her. He declined. Instead he asked her to join him in the tree. This he could not do, being subject to acromegaly (a morbid allergy to woodpeckers) so she ended up with Ed.

Only she made a mistake—a very natural mistake. It was Jed she ended up with, not Ed.

Ed, heartbroken at being tricked by his own brother, took to metallurgy to forget.

Crime does not pay.

©Max Shulman 1955

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS cigarettes, who suggest that if you are ever up a tree when trying to find a gift, give PHILIP MORRIS. They're sure to please.

VALENTINE SPECIAL "PORTRAITS"
THIS AD IS WORTH
$1.00 —on a Regular
$3.00 8x10 black & white
BILLFOLD SIZE INCLUDED AT HALF PRICE
10:30 A. M. to 3:30 P. M.—This Week
Clubroom, 2nd Floor
LONGMIRE BUILDING

France Exhibit Features Work Of FSU Artist

A poster bearing a reproduction of a painting by Miss Flora Kava, art instructor here, is currently on exhibit in the art department.

The poster was received from France, said department spokesmen.

Miss Kava's painting is part of an exhibition, "Contemporary Water Colors of the United States," which is now in Toulouse, France, and will be touring some of the larger cities of that country during the coming year.

Miss Kava is represented by two paintings, "Florida Landscape" and "Sunset in the South," which was reproduced on the poster.

The French exhibition includes examples by such American artists as William Baxnore, Arthur Carver, University of Florida; Lamar Dodd, University of Georgia, and Robert Motherwell.

Both the poster, which was sent to Miss Kava directly, and the catalog of the exhibition illustrate the keen interest which the French Government takes in the promotion of cultural relations between nations said Dr. Adolph Karl, acting head, FSU art department.

He added that European countries are active in promoting their own artists and also bring the best examples of foreign art to their people, yet the United States has done little of this in the opinion of most artists and critics

Waitress looking at a nickel tip left by guest:

"What are you trying to do, big hey, seduce me?"

Peacetime Veterans Ineligible For Korean GI Bill Benefits

Persons entering the armed forces for the first time on and after Feoruary 1 will be peacetime veterans when they leave service and, as such, will be entitled only to peacetime benefits, announced the Veterans Administration.

Peacetime veterans, under present laws, will not be eligible for any of the benefits provided by the Korean GI Bill nor for any wartime service benefits payable to veterans of the Korean conflict period.

Peacetime veterans may be entitled, under certain conditions, to medical and domiciliary compensation, aid for the blinded, "wheel chair" homes, servicemen's indemnity, guaranty of certain life insurance premiums burial expenses, burial flag, guardianship service and appeals. Their dependents may be entitled to death compensation in the event the veteran die of service-connected causes.

The benefits and conditions are.

Medical and Dental Care: A peacetime veteran may be entitled to hospitalization, outpatient medical and dental treatment and prosthetic service, provided he was discharged under other than dishonorable conditions for a disability incurred in line of duty or is receiving compensation for a service-connected disability

Domiciliary Care—A peacetime veteran may be entitled to domiciliary care if he meets the above eligibility requirements and is incapacitated from earning a living and has no adequate means of support.

Servicemen's Indemnity—Persons entering active service on or after February 1 are automatically covered against death in active service for $10,000—less any other Government life insurance in force at time of death.

For those called in active duty 31 days or more, the five indemnity protection continues for 120 days after separation or release from active service.

After their separation from service, these veterans may obtain two types of post-service government life insurance under certain conditions.

The first type is a 5-year level premium term policy that is renewable every five years at the premium rate for the then-attained age without medical examination. This type of term policy is not convertible to any other form of Government life insurance, nor does it pay dividends.

Veterans who may apply for this insurance are those who were ordered into active duty for 31 days or more and who were entitled to indemnity protection while they were in service. They must have been released from active service.

These veterans may apply to VA for the insurance within exactly 120 days not always four months after their separation or release. While they do not need a physical examination, they must pay the required premiums. They may take out up to $10,000 of this term insurance less any other Government life insurance in force at the time of application.

The second type of insurance is available to eligible disabled veterans. This coverage is a special form of National Service Life Insurance—NSLI—an endowment term or permanent plan policies.

Veterans eligible for this special insurance are those released or separated from active service on or after April 25, 1951, under other than dishonorable conditions and who are found by VA to be suffering from a service-connected disability or disabilities for which VA compensation would be payable if the disability is 10 per cent or more in degree. They must not be suffering from nonservice-connected disabilities that make them uninsurable.

These veterans must apply to VA for the special NSLI within one year from the date that VA finds their disability or disabilities to be service-connected. Each application must be accompanied by the required physical examination and the necessary premium.

Further information may be obtained at the Selective Service office, 307 Wesicott.

News Briefs

TRI DELTS HAVE AWARD

Delta Delta Delta is announcing acceptance of applications for its annual local scholarship award of $100. This award is open to women undergraduate students; the winner will be announced later in the aprins and the award made before the beginning of the fall semester. Applications may be obtained at the Tri Delta House before March 1st.

DELTA ZETA

Martha Bush has been elected president of the Florida State University Chapter of Delta Zeta, national social sorority, succeeding Martha Garrett.

Cubye Kvale was elected vice-president; Betty Ann Pool, second vice-president; Pat Robson, treasurer; Jean Cooper, recording secretary, and Carol Ann Nydegger, corresponding secretary.

Shirley Bradberry will be the sorority's Pan-Hellenic representative on campus. Catherine Peak will serve as the sorority editor, and Candra Glenn will be the house manager.

GRANT GIVEN DENYES

Dr. H. Arliss Denyes, Assistant Professor, Physiology Department at this time has been awarded a $500 Grant - in-Aid-of-Research from the National Society of Sigma Xi. The grant is to be used for continued study on the ionic balances in the tissues of acclimatized and hibernating hamsters. The general nature of the problem involves the means of resistance in certain mammals to temperatures a few degrees above freezing

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Rho Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega accepted into its ranks of service another members on Sunday, January 16, 1955 at 2 p.m in the Alumni Building where the Ritual took place.

The new brothers of Alpha Phi Omega are: James Crews, Daniel Gorham, Joseph H. Caldwell, Charles D. Herman Jr., Frank LaMar, Allan Cardish, and David Kennedy.

The first semester president, Thomas Damper was the ritual presiding officer.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

The following men were recently elected as officers in the Alpha Kappa Psi, Professional Business Fraternity: President, Gene Crawford; Vice-President, Fred Howard, Secretary, Richard Holahan; Treasurer, Clyde Hare, Publicity Chairman, Wayne Patton, and Rushing Chairman, Bobby Jones.

PI KAPPA PHI

Newly elected officers of Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity for the second semester include: Vic Spoto, Archon; Leo Almerico, Treasurer; Gary Campbell, Secretary; Dick Lukas, Historian; Bill Boatwright, Chaplain, and Jim Ralston, Warden.

The Pi Kappa Phi Rose Ball will be held on February 19th. This is the Pi Kappa Phi's annual formal dance.

KAPPA SIGMA

Kappa Sigma has elected new officers for the spring semester. They are: Jim Byrd, President; Paul Gocke, Vice - President; Davies Overcash, Master of Ceremonies, Jim Thomas, Secretary, John Carbarque, Pledge Master, Gus Alford and Russell Johnson, Guards, and Mark Canto, Social Chairman.

These new officers take over immediately and will handle the affairs of the fraternity throughout the remainder of this semester and next semester.

Elections

(Continued From Page 1)

John Toole and Dave Buchanan.

Not all delegates to Wednesday's convention have been elected, chairman Jonnes revealed Friday. While some residence units have long since elected their delegates, the selection of others will have to be left to house councils.

Senator Ken Gatlin will report on whatever progress has been made in relation to the party's platform of last spring. He is the party a unofficial platform chairman, according to Jonnes

Graham Carothers a chairman of arrangements for the convention.

Game

(Continued From Page 2)

Florida and develop our university in as many ways as we can. Our student body will grow. Our influential alumni will become more numerous. Our football team will get stronger and better and more well known.

Sooner or later, the University of Florida will have to play us—from a financial as well as a social standpoint. But let the sempers cool first.

That suggestion still stands.

Ousted Prof

(Continued From Page 2)

real reasons for his being asked to resign.

Why is Leathers fighting the administration? In his own words, "I feel there are three separate parts of a university —the students, faculty and administration. Of these the administration is the least important." And he notes that it is the administration which predominates in deciding policies.

The April Board of Control hearing should decide the matter once and for all. Leathers' case appears on the wane at present. But he does not seem discouraged.

"I've been a soldier long enough to know I do my sniping first," says Leathers, "and then bring out my heavy artillery if it is needed."

LOST AND FOUND

Locked out? All wet? Blind as a bat? It's your own fault if you haven't been by the Information Desk of the Longwire Building to check on lost and found articles. Keys, glasses, raincoats, and other various and sundry objects that have not been claimed for the last two years will go on sale the 15th, 16th, and 17th of this month. Before the sale to be held in the Information Office students are urged to check for articles that belong to them. They are also requested to turn in anything they found. Miss Jane Adams, Director of the Longwire Building, is in charge of the Lost and Found Department and the sale.

"And They Used To Say I Was Stubborn"

HERZ GETS GRANT

Dr. Werner Herz, associate professor of chemistry at Florida State University in Tallahassee, has been awarded a $2,400 research grant from the National Institute of Health for a project on "Analogs of Isoquinolines and B-Carbolines."

Dade County Official Interviews Teachers

Prospective teachers will be interviewed by Miss Alice Kahl of the Dade County School System on February 10 Appointments may be obtained from Mrs. Farmer of Vocational Guidance and Placement, ext. 3261.

(Continued From Page 1)

Understanding

Communist China, while unjust, may not appear more so in Chinese eyes than our refusal to let some Chinese students return home. Some FSU alumni, incidentally, have had trouble getting back.

He observed that one has to look at the whole picture, and ask the question: "What would cause greater damage to the U.S.: to let a student who has studied several years here and who enjoyed his stay and likes America to go back and take the chance that he might share some of his knowledge with the Communists, or to detain him here against his will arousing not only his enmity but the indignation of his countrymen and many people throughout the world who consider it a basic human right to be able to live with one's own family?".

Dr. Lezsco was on a Fulbright research grant in Japan in 1953-54, from which came his first book, "Report from Hokkaido."

Of his stay he said that, "there is at present relatively little pro-Communist sentiment in Japan." And that there "appears to be a considerable reservoir of friendship toward the American people in general."

A philosopher is a man who can look into an empty glass and smile

Meetings Scheduled

ENGLISH CLINIC

The English For Foreign Student Clinic meets tonight at 7:30 in Room 219 of the Music Building. Final arrangements for the hours will be made at that time announced Mrs. Sandra Sellers spokesman.

DELTA SIGMA PI

Delta Sigma Pi, Business Fraternity, will hold its first professional Meeting of the second semester on Wednesday night February 9th at eight o'clock in the Trophy Room of the Student Center. The guest speaker will be Noah Calder, Representative of the M. Kidder Company in Tallahassee. All interested students are cordially invited to attend.

MEN'S "F" CLUB

The first meeting of the spring semester for the Men's "F" Club will be held Wednesday night at 7:30 at the Women's Gym. All members are urged to be present. There will be a meeting of the initiation committee at 7 PM before the meeting.

"Gee, pardon me for slapping your face, I thought you were trying to steal my sorority pin."

For Your Daily Supplies & Sundries

MALONE'S BOOK STORE

NAME BAND STARS
ENTERTAINMENT & VOCALS
"Irv" Doress Music
Orchestras For Dancing and Listening

The Fantares Trio
The Nutones Quintet
The Aristokats Octet

779 El Dorado Tel. 3-1176

STUDENTS-Clip This Now!

$1,000.00 IN CASH PRIZES
For the Best Essay — (250 to 500 Words)
On The Subject
"How I Would Increase the Popularity of Cigarillos"

RULES
1. Only bonafide students of accredited colleges are eligible to compete. 1st prize $500, 2d, $200, 3d, $100, plus four $50 prizes.
2. Essays must be accompanied by one (1) RING (DIAMOND CIGARILLO band, or reasonable facsimile thereof.
3. Only one entry accepted from each student.
4. Contest now open. Closes April 30, 1955.
5. Mail entry to Box 3097, Jacksonville, Florida. Decision of judges will be final. All entries become the property of...

JNO. H. SWISHER & SON, INC.
Makers of King Edward Cigarillos

"You don't have to inhale to enjoy a Cigarillo"

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"Abbott and Costello Meet the Keystone Cops"
WED. THEU SAT
"Sign of the Pagan" with Jeff Chandler

STATE
TODAY
"Four Guns to the Border"
Rory Calhoun
WED. THRU SAT.
"Susan Slept Here" with Debbie Reynolds

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY & TOMORROW
"Tarzan and the Ape Man"
Johnny Weismuller plus
"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"
Spencer Tracy
THUESDAY
"Lone Gun"
Geo. Montgomery
"Dangerous Crossing"
Jeanne Crain

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW
"His Majesty O'Keefe"
Burt Lancaster
THURSDAY
"Wagon Trains West" with Wild Bill Elliot also
"Battle Circus"
Humphrey Bogart

here's how to win at the game of hearts on Valentines Day

It's so easy to be king of hearts! Even easier than it was to carve your initials and hers on a fence or tree! Just look at this page. Any of these gifts and hundreds of others that we can show you are just what she will sigh over. Take the time out to be romantic . . . we'll help you make it a quick and a happy choice.

The Vogue

When you've only had time to cram for part of the course...

and that's the part they ask you on the final exam...

M-m-man, that's PURE PLEASURE!

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!

No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!

P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos! That's why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

IN THIS ISSUE—
NSA Speaker
Appears Here—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

Vol. XL NO. 27 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1955

Carothers Named To Student Party Chairman's Post

Tews Concedes Election After One Balloting

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Truman Carothers was acclaimed Chairman of the Student Party Wednesday night in the first mid-year party convention.

In spite of the convention being in attempt by the West Hall bloc to gain majority in block passage of a constitutional amendment to allow the chairman to call for secret ballot in case of deadlock, the unexpected appearance of Jackie Miner, defeated for the vice chairmanship last year, who polled the number of day students.

Members was conceded the post party chairman by runner-up Tews after a vote giving voters slightly less than the required two-thirds majority. Tews used the convention to acclaim Carothers chairman in the interest party unity.

In all only one of a series of passed constitutional changes to previously questioned. was ignring the party chairman the to call for a secret ballot in case of deadlock, if approved by a majority of the convention.

Were To Reconsider

After passage of the amendment, Jim Hall delegate Vern Williams stated that the move be reconsidered because it had not been passed before the constitutional Student Party has been open to above board in all its dealings in the past," said Williams. "If no one has seen fit to oppose the voting before it." An amendment to have all who seek party nomination pay a fee as well as those who present nomination was also questioned, but such changes were finally made.

Tony's attack on day student representation came after former Truman Jimmy Joanos had made his power to Carothers. He proposed that the Student Party "live up to its first order business as the next convention, the limitation of the number of day student delegates.

Asside Attacked

A lack of interest among day students on voting day was used before as the basis of his claim that they were over-represented. He stated in the "alliance" formed by the framers of the Student Party Constitution to allow a day representative for every hundred day students.

Ken Sanders' proposal, party member Ken Gatlin said that he could "remain the party" if the number of day student delegates was cut down. He declared that with already receive less representation than other student groups.

Constitutional committee chairman Hans Tews said in answer to Gatlin that the problem will be worked on, and assured the members that there would be a new hearing. Gatlin was appeased.

Supporting the Student Party's Negro last year, Ken Kaslin was the first speaker at the convention and outlined the progress made by the Student Party in 1954. He pointed out the interest in students on faculty committees of the party planks, and declared the Student Party was responsible for the system of voluntary health insurance for students. Gatlin said that another plank is to have an auto salvage yard Activity money. He said that about five weeks ago he informed a bill in Student Senate to provide for this plank.

Thought Favorable

It was my opinion that all of the Senate would be in favor of a out-of-the-semester solid. The opposition was the Men's Vice-President, who sought to stall the bill. The means he used were to fight the bill on its merits, not to be attacked my method of processing it.

I feel it is my duty to report to this convention that this is typical of the opposition that we receive from the Men's Vice President. He said the bill later passed despite the opposition.

Continuing on his progress report Gatlin said the Student Party has not become a political appendage for the fulfillment of the wishes of any one person.

It is our duty to work for the best interests of the students at Florida State University."

At this point Carmine Ranieri was chosen party secretary, after much constitutional amendments were considered.

One change made it the duty of the executive committee to call a party convention in February. The position of treasurer of the Student Party was created. Other changes were on the nominatory Sub and secret ballot. Charlie Chester was chosen to fill the newly-formed office of treasurer.

Jensen Makes Speech

Jensen made a short speech before relinquishing his power to brothers. "Last Spring," he said, "there were serious doubts

(Continued on Page 3)

Degree Applications Must Be Turned In Before February 16

Wednesday February 16 is the last day applications may be filed for degrees in June.

Seniors who expect to graduate then must apply at the registrar's office before that date.

A senior class meeting has been set for March 2 to discuss class gifts and the university gift. Bob Canada heads the committee to discuss these matters.

NSA Speaker To Visit Here This Weekend

Harry H. Lunn, Jr., president of the U. S. National Students Association, will visit Florida State University for three days beginning tomorrow.

Lunn, last year's editor of The Nation has been adapted to arrive here late tomorrow afternoon.

Because of the weekend schedule he will be unable to address a campus assembly during his visit, but he will speak to a special session of the Student Senate on Monday at 1:15 p.m.

Lunn is presently on a tour of Southern universities. He will come to Tallahassee from the University of Florida, where he is visiting on a three-day meet. On Sunday, he will visit Florida A&M campus, and attend various assemblies on this campus Tuesday morning he will leave for Atlanta.

Invited By Editor

Lunn was invited here by Bob Hixon, editor of The Florida Flambeau, when the latter was in Washington last October at the annual Associated Collegiate Press meet.

Concerning on his visit, Folsom said: "Lunn is a dynamic speaker, and clearly a fine representative of USNSA's ideals and objectives." The Flambeau editor said he believed many students would be interested in hearing Lunn while he was at FSU.

FSU is not a member school of USNSA. Last September the Student Senate voted to accept a report by Senator Jim Boles opposing FSU affiliation with USNSA.

JUNIOR MUSICAL RECITAL SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY

Martha Slayden and Wendell Barnhill, students of the FSU School of Music, will appear in a Junior Recital to be held Monday evening, February 14

The program will begin at 8:15 p.m. in the studio of Betty Jane Grimm, Opperman Music Hall. Martha Slayden, soprano, will be accompanied by James Hussong and James Walls will accompany Wendell Barnhill, violist. Both solos and duets will be featured on the program.

Local Action Preferred

Florida Leaders Express Desegregation Views

By OSCAR JOHNSON

De-segregation in schools should be worked out by local federal courts aided by commission of law.

Two speakers made this point during a panel discussion at Florida State University Monday night.

Members of the panel, organized by the FSU chapter of the American Association of University Professors, were Dr. Lewis Killian, professor of sociology and Assistant Atty. Gen. Ralph Odum. and Dr. Gilbert Porter, executive secretary of the Florida State Teachers Association

Killian is Moderator

Dr. Killian, acting as moderator of the panel, pointed out that the United States Supreme Court's decision in May, 1954, "apparently applied to elementary and public high schools."

But it is possible that this ruling may be extended to cover universities and, sometime, the faculty at FSU would be directly concerned with the general problem.

He said the court mentioned how complex the problem was, and asked for briefs from various states and interested parties before putting the decision into effect.

Speaking next, Assistant Attorney General Odum said "It may be that as a result of this decision, the whole social system in Florida is at stake.

Moral and Ethical Aspects

"There are many moral and ethical aspects to the decision," he declared. "It was not a new problem, but the crystallization of an old."

Odum reviewed the present legal system regarding segregation in the south. The new Supreme Court ruling has reversed the old ruling that "separate but equal" state but equal facilities.

Odum has just returned from Washington, D. C., where he conferred with Attorney General Richard Ervin and examined briefs prepared by other states on segregation. The essence of their briefs, Odum said, is that they reached an "amazing agreement" on the basic issue. All asked the Supreme Court not to appoint a Master to investigate segregation, and urged instead that the court remand the cases to the local federal courts.

Defends Action as Legal

Calling this method an orderly legal procedure, declared that it is not an attempt to defy the court or circumvent it.

De-segregation will require time and planning, added Odum, since the investigation should be a "great gulf and too little understanding" existing between the two races in Florida.

Dr. Killian, representing the views of the social scientists, pointed out that there are no differences in intelligence between the white and Negro races. "Refinements of intelligence tests show that innate differences cannot be demonstrated."

He said that sociologists have shown the effects of segregation on personality are very unfavorable, adding that this is what the Supreme Court made a part of its decision.

"The accurate have also found, as a result of a great deal of research, that the white race is superior states, that where leadership takes a firm stand, desegregation can be made to work in spite of the initial hostility toward change.

"The question, therefore, is to get the leaders to take a positive stand."

Four Alternatives Cited

In attempting to answer the question, Dr. Killian spoke on some of the legal aspects of the change. He outlined four alternatives the Supreme Court could chose in enforcing its ruling:

1) A decree that would end segregation immediately. Of this course, he recalled that the first appellant argued against postponement. But, he said, the arguments against it are that a sudden change would produce disorganization among the whites for not allowing them reasonable time to adjust, and that there would be harmful effects upon Negro children who "would suddenly be placed in a hostile atmosphere." He said the court would probably not take this step.

2) A gradual change from segregation to integration with no time limits detailed decrees. He said

(Continued on Page 3)

Nav Student Party Chairman Takae Ovar

Former Chairman hands gavel to Graham Carothers, as West Hall delegata Hans Tews looks on.

Collins, Johns, Given Honorary Membership In Politics Club

Governor LeRoy Collins and former Governor Charley E. Johns recently accepted memberships in the Florida State University Politics Club.

Frosh Carnival Floor Show Has Parisian Theme

The annual Freshman Class Carnival will feature a Parisian theme this year.

The hazgrat project of the class, this year's Carnival will be held on Saturday, March 12, in the Women's Gym. All freshmen are invited and urged to participate in the planning and presentation of the project.

Bob Donahow will follow the Parisian theme and entertainment of all the events. Can-Can dancers, singers, pantomimists, Masters of ceremonies and contests are all necessary. Anyone wanting to help with the floor show is asked to contact Bill Sweet, Box 241, and the Freshman class officers.

Students are also needed to help on the various committees. These are Angelo Stanley, chairman, Box 306 Decorations; Joyce McRae, 338, Booths; Patsy Stewart, 17, Publicity; Mary Ann Snead, 3017; King and Queen, Sylvia Wills, 259; Food, Barbara Chambers, 589.

Invitations, Wilma Pagen, 989; Stage Fisher, 1068, Tickets; Jackie Altman, 1227 and Prizes, Karl Edwards, 839 Forest Theatre, Tallahassee.

Former FSU Student Joins Smathers Staff

Leonard Meeker, '50, has joined the staff of Senator George Smathers as public relations and research aide.

At FSU, Meeker was a part-time assistant to the public relations director and a member of the Key campus honorary leadership fraternity. His major was political science.

FSU Senate Reviews Bills On Printing Service, Traffic, Finance, Election Change

Solons Discuss Possibilities Of Multigraph Buy

Press Would Provide Jobs For Students

Student Senate appears to be going into the printing business as a result of Wednesday's meeting.

The legislators voted to make duplicating and public address equipment available to the student "at a nominal fee" and a student hired to maintain the equipment.

A bill was also introduced which, if passed, will authorize the purchase of a multigraph machine with unused funds from the student travel basket.

The machine which does lithographing, would be used as a professional concern, with students hired to run it, the bill explained. It would be available for job orders from student organizations and individuals.

Halford Sponsors Bills

Both measures were sponsored by Sen. Joan Halford's Labor, Student Service and Education committee. Co-sponsors are Senators Bill Wasoner, Carolyn Cook, Hank McCann and Bonnie Blue.

The multigraph machine bill will come up at next week's meeting.

The legislators dispensed with a second reading, however, on the measure providing that the duplicating, public address machine and the public address equipment now owned by the Student Government shall be available to the students.

The equipment will be kept in the office of the Counselor of Organizations. It is stated that a student will be hired to operate the equipment, deriving his salary from the rentals. He will be one dollar an hour for private jobs and student, Government jobs.

Senator Halford said that the student hired to run the machine will have a steady income and that the job would help the condition of business for his salary.

Senator Bill Stancik questioned the bill, stating that it was unwise to enter into competition with the supervision of the executive He was informed by Halford that the bill should be under the supervision of the executive Organizations.

In addition to debating the bill on changing the system of representation, referred to elsewhere in this issue, the Senate

DEBATED at length, but finally tabled the bill to allow a resolution to make Jacksonville Beach, Florida, the site of the library past Lonstmre Building to West Call Street; a one-way thoroughfare in the old South. Opposition centered on the problem of traffic and the increased traffic, relieved of the present congested conditions. would travel at dangerous speeds. It was also held that the end effect would be creating one of the lanes, resulting in the same congestion all headed in the same direction. The bill mentioned whether the street may be changed in the near future.

CONSIDERED a resolution, later tabled, to require that copies of all subsequent resolutions, as well as bills, be submitted to each Senator before adoption.

Bat Court Recognized

Senator Bill Stancik, president of local, reconsolation to the Freshman and Pre-Med and Pat Court, citing it as a "valuable and worthwhile function of the freshman and Pre-Med organizations, and urging "all members of these groups to participate wholeheartedly."

PASSED a bill providing for the construction of two student suggestion boxes on campus.

FIRST READING of a bill making technical corrections in an assiler measure concerning traffic court, setting $5 and $10 as the respective maximum fines for not paying automatic parking fines within 48 hours and for offenses such as reckless driving, speeding, running stop signs and failure to obey officers' orders. The earlier act set the minimum but failed to set the maximum fines.

When it was noted that there are more than 4,000 students on campus who have paid the activity fee, Williams said the extra money will be budgeted to the student organizations.

Senator Ken Gatlin later introduced a bill aimed at clearing up the questions of how much money should be credited to the student activity fee each semester. After Williams reported that this year's budget was drawn on the basis of 4,000 regular students, a smaller number than the actual figure.

$5,000 More Needed

He said that approximately $5,000 extra should be divided among the Tally-Ho, Smoke Signals and The Florida Flambeau.

Raised printing costs, he said, have made a boost necessary.

Be presented to the Senate an audit showing how much each organization deriving money from the student activity fee was allotted, how much it has spent through March 31, and how much remains to it.

Williams suggested that part of the incomes of the business managers of the various publications of the organizations differs from the amount originally anticipated and budeted, the finance committee could then budget the money from the student activity fees as approved by the Senate."

Student Finance Subsecretary Reports On Budget Inadequacy

Appropriations for the three student publications should be increased, Under-Secretary of Finance for Audit J. T. Williams Jr. told the Student Senate Wednesday.

A bill was later introduced to settle the problem of how much money should be credited to the student activity fee each semester, after Williams reported that this year's budget was drawn on the basis of 4,000 regular students, a smaller number than the actual

Williams reported that the present student activity fee was allotted how much it has spent through March 31, and how much remains to it.

Williams suggested that part of the incomes of the business managers of the various publications of the organizations differs from the amount originally anticipated and budeted, the finance committee could then budget the money from the student activity fees as approved by the Senate."

"In the event that the amount of money made available for a given purpose differs from the amount originally anticipated and budeted, the finance committee could then budget the money from the student activity fees as approved by the Senate."

"The total amount of money collected from student activity fees, regardless of the number of students requesting at the university and pay the student activities fees shall be budgeted for use by student organizations and activities in accordance with the constitution.

"In the event that the amount of money made available for a given purpose differs from the amount originally anticipated and budeted, the finance committee could then budget the money from the student activity fees as approved by the Senate."

Amendment For Representation Hotly Protested

Called 'Unjust,' 'Discriminatory' To Non-Dorms

By MARTIN DURKMAN

A constitutional amendment to provide for combined dormitory-class representation in Student Senate came before that body Wednesday.

It was promptly attacked.

Vice-President Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn introduced the amendment which empbodies many of the recommendations they made in their theses, typewritten, report on open hearings held by their sub-committee studying the representation problem.

The basic features are Representation of each dormitory and of each class Freshmtins, sophomres and day students are not included, although it is the apparent intention that they should will be equitably represented by the class senators.

Two Men Elected Immediately

Men's Vice-President Gordon Gaarer immediately attacked the amendment as "unjust and discriminatory. He protested that it would allow a dormitory resident to vote for both dormitory and class senators, while a non-dormitory voter could participate only in the class elections.

Moore replied that adding representatives from the Greek letter organizations and the day students would not improve representation

Senators Ken Gatlin and Jona Hallord have announced that they will offer two amendments to the proposal at last week's meeting, and let the Senators take their pick. Their alternatives have been placed on file.

Moore's plan provides for:

Two men and a woman from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes, to be elected in the spring.

Three men from the freshman class to be elected during freshman elections.

One senator each from Gilchrist, Lasdie, Florida and Cawthon to be elected in the spring by those having reserved rooms in the respective dormitories for the coming year.

One Senator each from Magnolia and Reid Halls, and two senators from West Hall, to be elected in the spring by the women residents.

One senator each from Jennie Murphree, Reynolds and Bryan-Broward combined, to be elected during freshman elections. (Gilchrist freshmen, if any, void vote and run for office in the Bryan-Broward group.)

Senators would be required to live in the dormitories which elected them.

By this plan the freshmen would be assured of six senators. The non-freshmen women's dormitories would be assured four, and the men's dormitories also of four. Class representation, while unusually, but not always, fraternity or sorority members, would be the result if dormitory residents also

Vice-President Gaarer attacked the plan on the grounds that it would not give adequate representation to non-sorority sororities and the day students

Moore's committee had turned down a plan to divide the campus into precincts with approximately the same number of dorms fraternities in each precinct, and the dormitories likewise divided into precincts, with a few dorms in each

Eastern Gatlin and Halford, however, have said that their alternate proposals to be introduced next week would provide for precinct representation in a manner similar to that described above.

Moore told the Senate, Wednesday, that the Greek fraternities and sororities area representation wouldn't work unless each chapter could have a senator He claimed that this would result in an impractically large senate

"The problems before the Senate are problems concerning the entire student body anyway," he noted

A controversy developed over the question of sending the amendment to committee for

(Continued on Page 4)

UF Guggenheim Award Winner Is Coffee Hour Lecturer Today

Andrew Lytle, author of At the Moon's Inn Bedford Forest, and His Critter Company, will be the guest speaker at the English Coffee Hour today.

He will speak at 4 p.m. at the Westminster House.

The author of many works of fiction and biography, Lytle has been associated with Vanderbilt, Sewanee and is a nationally-distinguished member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Now Florida State University chapter of KA will form a guard of honor with flea cremonies to welcome the author at the event, spokesmen said.

Guggenheim Winner

Lytle is a two-time winner of the Guggenheim Award. He graduated from Vanderbilt University and was a member of Baker's 47 Workshop, School of Drama, Yale. He has been managing editor of the now defunct Review and head of an annual conference for writers in Utah.

Some 1948 he has been secretary Author Series" said that the English department is off to a good start this semester. "Dr. Bernard Sweet, well known southern historian, talked with us on the problem of research and a full house last Friday."

Writers scheduled so appear m February are John MacDonald, Leon Griffith, Mary Slaughter and Phillip Wylie. These coffee hour sessions are informal" and said spokesmen. "The talk is always good and the coffee hot."

Diggers At Work — Charles Fairbanks, assistant professor of anthropology and archaeology and Carol Irwin and Bruce Linabaugh, two of his students, dig for Spanish and Indian articles at a Pine Tufts mission-village site outside of Tallahassee Fairbanks appears on FSU's weekly TV program tomorrow over WMBR-TV, Jacksonville.

Soph, Senior Breakfast Is February 20

The Sophomore-Senior breakfast has been scheduled for February 20, it was announced when plans to intern this semester to attend the event.

Beginning at 8:30 a.m. in the Suwanee Room, the breakfast will be over at 10:30 to allow time to go to church. Sunday was chosen to enable the maximum number of people to attend, said Sophomore Vice President Ray Lasdie, chairman of the affair. Since this is the first day of Intersession Faith Week, the theme will be added. Tickets will be added.

Students may come unaccompanied but it was suggested that sophomores having seniors "invite" an underclassmen to be their guests. Other guests will include members of the faculty, University administration, and senior counselors.

Ticket selling 30 days prior to sold before hand by members of the Women's Sophomore Council and Senior Class representatives.

No tickets will be sold at the door, and ticket sales will end February 19.

Paul Ort, reporting on the last meeting of the Sophomore class officers, announced that many activities would be held during the semester. A meeting of the whole class will be held soon to coordinate the activities and get ideas from the class members, he added.

Almost Another Grand Canyon

We would like to praise those individuals who finally filled that hole in Opperman parking lot. For a while we thought it was going to engulf us all.

Some Stimulating Seminars But . . .

The appearance of two seminars this semester may now offset the fact that there are few stimulating programs on contemporary thought at Florida State University—a problem we have recently been lamenting.

The American Studies Seminar consists of fifteen lectures to acquaint students with the ideas that relate to American life. The Social Studies Seminar, or Basic Problems of 20th Century, is in the form of a great issues approach to the American and world scene.

To the statement made by Dr. Randel, supervisor of the American Studies program, that the student "should learn more than he knows about America's place in the world today"—we might add that students should come out of these seminars knowing much more about the society around him.

The seminars embrace society from the three basic points: political, economic and social and should be extremely stimulating and beneficial to all students. They promote an interchange of ideas, and they create thought, still the main purposes, we think, of a university. Also it is very heartening to know that the Liberal Arts seems blossoming locally.

At the first session students came out praising these seminars—which is sufficient proof to us of pending success. Students around here are often pretty stingy with their praise of academic features so we hope the seminars will continue to be growing concerns. We are, however, still lamenting the fact that only these two seminars scheduled on the same night, but at exactly the same hour.

No More Walls, Please

Elsewhere on this page we are reprinting a story about a proposed visit by Russian students and student editors to the United States. This plan is similar to the tour undertaken by a number of American college editors in the Soviet Union last year.

The State Department denied visas to these students when they applied last summer saying that they should reapply when more colleges are in session. Since then various fears have been generated about this proposed visit.

The authenticity of these Russians as "students" has been questioned. Others say that this is merely a propaganda move, and fear that these students may spread communism while in the country.

There may be some question as to their "student" standing but these Russians are being sent here as student leaders, and as such, their opinions certainly will be student life in the Soviet Union. If their opinions are highly regarded, as we are told they are, what they see here should have that much more effect on students back in their country. And only those people who think they will spread communism here will quell their ridiculous fears. Our ideas and way of life should easily combat any views they may offer us.

Up to now they have been fed an intense, one-sided view of America. It's time we show them, as the University of Denver said, of the existence of George Orwell's "1984" since it seems they only know of Steinbeck's "Grapes of Wrath." It is doubtful, also, that a better way can be found to propagate our own views and structure of society to these people than by letting them see with their own eyes what America is really like.

If the State Department continues in their refusal to grant a visa it will do much more harm than good, especially since they are only returning our visit. We do not want to throw a wall up around this country even if certain politicians and groups persist in their anti-Communist crusades.

Footnote To An Obit

Ira Hayes is dead, and most of the obituaries will say almost everything except the thing that matters.

Yes, he was a hero. He was one of the six Marines who raised the U.S. flag on Mt. Suribachi, and the photographic record of that dramatic episode will adorn all our history books for a long time to come.

But Ira Hayes was also an Indian. We gave him all the frenzied adulation of the ticker-tape parades. Then, after the war, when all the parades were over, he observed sadly that "in Arizona the white race still looks down on the Indian."

Now he is dead, and the press notices are again terrific. The hero will be honored, and the Indian will be buried; it is more comfortable for many folks this way. The cynicism and anxiety with which white men offer the Indian 100 proof whisky and 20 proof citizenship will be barely mentioned. They will go all-out for Ira Hayes again, as they did during the parades and the bond rallies. He will be given a gaudy place in our textbooks, and thus a lot of Americans will try to forget how we have denied him and his brothers the thing that might have counted most: equality.

—The New York Post

More Equal Representation

The question of Student Government representation promises to be one of the most difficult ever to confront the Senate.

There is concerted opposition to the combination system advocated by Vice-president Coyle Moore and Sen. Nancy Vaughn. Their system is, at present, the one before Senate.

It gives representation to the dormitories, but not to the fraternities or sororities or the day students. It is held that preserving part of the class system of representation will protect the interests of these groups.

One speaker in Senate Wednesday came right to the point, however, when he noted that a dormitory resident could vote for both his dormitory senators and his class representatives. A fraternity man could vote for his class representatives only.

It is argued that he would be fairly represented that way. After all, most senators now are fraternity or sorority members. And besides, we don't want a Greek-Independent war on campus.

Yet somehow we can't help feeling that if people living in dormitories are represented on that basis, people living elsewhere ought to have an equal voice. It's the principle that matters.

There are objections, however, to dividing up the non-dormitory areas. Some say that certain Greek organizations couldn't get along within individual precincts. The largest group would elect the senator, they say. Or they might rotate the office from house to house over the years.

Even that would be better than the present, ineffective system of so-called class representation.

There need not be this friction within the precincts if they were established that way, however. Only the warring factions themselves would suffer by not sending their own qualified people to Senate. For their own sake, they'd soon snap out of their childishness.

The day students, it is true, present a problem. Of course we can't put a senator in every Tallahassee rooming house. The fairest solution would be to set up the day student lounges in Longmire as precincts, and let the students vote there. There wouldn't be geographical representation, but they would certainly have more control over their representatives than they do now.

It is not necessary to hold elections for Senate in the Spring. Under the precinct system each group could elect its senators soon after the first semester begins. Campaigns would be short and inexpensive, for they would be on a personal basis and conducted in a relatively small area.

The assumption that the men's dormitories can choose senators in the Spring is also misleading. We'd estimate that the turnover in residents from one year to the next, or of a place like West Hall is possibly as much as 50%. Half of the Senator's constituents would be people who weren't around to vote for or against him the year before.

The constitutional amendment itself will be subject to some amendments from the floor of Senate next week. They're already on the agenda. They will provide for more equitable representation of all students.

Student Government is in an unusual predicament. Either they change the system completely to out-and-out precinct representation, which for convenience's sake would require doing away completely with the outdated class system, or they came up with a compromise which is unfair due to its restricted scope. If the combination system is passed by Senate and accepted by the students, they will have the latter case.

It might be well for the students to attend next week's Senate session en masse, or contact their Senators if attendance is impossible. Their opinions must determine this vital change in student government organization.

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor — Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Asst. News Editors: Oscar Vaughn, Martin Dickman

Sports Editors: Bob Guthrie, Dick Victory
Sports Staff: Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusements Editor: David Davis
Photographer: Lloyd Anderson, A. P. Ims

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Distribution: Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Copy Editors: Pat Marston
Art Consultant: Franklin Adams
Cartoonist: Con Horn
Junior Staff: George Goldstein, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradfield

Mary Lia King, Adv. Mgr.

Advertising Staff: Frank Hiett, Nina Rule, Don Rogers

Nationals, Represented by National Advertising Service 420 Madison Ave., New York 17

The Florida Flambeau is published every Friday of school except holidays and examination periods by the students of Florida State University.

Member Associated Collegiate Press

"Exactly! There's A Plot To Make Us Look Foolish"

From Other Colleges

Russians Plan Visit

In recent months, student leaders at eight colleges and universities have urged Secretary of State John Dulles to grant a group of Russian students and students newspaper editors permission to visit the United States.

This movement is being spearheaded by the American students that have visited the Soviet Union in the past year. Three American college editors visited the U.S.S.R. last September, and seven more made the trip last December and January. They came from Michigan, Colorado, Chicago, Minnesota and Northwestern universities and Oberlin, Reed and Knox colleges.

On their visit they viewed Moscow, Kiev, Tiflis, Baku, Odessa, Leningrad and Kharkov—all the cities covering students, farmers, industrial workers, clerks and bureaucrats.

They said that upon their return they would do everything they could to promote a peaceful exchange of students, and especially their own countries' student newspaper editors.

In a letter dated Dec. 16, the student leaders informed Secretary Dulles that their student councils and editors of those cities had invited Soviet editors to visit their respective campuses and urged him "to grant permission to the group to come to the United States to visit these campuses and any others that might be interested in having them as guests."

As it was, during the past summer the Russians applied for visas, but the State Department suggested that they reapply at a time when more of the colleges would be in session. Later, the editor of the University of Moscow paper Uvarov, stated that his group was planning to reapply for their visas.

The editor-newspaper in the Soviet Union is somewhat different from its American counterpart. Almost all of each daily usually run into the thousands.

(Continued on page 3)

Letters To The Flambeau

On Lecturers

To The Editor:

I believe all of us in the History Department would agree with your sentiments in your editorial of Tuesday. It is quite true that FSU students should attend the various public lectures offered on the campus at far greater numbers than they now do. At the same time I believe most of us on the faculty realize the very large numbers of conflicting attractions which exist. Those of us in history and those associated with the history department have proceeded upon the assumption that an hour's lecture delivered by an expert on his subject might well be worth the expenditure of an hour's time in the library preparing a collateral reading assignment. This is the standard we adopted for the lectures concerned with all of us during the past semester and assignment so that the attendance at the lecture is in no sense obligatory. We do have the hope that our students will discover that these engagements are really interesting and worthwhile and that the trend toward a thirst for knowledge will, so to speak, might evolve from this. Such trends, of course, can not spring suddenly out of nowhere. We also had something of a hope that students here might begin to realize that their own faculty is a first rate university are themselves "outstanding a of knowledgeable figures," although there are, naturally, persons of still greater reputation who might be included in an Artists' Series!

Sincerely,
Earl R. Beck

On Gentlemanship

To the Editor:

This lack of Gentlemanship as I see it, is displayed on the bus service between Westcott and the Student Services Center. They seem to be a rather large group of students, both male and female, who use this service between the class areas at noon, as I am sure it is used regularly at other times. In the large number of men, and I use the term loosely, who use this service seem to grab a seat and slide themselves to it, not noticing the large number of people standing in the aisle. The biggest thing for them to do, of course would have been to rise and give their seat to a coed. It is hard enough for a male student to hold on with one hand while the other hand is loaded with books, but to see a coed standing there just able to reach the bar to hold on and her other hand full of books is just a little too much.

This may be a small matter but if corrected individually it takes life a little more pleasant not only for the coeds but added life for male students as well—who would feel a sense of being true Gentlemen. I would like to see this matter brought to be the friendly school it is but a courtesy now and then.

I hope this matter can be taken care of in the very near future so we can be proud to say of Courteous School real soon thank you in advance for your trouble. I am.

Yours very truly,
Robert W. Pope

The Dissenter

Direct Criticisms Never Made

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

This paper is criticized for many things. It is the object of abuse from people who feel like its editorial policy. It is derided by people who don't think it should have any editorial policy at all.

It is scorned by people whose private interests don't get enough news coverage to suit them. It is lauded by those who are taught to dislike it, for reasons very vague and even more petty.

But the latest criticism is the most. It's the criticism that are people on campus who feel the Flambeau concerns itself unfavorably with too many state, national and international issues. Some of them, in fact, are quite unsuly to the Student Body President.

But none of them have marched into Den 213, Longmire, to tell the editor where he errs. For this matter, few career critiotes the Flambeau directly.

It's their paper—they pay for it. Why then, can't they walk into the office and suggest to the editor that things might be run differently? Why do their opinions have to be blasted out with dynamite when a staff member's around and why are they so free with criticism when no one's around who could take their suggestions to heart?

But this latest — ouch! We grant too many editorials on domestic and international issues. We should concern ourselves more with on-campus issues. Students who are interested in political affairs will tend of them in professional newspapers anyhow. Those who don't care don't want to pay money to read their student newspaper can vainly try to make intelligentsia of them.

This brings us to the purpose of a university, which many "fuzzy-minded" liberals regard as teaching students to think and prepare them to become good citizenship. "The ability to make one's own political judgments and the willingness to make them and carry them out."

Printing opinion (much of it varying, some professional, the best out every) is the means most compatible with the purposes of the university.

"Those people who think a newspaper ought to print only jokes and cartoons—and there are a lot of those people—disagree."

Let's look at still another side. Nothing that goes on in the state, capital of in Washington or on the international scene is far removed from the student body.

Some current events in Egypt, Red Bungsan or Malenkov and has replaced by the Soviet War interest, declavia aimed at Formosa, pending a universal military training, reduction in income taxes, super-highways, the state universities of Florida, Federal aid to the schools, segregation, progress in nuclear science—some might term it "the H-bomb"—the national debt—which the young people of America will have to pay during their day of productivity.

Is there anything listed above which does not concern the youth of America—in particular the college youth—in particular the college student?

Editorials on these topics are indeed concern the students.

Amusements

Etcetera Etching

By DAVID DREIS

The speed was dependent an how fast the operator could turn the crank. Thomas Alva Edison took note of this, and thought about a role of film that could be moved by a "generator". Edison developed the film strikth and the technologies, but believe it or not, this great inventor didn't patent it. He didn't believe moving pictures would ever be a screen had any future. "After all, it's not a private in the KINETOSCOPE."

The years passed and the penny arcade was thriving, but when the penny in the slot machines went up to two cents, the flicker lasting 15-seconds, a man to get cynical. Edison popped out with the cost projector in his cities, he probably would flip his condensor "The Kid" was the first major epic on these gadgets and while it contained no more than a few "simple" busses, was a great page in its time. After that fads films were popularized and although they would see a Jean Willard fight months after the event, it still held its appeal.

Finally sound came around and the bit by at movies. We know the rest—the show. In rome cases the film was developed much since then but the appearance of it was not good for its time and each columnist even then they were perverting the "It's wonderful" ing. You can even see evidence of this on the screen. wasn't bad when the newspaper was tied up, but when he started showing on the same show about the train robbers with his head—well the pitcher had to believe. The western was the forerunner of the biggest movie monormaker today. If you didn't know, westerns are the biggest film market.

The film companies were really going strong, but sales

(Continued on page 3)

Foreign Correspondent

'Life In An Isolation Ward'

By MARY ELIZABETH KING
Special UPI Missionary Correspondent

This is a true, true story. The account of a Mrs. Ward. Ward I am the victim of the "mumps" and I am also still contagious children's disease.

The first wrong step on my part was the teaching of scripture to the youngsters at my Sunday. I thought I wouldn't be caught but there was all the evidence I needed for a measle-like blisters from head to toe and—Mumps, I had it.

The first step of detection came purely by a wrong scratch on the abdominal region. Now there was only a small swollen gland on my right side. Any feeling in my mouth, a whisker-like burn on my chin and a little fever. I thought it was flu. At first I thought I had fallen out of the Alpha Xi Delta bed or one of my sisters had given me a revengeful kick during the night, but of course I left a ring in the sewage bath-tub, this is a process of fense and naturalists impossible, but I disregarded the last idea. Now I'm sure it was one of the sisters' boy friends had sneaked through the wood box and mistaken my ankle for the celse tattling keys to the woodpen padlock in a pledge project. Anyway I kept on with my work and managed to come in contact with the whole house possible by saying "Feel my gland." "I'll not take the rap alone."

I traveled to advertising class, and accompanied my ever loyal mate building. Flambeau office. Mr. Vogel's office, Dem School, and Sunday School. I was in the building for my history class, and Student Senate. Wednesday almost forgot, at the women's dormitory caused a stir. The Student Party I saw a representative from every sorority. Of course I was the only girl for company still hasn't paid off. I'm still the only one to have mumps and "All By Myself" in isolation.

I felt a wrong scratch defeated all. Picture me doing my homework after chapter meeting, clothed in not-so-much sweater to scratch. Mr roommates were present but not to worry, in need of sad story. In fact, when I scratched and said "Bet, do I look like a measle, I mean I should take a bath once in a while." "The nerve of her knowing as well. It was the night of the previous Saturday night.

Suddenly the brightest of my memories and "She's a measles." Exit roommates.

I quickly put on my pajamas so do not disturb my nerves. Soon there was a knock at the door and the housemother came in with her wee tiny music matrons—one who helped me and one who helped myself gloated. Probably thought the latter was the helping of measles at meal time.

According to the book, I only had about a spoonful or less ever. Even though I gave the number answers to questions. "Have you had measles?" "Yes" and "have you been drowsy?" "Yes, I'm sleepy." Have you a sore throat?" "Only before toast," they phoned the police.

I was advised to start packing. I Walked Alone down the hall with a bag of clothes, soap, tooth brush and comb. Every one stood in their doorways and waved goodbye.

(Continued on page 3)

A Better Measure

Present Conflict Verges On Chaos

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

Once again the world is on the verge of chaos. This time, however, it may not be able to pull itself out of the chasm and at the same time continue the present civilization.

The chaos lies in the Straits of Formosa with the threat that what occurs in that area in the next few days might touch off an atomic war. It is really understood what is happening there if taught to review the events from the 19th century and see how they led up to the present Formosa crisis.

In the decade of 1860-70 Bismarck was preparing the way for the unification of Germany. He felt that the best way to achieve this was to provoke and win a war. This would, he thought, consolidate his nation and forge a political union as nothing else could. In 1871 France was tricked into declaring war on the German states under Bismark. This action led to her defeat and on May 10, 1871, she signed the Treaty of Frankfort.

By this treaty France was not only forced to adopt a new government but had to surrender Alsace and Lorraine to Germany. She was also forced to agree to pay an indemnity of one billion dollars, which the Germans insured by occupying key French territory until the last payment had been made.

The chief result of this Franco-Prussian War was the uniting of Germany into an empire and France into a republic. But another achievement of the war was the ill feeling of the French toward the treaty and toward the Germans themselves. A desire for revenge.

It wasn't until the signing of the Treaty of Versailles at the end of World War One in 1919 that this feeling became apparent. Under this treaty Germany was not only forced to give up land and territory on her eastern border, but was forced to accept all responsibility for the war. She was condemned and forced to pay restitution which was unheard of. The total result being that the Germans felt the treaty unjust and France her real enemy.

In the 1930s, by taking advantage of a world depression and by ignoring the Treaty of Versailles as one of his stepping stones Adolf Hitler rose to power, and in 1939 ignited the fuse for World War Two, which resulted in the Nazi defeat and the unleashing of Communism upon the world.

Now, in this struggle between Soviet Russia, the German dictator forced the western allies to make use of Communism in an effort to best a common enemy. With this accomplished and the desire for peace by the rest of the world, the Communists in 1945 proceeded to conquer Europe from the country of China. The same China which we are facing in the Formosa Straits today.

The nations of the world have had centuries to profit by their mistakes. Each time they have entered into wars they have promised to pave the way for future wars. Now they have come to the end of the line. They are faced with not only another war, but an atomic war, which if started, can wipe out the civilization we now live in.

There is no matter what its grievances are from past hurts, and no matter how justified a government came into power, has the right to push the world into a chaos of hell. Let us hope they know it and profit by the knowledge.

FSU Five Beat Mocs By 84-63

Sparked by the solid floor play of Jim Wernke and the deadly push shots of Jimmy Oler, Florida State University rushed to their 18th basketball victory of the season Monday night, overpowering a slow start to dump Florida Southern, 84-63.

It was the 12th straight home victory for the Tribe and their eighth straight against collegiate competition. It was also the Seminoles' eighth Intercollegiate Conference win against no losses. The Tribe has not lost since regular season classes.

Southern got away to a quick lead at first and stayed close enough the rest of the contest to keep the Tribe persuaded.

The turning point came when Bruce Hunt and overhead hung set up the count at 10-all and a moment later a side-shot by center Rick Benson put FSU out to stay.

Dick Accursy with his accurate one-hand push—was outside and he pinpointed eight field goals and seven of eight free throw tries for a total of 23 points high for the game. Southern's family jewel Jimmy Bishop pushed Oler for scoring honors getting double figures.

Outer Rick Benson and forward Dick Artmeier also contributed heavily to the FSU cause with 18 and 15 points respectively. Both rebounded well with Benson packing off 24 rebounds.

However, the real unsung hero was Wernke, who while bucketless only netted points, bothered the Southern offense throughout the game and set up numerous other field goals with fine passwork. Wernke, a two-time All-State Foundation All-American choice has started 63 games for the Seminoles since arriving on the campus as a freshman.

The Tribe will be idle for the remainder of this week, before they invade Georgia in Athens next Monday. Rollins at Winter Park on Wednesday and Loyola at New Orleans on Saturday.

FLORIDA SOUTHERN	fg	ft	pf	tp
Bishop, f	6	3	3	15
Long, f	2	0	3	4
Hunt, f	2	0	2	4
Hall, c	0	1	1	1
Wilds, f	3	1	1	7
Gibbs, g	2	0	2	4
Hodges, g	0	0	0	0
Thompson, g	0	0	1	0
Bell, g	0	0	0	0
Totals	22	19	17	63

FSU	fg	ft	pf	tp
Wernke, f	0	1	1	1
Artmeier, f	6	3	2	15
Oler, f	7	2	2	16
Benson, c	6	3	2	15
Accursy, g	8	7	2	23
Hall, g	0	0	0	0
Ross, g	0	0	0	0
Totals	31	16	12	84

Halftime score: Florida Southern 25 Tribe thirteen missed Florida State—Artmeier, Benson 2, Tsamoutsaris 2, Wilds 2, Oler, Hurst. Florida Southern—Bishop, Hodges, Bell, Wilds 2, Wilkins 2, Tsamoutsaris 2.

BE YOUR OWN BOSS
EXCEPTIONAL INCOME SPARE OR FULL TIME VENDING MACHINES
Reliable wholesale concern, in order to establish new outlets for wholesale merchandise such as candy, hair oil, hand lotion, perfume, various chandlers etc., will establish route for responsible person who has the money to handle his merchandise for cash. Must have good car, good character, good credit and carry not less than $600.00 worth of merchandise.
• No Selling or Soliciting
• No Experience Necessary
• Will Train Person Selected
• No Collecting for Dealership
• Five Purchase Deals Secured
Automatic Sales Co.
4612 OLIVE ST.
ST. LOUIS 8, MO.
Please Include Phone Number

RAFAEL LECUONA

Lecuona Earns Olympic Berth

Bob Cuttina

Cuban gym star Rafael Lecuona, a member of Florida State's Gymkana team, has just returned from Havana, Cuba, where he successfully tried out for the Cuban Pan-American team.

Rafael, competing against 15 of Cuba's finest gymnasts, placed first in the tryouts, assures him of a berth on the coveted Pan-Am team.

If the Cuban government supports the team, they will send six men. However, without government support only one to three men will be financed by the Olympic Committee. Either way, Rafael is a cinch to go.

Working on brand new gymnasium just purchased from Switzerland, Rafael placed first on parallel bars, high bar, and rope climb.

In copping the all-around event, Rafael beat out Cayonne, the present Central American all-around champ and a heavy favorite.

Although short in stature, the agile Rafael is possessor of a keen sense of coordination and body of a Greek Hercules. He undoubtedly admits that the Cuban team will probably give their United States friends "some trouble."

In addition to the new honor, Rafael has a background that might well be the envy of athletes everywhere. In 1946 he was on the Cuban team that competed in Colombia, and won the side horse and long horse titles.

Two years later and a continent apart found Rafael in London with the Cuban Olympic team. Another two years and Rafael was back with the Cuban Central American team, this time in Guatemala, where he copped three titles—side horse, parallel bars and bull horn.

In 1951 Rafael captained the Cuban team in Argentina at the first Pan - American Olympic games. At this meet in Buenos Aires Rafael took the side horse crown. He also placed second in the 1951 Pan-American games, and was awarded the title to Mexico City during March.

HERBERT TAREYTON
CIGARETTES
Filter Tip
MODERN SIZE
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
Gives You The True Tobacco Taste
You've Been Missing!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

From The Sidelines

By Alan Whitmarsh
Sports Staff

As records continue to topple, this year's Florida State cagers are offering more and more evidence that they are by far the best court unit in the school's history. This year's 14-2 mark figures to eclipse by far any previous slate, for last year's 13-7 record was tops in school history. Jim Oler has already set a new individual free throw mark of 141, a department he was tops in last year, and he will keep right on pumping them in.

The team average, over 85 points per game, is approximately six points better than last year's record-breaking production of about 79, and the team free throw mark will most likely be reestablished this year also. The Seminoles have now won 12 straight contests in Tallahassee, and currently are riding on an 8-game winning streak this season. The overall school basketball mark is only 93-84, but FSU cagers have won 30 of their last 40 games, a considerable improvement.

The new Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference has almost turned into a runaway practice session for Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminoles. They have been threatened seriously with defeats only twice while running up an 8-0 mark. Scares came from Miami, 71-66, and Florida Southern, 73-70. They got even with Southern in convincing fashion, 84-63, last Saturday night. Miami is the only team given any chance of challenging FSU—the Hurricanes are currently in second place with a 3-1 mark. The two teams meet again on February 26.

The Seminoles are also unbeaten in NAIA district competition, The Dunkel Basketball Rating Service will decide which four of the nine district teams will meet in Tallahassee February 28 and March 1, FSU and Georgia Teachers, who the Seminoles defeated here earlier in this season. The overall favorite to represent the district in Kansas City. Our pick is Florida State, and we think they'll do all right in Kansas City, too.

Let's take a brief look at the six boys who are sparking this record-breaking FSU squad.

You have to start with Jimmy Oler, a 5-10 guard from Economy, Indiana who seems bent on rewriting the record books before he leaves FSU a year hence. Jimmy leads all Seminole scorers with 347 points, a blazing average of 21.7 per game. He already set a new individual free throw mark of 141 and figures to go much higher before this year is over. His pin-point accuracy on outside shots has many observers calling him "Mr. Automatic."

Currently the highest scorer in the Conference is Oler's companion at guard, 6-0 Senior Ham Wernke, 303 points this year have boosted Wernke's lifetime total over the 1000 mark, highest in school history. Though seemingly overshadowed by his running mate, the department's experts rate Ham the best free-throw accuracy percentage of starting members, 79.8%, of his tosses have found the hoop. Ham also paces the team in field goals with 111 and is gleid goal percentages with 42.7% accuracy.

Senior Rick Benson from Miami, Florida, gives the starting unit valuable height, and is among the top rebounders in the nation. Rick has piled up 251 points for a 15.7 average. He generally operates from the pivot slot and does a lot of hook shots from that position.

At one forward is Dick Artmeier, a steadily improving 6-1 Junior from Clarksburg, Ind. "Arty" has accounted for 192 points and a 12-point average this year, and has been steadily gaining in prestige each contest. He put on quite an exhibition of outside shooting for the fans in the Florida Southern contest, in which he scored 15 points.

The other forward post has been alternated between 6-7 Junior Gary Wold and 6-8 Sophomore Bobby Williams. Wold has proved his worth quite effectively and has been starting in recent games. He has tallied 103 points to date; Williams has garnered 66. Outside of these six, Senior guard Tom Burst has been Coach Kennedy's top reserve choice.

Carothers Named

(Continued from Page 1)

in my mind as to the worth of a campus columnist at FSU. Through my chairmanship of the Student Party my confidence in the party system has been greatly enlarged. . . . I have seen many advantages and improvements rendered to the student body at Florida State University."

He said that the Student Party "does not exist for the pleasure and enjoyment of a few individuals. Its purpose is to combine the efforts of the FSU student body officers toward aiding and supporting the needs of the student body."

Etcetera

(Continued from page 2)

from their pictures which usually chance cartoons are still doing this! the movie moguls decided to try and get a series of pictures featuring the same stars going. It would be cheaper to make a bunch of films with the same cast all at once and release them from time to time. So, with pen and contract in hand they tried to sign up some players who would appear exclusively for the individual films. Paths pictures moved our first and William Fox was right behind. Goldwyn and Louis B. Mayer were right at the spot to sign up directors and other personnel and it was here that the stars break. NEXT ISSUE: PART TWO—ITS GREATEST STARS.

TEACHING SCHOLARSHIP EXAMS SCHEDULED

Examinations to fill teaching scholarship vacancies will be held Tuesday, March 22 in the Suwannee Room. Students wishing to take the examinations must register with the Dean of the School of Education by Friday, February 18.

A student is eligible if he or his parents have been residents of Florida at least one year, and is enrolled in the school of education. Upon graduation he must teach for as many years as he holds the scholarship.

Seminole Mermen In Atlanta Meet

With one of the South's longest undefeated dual swimming streaks to its credit, independent Florida State University will try to add to the talent-loaded Southern Collegiate swimming championships at Atlanta today and tomorrow.

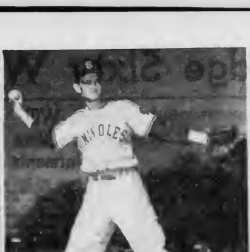
Coach Bim Stults' Seminoles, winners of 28 consecutive duals over three seasons, don't figure to be overmatched this competitorial, however. The 12-man FSU squad doesn't have the depth that other Dixie entries will have in the two-day meet.

Several Seminoles will be strong contenders for individual honors. Sophomore Ernie Stock, a 1954 All-American, freestylers Graham Teachke and Mike Tschirret, and breast-stroker Joel Jacobs will be swimming for first places.

Stock's specialty is the individual medley.

Florida Leaders

(Continued from Page 1)



of the opposition thus the court would not seek to get into the legislative side of the question.

Attorney Gen. Richard Ervin said:

(3) A gradual change through decrees based on recommendations of a master appointed by the court. The same arguments used in the segregation cases would apply to this, said Porter.

(4) A gradual change through decrees framed by the trial (or lower federal) courts This seemed to offer the least disadvantage, noted Porter, because it would be molded to the needs of the localities. He stated that both Negroes and whites should work with the courts for better adjustment.

The panel discussion was arranged as the result of a poll conducted by the FSU AAUP Journal to determine what professors in the university would be interested in. Desegregation came out very high.

Poor Man's Schoendienst — Billy Campbell, FSU's second baseman and three-year letterman will be on hand March 11 when Coach Danny Litwhiler's nine travels to Lakeland to meet Florida Southern in their 1955 curtain-raiser. Campbell, a left-handed hitter, led the team in batting in his freshman year and last season swatted at a .318 clip.

Tribe Nine Announces Slate; Opens With Mocs March 11

Florida State University will play a 25-game baseball schedule this spring, including 8 games against major colleges, Coach Danny Litwhiler said Wednesday.

Highlighting the 25-game card are two game home stands against Furman, Georgia, Amherst and Wesleyan, and road games with Miami, Rollins, and Georgia.

The Seminoles open with a two-game series against Florida Southern College at Lakeland March 11-12. Then State will play 11 straight home games on its East Campus diamond before hitting the road for its final 10 games.

Litwhiler, a former National League outfielder in the late 30's, has as Seminole skipper, said he hopes to have a team that will be competitive with games with professional minor league teams training in the area.

Litwhiler has also scheduled three games matching his varsity squad against the Seminole junior varsity, on March 26, April 2, and April 23.

More than 60 Seminole candidates, 12 of them lettermen, have been issued out on two FSU diamonds since February 3. FSU won 14 games and lost nine last season.

The schedule:

March 11-12—Florida Southern at Lakeland; 18-19—Furman at Tallahassee; 21-22—Georgia at Tallahassee; 23-24—Amherst at Tallahassee; 28—Mississippi College at Tallahassee. April 4-5—Boston at Tallahassee; 8-9—Wesleyan at Tallahassee; 12-13—Rollins at Winter Park. 15-16—Miami at Coral Gables; 25-26—Georgia Teachers at Collegeboro, Ga. May 2-3—Georgia at Athens, Ga. 6,7—Stetson at DeLand.

Dick Dunkel's COLLEGE BASKETBALL POWER INDEX

EXPLANATION — The Power Index ratings are post performance averages. Example: a Delta Zeta team scoring points per game, thus a +60.0 noon, against equally rated opposition.

(Ratings through Feb 7)
Higher Scores	Lower Scores
Games of Last Night

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11

Cincinnati	+6.1	at Marquette	+3.1
Evansville	+1.8	at DePauw	+3.3
Fordham	+2.5	at Rutgers	+2.0
Georgetown	+5.7	at Villanova	+3.2
Holy Cross	+2.5	at Boston College	+2.0
Kentucky	+15.2	at Tennessee	+7.1
Loyola (Chi)	+3.2	at Detroit	+2.5
Mississippi	+3.2	at Alabama	+2.5
N. Carolina	+5.6	at Wake Forest	+3.1
Notre Dame	+3.2	at Pittsburgh	+2.5
Penn State	+3.2	at Syracuse	+2.5
Purdue	+3.2	at Indiana	+2.5
Seton Hall	+3.2	at Canisius	+2.5
Temple	+3.2	at Penn	+2.5
Texas Christian	+3.2	at Texas	+2.5
Vanderbilt	+3.2	at Auburn	+2.5
Wisconsin	+3.2	at Minnesota	+2.5
Wyoming	+3.2	at Utah	+2.5
Xavier (O)	+3.2	at Miami (O)	+2.5
Yale	+3.2	at Dartmouth	+2.5
Air Force	+3.2	at Colorado	+2.5
Arizona	+3.2	at Arizona St.	+2.5
Arkansas	+3.2	at Texas A&M	+2.5
Baylor	+3.2	at Rice	+2.5
Brigham Young	+3.2	at Utah St.	+2.5
Colorado St.	+3.2	at Wyoming	+2.5
Creighton	+3.2	at Wichita	+2.5
Drake	+3.2	at Bradley	+2.5
Duquesne	+3.2	at Niagara	+2.5
Fordham	+3.2	at Rutgers	+2.5
Georgetown	+3.2	at Villanova	+2.5
Holy Cross	+3.2	at Boston College	+2.5
Kentucky	+3.2	at Tennessee	+2.5
Loyola (Chi)	+3.2	at Detroit	+2.5
Mississippi	+3.2	at Alabama	+2.5
N. Carolina	+3.2	at Wake Forest	+2.5
Notre Dame	+3.2	at Pittsburgh	+2.5
Penn State	+3.2	at Syracuse	+2.5
Purdue	+3.2	at Indiana	+2.5
Seton Hall	+3.2	at Canisius	+2.5
Temple	+3.2	at Penn	+2.5
Texas Christian	+3.2	at Texas	+2.5
Vanderbilt	+3.2	at Auburn	+2.5
Wisconsin	+3.2	at Minnesota	+2.5
Wyoming	+3.2	at Utah	+2.5
Xavier (O)	+3.2	at Miami (O)	+2.5
Yale	+3.2	at Dartmouth	+2.5
Air Force	+3.2	at Colorado	+2.5
Arizona	+3.2	at Arizona St.	+2.5
Arkansas	+3.2	at Texas A&M	+2.5
Baylor	+3.2	at Rice	+2.5
Brigham Young	+3.2	at Utah St.	+2.5
Colorado St.	+3.2	at Wyoming	+2.5
Creighton	+3.2	at Wichita	+2.5
Drake	+3.2	at Bradley	+2.5
Duquesne	+3.2	at Niagara	+2.5

Copyright 1955 by Dunkel Sports Research Service • Home Team • Rating Underlined • Report Game Next Night

Jacksonville Navy Choice Over FSU In AAU Volleyball

A record number of teams are expected to compete in the 1955 Florida AAU volleyball tournament at St. Petersburg March 18.

The one-day state playoffs, sponsored by the St. Petersburg Recreation Department and sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States Volleyball Association, will be held in Boca Ciega High School.

Pilot Air Base Volleyball, coached by Bill Odeneal, is defending champion, having won the tournament five of the past six years But a strong Jacksonville Navy team is the early favorite this year.

Other teams expected to enter are Palm Beach YMCA, St Pete YMCA St Pete Recreation Department, Specialist C School, Tyndall Base and Sanford Air Force Base.

Entries should be submitted by Monday, March 14, to Dr. Bruce Danford. FSU athletic director and state AAU volleyball chairman.

Russia Plans

(Continued from page 2)

and the paper is supported by charging 5 cents per copy. Student newspapers usually don't have executive editors, but are controlled by a editorial board consisting of older graduate students.

Many editorial boards usually include people running in major fields other early 20's to their 40's, and a position on the board carries high prestige, not only inside the university but among the public at large.

H. K. for this reason Mao Tse Miloo Hahn, dean of students at U.C.L.A., a school that is both debating the question of whether or not it should issue an antisuicide, said: "While all sorts of efforts toward better international understanding should be encouraged, this particular project is not advisable at this time."

"The facts I have indicated that these editors are not eilher scientists in our unraveling of the term . . . the newspapers they represent do not appear comparable to our American college newspapers."

A. U.C.L.A. school students were polled, and of those expressing an opinion, the ratio was four to one in favor of inviting the Russian student editors to this country.

—from
Los Angeles Technician

When some women kiss they try to make a meal out of it. Lol.*

Life

(Continued from page 2)

sister from afar.

Trying to convince them it was only a rash, Jo from reading South African brooled lobster . . . But I mean, get the police.

The infirmary nurses, and Dr. Hall himself greeted me at the door After an examination to prove the case, I was pronounced guilty. But I mean, get the police. he hasn't had them yet ! He did relate how his wife had them, thought they were pimples and powered them with makeup.

I phoned my boss B P but failing to reach him called M. A. Dunkman at West Hall relying on him to spread the news.

Six a.m. Tuesday morning. a thermometer was thrust in my mouth and lights flashed on. By the way, the thermometer remains in position for five to ten minutes. The breakfast was much rather lush. powered eggs, soggy grits and toast, tea and beans. Doctor with another rate Dr. D. visited me, and relieved a pardon. Those pox were really paxing out. Lunch was a nice stew with potatoes, supper was a nice chicken with potatoes. I found out I'll only be a dirty bird—there's no provisions for a shower or tub both for rendezvous cases.

I came in normal but besides my temperature going up I do believe I'll go stir crazy. I started pacing today. The only entertainment so far is the view from my corner room. It's great for watching South Cawlton smoochers.

Theme song of a puzzy nudist camp: "Little Things Mean A Lot."*

Portraits
THIS AD IS WORTH
$1 00—On a Regular
$3.50—Bob Cut, Bob and Wave
Bifold Suit Included
at Half Price
10:00 A. M. TO 4:30 P. M.
Clubroom, 2nd Floor
LONGMIRE

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER - TO - BUMPER
and
ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. Tenn. St. (1 block from Sensor Hall)

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES
FLORIDA
Today & Tomorrow
"SIGN OF THE PAGAN"
with
JEFF CHANDLER
Sunday Thru Tuesday
PRINCE OF PLAYERS
with
RICHARD BURTON
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today & Tomorrow
"WAGON TRAINS WEST"
with Wild Bill Elliot
also
"BATTLE CIRCUS"
Humphrey Bogart
Sunday & Monday
"CASANOVA'S BIG NIGHT"
Bob Hope
STATE
Today & Tomorrow
"SUSAN SLEPT HERE"
with
DEBBIE REYNOLDS
Sunday Thru Tuesday
"TEN WANTED MEN"
with
RANDOLPH SCOTT
CAPITOL DRIVE-IN
ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow
"LONE GUN"
George Montgomery
also
"DANGEROUS CROSSING"
Joanne Crane
Sunday & Monday
"SUDDENLY"
Frank Sinatra

Sororities Pledge Sixty Women After Informal Rush

Gamma Phi's Pledge 9; Head Other Sororities

Sixty women students were pledged to membership in the 16 national sororities on this campus Monday night.

The new pledges, listed by sorority, are

ALPHA CHI OMEGA — Elizabeth Louise Graham, Frances Hamilton.

ALPHA DELTA PI—Pat Brady, Joanne Lambert, Peggy Greco, and Jeanne Rouker.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA — Betsy Youngblood, Sue Dufrance, Dot Job, and Sally Lou Carlson.

ALPHA OMICRON PI — Ella Jo Bolinski, Joanne Colley, Bonnie Jo Lee Barbara Adelaide Greene, Shirley Ann Pacnessa, and Jalna Glenn Pearell.

ALPHA XI DELTA — Celeste Webb Paula Staples.

CHI OMEGA — Beverly Lamont, Mary Dressler, and Mary Sue Thomas.

DELTA DELTA DELTA—Jane Spicer, Ann Dye.

DELTA GAMMA—Liz Cerny, Sylvia Wilkie, Jackie Hamlin, Carol Deale and Charlotte Lucy.

DELTA ZETA — June Hamilton. Betty Shepherd. Mary Beckham, Sue Moseley, and Joan Strickland.

Gamma Phi's Pledge 9

GAMMA PHI BETA — Mary Rodenberry, Terrell Thatcher, Pennie Vinson, Arlene Schmitt, Grace Schmitt, Dorothy Bunker, Betty Jo Haire, Barbara Sheldon, and Phyllis Wetsel.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA—Jean Monsan, Valerie Roha, and Nancy Trask.

KAPPA DELTA — Suzanne Tope Maiel Henson, Martha Pate and Mary Ann Mason

PHI MU—Kathleen Corcoran, Bennie Jo French, and Suzanne Keifle.

PI BETA PHI—Jane Devia, Maxine Marsh, and Sherry Cole.

SIGMA KAPPA — Betty Jean Cushman, Ann Elliot, and Martha Ann Adkinson.

ZETA TAU ALPHA — Mary Ann O'Neal, and Sarah Upston.

KA Order Initiates 22 New Members;

Gamma Eta chapter of Kappa Alpha Order has initiated 22 new members. They are John C. Perry, Floyd D. Jordan, Jr. Bernie Joe Dudley. Ernest H. Eubanks. O. B. Smith. Jr., Karl Cain, Bruce Cain, Robert A. Miller, Ernest P. Lona, Joe Mack Jordan, Robert W. Mayo, George R. Day, Jr., Henry Horry Hasell III, J. P. Clark, Perry Merrill Bill Strickland, James M. Young, Bill Dean, Eugene Edenfield, Frank Marshall, Jr., Arlie G. Herring and Harry S White, hurst.

New pledges are Walter P. Mott, Jr. Norman Frank Pain, Ronald E. Hare and Michael Ron. Another new member, Charlie Gentry, transferred from the Beta Zeta chapter at the University of Florida

BRING IN YOUR SHOES FOR SPRING CLEANING

Palace Shoe Shop

121 E. PARK AVE.

$650 Smile—Governor LeRoy Collins and Pi Kappa Phi pledges Gilbert Fernandez, Frank Kaney, Bruce Cole and Chris Walker take time out from operating the filling station in the background. They took part in the climax of the fraternity's "Help Week" which raised $650 for the polio fund.

Senate Will Receive Some Appointments

Student Senate will have a large number of presidential appointments to confirm next week. They were read to the Senate at Wednesday's meeting

The following students have been serving on cabinet committees but were never confirmed by the Senate. Funds, Elizabeth Ann Nettles. Elisabeth Stitt, Janice Kimbrell, Johnson, Johnson, Elizabeth, Ann King, Larry Meredith, William Coleman, Sara Ann Whitley, Lorie Crossland; Audit, James Vero Williams, Thomas Alvin Walls, John Robert Newsome and Christopher Johnson.

Budget Karl Edwards, Susan Weisenberger, Aubrey C. Carlton, Helen Priscilla Moss and Aimee Clark.

Harriett Ramsey was appointed to replace Dot Cooke Pinkles, recently married, as chairman of University Court. Miss Ramsey's place on the court will be filled by Dan B. Moran. Presidents Pete Nimkoff has named Jo Carol Law to substitute on the Court for Skip Smith while the latter is interning.

Drive Begins Today For Blood Donations

The student-faculty blood drive begins on the Florida State University campus today.

Drive directors Graham Carothers and Margaret Neller have asked that at least 120 pints of blood be donated to the campus account before March 14. At last reports there were only 25 pints existing in the account.

Each week sororities, fraternities and dormitories will work together to solicit donations. Every Friday morning a car will transport donors to the blood bank from the university infirmary. Between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Although 120 pints of blood is the minimum goal, directors of the drive expressed their hopes that the donations would far exceed the planned amount.

Those who desire to donate must sign up at the infirmary and receive a check-up the week they plan to donate.

34 ROTC Cadets Are Promoted By Army, Air Force

Promotions in the Army and Air Force ROTC at Florida State University have recently announced.

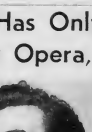
Army Cadets promoted by rank are Colonel, Walter E. Wood, Jr. Lt. Colonel, Charles H. Clark, Dorsey Gutting and William Harris; Major Robert Bennett, Jr., and William L. Proctor.

Captain, Earl R. Chandler, Frank R. Eddy, Charles T. Mock and Frank Rowe; First Lieutenant, Graham Carothers, Percy Steele, Jerry Cowell, John Eichelberger, Vernon O. Edge, Claude Harden, Bobby Jones, Robert Perry, George Hehemann, John Hodge, Kenneth Jarrell, and Ernest T. Stevens.

"Three promoted to Second Lieutenant were Anthony Antoble, Robert Culbreth and Lavern Williams.

In the Air Force ROTC Kenneth Bliss has been promoted to the rank of Colonel; and will serve as graduate assistant to the Commandant of Cadets. Erich W. Weber and William R. Stanelk have been promoted to Lt. Colonel; and will command squadrons.

New flight commanders, with the rank of Captain are James Tanaka, Clyde Walker, David Collins, Lamar Mayfield and Jack Ivey.



William Plum will serve as a squadron adjutant with the rank of First Lieutenant.

Representation

(Continued from Page 1)

study Sentiment proved against such dissension, on the grounds that it could only duplicate the extensive work already done by the Moore committee through freshmen

FSU Senior Has Only Speaking Role In New Opera, 'Susannah'

Eb Thomas

Not every college senior gets a chance to appear on the stage with two professional opera stars but it is even rarer to get a part specially written for him. Yet both of these things are happening to Eb Thomas.

Thomas, a senior at Florida State, majoring in speech, will appear in the world premiere of "Susannah," a musical drama in two acts. Appearing with him will be Mack Harrell of the Metropolitan Opera and Phyllis Curtin of the New York City Opera.

The show is based on the Biblical story of Susannah and the Elders with the setting changed to a mountain valley in Tennessee. It will be presented for the first time anywhere on February 24, in the new Westcott Auditorium.

ONLY SPEAKING PART

Thomas has one of the 12 principal roles and the only speaking part. This was not written to be spoken but adapted for him.

Written by Carlisle Floyd of the FSU music faculty, "Susannah" called for a strong actor to be involved in the action in three big scenes. The role was that of "Little Bat," an emotionally unbalanced youth who idolized Susannah but let her down in a crisis.

Floyd showed of Eb Thomas for the role because of his outstanding work in campus speech department productions and adapted the part to speaking form for him.

4 THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU Friday, February 11, 1955

Thomas is taking special lessons at present in voice technique at the university school of music. He finds it exciting work and feels that the role of "Little Bat" represents a definite challenge.

Here at the university Thomas has played lead parts in such plays as "Night Must Fall," "Romeo and Juliet," "Charley's Aunt," and "The Beautiful People."

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches

PAUL TURNER JEWELER

ARCADE
102 S. Monroe St. Phone 3-1607

FOX TROT RUMBA WALTZ TANGO

5 FOR 1 SPECIAL

Now you can learn 5 dances for the price of 1

AT ARTHUR MURRAY'S

ASK ABOUT OUR LOW RATES AND EASY TERMS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS THIS MONTH ONLY

109 E. College Phone 3-2221

Big Names In Fashion Industry To SpeakHere February 15 In Program For Fashion Enthusiasts

February 15th has been designated as "Fashion Day to Florida State University."

This is a red letter day on campus for all students and faculty interested in the various phases of fashion designing, retailing, advertising and fashion for fashion's sake.

Sponsored by the university's Fashion Institute, the full day of activities will bring to FSU some of the biggest names in the fashion industry

Miss Virginia Pope, fashion editor for the New York Times for more than 20 years, will speak on "Fashion in My Business" at the opening session and will later meet with specialized interest groups. She has arranged to fly hatrick from visiting fashion centers in Europe to keep the Tallahassee date.

"Statesman Of Industry"

During the administration of Mayor O'Dwyer Miss Pope was named as "Statesman of Industry," receiving the citation from the Mayor who presented it in the name of the "Fashion Trade." A weekly for the women's apparel trades.

The Fashion Institute of Technology's award for "distinguished service in the fashion industries" was presented to Miss Pope in 1948, and the New York Times received the Neiman-Marcus Award for Distinguished Service in the field of fashion in 1948.

November 3, 1954, she received the Annual Reward of the Society of American Designers for outstanding support of American design.

Miss Pope retired from the New York Times on January 4, 1955. She has not, however, retired from active fashion work. She will continue her career as fashion writer with the title of Fashion Reporter.

Her field will cover reporting both in the United States and Europe.

Fogarty Appears

Miss Ann Fogarty, known for a nationally distributed line of feminine fashions which carry her name as a trademark will give the luncheon address "What Is Good Fashion?"

Florida fashion representatives to take part in the day's program include Miss Judy Hornady, fash-too editor of the Miami Daily News, and Harold Smith, president of the Miami Fashion Council. George Sandford, director and merchandise manager of fashion at Rich's in Atlanta, will also take part in the program.

Dr. A. B. Martin, vice-president of FSU, will make the welcoming address for the program.

Dr. Hazel Stevens, head of the clothing and textiles department at FSU has planned the program with her faculty associates in the departments of art and education, advertising and marketing

In the evening program there will be a panel discussion, "The Fashion Industry in the South-east." On the panel with Miss Fogarty will be Miss Virginia Pope, George Sandford, Harold Schiff, and Mrs. Virginia Pope Royal Ray, head of the FSU department of clothing.

The whole program will be free and open to the public. It will begin at 9:30 in the morning. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held in the Union Building and the evening session, beginning at 7:30 p.m. will be held in Gerpmsao Hall. There will be a nominal charge for the 12:30 luncheon in the Seminole Room.

Reservations may be made by calling university extension 3741.

News Briefs

DELTA SIGMA PI PLANS ROSE BALL

Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity, will hold its Rose of Delta Ball tonight at the Country Club for actives, pledges, alumni and their guests. President Lee Clowers will crown the group's Queen, whose picture will be entered in the national contest for the Rose of Delta Sig.

The local chapter recently became the first professional business fraternity in the state to have a house of its own.

GRAHAM ELECTED PHI MU PRESIDENT

Nancy Graham is the newly elected president of Phi Mu sorority for the coming year.

Other officers are Marion Stephenson, vice-president, Shirley Burrell, secretary, Joanne Brooks, treasurer, Melinda Brown, pledge trainer. Susan Quaterman, membership chairman; Joby Braden, house chairman; Betty Hobson, social chairman; Fleeta West, Panhellenic delegate; Lola Abrams, bookkeeper Anna Suhman, correspondng secretary, Melanie Paulette reporter, Suzanne Maxwell, chaplain, Diane Westerford, assistant pledge trainer, Joey Hobson, assistant membership chairman, and Ann Brown, assistant social chairman.

KDS ELECT FUNSEL PRESIDENT

Sally Funsel has been chosen president of Kappa Delta sorority.

Other officers are Shirley Morgan, vice-president, Nancy Warner, recording secretary, Lana Nell Hopkins, treasurer, Deane Jackson, editor Pat Fynn, house chairman; Shirleen Bauer, social chairman; Emelie Hudson, rush chairman; Bennie Jo Conet, Pan-Hellenic representative.

BOWLING OFFERED BY FSU URA

The University Recreation Association is offering bowling, table tennis and badminton for beginners and experts Wednesday nights. Equipment instructors and tournaments will be provided. The programs will be held at the women's gym, beginning at 7:30 Wednesday nights.

Church News

BSU Holds Vocational Emphasis Week

This coming week is vocational emphasis week. On Monday and Tuesday, held in the 12:20-12:50 p.m. there will be noontime meditations at the BSU house Tuesday evening, Dr. Ed Henderson will speak to the worship group at 7:30. Dr. Henderson is pastor of the LSB in Jacksonville.

Wednesday night at 6 p.m. and Mary Lou Edwards will be speakre to the morning watch group Friday morning at 7 a.m.

Each summer, student - missionaries are sent to various points in the world by the state BSU. This summer, Florida is sending five to Jamaica, and students all over Florida are working to raise the money needed. Both students are planning to work to raise the money in the following way: Baby-sitting, 50 cents per hour, car washing, general housework and yard work at 75 cents per hour. Call 2-2605.

Newman Club Holds Five Point Meeting

On Sunday evening, the Newman Club will hold its monthly Five Point Program with a supper, spiritual, social and business meeting. The annual Newman Club Weekend will be discussed and the Newman Club Queen will be elected.

Foreign Students Featured at Presbyterian Discussion

"The Impact of Christianity and Mission Work in Foreign lands" will be discussed at the First Presbyterian Church by FSU foreign students on Friday, February 18, at 7:15 p.m. The public is invited.

Moderator of the panel is Sam Baptista, FSU foreign student advisor. Panel members include Eike Frank from Germany, Aquila Berlas, Pakistan; Ezrat Younanian, Egypt and Dr. Harcourt Pitts, formerly of India.

This is one of a series of programs being conducted at the First Presbyterian Church in observance of World Mission Month.

TWO CO-EDS TO BE ON COLLEGE BOARD

Bettina Burke and Marilyn Goble have been chosen to represent FSU on Mademoiselle's College Board. They are among 700 students who will represent their campuses and report to the magazine on college life and the college scene.

DeLUXE LAUNDRY, INC. OFFERS:

Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises

CALL 2-8611

614 West Tennessee Street
(One block from Senior Hall)

Valentine Cards at Malone's Book Store

"Everything for the Student"

107 S. Copeland

Candy for your Sweetheart!

Norris & Hollingsworth Heart-Shaped Valentine Candy

Gibson - Barker Country Cousin

Valentine Cards

UNIVERSITY BOOK STORE

IN THE STUDENT CENTER

MORE LUCKY DROODLES! MORE LAUGHS!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

"It's TOASTED" to taste better!

LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED"

CIGARETTES

PHOTO BY CHARLIE MOTLEY, STAFF ARTIST FOR EASTERN NEW MEXICO UNIVERSITY

FOOTBALL STADIUM WITH ALL SEATS ON 50-YARD LINE

Herbert W. Wallace
University of Alabama

THEY'RE CLAMORING FOR THEM! Who? Students. What? Luckies. Coast to coast, dormitory to dormitory, college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands, according to the greatest up-to-date college survey. Again, the No. 1 reason for Luckies' wide lead: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. So enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike. But don't be like the man in the Droodle above, titled: Pickpocket acquiring Luckies. Make sure you have plenty of your own. Buy Luckies by the carton.

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use—and we use many, we don't use. So send every original Drood in your noodle, with descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES, Copyright 1954 by Roger Price

Better taste Luckies...

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER

CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

P.S. Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company — AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

COWARDLY THINKS RACQUET (NO BUTS) Barbara Sprung, Brooklyn College

HIGHWAY FOR BRAINSHIPPERS B. D. Tompkin, University of Oregon

INTELLIGENT FAITH
Program Set
For Next Week—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1953

VOL. XL, NO. 28

Convention Set For March 2 By State Party

Cobb Answers Gatlin Speech; Defends Gaster

By STAFF WRITER

Plans for a convention on March 2 were drawn up by the State Party officials at a meeting in Longmire Building Tuesday afternoon.

Party Chairman Warren Cobb announced arrangements had been made to hold the State Party convention beginning probably at 1:30 p.m. in Geology Building Senior Hall.

Cobb appointed a committee to meet on the State Party platform for the Student Body elections this Spring. Members of the chairman Gordon Gaster, Jerry Soles, Dick Lucas, Hank Chain and Beechie Bunting.

Announcing that "drastic changes" were needed in the party constitution, Cobb also named a committee for revision of himself as chairman. Other members are Bill Wagoner and Joe Jackson.

Plan Revisions

Possible actions to include changes in convention delegates to the small campus groups and also with a view toward reducing representation only, and the size of Dee Student Body Elections this fall will be held with restraint and a temperate attitude."

Before forth his views on the State party's convention, Cobb stated: "As State Party chairman it behooves me to refute statements made by Benton Gatlin at the Wednesday night convention. He is using the progress of the State Party last year, appointed Senator Gordon Gaster's health insurance program as the basis for his attempting to stall his audit plan".

Cites Gatlin Opposition

Cobb mentioned Gaster's Senate bill that student groups be allowed to keep all the money they raised. He said this bill would be the full amount and subscribe a 50 per cent limit on the amendment. (Cobb was referring to Gatlin's statement at the Wednesday meeting that the Student Party is working for student interests.

Turning to Gatlin's point that the Student Party had been the political apparatus of one person, Cobb said "Chairman of the State Party I rise to refute this."

Cobb said he wanted to make it clear that "I am a gradualist party and have no political ambitions."

He ended his remarks with the comment that the Student Party speaker (Gatlin) had used "poor examples in speaking his party's program."

Handle New Secretary

Further business at the meeting was Shirley Hamilton replacing Halford as State Party Secretary. Cobb commended Halford on the work she had done during 1954.

Members of the State Party's Executive Committee were listed as Harriet Davis and Cynthia Stevens, representing sororities; Jed Jackson and Dick Lucas, representing fraternities, and Homer Kirby and Irma Cox, representing Women's dormitories. None were given for the men's dorms. Cobb said that they would be announced later.

Plan Offered Here For Study Abroad During Summer

Students interested in studying abroad this summer have been invited by the University of Oslo, Norway, to attend their summer sessions from July 2 to August 13.

Courses are offered in the fields of humanities, social sciences and education system of Norway. Three advance seminars in Norwegian education, literature, social and political problems are also offered.

Two new courses in Physical Education in Scandinavia with special emphasis on Norway will be featured.

Housing and transportation are guaranteed, and six semester units may be earned in the six weeks course. The program is approved for veterans under P. L. 550 by the U. S. Veterans Administration.

Photos by Simmons

"As Governor Of This Cake"—West Hall's new Governor Nick Harrington presents cake to Betty Lou Whittle, chosen Queen of West Hall at the dormitory's Inaugural Ball Saturday night. Standing by are June Sillay, left, and Betty Wilmon, maids of honor.

Phyllis Curtin and Mack Harrell Arrive For Susannah Rehearsal

The two stars of "Susannah" will arrive today and tomorrow at Tallahassee Municipal Airport.

Miss Phyllis Curtin, soprano of the New York City opera, will arrive this afternoon at 4:29. Professor Carlisle Floyd, composer of Susannah, will arrive tomorrow. He added that Mack Harrel, Metropolitan Opera Baritone, will arrive tomorrow evening around 10.

Professor Floyd emphasized that both Miss Curtin and Mack Harrell will appear in the student performance of "Susannah," Friday, February 25.

Appear in Both

He cleared the circulation of rumors that the two artists would ring only in the world premiere Thursday night.

"That's why we waited so long to announce the student performance," he said. "We had to clear the date with them.

They will begin rehearsals almost immediately. Both have been studying the score of the Susannah music drama. Floyd and Harrell went over the score together in New York during the Christmas holidays.

Tickets, at a dollar each, are on sale in the Westcott ticket booth. Activity ticket number 13 must be presented. Ticket number 13 has been reserved as a date ticket, intended to help husbands and wives of students.

Senate Faces Heavy Agenda In Next Meet

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The representation problem will head a busy agenda when Student Senate meets tomorrow afternoon.

The Senate will meet at 4.15 in Longmire Building. On the agenda is an amendment to the Constitutional amendment introduced at last week's meeting by vice president Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn. Their action would provide for dormitory class representation in Senate. The proposed changes would add day student and Greek representation to the above.

Also on the agenda, held over from last week, are:

A RESOLUTION to make Jacksonville Boulevard, much road from the library to West Call Street, one-way running south, tabled last week after lengthy discussion;

Mollygraph Again

A BILL to provide for the purchase of a multigraph lithograph machine which would be put to a professional enterprise, taking job orders from individuals and campus organizations, and providing additional jobs for students;

A RESOLUTION to provide that copies of all subsequent resolutions be made available to the Senators before passage, at present, only Bills must be formally written and distributed before passage;

A BILL to make technical corrections in the Traffic Court statutes, setting maximum as well as minimum fines for certain offenses;

CONFIRMATION of a number of students who have been serving, one unofficially on various committees under the Secretary of Finance.

CONFIRMATION of Harriett Renner as chairman of the University Court, and of Jean F. Morris, Jack Bowers and Gaster on the court; also of Jo Carol Law in substitute on the Court for Sissy Smith while the latter is interning.

Senators Lis Cerny and Jimmy Soles are expected to introduce a bill which would provide for quire members of the President's cabinet to file monthly reports with the president of the Senate.

Representation Topic

The representation question is expected to occupy the greater part of the meeting. Vice-president Coyle Moore introduced such a constitutional amendment which would provide for dormitory as well as sorority representation in Senate.

The measure was immediately

(Continued on Page 3)

Sophs, Seniors Hold Breakfast This Sunday

Dr. Karla Leyasmeyer, a native Latvian and first-hand observer of life behind the iron curtain, will be the guest speaker at the Sophomore-Senior Breakfast.

Dr. Leyasmeyer is a member of the Florida Chain of Missionaries and will speak at the event in collaboration with Florida State University's Intelligent Faith Week, February 23 through the 27.

The sophomore-senior breakfast is an annual event sponsored by the sophomore class and organized by Sophomore Council to honor the graduating seniors. The breakfast will be held Sunday morning, Feb. 20, at 8:30 in the Suwannee Room.

Dr. Sam Neel, University Chaplain, will introduce Dr. Leyasmeyer who was educated in Russia, Latvia, England, and are the Communist revolution in 1917. He has lectured in eleven European countries to university students and the general public.

Sophomores and seniors were reminded that week end tickets must be purchased before noon Thursday. They are on sale at Rambin's and the Student Center. Sophomores and seniors may attend the breakfast especially if sophomores should preferably come with their senior brothers or sisters, said sponsors.

Collegians Leave For Concert Tour

The University Collegians left yesterday for a short concert tour including stops at Crestview and Pensacola. In addition to evening concerts in these cities, the gee club will also appear in assembly programs in twelve high schools enroute.

The Collegians will return briefly to the campus tomorrow for appearances at Leon High School and the Florida State University Demonstration School.

The Collegians are led by J. Dayton Smith and accompanied by Martha Sue Nevell. Don Vaughn is student director.

I-F Week Plans Spot Nationally Known Speaker

Florida's Chain Missionaries Brings Visitors

"An unintelligent faith is a luxury which modern man cannot afford."

So states University Chaplain Sam Neel in reference to Intelligent Faith Week, which begins at Florida State University next Monday.

"We have three religious weeks; during the year," said Dr. Neel. The Baptist Newman Club Week was from October 24 to 26, Jewish Education Week is scheduled for April 19-26 and I.F. week will be February 22-25.

Annual Event

An annual event on the FSU campus, Intelligent Faith Week is held in cooperation with the Florida Chain of Missions. This organization began in 1950 when three groups in DeLand St. Petersburg and Orlando, known as Interdenominational Schools of Missions, joined forces and expanded to include other cities.

Now teams Florida cities, as well as the University of Miami and FSU are included. Speakers are obtained through the Board of Missions to take part in religious occasions. The board is directed by Miss Louise Woodford.

At FSU, speakers will address classes in 31 university classes, 22 fraternities and sororities, 11 dormitories, 4 seminars, 3 faculty luncheons and 4 general meetings.

No'Well Speaks

Speakers include:

Miss Elizabeth McNeil, who is in the United States on furlough after five years in 1940 in Japan. She has pioneered in the informal approach to student work through social activities and English instruction in Bible classes.

The Reverend Russel A. Stephenson, secretary for the Near East of the Foreign Missions Department, National Council of Churches, who is acquainted with religious, social and political activities of Near Eastern lands.

Dr. Homer Rainey, author of a number of books including Religion in Shoes and Facing Life's Questions.

James K. Mathews, executive secretary of the Division of World Missions of the Methodist Board of Missions.

John William Hughes, who lectures in the United States each year to Executive and Ambassador Clubs, universities and churches.

Latvian Takes Part

Karla Leyasmeyer, a native of Latvia, is a graduate of the University of Riga. She received Henry Lewis Goutil. Bishop, Protestant Episcopal Diocese of South Florida.

The Reverend Don Benedict, who has guided work in parishes in Pittsburgh, West Side Chicago, and East Harlem.

Seminars are scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 2-4 p.m. in the Methodist Student Center. Leyasmeyer will speak at Mas Communism Borrowed From Christianity?" and Stevenson will speak on "Is Christianity Unique?" Hughes will speak on "The Strength of Islam in the Near East."

Tuesday Talks

Monday from 4 to 5 p.m. Mathews will speak on "Is India's Neutrality Pro-Communist or Pro Christian?" in the Presbyterian Student House and Bishop Gutil will talk on "Do I Witness for Christ Intelligently?" in the Baptist Student House.

Tuesday from 3 to 4 p.m. Loutil will speak on "Christianity and Campus Life" in the Presbyterian Student House and Mc-Neil will talk on "The Future of Christianity in Japan" in Ruge Hall.

From 4 to 5 p.m. the same day, Benedict will speak on "Christianity, Capitalism and Labor" in the Methodist Student House and Hughes on "An Englishman Views America" in the Baptist Student House.

FTA MEETS WEDNESDAY

FTA meets Wednesday, February 18, in the Commerce Auditorium from 7-8 p.m.

Graduate student Khaloul Al-Zadaan will speak on the school system of Iraq, where he taught for twelve years. Plans for the FTA convention in Tampa will also be discussed.

Edurdo del Blanco, the "Peruvian Tenor" and captain of the FSU soccer team, will also be present, accompanied by Ruth Matsuda.

Refreshments will be served.

Reports That NSA Pressures Schools Discredited By Lunn

Visitor—Harry Lunn, Jr., right, President of U. S. National Student Association, chats with Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby. Lunn visited the FSU campus over the weekend.

Lunn Says NSA Is Opposed To Universal Military Training

The U. S. National Student Association is opposed to universal military training, Harry H. Lunn, Jr., USNSA president, told The Florida Flambeau yesterday.

Lunn said that the National Executive Committee, meeting in December, issued a statement in which they said that selective service extension for four years is "necessary and desirable under present conditions."

NSA's stand, as stated by Lunn, is that "In times of emergency, needs could be met by selective service, and that a peacetime military force of that type is not desirable."

Lunn said that the USNSA Executive Committee although taking no action on the administration's Military Manpower Bill, as a whole, now before Congress, recommended the continual deferment of college students and the continuation of educational benefits for ex-GI's who had been inducted.

"As long as we have draft and everyone has to serve, there should be readjustment benefits," Lunn said.

Post-service educational benefits were recently scraped for men entering the service after that time.

Other feature of the bill now before Congress would allow young men to sign up for commonalia of military training followed by nine-and-a-half years of reserve obligation. This provision was favored by the Executive Committee.

If designated quotas are not met under this plan however, Lunn said, draft boards could call in young men to complete the number.

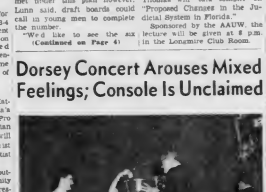
"We'd like to see the six

(Continued on Page 4)

Recognition of Red China Set As Next Topic

A debate on United States recognition of Red China will be held at an open meeting Wednesday, February 18 at 8 p.m. in 303 Longmire.

The debate is to be presented by the Florida State University Politics Club in cooperation with the Varsity Debate Squad announced Anne Kelley, vice president of the Politics Club.



Debaters appearing on the program Wednesday night include Fred Roberts, Norma Tripoddo, Bruce Fraser and Beverly Duperroual).

A period of cross-examination will be included. All interested students are invited to hear the program and participate in the discussion following the debate.

One of the purposes of the Politics Club is to promote interest in government at all levels. Facilities are provided for open discussion, lectures and forums on local, state, and national government.

Sponsored by the AAUW, the debate will be given at 8 p.m. in the Longmire Club Room.

Dorsey Concert Arouses Mixed Feelings; Console Is Unclaimed

The Winner—"1192" . . . Dick Brown, left, and Tommy Dorsey, right, look on while Becky Glass, Village Vamp, draws the winning ticket for Hi-Fi set given as a door prize at the concert. The winner of the set has not identified himself as yet.

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey's drawing held after the second performance in Westcott Auditorium Thursday night showed photograph was 1192, but Artist packed houses of FSU students Series could find that as of and faculty that they are well yesterday morning the set had deserving of their particular not been claimed. It will be kept

(Continued on Page 3)

President Says NSA Has Much Local Autonomy

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The United States National Student Association does not attempt to enforce policies on member schools, Harry H. Lunn Jr., president of the USNSA, told the Student Senate yesterday.

Lunn, who is on a tour of the South, described reports that the Association attempts to bring pressure on fraternity and sorority chapters with racial and religious discriminatory clauses in their charters.

"There is a large amount of local autonomy in NSA," he told the Senators. "It is possible to be a member in good standing and disagree with the majority of the policies."

Few Finer Questions

Questions from the floor were few, and Lunn touched on the autonomy issue while anticipating" questions he said he thought might concern the senators.

Early this Fall the Senate rejected membership in the USNSA by accepting a report from Senator Jim Solos who had attended the National Congress, the USNSA's annual policy-making convention. Solos' report scored, among other things, USNSA's alleged hostility to segregation and to discriminatory clauses in fraternity and sorority charters.

Student Body President Pete Nimkoff asked Lunn what action the delegates Congress took on the segregation problem.

Lunn replied that while a delegate-body resolution was passed by a large majority, he felt that the presence and participation of southern delegates influenced the "moderacy" concerning big-b school and momentary school integration problems.

He said that there is a value in southern schools being represented in the USNSA, that they can make their opinions felt among other members.

Non-Participants Lose

"Any group that is national in scope," Lunn commented, "loses if it doesn't have representation from all parts of the country."

Lunn described the Association for the orientation, saying whose Vice-president Gordon Gaster appeared the most interested, and that he would commit himself on his stand, however, find out only that he would consider Lunn's remarks with "an open mind."

Lunn said that 275 schools belong to USNSA, representing 400,000 students. Membership is gained mainly in the eastern, middle Atlantic, west coast and midwestern areas. He noted memberships in Texas, and a fluce suring through this area."

Lunn explained the Association's membership in the American Council on Education, which he said "has a similar influence on national politics." He did not close the Council on the Military Manpower Bill, referred to in the issue.

Discusses "Discounts"

He discussed the USNSA's student discount service, whereby members across give or sell discount cards to their students and then persuade merchants to honor them. He noted these cards are honored by all participating merchants in the state of Utah.

Lunn said that the USNSA's publications and meetings enable students from all parts of the country to discuss and solve common problems.

Schools can make use of the Student Government Information Service on such items as activity fees . . . alcohol discipline and dormitory regulations."

In response to a question from Vice-president Coyle Moore concerning the size of membership, he said that while it would be 125 dollars for national membership and a smaller additional amount for regional dues, contributions from other sources stands at 40,000.

He mentioned a $30,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to study student governments on a nationwide scale.

Helps Fight Reds

Lunn said that the development of USNSA which concerns itself with international as well as domestic issues, has enticed many student organizations away from Communist influence. He said that the Association's work with the international organizations a

(Continued on Page 4)

Florida State Fashion Day Features Big Names

Today is "Fashion Day" at Florida State University.

Journalists arrive on campus today. To appear at the several fashion session, are Miss Virginia Pope, fashion editor for the New York Times for more than 20 years and Miss Ann Fogarty, known for a nationally distributed line of feminine fashions which carry her name as a trademark.

Miss Fogarty will give the program's luncheon address, "What Is Good Fashion?"

The purpose of the program is to show students the many opportunities for employment which are available in the fashion industry, bringing many experts in the field of fashion designing, merchandising, retailing, advertising, and other aspects of fashion.

Presents Fashion Trends

Dr. Hazel Stevens of the clothing and textiles department of FSU, said the sessions will aid the faculty members to know what requirements are expected of students who enter the fashion industry. "Fashion Day" will give them a clearer view of the general trends in fashion and how they affect the public, she said.

In Florida alone there is a $15,000,000 business in the manufacturing of fashions carried on each year, not including the retail business. This fact shows the importance of fashions to the people of Florida, said Dr. Stevens.

Ann Fogarty

The fashion industry, she added, has become a very important factor in the industrial development of the state of Florida during recent years.

Miami Editor Attends

Florida fashion representatives to take part in the day's program include Miss Jane Hornady, fashion editor of the Miami Daily News, and Mrs. Ruth Bramwell of the Miami Fashion Council. George Sandford, director and merchandise manager of Burdine's at Rich's in Atlanta, will also take part in the program.

Tonight's activities will feature a panel discussion. The Fashion Industry is also featured in the panel with Miss Virginia Pope, George Sandford Harold Schiff, and the panel leader, Dr. Royal Ray, head of the FSU department of advertising.

The program is free and open in the public, with the afternoon session in be held in Longmire Building and the evening session, beginning at 7:30 p.m. to be held in Opperman Music Hall. Morning sessions were scheduled to begin in Lesentire at 9:30.

Dr. Hazel Stevens has planned the program with her faculty assistants in the department of art, art education, advertising and marketing.

More Queens Than Students

Rumor has it that Sandspur this year will be the occasion of choosing another Queen.

It's getting to where there are more queens than students. As one member of the University Staff quipped last week, "Any girl who, during her four years here, can't be chosen Queen of Something, ought to be given an honorary degree."

A Pint Of Blood

One of the more worthy projects to be attempted by students this year is the blood drive which began last Friday.

Blood donated under this program will be used for the student's own use. The gift of blood now may turn out later to be an act of self-preservation.

The procedure is relatively simple and painless and the small sacrifice pays off in great benefits. So to the work being done by those connected with the project may we add this reminder:

If you want to do something worthwhile, donate to the FSU blood bank Friday.

Some Warranted Support

The old Ritz Theater, closed for two years, is re-opening as the Ritz Arts Theater.

This house will bring to Tallahassee the best of foreign films, and the program is designed for the University clientele. The management assumes — rightly, we hope—that the students would be interested in fine cinema art from abroad.

They haven't gone to any great extent in fixing up the old theater—the venture at present is on an experimental basis. The interest and patronage displayed will determine whether Tallahassee is to have such cultural facilities all the time.

Those who are acquainted with foreign films through the FSU Film Club will agree that pictures of that nature usually take a different, fresh, invigorating point of view. Foreign pictures are rarely imbued with the moralizing or conventionalistic tones of Hollywood. They suffer almost none in comparison by archaic, puritanical restrictions and there is no fear to depict human life as it is actually lived.

Student support is warranted.

Further Injury

Students who complained about paying a $75 Student Activity fee at the beginning of this semester will be further injured when they read the following excerpt taken from a news story in The Daily Taxan, student newspaper at the University of Texas:

"A bill that would authorize governing boards of Texas institutions of higher learning to charge a compulsory student activities of $20 per semester was introduced in the (U. S.) Senate Wednesday . . ."

The bill "... would cover health, hospitalization, artists and lecture series, recreation, debating activities, student publications, and other approved activities.

"Passage of the bill means that the University Board of Regents would have the power to make UT's Blanket Tax compulsory, and price it up to $20. The present optional fee is $15.60 per long term."

One reason it's lower: The bill does not finance intercollegiate athletics.

Sketches

People I Knew: At The Bullfight

By DICK VICTORY

PART I

It was not traditional bullfight weather. It was not dusty and close with the sun hot and shimmering overhead; instead the sky was dirty. Clouds had scooped low and had remained low, giving the darkness a three-dimensional appearance. The overcast was slowly spreading and deepening. If you looked out past the fences of the stadium, in the distance, over the harbor and water bejonded on the fringe of the horizon could you see vaguely any traces of blue. A fine, cold mist was spraying down and it bothered your forehead and sometimes your eyelids when you blinked.

The bad weather made itself around in the stands restless. The dampness and the rain had pervaded since early morning and those that had braved them were eager for distraction. They wanted it to start. They wanted El Toro.

Now, as the rain sprinkling idly down, they huddled in tight, pomeranian-like clusters all over the circular stadium, leaving blue unpopulated areas in horseshoe-shape. The aroma of the bundles of energy chattered, shivered and called for the fight to start. "Let it begin," they called, in Spanish.

The wanda were not covered with a pavilion or anything else and the only way you could get any protection from the rain was to climb up to the top and press against the rickety wooden fence that ran around the circumference of the bowl. People were reluctant it all except the stadium, trying to stay dry. But even then a sheet of fine mist would blow down and fall on them every once in a while. Some of the fans obviously preferred a closer view of the fight and stayed in the box seats near the ring although they too would have liked to have remained as dry as the ones behind. The people screamed their displeasure at the delay. "Hurry!" they called.

Across the arena in the runway behind the red wooden fence that ran around the field figures were moving about. The tunnel door was suspended from above and it was pulled part of the way up now, and the face of the man were visible to the crowd. They were the bullfighters. They moved slowly and silently, and the smiling the rail to enter into the ring in their usual procession. They walked silfflegard and solemnly, and it was easily apparent that they were eager to begin too; eager to get past the initial uneasiness that accompanies their arrest, or any event of physical competition.

Ten minutes past three.

The morning paper and said that the bullfight was to have begun at three o'clock sharp. Thinking perhaps that the management was holding things up until more of a crowd arrived, a tourist turned to a man who was sitting on his left and asked if this happened often. He snickered with his friend, looking about and shrugging. The native finally understood and pointed to a vacant spot on their right. "The band," he said. "The weather must have alowed them."

A few more people were coming in now, coming and going to enter the wetness.

Begin the corrida," the crowd screamed. Begin the corrida." And the bullfighters walked to their pla in the tunnel across the way.

At seventeen minutes after three the members of the band arrived. They apologized profusely for the delay and uncased their instruments. The fans averred their eyes from the ring as it surrounded and watched them. They played the entrance song. It quickly silenced those that had continued to talk, breaking the conversation into small and finally dissolving it altogether. The crowd watched its breath.

The picadors on their aged and sturdy horses led the matadors around the ring. Each horse was wearing blinders (so they wouldn't get to see anything of the fight of the bull).

All the members of the procession were in the ring now. The band began to play until finally only the trumpet's notes were heard and acting in the air. The matadors gave the center of attention They were dressed in pink and with bright colors—gold, green, silver.

For a moment it was quiet. Then the crowd broke in its fury the matadors. The matadors stood motionless. The crowd yelled on. The matadors smiled and turned. They bowed.

At last the crowd hushed and everyone left the ring, returning to the protection of the fence. The bustle blew. The doors to the tunnel where the bull waited were thrown open by two ring servants.

The bull bounded out and as he did, one of the servants pulled the colors of his cape in his back, piercing his hump with the short, slender blade which would be his undoing. The bull charged out in a straight line, running directly across the ring to a point opposite the tunnel, then swung around the ring, loose and occasionally lockling up into the stands where people were enlivened by the blow. They were happy it had started.

After the bull had gone halfway across the ring again he tired of the useless running, stiffened his front legs and slid to a stop.

It was still drinking.

The first bull was killed with neither a maximum or a minimum of effort. He was said to be aboulit have been, after all the rites had been acknowledged. First the banderillero entered the ring cautiously waving his cape and calling to the bull. The bull charged his cape, missing the man by a yard and a half. The banderillero repeated this several times, always keeping the bull at a considerable distance from his body. His job was not to take chances, but to get the bull used to the cape, to raise the bull up, to see if it favored a certain side or if it charged straight. They also watched its horns for a hook. When the banderillero was through the crowd remained detached and did little cheering. The tourist stopped talking.

One of the matadors came out next and went through a few passes. He worked closer to the bull and more spectacularly than the banderillero, but at this stage he took no unnecessary rhances. A few more were passes and he was to scattered applause as the bull broke, heralding the entrance of the picadors. The next bated men in bullfighting.

The picadors are the beginning of the end for the bulls. The bull is given a preliminary test a position from where the pics. The bull charges, on the edge of the ring can end and attract the animal's attention. The picador lowers his lances to bead, and charging, bats up against the horse and rider, trying to unseat them with the mattress on the horses side In the process the picadors are fighting back, trying to weaken the bull with his defensive weapon. A stout spear is his barb on the end. He jabs at the bull's head with it, drawing the first significant blood of the fight and arousing the bull's anger to a new peak The bull rarely rammine the horse, however, but him and the pic up against the wooden barrier. The horse braces as well as it can while the picador jabs at it, in hopes that someone will soon divert the bull's attention and take the animal away. Then the trumpbet blows, indicating that the judge knows the bull has had enough jabbing.

Now it is time for the banderrillas to be placed They are two more, but smaller barbs on sticks wound tight with ribbon and they are to be driven into the bulls bleeding back.

Flaming color is a skillful and delicate master since the bearer must come in front of the bull on the run, lean to avoid the horns and thrust them in, then

(Continued on Page 3)

The Free Lance

Harvey The Recanter

By BRUCE GALPHIN

(Ex-Flambeau Editor Galphin writes from Atlanta where he is now working.)

The case of Harvey Matusow adds a disgusting note to the already-smutty history of subversive-hunting in this country.

Matusow, for the information of those who have grown tired of reading about red-hunters, is a former professional ex-Communist who now claims he was lying in recent mass accusations.

He thus creates a new style in fashions for opportunists—the double turn-coat. He is in the unique position of having done two about-faces. It seems that he now stands squarely facing his posterior.

It seems Matusow was attracted, shortly after World War II, to Marxist ideas "mainly because so they concerned make-female-s relationships" as Time magazine put it.

Even as a Commie he was not much of a success and eventually left the party disfavor with the party hierarchy. The time seemed ripe to switch to the more profitable field of paid testimony.

Theuie he did, with great enthusiasm, pretending authority and outstanding imagination—though perhaps with little discretion.

He has since come out to the F.B.I. administrative boards, Congressional committees and particularly to a Senator named McCarthy.

Mistuow sometimes happened to be right in his testimony. But he did not limit himself to known Communists. He found reds in labor unions, the Boy Scouts, and—for the benefit of McCarthy—whipped up 100 Communists on the staff of the NEW YORK TIMES—and 97 more working for TIME, INC.

Indeed he went to such extremes that even the government stopped relying on him. Another change of heart seemed to be in order. So now he says he was lying.

The Justice Department asserts Matusow's "recantation" does not harm their conviction of 11 second-string Communists, because his evidence was only corroborative. This attitude does not seem to square since as several lead mnke have pointed out his words may have tipped the scales of justice.

But even excluding such convictions. It is obvious Matusow has harmed the government's security program, even though he may be fibbing again

Only an ardent opponent of Communism would deny that governmental and other influential positions have been peopled by a few more interested in personal or foreign goals than the benefit of the United States.

But this latest incident only underlines the fact—repeated ad nauseum for us less — that loyalt- programs have been confurled on grossly injudicious bases.

From the Matusow affair, we may conclude again that something must be done to give ac-

(Continued on Page 3)

Letters To The Flambeau

Preservation

To the Editor:

Reader Pope certainly is fresh from the University of Florida. No doubt the limited nature of confocution there tends to preserve the fact he is on its pedestal. But here at FSU there are many learning from closer contact that they aren't worth the pedestals one's Reader Pope recommends. In fact, to maquote Patrick Henry, "If this be equality, make the most of it."

Sincerely yours,
VAN G. PETERSON

Students Thanked

To the Editor:

The Artist Series Committee met on Friday, the day after the Dave Brubeck concerts. In reviewing the concerts the committee felt that they had been good. The Dorsevs were well received by our students and faculty. They are a good show. They are representative of one phase of American culture. All in all, the committee felt that this presentation, which had been undertaken as an experiment, had been successful. They plan to do it again.

For my part, I want to thank our students for their good spirit of cooperation, after the first show. Wesleott Auditorium was crowded in an unbelievably short time. The crowd waiting to be admitted to the first concert was forced into the auditorium and was seated, with a few minutes to spare. I had been looking to this time of the evening with considerable trepidation, and I needn't have.

I did not see one discourteous incident, nor did I see any face which reflected irritation over standing in line. I think our students deserve a pat on the back, and I wish I could give it to each one individually.

And many thanks to the members of Village Vamps, who did a grand job of looking lovely and helping out efficiently.

MRS. KATHRYN V. VERNON
Executive Secretary

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor — Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Asst. News Editors: Oscar Johnson, Marion Blackman
Sports Editors: Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff: Alan Weinbaum, David Moore
Amusement Editor: David Davis
Photographer: Land Anderson, Al Robbins
Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Distribution: Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity
Telephone 2 8000 extension 6621
211 - 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Copy Editors: Pat Marston
Art Consultant: Franklin Adams
Cartoonist: Con Hone
Junior Staff: George Goldshaw, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Fewers, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradfield

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff: Frank Tillett, Nina Rule, Business Staff: Jeanette Parker, Mary Dresher
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service 420 Madison Ave. New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published by students of Florida State University.

The Dissenter

Independents' Spirits Are Stirring

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Some people seem to believe that Florida State University has escaped the Greek-Independent rivalry so common on other campuses.

Their assumption, unfortunately, can be called wishful thinking. A recitation of a few obvious thoughts is in the air.

Up until recently the Independents have taken little interest in campus politics, and have had little effect on campus society.

Disorganized and disunited, they have had no common bonds to unite them.

The fraternities and sororities, meanwhile, were having a tight-knit unit sharing friendships and interests—and justifiably quick to grab up the most promising freshmen—controlled campus politics and society.

In the interests of harmony people have suggested that there is no lack of justice in this. Student Government officials, they have said, are not primarily Greeks or Independents—a few have gotten elected — but FSU students as such run the reasoning they are dedicated to the best interests of the student body.

This may be true, but in such a system there is still a deficiency. Because an independent does not have fraternity machinery and social acquaintances behind him, he stands little chance of getting elected. Whether or not the resulting government is a good one, the system is not democratic.

Independent turnout in elections has been poor. Independents are under the impression to vote. Scattered widely, each leading his own life and responsible only to a few personal friends, they have been the devotee of the many disunified independents who have sought office in vain.

That condition of government, long passively sanctioned, is now, however, beginning to take a tight-knit unit sharing friendships and interests—and justifiably quick to grab up the most promising freshmen—controlled campus politics and society.

In the interests of harmony people have suggested that there is no lack of justice in this. Student Government officials, they have said, are not primarily Greeks or Independents—a few have gotten elected — but FSU students as such run the reasoning they are dedicated to the best interests of the student body.

This may be true, but in such a system there is still a deficiency.

Independents are beginning to realize. The importance of the Day Student and the Hall delegations in the Student Party last year and this is the smallest fragment to which to trim the day student resistance. Illustrative of the importance political awakening.

The trend was positive manifest when West Hall—not the Home Coming Queen — but Nancy Ann Terrell was save the Sailor Chi's for the Queen's chairmanship and the respect which he now receives can be regarded highly.

Furthermore, the New Group of Independents are trying to get a spirit and formina a political leadership which will last since they are gone—with a name. West Hall is built, when the campus grows.

Let us hope we have no schismatic bitterness and warfare between the Greeks and the Independents. Any effort to suppress the political aspirations of the Independents, however well meaning, would result in just that.

Amusements

Etcetera Etchings

Sennett, however, was reluctant to cast the youngster in major roles because he was too interested in serve-going. Hal Keyanne Kope The art of "showmanship" came into great prominence under Sennett, and Mack Sennett and Gloria Swanson moved out of the child stardom. Chaplin didn't move, called the Chinese attitude and moved to England where he became "the great lover" Pranzie N. Bronstein, Chaplin's downfall was only a few years in the future, but at the time he was the "great lover."

Chaplin's move to Mutual Films in 1916 was the best thing as far as the movie-going public was concerned. His portrayal of the tramp was the most great performance here, it was believed, and after 12 films for the company there was no doubt of it at all

The next year David Griffiths produced the first major spectacle in the form of "Intolerance" which had box-offices jammed with admissions and with attendance that called the "need" for the Ku Klux Klan during the time of the carpetbaggers and was so great in scope that even today It is

(Continued on Page 3)

Reflections

It Takes One Year To Say 'Ichbol'

By OSCAR JOHNSON

(Ed. Note: Today we have a student filling in for our regular columnist, Dick Victory. Dick Johnson, freshman from Pensacola, is a regular on the sports staff of his first semester here. His purpose being mainly to get a feel for the job.)

IT ALL BEGAN in the Fall semester of 1954. It was the beginning of my college career, and I perched in at the desk at Geer Hall, my first home on campus, and the head counselor rushed over to me and Juniors standing nearby, who were easier to carry a load of bulk up flights of stairs for a ten cent tip.

That student is look like a cheapskate. I bet the crew to him up and get dump it in front of my assigned room. Then I flipped a Gold Medal coupon in the hand who stamped peek locks on two furriors to prevent them from grabbing it. Pursued it last rest, he ran down the hall.

Then I settled down to serious meditation. I firmly grasped the pencil and gave a push. A ray sitting inside looked up as I walked in, aiming a careful stool at a spitoon in the corner.

"Are you my room-mate?" he asked.

"It looks thataway."

"Freshman?"

"That's right."

"I'm a Senior," he said

Then he picked up a dark-red suede book and began thumbing through it. I glanced around the room and wall was plastered with Marilyn Monroe pictures. A collection of cars and Persian pipes hung in the center of the room. The bed stood above the bunk was a rainbow mirrored CHANGED SHIFTY with checkered January, March and May.

I furnished the rest of the furnishings and concentrated for a moment on the way He was minding his own business sandwich, with his feet propped on the desk and his chair tilted back. He had thrown down the comic book and his bulging right eye was fixed in a stoid stare on the colonial wall calendar. His left eye was squinted for emphasis

That was my first impression of the guy I was to live with. I like to remember him. The second was that he never studied. He even salipped more than three classes per semester.

For instance the first day of classes I set the alarm for seven o'clock to get to my 8 o'clock Joe had one too like he didn't get to bed until 4 o'clock. He'd rackets while dressing his face. Then he went to the wood. Living in a spacious mansion called Pirate's Cove (which Mary Pickford once owned) Joe had to walk a long distance to class.

If anything was the "nuisance of the century" the waking of America's Sweetheart and Hal's roommate. Joe can was it. They indeed were like Kina and Queen of the wood. Living in a spacious mansion called Pirate's Cove (which Mary Pickford once owned) Joe had to walk a long distance to class.

(Continued on Page 3)

Foreign Correspondent

Life Goes On In FSU Infirmary

By MARY ELIZABETH KING
Special FSU Infirmary

Well I'll be a dirty bird! (What get out of that habit). I've lost two days. I've asked Stella, one of the attendants, what today was and it is Saturday, not Thursday. The last two days are fuzzy pain-filled blobs.

Beginning to feel like a celebrity. Only a lovely lady can. It's a girl head with flowers for a hat. Really nice to have something pleasant to look at.

Pretty cold Friday night wasn't it? I do have a lovely room. It is air-conditioned. In fact they opened the big window shut so there I lay, red dots on a blue barground. (Don't there a song by that name. No. I remember now, the song was Red Sails in the Sunset.) Anyway, Dr. D. tried to shut it, Miss Johnson tried, everyone tried. Finally they got two men to come up. The nurse dashed in and covered me up while they worked. It is much more comfortable to go nudr. Oh dear, there I is thinking again. Anyway they got it closed before the temperature dropped to 32 . I dropped into bed and fell asleep.

The bed linens have been changed every day. I've also changed pajamas twice. I first wore my nice blue ones. Then they gave me some short-sleeve pink ones with cut-away sleeves under the arms. Today I'm wearing some pink men's pajamas I think they were originally from the Fifth Infantry. They feature the extra long legs and sleeves. I mean, roll up. That's right. I must roll up my arms and legs.

The food in this case was only for three days, so I'm alone again. Got a nice box of candy today. Too bad I'm now on a liquid diet since the pox have stopped up my throat. They hands need some cream lotion for my face. It look like pizza fish. Herbey-Bitay pox have appeared on them. I think today is the turning point. I'm turning crazy or chronic patient.

I'm trying to do some homework. The profs don't realize it on time, get it. I send letters to them, all labeled with little pox germs.

The nurses have been nice to me. Stella and Miss Johnson also, attendants. When they have been before for a cold or something, they have treated me like I was pretending sickness to get out of class (one I've convinced them this time). My meals now consist of soup, soup and jello—lunch and supper. I would appreciate any suggestions for a change.

Suggestions for a colored name have come in. They range from King's Katastrophe to King's Korn. As per sorority matter, Nancy Brewer says "They say journalism really like to live what they are writing about not couldn't they have chosen any other sport or participating in that S Cawthorn smoothing."

(Continued on Page 3)

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

With the Swedish meet just two weeks away, Dr. Price is faced with the problem of trying to be in two places at once. It is on the same date—Feb. 26—that the tryouts for the Pan American team will be taking place in Chicago, an event long looked forward to by gymnasts miles and Holder.

As if that isn't enough to frustrate a good coach, the loss of Price's top two gymnasts at the time of the Swedish meet will undoubtedly have adverse effects on the team's outcome, a not too rosy picture at this time.

It is rumored that Dr. Price will make the Chicago trip with the stars and leave the handling of the Swedish meet on the shoulders of Chuck Biersborn, who has proved to be a very capable assistant to Price in the past.

One of Florida State's big guns at the Swedish meet will be newcomer Ronald Amster, former accident, apprentice plumber, and resident of Aristona.

Amster, who hails from Chicago, spent time at both the University of Illinois and Arizona State between A-rib-i and Gainesville. He is now settled semi-permanently at FSU with his wife and year-old son.

According to Price, Amster is the second best gymnast to come out of Chicago, and will see action against the Swedish team on side horse and high bar.

The FSU mastered soccer team tied with the Bainbridge Cadets Saturday afternoon 1-1 in an hour and a half of fast action.

A soccer game, commonly known as association ball, consists of two 45 minute halves with a ten minute break between halves. The team consists of 11 men—five forwards, three halfbacks, two defensive backs and a goalie.

The Cadets took an early lead on a penalty shot, scoring a goal and leading well into the second half. With only ten minutes remaining in the game, FSU retaliated to tie up the score.

Although the game moved along rapidly, both sides were cautious, feeling out the opposition in the first game of the year.

Trying for a berth on the Seminole football team is an old-timer in Rudy Sangovelli, brother of gym star Pat Sigmond, who was co-captain of the 1953-54 varsity squad.

Pat, who won three different gym titles in three years of competition in the Southern Intercollegiates, is now teaching physical education at Kata Sullivan school.

Kennedy's Players Near Close Of Best Season Yet

Florida State's basketball swimmers are all down for action away from home.

Tuesday, they take on volleyballers go to Jacksonville Thursday to meet teams from the Naval Air Station, while the Seminoles host Georgia at Athens Saturday in a return match. The Semindoes thrashed the Bulldogs 62-22 here earlier in the season.

Coach Jim Saiki' mermen will be trying for their 20th straight win this year in a dual meet skirmish plus their fifth of the season's campaign. The Indians have rolled over Southern Methodist, Texas A&M, and Georgia Tech in their four outings, and in help amass the best cumulative shut-out streak in Dixie.

Senate Faces

(Continued from Page 1)

today" and "the two-year life-raft boil of wedded bliss. Then the "divorce of a century" happened and all those two separated Bannleader Buddy Rogers, massive his first picture felt in love with the star and despite the fact that she was older he married her nonetheless. They've still together.

Secrecy was still going strong and even save youngster Bing Crosby a start by hitting him in the face with a pie and dunkin him in a pool. Tom Mix was the favorite cowboy star and was expected to move to the medium of radio. William S. Hart passed to a hah...

Next Issue:
Part Three—The Tragedies

Tarrish's Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
FRED L. TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
107 S. Monroe St. Phone 5-1462

HERBERT TAREYTON
CIGARETTES
Filter Tip
MODERN SIZE
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
Gives You True Tobacco Taste
And Real Filtration, Too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

FSU Gymnasts Retain Alabama Crown

Tickets On Sale For Swedish Meet

Tickets will be on sale for the Swedish gymnastics meet at the Westcoat ticket office.

There will be 400 student tickets on sale for 75 cents and 1000 $1.25 seat. Reserved seats will cost $1.50.

The Swedish meet will take place at the East Campus Women's gym Saturday, Feb. 26th at 8 p. m.

All Lettermen!

There will be a men's "F" club meeting Wed. night at 7:30 p. m. at the Women's gym.

This meeting is for all athletes who have earned a varsity letter in intercollegiate athletics.

The club needs your help during the spring semester, and everyone is urged to attend.

Whether you have attended a meeting before or not makes no difference.

Plans are being made for this year's initiation.

Sports-At-A-Glance

Tuesday: Football—Opening of spring practice.

Wednesday: Basketball — FSU vs. Georgia at U. Winter Park.

Thursday: Basketball — FSU B team vs. Jacksonville Navy at Jacksonville; Volleyball—FSU vs. Jacksonville Navy; at Jacksonville.

Saturday: Basketball—FSU vs. Georgia at Athens; Swimming—FSU vs. Georgia at Athens.

TEP'S Tippy Lost Sunday; Search For Mascot Dog

Tippy, a small tan and white puppy, is missing from the Phi Kappa Tau house at 402 W. College Avenue. The puppy, which is about twelve weeks old, is believed to have wandered away from the house late Saturday afternoon.

Tippy is brown, except for a white tip on his tail and a white streak running down the top of his head down his back to the tip of his tail. He has also streaked with white.

At The Bullfight

(Continued From Page 2)

Then it is time for the matador to kill the bull. To win the favorite he proposed of the crowd, he must kill it quickly and without obvious fear.

He sees the bull assess the end and is wary. His back is pushed in blood and the sticks protruding from his back give him a peculiar appearance, he feels them, too. The air is cold and he is having trouble breathing. As he runs at the matador, he hates harsh, loud sounds in his throat.

When he is facing the bull matador, standing heavily and now very weary, the bullfighter calms him with his cape and runs at him. The bull, in his last effort, tries to spear him but the fighter goes up and over, burying the sword to the hilt in his back. The bull coughs and sinks to the awkward position of a napping cat. The trumpet blows. The band plays. The crowd cheers. The bullfighter smiles. He takes a few steps and tries to get up, but by now he is too weak. A man comes from the ring very and coolly, finishes the bull with a short, pointed knife. The bull flops to its side, dead.

The fighter's technique and overall performance is judged. He is awarded two ears. The surgical man removes them and gives them to the fighter as the crowd yells loudly. The bullfighter, now has the momentous of truth when he hangs for that terrible split second over the horns is now in his moment of glory, and knows it. Handkerchiefs wave at him from the stands and he waves back.

While the victorious matador is strolling the ring, the field attendants come on and begin to clean up, using a wooden instrument and leveling the dirt very much like the infield attendants at a baseball game smooth the ground before a game.

Then comes a team of large mules. The band is playing and the mules seem happy, appearing to think the bull events are for them. They prance along, looking like the finest thoroughbred horses. The man that leads the team stops them near the bull and begins to hitch him to a rope that trails the mules. The mules are uneasy but are soothed and they start to move towards the bull, kicking. The crowd yells after them. The bull, who will be slaughtered in a matter of minutes and led to the inmates of the city jail, is dressed off, leaving a very apparent furrow in its wake. The attendants come over and smooth it flat, destroying the last evidence of that bull.

Part II the conclusion, will run in Friday's issue.

Football Team Opens Drills

Florida State University, which enjoyed a highly successful and abnormally long 1954 football season, starts on the '55 trail today when 60 Seminoles report for the opening of spring practice.

It will be the third FSU spring football drill for Coach Tom Nugent, the dapper Irishman who guided the Seminoles to a surprising 7 win, 3 loss and a trip to the Sun Bowl last season.

Nugent welcomed 24 lettermen —at least two at every position—when the Seminoles gathered Monday for an equipment issue.

Like all National Collegiate Athletic Association teams, the Seminoles are limited to 20 practice sessions. State's spring schedule calls for drills each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

The annual Garnet and Gold Intrasquad game, the 20th session and climax of spring drills is down for Doak S. Campbell Stadium field on May 7.

Nugent says individual backfield and team defense will be the keynote this spring, with a primary offensive goal of finding a first-string quarterback.

"We've got to find our 11 best tacklers," Nugent said today. "The quarterback is the player who is not an outstanding tackler.

"We've got some optimism," Nugent said. "But we must face reality. We feel we can move the ball—but we want to be able to get it."

Nugent obviously was pointing toward the '56 Florida State schedule, the most ambitious ever.

The 10-game program calls for games with Miami, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Auburn, Tulane, North Carolina State, The Citadel, Mississippi Southern, Villanova, Furman and Florida.

The Seminoles won't be dampened severely by graduation. Gone from the 20 54 lettermen—ends Jimmy Lee Taylor and Joe Sabol, tackle Bill Van-American tackle Al Makowecki, quarterback Harry Glasser, halfbacks Bill Graham and Carl Green, and fullback Ronnie Kirk (who won't be available).

Replacements for Massey, signal-caller who passed FSU to nine victories, record-breaking championship, and Makowecki, end, and All-State tackle, will be the most difficult.

Nugent, one of the most imaginative coaches in football, says he may develop a new innovation during spring practice. But he's not saying what combination it is anybody's guess as to what the innovation will be.

Looking at the FSU football picture today, the Seminoles figure to have more depth and a stronger up front, with the backfield, especially at quarterback, remains the big question mark.

Infirmary Life

(Continued From Page 2)

About beds! Hospital beds that is, the kind that for us are a luxury. Not so in the infirmary. They are just a little too high to crawl in or boost in after a refreshing night on the town. They are just a little too high to crawl in or boost in after a refreshing night on the town. You know what I mean, the mattress that sounds like a bowl of ballyhoos lost in the hills. Like I said, unpacked and all.

I mentioned Dr. D. as cute, and was informed by mail—"the doctor is married and has two kids and anyway, you like younger men — remember?" Maybe never forgets a thing. She's one of my roomies that called.

Not many smockers Friday night. Who smoked? I didn't really peek cause I already have first hand experience. First hand experience is always best unless you have thirteen pair.

On the little aid radio, they asked if I had been content in the interim. In the interim—that everyone be counted they say? Will the interim be counted—someone can see you and be sure you're counted. Wish they would send a radio broadcasting male cessna taker. While I'm pulling for the republic. Give your blood! The Gamma Alpha Chi's women's business frat needs your blood for the University arcount. Wander if they'll take mine.

I'm not feeling very funny. Notice how unpreheem my sense becomes ever I'm sick. I had one too but the wheels came off. One blind mice, see how it run. Hit it with a club, he ain't flies. Or another party selection: Roses are red, violets are watermelons, so is my grandmother who smokes very cycles. Such talent I have never seen and never hope to. Oh well, ain't well that ends.

Potential Star—Bob Murray, freshman from Boston, shows the form that may help him to become an outstanding gymnast on Dr. Price's star studded team.

Coach Long Says Thinclads May Have Best Season Yet

By JIMMY JOANOS

The 1955 Florida State University Track and Field Team could very well be one of the best in the school's athletic history.

According to Coach Mike Long, the squad is composed of nine outstanding lettermen and a host of other promising newcomers and returnees from last year's team.

Among the lettermen is Carlos Fraundorfer, last year's team captain and the school's record holder for points scored in a career. This is Fraundorfer's fourth year in Seminole thinclads.

Although the lean athlete has competed in a wide range of events (mountain hills carver he is most proficient in the broad jump and 100-yard dash.

Joe Davis another versatile letterman, will add strength to the team in the sprints, low hurdles, and as a member of various relay teams

Charley Watson, who was basically used as a hurdler last season may additionally be used as a quarter-miler and a relay man this season. In 1954 he was one of the team's top scorers.

Current FSU record holder in the 880-yard dash, Larry Hounshell will be on tap to contribute for the Seminoles in his specialty as well as a provable member of the mile relay quartet.

Letterman Tinney Brown will be back in the high-hurdle and high-jump events Lloyd Lassen, another high-jump letterman will also be counted on for points this season.

Junior Ron Weaver, school record holder in the javelin is back for his third season as an FSU lettermen. Another school record holder, Jerry Jacobs in the shot putt, will be a valuable member of the '55 team.

Letterman field-man Mike Bishop will bolster the Seminole cause in his favorite events, the shot-put and the javelin throw.

In addition to the nine lettermen, outstanding returnees from the team of last year include Sonny Titus (discus), Carl Green (pole vault), Robert Green (discus), and Warren Strickland (pole vault).

Leading newcomers to the squad are Ken Weaver, Vernon Dice, and Jack Terwilliger. Several very promising freshmen runner, sat out last season due to a transfer rule. He is a sophomore.

Freshman Vernon Dice of Hilliard, twice winner of the Class A Florida State high school mile championship has been reported very impressive in early workouts

Jack Terwilliger, a freshman from Dade City, has shown great potential ability in the dashes and the broad jump.

Other newcomers having shown impressive capabilities include Nick Menaroff (sprints), Mike Hidegas (middle distances), Billy Coesterhoud (middle distances), Jimmy Harrell (middle distances), James Browning (high - jump), Jim Mahers (sprints), Kent Hearn (pole vault), Pat Versprille (hurdles, broad jump), Buddy Reynolds (sprints), and Bill Musselman (shot putt).

There are other men currently working out for the squad, but who have not been out long enough to an accurate evaluation of their potential.

The 1955 schedule follows:

Feb 26—Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor—Chapel Hill, N. C.
Mar 26—Florida Relays—Gainesville
Apr 2—Mercer—Tallahassee
Apr 9—Open
Apr 16—Florida A&M—Gainesville
Apr 23—Georgia Tech—Atlanta, Ga.
Apr 30—Louisiana—Tallahassee
May 7—Miami—Coral Gables
May 14—Mississippi Southern—Hattiesburg, Miss.

Dorsey Concert Arouses Feelings

(Continued From Page 1)

for two weeks if unclaimed and then put in a location on campus accessible to the students body.

The two talented brothers and their mute features received spontaneous applause as they captured audience approval with tune after tune. Their star drummer, former orchestra leader Buddy Rich, was missed out by those present with trendsetting renditions for his "real gone" solo work.

RICH DEMONSTRATES

Rich put on demonstration of one of his favorite drums as if mimicking at the tune, mixing fast and slow rhythms in many combinations. His habit of wiping off perspiration with a large white towel after a lone stretch of drum work reflected the energy he put into it.

The audience reacted with love enthusiasm to pleas put in by Tommy Dorsey for the sponsor of a television show on March the 2nd and soon appeared. Many felt that any dance band which has the presumption to call one of its concerts a formal occasion should at least do away with the commercialism often associated with events of lesser note.

However, the quality of the music presented more than made up for such incidents. The Dorseys played many of the songs for which they have received national acclaim, from their famed opening theme song to the "Jivukrai Rambie," a dixieland number which they dedicated to members of Kappa Alpha order.

The KA's pulled one of the shrewdest bits of campus prestige strategy seen for quite a time in having the Dorsey band eat dinner at the fraternity house. This after pared off when they were dedicated the dixieland number.

CROONERS AND BIT

Other Dorsey presentations featured the vocal stylings of crooner Bill Raymond and Bruce Stryder. Featured songstress was Jane Russell, whose sexy pop-ular number was probably "Teach Me Tonight." Snyder displayed his style on a few comic numbers.

Mos; ironic spot in the show occurred with the announcement that the winner in the drawing of the $100 bill would be named over station WFSU-FM. A ripple across the audience showed that some still think a university radio station should be heard by students.

The hour caused Tommy Dorsey, who made the announcement, to take another look at his nose card to make sure he was right in naming the station.

Miles Proves Big Threat

By BOB GUTTING

At the fifth Annual Alabama Invitational meet Saturday the Seminole gymnasts swept over little opposition to retain the Alabama crown.

The meet, held at Anniston, Alabama, was won by the Seminoles for the fifth consecutive year.

Backbone of the gym squad was veteran Jack Miles, a graduate student now in his fifth year of competition for Florida State. Miles is a member of the team that won the first Alabama crown five years ago.

The broad shouldered Miles easily took three first and two second place titles to win the all-around event.

Second high man for the team was Joe Taylor, who copped first on parallel bars and still rings, and second place in the horse events. Taylor finished behind Miles to take second in the all-around.

The most consistent member of the team was Jim Tanaka, who placed in each of the five events he entered, and also kicked off with a third place laurels in the all-around event.

The only two events lost by FSU were tumbling and trampoline. Tumblina was won by members of the Gadsden team, who took the first two places.

In the trampoline competition, Kentucky Gadsden Brown won the crown that he lost to Dick Ireland last year. Both FSU trampoline men, Ireland and Fadigan, did not make the trip to Alabama this year.

This years rope climbing crown was won by freshman Jack Sharpe in his first competition at the Alabama Invitational.

Jack Holder, ace Olympic man who last year won two first and two second places in the five events is entered, and also kicked off with a third place laurels in the all-around event.

Freshman Vernon Dice of Hilliard, twice winner of the Class A Florida State high school mile championship has been reported very impressive in early workouts

Jack Terwilliger, a freshman from Dade City, has shown great potential ability in the dashes and the broad jump.

Other newcomers having shown impressive capabilities include Nick Menaroff (sprints), Mike Hidegas (middle distances), Billy Coesterhoud (middle distances), Jimmy Harrell (middle distances), James Browning (high - jump), Jim Mahers (sprints), Kent Hearn (pole vault), Pat Versprille (hurdles, broad jump), Buddy Reynolds (sprints), and Bill Musselman (shot putt).

There are other men currently working out for the squad, but who have not been out long enough to an accurate evaluation of their potential.

The 1955 schedule follows:

Feb 26—Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor—Chapel Hill, N. C.
Mar 26—Florida Relays—Gainesville
Apr 2—Mercer—Tallahassee
Apr 9—Open
Apr 16—Florida A&M—Gainesville
Apr 23—Georgia Tech—Atlanta, Ga.
Apr 30—Louisiana—Tallahassee
May 7—Miami—Coral Gables
May 14—Mississippi Southern—Hattiesburg, Miss.

Etcetera

(Continued From Page 2)

Everything Photographic For The Amateur and Professional

TALLAHASSEE'S MOST COMPLETE CAMERA SHOP
TALLAHASSEE CAMERA CENTER
123 N. MONROE
Across From The Fla. Theatre

Quickest Delivery In Town
at the
QUAKER HOUSE
GOOD WHOLESOME FOOD
at the COUNTER, on the CURB, at your DOOR
Sandwiches, Shakes, Splits, Sundaes, Regular Meals
Phone 2-8677
Open 6 a. m. to Midnight
Seven Days a Week
West Tennessee Street

FEARLESS FOSDICK
HOW DO YOU DO, MORLEY? A MOUNTAIN OF A MOUND!
CATCH YOUR MINT—QUICKLY!
FIRST—I MUST FIX MY HAIR WITH WILDROOT CREAM-OIL—REMOVES LOOSE DANDRUFF!
RELIEVES DRYNESS KEEPS HAIR NEAT BUT NOT "GREASY" MAKES HAIR LOOK IMPORTANT LIKE THIS!
WILDROOT
AT ALL TIMES—HAIR IS A CREDIT TO MAN!
BUT NOT "GREASY"
WILDROOT CREAM OIL, CHARLIE?
NOT LOOSE DANDRUFF? DON'T GET MAD! GET WILDROOT CREAM-OIL, CHAS-A-BLE!

Famed Dublin Players Appear Here Friday, Saturday

Irish Troupe Offered Here By Artist Series

The famed Dublin Players will appear here Friday and Saturday nights.

Their presentation of Lennox Robinson's "The Far Off Hills" will take place in Westcott Auditorium Friday night, and Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" is scheduled for Saturday. Both will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Artist Series secretary, Kay Vernon, said yesterday that there are "plenty of good seats left." Details on the players as a "repertory company" she said this were "tremendous successes on Broadway."

First Dramatic Group

"The Dublin Players are the first dramatic group in five years to appear under the Artist Series. Student tickets are available in the Westcott Ticket Booth in exchange for ticket number three in the Activities Booklet.

Composed of actors from Irish Radio, Abbey and Gate Theatres the company is now completing another leg of its coast-to-coast tour of American cities presenting great Irish and English classics together with modern plays, including Shaw's "Devil's Disciple" and Priestley's "Dangerous Corner." O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" and Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit".

Raised as "top entertainment" by Variety, the trade paper of the Theatre, the Dublin troupe has gathered praise for itself from top critics and columnists. Variously described as "magnificent", "unparalleled", "outstanding" and "great" the players have gained wide attention from the public wherever they have appeared.

Recalled By Sullivan

In their television appearances on New York, notably Ed Sullivan's "Toast of the Town" on CBS-TV the company gained such unusual response that they were asked by Mr. Sullivan to repeat several times on his program.

Friday night's presentation of "The Far Off Hills" concerns an Irish family from which, shortly after the daughter, Marion, wants to become a nun but her family objects to the idea. Romance enters the picture with a good-looking young man who decides to marry Marion.

Sean O'Casey the author of "Juno and the Paycock" is generally recognized as the principal current dramatist of the Irish Theater. The play, often called his masterpiece is a story of Irish family life also.

FASHION FELLOWSHIPS OFFERED SENIOR WOMEN

Senior women interested in buying, advertising, styling and service can receive a fee a year-ship to the Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Career in New York City.

Four such fellowships are being offered during 1955. Deadline for application is August 31 and awards are worth $1000. Regulations for them may be obtained from the Placement Office 300 Westcott or by writing Fashion Fellowship Secretary Tobe-Coburn School for Fashion Careers 851 Madison Avenue, New York 21, New York.

Leaving For The Grand Tour . . . Picture above are members of the famed Dublin Players troupe who will appear before audiences in Westcott this Friday and Saturday of this week.

Franklin, Polk Counties Charge FSU Companions With Theft

Dr. Louis D. Corson, Dean of Men, declined comment on the recent arrest of two Florida Statute University freshmen, pending completion of investigation in the matter by his office.

Yesterday's Tallahassee Democrat told of the arrest of Donald Ken Baker, 19, Lawrence Belsanger, 18, and Walter Nicholas Dash Moore. The youths were arrested early Sunday morning in an investigation following a routine check by two Tallahassee policemen.

Stolen goods, valued at more than $1,000, were recovered by the police at the youths' apartment, 725 W. Pensacola St., where they have resided since January 12. All three are from Winter Haven.

Charges Filed

Patrolman R. J. Strickland told The Florida Flambeau yesterday that grand larceny and breaking and entering charges have been filed against the three youths by Franklin County.

Strickland and he conferred with the sheriff of Barlow County yesterday afternoon, and that charges from Polk county were expected to arrive in Tallahassee late last night. He added that as far as he knew, the youths committed crimes only in Polk and Franklin counties.

The Democrat listed the stolen goods found in the apartment as including a TV set, seven radios and record players, fishing rods and reels, cases of groceries, cooking utensils several typewriters, three electric fans, a coon gun and rifle, some whisky, beer, and an airplane compass.

The youths have admitted automobile thefts, breaking and entering an coastal cottages in Franklin County as well.

Incident Brief Tragic

Dean Corson termed the incident a "tragic one, and as all of us, we first notice of any misdemeanors on the part of the FSU students.

When questioned as to how the FSU students were allowed to live off campus when they are under twenty-one, Corson replied that they had not received permission to live in an apartment.

Dean Corson said that the FSU freshmen, Belsanger and Moore, applied for the required special permission to live off-campus, prior to the beginning of the second semester, for "reasons of financial straits."

The men did not receive permission to live in an apartment as far as my office has been able to ascertain, said the Dean. Men He added that they made no mention of a third roommate. Baker when making the application Permission was granted only for living in a double room, which is owned by the landlord.

Present University regulations stipulate that a student under twenty-one must have special permission to live off campus, and that students are allowed to reside only in homes or relatives or in rooming houses where the landlord is in supervision.

Sandspur Features Music By Morrow

The series for the eighth annual Sandspur production have been changed to Monday, March 21 through Friday, March 25 The change was made, announced chairman Frances Stokes, because Buddy Morrow's orchestra couldn't appear on the originally scheduled dates.

Men are needed for the forthcoming production both for solos and dance and for choruses. Also, people are needed for backstage work on props, costumes, scenery and make-up, added the chairmen.

An organizational meeting of all committees and chairmen will be held Tuesday night at 9:00 p.m. in the Lonesome Building in room 410.

The chairman added that an early performance will be given on Friday evening at 6 p.m. to allow students time to get to the dance when will last from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Instruments Small, But The Noise—

Flatophone practice has placed counselors and officers of supervisus women's dorms in a quandry.

Elementary education majors are required to master this small plastic instrument. Fellow dorm residents, however, have complained, especially in concentrated areas of elementary education majors.

Regulations concerning this new problem were announced at women's house meeting last Thursday. Inquiry was made at the School of Music as to the possibility of students obtaining practice rooms, but these were found unavailable.

The counselors and officers of Florida Hall dictated that practice may be held on Landis Green during daytime hours or in a closed-off basement room during the hours of 5-7 p.m.

Other resident halls have established similar regulations.

Present regulations are considered temporary, pending further consideration.

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Samar Hall)

At your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TUESDAY
"Prince of Players"
Richard Burton
WED.-THUR.-SDAY
"Underwater"
Jane Russell
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TUES.-WEDNESDAY
"Battle Ground"
Van Johnson
THURS.-SATUEDAY
"Charge Of The Lancers"
Paulette Goddard and
"Gorilla At Large"
Cameron Mitchell

STATE
TUESDAY
"Ten Wanted Men"
Randolph Scott
WED.-TUESDAY
"Bridges At Toko Ri"
William Holden
CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TUESDAY-WED.
"Casanova's Big Night"
Bob Hope
THURSDAY-SAT.
"Remains To Be Seen"
Van Johnson

ELI ROBERTS SERVICE STATION
Corner West Tennessee And Capeland
(Two Blocks From Samar Hall)
WE HAVE MECHANIC AND ROAD SERVICE
DIAL 2-8523

Exhibit Featuring Interrelationship Of Art And Science Begins Today

The interrelationship of art and science will be illustrated in an exhibition, "Form, Color and Motion—Art and Science."

Sponsored by the Florida State University departments of art, anthropology and physics, the exhibition may be seen in the FSU Museum and Art Gallery beginning today, February 15 March 23.

To've will be an exhibition of African woodcraft; a Greek stone head and modern veloed sculpture as an illustration of "Form." Anthropologists believe that the materials used by individual cultures for sculpture reflect the nature of the cultures themselves.

Ringling Loan Exhibited

The Greek head, from the Isle of Cyprus and dated 350 B.C., is loaned by the Ringling Museum.

The physics department is illustrating "Color" with an ingenious machine, using two discs of polarized material, a thin sheet of mica and strips of scotch tape to project an ever-changing kaleidoscope of color patterns, according to Dr. Guenter Schwartz, head of the department will not repeat one another "within several hours."

A stroboscope, which has a multitude of industrial uses, will be shown in operation. The stroboscope has figures or a picture on a rapidly rotating disk, which is illuminated as many times a second as it revolves—and she picture or writing appears to be stationary.

Specimen Employed

Other exhibits are a spectrum projected on a screen, breaking up ordinary white light into its six components; a six-feet by six-feet three-dee model of a sail crystal made of cork spheres and string. Models of various mathematical shapes made of crocheting yarn and lucite plastic, and a Stewart Davis painting, are also on exhibit.

The exhibition will open with an informal coffee hour Tuesday night from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The project was conceived over a year ago by Dr Hale Smith, anthropologist; Dr. Guenter Schwartz, physics and Edmund Lewandowski, then head of the art department.

Russell Vest, curator of the museum, was in charge of the overall plan and design. Assisting were Lewis Eckhart, Goorge Milton Jack Wise, Phoebe Barber, and Dorothy Kannon.

"Sweetheart of Jennie Murphree Hall." . . . Shirley Metz was crowned as Jennie Murphree's annual formal held in the Longmire Auditorium Friday night. The traditional annual dance is sponsored by the freshman women's dormitory, and residents choose the "sweetheart" by general election.

Mathematics Department Gives Problem of the Month Contest

The Mathematics Department has created a challenge to interested undergraduates to solve a 'Problem of the Month.'

Some of the monthly problems will require a knowledge of calculus and others will require no more than high school algebra. In each case the necessary mathematics background will be indicated.

The first set of problems to be solved are:

1. No college mathematics required! A river flows through the city of Konigsberg. There are two islands in this river. A single bridge joins the two islands. Is it possible to take a stroll in Konigsberg returning eventually to the starting point and passing over each of the five bridges once and only once Explain.
2. No college mathematics required! Consider six points in space, no three of them in a straight line. Each pair of points is joined by a line which is either red or blue. Prove that no matter how the colors are arranged the configuration will contain an all blue triangle or an all red triangle.
3. College algebra or a good high school algebra background: Find the smallest positive integer N such that if Y is divided by n the remainder is 1 for n = 2, 3, 4, . . . , 10 Show that your answer is the only positive integer N with the above property.

Students must write solutions neatly and concisely and submit them to any member of the Mathematics Faculty or send it through campus mail addressed to Problem of the Month, Mathematics Department.

The best solution to each problem will be posted as well as a list of students who have submitted correct solutions.

GREEK BRIDGE TOURNEY TO MEET THURSDAY

The next meeting of the Greek Bridge Tournament will be held Thursday night in Lonsmire Auditorium at 7:30. All interested fraternities and sororities are asked to attend.

Seven of the games held on February 3 are in order: Phi Delta Theta, first place; Sigma Chi Lamoda Chi Alpha Gamma Delta Delta Delta Delta Pi Beta Phi, second; Alpha Delta Pi Delta Zeta Pi Kappa Alpha, Zeta Tau Alpha, Sigma Kappa.

Reports That NSA

(Continued From Page 1)

one example of effort on the international scale leading to greater understanding among nations

Lunn said that the Association benefits student governments by providing leadership training in addition to making services available for the benefit of students on an individual campuses.

In response to Gaster a questions, Lunn said that membership would be effective immediately upon payment of dues and ratification of the USNSA constitution. FSU, he said, would be entitled to five delegates. He said that some effort is made to subsidize delegations with long distances to travel to the National Student Congress.

Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, he noted, is considering membership in USNSA

Lunn also discussed other aspects of USNSA's program, including student tours to Europe

Lunn Explained How

NSA can express its opinions and make them count, he said, for example, he is serving as a sub-committee of the American Council on Education of which NSA is a member, and he may testify before a Congressional committee later in the spring.

"We're also taken steps to inform Congressmen who are chairmen of the appropriate committees on our position, particularly regarding educational benefits," Lunn said.

NSA is also working through our newsletter and publications to inform member school editors and student governments of the issues involved in the manpower question and we encourage them to formulate expressions of student opinion in order that they may represent their students on this issue."

"We don't lobby," Lunn said. "The responsibility is left to the students."

Over 600,000 students in 360 member schools are represented by USNSA," he said.

Lunn Says NSA

Day Student, Greek, Dorm Resident Modify Bill That Could Change Senate Representation

Note: Section 4 A, bold face words are added B under Section 4 is added; Section 4 C is the previous Subsection B, reworded.)

Senators Joan Halford, Kenneth Gatlin and Jim Jonson will present the following amendments to the Moore-Vaughn representation Bill in Senate Meeting Wednesday.

The amendments constitute changes in the section they object to.

SECTION 1. Article II, Section 2, sub-section A of the constitution shall be amended by substitution of the following:

A. Senators shall be elected from their own constituencies, that is, Greeks shall be elected by Greeks, dorm residents by dorm residents, and day students by day students. Freshmen and Sophomore Junior and Senior Women to be elected during Spring elections 1 man and 1 woman from the Freshman Class to be elected during Freshman elections

1 senator from each of the following dormitories to be elected during Fall elections by majority vote of the students living in the respective units: Cawthon, Reed Landis, West Landis North Carothers South Carothers Magnolia, Smith Hall, Jennie Murphree Hall, Reynolds Hall, Broward Florida, Hall.

2 senators from West Hall, to be elected during Fall elections.

2 men and 2 women to be elected by the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Association respectively during Spring elections for the Fall semester.

2 men and 1 woman to be elected at Large from the Day Students during the Fall elections.

Senators elected to represent dormitories shall be elected by majority vote of the residents of the dormitory.

Dormitory governments shall appoint persons to be responsible for maintaining the polls.

Senators elected to represent Greeks shall be elected by majority vote of the Pledges and the Inter-Fraternity Council respectively.

Senators elected to represent day students shall be elected by majority vote of the day students with the exception of the Senator from the Day Students at Large.

Voting places shall be located in each dormitory.

Each dormitory government shall appoint persons to be responsible for maintaining the polls.

Voting places shall be located in the Student Union.

The Day-student organization shall appoint persons to be responsible for the election of senators.

Voting places shall be located in the Student Union.

The day-student organization shall appoint persons to be responsible for the election of senators.

SECTION 2 Article IV, Section 1 of the constitution shall be amended by substitution of the following:

The Fall Student Senate shall be elected during the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate.

The Spring Student Senate shall be elected during the Spring elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate.

The Fall Student Senate shall be elected for the Summer Session at the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Summer Session.

Senators failed to do so shall automatically vacate its head office.

SECTION 3 Article IV, Section 2 of the Constitution shall be amended by substitution of the following:

A. Senators elected to represent classes shall be elected by class elections during the Fall elections.

B. Senators elected to represent Freshman class Senators now elected during Freshman elections.

C. Senators elected to represent dormitories shall be elected by majority vote of the residents of the dormitory during the Fall elections.

D. Senators elected to represent Greeks shall be elected by majority vote of the Pledges and the Inter-Fraternity Council respectively.

E. Senators elected to represent day students shall be elected by majority vote of the day students with the exception of the Senator from the Day Students at Large.

F. Voting places shall be located in each dormitory.

G. Each dormitory government shall appoint persons to be responsible for maintaining the polls.

H. Voting places shall be located in the Student Union.

I. The day-student organization shall appoint persons to be responsible for the election of senators.

J. Voting places shall be located in the Student Union.

K. The day-student organization shall appoint persons to be responsible for the election of senators.

SECTION 4 Article IV, Section 3 of the Constitution shall be amended by substitution of the following:

A. Senators elected to represent classes shall be elected during the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate. They shall serve during the Regular Session until the election of their successors.

B. Senators elected to represent dormitories shall be elected during the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate. They shall serve during the Regular Session until the election of their successors.

C. Senators elected to represent Greeks shall be elected during the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate. They shall serve during the Regular Session until the election of their successors.

D. Senators elected to represent day students shall be elected during the Fall elections and shall assume office on the first regular meeting of the Student Senate. They shall serve during the Regular Session until the election of their successors.

FSU, Pittsburgh Debators Tie In Gulf States Speech Festival

Florida State University varsity debaters tied with the University of Pittsburgh for first place at the Gulf States Speech Festival

Norma Trippodo and Arnold Greenfield on the affirmative and Tom Wood and Herb Lacayo on the negative used the tournament Accentered by Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburgh, February 11 and 12.

Both FSU teams won three and lost one debate, aiving the school a six win, two loss record. In the individual events at the tournament, Tom Woods placed first in "After Dinner Speaking", and received a superior certificate.

Debaters Rate High

In the field of oral interpretation Arnold Greenfeld and Tom Woods both rated superior. Norma Trippodo ranked excellent in senior women's interpretation and extemporaneous speaking. Herbert Lacayo also ranked excellent in senior men's extemporaneous speaking.

The Gulf States Speech Festival is an annual tournament which FSU has attended for the past four years. At last year's tournament, Beverly Dupree Izzel and Pete Nimkoff received a superior rating in debate and Norma Trippodo, a superior certificate in oral interpretation.

Among the 16 schools attending the tournament were Millsaps College, Tulane University, Mississippi State College for Women, University of Mississippi, Louisiana State University, Auburn, Spring Hill the University of Alabama, and FSU.

Dr. Glenn Pfiffer accompanied the FSU debaters.

WINSTON tastes good— like a cigarette should!

WINSTON'S GOT REAL FLAVOR!

AND IT'S SO EASY-DRAWING!

FINER FILTER!

FINEST FLAVOR!

KING SIZE, TOO!

Winston

FILTER-CIGARETTES

■ Now there's a filter cigarette college smokers will really enjoy! It's new Winston and it brings flavor back to filter smoking!

You'll really enjoy Winston's full, rich, tobacco flavor. And you will really appreciate Winston's finer filter. It's unique, it's different, it filters so effectively! Winstons are easy-drawing, too, for full flavor enjoyment.

Try a pack of Winstons! They taste good — like a cigarette should!

Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

The Florida Flambeau

DAVE BRUBECK'S
Appearance
Is Cancelled—P. 1

VOL. XL. NO. 28

PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1955

Eight Speakers Arrive Sunday For Faith Event

I-F Week Ends On Wednesday; Agenda Heavy

Eight outstanding figures in the missionary field will be on campus starting Sunday to take part in the annual Intelligent Faith Week program.

Available through the courtesy of the Florida Chain of Missions, these speakers will attempt to show the place of religion to the modern scientific world, as well as the impossibility of a reconciliation between the influences of Communist forces and faith.

Dr. Samuel Nevi, university English, sums up the idea saying that "an unintelligent faith is illusory which no man can afford."

The program, which lasts through Wednesday, February 22, will see the speakers, which include a Latin escapee of a Red firing squad and a Welsh candidate for parliament, address special campus and class classes.

Heavy Agenda Set

The state calls for addresses to the University classes, 22 fraternity and sorority houses, 11 dormitories, 8 faculty luncheons and 4 general meetings.

Further information on page 4.

Speakers with their particular evangelistical area of experience are: Miss Elizabeth McNeill, an American with a record of outstanding work in Japan and Korea; Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, a German educated in Switzerland and known who recently encountered difficulties with the Russians.

Mr. John William Hughes, Welsh miner and candidate for parliament who has been an active worker for closer U. S.-British relations; The Right Reverend Henry Vida Louttit, a leading Presbyterian educator active in all areas of Christian education.

College President Speaks

Dr. Hunter Blakely, former president of Queens College, Charlotte and an able director of university Christian life; and the Reverend Dan Beaudoin, a devoted underprivileged peoples of Latin American cities and an Air Force chaplain in the field of Christian conversion and Social Justice.

All eight leaders will participate today in a speaking tour of the Florida Chautauqua auditoriums which will be climaxed by a general meeting and Supper at the First Baptist Church from 5-7 p. m. that night.

The Sunday program is outlined as follows: First Baptist Church—Dr. John Hughes, 8:30 a.m.; Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, 11 a.m. and Dr. James Mathews, 7:30 p.m.

Trinity Foundation—Dr. Russell Stevenson, 9:30 a.m.; Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, 8:45 a.m. Trinity Methodist—Dr. James Mathews, 11 a.m.; Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, 7:30 p.m. Southside Methodist—Miss Elizabeth McNeill, 7:30 p.m.

Presbyterian Schedule

First Presbyterian Church—Miss Elizabeth McNeill, 9:30 a.m.; Rev. Don Benedict, 11 a.m.; and Mr. Don Hughes, 7:30 p.m. Westminster Presbyterian—Miss Elizabeth McNeill, 11 a.m.

Rose Hall—Rev. Russell Stevenson, 11 a.m., and Bishop Henry Smith, 7:30 p.m.

Capital Christian — Rev. Don Benedict, 9:45 a.m.; Dr. Mathews, 11 a.m.; and Rev. Russell Stevenson, 7:30 p.m.

Seminars are scheduled for Monday, February 21, from 3-4 p.m. in the Methodist Student Center. Miss Metzger will speak on "Has Communism Borrowed From Christianity" and Stevenson will speak at the same time in Rose Hall on "The Strength of Islam in the Near East."

Monday from 4 to 5 p.m. Mathews will discuss "Is India's Neutrality Pro-Communist or Pro-Christian?" in the Presbyterian Student House and Blakely will speak on "Do I Witness for Christ Sufficiently?" in the Baptist Student House.

Tuesday from 3 to 4 p.m. Louttit will speak on "Christianity and Human Life" in the Presbyterian Student House and McNeill will speak on "The Future of Christianity in Japan" in Rose Hall.

Benedict Speaks

From 4 to 5 p.m. the same day, Benedict will speak on "Christianity Communism and Labor" in the Methodist Student House and Hughes on "An Englishman Views America" in the Baptist Student House.

An annual event on the FSU campus, Intelligent Faith Week is held in cooperation with the Florida Chain of Missions. This organization began in 1930 when three persons in Leland, Fla., Leesburg and Orlando, known as Interdenominational Schools of Mission, joined forces and expanded to include other cities.

Now twenty Florida cities, as well as the University of Miami and Rollins are included. Support is also obtained through the Board of Missions to take part in religious activities. The board is directed by Miss Louise Woodford.

Oooooh, SUSANNAH! Dr. Lynn Orr, stage director of "Susannah," coaches opera stars Phyllis Curtin and Mack Harrell during rehearsals of the production scheduled for February 24 and 25. The second night's performance will be given for FSU students.

Musical Seems An Enjoyable Experience For Its Two Stars

Brubeck Showing Cancelled; Conflicts With Sandspur

A special meeting of the Artist Series committee this week, the possibility of item pointed out, Brubeck apparently here was raised because his playing date would too closely conflict with Sandspur Week-end.

Mrs. Kay Vernon, publicity director of the Artist Series, told The Florida Flambeau yesterday that Brubeck was available March 28th and Sandspur's dance fraternity Boddy Parsons would be here on March 5th.

"The two student members on the committee thought it would be too much with the IFC Dance on the following week. Ticket selling will appear here for that event.

David Dreis, student government's representative to the committee stated same objections, expressed his disappointment, but there a chance that such a noted performer such as Brubeck will not appear here. I think however, this matter is right about the conflict, but that was the reason the committee voted Les Brown who is available for the May." The Artist Series Committee ruled out Brown's appearance because the spring date was right before Circus Week.

Education Coordinator To Interview Seniors

T. R. Finley, coordinator of the elementary school in Albany, Georgia, will be at the Placement Office in 203 Westcott Building today to talk with June graduates interested in teaching there.

Interested students have been asked to contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement for appointments through extension 3281, as soon as possible.

Blood Drive In Second Week; 120 Pint Goal

Today begins the second week of the campus Blood Drive.

Last Friday, the first day of the campaign, ended with no donations at all. One student showed up to donate blood, but was unable to donate due to a physical condition.

During the week, the largest group to offer blood were 25 members of Kappa Sigma fraternity, of whom 18 were able to donate.

A minimum goal of 120 pints has been set by a committee headed by Graham Carothers and Margaret Neller, with the drive running until March 14.

Scrapping a similar schedule must first arrange with the FSU Hospital for a blood test before they plan to donate. All persons under 21, except ROTC students, must bring a written permission from their parents with them.

A car leaves the infirmary every Friday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to take donors to the blood bank.

Klonsky Receives Key From Tau Epsilon Phi; Bernstein Beat Probation

At a dinner held Saturday evening by Tau Epsilon Phi, sorority Chancellor Jerome Klonsky was presented with a fraternity key by incoming Chancellor Neil Lakow.

The dinner was held in honor of the initiation of two new members plus the election of new officers. Initiated were Murry Stoddart and Donald Schwartz.

Officers elected were Neil B. Lukow, Chancellor; Leon Cohen, Vice Chancellor; David Lebiang, Bursar; Donald Schwartz, Recording Scribe; Murry Stoddart, House Manager; Jerome Klonsky; Pledge Master and Murry Berman, Chaplain.

Following the dinner, Jerome Bernstein was presented with the "Best Pledge Award" for 1954-55.

Representation Changes Brings Bitter Debating

Gaster Assails New 'Greek' Election Plan

A substitute plan for changing Student Senate representation came before the Senate Wednesday and occasioned bitter debate.

It was laid on the table for a week after efforts of Men's Vice-President Gordon Gaster to kill it by "tabling indefinitely," failed.

Senators Ken Gatlin, Joan Halford and Jimmy Joanos introduced the measure which, if eventually ratified as a constitutional amendment would provide for two senators from each class, fifteen dormitory senators, four day student senators and four senators elected by Pan Hellenic and Interfraternity Councils.

This measure was introduced as an amendment to a proposal read last week, sponsored by Vice-president Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn. Other that differences between the two are that Moore's would have given Independents and would not provide for day student or Greek representation.

Gaster Plan Attacked

Gaster, who attacked last week's proposal as "undemocratically discriminatory" in denying Greek representation, charged that the proposal "undermined undemocratic in providing for election of senators by Pan-Hellenic and Interfraternity Councils.

He argued further that not all Greeks by Pan-Hellenic would be guaranteed.

Senator Jimmy Joanos, in defending the system of Greek representation, asserted that the Greek system "is not democratic" a mass election by fraternity men. He maintained that IFC election would be fairer and said that the fraternity presidents who comprise the IFC would be reflecting the wishes of their members.

Debate was taking place on Gaster's motion to kill the Gatlin-Halford proposal by indefinitely tabling it indefinitely. Senator Bob Bernstein moved a six week postponement while Senator Jim Moore suggested a one week postponement item-by-item. Stancik protested that the Senate had not had enough time to examine the new proposal and evoked a statement of parliamentary procedure from Gaster.

Gaster alleged that a dormitory senator "running on a fraternity would have large, unfair representation through his fraternity vote" and that such a senator would be "unfair and discriminatory."

The vote on Gaster's bid to table Gatlin-Halford's motion as amendment was interpreted as observers as indicative of the present opposition to a change in representation. Supporting tabling were Senators Gaster, were Senators Bob Berto, Bill Stancik, Ken Gatlin, Jimmy Soles and Hank McCann.

Street Made One Way

The Senate passed a resolution asking that Jacksonville Boulevard, which runs from the library to West Call Street, be made one-way running South. The suggestion, put by Senator Bill Stancik, contended that doing so would relieve the pressure on the thoroughfare and would cause undue inconvenience to motorists.

The roll-call vote was, in favor: Powers, Vice-president Joan Tavel and Senators Hey Arnold, Lillian Avis, Joan Halford, Nancy Vaughn, Ken Gatlin, Jimmy Joanos, Margaret Ann Ballinger, Bob Berto, Polly Atwater, Liz Cerny, Peter Dunn, Hank McCann and Ginny Rice.

Against, Vice-president Gaster and Senators Bob Berto, Bill Stancik, Bill Swigert, Jim Moore, Jimmy Joanos, Bobby Temple and Bill Swigert.

Immediately afterward Vice-president Gaster presided over a meeting of Men's Senate, which passed the Gatlin-Halford bill sented by Senator Stancik against the full Senate's one-way street resolution.

Committee Established

Soles said that although his name was considered for UNSNA delegate he pressured an unfavorable remark and would not paint a good picture of the association.

After Soles sat down, Men's Vice-President Gaster, commented that "Senator Soles seems opposed," suggested he be put on the committee to study the UNSNA.

Senator Jimmy Joanos, who introduced the resolution to set up the committee, said that Soles' speech was "one of the finest talks I've ever heard on the Senate floor."

Senate voted to establish the committee without dissent.

'Players' Present First Performance Tonight, Westcott

Dublin Actors Open Program In Family Play

"There are still seats left in the orchestra and balcony for both performances of the Dublin Players," said Mrs. Kay Vernon, Artist Series secretary, yesterday.

Appearing in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15, the famed Irish troupe will present Lennox Robinson's "The Far Off Hills" tonight, and Sean O'Casey's "Juno and the Paycock" Saturday evening.

An Irish drama, "Juno and the Paycock" has a universal theme —the hopes and disappointments, laughter and tears of an everyday family. Often considered Sean O'Casey's masterpiece, it reflects the courage, imagination and faith of the Irish people.

The Far Off Hills

"The Far Off Hills" also concerns a family, but in a much lighter vein. The story is about a girl who is determined to become a nun, and a young man who is equally determined to marry her. The Dublin players, founded and directed by Ronald Ibbs, are composed of actors from Ireland's famous Abbey and Gate Theatres. Now on their third American tour, their plan was conceived when Sullivan's "The Toast of the Town" on TV.

Ed Sullivan, who called them "one of the finest acting companies that has ever visited this country," has not been the only American to praise the Dublin Players' performances. Other comments by leading columnists and critics include, "sheer magic in the theatre," "rare quality" and "magnificent, unparalleled performance."

Tickets may be obtained in the Westcott Ticket Booth on reaching the Activities Booth after November three.

Event is Formal

In regard to the proper attire for attending the performances, Mrs. Vernon said, "I would like to remind both faculty and students that the Artist Series Committee has designated all Tripati Series events as formal.

Immediately following the performance Friday night, the residents of Florida Hall will honor the Dublin Players at a formal reception in the lounge parlor. Admission is by invitation only, Mrs. Vernon announced.

Yma Sumac's appearance March 8 and 9 will be the next Artist Series event, Mrs. Vernon said. Tickets, which will be on sale Monday, are available at the offices for Activities ticket number six.

Police Have A Lot Of Trouble With Students, Says Stoutamire

Tallahassee Police Chief Frank Stoutamire said this week that police have "a lot of trouble" with university students here.

"Unfortunately," said Stoutamire, "a lot of boys that go away from home feel that they can do anything. His comment came several days after two Florida State University students and a companion had been arrested for stealing an estimated $1,000 worth of goods in Polk and Franklin counties.

Charges brought against the trio are grand larceny and breaking and entering. Stoutamire recalled that they had broken into four houses in Polk County, six in Franklin, and had stolen two cars.

Stoutamire revealed how the police force had captured the boys. "A way" of safe cracking had been going on lately, and police were under orders to watch the backs of warehouses on the outskirts of town.

The night of the arrest, said Stoutamire, "a patrolman saw a car scoot around behind one, and investigated."

No Reason Given

When he arrested the youths later, the patrolman found he had no stolen property, but could not give a reason for acting out there he was brought to jail.

The Police found out later the car was stolen.

Stoutamire continued that the youth admitted to the thefts and breaking and when police went to his apartment they found a refrigerator, a full set of dishes, a load of goods. The other two were arrested later.

All of them are from Winter Haven, said Stoutamire, "and at least one has admitted breaking into high school before."

Stoutamire declared his experience had shown him that there was a tendency to stray when attending college. When his own son entered Florida State, at Florida, Stoutamire took this into account.

He remembered telling his son, "When you go to college you will be on your own, and if somebody asks you to do something wrong, just get out of the car and walk off.

"Boys just don't realize they are men," he declared.

100 Additional Scholarships Sought Here

"The School of Education is attempting to gain at least 100 more state scholarships for Florida State University."

Spokesmen revealed that in the past, one out of every two students applying for a state teaching scholarship received one. At latest count there were 228 state scholarships available. If at least 200 students here apply, we should receive approximately 100 for our students."

They noted that examinations for the state teaching scholarships are being held March 22 in the Suwannee Room. Students who wish to try for these awards, valued at $400 per year, should contact Dr. Sam Lassiter in the Education Building or their advisors in the school.

These scholarships do not have to be paid back except in the event that the student is not associated in some capacity with the public schools of Florida a year for every year the scholarship is held.

Students receiving scholarships are required by law to enroll in the School of Education, although they may pursue any major they wish under an agreement of the council of deans.

Applications must be filed in the office of the exams may be taken. These are available in the Education Building.

Carothers To Speak To Graduate Class

Dr. Milton Carothers will speak to the Graduate Class Thursday, February 24. The program will be held in Longmire Lounge at 4 p.m.

Dr. Carothers home will be "Your Graduate Class." All future, married and graduate students are invited to attend.

MacDonald Featured Speaker At Coffee Hour Series Today

John D. MacDonald, author of "Cancel All Our Vows," will be the speaker at the English Coffee Hour today at 4 p.m. The event will be held in the Westminster House.

MacDonald is one of America's best-selling writers. Coffee Hour spokesmen said. He has written a number of novels and mysteries, and a new book called "Contrary Pleasure."

The story is about the leading family of Clayton Village, who are members of the Blackiron Knitting Company. Solving the family's many problems is "Contrary Pleasure"- a deep intensity, said critics.

The book relates how each member of the family reaches a decade-moment of life, and is set against the varied social and industrial background of a southern New York. It reveals human complexities that revolve beneath the surface of family and industry troubles.

MacDonald was born to Sharon, Pennsylvania. A graduate of Syracuse University and Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, he began his writing career when he was serving overseas with the United States Army during World War II.

He and Mrs. MacDonald now live in Sarasota with their fifteen year old son, John P. MacDonald.

John D. MacDonald

Soles Attacks Affiliation

Senate Committee To Study NSA

Student Senate voted Wednesday tal. absolute desegregation on all to set up a committee to study the "advantages and disadvantages" of membership in the United States National Student Association.

Senator Jimmy Soles, who attended the UNSNA a Student Congress this summer, and whose unfavorable report on USNSA was accepted by the Senate in the fall, resisted his opposition to the Association.

Upon taking the floor, Soles vigorously denied three rumors he proclaimed have been circulating on campus regarding his ant.-UNSNA stand: that he was absent from a special Senate meeting Monday which heard a talk by Harry H. Linn Jr., national UNSNA president, because he was "scared to face Linn." that he went to the Student Congress this summer in prejudiced against the Association and that he had been sent there with the understanding that he was to bring back an unfavorable report.

Linn "Talked Around"

Soles charged that Linn "talked up to and around" him. Soles' opposition to USNSA when the national president addressed the Senate.

Soles lashed out at what he termed the Association's stand for "to-levels—immediately."

Linn told the Senators that the presence of southern delegates at this summer's convention in Biloxi "hastened the "moderacy" of the report. In answer, Wednesday, Soles quoted Linn's warnings from the southerners that their schools might withdraw from USNSA should the Association only re-affirm its previous "total desegregation" recommendation.

Soles argued that the USNSA is attempting to ban from their campuses fraternities and sororities whose charters have restrictive clauses based on race or religion.

While maintaining his own tolerance, Soles declared that it is "God-given right to choose one's own friends and brothers."

He charged that most of USNSA's services are available to students at non-member schools and said the Association's discount service is inoperative.

"Discount Was't Work"

Soles added that this discount service "wouldn't work in the South."

He quoted an unnamed UNSNA vice-president as saying UNSNA would be of benefit only for a small school or a new student government.

Soles stated that he didn't believe the FSU student body would approve of the Association's stand segregation and said that at other southern schools who do belong "we can't recommend the Association when I could not see any benefits and that much money for something I could not see would benefit the student body."

He quipped that FSU's only benefit would be having its name on the membership list.

Committee Established

Soles said that although his name was considered for UNSNA delegate he pressured an unfavorable remark and would not paint a good picture of the association.

After Soles sat down, Men's Vice-President Gaster, commented that "Senator Soles seems opposed," suggested he be put on the committee to study the UNSNA.

Senator Jimmy Joanos, who introduced the resolution to set up the committee, said that Soles' speech was "one of the finest talks I've ever heard on the Senate floor."

Senate voted to establish the committee without dissent.

Musical Seems An Enjoyable Experience For Its Two Stars

"Susannah" seems to be an enjoyable experience for Phyllis Curtin, soprano, and Mack Harrell, baritone, the two New York opera stars who will sing the lead roles.

Both expressed their interest in Professor Carlisle Floyd's two-act music drama, "Susannah" which will be performed for the first time here Thursday, followed by a studen performance on Friday. Much of the enthusiasm, however, is due to the students working on "Susannah."

When asked what the differences are between student and professional casts, Miss Curtin, who commented that she has never before worked with a student cast, said: "One difference is that the student cast is better prepared."

The star said, is due to the fact that they're working on only one production at a time, whereas a professional opera company must work on da whole repertoire.

Jack Cast Fresh

Harrell commented, "I would like to add only that I find the student cast fresher in many respects and definitely more charismatic toward their professional colleagues."

Miss Curtin and Harrell, who are assistant and good-natured conversationalists, have worked together in the past although never in opera. They have sung in concerts. Bach festivals, and oratorios. Their types, and are scheduled to sing together in the Chautauqua Auditorium during April.

They were both attending the Aspen Music Festival, Aspen, Colorado, when FSU's professor Floyd asked them the new opera on which he was working. Both immediately agreed to appear in the world premiere at Florida State University.

"My first impression was that I wanted to do it," said Miss Curtin, to which Harrell added, "If Phyllis wants to do it, I do too."

Acting Important

It is interesting to note that although Professor Floyd calls his work a "music drama" Miss Curtin and Harrell don't feel that it is primarily acting that counts.

"All operas are music dramas," commented Miss Curtin, adding

(Continued on Page 4)

News Briefs

FRATERNITY INITIATES ELECTED AT WEDNESDAY MEET

An informal dance will be held at the Student Center tomorrow night at 8 p.m. with the Tempos furnishing the juke box.

ADPI ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Margaret Ann Kennedy was elected president of Alpha Delta Pi at a recent meeting. Other officers elected were Gail Bolling, vice-president, Jeanette Porter, recording secretary, Ann Hall, corresponding secretary, and Gay Harga, treasurer.

SAI ELECTS HONORARY MEMBER

Ellen Sasnow was recently elected president of Sigma Alpha Iota, professional music fraternity for women. Other officers elected were Dee Dee Hall, vice-president, Phyllis Keen, recording secretary, and Anita Woods, corresponding secretary.

Anita Brunson was elected treasurer, Barbara Cooper, chaplain, Sara Stowe, historian and Rebecca Wood, sergeant-at-arms.

Miss Ann Hall, pianist, and dean emeritus of the School of Music, was initiated as the first honorary member of SAI.

GAMMA PHI'S FLECT OFFICERS

Gamma Phi Beta elected the following officers for the 1955-56 year.

Sandra Weaver, president; Sharon Phi Beta elected the president; Faye Moses, second vice-president; Enid Taylor, recording secretary Joanne Robbins, corresponding secretary

Barbara Driver, treasurer; Carol McCoy, rush chairman; Jeanne Ann Horn, Pan-Hellenic Representative; Sylvia White, Standards chairman and Billie Ann Folsom, house president.

Proper And Fair Procedure

Senator Jim Soles was a little over a day late in reaffirming his stand against the United States National Student Associtaion.

Harry Lunn Jr. president of the USNSA, spoke to a special session of the Student Senate on Monday, but Senator Soles was not there to hear him. Soles said he was in class, and could not attend the session called especially for Lunn.

Soles was the only Senate member who had the proper knowledge and background of the functions of USNSA to adequately question or debate with Lunn the benefits or misgivings of the Association, since he was the only FSU student sent to the annual USNSA Congress, held last summer in Ames, Iowa.

Therefore, it was only proper that, being in this singular position, he attend the session and reiterate his stand, so Lunn, in all fairness, could have been able to contend his viewpoint—all in front of the Student Senate members. For they are also the ones who will decide this issue. This, we think, would have been the golden opportunity to clarify, to a large extent, any questions in the Senator's minds.

But Senator Soles did not care to do this. We are not quesioning his motives for not being there, though he was the only Senate member absent that afternoon. We accept the fact that he was in class, though not without the misgivings that conceivably he could have been excused for what we think was a special event that certainly required his presence.

We also commend him on his fine speech on the Senate floor Wednesday afternoon which may have the effect, in the end, of killing USNSA's chances of being on this campus.

We hope the Senate committee appointed to determine whether FSU should join USNSA will give the plan favorable and studious consideration, and remember that it is easy to let the segregation issue blot out all that is good.

Strange Lands And Sensitive People

This campus will probably never see The Caine Mutiny roadshow—if it ever was going to.

Paul Gregory, director of the production, cancelled the entire Southern engagement because of slow ticket sales after Paul Douglas, who plays Captain Queeg, was quoted in Queensboro, N. C. as saying "The South stinks. It's a land of sowbelly and segregation."

Now, Paul, that sowbelly ain't too bad.

The Case Of The Missing Court

Traffic court scheduled a hearing Tuesday night at 7:30. At 8 court had not yet convened. Finally, Vice President Coyle Moore, in the absence of any statutory restrictions, delegated the clerk and the sole justice present to preside.

This is the second complaint registered by students against the court and constitutes two complaints too many for any function of student government.

Students who arrived promptly for the hearings were discomfited. These students, we are assured by their complaint received a not too favorable picture of the Traffic Court's management nor a too reassuring picture of responsible student government.

It was learned one court member was out of town on university business. The chairman of the court, recently married, was to be replaced, but an appointment is still forthcoming.

This brings to mind a revision offered recently by a student administrative officer who suggested that the traffic court be enlarged. We should hope that having additional members would assure students that court would be held. But we are apprehensive of the need for more members to insure proceedings, when apparently the present number is more than sufficient for conducting the necessary business.

"We Want To Try Liberating The Girl"

The Dissenter

Discriminatory Clauses Looked At

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

What about fraternities and sororities with racial and religious discriminatory clauses in their charters?

This question has again been aroused by the current controversy over USNSA. The most steadfast opponent to USNSA on this campus maintains that the Association is attempting to ban from their campuses groups who make race or religion criteria for membership.

"It's a God-given right to choose one's own friends and brothers" declared the person mentioned above. And in so saying, he furnished a most powerful argument against racial and religious discriminatory clauses.

Suppose, for example, Zeta Zeta Zeta chapter of Signa Phi Nothing wants to pledge a Jewish boy. Through association with him they have found out for themselves that Jews are not the obnoxious creatures a million small-scale Hitlers make them out to be Perhaps they have found him to be a thoroughly likable chap, with all the attributes of a good fraternity man and a good citizen.

But they can't pledge him, because their national organization's charter specifies "White, Christian Males."

Let's look into the future. Desegregation has been accomplished in the Southern universities. Again through association the white students have found out that a boy is not necessarily to be shunned because his skin is black. Pledge him up! Sorry, whites only!

There are those who will argue that fraternities and sororities, being private social organizations, have the right to choose who they want as members. This is partly true, although there is some doubt as to how far this "right" extends at a public-supported university. Have our Sigma Phi Nothings, however, been given their choice?

Not all national fraternities and sororities have these discriminatory clauses, it is true, and we may be so optimistic as to suggest that there are relatively few individual chapters where religious prejudice runs rampant. Race is another matter.

The liberals, however are [illegible] stricted by the traditions [illegible] the whole system of American higher education, ostensibly dedicated to democracy [illegible] lied by the undemocratic charters referred to.

Oh, surely, an individual chapter has its rights, [illegible] they're so idealistic as to accept a pledge because they like him, regardless of whether his race or religion is different, they can get out [illegible] the national order, and [illegible] most of the fun of being Greek in the process.

Prejudice is the blindest most unfair, most unreasoning of human emotions. It cuts [illegible] mankind into individual groups who stand apart and snar[illegible] each other. Its corollary is [illegible] if you can say a person is [illegible] some way different from you then you must hate him.

Prejudice can hardly be reconciled with education, a[illegible] the liberals say it can not [illegible] reconciled with democra[illegible] Let us hope that America['s] young people, dedicated [illegible] both education and democracy, will clean house of th[illegible] which they know in the[ir] hearts is impure.

A Better Measure

Continuing Instability

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

Two weeks have now passed since the French National Assembly gave Premier Mendes-France a vote of non-confidence. Since then three men have tried to form governments without success.

What this means to the Western Alliance nobody knows for sure. What is known, however, is that due to French politics, the rearming of Western Germany has once again been delayed. Approval by the French upper house, once thought secured, now must wait final ratification until a new Premier is in office.

This continuing French instability has caused grave doubts by the Western powers on the wisdom of building a firm defense system based on weak French governments. It had been assumed by the Allies that the government of Mendes-France was strong and had the backing of the people Unfortunately to the National Assembly he was a man too popular for his own good, and had to many ideas about cleaning house.

Right now the odds are still in favor of eventual rearming of West Germany, mainly because there is no better way to defend Western Europe from Russian attack The timetable, however, has been considerably set back. Nobody is sure now how soon Western Europe will get a Germany Army

The United States and the rest of the world can be sure that if France continues to have one cabinet after another, the French people will demand Mendes-France be returned to office. This statement is made because for the first time since the end of World War II, the French people have had a leader who has broken the long sequence of "do-nothing" Premiers. One who brought an end to the Indo-China war, even if the terms of the armistice weren't the best ones, and one who had the courage and foresight to bring a showdown on the EDC question. Something no other French Premier dared to do.

Even now that he isn't the head of the government Pierre Mendes-France will remain a strong influence on French politics Much more so then before he became Premier. In the early years after 1954 he proved himself uncompromising when as Minister of National Economy he proposed drastic reforms in taxes and in public and private finance. When they were turned down he resigned from his post.

The writer sincerely hopes that the French people will now put a stop to this folly of playing politics with their national welfare as well as the rest of Europe. If they don't, then the time is nearing when the United States would do better to put its' eggs in another basket.

Lately It Seems

Independents Struggle Against Odds

By ORCHID ALONSO

If we are to believe some people, the very fact that Hans Tews, an independent, opposed Graham Carothers, Sigma Chi, for the Student Party chairmanship, is testimonial of Tews' gallant but futile struggle against Greek domination of Student Government.

But if we believe Dave Kennedy, Attorney General under Pete Nimkoff and self-styled political maneuverist, Tews' defeat was the direct result of his (Kennedy's) efforts to circumvent the election, of a very able man to be sure, but whose defeat would "serve the party better."

The Attorney General's arguments centered on the virtual Sigma Chi control of Student Government the last few years. (Milton Carothers, president, '53; Pete Nimkoff, president, '54; Jimmy Joanos, Freshman president, senator, Party Chairman.)

He feels that a fear of a Sigma Chi stigma assures a more representative Student Government, the while maintaining that by placing a Sigma Chi as chairman, the group will refrain from nominating an unusual number of Sigma Chi's, thereby avoiding the stigma that could conceivably develop into a schism.

Kennedy, an ATO, startled his party-unifying, anti-Sigma Chi campaign this summer by defeating Student Party Chairman Jimmy Joanos for the post of Summer Council Chairman. It must be recognized, in fairness to Kennedy, that his opposition stems from love of party and not dislike of the fraternity.

Now that the relative merits of the party chairmanship has been aired, let us take a closer look into the so-called Greek-Independent "antagonism."

It is true that this campus has been virtually free from such a condition, but it is also true that this condition is slowly changing. If there is any one thing that can be blamed, the vote should be cast, not for any one individual or group, but to the formation of the party system.

Some who at first abstained from dabbling in a party system, had foremost in mind the conflict that would needs s[illegible] from such an organization. The comparative virtue of the program, however, soon overshadowed the vices, and we left [the] greek problem to its own devices.

Theoretically speaking, [illegible] scattered independents [illegible] been no real match for the organized greek social groups. But B.P. (before parties) [illegible] independant could cast his [illegible] into the ring and let the odds take their toll at the polls [illegible] it was recognized that the greeks had a certain advantage (that cannot be begrudged them), it was passed off as a chance occurrence.

This defeatist attitude cannot hold true with the party system Conceivably, a candidate running without the sanction of a party has to cope with odds that few wish to encounter. The power of group organization is now felt strongly at the conventions Deprived of a slot in a party roster, an independent finds himself a

(Continued on Page 4)

Sketches

People I Knew: At The Bullfight

By DICK VICTORY
Part II

They killed six bulls. After the initial shock of watching something — even an animal—die, death succeeding has a way of losing its edge for the observer since he can no longer be completely innocent, and entirely naive Of course a certain tenseness does remain but even it is not the acute tightness you feel when you see that bull loom out of the tunnel for the first time, tossing his head and looking around with those dark, piercing eyes. After that the attraction can only be singular—the fascination that comes with knowing that a man may die before your eyes. The struggle between the man and the beast, unfolding in miniature before us holds us, compels us to wait and look upon a scene that strips life to its essential nature: Survival.

The bad weather was starting to break slightly now but the heavens consoled themselves with an occasional thunderclap which made the fans look skyward anxiously.

Until the fourth animal galloped into the ring it looked like a routine afternoon at the bullfight. Each of the preceeding bulls had maneuvered as if acting out a pre-determined blueprint. The bull-fighters had shown a skilled touch in setting up the bull and killing it swiftly and cleanly. The crowd had been pleased. It liked to see the bull die quickly and with as little pain as possible The crowd had yelled to the judges' box. The response was the awarding of two ears to each of the matadors. It looked routine: One, two, three. Then came the fourth bull

Physically, he was about the same as the other three, perhaps a little more muscled through the shoulders and neck, but not enough to seem to matter

The crowd had discovered he had some kind of extra drive shortly after his entrance when the banderilleros had trouble planting the banderillas They had succeeded in putting in only one, and very insecurely at that, and it waved on the bull's back as he jogged like a loose mast on a sailless sailboat The matador, arriving at the final death stage where he must sight the bull and charge it recognized the extra danger Therefore as he ran towards the waiting animal, he decided not to risk going too close over the horns, but instead, decided to go slightly off to the side, which, while putting him in a position that would not allow him to place the sword in the arch of the back in between the rising bones and thereby killing the bull as painlessly as possible, would still place him close enough to ram the sword into the bull off-center. He deliberately angled it down into one of the bull's lungs. Blood gushed from the bull's side, came pouring out of his nose and mouth. He shook his head from side to side, then collapsed to a sitting position. The crowd yelled some, but not too loudly, realizing that the matador had taken the simplest way out. There was some razzing mixed in too The matador bowed anyway and smiled up into the stands

Then the bull got back up. He climbed to his feet slowly, before the people coming from behind the fence could get to him He wavered on his feet but he looked capable enough for killing to the people and they hurried back behind the fence. The matador heard the crowd's roar. He turned and looked at the bull, who was now bleeding very badly. The matador wondered why he couldn't have drawn the third bull. Someone tossed another sword It fell near. He frowned and picked it up He also picked up his cape and began to wipe the moist, caked dirt off the sword blade.

Back and forth went the matador's hands, wiping He wanted to make sure the sword would enter properly and smoothly, killing, and getting rid of the bull for all time. The bull watched the matador Back and forth went his hands. The bull watched the motion of the hands and began to prepare himself for running He brought his feet in together. The matador who was watching him closely, saw the feet come together, which placed the bull in the necessary position for the matador's own charge, spreading the bones of his back and allowing the sword to enter correctly The matador smiled, then started in disbelief. The bull was getting ready to charge. Now the matador wished very very much he had drawn the kill of the third bull instead The bull was starting to move toward him. The matador, first feeling panic and then realizing he must make amends to the crowd for his earlier effort dropped the sword and slid the cape into position for a pass—a close pass. The bull bore down on him, flashed almost past and for an instant it looked like the matador was out of danger, but just then, the banderilla, which had been swinging back and forth over the bull's back like an inverted pendulum on a grandfather's clock, swung to his side and whipped across his eyes, causing him to fall toward the animal as he grabbed at his face. The bull wasn't moving too fast and had already begun to twist around, throwing his rump up against the matador and knocking him to the ground. He was covered with the bull's blood The crowd screamed because the bull had been moving slowly enough to turn around quickly and was already back and stabbing at the twisting matador on the ground But the bull was too far gone to get the matador and a final hemorrhage killed him. He fell over on his side and the matador got another chance as Death looked up into those half-deserted stands and waved this opportunity—waiting for a rendezvous at some other time, feeling perhaps that when a man is to die, he at least deserves a full house.

The attendants rushed out to aid the matador and to help to his feet He motioned them aside angrily and got up by himself. He crossed himself, picked up his cape, and walked to the fence The crowd, expecting to see him, torn and suffering, gasping upon the ground was relieved that he wasn't killed and cheered, but a little later the dead bull got a louder ovation when the mule team pulled him once around the ring before he went off to the butcher

As the crowd let loose and in the giant catharsis of the moment two men squeezed from the mass of their home bundle. They had obviously been drinking heavily and they were beginning to shout at each other and make angry gestures In another second they were upon each other, scuffling and cursing. Each man was having trouble keeping his balance and each kept trying to prop his selves against the back of the seats while pushing at the other. The crowd was buzzing with excitement, intent upon other things The men scuffled on and finally, realizing that their group was paying no attention to them and that no one was coming to separate them since a new bull had charged into the

(Continued on Page 3)

At The Movies

Underwater With Jane

Jane Russell, with bathing suit, stars along with Gilbert Roland and Richard Egan in Underwater! playing at the Florida Theater through next Tuesday

The $3,000,000 RKO Radio Technicolor production is presented in Superscope, the new anamorphic process that brings unusual depth and realism to the wide screen.

Underwater! was filmed largely in the South Seas and the Caribbean, and is the love story of a young adventurous couple who are inveigled into a treasure hunt by an inveterate rainbow-chaser and encounter unexpected dangers in the subsea explorations

Lori Nelson also stars, supported by Robert Keith and Joseph Calleia. John Sturges directed and Harry Tatelman produced from a screen play by Walter Newman.

On Wednesday A Star Is Born starring Judy Garland and James Mason, will hold forth a week Miss Garland has been nominated for an Academy award for her performance in this movie, which features some fine tunes by Harold Arlen and Ira Gershwin.

The Bridges At Toko-Ri, the best-seller by James Michener, adapted for the screen by Paramount, is playing at the State Theater through next Tuesday. It stars William Holden, Grace Kelly, Fredric March and Mickey Rooney.

In Technicolor, The Bridges was filmed against actual background in Japan and the Pacific. It is the story of Lt. Brubaker (Holden), a Navy flier recalled to duty in the Korean war At first resentful at having to leave his family, Brubaker learns from Task Force Commander Tarrant (March) the importance and danger of his mission—to blast the bridges at Toko-ri, a target so strategic that its destruction is sure to be a telling blow to enemy morale.

The movie was directed by Mark Robson, produced by William Perlberg and George Seaton, with screenplay by Valentine Davies.

A double feature, The Atomic

(Continued on Page 4)

Amusements

Etcetera Etchings

By DAVID DREIS

This is the third installment in a series of articles on the history and development of the movies, its stars and its creed

PART THREE:
ITS TRAGEDIES

Through no fault of its own, the motion picture become a great psychological factor in human life. Thousands of movie-goers were naturally quite interested in the players who acted in epic after epic. From here, the movie magazine developed and the word "glamour" became synonymous with movie people. To equalize the public opinion publicity harbored on the exaggeration and out-and-out lie.

Francis X Bushman's case was extreme horror as he awakened one morning to find himself toppled off the "glamour" heap. Bushman's publicity labeled the young adventure hero as "free and quite unmarried." Bushman was reported to be in love with his leading lady Beverly Bain and in reality he was There was one flaw He was already married and the father of six children. His wife reluctantly gave him a divorce, but "told all" to the press. Millions of women were shocked and now violently opposed to Bushman who they believed "cheated on his wife." He married Beverly Bain, was shifted to villain parts and toured the country playing before meager attendances. He recently raffled himself off to "any woman who will pay my bills" With no takers, he married an unknown and has bit parts in recent films.

Publicity made a tragedy of comedian Fatty Arbuckle when a woman was found dead in his apartment. Because only circumstantial evidence could convict him, he was liberated, but his movie stardom dropped to nothing. He ended his days as a comedy-director under a false name

John Gilbert's rise as a star was phenomenal and his teaming with Greta Garbo made the film blaze on the screen. His publicity told of his beautiful voice, but when soundies came out, his high-pitched voice broke him from the million-dollar ranks. He died very quietly feeling a complete failure.

There was tragedy of another sort in the death of singer Russ Columbo who killed himself while toying with his famed gun collection. Columbo's mother, ill in a hospital never heard about his death and ten years later when she died, she still thought her son was in Europe.

Glamour-queens Jean Harlow and Carole Lombard brought a breakdown to their lovers, William Powell and Clark Gable. Both took recesses from the screen to recover To this day, Gable has tried to equal her, but has failed.

Frances Farmer was only three months ago a cleaning woman in a Hollywood hotel. Recently married to an engineer, this woman was once the toast of Hollywood, but drink, etc. brought her down the step to failure Robert Walker's divorce from Jennifer Jones was brought about because of his move to liquor

Then there's Lawrence Tierney. Tierney made a big hit out of the life story of John Dillinger, but although he was offered huge Hollywood money after that, his tiffs with the police off-screen was not enough to make him a box office favorite. In fact, while some actors benefit from such bad publicity (Robert Mitchum etc) with Tierney it was a full time job.

NEXT WEEK, PART FOUR—THE COMING OF AGE.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"One big advantage in having to take this course over is that I know when I'm supposed to laugh."

Foreign Correspondent

Patient-Writer Has Few Days Left

By MARY ELIZABETH KING
Special Isolation Ward Correspondent

Today, the story ceases to be funny. Pain is seen on all hand, all feet too. Last night we left with the Cawthon smoochers. This morning we started the ordeal again at 6 a.m.

My throat is beginning to clog up. Can't talk or swallow, help, help. But due to Patsy Wyatt's trusty typewriter (don't believe she'll have trouble with people borrowing it anymore) I can still communicate. There is a lot to do in here tho. For instance, rock in a chair. Then if you feel like dancing, you can rock in a chair but if you feel like watching a movie or reading a good book, there's always the rocking chair. But what I like to do for variety is—rock in a chair. In fact, sometimes I sing (softly of course), "Old Rocking Chair's Got Me."

Now I'm typing with a thermometer in my puss. Nice thing, they don't disturb you, just jab it toward your mouth and if your teeth are clinched shut in journalistic concentration—oh shatter, let's not go into that now.

If I'm lucky I might have a radio tomorrow. The search for it will present minor chaos in the house since my radio is packed in a box, among hundreds, down in the basement. John, the butler, will go chewing downstairs (he's always chewing like Smiling Jack is always smilin) and scatter the sisters' boxes (Forgot to tell you, we sleep in boxes, after the house was built we were a little short on funds) So I remain hoping for a radio to ease my distress.

Got some mail today. Let me write you a few excerpts: Let's start mild. "Hope you're having a nice rest—" Ha! That started Libby's note. Then there's Virginia's: "I sure am lonesome without you . ." A sensible request from Claudette, "Please don't give me the C.P. until next Monday." Her male friend is coming from Emory this weekend. He's studying medicine so she also says, "Don't worry about a thing, he will take care of everything. He is coming down to look at those little red spots." Just let him try. Patsy says "Am writing in dark moving car—Have fun doing nothing"

The clincher of the mail is from Angie, our sports chairman. She starts, "Hi Bird" then has enclosed another message, "No Basketball Practice Today. (Fri. instead) Badminton Today as Scheduled."

Cute way they have of making you work in the infirmary. The nurse says, "You are going to be able to empty that tray for me?" Of course, you can always say no and get no food or messages delivered. So I raked off the stuff I didn't eat and slid the dishes in the pan of dishwater. It's not that I mind doing my part, comrade, or am lazy but I am.

Measured the room, I'm pinned in—it's exactly 18x20. Inches that is. It has three beds, all in use by me but of course, two trash baskets, one dresser, and two nighttables.

(Cantinued on Paga 4)

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst News Editors — Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors — Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff — Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor — David Dreis
Photographer — [illegible], Al Robbins

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager — [illegible]rma Cox
Distribution — Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2 8000 extension 6821
211 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors — Pat Marston
Art Consultant — Franklin Adams
Cartoonist — Con H[illegible]rn
Junior Staff — George G[illegible], Jerome Bernstein, Marty Recver, [illegible], Jeri Bradfield

Mary Lia King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff — Frank [illegible], Nina Ryle,
Business Staff — [illegible], Mar Dresler
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service 420 Madison Ave New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

Tackling Emphasized In Football Sessions

Old names continue to be praised as Florida State's football forces—62 strong—step up the tempo of spring practice with the emphasis still on tackling. Coach Tom Nugent has said that his immediate goal is finding the "11 best" tacklers, but to date, it's the backfield men that have drawn the most.

Halfbacks Lee Corso and Red Mettis, both Juniors-to-be, have looked good in workouts so far. Both are hard-to-catch grabs field runners who can go the way on any play.

Two impressive have been Joe Razzetti and Bud Leonard. Razzetti is a stocky guard and Leonard is a former end who figures has shifted to fullback to add strength to that position one of the squad's weakest.

In a 30-minute scrimmage session capped the first day's work, the halfbacks scored two touchdowns apiece. They were Corso who started yesterday in his new sensational fashion and he closed the 1954 season, R.C. Odom, the red-haired boy, and Steve Dean, promising youngster up from the J squad.

Quarterbacks Len Swantic, Stan Norman and Jerry Hendrix threw one touchdown each in the scrimmage.

In the second session, Nugent said Jackie Ray Stubbs injured a shoulder and will probably be out "for at least two weeks . . . or more."

Roster

ENDS (9): Lettermen—Troy Barnes (1952), Tom Feather, Bud Leonard, Ronnie Schamburger, Jimmy Trado. Others—Ham Bisher, Pete Overton, Bill Swilley, Ron Wetherington.

TACKLES (11): Lettermen—Bob Barber, Dan Powell, Ray Stalsh. Others—Joe Anderson, Bill Brown, John Craig, Willie Gardner, Charles Kicklighter, Bill Musselman, Bill Proctor, Jim Young GUARDS (7): Lettermen — Leo Bazzell, Vince Gibson, Charles Jacobs, Jerry Jacobs, Al Pacifico, Others—Jere Danish, Bob Morris.

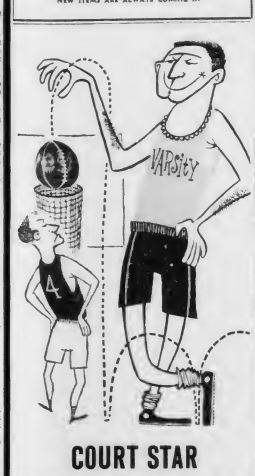
CENTERS (5): Lettermen—Bob Crenshaw, Bill Cullen. Others—Babe Ackerman, Ed Kercher, Wendall Satterfield.



QUARTERBACKS (7): Letterman—Vic Prinzi, Len Swantic. Others—Jerry Henderson, Mike Norman, Ted Rodrigo, Sam Walden.

HALFBACKS (11): Letterman—Lee Corso, Burn Mettis, Billy Odom, Buddy Reynolds, Bill Weaver. Others— Emil Abood, Carmen Battaglia, Steve Dean, Tommy Thompson Patrick Versprille.

FULLBACKS (3): Letterman —John Grimer, Joe Hall. Others —Gene Cox, Bos Mathews, Norman Olson.

ELI ROBERTS
SERVICE STATION
Corner West Tennessee
And Copeland
(Two Blocks From Senior Hall)
WE HAVE MECHANIC AND
ROAD SERVICE
DIAL 2-8523

Have You Been to Vardi's?
106 W. Jefferson St.
DOWN THE HILL FROM YON'S
Imports by Vardi is the first contemporary shop (decorative accessories and gifts) in Tallahassee.
Imported Jewelry From India & Iran—Sari Stoles from India
Sterling Originals by Fred Metzke (F.S.U.)
The increasingly popular sterling line
(Ash Trays, Mugs, Cards, Napkins, etc.)
Studio Lines Greeting Cards for Every Occasion and No Occasion.
WE INVITE YOU TO BROWSE WHEN YOU'RE DOWNTOWN
NEW ITEMS ARE ALWAYS COMING IN COURT STAR

says: "Jockey brand underwear scores high with me!"
Endless J. Fouler, stratospheric terror of the basketball courts, recommends Jockey shorts for off-the-court activities. "Couldn't get along without 'em," says the lofty athlete loftily.
There's comfort by the basketful in Jockey shorts! Better drop into your dealer's soon . . . buy a supply of Jockey shorts and T-shirts . . . and feel as good as you look!
it's in style to be comfortable . . . in
Jockey underwear
made only by Cooper Inc., Kenosha, Wisconsin

Seminole Sprinter—Joe Davis, a sophomore letterman from Orlando, was one of the Tribe's top short-distance men on last year's track team and is being counted upon heavily on this year's squad. Davis runs in the dashes and relays.

'Will To Win' Being Exploited By Swimming Coach Stults

What's the story behind Florida State University's remarkable swimming success during the past three years?

Ask any FSU student and he'll tell you it's the hum-drum, but hard-boiled coaching technique of likable N. B. "Bum" Stults, now in his seventh season as Seminole aquatic coach.

Stults' explanation is in the form of an old coaching axiom: "If the boys have a strong will to win, chances are they will do just that."

The combination of the two, if that's what it is, has worked wonders.

Since January of 1953, Florida State has won 19 straight dual meets and developed into one of the South's most formidable swimming powers. Working on their second straight undefeated season, the Seminoles have dunked Georgia, Georgia Tech, Southern Methodist, and Texas A & M so far in 1955.

State hopes to make it 20 straight in a return match with Georgia's Bulldogs at Athens Saturday.

People

(Continued From Page 2)

ring and captured their interest, the violent grip of the men upon one another gradually faded into a boisterous half-Nelson and finally metamorphosed into a good-natured hug. They grinned at one another and wedged happily back into their crowd, arm in arm.

The next bulls were sanctimonic and the only time the crowd was stirred was when the final bull would not remain in one place when the matador wanted to thrust the sword home. Finally the bull walked to the fence as if he wanted to die alone. He hung his head and moved along slowly. The blood poured out, formed tiny scarlet rivulets on the ground.

The bullfighter dropped his sword and walked along side of the bull with his arm draped over his back. The crowd didn't know whether to laugh or cry so it did a little of both. The bull died soon afterward and the bullfight was over. The crowd jammed toward the ramps

On the field some youngsters had scaled the fence and were smiling around the team of mules and the dead bull. After the mao that leads the team had hitched the bull and prepared everything for the bull's final journey he snarled toward the exit. A couple of the children hopped on the bull, who was lyrie finely on his side. The man looked back and waved and shooed them away. They jumped off, but one boy, braver than the others, picked up a broken banderilla nearby and running up to the slow-moving bull used the banderilla as a switch, slapping at the bull with it.

Above the clouds were reluctantly beginning to part and in every one and then some lighter pieces broke through the mist and boldly drifted over as slowly as oxen on a stroll.

Outside the arena a drunk, shoving his way through the crowd, yelled "Ole!" and a boy waving a bright handkerchief at a dog echoed it as the dog leaped towards his chest. The boy leaned nimbly aside at the last minute in best bullfighter fashion and the dog traveled past and landed at the feet of the tourist, who, thinking about the bullfight, stepped back, startled.

Basketballers Win Two More; Top 'Dogs 88-79, Tars 110-82

Florida State University's hopes for a bid to the National Invitation basketball tournament got a shot in the arm Monday and Wednesday nights as the Tribe chalked up two more victories increasing their season's total to 16. They've lost 2. The Seminole five bettered Georgia Monday, 88-79 in overtime and bested Rollins, 110-82, Wednesday.

It was their third win over the Bulldogs this season, their second over the Tars.

The triumph over Rollins climbed the first Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference crown for FSU. To be eligible to play the Tribe has won nine, lost none.

The 110 points were also a new all-time scoring record. The previous high was 102, scored against Jacksonville A.A.'s State in the first game of the season.

The Tribe faces Loyola of New Orleans there Saturday, Mississippi State here Monday, Loyola back here on Tuesday and then travels to Miami to close their regular season a week from today.

In winning their 10th straight game the Tribe sank 32 of 35 free throw tries, adding an additional but smaller record.

Three Seminoles got over 20 points, with Ham Wemke and Rick Benson getting one over the coveted mark and Jimmy Oler going seven past.

The department of sports publicity has announced that three long - time Southeastern independent basketball rivals—Stetson, Georgia Teachers and Mercer—will meet with FSU in the District 25 NAIA championship here Feb. 28 to March 1.

Georgia Teachers beats Mercer and FSU clashes with Stetson in first-round action at Florida High gym Feb. 28.

First-round victors vie for championship March 1, with the winner winning the right to represent the Georgia-Florida district in the 22-team national NAIA playoffs at Kansas City, Mo., March 7-12.

The four tournament teams were selected on the basis of Dunkel Basketball Ratings.

Georgia Teachers and Florida State both won outstanding records and high-scoring team averages, are favored to reach the final.s. FSU defeated Georgia Te.chers, 75-47, in an early-season game at Tallahassee.

Stetson, a late comer this season, is defending district champion and will be out to avenge two regular-season losses to FSU!

FLORIDA STATE			ROLLINS
	fg	ft	tp	fg	ft	tp
Arthur, f	8	15	31	Cassidy, f	11	5	27
Benson, f	7	3	17	Wurlod, f	1	0	2
Tennery, f	1	0	2	Lauer, f	3	1	7
Wemke, c	7	3	17	Reeves, c	0	0	0
Wileman, g	1	1	7	Feldkamp, g	0	2	2
Oler, g	7	0	14	Brantley, g	2	0	4
Hardaway, g	0	2	2	McNeely, g	0	0	0
Wilkins, g	0	0	0	Hall, g	2	0	4
Patton, g	0	0	0	Baker, g	0	0	0
Warlick, g	1	0	2	Goodling, g	1	0	2
Allred, g	0	0	0
Totals	39	32	110	Totals	29	76	82

Halftime: FSU 56, Rollins 46
Free throws missed: FSU—Oler, Williams 2, Arthur, Benson, Wemke, Rollins—Cassidy, Wurlod 2, Lauer, Reeves 2, Swanson.

Water Churns Behind Frosh Joel Jacobs

Establishing swimming records in two strange pools on successive nights is quite a feat, particularly for a college freshman. But that's what Hollywood's Joel Paulo Jacobs, a freshman aquatic whiz for Florida State University's Seminoles, did on a recent Texas tour.

One of the best freshman swimming finds in FSU history, Jacobs shattered long-standing 16-year Seminole records in the home tanks of both Southern Methodist and Texas A&M, two of the toughest swimming entries in the Southwest Conference.

A slender 6-2, 153½ 18-year-old who earned a spot on the National High School All-America swim squad while performing for Hollywood, Jacobs has improved considerably since he took the first dip in an FSU pool.

Besides first places against SMU and Texas A&M, Jacobs also has rolled up points against Georgia, Georgia Tech, and in the Southern Collegiate Championships at Atlanta.

"Did ahe blush when her shoulder strap broke?

"I didn't notice."

Next In Line?—Len Swantic, a two-year letterman, will be one of the first in line for the FSU quarterback job left vacant by Harry Massey's graduation. Swantic, hampered with injuries for part of last season, has looked good in workouts to date.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES
FLORIDA
Friday - Tuesday
Underwater
JANE RUSSELL
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Thursday - Saturday
"Charge of the Lancers"
PAULETTE GODDARD
JEAN PIERRE AUMONT
"Gorilla At Large"
CAMERON MITCHELL
Sunday - Monday
"The Outcast"
JOHN DERRICK
STATE
Friday - Tuesday
"Bridges at Toko-Ri"
CAPITOL DRIVE-IN
ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Thursday - Saturday
"Black Horse Canyon"
JOEL McCREA
"Second Chance"
ROBERT MITCHUM
Sunday - Monday
"So Big"
JANE WYMAN

FOX TROT
RUMBA
Jitterbug WALTZ
TANGO
5 FOR 1 SPECIAL
Now you can learn
5 dances for the price of 1
AT ARTHUR MURRAY'S
ASK ABOUT OUR LOW RATES AND EASY TERMS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS THIS MONTH ONLY
109 E. College Phone 3-2221

Winter Sport Teams Show 33 Triumphs

Florida State University's four winter sports teams—basketball, swimming, gymnastics, and volleyball—have a sturdy 165 won-lost record as recording into the final stages of their 1954-55 seasons.

In 38 dual contests since December 4, Seminole "winter" athletes have posted 33 victories against only five setbacks.

Tex Floyds State squads, Coach Bim Stalls' swimmers and Dr. Hartley Price's gymnasts, are undefeated in dual competition. FSU tankmen have dunked Georgia, Georgia Tech, SMU, and Texas A & M in four starts, and Seminole gymnasts walloped Illinois in their only dual start to date.

One of the more pleasant surprises has been the winning form of Coach Bud Kennedy's basketballers, whose 16-2 record is among the South's best.

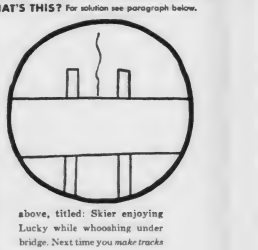
Coach Bill Oleneil's volleyball team has a 12-2 reading and will defend their Southern Intercollegiate championship at Davidson N. C., late this month.

Since the 1954-55 school year opened last September, Seminole teams have won 61 contests against only eight setbacks. That includes the impressive 8-2 record hung up by Coach Tom Nugent's FSU football team last fall.

With spring sports (baseball, golf, tennis, track) prospects shaping up strong in pre-season practice routines, Florida State is apparently on the way to the greatest athletic year in its eight-year sports history.

REAR VIEW OF ROBOT VIA ON THEORE
Galen R. Fisher
University of California

FRONT OF STORE
SELLING SLANTED SHOES
Robert E. Cullum II
Adelphi



PISTOLS IN CITY WARS
RATCHET CAUSES FIRING FACTORY
William C. Jankowski, Jr.
Boston University

ARSENAL OF WAR
SPRING THREAD SPOONS
Carol Hanham
Washington State

ALL NEW! LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

A STUDENT'S BEST FRIEND is Lucky Strike. At any rate, the greatest, up-to-datest college survey shows that college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands—and by a wide margin. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. Luckies taste better anywhere, any time, as illustrated in the Droodle above, titled: Skier enjoying Lucky while whooshing under bridge. Next time you make tracks to a cigarette counter, Be Happy —Go Lucky. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

STUDENTS! EARN $25.00
Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many more we don't use. Send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.
*DROODLER, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price
"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!
LUCKY STRIKE
"IT'S TOASTED"
CIGARETTES
Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER... Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!
©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company — AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

Backgrounds Of Spiritual Speakers Add Meaning To Faith Week

The nationally renowned Intelligent Faith Week speakers bring with them a variety of experience and life-long devotion to their cause.

Miss Elizabeth McNeill, home on furlough after five years working with students in Korea and Japan, has pioneered in the informal approach to student work through social activities and teaching English to small groups from which she organizes Bible classes. She indicates that her type of work is especially important in Japan, since about 40 per cent of all college students there support the Communist program.

The Rev. Russell Stevenson is Foreign Missions secretary for the Near East with service as principal in the American Mission Commercial College in Alexandria, Egypt. His administrative duties have carried him into many corners of the Near East and his duties have included activities in the political, social and economic fields of the area.

Dr. Homer Blakely, educator and churchman, has picked up valuable university experience in his many years in Scotland, Germany and England Universities. He is author of such works as Religion In Shoes and Facing Life's Questions.

Executive Secretary of the Division of World Missions of the Methodist Board of Missions, Dr. James Mathews, is a young man carrying a large responsibility. Familiar with India and Pakistan, he will reportedly interpret the conditions there.

Campus leaders of Intelligent Faith Week are expecting a certain Welsh Statesman and orator to challenge the minds of his listeners. He is John William Hughes. A layman, he has been referred to as the second Lloyd George. Mr. Hughes, a candidate for parliament, is associated with the British Broadcasting Company to whom he submits a series of "American News Letters" in his attempts to better U. S.-British relations.

Hughes lectures in this country each year.

From Behind Iron Curtain

Direct from behind the iron curtain and a Russian firing squad is Dr. Karlis Leyasmeyer, who also witnessed the Bolshevik revolution of 1917. Leyasmeyer has lectured extensively throughout the free world, PSU being among 200 colleges he has addressed.

Episcopal bishop and member of the Board of Editors of the National Council Department of Christian Education of the Episcopal Church is The Right Reverend Henry Louttit, D.D. A World War II veteran, he is also a member of the General Convention of Chaplains.

Also coming to address the students is the first full-time president of the Harlem Protestant Parish, The Reverend Don Benedict. A national figure in interracial matters cities, Benedict has been cited for his social work in slum urban areas of Chicago and New York.

The speakers' agenda includes churches, seminars, general speakings and class addresses, including women's dormitory tea Wednesday and men's dorma discussion on Tuesday night.

Greek organizations will be addressed on Monday night at 7:30. Programs of speaking engagements with topics have been mailed to the student body.

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
102 S. Monroe St. Phone 7-1102

COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18
$12 a day on this exciting
ISLAND PARADISE
in the Gulf of Mexico
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation . . . miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, the same time, the FIFTH ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Formal Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, snook, kings, bluefish and scores of other species. For evening relaxation there's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dancing, concerts and other entertainment. You'll be treated like a tycoon for $12.00 a day, including breakfast and dinner . . . dining
BOCA GRANDE
Boca Grande hotel
BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA
COMPLETELY AIR-CONDITIONED
WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS

President Autographs Paddles For Three Kappa Sig Pledges

President Eisenhower, spending the weekend near Thomasville, Georgia, signed the pledge paddles of three Kappa Sigma pledges on a pledge quest from Florida State University Saturday morning.

The pledges, Tom Bruckman, Tom Batchelor, and Jerry Wheeler, attempted to see the President, but were stopped by secret service men at the gates of the plantation where he was staying.

The pledges then drove to Thomasville and called the plantation. A maid answered and instructed them to see the President's press secretary, James Hagerty, who was staying in a Thomasville hotel.

Arriving at the hotel around 7 a.m., they found that Hagerty was not yet up. The desk clerk gave the boys a high sign when Hagerty came through the lobby on his way to breakfast.

Introducing themselves, the pledges asked if they might see the President and have their pledge paddles signed. He refused them an audience with President Eisenhower, but was very understanding, saying that he was a fraternity man himself.

Ike Signs Paddles

He asked the pledges to remain at the hotel and took the paddles to the plantation where President Eisenhower signed them. Returning to the hotel with the signed paddles at 10 a.m. he added his own signature upon request before going to a press conference.

On returning to Tallahassee, the pledges wired the President thanking him for the signatures and are planning to write Hagerty a letter thanking him for his cooperation.

Dr. Robert L. Briggs

TV Series To Feature Briggs, Students From 'Carousel' Cast

Dr. Robert Briggs of the School of Music will be featured on the regular television series presented by Florida State University over WMBR-TV, Jacksonville, Saturday at 2 p.m.

Entitled "The Professor and the Problem," the series spotlights members of the faculty and interprets current research and creative work. Dr. Briggs, as director of the Light Opera Guild, will discuss problems involved in the production of musical theatre.

Student leads from the recent Light Opera Guild production, Carousel, will present excerpts from the musical to illustrate various approaches to production problems.

John Zilles and Martha Slayden will be seen in "If I Loved You." Elliott Jones and Wendel Barshoff will be featured in "When the Children are Asleep," and Martha Slayden, John Zilles and Jim Reid will do "When You Walk Alone."

The series is produced, written, and narrated by Ron Firmin, Director of Radio and Television. Film segments in the show are photographed by Bob Mauldin, University photographer.

The program scheduled for next week will feature Dr. L. A. Ramsey, head of the department of baking science and management. He will stress personnel problems in the industrialization of the baking field and how his department is attempting to help meet the need of trained personnel.

Underwater

(Continued From Page 2)

Kid with Mickey Rooney, and Hell's Outpost with Rod Cameron, follows on Wednesday. On Friday, The Law vs. Billy The Kid, with Scott Brady. At the Ritz Aria Theatre, a British musical, Gilbert & Sullivan is showing through Saturday. It stars Maurice Evans and Robert Morley, and portrays the life and times of that famous musical pair.

The Little Kidnappers, a French drama with child-star Adrienne Corrie, will run Sunday and Monday. Acclaimed for its outstanding acting by the New York Times, it portrays the events of two children for a pet, who substitute a small boy instead.

A murder drama, Twist of Fate, with Ginger Rogers, begins next Tuesday.

Patient

(Continued From Page 2)

They are called night tables because that is when one stumbles into them. That is almost the same as me having chicken pox. I know they are chicken pox cause I got eggs for breakfast every morning.

Ann indebted to one bright young man that works here. He brought me a Flambeau. He has a unique approach. He knocks on the swinging door then looks over Yes we have swindaoos Was advised by Frenzy-frosted news editor to mix one teaspoon of ECT and an H. Cough syrup with afternoon gingerale, and then going to rocking chair and making Whoopee!

Enjoy Candle Light Dinner Every Friday Night—
. . . in the Seminole Club

PLATE SPECIALS TONIGHT:
Fried Shrimp 65c
Beef Ragout 60c
Roast Loin Of Pork 65c
WITH CHOICE OF VEGETABLES, SALADS, AND FRESH DINNER ROLLS

DELICIOUS DESSERTS
Layer Cake With Almond Icing or Oscar's Pudding 10c
Delicious Mince Pie 15c

TRY OUR EXCELLENT
SUNDAY DINNER
Only 75c

Drum Major Course Offered Students

A course in Drum Majoring will be offered, beginning tomorrow to equip students for Drum Major try-outs.

Students interested in this course should report to the Music building, room 222, tomorrow at 10:00 a.m.

LAMBDA CHI PLEDGES FOUR

The Zeta Rho chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity recently pledged Herb Rinehart, Jack Rogers, Duncan Gray and Warren Barrett.

Merits Of Red China Discussed

By OSCAR JOHNSON

The question of whether or not the United States should recognize China was the subject of a spirited Politics Club debate Wednesday night.

Affirmative arguments were voiced by Beverly Duperrouzel and Norma Trippodo in opposition to the negative's Arnold Greenfield and Bruce Fletcher. Neither side won as the debate was not judged.

First offerings in the oral tirade were by Duperrouzel, who said that for a long time Americans ignored Red China, thinking of it merely as "a vast expanse in the east." She declared that the United States now needs to apply the realistic politics practiced by England.

Two alternatives exist were the continuance of the present policy of non-recognition and appeasement, thinking of the disadvantages of the former, Duperrouzel emphasized. "It is important to recognize the feelings of our allies."

Utter Disappointment

She said the $1 million given to England by Red China for shooting down an airplane is an example of the benefit possible through recognition and peaceful relations. Disappointment, the scrutiny of diplomatic agents, position, information and political contracts. The only way to get back the American fliers held by the Reds is through negotiation, she added.

Greenfield, speaking next, attempted to find flaws in the case presented by the affirmative. He asked what would happen to Formosa were Red China to be recognized, and was told by Duperrouzel that it would be divided into two separate states.

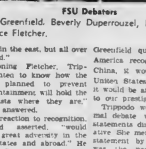
Greenfield's next question probed more into the possibility of recognition of Red China. "The American people would realize that it is the best action," asserted Duperrouzel.

Greenfield was followed by the negative's Fletcher, who referred to the affirmative speaker as "a friend of the opposition Red China."

Reds Don't "Negotiate"

"It is against Russia's established principles for Communists to negotiate," continued, quoting comments by Lenin to that effect. Fletcher noted that the agreements and promises made by Russia and Red China are broken.

Comparing Red Chinese with the Russians Fletcher said "The Chinese Communists are exactly the same. They have violated the Korean truce 40 times and also the Indo-China agreement.



"They have shown by their words and their deeds that we cannot negotiate with them."

Opposing the division of Formosa into two separate states, Fletcher declared it would make America lose "much prestige, not only in the east, but all over the world."

Questioning Fletcher, Trippodo wished to know how the negative planned to prevent war. "Containment will hold the Communists where they are," Fletcher answered.

Public reaction to recognition, Greenfield asserted, "would create a great adversity to the United States and abroad." He said the flaws in our foreign policy have not been proved due to non-recognition of Red China.

Askina a question of his own,

FSU Debaters

Arnold Greenfield, Beverly Duperrouzel, Norma Trippodo and Bruce Fletcher.

Independents

(Continued From Page 2)

no position he even threw his hat in the ring.

This is the situation that is developing and also the situation that eventually will force the Independents into a position of organized retaliation.

While we anticipate the change with no small amount of regret, we can see the day when the Independents' only recent chance at a voice in a "democratic" student government is to organize and combine, and vitally control the dormitory assvernments, and plitting such dorm with such vehement zealnet the Greek organizations that nothing can result but an unsatisfying squabble, with progressive, responsible student government being forced to take a back seat.

Representation Change

(Continued From Page 1)

activity for them are considered in the budgeting of the previous fiscal year.

The Senators killed, by tabling indefinitely, a resolution to provide that all Senators must be furnished with copies of subsequent resolutions before taking action on them.

They also passed a bill making technical corrections in the traffic court statutes passed earlier.

A large number of appointments tendered the Senate last week by President Pete Nunnkoff will be considered at the next meeting.

'Susannah' Seems

(Continued From Page 1)

that much responsibility for an opera's success lies with the stage director.

Miss Curtin, the possessor of a pair of very sparkling dark eyes, gives one the impression that she is but a recent college graduate. Most of her life, actually, has been spent in a collegiate environment.

She majored in political science at Wellesly and was a junior before she did any voice or stage work. She had taken violin and dancing for years, however. Her first professional role was in Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." Her husband is a history professor at Swarthmore College.

She is now a star soprano of the New York City opera.

Harrell, a genial man who professes a preference for modern works like "Susannah," started out as a violinist, but the girl violinist who later became his wife insisted he study voice. He has at his command a repertoire of nearly 30 operas in Italian, French, German and English, and is now with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

WITH WELL-ROUNDED MEN
IT'S ROUND-POINTED COLLARS
Ask any college man with the casual look. He'll tell you Arrow round collar shirts, like the Radnor "E," above, are the finest in quality, the utmost in correct fit and comfort. They are authentically styled to keep you looking your best.
Slide into a Radnor, left, or the new Arrow Pare, right, with a slightly wider spread in the round collar. In oxford or broadcloth . . . French or barrel cuffs, these Arrows are casually right for you . . . for every college man. Round-collar shirts in broadcloth, only $3.95. Oxfords, in white or colors, $5.00.
ARROW
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P.M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
10oo Block From Senior Hall)

On Campus with Max Shulman
(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

THE MAIL BAG

If the spirit should ever move you to write me a letter—and it's always a pleasure to hear from you—take pen and paper and address me c o Philip Morris, 100 Park Ave., New York 17, N. Y. Or if you don't have any paper, snap open your Snap-Open pack of Philip Morris and write on the cigarettes. Or on the neat brown wrapper inside out and use it for stationery. The regular size Philip Morris pack is perfect for short notes. For longer letters use the king size pack. For chain letters and petitions, glue several packs together.

This week's column is devoted to a few of the many interesting letters that have been coming in:

SIR:

Maybe you can help me. I came up to college eight years ago. On my very first day I got into a bridge game at the Student Union. I am still in the same bridge game. I have never gone to class, cracked a book, or paid any tuition. All I do is play bridge.

To explain my failure to my father the money coming from home, I told a harmless little lie. I said I was in medical school. This made Dad my father very proud. It also enabled me to keep playing bridge. We were both terribly happy.

But all good things must come to an end. Mine ended last week when I was home for spring vacation. I arrived to find that Sister (my sister) was in the hospital with an ingrown spleen. Dr. Norbert Bigsfoot, the prominent ingrown spleen surgeon, was scheduled to operate, but unfortunately he was run over by a hot-food cart on the way to the scrubbing room.

"Oh, never mind," chuckled Dad (my father). "Harlow (me) will fix Sister (my sister)."

Well sir, what could I do? If I told the truth I would make a laughingstock out of Dad (my father) who had been bragging about me all over town. Also I would get yanked out of school which would be a dirty shame just when I am getting to understand the weak club bid.

There was nothing for it but to brazen it out. I got Sister (my sister) apart all right, but I must confess myself completely at a loss as to how to put her back together again. Can you suggest anything? They're getting pretty surly around here.

Harlow Protein

Dear Harlow,

Indeed I do have a solution for you—the solution that has never failed me whenever things close in. Light up a Philip Morris! Knots unite as you puff that rich vintage tobacco. Shade becomes light as you taste that mild Virginia flavor . . . And as you watch the pure white smoke drift lazily upward, you will know that nothing is so bad as it seems, that it is always darkest before the dawn, and that the man worth-while is the man who can smile!

SIR:

Do you think a girl should kiss a fellow on their first date?

Blanche Carbohydrate

Dear Blanche,

Not unless he is her escort.

SIR:

Here is a rather amusing coincidence that may amuse your readers.

Just off the campus where I go to school there is a lake called Lake Widgiwagan where students from time immemorial have gone fishing. Thirty years ago when my father was an undergraduate here he went fishing one day at Widgiwagan and dropped his Deke pin into the water. Though he dived for it for many weeks, he never recovered it.

Just yesterday—thirty years later, mind you—I went fishing at Widgiwagan. I caught a four pound trout. When I got the fish home and opened it up, what do you think I found inside of it? You guessed it! Two tickets to the Dempsey-Firpo fight!

Fleance Fat

Dear Fleance,

It certainly is a small world.

©Max Shulman, 1955

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS Cigarettes, who suggest that if your world has recently been blessed with some money from home, invest a little of it in the best smoke that money can buy . . . PHILIP MORRIS, of course.

17 DONATE BLOOD
Kappa Sigma's
Are Only Donors—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 30 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1955

FSU and U of F Receive Orders To 'Play Ball'

Final Plans To Be Made By Schools

By BOB GUTTING

The State Board of Control has turned orders to the University of Florida and Florida State University to begin competition in all sports as soon as possible.

Despite this fact all is not necessarily between the two schools nor have any games been scheduled.

Schools to Decide

Adopting an agreement of its inter-university committee, the board left it up to the universities themselves to decide when to play and on what conditions.

According to Dr. Broward Culpepper, Board of Control executive secretary, the agreement is still vague and the institutions will have to work out their own schedule. This, he said, will be up to the individual athletic directors.

Florida Coach Bob Woodruff proposed that there be no competition in any sport until a football game has been played, as it has been clearly demonstrated that our athletic relations will be on a friendly basis and mutually beneficial."

Woodruff has also said that he believes the main objections to a five-year contract, proposed earlier, were because of its length.

President Doak S. Campbell said: "Any new contract which would call for a series of games over a five-year period for both schools" than the five year system which stipulated all games should be played in mid-September at Gainesville and the FSU players must meet eligibility requirements of the Southeastern Conference from time of enrollment.

"Five Points"

The so called "five points" that have been adopted by the inter-university board are:

1) To believe it is desirable for the University of Florida and Florida State University to enter into regular competition in sports.

2) That competition is to be limited in each sport as soon as possible although we recognize that different sports in the will be required before definite openings occur for the new sports.

3) The athletic relationships shall be on the basis of mutual upon.

4) The details of scheduling these competitive events will be worked by the members within the limitations having been prescribed.

5) According to these agreements it is the desire of officials of each university is to be carried on progress with the basis of scheduling."

President Campbell told the Board of Control he planned to make a counter-proposal before the inter-university committee meets yesterday that no definite steps have been taken as yet to define the counter-proposal.

Drive Gets Boost From 17 Donors

The blood drive received its first shot early last Monday in the form the Kappa Sigma fraternity unit, Thursday.

Twenty five members of the group offered blood, with only 17 able to donate. The drive began 11 days ago under the sponsorship of the FSU Student Goliaths.

The drive began when the university account at the Blood Bank reached the bottom—24 pints.

After that, every pint that is used must be replaced with two pints. The 17 pints donated brought the account up to 41.

With the addition of 25 pints returned to the bank by a professor who took them out for his father and then didn't need them, there has been 20 pints donated in all, it was reported.

However, blood drive directors revealed that in the past two weeks 14 pints have been utilized. They were used by two faculty wives, a staff member and a student.

Goal Is 120

A committee headed by Orman Carothers and Margaret Nelson has set a goal of 120 pints before March 14, the end of the drive. "Most of those will be gotten from the men," said Carothers, "since people in ROTC can contribute without written permission from their parents. That's the way it has worked out in the past."

To promote the cause, the committee has been working with both Panhellenic and the Inter-Fraternity Council, selling the various organizations on competition as well as dormitories. In addition, announcements are being made over WFSU.

Students wishing to donate blood must first arrange for a blood test at the university hospital the week they intend to donate. All persons under 21 except those in ROTC, must bring with them written permission from their parents.

A car leaves the infirmary every Friday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to take donors to the blood bank, but students may also go during the week if they wish.

'Susannah' Set For Premier On Thursday Night

Harrell, Curtin Performing Both Nights, Westcott

Months of preparation will be climaxed Thursday night when Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah" is world-premiered in Westcott Auditorium.

The curtain will rise at 8:15 both Thursday and Friday nights. The latter performance has been set aside for students underwritten by the sponsoring Tallahassee Service League.

Mack Harrell, Metropolitan opera baritone, and Phyllis Curtin, New York City Opera soprano, will star in "Susannah" both nights, assisted by a large supporting cast of students and faculty.

Tickets Moving

Tickets were reported moving "steadily" in the Westcott ticket booth. The School of Music reported good use of the mail-order tickets for the Thursday premiere, with moderate movement of Friday night student tickets.

Professor Floyd, 28 year old FSU faculty composer, has written the words and music of "Susannah." He reports that interest is running "very high," although he says that the two act "music drama," as he calls it, is progressing "very well."

The story is taken from the Apocryphal tale of the elders and the Hebrews, and set by Floyd in the mountains of Tennessee to present day folklore, dialect and a form of primitive religion.

The youngest Daniel becomes an itinerant evangelist who becomes embroiled in events following his discovery of Susannah's bathing.

Plot Is Dramatic

The plot, according to Floyd, is quite dramatic and to reveal its details beforehand would detract from the audience's enjoyment.

Supporting members of the cast are Walter James, Harrison Fisher, Rosalin Adams, Dr. Lee Hanson, Lee Liming, Martha Kay Willis, Joan Nolte, Catherine Murphy, Betty Jo Armstrong and Eb Thomas, who speaks—God says — in the mighty voice of Westcott.

Edith Kaup is Miss Curtin's understudy. Herman Gunter is understudy to Mack Harrell.

Scenery was designed by Franklin Adams. Dr. Lee Hanson, of the speech department, is stage director. Costumes are by Catherine Murphy and choral direction by Dr. Wiley Housewright. The orchestra is conducted by Dr. Karl Kuersteiner, Dean of the School of Music.

I-F Speakers Need For Moral 'Renaissance'

Informal Questioning . . . Left to right, Margaret Dellinger, Jim Jullian, Dr. Karls Leysmeyer, and Barbara Hughes, discuss questions which arose from Leysmeyer's discussion on the psychology of Communism, in a Humanities class yesterday.

Mass Meeting Slated Tonight In Opperman

By CHARLET POITEVINT

There is need for a better understanding of the value of human nature and dignity if communism is to be defeated

This theory was brought out by several Intelligent Faith Week speakers yesterday in various university classes.

Dr. Karls Leysmeyer, who will speak tonight in Opperman Music Hall on "The Rebirth And Prospects of the Present World Drama," stressed the lack needed from a Russian firing squad, cited by a Humanities class that we need a "spiritual and moral rebirth to outmaneuver the Communists."

He said the "base concept of man in the Communist thought is that man does not have an independent soul. He has only a relative value and his value depends on how much he serves the Communist cause, whereas the Christian concept is based on the realization that man's soul has immortal value and as a creation of God, cannot be used as a means for an end. On this rests the base concept of the dignity of man."

Struggle Is Based

"Thus, continued Leysmeyer, the struggle between Communism and the western world is based on the basic understanding of the nature of man."

According to Dr. Leysmeyer, Communism places its appeal to the base as well as the intellectual instincts of man, creating a fanatical, wholly committed group strength.

He went on to note that there are 25,000 active Communists in the United States today—3,000 more than believed. Learn when he took over the government of Russia.

Also advocating a "spiritual and moral rebirth, was Reverend Don Benedict as he discussed the relationship of Marxism and other large cities where he has delivered speeches from the pulpit. Detective to holding prayer meetings on police steps.

Is Thought Today

He said that social welfare today is different than it was when first started, in that it used to be "all compassion and no skill, now it is all skill and no compassion."

Referring to Great Britain, Mr. John William Hughes, candidate for Parliament, stated that the British government and fundation a great deal better if the majority was higher. He said that in the "idealistic conception" of the welfare state there must be a moral background which can become completely successful. The British people are the same as much as Americans do, said Hughes.

Eight On Panel

All eight speakers will participate in a discussion on religion throughout the world, tomorrow in Opperman Music Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Panel participants will be Miss Elizabeth McNeil, who will talk on Christianity and rival faiths in Japan; Dr. James M. Matthews, who will discuss religion in India; Dr. Russell Stevenson, in Egypt; Dr. Karlis Leysmeyer, in Russia; Mr. John Hughes, in Great Britain; Reverend Don Benedict, in Europe; and Dr. Hunter Blakely, in the universities.

Queen Entries For Magazine ContestSought

Friday, March 11 is the deadline for the 1955 Smoke Signals Queen Contest.

Smoke Signals editor Don Heidel announced that all pictures must be submitted by then. Heidel replaces former editor Bob Rice who resigned to accept a position as Art Director of University Publications.

The contest, an annual feature of the humor magazine is open to all undergraduate coeds at FSU. Tha year's Queen and a court of four will be chosen, said Heidel.

All contestants are asked to submit photographs of themselves, framed or unframed for which sheets and heels will be furnished. Heidel said the taking of the photographs will select 20 finalists for the Queen and her Court. It will then be chosen by a panel of experts.

Contestants will be judged on charm, poise, and beauty.

Heidel pointed out that prizes will be given as an added feature this year. The panel will be made up of judges, press, and date of finals will be announced at a later date.

New Sound Device To Amplify 1955 Tarpon Club Production

Each and every splash should be easily heard at the Tarpon Club's "Splatter Party" in the Women's Gym March 2-5.

The annual synchronized swimming revue by Florida State undergraduates is planning to utilize "Onomatopoeic Sound," an device which amplifies and augments sounds made in water.

Featured in the "Splatter Party" will be a diving exhibition participate in a five-day show in St. Augustine that were interested in the enterprise.

The 1955 production is slated to start at 8 each night. Reserved seats will be sold this year, with other seating arrangements free as in the past.

Miss Virginia Hicks and Miss Ann Kruger head the 40-member Tarpon Club, with the latter having served those organizations conducted by Dr. Karl Kuersteiner, Dean of the School of Music.

Queen Entries Issue Comes Before Senate

With most routine business disposed of last week, the Student Senate will have only the representation question to consider when it meets tomorrow afternoon in Longmire Building.

The Senate will have three conflicting amendments to consider however, two of which have already been introduced and a third which will be introduced by Senator Hank McCann.

Two plans before Senate at present are:

That of Vice-President Coyle Moore and Senator Harold Vaughn to provide for combined dormitory-class representation in Senate.

Greek Plan Added

That of Senators Ken Gatlin, Joan Halford and Janet Joanes, which would add fraternities, sorority and day students to the groups entitled to elect representatives, and which would revise also the number of class senators.

McCann's proposal would provide for the assignment of otherwise-elected senators to island meetings of such groups as dormitories. Interfraternity Council and PanHellenic Association, in order to get votes of their opinions regarding student government.

Another item on the Senate agenda is confirmation of a

(Continued on Page 3)

Vance Resigns From Advisory School Council

Earl L. Vance, professor of recreation, resigned last Thursday from the State Advisory Council on Education.

He resigned one week shortly after Attorney General Richard W. Ervin ruled he and Dean Ralph D. Pace of the University of Florida school of education were ineligible since the law requires membership be restricted to lay citizens.

Professor Vance commented to Governor Collins in a letter of resignation of the somewhat exceptional circumstances that have now been brought to light if a professional educator being disqualified to act on an educational council will serve to alert you as governor and the public generally to the need of looking into just who is going to be chosen to make our education laws.

He also said:

"We can spend a great deal more money on the educational system and still not get better schools unless our educational system is based on sound and sensible standards. It is crisply no secret in the profession that a large number of people think this is exactly what is happening.

"If we pay teachers better salaries and we should—but at the same time set up absurd and false certification standards or handy artificial salary standards, we may still get no better teachers. We may even get poorer ones. The fact that most educational professors of Spanish or mathematics or other subjects could not be certified to teach their subjects in Florida schools should arouse thinking and even the layman to wonder about our certification laws. It is the mass of professionals to wonder about them for a long time.

"In the interest of our children and our schools I believe you will agree with me that we must keep matters at the same time we are trying to assure our schools the strong financial support they require and should have.

Both Governor Collins and he had no objections to their serving on the council. He said he has asked whether the law permitted professional educators to serve on the council and that he had been brought to his attention of their possible ineligibility.

Professor Vance told Collins "I did not seek the appointment and have always regarded it strictly as a free service I could render in the state and in the schools.

The Advisory Council was set up by the Legislature in 1947 to study legislation and the unofficial citizens committee which drafted the Minimum Foundation Minimum Foundation law for school financing.

Parking Violators' Delinquent Fines Can Be Avoided

Fines for parking violations are all 50 cents if paid within 24 hours. Fines paid within a week are one dollar, one dollar and any time over the 48 hour limit brings a maximum fine of $1.50.

Officials reminded that if fines are not paid as agreed the case must notify the traffic clerk in Longmire within 24 hours after the time of arrest or if he wishes to avoid paying a delinquent fee.

Revenge-Hungry Swedish Gym Team Meets FSU On Saturday

By STAFF WRITER

A revenge-bent Swedish Olympic Gymnastics team moves in for a Saturday night contest with the Florida State University Gymnastic team.

On the last lap of a 32-meet tour of the United States, the Swedes will be trying to down the FSU squad, sole victor over the gymnasts from abroad last year.

On this trip, there is no team championship as state and an added attraction will be an exhibition by the finest of their women gymnasts. Championships will be determined on an individual basis.

Three Stars Missing

Coach Harley Price and three of his top gymnastic stars will miss the competition. Coach Price will take Doo Holder, Jack Miles and Jamie Ashmore to Chicago this weekend where the trio will try for berths on the United States' Pan American Olympic team.

The Swedish women's team comprises the 1952 Olympic drill champions who are World Champions in 1950.

Tickets for the event, to be held in the Men's Gym, are now are available at the Student Center ticket office and the Seven Sea Restaurant in Tallahassee.

Defeated U of F

The Swedes, who recently defeated the University of Florida team in Gainesville, are rated as outstanding gymnasts in the world. Last year, with the exception of FSU, they outscored every competitor on a nationwide tour, repeating victory after victory in other countries as well.

Coach Price, who feels that the absence of Holder, Miles and Ashmore will hurt FSU, said recently that it was not impossible to expect at least a tie with the team from Sweden.

Representation Issue Comes Before Senate

With most routine business disposed of last week, the Student Senate will have only the representation question to consider when it meets tomorrow afternoon in Longmire Building.

The Senate will have three conflicting amendments to consider however, two of which have already been introduced and a third which will be introduced by Senator Hank McCann.

Two plans before Senate at present are:

That of Vice-President Coyle Moore and Senator Harold Vaughn to provide for combined dormitory-class representation in Senate.

Greek Plan Added

That of Senators Ken Gatlin, Joan Halford and Janet Joanes, which would add fraternities, sororities and day students to the groups entitled to elect representatives, and which would revise also the number of class senators.

McCann's proposal would provide for the assignment of otherwise-elected senators to island meetings of such groups as dormitories. Interfraternity Council and PanHellenic Association, in order to get votes of their opinions regarding student government.

Another item on the Senate agenda is confirmation of a

(Continued on Page 3)

MacDonald Says Spillane Sadism Closely Akin To Mother Goose

Mickey Spillane's writing is about as sadistic as Mother Goose, in the opinion of novelist John MacDonald.

Speaking at Friday's English coffee hour, MacDonald asserted that "Spillane a popular writer has the ability to make the little man with fallen arches become a mythological beast, a cop-killer, and a super human being who tears up gangsters and throws them around like room. He is modern mythology."

Conversation between MacDonald and Mack Reynolds, a science fiction writer, was one of the highlights of the Coffee Hour Reynolds is one of the founders of the New York MacDonald Club," an organization based on a friendly resentment of a writer who turns out 1,000 hundred words a day and sells them.

Science Fiction Writers

Both writers, experienced in the field of science fiction, agreed that a good portion of fiction story must attain a "willing suspension of disbelief" to be worth reading. They also admitted, after careful questioning that they had done little research comes from reading each other's works.

Reynolds turned to his own writing. MacDonald said his main problem is getting the story started. "It can't be too close to a main point of action, or you have to go back to beginning and an ending he "plays the middle by ear."

MacDonald, author of 12 published novels, 2 unpublished novels, he writers against adopting a patronizing attitude toward "pulp fiction" and want to enter. "If you're going to do a story on pulp, leave the title off the article" a story with a happy upbeat ending, forget your superior attitude and write the best love story you can," he advised.

Scarcity Brings Success

He attributed the success of "confidence" about the future and the scarcity of writers in the field. "Those who like to read, like to write."

At The Coffee Hour . . . John MacDonald, visiting author, second from right, answering questions from the overflowing crowd at Westminister House.

that sort of thing can't write," he said.

Asked why he has been publishing his books in hard covers instead of the pocketbook form as in the past, the author answered that the reason for the change is "money." This answer comes from a man who, it has been said, has been living dubiously" since his tales started to sell.

Longmire Sells Lost Items; Earns Money For Treasurer's Sale

The Lost and Found department in Longmire building may produce a television set yet.

All articles from the lost and found sale, in progress today and tomorrow, will go towards the purchase of a television set for the small lounge on the first floor of the building.

The sale features pajamas, pills, hats, raincoats, fountain pens, plastic pencils, compacts, cigarette lighters, raincoats, jackets, purses, umbrellas, and other items. Property found in the last five years is on sale.

Mrs. Edward A. Adams, League treasurer, is in charge.

Articles are displayed on tables in front of the Director's office, first floor, Longmire building.

'Aida' Lead Tryouts Are Today At 4; Vocal Roles Sought

More voices are needed to sing Verdi's "Aida" with the University Chorus Union.

Mr. Herman Gunter Jr., director, said that male voices are more needed but girls, men and women are invited to contact him in the music building or at his home.

The group plans to present the opera in Westcott Auditorium May 12, 13, and 14 following a performance in Jacksonville on April 27.

The vocal parts have not been cast, yet and persons interested in singing the leading roles may contact Miss Quinn's studio, 314 Music Building, at 4 p.m. today.

Council Study Predicts 'Major' Role For Florida Junior College

By JAYLEEN ROBERTSON

The year 1970 may see a majority of Florida's expected 106,000 college students dispersed in junior colleges throughout the state.

The establishment of public, junior colleges throughout the state has been advocated by the Council for the Study of Higher Education in Florida.

The Council's initial report, recently adopted by the Board of Control also recommends an expansion of present primary and state-operated colleges and universities, and the establishment of additional state supported colleges when the conditions under which they are to be developed have been determined.

Funds Needed

Possible bills for the appropriation of funds to create a Community College Commission are being considered by the Board of Control.

Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh, director of the Council for the Study of Higher Education in Florida, said the Board's action will be based on the initial report made by his committee and adopted by the Board.

It is expected, says the report, that 106,000 students will seek admission to Florida's colleges and universities in 1970. That is full enrollment figure of the collegiate institutions of Florida for the year 1953-54 was 36,613." The increase will be close to three times the present number of college students.

In a letter to the chairman of the Board of Control which accompanied the report, chairman John F. Ivey Jr. noted that between 1940 and 1950, there has been a 561 per cent increase in college enrollment, a percentage increase which far outdistances that in any of the other states.

Emphasis On Quantity

Emphasizing the need for expansion of present, and establishment of new colleges and universities on the report's basis, its recommendations on the following considerations: quantitative, qualitative, and geographical.

The Community College

(Continued on Page 4)

Just Another Football Game

The Board of Control has spoken. The University of Florida and Florida State University must begin competition "in all sports as soon as possible."

So we will at last have our long-awaited football game, although Florida Coach Bob Woodruff may be able to stall it as long as three years.

Let us hope that this game does not reflect the bitterness in which it is born, that it does not provide an opportunity for inter-campus rowdyism and poor sportsmanship, that the students do not attach undue importance to what is really just another football game.

And let us most fervently wish that the outcome of the football game does not determine which school is to be regarded by Floridians as "their" state university.

How To Raise Tempers

The cancellation of Dave Brubeck's appearance at Florida State University seems to have raised the ire of many students. We hope this dissension doesn't hurt the feelings of the student members of the Artist Series committee, who probably unknowingly made themselves newly-crowned champions of student welfare.

The two student members decided it would conflict too closely with the Sandspur appearance of Buddy Morrow and his orchestra, who would appear here the previous night.

We think there are plenty of students who would rather see Brubeck than attend the Sandspur events. Moreover, the Sandspur runs for three or four nights, enabling practically every student to see it at their desire.

We would like to have Brubeck here. He is considered a real artist in his field. As for price it would seem that the more for students than did the Dorsey performance, and students certainly got their money's worth then. The week Brubeck would have appeared here is pretty full with well-known figures, but since this is the first time this has happened it should cause no flurry. Anyway, a glance in the Free Press will show conflicting dates in local productions happening many times over each year.

Instead of raising student tempers over something many of them would like to see, a more decided effort to solve conflicts between local events, we think, is in order.

The Artist Series committee meets this Friday, and we understand that it might put be too late to still contract Brubeck, so if any student or student group wishes their opinion to this committee, perhaps it may still be possible for Brubeck to appear here.

Religious Freedom

With eight outstanding religious lecturers on campus this week, the Student Body should not miss the opportunity to view the world through such intermediaries.

Religion is a vital link in the chain of political, economical and social theories and conditions the world over today, and deserves recognition as such.

Our country is recognized as the pioneer and the leader in religious freedom, yet the term American carries other stereotypes in the minds of some nations where different concepts are prominent.

Coming here from many parts of the world, these eight lecturers may throw valuable light on the problems which prevent better international relations. And we, as Americans cannot ignore the power of our freedoms as it affects the thinking of the world.

It takes more than a trademark to make quality products and more than a profession of brotherhood to make it exist.

Equalization

Student Senators Calvin Holford, and Joanna Bell come up with a number of amendments to the bill which would change the method of electing senators.

One of the many aspects of these amendments that deserves consideration is the provision for Greek representation selected by IFC and Panhellenic.

This amendment corrects an objectionable point in the original by providing the Greeks with sufficient representation.

Under this plan, a Greek may be elected in the class elections, and from a dormitory as long as they maintain year-long residence in that residence hall. In addition, they are specifically provided with four voices (two male, two female) selected under any plans that IFC and Panhellenic conceive.

The cry of unfair representation has gone up already on this proposal which theoretically and statistically, according to voting analyses, will give the Greeks more voice than the Independents. Apparently few people have realized that the present ratio of Greeks to independents in the senate is 9 to 1, since few objections have been heard.

Yet, giving the Greeks the advantage may provide the Independents with the incentive to match them in collective support, voice for voice.

We Lower Our Voices And Listen

In recent day a number of men have made what seemed to us worthy remarks which have gone unnoticed here. Today we are trying to catch up with them.

There were, for example, Judge Learned Hand's newest words on the spirit of Liberty. Wa quote a fragment of his magnificent text:

> . . . It is only by trial and error, by insistent insistence, by readiness to reexamine presently accredited conclusions that we have risen, so far as in fact we have risen, from our brutish ancestors; and I believe that in our loyalty to these habits lies our only chance, not merely of progress, but even of survival . . .

Heretics have been hateful from the beginning of recorded time; they have been ostracized, exiled, tortured, executed, but disbelieved: but it has generally proved impossible to smother them, and when it has not, the society that has succeeded has always declined . . . And so, if I am to say what are "the principles of civil liberties and human rights," I answer that they lie in habits, enactments, institutions, if you will—but talents dissent, and can live without irrefragable certainties: that are ready to overhaul existing assumptions: that are willing to see that no one save through a glass, darkly; and that at long last we shall succeed only as we continue to undertake "the intolerable labor of thought"—that most distasteful of all our activities . . .

There were the plain words Senator Lehman delivered the other day on Senator Hill's oil-for-education bill:

> The people were told by Secretary McKay this week that at least six billions of dollars would accrue to the Treasury from the sale of off-shore oil leases and from royalties . . .
>
> I sincerely hope that the Administration will not now resist a move to support its proposal to earmark these oil revenues for the benefit of the school children of our nation . . .

The sum of six billion dollars, which Secretary McKay predicted would come into the Federal Treasury from the oil lands in the outer continental shelf over the next several years, would go only part of the way toward providing the facilities necessary for an adequate education for our children . . .

The American people remember all too clearly the infamous giveaways of the oil and gas deposits which the so-called inner controversies shelf. Certainly the Administration could atone in part for its record by supporting the "Oil For Education" Bill.

We liked the whimsical words spoken by Harvard economist J. K. Galbraith in discussing the latest report of the President's Council of Economic Advisors:

> . . . I am impressed by the ease with which the Administration has dispensed with its slogans and abandoned its cliches about the absolute benefits of a balanced budget and the unspeakable evils of deficit financing. It has now concluded, as was clear, that these things are not good or bad in themselves. Rather they must be viewed in their context.

There are times when a balanced budget is sound policy. There are times when it is not. At the moment the Administration obviously favors a modest deficit. Once those who toyed with such ideas were derided as dangerously avant garde. Now they are commonplace and last in the middle—a common fate of the youthful liberal.

Finally, we are indebted to General Douglas MacArthur. We disagree with a number of things he said at Los Angeles, including his derisive rejection of the idea of collective security. But there were some passages like that, even a blah could profitably ponder at this moment:

> At the turn of the century, when I entered the Army, the target was one enemy casualty at the end of a rifle or bayonet as aid. Then came the machine gun designed to kill by the dozen. After that, the heavy artillery raining death upon the hundreds. Then the aerial bomb to strike by the thousands—followed by the atom explosion to reach the hundreds of thousands. Now, electronics and other powers of science have raised the destructive potential to enormous millions. And with modern hands we work feverishly to find the means to destroy all at one blow.
>
> But this very triumph of scientific annihilation—this very success of invention—has destroyed the possibility of war being a medium of practical settlement of international differences. The enormous destruction to both sides of directly employed armaments makes it impossible for the winner to translate it into anything but his own disaster.

End quote and thank you, gentlemen.

—The New York Post

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor
Jay Robertson, News Editor — Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Asst News Editors: Oscar Johnson, Martin Dickman
Sports Editor: Bill Suthing. Dick Vetter
Sports Staff: Alan Williamson, David Morris
Amusement Editor: David Davis
Photographer: Jim Caldwell

Jon Caldwell, Business Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Distribution: Jerry Hall, Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8030, extension 685 or 211
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Copy Editors: Pat Marston, Franklin Adams
Art Consultant: Carl Horn
Cartoonist: Junior Staff: George Gelbaker, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Bercow, Ann Stanley, Jerry Bradfield

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Advertising Staff: Jerry Lilien, Nona Rule, Bill Bennett, Jo Ann Hall, Jo Gardner
Nationally Represented by Mid-state Advertising Associates, Inc. New York 17, Chicago 11, Atlanta 3, Los Angeles 14, San Francisco 4
Published by students of Florida State University.

"Anybody Care to Have a New Look at Civilian Defense?"

Letters To The Flambeau

Self-Stylism

To The Editor:

It seems that two of the better known Flambeau columnists, Martin Dyckman and Orchid Alonso, would like nothing better than to start a Greek-Independent war on campus.

Dyckman, self-styled advocate of the "Brotherhood of Man" and defender of all that is nefarious, seems to think that fraternities and sororities are evil because of the discriminatory clauses in their charters. What Dyckman does not realize is that fraternities and sororities for the most part were founded in the United States during a period of time when the suffrage, more, and laws all centered around segregation.

The Supreme Court in 1896 ruled in Plessy vs. Ferguson that the doctrine of separate but equal was constitutional. Did Dyckman expect Plessy vs. Ferguson to break the laws of the land?

Finally in 1954 the Supreme Court ruled in Brown vs. Topeka that segregation in public education was unconstitutional. So doing this they reversed every previous decision ever rendered by that court.

Fraternities and sororities will undoubtedly change their charters. Dyckman, when the customs, mores, and laws of the land do it. After all, it was the Supreme Court 58 years to reverse itself—let's give the Greeks a little time.

Miss Alonso, self-styled political writer(?), must receive information from a Quiz board or other mystical source. I refer to her complete ignorance of the facts in her column of Friday, Feb. 18 in which she stated that I was leading an anti-Sigma Chi movement on campus. Such a statement is somewhat ambitious to the Sigma Chis who are aware of the existing situation, however this letter should establish the falsity of the assumptions and misstatements set forth by the writer.

In the Spring Student Party Convention of 1954 I supported Pete Holland for president, and Jimmy Joanos for Party Chairman. This year I nominated and backed Guy Bennett and two others for Party Chairman. Is this starting an anti-Sigma Chi campaign?

I do control a vote in the Student Party. But not for my own. As for the Day Student delegation each member has a free mind and can vote for whom he they choose. At the convention each will vote and be taken and each member of the delegation can cast their votes according in the presence of the entire convention.

Miss Alonso, one of the founders of the State Party, takes an overly critical attitude of the Initiates of the Student Party. Perhaps with the feeling that any internal strife between the Greeks and Independents would result in benefiting the State Party during the spring elections.

I would rather not disillusion both Mr. Dyckman and Miss Alonso but the relations between Greeks and Independents have been well conducted in the past on this campus, before their coming and probably after their withdrawal. The Greeks and Independents have leaders who have had these attitudes at fallacies and an open conflict would result in nothing but incompetent Student government and injured feelings.

DAVE KENNEDY

Correction

To the Editor:

Subject: The editorial headed: "Proper and Fair Procedure" in last Friday's Flambeau.

I would like to correct the editorial Senator Jimmy Soles has by no means the only senator absent at the special senate session addressed by the NSA president. There were three other senators absent, two tardy, and three left early. I believe the records will show that the instructor you have made so much of was the first time Senator Soles has ever been absent from a senate meeting in the two years he has served in senate. According to his schedule in the office of the registrar Senator Soles has a Biology Lab period every day from 3 to 5 p.m.

Subject: The story headlined "Senate Committee to Study NSA."

Your coverage of Senator Soles' speech was good, but there are two facts not included in the story that the students should know.

First, at the conclusion of Soles' speech, Senator Bobby Temple moved that the senate give Soles a vote of confidence. The senate did so with no dissenting votes. I believe that must indicate that the members of the senate feel that Soles has done a commendable job on his NSA report and that they believe it has not rendered a fair and unbiased report.

Secondly, Senator Soles stated that he was not speaking against the motion to set up a committee to study NSA and he voted "Yes" on the motion.

In the two years I have worked with Jimmy Soles I have found him to be a capable and responsible senator.

Sincerely,
JIM MOORE
Sophomore Senator

Brain Washing

To the Editor:

Again the Department of Anthropology is washing our brains . . . Each person's culture is the product of available energy. I refer to their part of the "Science and Art"

(Continued on Page 4)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"I thought I'd be considerate and tell her that her hose were wrinkled—but she wasn't wearing hose."

Lately It Seems

Affiliation Question Needs Study

By ORCHID ALONSO

Now that Harry Lunn has come and gone, the question of affiliation with the National Student Association will simper through the campus like a summer storm and even waft some over the adjacent campus.

Some consideration has been given to the possible effect that Senator Soles' opposition will have on any proposed affiliation. This is merely a manner of passing the buck if the outcome of any such proposal is unfavorable to advocates of NSA.

In the first place, experience has shown that any one Senator opposition has little or no effect on any program that is adequately "sold" to the others.

From past experience also, it is noteworthy to inject at this point that FSU student leaders have never been too keen on NSA. In 1951, Bill Dentzer, then NSA president, asked for this campus, followed in 1953 by Roger Walker, Southern Regional Secretary for the group.

Neither of these were able to produce more than a nominal interest that waned on their departure and succumbed shortly after. It seems a little trifle of "academic freedom" and other progressive clichés have been unable to find a suitable niche in the minds of FSU students.

Propaganda, (not necessarily a dirty word, but denoting unlikeness) on NSA and the merits of affiliation will be available to anyone. Not so with "propaganda" aimed at discrediting the association.

One of the most salient objections, the only worth mention, confines itself to the "highly political nature" of NSA. The situation being that NSA exerts "pressures" on government officials—in the name of "every student in each member school."

Then NSA planned a bid for this campus, followed in 1953 by Roger Walker, Southern Regional Secretary for the group.

Neither of these were able to produce more than a nominal interest that waned on their departure and succumbed shortly after. It seems a little trifle of "academic freedom" and other progressive clichés have been unable to find a suitable niche in the minds of FSU students.

Propaganda, (not necessarily a dirty word, but denoting unlikeness) on NSA and the merits of affiliation will be available to anyone. Not so with "propaganda" aimed at discrediting the association.

One of the most salient objections, the only worth mention, confines itself to the "highly political nature" of NSA. The situation being that NSA exerts "pressures" on government officials—in the name of "every student in each member school."

Then NSA planned a bid for this campus, followed in 1953 by Roger Walker, South-

"Quite so!" cry the opponents, "and take a close look at the looseness of your constitution."

In considering NSA affiliation, however, the primary consideration is to concern itself with the values affiliation has to offer. Any primary consideration that has to be avoiding the issue of membership in national participant in the Student Party Solons are not bigger than Attorney General Dave Kennedy declaring that this column described as "anti-Sigma Chi." Those that know know not "anti-Sigma Chi" any more in a quandry over this column.

The only advice for help these groups is that they read the article in toto closely. If any statement exemplified or explicit, a false that calls Kennedy "anti-Sigma Chi", then they are ex- with remarkable speed abnormal) powers of reading ability.

The Dissenter

Philanthropist Is Perhaps Needed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Were a wealthy philanthropist to visit Tallahassee, he could perform no greater service than to donate a large amount of money to the Student Senate. They're going to need it.

There are two plans for changing the system of representation before that august body at the next session, now there will be a third. There are obviously still and agreement on none.

One plan was introduced which would provide for combined dormitory-class representation in the House supported by certain drawbacks which make it ineffective as a means to increase student-body government

This plan was rightly attacked as "unfair and discriminatory." In that it does not guarantee representation to Greeks and sorority meetings and sample courses opinion regarding academic governments.

They would be constitutionally required to attend these meetings. Senator McCann points out.

But assigning them to report to certain groups isn't going to assure that they'll represent these groups. Strictly speaking, one is represented by another only when he has the opportunity to cast a ballot for or against that person.

Student debate seems to be losing sight of the primary objective for changing the existing form of representation. Proportional presentation is good only when the senator should be able to represent a definite and workable constituency.

Instead of adding up the sheer strong conviction of individual fraternities couldn't we bring with us persons of student-at-large elections.

As another Flambeau columnist pointed out last week, senators like Joe Grelle do their own districting. Let them elect senators any way they wish. Washington doesn't and Florida how this state will set up its representative districts.

With things the way they are now, however student leaders will probably be unable to act before Spring elections at which time any amendment must be ratified by the students.

Anybody got a philanthropist?

Movies' Coming Of Age Described

By DAVID DREIS

This is the fourth article in a series of articles on the history of motion picture, its stars and its art.

THE COMING OF AGE

It really took the stock market crash for producers to realize that they couldn't take the movie goer for granted. Before the depression, they had come to see a sucker born every minute. Even though the film industry was one of the most part that they could throw in a couple of top stars and forget the rest. Well, for a while public actually did support this stand and even today they support it with their money.

The fact that sound-on-film was the market standard somewhat of a selling point, but to make good use of their sound on their loot on films during this time was a hard job. Leading theatre chains, their prices to almost nothing and even accepted IOU's from their dear customers in the hope that they would remember to pay money back. Bingo became a movie game in the form of SCREENO with prizes ranging from a dish to a dollar and people "invested" in that to a great extent.

Then a revaluation took place and for the first time in screen history movie companies were bowning screen writers on their payroll. They found out that when the selling character of the film was also depicted as a victim of circumstances, the picture sold. Murder mysteries also were great in demand and while they were popular in the era, sociers, they nevertheless kept the feeling and emotions of the times alive. Also one of the first times that the major public took a real part in the dramas Hollywood was comma of age.

Film companies increased their number of stars and now by that tallied more than a dozen. Among the performers as they left the "Old Country Brothers" were on the march and among these young players: Humphrey Bogart, Baron Hardwyn, Ronald Reagan, Jane Wyman, Bette Davis, James Cagney, Edward G Robinson, Errol Flynn, Marx Brothers, George Burns and Gracie Allen, W.C.Fields was set with Clark Gable, John Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Leslie Howard, Spencer Tracy, Merle Oberon, Claudette Colbert, Jeanette MacDonald and Alan Jones. These were now the major companies and Fox, Columbia and Republic followed quickly on the move

The talkie era was a real bliss as far as movie companies' were and companies got bolder and started to put certain principles which would lead to the legislative mess Ass.n. more respect for the movie industries and the public was beginning.

Greta Garbo yielded to the magic of the word "Gimme Some" to Al Jolson because he believed movies wouldn't do justice to the play which changed his mind is made his name. Jewel later became a producer. John Barrymore's singing was also notable and the screen was not to be overlooked on great proportions it had a step in the right direction.

NEXT ISSUE: PART FIVE MOVIES AND POLITICS SURFACE NOISE Those who claimed Julius Latin's dirty letter think again. He's on television's Morning Show and life is not dull. Except when Como takes a breather from his crooning. Then it is when we EXPLAIN HOW THE ACADEMY AWARDS WORK.

The Lift File

Power Over The Last Obstacle

Man's vastime ambition, not comes with the conquest of the some last obstacle. He has tried to prepare for the day when he will step over into the void, in the way of escape from the gravitational pull of his planet.

The technical difficulties, a recent meeting of scientific authorities considered briefly. Substitutes must be found for aluminum and steel, which cannot withstand the intense heat generated by a machine hurtling through space at 25,000 miles per hour. The effects of "fatigue" on the materials used to build the machine must also be overcome.

One expert suggested that a craft designed to pierce the thermal barrier be fitted with porous hulls through which water could be pumped to keep the plane from melting. Another concluded that engineers might have to design "expendable" craft, fit for only one flight. But what about the men who will pilot these craft? Ambition may not be made of such stuff, the poet said, and man has taken the advice. Each ambition satisfied evokes almost unbelievable feats of valor. Already man has submitted willingly to tortures of space and numbing cold. Will he some day submit to expendability?

Perhaps he alone agree that discretion may yet have the upper hand. Man has learned to fear the results of his insatiable ambition and the superhuman value he acquired in battle.

Very much like a child, ser- rified by his achievement, he regresses to what he believes must have been a more simple and less complicated past. He grasps for anything that has deified time and innovation.

The Norwegian Piltzer, who produced the hydrogen bomb, and may produce a craft to project man beyond the thermal barrier, have also bred a generation of pacifists.

The process of regression is quite familiar in the United States. Each year a million Americans explore whatever primitive secrets are to be found in subterranean caves.

There is some reason to suppose that the attractions of Niagara Falls, Grand Canyon and the soaring geysers of Yosemite lie as much in their immutability as in their scenic beauty.

Here James' Dean Miller roamed Europe in search of culture. Her twentieth century ancestors, through the subterranean cellars of El Escorial and the grand sloping of the Alhambra in search of monuments to man's unfulfilled ambitions.

Although the manager set continues to long ante every celebrated adventure of Captain Video and Space Patrol and is not yet ready to accept the sky as the limit, she has failed to drift from futurism in the amount of space newspapers devote to prehistoric man and his predecessors.

Did Australia once roam the Monarch Valley? Did the Vikings settle on the coasts of Virginia 50 years ago? Was the Ape Man a single, isolated event or a series of distinct glacial periods? Every once in a while a new discovery reinforces the belief that man's proper place is not at the side of the gravitational pull. Can anything be more fascinating to the study of prehistics than the discovery of Cheops' and-eaten space ship?

—From The New York Times

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

The scramble between the University of Florida and FSU is now on again.

The latest gimmick to be injected in the contest of seeing whether or no the two schools will play is a little article composed of five points that was recently passed by the State Board of Control. Net result of the "five points" is absolutely nothing.

The pillars of state government went about passing—with tongue in cheek—a document that is not worth the paper it is written on as far as getting the two schools together.

Waste Of Time

The first point is a waste of time. It merely states that the Board believes it is desirable for the two schools to enter into investigate competition. It then appeals in the form of an inverted pyramid, to delegate the convening of relationships between the schools to the athletic directors, who are to schedule games as soon as "schedule openings occur for the various sports."

Now, it would not take a man with a keen mind to figure out that Mr. Woodruff will probably be unable to find an opening in football for the next sixty years.

The Little McCarty of Gainesville has been continuously popping off about "not playing FSU under any circumstances," which he now vehemently denies.

Woodruff "Misquoted"

Mr. Woodruff has also seen fit to try and represent himself as the poor misguided innocent who has been taken in by wicked old FSU.

In a letter circulated at the board meeting, Woodruff claimed that up to the present time the University of Florida's position has been misquoted by Florida newspapers and press releases regarding our schedule negotiations.

Rules Violated

He further stated that FSU had violated rules of the Inter-university Athletic Committee agreement against publicizing negotiations and advanced FSU of not answering proposals to keep competition in tennis, golf, and track this spring except "in the press."

The outcome of this recent proposal remains to be seen, but to Mr. Woodruff I dedicate a few lines of wisdom from the great Sandi: "Nothing is so good for a woman that she is silent, and if he was sensible of this he would not be ignorant."

Mermen Win Over Georgia

Heading towards their third unbeaten season in five years, Florida State's well - balanced swimmers defeated Georgia's Bulldogs 68-25.

Already a decisive winner over Georgia here in the season opener, the Seminoles need now only set past Emory this week to call it a perfect season.

FSU, which thrashed Georgia 62-32 in that early season meet, carried a record of 18 straight dual victories to Athens Ironically, Georgia was the last team to stop Coach Bim Stultz' charges in a dual affair. That was a 45-39 win in the Tribe's second meet of the 1953 campaign.

The Seminoles, however, held a 7-4 edge in the colorful series which dates back to 1949—FSU's first year of competition. The two teams splashed to a 42-42 tie in 1952.

FSU's other victims this year include Southwest Conference powers Texas A&M and Southern Methodist plus Southeastern entry Georgia Tech. Last week the Indians missed winning the Southern Collegiate by only six points. Finishing second to strong Miami.

Lacking in team depth, Stultz has relied heavily on a veteran and two surprising freshmen for much of State's success. The veteran is All-American Ernie Stock, now in his third year as a Seminole. An all-around handyman, Stock is inbetween in his 150-yard individual medley specialty against dual competition.

The freshmen are Paul Jacobs of Hollywood and Graham Teschke of Cleveland, O. Jacobs, an All-American high school performer, shattered several long-standing breaststroke records at the expense of Texas A&M and SMU.

Teschke, whom Stultz calls one of the best freshmen he's ever coached, is a freestyle ace. During that same Texas swing, Teschke ran away with four first places.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the Swedish meet are still on sale at the Student Center ticket office and at the Dean Sea restaurant.

Student tickets are 75 cents with ID card. The meet will take place Saturday, Feb. 26 at 8 p.m. at the women's gym.

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
414 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER AND
ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
617 W. TENN. ST.
(Two Block From Senior Hall)

FSU Beats Maroons; Lose To Loyola

Score Second Largest Total

Florida State University's tagers went over the century mark for the third time this season last night, whipping the Miami State, 101-47 at Miami.

Flashy outside shooting by forward Dick Artmeier, along with the fast-breaking of Jim Oler and Ham Wernke contributed heavily towards FSU's best winning season. They now have 17 wins in 20 starts.

Oler and Artmeier tied for high-scoring honors with 24 points each. 18 of Artmeier's came in the first half. Maroon forward Jim Ashmore scored 22, before he fouled out late in the game Three other FSU regulars scored doubles. Wold with 17, and Benson and Wernke with 14 apiece.

Guard Jerry Ritchey of Miss. State had 16.

Much of the first half saw the Maroons trailing by a slim margin. At the end of 10 minutes, FSU led 20-25. Ham Wernke made a long one-handed shot as the first half buzzer sounded, with FSU leading 38-47. Accuracy from the field helped the Seminoles; they netted 20 of 41 shots for a 48% average. Fine floorwork by Artmeier and Warnke had the crowd on its feet numerous times in the first half.

Shortly after the second half began, FSU increased their lead to 13 points, and were never in trouble the rest of the game. At the halfway mark, they led 80-65.

Wish four minutes to go, forward Tom Barat hit a field goal to make it 99 for FSU, and then sank a free throw for the century mark.

Tonight's fray with Loyola, one of three teams to defeat FSU this season, starts at 8 p.m. in the Florida high gym.

	FSU
	fg	ft	pf	tp
Benson, f	5	4	3	14
Artmeier, f	8	8	3	24
Ashmore, f	5	2	5	12
Warnke, f	5	4	3	14
Wold, c	7	3	3	17
Barat, c	3	0	3	6
Oler, g	8	8	3	24
Barnes, g	5	2	3	12
Byrd, g	1	0	1	2
Waites, g	3	3	3	9
Patten, g	1	0	1	2
	50	34	31	137

	MISS. STATE
	fg	ft	pf	tp
Ashmore, f	2	0	4	4
Morrison, f	7	3	4	17
Hatfield, f	1	0	3	2
Nash, f	1	0	1	2
Ritchey, g	5	6	4	16
Walker, g	3	2	4	8
Duncan, g	7	4	3	18
Rowan, g	1	0	1	2
	26	15	24	69

Free throws missed: FSU: Benson 2, Artmeier 3, Wold 2, Williams 2, Oler 2, Barat. Miss. State: Ashmore 2, Morrison 2, Hatfield, Nash 2.

Unable to break a four year jinx, the Florida State basketball team lost to Loyola in a game at New Orleans. Final score was 101-95.

The Seminoles, tied with Loyola at the half, played their characteristic fine game, but lost out in the last quarter.

This is the fourth consecutive year that the Seminoles lost a game played in New Orleans to which gave rise to the theory that New Orleans is a jinx to the FSU players. It should also be taken into account that Loyola has one of the finest teams in the south.

This year's outfit has tallied over 1,250 points in winning 17 of 19 starts. This is an average of 67.1 points a game, 11.8 points better than last year.

Jimmy Oler continues to lead FSU individual scoring with 330 points. A 21-point scoring spree against Rollins Wednesday hiked his average to 21.8.

Ham Wernke is a solid second with 262 points and a 19.4 average. Ham hammered in 49 points against Georgia and Rollins the week to boost his career record to 1,249 points for 64 games, an average of 19.2.

Every time Wernke shoots he sets a record. So does Oler, whose 155 free throws is already 15 above his record of 150 last season. Oler has hit 47.8 per cent of his field goal attempts (119 of 249) and Wernke 42.6 of his shots from the floor (132 of 310).

Sophomore Bob Williams, however is the most accurate from the field. Alternating with Dave Wold at center, 6-8 Williams has hit 34 of 77 shots for a fat 44.2 percentage.

Forward Tom Barat has hit seven of 19 starts. This is an average of 7.1 points a game, 11.8 points better than last year.

Forward Rick Benson is way out front in rebounding. The 6-3 senior has picked off 318 rebounds for a 17.8 average.

FOR SALE
"SIXTY" Matic Tricycle
MOTOR SCOOTER
Excellent condition
$100 or Highest Offer
For Information call
JOHN ROGERS, Ph. 7981
1187 Magnolia (Box 261)

Sports-At-A-Glance

TUESDAY — Basketball: Loyola at New Orleans, 8 p.m. Florida High Gym.

THURSDAY—Golf, George Washington tournament, Tallahassee Country Club Swimming, Emory at Atlanta.

FRIDAY — Basketball, Miami at Coral Gables.

SATURDAY — Gymnastics, Swedish Olympic team, 8 p.m. East Campus gym. Swimming, Georgia AAU at Athens.

Anders Lindh—Nine times Swedish national team member and two time Olympic squad man who will lead the Swedish team in competition Saturday, Feb. 26 against Florida State Gymkana.

Spring Drills Continue Here

A couple of native halfbacks who apparently are improving with age were standouts of the week as Florida State University wrapped up its fourth season of spring football drills today.

Highlighting a series of rugged tackling drills this week have been two-year lettermen Lee Corso of Miami and Buck Metts of Sanford, both Juniors-to-be.

Corso and Metts also turned in some of the fastest dashes as Coach Tom Nugent, looking for better Seminole team speed, ran his squad through several time trials.

The emphasis this week, as it will be until the closing Garnet and Gold intrasquad game March 18, has been on a half-dozen phases of tackling.

Nugent has said the 11 best tacklers this spring will have a good chance of being in the starting lineup when FSU embarks on its second major schedule next September. Nugent was satisfied with close line tackling this week, but not happy at all with the Seminoles' open-field tackling.

"Open field tackling has become our primary concern," Nugent says. "That phase of tackling is a real test, and we must improve."

Besides Corso and Metts, other players singled out for noteworthy tackling ability were lettermen Bud Leonard, Tom Feamster, Ronnie Schomburger, Bob Crenshaw, and Troy Barnes, and B team graduates Ham Bisner, Norman Olson, Pete Overton and Bob Mathews.

All Lettermen!

There will be an "F" Club meeting Wednesday night, 7:30 p.m., at the women's gym.

Coach Twomey has been selected as this year's sponsor. Final plans will be made for the "F" Club dance and initiation.

CHEM STUDENTS VISIT STATE LAB

A personnel of the local chapter of the Affiliates of the American Chemical Association recently appeared on the cover of Flare, the Florida ACS publication, and a brief article on last semester's activities was included on an inside page.

The Student Affiliates will visit the State Agriculture Lab this Thursday, February 24. Those desiring to come should meet in the organic lab at 2:00 p.m. Their next meeting will be held March 2nd.

Monogrammed Gifts are Thoughtful Gifts

Writing Paper made personal with sale's name or initials in color. Per box . . . .

MONOGRAMMING-ONE DAY SERVICE
Luncheon or cocktail napkins with name or initials in color. Gift box . . .

MONOGRAMMING-ONE DAY SERVICE
50 Book matches, with name or initials. In choice of smart colors. Gift box . . .

MONOGRAMMING-ONE DAY SERVICE
TALLAHASSEE'S LARGEST SELECTION OF HALLMARK CARDS, GIFT DRESSINGS AND RIBBONS.
Weddings, Invitations and A[illegible]

HOUSE of GIFTS
209 South Adams Street

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young specialist in community relations makes friends in 101 plant cities

General Electric now has 131 plants in 101 cities, and one problem is common to all: How can the company show people in every community that it is a good neighbor?

This responsibility is shared by many and stimulated by 32-year-old John T. McCarty. His job: Consultant, Program Services in Plant Community Relations.

McCarty's work is varied, exciting

McCarty's assignment is to help each of the General Electric plants tell its neighbors what it is doing, what it hopes to do, and how it fits into the community.

He must be ready to travel to 26 states. He prepares community-relations manuals for use in all 101 plant cities. He supervises surveys of community sentiment, and tests the local effects of the company's advertising. And he helps plant management maintain friendly contacts with civic, religious, educational and other community leaders.

23,000 college graduates at General Electric

This is a sensitive and important job. McCarty was readied for it in a careful step-by-step program of development. Like McCarty, each of the 23,000 college-graduate employees is given his chance to grow, to find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When fresh young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits — the individual, the company, and the country.

JOHN McCARTY joined G. E.'s Advertising Department as a copywriter after army service and graduation from U. of Michigan in 1947. He has held his present job since June 1952.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

50 million times a day at home, at work or on the way

There's nothing like a

Coke

1. PURE AND WHOLESOME... Nature's own flavor.
2. BRIGHT, EVER-FRESH SPARKLE... distinctive taste.
3. REFRESHES SO QUICKLY... with as few calories as half an orange, juicy grapefruit.

DRINK Coca-Cola

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY
TALLAHASSEE COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

"Coke" is a registered trade mark © 1955, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

When the stag-line wolves rush your delectable date...

But you're the guy she steps out to have a cigarette with...

M-m-man, that's PURE PLEASURE!

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!

No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!

P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos! That's why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Classified Ads

ROOMS FOR MEN. Reasonable. Maid Service, Telephone. Convenient to town and FSU. Call 3-6478. 547 W. College Ave.

LOST—Red wallet. Between Library and Tri Delta House. Reward. Nancy Rainey. 2-2783.

LOST—Plastic identification case with important papers, in library or Westcott Thursday night. Please return to or notify Dorothy Bohren, 326 N. 8th St., Quincy. Fla.

Irish Presentation Lacked Depth But Showed Outstanding Acting

By DAVID DREIS

Sean O'Casey is generally presented as the outstanding Irish playwrite and Saturday's presentation of "Juno and the Paycock" performed by Dublin players displayed why he deserves that distinction.

The play is the story of the troubles of the Boyle family Boyles are to receive an inheritance the family is overjoyed and run into fair weather friends who later turn on them when the possibility of the inheritance not coming is rumored. Mary falls in love with the school teacher-baby gives her a child out of wedlock and then disappears.

Treachery Is Keynote

Johnny, who has lost an arm and walks with a limp besides is a traitor to his friend and secretly reports his friends activities to the enemies during the Civil War. The area later gets revenue and Johnny is killed. "Captain" Jack is accused by his wife of "running around like a paycock (peacock)" and she wonders what would happen if his feathers were pulled out. When the inheritance doesn't come and the bill collectors start appearing the husband suffers a nervous breakdown while trying to forget by spending his last pennies on beer.

The play is sad. The mood is morbid. The actins was nicely done and the over-all effect was felt.

There was one noticeable defect and that was in the guns. In the course of the play the family is anxiously listening to an old-time pinnonrgh. Well, after all it is 1952, but ever in the corner of the stage is a modern gas range completely out of character. We don't know if the props are their own or borrowed, but more careful decreation would greatly improve the substance of their performance. We're happy to note that this is the only major complaint we could make The Dublin Players enacted their roles well and it would not be too bad an idea to have them back.

Made Most Of It

The Dublin Players attempted to prove in their first offerins Friday night that "the grass is always greener on the other side", but nevertheless "The Far Off Hills" was a little too far off for this reviewer.

It seemed a shame that such accomplished artists as this group had to vanish fight a weak script which had me continually guessing about the depth of character bind portrayed.

All in all, the play lacked depth in story, although the players valiantly worked their way to the conclusion in as professional a fashion as you could ask. We wonder, however, why this choice of play when this troupe does outstanding pieces as "Bothe Spirit" and "Pygmalion." Recently in the program "The Far Off" hills is considered by discerning playgoers to be Dr. Lennox Robinson's most subtle comedy. We may not be discerning, but we considered this comedy pretty much of a farce

Some girls are like flowers—they grow wild in the woods.

Council Study

(Continued From Page 1)

Commission, if authorized by the forthcoming legislature, will study the ways and needs of possible establishment of a number of junior colleges throughout the state. Four important reasons are listed in the report as the basis for such action.

Reduces Individual Cost

First, the Commission notes that a sufficient number of junior colleges would reduce the individual costs of education on the part of parents and the state. Second, junior colleges could provide education programs adapted to the needs and interests of students who would ordinarily drop out of the university without completing requirements for a degree. Students of outstanding ability could be encouraged and aided to continue their advanced studies in one of the colleges or universities of the state.

Third, it would enable more students to go to college, and fourth the junior or community college would be of great service to the community in which they were located.

Brain Washing

(Continued from Page 2)

exhibit currently as the University Museum.

Leaving aside the question of the propriety of such a pamphlike presentation in a free University, one still may ask whether assent to this viewpoint is consistent with scholarship. While examining the facts in a case like that it should be borne in mind that one example in which the items quotations does not prove its truth, but one example in which it does not apply proves its falsity.

And to the mind of the students of ancient Mediterranean cultures one such example is enough. The ancient Hebrews had exactly the same method of production, the same process of energy", as their neighbors but their culture was different—completely.

Sincerely yours.
VAN O. PETERSON

CHI OMEGA HOLDS ELECTION

La Vera Armstrong was elected president of Chi Omega sorority at a recent meeting. Other officers elected were Tina Stahl, vice-president; Jan Davis, secretary; Ginger Smith, treasurer; Phyllis Lankford, pledge trainer; Elise Humphrey, chapter correspondent; Elaine Berryhill, panhellenic representative; and Luska Abrams, social chairman.

Selecting a wife, they say, is like selecting a chocolate—A little guessing, a little pinching and a little squeezing and you're still not sure to get what you want.

Honor George Washington
Enjoy Our Excellent Cherry Pie
In the SEMINOLE CLUB
TONIGHT:
PLATE SPECIALS
Roast Pork—Cornbread Dressing .65
Beef Hash 60
Shrimp Creole on Rice 60
With Choice of Vegetables, Salads and Fresh French Rolls
MAKE NEXT FRIDAY DINNER DATE NIGHT BY CANDLE LIGHT IN THE SEMINOLE CLUB

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES
FLORIDA
TODAY-TUES
"Underwater!"
Jane Russell
Gilbert Roland
Starts Wed.—For One Week
"A Star Is Born"
Judy Garland
James Mason
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY
"Easy To Love"
Esther Williams
Van Johnson
THURS., FRI. & SAT.
"The Siege At Red River"
Van Johnson
Joanna Dru
plus
"Tabor The Great"
Charles Drake
Karin Booth
STATE
TODAY
"The Bridges At Toko-Ri"
William Holden
Grace Kelly
WED. & THURS.
"Hell's Outpost"
Rod Cameron
Joan Leslie
plus
"Atomic Kid"
Mickey Rooney
Robert Strauss
CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TUES.-WED
"Calamity Jane"
Doris Day
Howard Keel
THURS., FRI., SAT.
"The Pathfinder"
George Montgomery
Helena Carter
plus
"Killer Leopard"
Johnny Sheffield
Beverly Garland
RITZ ART THEATRE
"TWIST OF FATE" with Ginger Rogers—Herbert Lom
TODAY-WEDNESDAY

Put a SMILE in your SMOKING!

Try CHESTERFIELD Today
You'll smile your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness—mildness—refreshing taste.
You'll smile your approval of Chesterfield's quality—highest quality—low nicotine.
IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD— NO CIGARETTE Satisfies LIKE CHESTERFIELD

1 Man's best friend. "One day I saw our sheepdog dig, who was jealous of our newborn baby, run out of the house with the baby in his jaws. I fainted — but when I came to, I saw two things: the sheepdog near me unharmed, and the house in flames." True stories of devotion in the hearts of dogs.

2 How to improve your speaking voice. A warm, assured voice can enhance your personality, broaden your opportunities—and there is no one who cannot make his or her voice more appealing. A noted speech counselor tells 5 major vocal faults, gives step-by-step advice on how to overcome them.

3 That Dixon-Yates brawl. "Scandal!" "Multimillion-dollar giveaway!"—that's what critics call the contract to supply power to one private utility in region of the TVA. But what's really at stake is public versus private power. Here, stripped of all emotion, are the facts behind the Dixon-Yates ruckus.

4 Chess: they call it a game. You can play without knowing a word of your opponent's tongue, but you can't bluff or count on luck (the best man always wins). There are billions of possible moves in chess: a way to teach it. Story of the world's oldest game, with millions of fans around the globe.

5 My most unforgettable character. To the world, he was a cantankerous, frugal "character." But he anonymously sent hundreds of boys to camp, put four boys through college, helped out a boy family. Story of crusty George Reynolds, who died with $4—and a record of lifelong service to his fellow men.

6 Jews among us. Jews fought alongside us for freedom in 1776; Jews paved the way for today's giant labor unions. They've given us music greats like Heifetz, stars like Bette Davis, public servants like Baruch. Story of the people who've sought equality for 2000 years—and found it in the U.S.A.

7 How to get along with others. When your child screams, "I hate you!", when your husband blows up over nothing—can you figure out why? Here's how to de-slop "empathy" (putting yourself in the other fellow's shoes without getting emotionally involved), and how this ability can smooth your daily life.

8 Your church CAN afford fine bell music. Carillons cost over $100,000, plus an expensive tower to house them. But George Schulmerich's electronic bells cost only about $2500, take up less space than an organ—and you can't tell them from the real thing! How every church can now afford fine music.

9 Appomattox: epic surrender. Grant fed the starving Southerners from his own supplies, let them take their cavalry horses home for spring plowing—and, century to regret, he did so when Lee surrender his sword. How the human touch of two great generals helped reunite a nation split by civil war.

10 Dead men tell him Lies. Show him a picture—or even a single bone—and he'll tell you the sex, race, weight, height and state of health of a former occupant. Amazing story of Dr. Wilton Krogman, the anthropologist who investigates corpses, helps solve murders by making human bones "talk."

11 27-page book condensation: "Serenade, Lawrence as Mrs. A." She was one of our greatest actresses. But to Richard Halliburton she was a pampered prima donna. He prepared to leave. Instead, he started her. Here, in this tenderest of love stories, is told the story of the English girl who made herself a part of America—and part of him.

12 Grand old master of modern art. Art schools classified him, critics jeered—but any child could paint better, gallerins snubbed his work—but today we revere Paul Cezanne as the father of modern painting. Story of the genius who was explosive, stubborn as a mule —and a century ahead of his time.

13 How is Ike with a world in turmoil. The endless problems our nation faces cannot all be solved quickly—and some probably will be solved at all, warns Adlai Stevenson. The political leader tells why we'll never face problems realistically till we get over the notion nothing is impossible for us.

14 America seen by a Japanese war bride. Why did she marry an American? Has she run up against discrimination? Are her 2 children accepted by playmates? How do we differ from her people? What's the hardest adjustment she's had to make? Facts about one Tokyo's candid view of her adopted land.

15 Last women of Paris. When prostitution reins in Father Talk institution, they're suffering from V.D., beatings, boredom. When they leave, they're ready to take up normal lives as workers, wives, mothers. Starting story of The Nest; how it's helped nearly 400 women quit lives of degradation.

16 The facts about your weight. Does overweight shorten your life? Will those advertised drugs really help you reduce? Does smoking cut down your appetite? What do authorities now say is the smart (and happy) way to diet? Here are the answers from the head of Harvard's Department of Nutrition.

17 Lovers' quarrel. You know the way those things start: he said something, she said something, he stalked off. Then he thought of the day she saw him off to war . . . the night little Helen was born—and suddenly he was back in her arms. How are the memories that made a husband forget to be mad.

18 Controversial Lewis L. Strauss. He set up listening posts that tipped us off to Russia's A-bomb; he fought for the H-bomb—and now it's his job to see we make more terrible weapons than the Soviets. Portrait of our AEC chief—and why this deeply religious man feels atomic power is not immoral.

19 It pays to increase your word power. Does "dereliction" mean general decay, damaging criticism, neglect, or a state of being unlearned? Adding new words to your vocabulary increases your self-confidence, your prestige—even your earning power. Here's a word quiz that's fun, may pay dividends.

20 How Russia hopes to win the Olympics. It's already grabbed world titles by the fistful. Now it's announcing athletes, giving life pensions to champs—and vowing it will beat the United States, sweep the '56 Olympics. Here are Russia's all-out plans for showing the world it's a nation of supermen.

21 Norman Vincent Peale answers your questions. "Dr. Peale, you're a busy man; how do you keep from getting tired?" . . . "What are the chief ingredients for success?" . . . "I get angry and say things I regret—how can I control my temper?" The spiritual counsel to millions offers helpful advice.

22 They "stand in" for Scotland Yard. They may be anyone from a peer to an elevator girl, they handle everything from stray dogs and attempted suicides to murderers—and they're armed with nothing but their wits and a night stick. How 78,000 volunteer bobbies help keep law and order in Britain.

23 Advertising's contribution to our way of life. It brings "luxuries" like autos, TV, radio to the reach of all; starts new products, jobs; gives us the world's highest living standard. Tribute to the businessman that began when man couldn't write for Mrs. Jones to tell Mr. Smith how good Brown's pickles were.

24 Lo, the poor octopus! His very name spells horror—yet he's deathly afraid of anything larger than himself. He has 2 brains, an incredible ability to escape from a trap, can change color at will—and some octopuses stretch 110 feet across. Facts about one of the most fascinating creatures of the sea.

25 You CAN think your way to the top. A fish tank broke gave Herb Plaut the idea for Scotch Koolers (and a $5 million business). A plan to cut 3 workhours to one skyrocketed a $31 20a-week clerk to a key industrial post. Striking examples of men who've landed big jobs by "letting the imagination soar."

26 Great Portuguese swindle. Arthur Ross first fooled officials into printing $5 million in bogus bills. Then he set up a bank, pyramided a financial empire . . . and if he'd skipt just one month more in cover his tracks, he'd never have been caught. Story behind one of the most gigantic frauds in international finance.

27 The why of aches and pains. Did you know that your brain wash away harmful substances? That nausea speeds recovery by causing you to be down? That your brain has more nerve endings than your hands, because injury is far more serious there? How pain actually protects you from harm.

28 Ridiculous waste in the armed services. While the Army was shipping tons of tomatoes from Florida to California, the Navy was shipping tons of tomatoes from the East to California! W. L. White tells how military brass is sabotaging unification and piling needless expense on American taxpayers.

29 That wondrous vehicle, the airliner. In some ways, the wings lend 'feel in flight. Pilots don't gun the engine to gain speed; they push the propellers to "bite" more air!—and automatic devices can fly a plane dead on course for 2000 miles! Facts about that amazing contraption, the modern airliner.

30 Trapping the tax dodger. One man hid deposits in 63 banks under phony names and went to jail for over a year. Another stashed $100,000 in a tire—but had a blowout right under the nose of a cop's agent. How U. S. sleuths tackled by paid informers; how it almost impossible to cheat on taxes.

HERE'S HOW TO GET THEM: To acquaint you with the interesting articles in The Reader's Digest, we make this special offe...

From the descriptions below of some of the articles to appear in the April issue of The Reader's Digest, pick the three articles you would most like to read. Circle with pencil the numbers of these three articles on the coupon below. Then mail coupon to us with your name and address. We'll send you free copies of the three articles you choose.

This offer is good for only a few days, so send us the coupon TODAY.

CIRCLE NUMBERS OF 3 ARTICLES YOU WANT*
Cut out coupon and mail today!
*Note: only one set to a family

1 2 3 4 5
6 7 8 9 10
11 12 13 14 15
16 17 18 19 20
21 22 23 24 25
26 27 28 29 30

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ (April)

To: Dept. C-6, Reader's Digest Association, Pleasantville, New York
Gentlemen: please send me FREE the 3 articles I have circled below by number.

FREE... Advance copies of Reader's Digest articles!

BAND CONCERT
Whitcomb
Group Performs—P.

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 31 | PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA | FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1959

World Premiere Of 'Susannah' Well Received

N. Y. Singers, Local Cast Set For 2nd Show

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah," world premiered in Westcott Auditorium last night, drew round after round of applause and cheers and bid for success.

The auditorium was not full, but this was compensated for by the enthusiasm of the audience, which seemed to favor especially Phyllis Curtin, who sang the title role.

The composer, called on stage to bow called loudly with the cast, received a number of curtain calls for his work, aptly named a "music drama."

Jack Harell, baritone lead, also drew much-deserved applause, as did Walter James and Kip Thomas, the other principals.

Curtin in Super

Miss Curtin, in her role as a misled young girl embittered and deformed by the circumstances of the plot, was superb. Her crystalline high notes and her innate dramatic ability left nothing to be desired. She was the only singer who successfully interpreted the orchestra all the way through the performance.

Her acting "mastered" we refer to the fact that the orchestra, composed of members of the Florida Symphony under the direction of Dr. Karl Kuersteiner, played much too loudly at times. They did well in performing the highly complex and impressive score, but the audience had a difficult time understanding what was being sung. During the second act this situation was largely corrected, however.

It may be added that the pipe organ could be used for added effect to much better claed than it was being in French, German or Italian.

Mack Harell's rich baritone voice was well-suited for his role as Sir Olin Blitch. Her dominating and somewhat evangelist. His acting ability was commendable and made us portray the preacher's weakness.

Kip Thomas, as "Little Bat," possessed the only speaking role and executed it in a fully admirable manner. He played a simple-minded village lad with the goodness but low in courage.

James Exercises Rule

Walter James, as Sam Susannah's brother, did an excellent portrayal of the good-natured, sloppy-lucky person his role called for.

Supporting roles were well executed by Sheldon Posen, Mr. Hall; Willis J. Dayton Smith, Jean Nicolet Worley, Ken Nelson, Catherine Sheppard Liming and Rose Jo Armstrong.

Deserving credit were Dr. Wiley Housewright, choral director, Dr. Dion Orr, stage director, Ruth Adkins, costumes and Cathryne Murphy, costumes. Lack of space prohibits mention of many others whose work in producing "Susannah" should be credited. It would be an injustice to remain in detail the plot. Readers are urged instead to attend the show's performance. Let it suffice to say that it makes a point: more one looks for evil, one may cause evil. The Tennessee villagers, jealous, perhaps, of Susannah's youth and happy spirit, decide her as a wicked temptress and shun her as one possessed of the devil. As events progress Susannah is changed into a bitter, cynical woman and the opera ends in tragedy for all.

Carlisle Floyd has combined pre-choral, impelling music with his fine sense of creativity in adopting the Apocryphal story of Susannah and the Elders to the modern operatic stage. The overall dramatic effect of his work must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

Shoes? Never Heard Of Them!—Rehearsing for "An Evening of Dance" are, foreground, Susan Ball and Lou Merritt; background, l to r, Sue Rogers, Ardrenn Miller, Barbara Grebel, Jim Fadigan, Alex Hay and Don Rapp. The dance—called Whing Ding, will be presented Tuesday night.

FSU To Hold Annual Debate Tourney Today

The 8th Annual Florida State University Invitational Debate Tournament opened here this morning at 8:30 with a general assembly in the Baptist Church School Building.

Sixteen schools from eight states are participating at FSU's house tournament, the largest to be held by the school in the six years of tournament history.

Six rounds of debate will highlight the contest; seven debate teams will represent FSU in the tournament.

Representative teams include Norma Tripodo and Arnold Greenfield, Laura Lee Alexander and Beverly Duperoueel, Barbara Chambers and Karl Rhodes, and the negative: Phyllis Smith will be represented by the following people: Fred Roberts and Bruce Palmer, Herb Lacsyo and Tom Woods, Earl Carroll and Harold Leonard, Jim Wilkinson and Dave Bachman.

One Was Debater

Rounds five and six, which will be held at 8:30 and 11 a.m., Saturday, are to involve a specific type of debate using only one man on each side. Students may attend the unusual debate and take part in the 20-minute forum period scheduled as an integral part of the debate.

FSU's entries in the individual events are as follows: Pete Nuthoff and Coyle Moore, Impromptu Speaking, Arnold Greenfield, Original Oratory, and Danny Morris, After-Dinner Speaking.

FSU presents a sweepstakes trophy award in this tournament to the school compiling the most points in all events. The University of Miami has won for the past three years, and are coming this year in hopes of retaining these honors.

Individual medals are awarded to three place winners in all events, and certificates are awarded to superior debate teams and individuals.

Strongest To Date

The Student Senate passed two of six scheduled resolutions this year during Wednesday's meeting, containing a member of the Tallahassee Police Department and demanding a student voice in Faculty Senate.

One resolution, sponsored by Senators Bill Stancik and Ronnie Blue, criticized the actions of a member of the police force —whose name the Senate declined from the resolution— and asked the Student Body President and the Dean of Men to meet with the Chief of Police "in an attempt to iron out difficulties."

Stancik, speaking for his resolution, said that the officer, whom he identified as John McGlormary, excited the students in his actions after the attempted to arrest a student Monday night in front of Kahle's.

Proper Action Disregarded

Saying the officer had "made a fool of himself," Stancik said that he should have taken the student, if the latter had been in the wrong, to the proper officials immediately. Instead of leaving with the crowd.

(See personal account of incident elsewhere in this issue.)

Some Senators protested that including the officer's name in the Resolution, which some said was too strong, would be tactless and harmful to the individual.

The officer in question was identified to the Senate as the same man who drew his gun in apprehending Bill Wagoner, earlier this year, for his alleged part in fraternity pranks. Fraternity representatives, however, were told by Officer Edward Donley that it was another policeman.

The Senate was told that the incident arose when the officer attempted to arrest a student who allegedly made a profane comment in front of Kahle's Monday night. A crowd of students gathered to the scene apparently angered the police officer, who according to Stancik, instead of leaving the scene, attempted to make the "mob" disperse.

The resolution passed by Senate declared in part:

"WHEREAS the abuse of authority by this police officer greatly agitated students to unrest, and

"WHEREAS this is a very unhealthy situation to have exist in the city of Tallahassee because it brings discredit to all parties concerned,

"THEREFORE, be it resolved that the Student Senate request the President of the Student Body along with the Dean of Students of the Florida State University to meet with the Chief of Police of the City of Tallahassee in an attempt to iron out difficulties which have existed with this police officer."

Strongest Resolution

In its other resolution, sponsored by men's vice-president, Gordon Gaster, and Senators Barney Bales and Bill Stancik, the Senate took the strongest stand it has ever taken regarding student and faculty relations. Previous resolutions, asking that students be merely admitted to the meetings of Faculty Senate, have not been acted upon.

The resolution stated:

"WHEREAS, the F. S. U. students have no voice in Faculty Senate, and

"WHEREAS, the Faculty Senate determines many policies of vital concern to the student body,

"THEREFORE, be it resolved by the Student Senate that the chairman of the Student Senate appoint a committee to start discussion with University President Campbell to provide that the men's vice-president and the women's vice-president represent the students in Faculty Senate, that the vice-presidents shall have speaking and voting privilege in the Faculty Senate in order that they may express student opinion."

Gaster, McCann and Boles were appointed the committee mentioned in the resolution.

Resolutions Passed Concerning Police Incident, Faculty Senate

News Briefs

'Lost And Found' Sale Continues In Longmire

The Lost and Found Sale will feature costume jewelry, keys, eyeglass cases and frames, books as well as coats, scarves and umbrellas, which have been for sale for the past week.

Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire, has announced that although today in order to further the efforts to obtain a telephone and for the small income for the first floor of the building.

FOREIGN OFFICER WILSON TO SPEAK MONDAY, LONGMIRE

Changes in Foreign Service Scholarships will be the subject of a talk Monday at 4 p.m. in Long-Stire Clubroom.

Speakers will be Mr. David Wilson, an American public affairs officer, and his wife, who have recently returned after six years of foreign service in Finland and South Africa. Interested students may attend.

Annual Theatre Dance Group Production Is Set For Tuesday

"An Evening of Dance," annual Theatre Dance Group production here, has been set for Tuesday at 8:15 in Westcott Auditorium.

1000 Tickets Are Printed For Morrow

Only 1,000 tickets to the Buddy Morrow Dance on March 25th have been printed, Frances Stokes, producer of Sandspur announced today. "We're just interested in having an un-crowded dance and just breaking even as far as profit is concerned."

"For several years the biggest complaint about the campus dances has been that they are congested," added Miss Stokes. "We think this year's Sandspur Dance will be unique in that we've had, although we have never had a poor dance."

Buddy Morrow's orchestra will play for the event which has been an annual event since 1946 when the Sandspur weekend was first organized. It has concluded the all-original musical comedy show every Spring.

RCA Recording Band

The orchestra at the dance will be the same orchestra that has recorded for RCA Victor and Mercury records. It will be the same, man-for-man, announced General Artists Corporation, the booking agency.

Tickets for the Sandspur Dance are $1.50 each instead of the usual $2.00 charged for Sandspur in the past. "Along with our new policy of lower prices for the Sandspur dance, we're also dropping Mercury the musical comedy from 75 cents to 50 cents," Miss Stokes added. "We're interested in everyone taking part in Sandspur weekend than in our making money."

"SUSANNAH" TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE

Tickets for tonight's presentation of "Susannah" are still available at the School of Music Office and Westcott Ticket Booth. Cost is $1 -for students with Activity Coupon 14, and tickets for dates may be had at $1.50 each. Other tickets are on sale for $3.

Brubeck Jazz Quartet Again 'Reconsidered'

The Artist Series Committee may agree to contract the Dave Brubeck quartet—jazz instrumentalists —when it meets this afternoon at 3.

At an earlier meeting, said Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, Artist Series Executive Secretary, it was decided to bring Brubeck to the campus if the date did not conflict with the Sandspur weekend.

Brubeck is available either Saturday, March 28, or Monday, Mar. 28, Sandspur ends on the 26th, with the Sandspur Dance on Friday, the day before.

Student sentiment appears to favor Brubeck's appearance in spite of the fact that the two following weekend the Inter-Fraternity Council dance featuring Duke Ellington, will be held.

Students Change

Gordon Gaster, men's vice-president and one of two student members of the Artist Series Committee, told the Student Senate Wednesday that he and women's vice-president Jean Tavel, the other student member, would vote to bring Brubeck here if the senators so wished.

According to Mrs. Vernon, the Artist Series Committee did not have access to a calendar of events when it first considered Brubeck, and voted to bring him here only if the date would not conflict with Sandspur.

The next morning, Mrs. Vernon said, she learned that the date would either conflict or closely follow Sandspur, depending on whether Brubeck came on Saturday or Monday, and contacted committee chairman Owen Sellers to that effect.

Sellers Agrees

Sellers, she said, gave his approval to begin negotiations in spite of the conflict, since it was a "student member" Gaster who moved to bring Brubeck here. According to Mrs. Vernon, Gaster came in to her office shortly thereafter, and was informed of the conflict and of the IFC engagement the following weekend, agreed to let the matter drop.

Brubeck, she commented, would probably cost 75 cents a person, in contrast to the 50 cent fee for Debroberts concert. Both fees, she pointed out, are "enormous" fees, low and sufficient to pay the cost of maintaining an orchestra or combo when on the road.

She added that the prices charged by Dorsey and Brubeck—$1,000 and $1,500 respectively, are not typical of the average Artist Series program expense. She pointed out that Yma Sumac and Company, for a back bones are going at the fastest rate in five years" are charging $4,700 for their stand here in a low rate."

Fraternities and sororities, judging from the discussion in Wednesday's Senate meeting, are ready to cancel their meetings if Brubeck is contracted for Monday.

Members of the Artist Series Committee, in addition to chairman Sellers and Mrs. Vernon, are Dean R. R. Oglesby, Rod Shaw, Dr. Clarence Edney, Dr. Sarah Blanding, Dr. Robert Strozier, Dr. Robert Miller, Dr. Janet Smith, Mrs. Dorothy Flynn, Bill Flynn, Student members are Tavel and Gaster.

Seniors Meet On Wednesday, Select Annual Class Gift

Members of the Senior class meet Wednesday, March 4 at 7 p. m. in Longmire Auditorium to choose the class gift.

Graduation announcements are on display at the Bookstore.

Graduation Secretary Carolyn Johnson added, and may be ordered at any time. Prices are: leather, 60 cents; cardboard, 30 cents, and Dutch fold, 10 cents each.

Senators Receive Additional 'Plans' For Reorganization

Cabinet Commends Affiliation To Committee Studying N.S.A.

The Student Body President's Cabinet has recommended affiliation with the United States National Student Association by a Senate committee studying the issue.

In a letter to the chairman of the committee, President Pete Nuthoff said that the cabinet recommends membership for Florida State University in NSA, on the conditions that:

FSU could withdraw from NSA at any time;

FSU would retain its membership, and seek an active role in the Southern Universities Student Government Association (SUSGA);

FSU Could Influence

"One chief reason for the Cabinet's recommendation is that by participating in the debate and decision-making process of NSA," Nuthoff said, "FSU's representation could influence other members to a more conservative stand on such topics Greek selectivity, educational integration, etc.

"At the present time the Cabinet feels that there are far too few spokesmen for an enlightened southern viewpoint in the NSA. FSU might help to provide that, while at the same time enjoying the financial and social benefits extended members' schools.

He asked that the Senate not consider his letter "an attempt to improperly influence the decision of your committee or the entire Senate" in regard to affiliation with USNSA.

States Position

"Mr. Ferlita," he stated, "always has been that the Executive Department should be cautious about any possible intrusion into legislative matters."

The members of the Senate committee were appointed after the legislators met Wednesday, at which time vice-president Coyle Moore called for volunteers.

Jimmy Joanos heads the committee, which is composed of Lia Conry, Peter Dunn, Joan Mulford and Carolyn Close

A Native Floridian Who Made 'Good' Is Coffee Hour Speaker

A native Florida novelist, Leon Idell Griffith, will speak at this week's English Coffee Hour, at 4 p.m. in the Westminister House.

Griffith will discuss some of the contemporary problems of this section as he dealt with them in his recently published novel, "A Long Time Morning."

Griffith's forebearers arrived near Pensacola in 1840, and he attended schools in Milton, Florida.

Joined F. B. I.

He graduated from the University of Florida where he was a member of Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary. Thena Chi, social fraternity, and the writing class of Andrew Lytle, to whom he dedicated his book. Lytle appeared here recently as a Coffee Hour guest, also.

Following graduation Griffith worked on newspapers in Pensacola and Jacksonville and then joined the U. of F. staff for four years. He resigned his post as promotion manager there to write a novel.

Geta Cled By Critic

James Kelly, critic for the Saturday Review, has written of Griffith's work: "It is an absorbing report of a Florida Gulf community, with many south characters and smouldering conflicts. A slow, sullen landscape of a small town

(Continued on Page 4)

2 Scholarships Open To Study In Scandinavia

Florida State University students and graduates are eligible for a nine months study course in Scandinavian countries.

They may study at residential folk schools and folk schools at a fee of $800.

Two $400 scholarships are available.

Students under the program carry out research in their particular fields of interest, including adult education, physical education, teaching, labor relations, agriculture, the cooperatives, government, music, arts and crafts and the social sciences.

Additional information is available at "The Americas-Scandinavian Council for Adult Education," 127 East 73 Street, New York 21, New York."

Committee Will 'Edit' Proposals

The representation question was put off for another week by the Student Senate Wednesday, at the suggestion that various conflicting plans before the group should be revised.

Senators Hank McCann and Polly Arnesen added their own proposal to the two existing amendments. Theirs would provide for assignment of senators to attend dormitory house meetings. Interfraternity Council, Pan Hellenic and Day Student meetings, "that the Student Senator be aware of their opinions regarding Student Government."

The other plans before the group are

That of Vice-president Coyle Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn, which would provide for certain dormitory-wide representation, figuring electional figures for each dormitory, Greek or day student representation as such.

Greek Plan

That of Senators Ken Oslin, Jean Halford and Jimmy Joanos, which would divide the Greeks and Day students to the representation, and would elect dormitory senators in the Fall.

Senator Nancy Graham moved to table the Oslin amendment —technically the one under consideration—for a week to permit the sororities to report their views to Penfiel.

Nancy Vice-president Gordon Gaster offered a substitute amendment to refer the amendments to the committee for one week.

He said he favored the Moore plan with certain changes. The representatives at large from the fraternities, two from the sororities, and four from the day students and independents provision could be made for additional senators at the campus press.

"We should consider the graduate student vote," he added, commenting that they should be represented in Senate.

Senator Graham withdrew her motion, Gaster's was discussed.

Senator Halford offered a substitute motion to send the amendment to a study committee.

Vice president Coyle Moore, reading the gavel to the presidency pro tem, opposed the move, saying "We've been acting on it several months as it is." He said passage of the motion would result in a "tremendous waste of effort."

"Senate's not doing a good

(Continued on Page 4)

Play It Cool—Manley Whitcomb is shown above directing a rehearsal of the University Band in preparation for a concert to be held in Westcott Auditorium, Wednesday evening.

Symphonic Concert Will Feature An Original Carter Composition

By TANN HAMMOND

For the second time within one week, Florida State University students will be able to hear the original musical composition, written and played on campus.

Last night and tonight, it is Carlisle Floyd's music drama, "Susannah." Wednesday March 2 it will be "FSU Phalnodi" by Charles Carter, graduate student in the school of music.

FSU Rhapsody" will be a feature number on the Symphonic Band Concert directed by Manley Whitcomb, beginning at 8:15 p.m. Jr., as guest conductor. The concert is set for Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. Charles Carter's "Rhapsody" is an interweaving of all the music that is part of FSU: the chimes of Westcott, the Alma Mater, and the football fight songs.

Carter's talent has been displayed previously in this arrangement for the Marching Chiefs.

Choral Lines Sings

Assisted by the Choral Union under the direction of Herman Gunter, the Symphonic Band will present "Symphony Finehre" by the Frenchman, Berlioz. This is a musical composition of the times of the "July Revolution." in France, in Richard Wagner's words "noble and grave from the first note to the last."

Strauss will be represented at the Wednesday concert with the playing of his "Serenade in E Flat Major, Opus 7." It was written when the composer was not yet nineteen years of age and reflects a mixture of the classical and romantic forms.

The "Finlandia Ballet" comes from the pen of Ralph Hermann. Broadcast composer, composer and arranger. A unusual series, it includes a variety of lilts from time and robbers plot with much gusto.

Tickets can be packed up at the Wescott Auditorium Ticket Booth.

A Show Of Progress

The Student Body President's Cabinet is to be complimented for its enlightened stand regarding membership in the United States National Student Association.

The Cabinet has recommended membership with two reservations: that FSU could withdraw at any time, and that we would retain our membership, as well as seek an active role in the Southern Universities Student Government Association.

The Cabinet has expressed the opinion that FSU should benefit from NSA's many services regardless of whether the majority of NSA members are more liberal than FSU on such matters as Greek selectivity and integration.

They agree also that FSU might profit by making its influence felt on northern members of NSA.

We hope this will silence those, who, because they do not like NSA's policies, implore us to remain aloof from the whola system instead of contributing our voice to the democratic process.

A Pint Of Blood Or How Not To Volunteer

If it hadn't been for the 17 donors from Kappa Sigma fraternity, and one other unnamed but not unheralded student, the 1955 FSU Blood Drive would have so far fallen flat.

For as of yesterday 18 students out of the reported 5164 here have donated towarda the goal of 120 pints of blood.

We understand that certain fraternities, sororities and dormitories are scheduled to volunteer blood during certain weeks of the drive, which began Feb. 11 and ends March 14. Some of these groups aeem to hava missed the boat.

In addition, certain of these groups are supposed to work together and solicit donations from the student body. They are batting near zero. The independenta, and there are many, who live off campus, are no exceptions in this drive, nor from helping to solocit volunteers.

To offer a way of obtaining the goal of 120 pints, which is less than two per cent of the student body enrollment, we suggest a form of competition between each of the men's dormitories, each of the women's dormitories and so on. Or even between the various floors in the dorms.

This was attempted some time back, with a degree of success, at least more so than is now showing. The prize money could be taken out of tha dorm fund, and used towards some improvement feature.

In the meantime, the students who are not helping towards the blood drive goal should think twica about giving, since no one ever suffers until he needs blood.

Anyone For Another War?

Herblock's cartoon today emphasizes, somewhat dismally, the the recent facts released by the Atomic Energy Commission on the Hydrogen bomb.

The AEC pointed out that:

The radioactive fallout from a single H-bomb would poison the air, land and water in an area 7,000 miles square, and

All life would be "seriously threatened" in an area 140 miles long and 28 miles wida lying downwind from the blast, and

Between 140 and 188 miles downwind, half the people might die, not to mention 5 to 10 per cent af those op to 228 miles away.

The AEC is assuming the worst with these facts; after all, we guess a few individuals might survive. We hope so. Which brings us around to the near disgust we experience when we hear someone say we are still "in front" in the atoms race. More thought should be given to just what kind of a "race" it is.

We hope not too many people are being deluded by those individuals in government who believe that an atomic stockpile is a nice stopgap measure for another war. If there is another war, how much of a "victory" have we won if an H-bomb is dropped?

There is still no substitute for an adequate foreign policy wherein some peaceful means can be derived for an international atomic stockpile. When the UN armament talks get underway in London next week, we hope they will prove fruitful. So far, things look pretty barren.

The Desperate Days

Without their knowledge the entire cast of the new play, "The Desperate Hours," was thoroughly screened for any trace of subversive affiliations. Because Robert Montgomery is So Close to the President. Bob directed the new breath-taking thriller.—From paga 10 of tha Sunday Mirror.

—Tha New York Post

Shape Of Things To Go

Calling The Card

Juvenile Deliquency

By WILLIE SMITH

Setting: Having just returned from hearing an Intelligent Faith Week message on some of the aspects of police brutality in New York City, we find ourselves faced with a problem that isn't as bad as in the big city, but one that does need a definite straightening out or maybe even a good cleaning up.

Scene: In front of Kahler's across the street from the Education Building, last Monday about 10 p.m.

Characters: A group of boys standing around debating whether they should go in and get a cup of coffee or go down to a sorority house. Emerging on the scene, a patrol car with two of Tallahassee's finest.

Introduction: Two "choice" words are used by one of the members of the "gang" but are not directed at the "boys in blue." These words are "hell" and "asinine" and seemed to set off a chain of reaction that is later interpreted by the police as a riot. The patrolmen, hearing this profanity????, stop their patrol car and advance on the "local mob" asking them if they are the culprits that have uttered such profanity. Denying the accusations, the policemen decide to "shake the scene," when from one of the group come these supposedly disastrous words, "Everybody sure is teed off."

The Plot Thickens: The brave, handsome officer immediately swings into action, and grabbing the individual who made the statement, hauls him off to the police car placing him under arrest. By then, quite a crowd has gathered and finding the incident rather disagreeable (or was it funny?) make with a few sound effects like the theme of Dragnet and even applaud our happy hero who has caught the sleuth??

More Action: This seems to incite the wrath of this one officer and he tells the crowd to disperse. Guess what? the crowd doesn't. Meanwhile, the young man who is under arrest, olevs like the shadow and makes with the disappearing act. The policemen decide to blow the scene. The crowd applauds this move. By now our friendly, loving, police officer is so disturbed at such mob hatred that he decides to call out the rest of the available men of the city's law forces.

And Even More Action: More patrol cars pull up. Uniformed men are seen now all over the place. At this point, the pace really livens up and many sub plots take the place momentarily of the main story.

Sub-Plot One: Two arrests are immediately made for no apparent reason except these boys are just standing there with the rest of the spectators. These boys are taken over to one of the police cars, now converted into a Black Maria or Paddy Wagon, take your choice. Later, these boys are released without any charges preferred against them.

Sub-Plot Two: One officer takes off after a young man, for what reason is still a mystery. This young man, however, is not willing to go to jail, and takes the form of Mercury and runs into the night with our hero in hot pursuit. Consult the officer to find "Elfin" of this particular incident.

Sub-Plot Three: A statement is made from an inside character (through an open window in Kahler's) to an officer on the outside. The officer goes over to the window, this spectator sticks his tongue out at him and the chase is on. The officer losea this individual behind Kahler's, much to his embarrassment.

Back to Main Plot: By now the policemen seem to be a rather hopeless bunch and decide the best place for them is away from this school, that in their eyes is a breeder of juvenile delinquency.

Almost the End: The crowd disperses. Later on, police headquarters is called for a general statement. The police version is surprisingly different.

"All we know is that it was a general mess up. Some officers were over there putting tickets on cars parked in no parking areas and two or three hundred college kids came out of Kahler's and the Mecca there, and started 'rasslin' and interfering with the officers. Some kids started talking rough. We tried to put a few in the car and the whole bunch went crazy. No arrests were made out we got plenty of pictures," said the officer.

Forty Minutes Later: Another call is made 40 minutes later and to the question, "were there any guns pulled?" The answer was, "I don't think there were any guns pulled. All they tried to do — they attempted to incite a riot like numerous other times."

WESLEY GROUP BANS SEGREGATION

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (ACP)—The Wesley Foundation, student Methodist organization here, has declared racial segregation a denial of "true Christian brotherhood" and has extended an invitation to any student of any race to "join in their fellowship" at the University of North Carolina, the Daily Tar Heel reports.

A resolution, voted favorably by a 43-3 secret ballot, declared in part: "While realizing the practical difficulties of applying the decision of the Supreme Court concerning segregation of whites and Negroes in public schools, we believe the decision to be a true interpretation of the Christian faith and our American democracy; and we of the Wesley Foundation hereby make it known that we will continue to welcome into our fellowship any student regardless of his race."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"You know how fast he jumps into bed—well, last night we 'short-sheeted' him."

Letters To The Flambeau

Principle of Dissent

To the Editor:

I was glad that The Florida Flambeau printed excerpts from Judge Learned Hand's "newest words on the spirit of Liberty." They revealed a contradiction in the speech that I did not notice before.

Judge Hand commends in the same breath the principle of dissent and "loyalty" to that same principle. What, one may ask, would his attitude be to dissent from the principle of dissent?

Sincerely,
VAN G. PETERSON

Coexistence

To the Editor:

I just finished reading "Gabbing with Gutting" in Feb. 22 issue. Or was it "Raving with Gutting" or maybe even "Gabbing with Gutter."

Evidently Mr. Gutter-er-Gutting has just seen the movie "Chicago Deadline" and has a Humphrey Bogart complex. Could be he has seen too many TV shows about young reporters and he too has turned private eye, analyst and comedian all in one. Maybe he is trying to "out-reform" some other journalism student.

Mr. Gutting has made an unfair and childish attack on Coach Woodruff. First, let me point out that I am a Seminole fan. I imagine I was a Seminole fan when Mr. Gutting was copy boy for the Crawfordville High News or The Two Egg High Times. I am also a Gator fan—also a Miami U fan.

In my opinion Mr. Woodruff is a very capable coach. I am glad Florida U. has him. I am sure Mr. Woodruff knows what he is doing. I am sure Mr. Woodruff has the best interests of FSU and U. of F. in his thinking. I am also sure that Mr. Gutting doesn't know what he's doing. Maybe he published his junky Gabbings because he liked his well-chosen adjectives, or maybe the boys at the "Bumma Cig" frat house liked it.

We want relations with U. of F.—we say. Yet, trash, like Gutting Ravings, can set back the peaceful co-existence 50 years.

Next fall at Campbell Stadium if the public address system gives some scores of other games and Florida is losing to some other school and the score goes something like—Ga. Tech 14, Fla. 6—when you stand to cheer, Mr. Gutting, be careful, a gust of your own hot air may float you away.

Sincerely
JAMES S. BAILEY.

No Disillusionment

To the Editor:

Mr Kennedy wrote a very interesting letter in the last issue of the Flambeau. I would like to answer a few details.

1. He said that I was one of two Flambeau columnists who "would like nothing better than to start a Greek-Independent war."

I quote from the column that prompted him to say this: "While we anticipate the change with no small amount of regret . . . nothing can result but an unsatisfactory squabble, with progressive, responsible student government being forced to take a back seat."

2. Kennedy asserted that I was "completely ignorant of the facts," and must have received my information from a "ouija board or other mystical sources."

Actually, the Attorney General is the only one qualified to make such a statement. I got my information from him.

3. Kennedy notes that the term "anti-Sigma Chi" campaign" is somewhat ambiguous.

Ambiguity is a good questionable term, but it does not exert enough force to deny the statement. I never said he was "anti-Sigma Chi," if that's where the ambiguity arises.

4. He cites as proof of the falsity of my allegations his support of Nimkoff and Joanos in 1953-54.

My column stated that he began his "party unifying, anti-Sigma Chi campaign in the summer." It was then that he opposed and defeated his party chairman Joanos.

5. Kennedy went to a great deal of trouble to explain he controlled no vote except his own—and to describe the procedure by which the Day Student Delegation "democratically" voted at the convention.

Mr Kennedy's motives are not clear at this point. The Day students were not mentioned in my column, nor was there any mention made that he controlled any votes. Me thinketh the gentlemen protesth too much.

6. Kennedy cited my relation with the State Party and alluded that I "would consider any internal strife between Greeks and Independents beneficial to that party "during spring elections."

It is not reasonable that any "strife" would benefit any party, much less during the spring elections, which are so close at hand.

7. He continues: "she takes an overly active interest in the affairs of the Student Party."

Kennedy, with his immense knowledge of law and government, knows full well that it's the newspaperman's job to report to the people what the organization in control of their government is doing.

8. Kennedy "hates" to disillusion me by pointing out that Greek-Independent relations are harmonious.

I am not disillusioned. Again I quote. "It is true that this campus has been . . . free from such a condition."

It would have been much simpler if some people had read the article carefully in the first place. Most readers saw, (and before some others realized its political potentialities) that it gave an example of what could be a factor in straining the relations that are now harmonious, refuting those that loudly contend that the independents are "ripe for battle" because of a sudden urgent feeling of aspirations and political awareness.

ORCHID ALONSO

Columnist Replies

To the Editor:

Pre-law major Dave Kennedy, in his letter last issue, did an excellent job of misrepresenting my stand on discriminatory clauses in fraternity and sorority charters.

Furthermore, I am not trying to start a Greek-Independent war on this campus. I would, however, like to see the independents participating as much in student government as the Greeks, not to establish a rivalry, but to explode the precedent that one must be Greek to achieve success.

Mr Kennedy also avoided my discussion of religious dis-

(Continued on page 3)

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst News Editors: Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors: Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff: Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor: David Dreis
Photographer: Laird Anderson, Al Rimbers

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Distribution: Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity
Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821
211-213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors: Pat Marston
Art Consultant: Franklin Adams
Cartoonist: Con Horn
Junior Staff: George Goldstein, Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff: Frank Tillett, Nina Ryla,
Business Staff: Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dressler
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

The Dissenter

Parking Problem Seems Insolvent

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Traffic on this campus might not be as bad as it is at the University of Florida, where there are 4,000 cars for 7,000 people, but our problem is real and pressing nonetheless.

What is worst of all is that no one can agree on a way to solve it, except for the most obvious recourse of banning cars from the campus altogether. This need not be considered, however. It would solve the parking problem, but a university has to have students.

Student Senate recently spent two meetings and incalculable hot air debating whether Jacksonville Boulevard should be one-way. (For the benefit of those who can't tell street names without signposts, Jacksonville Boulevard runs from the library past Bryan, Reynolds, Jennie Murphree, Longmire and the Dem School to West Call Street. Or so they say.)

Finally, the Senate voted to resolve that the thoroughfare in question, notorious for its record of at least one bus-car accident a week, be made one-way running south—toward the library. The resolution passed in spite of the frenzied opposition of most of the men senators, and became the first Senate question ever to be sided on the basis of sex. Not a single woman senator opposed it.

It doesn't seem likely that, if business manager Rod Shaw accepts the suggestion and makes the street one-way, motorists will tear down it as if it were West College Avenue. And unless there are an unusual number of sluggards, motorists shouldn't be tempted to drive in parallel lines.

Maybe "Death Valley" will be widened. That's the best suggestion.

It is by no means the only bottleneck on campus, however. Its intersection with West Call is safe to drive only at night, when one can see the headlight beams of any cars that happen to be coming over the hill.

Westcott Gate is another bad spot. Granted that it is beautiful, traditional, and enshrined on every printed piece of publicity the university owns, it is still a traffic hazard. Cars both enter and leave by it: and it's just wide enough for one car, if the driver can avoid hitting the yellow post on the inside right as he goes out. Furthermore, the posts cut off visibility on both sides going out, just as the driver needs it most. And what it does to traffic on West College and Copeland is brutal.

The gate by the Sweet Shop is another potential meeting place of cars. Why isn't that street leading out stop-signed?

The Student Center — yai, yai! When turning into the parking lots a driver has to go through a deep depression that puts even the newest of springs to the supreme test. What it does to my '38 Buick can't be printed.

Parking is still the major problem, and the answer to that is NOT making West Hall residents leave their cars on West. It's too far to walk. The buses are too crowded, don't run frequently enough, and not at all after five weekdays or Saturday afternoons or Sundays.

More parking places! The waste space behind the freshmen women's dorms! Landis Green, if necessary! The broad, rolling field beside Jennie Murphree! The lot bounded by the Dem School, Home Demonstration building, West Call and Copeland . . .

Lately It Seems

Are Cries Of 'War' Premeditated?

By ORCHID ALONSO

I once heard of a certain private utility company which issued this directive to their agents: "If there is any talk of competition from the Federal Government — yell 'Communism'!"

This private company was practicing what is commonly called "smart politics." Those who argue that unfair tactics were used, are confronted with the disconcerting truth that the times were ripe for such action and the public mind conditioned. The desired response, in any case, was correctly anticipated.

This brings to mind a certain situation existing on campus.

There is at present a great deal of muttering over a "Greek-Independent" war. No one seems to want a war, but talk is centering on organizing Independents on a par with the Greeks.

And what's more, this organization talk is met with the charge — "you want to start a fight or something?"

Now most people should be able to recognize that there is a vast difference between organizing for the sake of equalization and a war. But are there some who would not like to see the Independents organize?

It would almost seem so. All talk of organization is condemned as "war mongering" and in the meantime groundwork is being laid that can condition the minds of the students in such a way that will immediately produce an unsatisfactory response at any attempt, or even mention of organization.

As in the case of the private utility company, a well defined plan of resistance could ensure the opponents of organization that yelling "war" will squelch all such efforts.

It is extremely disconcerting to meet this type of resistance that is so appealing to the human mind. And it is equally disconcerting for any potential leader, confronted with the impossible task of trying to produce favorable reaction, to be damned and degraded.

The time is not now. It will be some time yet before the Independents could organize and form a liason with the Greeks on an equal basis. However, at the rate affairs are advancing, it will be an almost impossible job to do it peacefully. Who are the "war mongers" I ask you?

Some recent happenings well illustrate the situation. The moment anyone mentions Greek-Independent relations and or the possibilities of Independent organization in the future, he is immediately and publicly denounced. A sad picture.

And if any undue uproar has been aroused lately over the Greek-Independent situation it is not the fault of those whom first dared utter the two groups in the same breath, but those, who have telescoped the whole incident out of proportion, giving undue publicity where none was warranted.

Etcetera Etchings

Movies, Politics Go Hand In Hand

By DAVID DREIS

(This is the fifth article in a series depicting the development of motion pictures, its stars and ideals.)

PART FIVE:
MOVIES AND POLITICS

The motion picture as a persuasion source was quite evidenced during the depression when movies went on a "be glad you're in America" kick and tried to unite the people in these hard times. The best films during those years laughed at the rich and ridiculed the Communists who talked about a "better world."

There was no doubt that movies had a great deal of power and when movie stars went out for politicos it meant more votes. Presidential candidates even got public support from movie stars and individuals became political powers in California.

Ex-dancer George Murphy had been with M-G-M for quite a while although he was just the type of performer who didn't do anything outstanding like getting a divorce or fighting the critics. George was the steady sort and a fine man to push into politics. Well, it wasn't long before Murphy was winning numerous publicity awards and was asked to be a member of the luxurious Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences—the Academy Awards came from there. Today he's president and quite a politico in his town of Hollywood. He's also a Republican and Earl Warren utilized his efforts as did Wendell Wilkie.

Now we're not saying the Academy Awards are more political than theatrical, but here's the way the Oscars are believed to be voted upon: (1) All the major companies have a right to nominate one picture, one male actor, one female actor, etc. If they cannot possibly see a winner in their personal company's films they may yield their vote to back a studio who has two possible contenders. (This is the reason Columbia has both "The Caine Mutiny" and "On the Waterfront" up for awards as well as the stars and supports of these pics.) (2) Then, when the list is drawn up the balloting takes place for those in the film industry with the top director and the smallest prop man equally having one vote each. HERE'S THE CATCH: A vote is usually cast for the voter's home studio, therefore, Columbia by pushing two big films may split its over-all vote and Paramount's employees may all vote for "The Country Girl" thereby giving that a clean sweep. Also the race may have a dark horse coming through-possibly Dan O'Herlihy's acting in "Robinson Crusoe" or James Mason's performance in "A Star Is Born." If O'Herlihy wins it it will be something short of a miracle because his company is small—and because publicity is so important in the race. My choice is Bing Crosby because of Paramount's many voters. Some people will say Crosby doesn't deserve it, but that's going too far. All it means is that Movies and Politics are going hand in hand and one helps the other.

NEXT ISSUE: PART SIX CONCLUSION & BEGINNING

SURFACE NOISE: Plans are in the talking stage for having a major ork play for the Junior-Senior prom . . . it's an innovation . . . Bob Hope giving up television in spite of success before cameras . . . Harry James has signed a 22-year-old UCLA student to his band as singer . . . Doris Day playing herself in autobiography . . . Stewart Granger may play Marty Melcher her husband . . . Stewart Granger? . . . "Eddie Duchin" story being readied by Columbia . . . Since when is "Twist of Fate" considered 'Art?'

The Free Lance

A Modest And Atomic Proposal

By BRUCE GALPHIN

I have a modest proposal for the conduct of atomic warfare.

It goes without saying that as weapons have changed, so have the methods of combat.

When a warrior was only worried about spears and arrows, he had but to dodge single missives. The coming of cannons, machine guns and blockbusters made it advisable to change tactics. Men began to hide in trenches and foxholes.

For a few years it seemed that we could escape even nuclear annihilation. If you were in the immediate area of an early type A-bomb, of course, your chances weren't so good. But the area of survival was measured in terms of a few miles.

However, the efficiency of H-bombs puts quite a different light on things. If a bomb hits Five Points in Atlanta, it won't do me much good to cover the back of my neck in Druid Hills.

In fact, as a map in the Constitution showed the other day, a well-placed H-blast 140 miles away could do me in.

Now I don't want to cause a panic by describing the horrors of radiation death. Death from the immediate blast, it is true, is quick and rather painless. But death in outlying areas is not so quick and not so pleasant.

Now it would seem to me that people would prefer to choose their own means of dying.

So at last I get around to my modest proposal. It is this:

That the aggressor inform its victim a reasonable time in advance of an atomic attack.

(Continued on Page 4)

Stag Dinners At The White House

Do you think, dear Ike, for a change
You could invite somebody strange?
Somebody who's not head of a corporation
Or chairman of any board in the nation?
Somebody, say, who's written an ode,
Or has no fixed abode?
Don't you think maybe you ought to see
Somebody outside the business community?
A failure, say, or a juggler or even a mystic,
Or someone wholly humane but atheistic?
Maybe you think, dear President,
That the people you ask to your dinners represent
A cross section of our opinion, but truly, Ike,
They are only the people who like
The way things are: and most of them
Belong to the N.A.M.
They won't be able to tell you what will come
Any better than poet or bum,
Who, having nothing to lose
Can at least amuse.

—See in THE REPORTER

Seminoles Rally To Win, 87-84

By ALAN WHITEMARSH

Coming from thirteen points behind in the last five minutes of play, Florida State's determined Seminoles defeated powerful Loyola of New Orleans, 87-84, before a screaming overflow crowd in the Florida High gymnasium last Wednesday night.

In doing so, the Seminoles broke a four-year jinx the New Orleans Wolfpack had held over them, won their fourteenth straight game in Tallahassee and stretched their impressive seasonal record to 18-3. The Seminoles have one more game tonight in Miami, but it's considered by many just a warmup for Monday's district playoffs for the NAIA.

Behind 72-58 at one time in the final ten minutes, the Seminoles put on a superhuman burst of steam, and outscored their opponents, 28-12, to come up with a brilliant victory in a spine-tingling finish. Deadly shooting by co-high scorer Jimmy Oler, some clutch foul-shooting by his veteran partner liam Werkoe, and superb rebounding by Bobby Williams and Rick Benson—you ran out of adjectives to describe the finish the Seminoles put on.

The battling FSU cagers cut the margin to 76-74 with 4:53 remaining, then a see-saw battle ensued before Wernke canned a bucket and a free throw that gave the winners an 85-82 lead they never relinquished from there on in. Previous to Wernkes' two-pointer, Oler had pumped three straight goals in the bring the Seminoles from 79-76 behind to an 82-81 margin.

However, the losers can point with pride to Eddie Gavlin, one of the finest pivot men the Seminoles have faced this year. Gavlin already mentioned as a top candidate for All-America, had the crowd ooing and ahing with his trickery at the pivot post, and accumulated 24 points before fouling out with about 7 minutes left in the contest.

The visitors grabbed an early lead and with 10:22 left in the first half had pulled into a 22-14 margin. The Seminoles caught fire in the second ten minutes, though, and outgunned the Wolfpack 28-16 to command the lead, 42-38 at intermission time.

At the start of the second half, 6-5 Gavlin and 6-8 Dick Bavarick began to find the range in a hurry, and in the space of eight minutes Loyola came out from behind to take a 60-51 lead. They stretched it to thirteen points on two or three occasions, but the Seminoles would not be denied and came fighting back to cap their first victory over Loyola in the team's rivalry.

Oler dropped 10 free throws en route to scoring 24 points for a share of the evening's high; Wernke also got 24. Benson added 19 points to the winners' cause. Besides Galvin's 24, Bavarick added 18 and Bobby O'Donnell 12 for the losers.

Just Conversation

Jimmy Oler stands a great chance of becoming the highest scorer in Florida intercollegiate history. With three games remaining, including two possible tournament contests, Oler has registered 465 points and should become the first player ever to reach 500 points in Florida. Jimmy sets a school record every time he sinks one from the free throw line, because his total of 171 to date makes him the best foul shooter in FSU history.

Wernke is second to Jim in team scoring, but he is well back with 413. His career total of 1310, however, is a school record. Behind Hom, Benson has now scored 337 and Artmeier 266.

The Seminoles are still high-ranking favorites, along with Georgia Teachers, to represent the Georgia-Florida district in the NAIA tourney in Kansas City beginning March 7. They will play Stetson Monday night here in Tallahassee on the first leg of their bid for a district championship.

FLORIDA STATE	fg	ft	tp	LOYOLA	fg	ft	tp
Artmeier,f	2	2	6	Rouman,f	5	3	13
Benson,f	8	7	19	Baer,f	1	8	3
Williams,c	3	2	8	Bavrck,f-c	8	2	18
Wold,c	1	4	8	Gavlin,c	11	2	24
Oler,f	7	10	24	Lorio,f	1	1	2
Wernke,g	8	2	24	Conrad,g	8	0	8
				O'Donnell,g	5	2	12
				Reynr,g	2	0	4
Totals	27	33	87	Totals	37	10	84

Halftime score: Florida State 42, Loyola 38.

Free throws missed: Loyola—Rouman 2, Bavarick, Gavlin, Conrad. FSU—Artmeier, Benson, Williams, Oler 2, Wernke 8.

Up And Over—Bill Koslow, one of the members of FSU Gym squad, will be on hand tomorrow night when the gymnasts face the Swedish stars.

FSU Gymnasts, Swedish Stars Clash Set For Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night at 8 the Svenska Landslaget i Gymnastik will invade Florida, but don't be alarmed. It's only a group of young men and women from Sweden, mostly blond, all slim and limber, and all dedicated to gymnastics.

The Swedes, on a 33-stop tour of the United States, will be guests of Florida State University's nationally-known Gymkana team tomorrow night in the Women's Gym. It's the second Tallahassee appearance for the Swedish men in a year, but the glamour of women has been added this time.

FSU defeated the visitors last winter, but no official team score will be kept Saturday.

If you happen to be among those present, you'll see the Swedish girls—1950 world champions and 1952 Olympic drill team titlists—in sky blue or gleaming white gym suits. The men will be in white shirts and pants. All will wear Sweden's blue and yellow emblem.

You'll see a two-hour program of calisthenics, and performances on the bars, and in tumbling. The Swedish men will do vaults over a high table, a six-foot padded stand, and the women over a Swedish box, a four-foot counterpart of white pine.

All of the Swedes, both men and women, are excellent gymnasts, the cream of 125,000 who take an active part in the sport in Sweden. They come from many working fields, too.

Three of the Swedish girls are teachers in primary schools, one a dental technician. Five are office workers. The men include a physical education director, a painter, an electrician, and a printer. The rest are students.

A slim but well-muscled Cuban may turn out to be the individual star of the international gym meet.

He's Rafael Lecuona, State's 5-5, 128-pound sophomore sensation from Havana, Cuba, and two-time captain of his country's Olympic team. He'll probably retain the honor again in 1956.

Lecuona was a big factor in FSU's upset win over the touring Swedes here last year. In winning the important side horse event, Rafael compiled 29 of a possible 30 points in chalking up one of the highest scores ever recorded for the event.

This time, no team championship will be at stake and with FSU stars Don Holder, Jack Miles, Jamile Ashmore, and Dick Ireland at Chicago for the Pan-American tryouts, Lecuona inherits the brunt of the Seminoles' hopes.

Joe Taylor, another veteran of last year's win, will also be on hand. Taylor tied teammate Holder for the still rings championship in the final event which proved to be the turning point of the meet.

Other FSU reliables set for duty Saturday night include newcomer Ronnie Amster, Jim Tanaka, Jim Padigan, Al Ruda, Pat Signorelli and Bob Murray.

Thinclads Go To First Meet At Chapel Hill

Will Participate In Saturday's Games

Eleven members of the Florida State University's 1955 Track and Field team and Coach Mike Long left yesterday for Chapel Hill, North Carolina, to take part tomorrow in the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games.

The thinclads making the trip include eight lettermen from last season, two freshmen, and Ken Segner, who was ineligible last season due to a transfer rule.

The lettermen are Joe Davis, Carlos Fraundorfer, Larry Hountha, Mike Smith, Lloyd Lassen, Tinney Brown, Charles Watson, and Warren Strickland. The two freshmen are Vernon Duce and Tasa Terwilliger.

Florida State's Entries in the meet will be: Shot Putt—Smith, Fraundorfer; High Jump—Brown, Lass; 60-Yard Dash—Davis Terwilliger; High Hurdles—Brown, 880-Yard Run — Segner, Broad Jump—Terwilliger, Mile Run—Duce; Low Hurdles—Davis, Watson; Pole Vault—Strickland Mile Relay — Terwilliger, Hountha Davis and Watson.

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

Tomorrow night a repetition of last year's international gym meet will be held at the Womans gym.

It will be then that the Florida State Gymkana team, minus three outstanding performers, will again compete with the Swedish National gym team, composed of Swedish gymnasts and Olympic stars.

Completing a 32-meet tour of the United States, the Swedish team will arrive here after performing at Gainesville.

On this trip, there will be no team championship at stake. As an added attraction, the Swedish Woman's team will put on an exhibition of synchronized calisthetics. The women's team is comprised of the 1952 Olympic champions who were world champions in 1950.

Lineups for the meet will probably be as follows:

FSU	SWEDEN
Long Horse
Amster	Nils Sjobera
Lecuona	Arne Carlason
Ruda	Lennart Malmlin
Calisthetics
Murray	Sjoberg
Lecuona	Carlsson
Ruda	Malmlin
Side Horse
Signorelli	Reio Nieminen
Amster	Rune Eriksson
Lecuona	Arne Lind
High Bar
Tanaka	Nieminen
Amster	Sjoberg
Lecuona	Carlsson
Parallel Bar
Signorelli	Lind
Amster	Malmlin
Lecuona	Lennart Lundaren
Still Rings
Tanaka	Sjoberg
Signorelli	Lind
Taylor	Malmlin

Dr. Price will be counting heavily on Cuban star Rafael Lecuona and newcomer Ronnie Amster to add strength to the team, while also keeping on hand Padigan, Guaic (no relationship to "Greasy Thumb" Jake) and Bill Koslow for possible last minute changes in the lineup.

The Swedish team is pretty well settled around stars Sjoberg, Malmlin and Carlsson, who all have enviable records as gymnasts.

It's still too early to tell, but with Holder, Miles and Ashmore in Chicago for the Pan American tryouts, Dr. Price is still hoping to tie the Swedish team.

Also looked to for major support on the still rings will be Joe Taylor, who won that event against the Swedes last year. Joe, whose wife gave birth to a baby girl Feb. 23 at 1:18 a.m., may be a little shaky from his ordeal, but it is expected that he will come through.

Congratulations to "Poppa" Joe from all the boys at the Sig Ep house.

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
102 S. Monroe St. Phone 2-1442

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER AND
ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. ST.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

Dick Dunkel's COLLEGE BASKETBALL POWER INDEX

EXPLANATION: The Power Index ratings are past performance averages. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team, against equally rated opposition.

(Ratings through Feb. 21)

Higher Raters			Lower Raters
Games of FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 25
AMONG TOP 150
B Wallace	62 1	vs	Westminster	*56 8
Brig Young	*81 0	vs	Colo A & M	57 3
Dartmouth	90 8	vs	Harvard	*52 2
Duke	*73 3	vs	No Carolina	64 8
Duquesne	78 1	vs	Cincinnati	*73 9
Manhattan	70 8	vs	Brooklyn	*42 1
Missouri	73 8	vs	Oklahoma	*81 7
x Oregon St	*65 7	vs	Oregon	62 1
San Jose St	62 1	vs	St Mary's Cal.	*53 2
x Seattle U.	*85 5	vs	Gonzaga	56 8
x Stanford	*68 2	vs	California	62 6
x U C L A	79 6	vs	So Calif	71 7
Utah	*73 8	vs	Wyoming	64 2
Virginia	*65 9	vs	Va Tech	42 2
Wake Forest	60 0	vs	So Carolina	*52 4
x Washington	64 2	vs	Idaho	*23 8
W Texas St	50 6	vs	Hardin-Sim's	*46 9
OTHER EASTERN
Buffalo	*52 7	vs	W Ontario	25 8
Coast G'rd	*23 8	vs	Worc Poly	24 8
Edinboro St	31 1	vs	Grove City	*30 7
Hunter	33 5	vs	NYMaritime	*25 2
NewkRutgers	27 0	vs	Pratt	*18 0
N Y AC	*54 5	vs	LeMoyne	54 1
Paterson St	20 9	vs	Bloomfield	*16 8
Plattsburgh	*29 5	vs	Oneonta St	29 8
Queens, NY	*37 5	vs	Montclair St.	28 5
R P I	*34 8	vs	Bkn Poly	21 5
St.Lawrence	*46 8	vs	Vermont	25 4
OTHER MIDWESTERN
Albion	31 3	vs	Olivet	*32 3
Hillsdale	*24 8	vs	Alma	32 4
Kent State	*21 3	vs	Akron	48 8
S west'n,Kan	*31 5	vs	Washburn	44 7
OTHER SOUTHERN
La Tech	*53 8	vs	S W La Inst.	44 0
Stetson	*45 7	vs	Fla South'n.	21 4
Wash & Lee	*56 8	vs	Davidson	21 8
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 26
AMONG TOP 150
Alabama	80 3	vs	Tennessee	*65 3
Arkansas	*61 8	vs	Texas A & M	48 8
Baylor	58 0	vs	Texas	*51 7
Beloit	*66 7	vs	Wayne U	52 8
Canisius	*72 1	vs	St Bona'ture	63 8
Colorado	73 3	vs	Kans State	*69 1
Dartmouth	60 9	vs	Brown	*48 1
DePaul	*88 2	vs	Notre Dame	60 2
Duquesne	78 1	vs	Dayton	*71 2
Fordham	67 4	vs	New York U	46 4
G Washgton	74 2	vs	N C State	*73 8
Ga Tech	60 5	vs	Georgia	50 7
G Adolphus	56 6	vs	St John sMin.	*50 6
Holy Cross	67 2	vs	Connecticut	*81 4
Illinois	*76 0	vs	Ohio State	66 3
Indiana	60 2	vs	Purdue	*60 0
Iowa	*78 1	vs	Michigan	76 3
Kentucky	*76 1	vs	Auburn	57 8
Lafayette	*68 2	vs	Gettysburg	50 2
LaSalle	78 3	vs	Temple	56 8
L S U	*64.7	vs	Miss State	48 2
Louisville	71 4	vs	Loyola Ill.	*81 4
Marquette	73 2	vs	Valparaiso	*55 2
Marshall	61 7	vs	W Reserve	*48 1
Memphis St	67 3	vs	Centenary	*50 2
Millikin	*81 8	vs	E Illinois	56 5
Mt St Mary	*80 1	vs	Geo'town DC	87 7
Navy	*62 1	vs	Army	55 5
Nebraska	*71 0	vs	Iowa State	*60 8
Niagara	*71 8	vs	J Carroll	56 3
Northwest'n	*71 4	vs	Wisconsin	40 3
Ohio U	58 5	vs	W Michigan	*56 8
Okla.A & M	*80 7	vs	Kansas	67 8
Okla City	64 5	vs	Bradley	*58 8
Penn	*64 1	vs	Columbia	81 2
Penn State	*82 6	vs	Pittsburgh	83 8
Princeton	56 8	vs	Cornell	*35 8
Richmond	67 0	vs	Wm & Mary	*50 2
StFrancisNY	62 5	vs	Siena	*54 1
StFrancisPa	*66 7	vs	W & J	47 2
StJohn's NY	62 6	vs	Hofstra	*54 1
StJosephPa	*50 6	vs	Muhlenberg	50 8
St Louis	73 8	vs	Tulsa	*60 4
Seton Hall	*64 0	vs	Iowa	53 7
S M U	64 6	vs	Rice	*56 1
Steubenville	63 3	vs	Youngstown	48 8
Syracuse	*63 5	vs	Colgate	58 7
Tulane	*62 8	vs	Mississippi	57 4
Utah	*73 8	vs	Colo A & M	57 3
Vanderbilt	*64 2	vs	Florida	56 5
Villanova	*67 8	vs	LeMoyne	54 5
Wake Forest	60 7	vs	Clemson	*40 7
W Illinois	*66 3	vs	Cent Mich	55 0
Westminster	*56 8	vs	Carnegie T	82 8
W Virginia	*80 1	vs	Rutgers	36 7
Wichita	67 7	vs	Detroit	*63 8
Williams	56 5	vs	Wesleyan	54 2
Wyoming	64 2	vs	Brig Young	*61 8
Xavier O	*63 6	vs	Miami, O	63 4
OTHER EASTERN
A I C	48 8	vs	N BritainSt.	*29 6
Amherst	*51 6	vs	M I T	34 5
Assumption	*41 7	vs	Hillyer	37 4
Bloomsb'gSt	44 8	vs	Lycoming	*30 2
Boston U	*[illegible]	vs	Springfield	48 4
Bowdoin	*34 7	vs	Maine	33 8
Brandeis	*48 5	vs	C C N Y	47 4
Bkn Poly	31 5	vs	Union NY	*32 8
Case	43 3	vs	Allegheny	*37 0
Clarion St	37 5	vs	Edinboro St.	*56 1
Coast Guard	35 8	vs	Trinity	*33 3
Colby	45 7	vs	Bates	*33 8
Cortland St.	*52 7	vs	Brockp't St.	32 0
Drew	*18 5	vs	New Paltz	12 8
E Stroudsb'g	43 0	vs	Chevney St	*39 5
Fairfield	47 5	vs	Bridgeport	*38 8
Fredonia St	*25 4	vs	Roch Tech	24 5
Gannon	48 2	vs	Calif St	*41 7
Hamilton	*56 0	vs	Rochester	36 7
Harvard	42 2	vs	Yale	*56 2
Hobart	*48 1	vs	Alfred	38 2
Indiana, Pa.	48 7	vs	Shippensb'g	*53 8
Juniata	*41 8	vs	Susquehanna	21 8
King's, Pa	56 0	vs	Mansfield St	*32 2
Leb'n Valley	56 4	vs	F & M	*38 5
Lehigh	50 2	vs	Bucknell	*40 6
Loyola, Md.	*55 1	vs	American U	42 2
Mass U	*40 9	vs	N Hampshire	33 1
Middlebury	*47 3	vs	Northeastern	37 8
Millersville	54 1	vs	Elizab'town	*47 1
Montclair St	39 5	vs	Trenton St	*12 5
Moravian	48 7	vs	Dickinson	*43 0
NYMaritime	*25 1	vs	Albany St.	18 8
P M C	44 2	vs	Delaware	*37 5
Quantico	72 7	vs	Hartwick	*33 5
Queens N Y	37 5	vs	Cooper Un'n	*33 7
R I State	*84 5	vs	Providence	42 3
Rider	38 1	vs	Newark CE	*24 4
St Anselm's	*45 8	vs	Tufts	44 6
St Michael	*64 1	vs	Norwich	42 0
St Peter's	*56 1	vs	Upsala	42 5
SampsonAFB	*53 5	vs	Ithaca	37 3
Scranton	47 8	vs	Albright	*45 2
Stevens T.	*36 0	vs	R P I	34 8
Stonehill	32 5	vs	Merrimack	*17 1
Vermont	35 4	vs	Clarkson	*29 8
Wagner	*57 2	vs	Adelphi	48 8
W ChesterSt	*48 4	vs	Kutztown St	26 5
Worc Poly	*34 8	vs	Clark	34 8
Yeshiva	*42 2	vs	NewkRutgers	27 8
OTHER MIDWESTERN
Adrian	*45 7	vs	Hope	37 3
Akron	*49 8	vs	Heidelberg	38 2
Anderson	48 0	vs	Taylor	*35 7
Ashland	34 8	vs	Wilmington	*27 3
Augustana	38 4	vs	Knox	*33 7
Capital	39 7	vs	O. Wesleyan	*38 8
Coe	48 0	vs	Carthage	*30 4
Concordia, Ind	31 3	vs	Concordia Sgr	*13 2
Denison	40 7	vs	Wittenberg	*56 1
Grinnell	*46 2	vs	Monmouth	45 1
Ill Wesl'n	50 4	vs	Elmhurst	*38 0
Kenyon	*30 2	vs	Muskingum	30 1
Lake Forest	*52 3	vs	DePauw	48 9
Marietta	55 6	vs	Hiram	*29 8
Mich Normal	87 8	vs	Ill Normal	*52 2
O Northern	*33 8	vs	Bluffton	20 3
PittsburgSt	*54 3	vs	Emporia St.	43 8
Shurtleff	46 5	vs	McKendree	*40 8
So Illinois	53 0	vs	No Illinois	*46 3
Wheaton	*53 6	vs	No Central	43 4
Wooster	50.8	vs	Oberlin	*30 7
OTHER SOUTHERN
Fla State	56 3	vs	Miami Fla	*60 1
NWLouisiana	56 8	vs	NELouisiana	*44 2
SELouisiana	46 7	vs	La College	*33 8
V M I	*37 8	vs	Davidson	21 8
Wash & Lee	58 8	vs	E. Tenn St	*46 1

Copyright 1955 by Dunkel Sports Research Service. * -Home Team z -Rating Unavailable x -Repeat Game Next Night

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

THE BULL SESSION

I wonder if they still make bull sessions the way they used to. Well do I remember the bull sessions of my own undergraduate days. How cogent they were! How informative! How the good talk crackled and our young hearts leaped and the hours sped by as swiftly as minutes!

Our discussions were always led by Jack Femur. (Good old Jack! I hear he's in the extruded aluminum game now.) We would sit cross-legged in a circle around Jack and he would fill his pipe with his own private blend – burley, latakia, and shredded coconut. The rest of us preferred tobacco, so we would light up Philip Morris. This is a procedure I recommend without qualification to everyone who prefers tobacco because Philip Morris has the tobacco that tobacco-preferers prefer the most – mild vintage leaf with a clean, cool flavor that soothes and steadies, that gladdens and enlivens and refreshes.

Jack would puff on his pipe and we would puff on our Philip Morris and the bull-session would begin its meandering course. The talk would touch on every subject known to man, on every conceivable thing beneath the sun, but no matter how far the conversation wandered, it would always return to "Topic A"—which was, of course, tn gardening.

But, as I say, the discussion would cover many subjects before it came to the inevitable gardening. Jack would open each session with a provocative question of a general nature, like: "What's the most important thing a man can get out of college?"

"Girls," Harold Clavicle would reply promptly. (Good old Harold! I hear he's in the frozen lobster tail game now.)

"No, I don't think so," Ben Fibula would say. "I think education is the most important thing you get out of college." (Good old Ben! He's still in school.)

"Listen, guys, I've got a question," Clyde Ilium would say. "If you could spend a week either with Ava Gardner or with Albert Einstein, which would you choose?" (Good old Clyde! I hear he's in the unclaimed freight game now.)

"Albert Einstein, of course," Will Mandible would say. (Good old Will! I hear he's in the jack handle game now.)

"What?" Cleanth Patella would cry, astonished. "You would rather spend a week with Albert Finstein than with Ava Gardner?" (Good old Cleanth! I hear he's in the unclaimed freight game with Clyde Ilium.)

"Natch!" Will Mandible would answer.

"But why?" Sol Sacrum would ask. (Good old Sol! I hear he's a parking meter in Deal, New Jersey.)

"Because," Will Mandible would cry, "if I spent a week with Albert Einstein, maybe I would get so smart that I would be able to figure out a way to spend more than a week with Ava Gardner!"

Well sir, we laughed until our little uvulas were sore and then we went on to a host of other topics. "Do you think it's important to join a fraternity?" Murray Tarsus would ask. (Good old Murray! I bear he's in the mica game now.)

"Only if you are a boy," Bob Turbinate would answer. (Good old Bob! I hear he's in the sheared raccoon game now. (The raccoon, incidentally, was invented by Milton Raccoon, whose career should be a source of guidance and inspiration to us all. Mr Raccoon arrived in this country in 1907, penniless and not speaking a word of English. Today he is the Mayor of four of our principal cities.))

But to get back to the bull session – "What's the best thing to do when the girl you are dancing with insists on leading?" Eric Ulna would ask. (Good old Eric! I hear he's in the flutter valve game now.)

"Hit her with a folded newspaper," George Vertebra would answer. "Never hit a girl with your hand. They learn to associate the hand with food, and you must not confuse them." (Good old George! I hear he's in the folded newspaper game now.)

And so it went – the talk ranging the worlds of the arts and the sciences and the social graces, until we would climb, spent but happy, into our little hammocks . . . I wonder if they still make bull sessions the way they used to.

©Max Shulman 1955

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS, who have been in the tobacco game for many long years and who tell you now proudly that their product is better than ever.

Basketballers Face UM Away Tonight In Last FIBC Fray

Florida State and Miami, No. 1 and No. 2 finishers in the first Florida Intercollegiate Conference basketball race, close their regular seasons in Miami tonight in a scrap that has no bearing on the final FIBC standings.

FSU, which locked up the league championship by winning nine straight games, will be favored in the Coral Gables gym clash.

Miami clinched second place by trimming Stetson, 79-77, here Tuesday night.

Owners of a 7-2 conference mark and 9-10 in all games, Miami will be out to avenge a 71-66 Tallahassee setback at Florida State hands last December.

Bud Kennedy's Seminoles, 18-3 after their Wednesday night's victory over Loyola, will aim for their 13th straight triumph over FIBC clubs.

The Seminoles trail Miami, 5-4, in their case rivalry that began in 1950.

Tonight's appearance will mark the sixth game in 11 days for the Tribe, approaching the climax of its best case season in history. FSU still has the District NAIA tournament though, and will host that meet which starts here Feb. 28. Georgia Teachers, Stetson and Mercer are the other entries.

Letters

(Continued from Page 2)

odmination in these charters. Religious discrimination has never been sanctioned by law and he can find no Supreme Court cases which would make it unlawful for a fraternity in the South to initiate a Jewish individual if it wanted to.

And furthermore, segregation was taboo in the North long before May 17, 1954.

My whole column in question was written to get across the point that prejudice is without reason — that many fraternity men, and sorority women themselves are against it—and that if students were to voice opinions against it sooner or later the reactionary elements in control, whether northern bigots or southern bigots, will have to yield to the force of that little idealism called "The Brotherhood of Man."

MARTIN DYCKMAN.

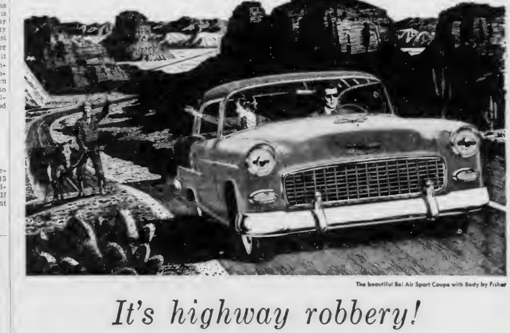
Advice

To the Editor,

In reference to Van G Peterson's letter in the Feb 15 Flambeau; about the only advice I can give to him is: If you stink, don't stand in front of a fan

Sincerely,
MARY LOU KLOTZ

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES



FLORIDA
TODAY THRU WEDNESDAY
"A STAR IS BORN"
JUDY GARLAND
JAMES MASON
JACK CARSON
in Cinemascope

STATE
TODAY & TOMORROW
"THE LAW vs. BILLY THE KID"
Scott Brady
plus
"Cannibal Attack"
Special Cowboy Matinee
Sat. at 11:30
'Thundering Caravan'
SUN. & MON.
"Smoke Signals"
Dana Andrews

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY & TOMORROW
"THE PATH FINDER"
George Montgomery
plus
"Killer Leopard"
SUNDAY & MONDAY
"Yankee Pasha"
Jeff Chandler

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW
"THE SIEGE AT RED RIVER"
Van Johnson
plus
"Tober the Great"
SUNDAY & MONDAY
"Flame & the Flesh"

RITZ — FRIDAY & SATURDAY
"THE SHE-WOLF"
FEATURING KARIMA WITH MARIO PASSANT

The beautiful Bel Air Sport Coupe with Body by Fisher

It's highway robbery!

For sheer fun out on the road, Chevrolet's stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

Up to this year, maybe there were reasons for wanting one of the higher-priced cars. If you demanded something really special in the way of driving fun, you simply had to pay a premium to get it.

Not any more! The Motoramic Chevrolet has changed all that. Who could wish for more excitement than the new 162-h.p. "Turbo-Fire V8" delivers? (For those who do, 180-h.p. is optional at extra cost in all V8 models.) Chevrolet also offers the two highest powered sixes in its field.

Come in and see how the Motoramic Chevrolet is stealing the thunder from the high-priced cars!

motoramic CHEVROLET

SEE YOUR CHEVROLET DEALER

Kappa Sigma's 17 Pints Is Still Blood Drive Total

Hathaway Says Appeal To Greeks Could Help Matters

A pint was donated yesterday, bringing the total to 16.

The Blood Drive is reaching the halfway mark, and only 17 pints have been donated toward a goal of 120.

Torse, which were given by the Kappa Sigma fraternity, were added to three pints returned by a professor who had taken them out and then didn't need them, to bring the total pints added to the account to 20.

However, blood drive directors revealed that in the past two weeks 14 pints have been taken from the account. They were used by the faculty wives, a staff member and a student.

When the drive began, there were only 24 pints in the account, after which every pint used must be replaced with two.

No pints have donated, though several took blood tests at the infirmary and were found to have less hemoglobin counts.

Several people have expressed the opinion that not enough personal appeal is being made to the students. Students read about it in The Florida Flambeau and hear announcements over WFSU but few appeals are made directly to the students.

Dr. H G Hathaway of the University Hospital said that he believed it would be of "definite value" if someone talked to the dormitories and fraternity and sorority houses directly. He also said that he'd like to see more publicity in the way of posters.

"Blood is being used every day, he said, "and it takes a lot to replace it. . . . "I was a little afraid that we'd be swamped with students coming for hemoglobin tests, but there have been very few. I'd like to see it get to the point that we had so many coming in for tests that we had to tell some of them to come back later."

Students are reminded of the fact that anyone missing classes to donate blood will be excused. An invitation will be extended to the faculty to give blood, added Dr. Hathaway, and they will have the same privilege of a hemoglobin test, he said.

Students wishing to donate blood must first get a blood test at the University Hospital between 8 and 12:30 the week they want to donate. "This just consists of getting your finger pricked and only takes about three minutes," a laboratory technician said. If the student does not have any physical conditions which would keep him from giving blood, he is notified. A special car leaves the infirmary every Friday morning to go to the Blood Bank between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Pints may also go during the week and a car will be arranged to take them to the Blood Bank, said Dr. Hathaway. Everyone under 21 except those in ROTC must have written permission from their parents.

The Voice Of Xtabay . . . Yma Sumac, Capitol recording singer of Peruvian ballads and chants is the next attraction of Artist Series. Tickets are now available at Westcott Ticket Booth.

Heidel Announces Short-Story Contest Deadline Is April 1

Don Heidel has set April 1 as deadline for manuscripts to be entered in the Smoke Signal's short story contest.

The contest is open to anyone, and there is no limit on the subject. Manuscripts should not exceed 1,200 words.

Manuscripts are to be typed, double spaced, and as grammatically correct as possible. Entries entered in the Smoke Signals 209 Lonnmire or left at the Director's Office, Lonnmire.

The Editors' Notes will be published in the May issue of Smoke Signals. A trophy will be awarded the winning story and two runners-up will be selected.

SPE OFFICERS ELECTED RECENTLY

At the recent election of officers of Epsilon chapter, Sigma Phi Epsilon, the following men were elected.

H. R. Fulmer, president; Norman Barth, vice-president; Cole Nichols Jr., comptroller; Harry Ketson, historian; Bob Gutner, secretary; Tom Green, guard; Jim Lockard, senior marshal; Bob Connelly, junior marshal; and Joe Hollis, chaplain.

TALLAHASSEE LITTLE THEATER
Exciting New Production

"THE LITTLE FOXES"

LILLIAN HELLMAN'S Dramatic Triumph
TONIGHT at 8:15
ALSO SAT., MON., TUES.
ALFRIEND HALL
Cor. Calhoun & Call Sts.
50c FOR STUDENTS

Star Says 'The Little Foxes' Is Her First Serious Drama

By DAVID DREIS

"I really don't know what I'm doing in a serious drama when all I've done in the past are comedy farces."

This is the comment made by Mrs. Polly Bunnicker about her role in the Tallahassee Little Theater production of "The Little Foxes" opening tonight in the Alfriend Hall.

FSU students know Mrs. Bunnicker as the executive secretary to Miss Katherine Warren, Dean of Women.

"My husband is really the actor in the family," she boasted. "He had the lead in the Male Animal" a few months ago. I usually do the technical work at the Little Theater." About the comedy farces she has appeared in, Mrs. Bunnicker replied, "They were always for the American Legion in the variety shows."

Mrs. Bunnicker, a native Floridian, added that this year the Tallahassee Little Theater has gone all-out to get student support. "Now that we've moved from West Campus into a new downtown theater, students will be able not only to see the productions, but also to take part."

Mrs. Bunnicker cited several students who have been in TLT plays in the past : Katheryn Reese Haun, an FSU graduate, has the lead in this play and Dr. Richard Joel of the School of Journalism is the director," she continued.

Lillian Hellman's award-winning drama will be presented tonight, Saturday night, Monday and Tuesday nights starting at 8:15 p.m. Special student tickets have been arranged at 50 cents.

Senate Receives

(Continued From Page 1)

ion of petitions and seeing their constituents," he charged.

When Moore resumed the chair, Senator James Moore made his bid for a combination of the systems.

"Every week a bill," he commented. "This will set us somewhere." He suggested a special committee combine the proposals. This was supported by Gaster and Senator Jimmy Soles, who suggested that the committee report all conflicting ideas on representation to the Senate, which would send committee them items to them, rather than in package form.

Committee Appointed

Appointed to the committee were Senators Polo Alvarez, Hank McCann, Ken Gatlin, Jimmy Joanos, Nancy Vaughn and Joan Halford. Gaster was also appointed and Coyle Moore put himself on the committee, as all those appointed had participated in submitting representation plans to the Senate.

Although McCann's proposal had not been introduced at that time, it was subsequently referred to the special committee.

The Senate also

PASSED a bill to put the student government duplicating and public address equipment for students under the control of the Secretary of Organizations and the Counselor for Student Activities.

HEARD FIRST READING of a bill by Senator Soles to locate polling places for elections in each dormitory housing more than 100 students.

DISCUSSED cancellation of Dave Brubeck Artist Series performance due to conflict with Sondspur and by a show of hands indicated to vice-president Gordon Gaster and John Tate who are student members of Artist Series committee, support of the present policy of scheduling popular entertainment as well as more serious programs.

Modest Proposal

(Continued from Page 2)

Under such a gentlemanly arrangement, it would of course be unethical for the resident bull to attack the area. Nor would it be cricket for the defending government to rush in reinforcement.

Any strict punishment would have to be meted out to a nation which did not follow through on its warning. Nothing is more disappointing these days than a war without mass killing.

The advantages of my proposal we obvious. People would still have to face the inevitability of impending death. But there would have time to put their affairs in order. And they could write about their deaths in any manner they preferred.

There are certain bans against suicide, of course but times and ideas change.

The means of bringing about our ends is one problem we deserve in these uncertain times.

A Native

(Continued From Page 1)

is where raw emotions conflict with the heritage—or is it the harness?—of tradition. The book makes no pronouncement of explanation."

"A Long Time Since Morning" pictures a small town in Northwest Florida. The chief character is a young veteran struggling against encullment by the prevailing pattern of conformity.

LOST—Red wallet in vicinity of dining hall—valuable papers! Please mail to Box 800—Marty Cuervo.

State Party Officials List Number Organizations Needing Delegates

The State Party will hold its annual convention Wednesday night, March 2nd, at 8:45 p.m. in the auditorium of the Geology building.

The main order of business, in addition to nominating candidates for the forthcoming Student Body elections, will consist of revision of the Party constitution; consideration of its platform for 1952; and the election of new Party officers.

Under the State Party Constitution, delegates are to be elected or appointed from each of the following groups:

Delegate Groups Named

Alpha Epsilon Delta; Alpha Delta Sigma; Alpha Kappa Psi; Alpha Lambda Delta; American Chemical Society; Arnold Air Society; Association of Childhood Education; Baptist Student Union; Bill and Spur; Canterbury Club; Cavaliers, Chemistry.

Choral Union; Christian Science; Circle K; Collegians; Collision Club; Delta Sigma Omega; Delta Sigma Pi; Disciple Student Fellowship; Four-H Club; Freshman Class; Freshman Funfest; Future Business Leaders of America; Future Teachers of America; Gamma Alpha Chi; Gamma Delta; Alpha Phi Omega; Gamma Sigma Phi; Garnet; Key; Geology; Gold Key; Graduate Class; Hillel; Home Economics; Industrial Arts Club; Inter-Church Fellowship.

Inter-Fraternity Council; International Students Club; Junior Class; Kappa Delta Pi; Kappa Mu Epsilon; Les Jongleurs; Light Opera Guild; Los Picaros; Marching Chiefs; Mathematics Club; Men's "F" Club; Men's Physical Education Club; Men's Recreation Association; Methodist Student Movement; Newman Club; Omicron Delta Kappa.

Sandspur Included

Omicron Nu; Sandspur (Dramatics); Scullions; Seminole Flyers Club; Senior Class; Sigma Alpha Iota; Sigma Delta Pi; Sigma Delta Psi; Sigma Tau Delta; Smoke Signals; Social Workers Club; Solas; Sophomore Class; Sophomore Council; National Society of Pershing Rifles; Phi Beta Kappa; Student Christian Association; Student Nurses Association; Phi Alpha Theta.

Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi; Phi Mu Alpha; Physical Educational Association; Pi Alpha Sigma; Pi Delta Phi; Pi Omega; Psychology; Recreation Society of F.S.U.; Rue Hall; Thirty Ho; Tarpon Club. Tau Kappa Alpha; Theater; Dance Group.

All campus social fraternities and sororities are allowed to have delegates each. All dormitories can send one delegate per fifty day students.

The above organizations are urged to select their delegates as soon as possible for Wednesday's convention.

Offices Open

Nominations for the following Student Body offices will be held at the convention:

Student Body President; Student Body Vice President; Women's Vice President; Men's Vice President; Secretary of Senate; Chief Justice of Honor Court; Chairman of Judiciary; Chairman of Traffic Court; Sandspur Chairman; President of URA; Smoke Signals Editor and Business Manager; and Tally-Ho Editor and Business Manager.

A pre-convention prospective slate of candidates will not be compiled this year, for it is felt that this might create the idea that various nominations are preconceived, spokesmen revealed. All interested candidates are invited to seek nomination with this in mind.

DZ Scholarship Award Given Margaret Miller At Initiation Banquet

A banquet honoring new Delta Zeta initiates recently saw Margaret Miller presented with the Rathbun Scholarship award.

Polly Heyward was awarded the Most Loyal and Devoted Pledge award, and Lynn Smith the Best All Around Pledge award.

New initiates include Christine Atkins, Marcia Douglas, Katherine Hartly, Polly Mercer, Beth McDonald, Margaret Miller, Jane Newsome, Kate Ramsey, Rena Rehwinkel, Kristine Lee Robson, Jane Rogers, Marcia Marie Simmons, Lynn Smith, Marilyn Sparanza, Barbara Spencer, and Peggy Wilson.

Newly elected officers of the spring pledge class are president, June Hamilton; vice president, Sue Moseley; secretary, Mary Bertham; treasurer, Betty Shepard; song leader, Linda Howell, projects chairman, Joan Strickland, social chairman, Claudette Patterson; and historian, Alice Benson.

Hillel To Hold Annual Service On Brotherhood

In conjunction with Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National conference of Christians and Jews, Hillel Foundation will hold its annual Brotherhood Service, this evening.

Dr. Sam Neel, University Chaplain will be guest moderator for a panel discussion on "What the Individual Can DoToward Promoting Brotherhood."

Evelyn Moll, representing the Wesley Foundation and Leonard Bloch, Hillel of the Hillel Foundation will initiate the talk.

Under the direction of Judy Nalbandian, the Hillel Choir will perform for the first time at this Brotherhood Service. Eva Sass will lead the prayer and scriptures will be read by Serle Selmon and Dick Rappaport.

Solo prayer will be chanted by Sheldon Tort. This is the "Kiddush," a Hebrew rite which ushers in the Sabbath.

People of all faiths are cordially invited to attend.

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU 4
Friday, February 23, 1951

FOR SALE
'125 Harley-Davidson
MOTOR SCOOTER
Excellent Condition
$150
or Highest Offer
See Jeff Hamilton
DON RIBERA, Ph. 7201
1407 Magnolia, Box 7201

FOR THE BEST IN SHOE REPAIRING TRY
PALACE SHOE SHOP
Established 1914
121 E. PARK AVE.

50 million times a day at home, at work or on the way

There's nothing like a Coke

DRINK Coca-Cola

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY
Tallahassee Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

"Coke" is a registered trade mark. © 1950, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

Harriett
Your Hairstylist
Coiffure Designers
212 W. College Avenue
Phone 2-5214

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)

JAZZ AT THE OASIS
Featuring
Larry Abt Bill Neblett
PIANO BASS
ALAN HARKNESS DRUMS
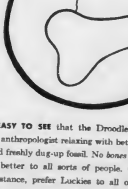
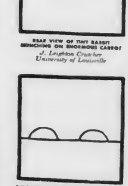
SAT., FEB. 26th 2:30 P. M.
119 W. Jefferson—Across From Martin Bldg.

Attention May Graduates
Deadline Coming Soon
On Graduation Announcements



SAMPLES ON DISPLAY at The University Book Store in the Student Center Building



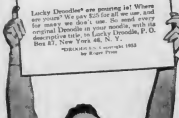
INTERNS Be Sure To Order Before Leaving Campus

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE
IN THE STUDENT CENTER

LUCKY DROODLES! WE'VE GOT 'EM!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

BEAR VIEW OF TINY RABBIT SWINGING ON SWORDED CARROT
J. Leighton Crocker
University of Louisville



NATIVE ON SAFARI EXERTING MUSCLES ACROSS HIS BACK
Martin S. Kahn
University of Pennsylvania

IT'S EASY TO SEE that the Droodle above is titled: Tired anthropologist relaxing with better-tasting Lucky behind freshly dug-up fossil. No bones about it, Luckies taste better to all sorts of people. College smokers, for instance, prefer Luckies to all other brands, according to the latest, greatest coast-to-coastest college survey. Again, the No. 1 reason for Luckies' wide lead: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

100-YARD DASH DOG DIG IN REVERSED
Alexander Kmetich
Manhattan State University

BALD MAN BEHIND FENCE AT ROMEOS
Dave Fairbanks
Long Beach State College

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED" CIGARETTES

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Whom are you? We pay $25 for each one used. Send every droodle you originate, with the original Droodle in Lucky Drooodle, P.O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLE, n. 1. copyright 1952 by Roger Price

Better taste Luckies...
LUCKIES TASTE BETTER
CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company — AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

HALL OF FAME
Ten Seniors
Are Honored—P. 4

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 32 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, MARCH 1, 1955

Sigma Chi's Donate Blood; Take Drive Lead

Total Now Is 35 Pints In Four Weeks

By MARTY REEVES

Initiated by the Kappa Sigma 18 pints of blood were do- ated last Thursday and Friday by Sigma Chi fraternity.

These eighteen, two were given Tuesday, and sixteen Friday. Seventeen pints, donated by Kappa Sigma fraternity the week before, bring up the rest of the 35 pints quoted.

Twenty-three pints were in the lead account at the beginning of last week, a spokesman from the blood drive said. The 35 pints raised made a balance of 58.

Faculty Same

The does not include the faculty group, which is separate. It was stated out. As no faculty members have donated blood yet, their goal still stands at 25 pints.

The drive, which began February 7 is scheduled to end March 14. However, co-chairman Marianne Sapp and Graham Carothers said earlier this month extend the drive in order to reach the goal of 120 pints. Students have expressed various reasons for non-donating. A large group prevalent is the complaint with the process of donating blood with the terms and they "haven't time." The whole procedure only takes about 30 minutes, a staff member of the University Hospital said.

Blood Test

Before donating, a student must first get a blood test at the University Hospital between 9 a. m. and 12:30 p. m. any day in the week he wishes to donate. This takes 2 or 3 minutes, the laboratory technician said. Also, the fears of having one finger prick if the student passes the blood test, he is notified.

A car leaves the University Hospital every Friday between 9 a. m. and 1 p. m. to take students to the Blood Bank. However, Dr. Ray Rainsay, Infirmary physician said a car can be arranged to take those during the week if there can- no be Friday. They are only the Blood Bank half an hour, it stated and are excused from the classes that they may miss.

Parents' Permission

Another common complaint made students is that of having to get their parents' permission if they are under 21 and not in ROTC. Graham remember to add on the permission" and "My parents gave me permission even though I want to give" are frequently heard. This is a state law, however, and "cannot be altered around," stated the chairman. Several people also feel that there is not enough personal contact with the students. One suggestion was to put up posters around campus. Posters have been put up and some were put up in the Hall. Carothers said. The rest should be up soon, he added.

Committee On Representation Meets Today

A Senate committee studying the system of representation in student government will meet this afternoon at 4:30 in the Senate chamber, second floor Longmire, all interested students are asked to attend," said vice-president Jo Moore, a member of the committee and co-author of one of the bills for changing representation that will be discussed by the group. He said that no chairman has been appointed but that the group will choose one of its members to preside.

At today's meeting the committee "will have to decide how it is going to approach the problem, and what it's going to do."

Members are Moore, vice-president Gordon Gaster, and Senators Dick Atwater, Hank McClain, Ken Hinkle, Jimmy Joanne, Nancy Martin, and Joan Halford. All are co-sponsored measures for changing representation.

The group appointed last week by a third representation measure introduced in Senate, will consider the following plans:

That of Moore and Senator Hinkle, which would elect representatives from dormitories and houses, its sponsors contended, the fraternities, sororities and off-students would be fairly represented by the class senators.

That of Senators Gatlin, Halford and Joanne, which would elect 12 Senators from Panhellenic, Interfraternity Council, and the day students as well.

That of Senators McClain and Atwater, which would leave the representation as it is now but would have Senators assigned to a round fraternity, sorority, dormitory and day student meetings to be informed of student opinion before voting student government.

The Senate last week, in voting to set up the committee, called for a study and possible combination of the "better" points of these proposals.

The group expects to submit a

(Continued on Page 3)

A Medley of FSU . . . Left to right, Mary Jo Fain, Charles Carter, composer of "FSU Rhapsody," and Jim Rogers, look over the music for tomorrow evening's Symphonic Band Concert.

Carter Shares Musical Honors With Berlioz Tomorrow Night

Charles Carter, FSU School of Music graduate student will share musical honors with the famed French composer Berlioz, when his "FSU Rhapsody" is presented in a concert tomorrow night in Westcott Auditorium.

Compositions by both musicians will be played by the Florida State University Symphonic Band beginning at 8:15 p.m. The Symphonic Band's presentation is one of many to be given by the university's six bands during the remainder of the year.

Probably the best known of the bands are the "Big Marching Chiefs," under the direction of Manley B. Whitcomb, rated among the top bands throughout the United States. It is known for high quality of music, as well as marching style. Members of this group are also in the five separate bands within the main one.

Noted for its freedom of expression, the "Jazz" band is known by its members as the "Lab" Band. Members of this band experiment in progressive jazz playing, writing and arranging. The unit has been set as a possible date for a Jazz Band concert.

There are three other bands which make up the FSU band unit. These are the Pep Band, which plays at smaller athletic events, the Concert Band, which is open to all interested, and the Circus Band, whose name is self explanatory.

The bands provide a reservoir from the needs of the University and the students. Performances may be functional as in the case of football games or especially as are Jazz Band performances.

Tomorrow night's concert in Westcott Auditorium will present Symphony Fantasy by Berlioz and "Serenade in E Flat Major," by Strauss. "Kiddie Ballet," by Ralph Berman, is also scheduled. Assisting the band will be the FSU Choral Union, directed by Herman Gunter.

Yma Sumac Sings Here Next Week

By DAVID DREIS

Yma Sumac's Artist Series appearance in Western Auditorium March 8 and 9 brings the rare, "Voice of Xtabay" to this campus.

Her lush look ticket number is a must, be exclaimed for tickets to the $ 15 performance either day.

Miss Sumac's transition in vocal color from the low resident notes to the flutelike tones has astonished critics from coast to coast. Her powerful control of her native Peruvian chants and songs

Stories Grow

Ever since Yma Sumac became internationally known in the music world, thousands of words have been written about her and facts about her life have been exaggerated. One example of this is the story about her being Amy Camus from Brooklyn who launched herself on a career simply by reversing her name.

According to Miss Sumac, she was born in the village of Ichocan, 12,000 feet up on the side of Mt. Cushenbamba in Peru. She spent the first twelve years of her life there. There is a letter in the files of the Peruvian consul supporting her claim that she is related to Peruvian royalty.

Voice in Throwback

Dr. Wallace F. Armentt, Music Department head at Auburn University believes her voice is a throwback to a more primitive era. Before our present system of musical scale came into being, around the twelfth century, voices—not a greater range than is commonly known today were taken for granted. Primitive or not, Yma Sumac is proving herself on the novelty of her vocal range rather than many others are making on performance.

DAY STUDENTS SPONSOR SEMI-FORMAL DANCE

A semi-formal dance, sponsored annually by the day students will be held in Lonamire Auditorium, March 18 from 8:30-11:30 p.m.

Chairman Jean Williams is assisted by Irma Allou, refreshment chairman; Catherine Westerdahl, decorations; Mary Leon- ard, invitations; and Nina Kyle, publicity.

Study Living Cost

Questionnaires Are Sent Students In Institutions Of Higher Learning

Students in Florida's 20 major institutions of higher education, including Florida State University will receive questionnaires next week in connection with a study of the cost of education in this state.

Dr Hugh M. Stickler, director of educational research and services at Florida State University, is in charge of the survey. He said that 10 percent of the full-time, unmarried undergraduates in Florida institutions will be questioned. Schools will include the major public and private junior colleges, liberal arts colleges, public and private universities.

Questions

Students will be asked questions pertaining to the cost of tuition, fees, books, supplies, room rent, board and other expenses. Amount of federal expenditure will also be stressed.

Sponsor of the project is Dr. Hugh M. Campbell in urging students to cooperate in answering the questionnaires. The forms will be mailed Monday, March 7.

Purpose of the project is to [illegible] of colleges and universities in Florida and bring themselves out of the market for certain economic groups, Stickler said. Besides the study mentioned above, another will be conducted among the institutions to find what part they pay of students' expenses.

Higher Education Council

The survey will give the Council for the Study of Higher Education in Florida (overall sponsor of the project) a realistic picture of higher education in Florida, from which to project future needs for the next 10 or 15 years," Stickler stated.

The study of education costs in Florida is one of the current projects of the Council of Higher Education. Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of the University of Kansas City, Dr. Floyd Reeves, assistant to the president of Michigan State College, John Dale Russell, chancellor of higher education as the state of Ned Duncan Hay, chief liver of the Southern Regional Educational Board.

More Polling Places Asked By Committee

Additional polling places for student elections, voting on Wednesday instead of Tuesday, and ballot printing have been recommended by a Student Senate-Panhellenic committee.

Vice - president Carlie Moore and Senator Nancy Vaughn, who constitute the sub-committee on the Legislative Branch of the Special Committee to Study Student Government, in a report submitted last week, recommended:

1. Issuing of certificates of election to winning candidates, as provided in the constitution. This has not been done in the past.

2. Submission of ballot names by honor court to the Florida Flambeau, "as provided in the statutes."

3 Expansion of elections committee to allow for presence of at least one member of a elections committee at each polling place all day each election day.

4. Preparation, by elections committee, of general election regulations for candidates, instead of burdening them with complete elections statutes.

5. Election on Wednesday instead of Tuesdays. "Many day students and people living out of Tallahassee attend classes only on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays." The sub - committee said, "Also, many students living on campus do not have classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays and do not go close to polling places on those days."

6 Keeping polls open until 7 p.m. on election days "as provided in the statutes."

7. Additional polling places, including one in front of Landis or Gilchrist and in front of Reynolds Hall. "It is believed that this would result in an increased turn-out at elections, since a large number of students would pass in the vicinity of the polling places."

'Crucible' Running Strategic Rehearsal For Opening Night

The Department of Speech play "The Crucible" saw strategic rehearsals yesterday as the cast went into its final week before opening night on March 11th.

Set in Salem Massachusetts in the quarrels between the antagonist David Denis who would like to better that to have a witch discovered in his village and John Proctor Franklin Adams who has little faith in the idea of witches. The protagonist forces the reverend Parris Alfred Hurley to strike out against the devil and the tragedy begins with full force.

Moll, Williams And Teal To Speak On Campus Finances

Treasurers of non - budgeted campus organizations may soon have new ideas on how to make money.

In a meeting tomorrow night, at 7:30, in 401 Longmire, campus treasurers will hear student leaders from the funds committee and the office of Finance explain procedure and new ways of producing funds.

Evelyn Moll, chairman of the Funds Committee, will explain how each individual club helps the university by sponsoring money-making projects.

Additional speakers are Don Teal, Secretary of Finance, and J. T. Williams, chairman Auditing Committee. Williams will demonstrate helpful pointers on keeping more accurate books.

Dance Group Presents 1955 Show Tonight

Whing Ding To Feature Modern Dance, Music

"An Evening of Dance," student and faculty dance production, will be presented tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Setup for the annual Modern Dance Group presentation are not reserved, and will be "allotted on a 'first come, first served' basis, Director Nellie-Bond Duckinson said yesterday.

Emphasizing that tonight's performance will be the only one presented this year, she stated that ushers have been instructed to seat people as they arrive. There is an admission cost for Florida State University students.

Whing Ding

First number on the program is "Whing Ding," with music by Lester Bruch and choreography by Nancy Smith. Dancers are Bonnie Ball, Lou Merritt, Ardreon Cone, Barbara Grebit, Jim Pridgan, Sue Rogers, Alex Hay and Don Rapp.

"Ride," which is based on the pagan ceremony of human sacrifice, has music by Mozart and choreography by Lucile Turnage. Dancers are Jacqui Charles, Barbara Grebit, Peggy Brown, Betty Gooch, Barbara Harless, Ruth Harvard, Sheila McGuiry, Alicia Pittenger, Ruth Prothro, Lucile Turnage and Tommie Standley, pianist.

Carlisle Floyd furnished music for "Theme and Variations," a modern dance up-to-the-minute in musical effect. Choreography is by Nellie-Bond Duckinson, it is danced by Barbara Grebit, Nancy Smith and Sarah Ball.

"Rolero" Featured

Ravel's "Bolero" is interpreted in modern dance by Barbara Gooch, choreographer, and is danced by Alex Hay, Jacqui Charles, Lobey Dunn, Barbara Harless, Mary Ann Williams, Katherine Hartley, and Barbara Grebit.

"Sleepy Lagoon," also with music by Ravel, will be danced by Bob Randall, Sarah Ball, Betty Gooch and Don Randall. Choreography is by Katherine Hartley.

"Ride of Valkyrie" is "A Woman Sings," featuring "Live Living," "Lament," "Cry of Women," and "Dance of Rest." Music is by Carlisle Floyd.

"Women," with music by Mae Mangbum, portrays "an angel in truth and a demon in fiction—a woman's conflict with herself." Jean Hayden, Susan Ball, Julia James, Jim Pridgan, Lee Ann Kennedy, Jo Blanton, Laura Coker, Alma Patrucks, Sarah Ball and Lobey Dunn are cast.

"Park Scene," with music by Kabalevsky, has been set to dance by Ann Ray, Maxine Ree Beaty, Peggy Debolt and Betsy Pinkerton.

Smith Choreographer

Choreographer Nancy Smith, a graduate in composer Lester Bruch, created "Jazz," which will be danced by Susan Ball, Pamela Duke, Nancy Smith, Jim Padgam and Richard Puckett.

"Cakewalk," with music by Bennett, will be danced by Sheila McGuiry, Barbara Grebel, Janice Eberly, Jean Monroe, Barbara Trimble, Betty Inman, Lucile Turnage, Bob Randall, Sue Rogers, Jean Cassidy, Ann Graves, Ruth Harvard Alex Hay and Don Randall. Choreographer is by Nellie-Bond Dickinson and Barbara Gooch and Nancy Smith are PSU Symphonic Band will accompany the number.

Of the ten dances, eight will be performed for the first time at "An Evening of Dance" tonight, while the other two were brought back from previous productions by popular demand.

Brubeck Quartet Gets Nod; Appear Here March 28

The Dave Brubeck Quartet will give two concerts here on Monday, March 28, the Artist Series committee has announced.

The Committee voted Friday to contract Brubeck after many objections that his appearance would conflict with Junior Prom and would crowd the IFC dance the following weekend.

The Brubeck Quartet, jazz instrumentalists featuring Brubeck on piano, Paul Desmond, alto saxophone, will give two concerts, probably in Westcott Auditorium. Artist Alfred said yesterday.

As they will have to leave Tallahassee in time to make connections the next morning in Atlanta, the concerts will begin early. The program, it was said, lasts two hours.

Tickets will cost 75 cents each, with a stub from the activity book, and will go on sale in the Artist Series office as soon as they are printed.

Open Minded Democrats—watch as chairman Daniel Gorham opens his Young Republican campaign on campus with posters Standing by are l. to r., Lou Griffin, Barbara Ayala, and Dot Thomasson.

—Photos by Autumn Shannon

'North Florida GOP' Is Topic Of Leon Republican Chairman

The Young Republicans of Florida State University are set to give their Democrat brothers some competition on campus.

Tomorrow night they will sponsor an open meeting in 415 Lonamire at 8:15 featuring Mr. William Oven, chairman of the Leon County Republican Executive Committee. He will speak on "The Republicans in North Florida."

Other plans through May 11 include a rally, banquet, elections and another speaker. Bill Payton Yon, Jr. Republican State Committeeman on March 25.

Daniel Gorham, chairman of the Young Republicans on campus and one of the original founders of the organization has been made to have "leading Republican" figures appear on campus.

The meeting tomorrow, Gorham added, will be thrown open following the speaker, to discuss the role of the group during the coming year in preparation for the presidential elections.

We hope to inform interested parties about the politics' issues in our national life," continued Gorham.

Gorham said interested parties can contact him by calling 2-3082 or writing to 818 W. Pensacola Street. They may be placed on the mailing list for further information.

Social Studies Council Holds Meeting Here

The fourth annual joint area meeting of the Florida Council for the Social Studies and Florida State University will be held on this campus Saturday.

The meeting is primarily for social studies instructors and other interested school personnel in Gulf region, FCSS president Mary Schoenherr said. Main speaker will be Dr Howard K Wilson, Executive Secretary of the National Educational Policies Commission.

Wilson is scheduled to speak on "Classroom Approaches to World Understanding" beginning at 10 p.m in room 223 Music Building. The meeting will last until noon.

Wilson's work with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, UNESCO, the Canadian-American Commission on Education and other international bodies qualifies him to discuss the subject, Schoenherr said.

State-Party Meet Opens Tomorrow Evening At Union

Convention Registration Begins 6:45

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Candidates for election to Student Body offices will be chosen at a State Party convention slated tomorrow night at 6:45 p.m. in the Century Building Lecture Hall.

Other action to be taken at the convention will include consideration of constitutional changes, election of new officers for the State Party and platform decisions.

Note: Student Party Chairman Graham Carothers announced yesterday that the party convention had been set for Wednesday March 9 at 6:30 p.m. in Geology Building Lecture Hall.

Party Chairman Warren Cobb said he expected "keen competition" for the positions of leadership at the convention, but "I don't know who it will be."

Chairman Election

"Several are considering it," Cobb stated. As chairman of a nominations committee, he said the report would recommend that candidates at conventions in the future be by residence only as one change.

This is because under the present system it double representation," he said. At present, organizations with 20 or more are allowed delegates at the convention.

The State Party also has residence representation similar to that of the Student Party. Speaking of both resident and organization lived of the Florida Flambeau February 25 representatives. Cobb urges that they attend the convention tomorrow night.

If none there will be considerable interest and participation this year in Student Body government, he said.

Platform Information

Members of the State Party said yesterday that they had heard of no definite action to be taken on the representation issue now pending in Senate.

Platform committee members, appointed at a State Party meeting last month, are chairman Gordon Gaster, Jimmy Boles, Dick Lucas, Hank McClain and Beechie Bunting.

Committee members met Tuesday afternoon at the Cabana Club, Bill Wagoner and Cook Jackson. The group has been considering Day Student and West Hall representation at conventions as well as the group representation.

Ready For The "Splatter Party" . . . Tarpon mermaids, left to right, Ann Cowart, Diane DeMoulpied, Petey Dunn, Sue Ford, Barbara Mead, Mary Ann O'Neal and Pat Rooney are used to synchronized performance. All will perform in Tarpon's annual production tomorrow, through Saturday at 8 p.m. each night featuring a disc-jockey theme.

'Splatter Party' Begins Tomorrow

"Splatter Party", 1955 Tarpon Club production at Florida State University begins tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in the Women's Gymnasium.

Shows will be held at the same time and place Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

The annual synchronized swimming revue by Florida State University undergraduates is planning to utilize "Onomatopetic Sound", a device which amplifies and augments sounds made in the water.

Featured in "Splatter Party", will be a disk jockey show narrated by Tallahassean Bo Hollister. The turntable will include such favorites as "Little Brown Jug" "Sleepy Lagoon" "Wagon Wheels" and a jazz version of "Dixie".

Movies Provide Music

Songs from recent movies such as "Lili", "Story of Three Loves" and "Pennsylvania Polka" also will provide accompaniment for the noted performers.

Tarpon Club president Betsy Ann Theobald said recently that the group has been invited to participate in a five-day show in St Augustine Plans are indefinite for this enterprise, she said.

The 1955 production will have five repeated acts, as in the past, Miss Yvonne Hicks and Miss Paula Keiser Instructors of women's physical education, sponsor the 40 members of the Tarpon Club. Membership is extended to students who exhibit swimming ability and skill in annual tryouts.

A Conscientious Snoop

Among the duties of a campus policeman is to see that women are in their residence houses after hours. Last Thursday, a certain such policeman who has been nn campus several years, claimed he had never seen a formal pinning ceremony, and broke up this traditional event over the protests of the residence counselor. We hope this conscientious snoop checks out with his chief next time.

Go Easy On Wiretapping!

A State Supreme Cnurt Justice in New York refused a few days ago to authnrize the use of wiretapping to catch three bookmakers. The reasons given by Justice Hofstadter for his refusal went straight to the heart of an issue the Congress doubtless will debate again this year.

To place a wiretap on a telephone is not only, as Justice Hofstadter reasons, an undue invasion of that person's privacy; it is also an invasion of the privacy of every other person who uses that telephone from either end. It is, in fact, much more than that: Article IV of the U. S. Constitution protects "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures." The Constitution further restricts issuance of search warrants tn "probable cause, supported by oath of affirmation," and the warrant must describe particularly the place to be searched and the person or thing to be seized.

But would not a Federal law authorizing wire-tapping reverse that process? Would it nnt allow an unreasonable search—and a secret one—to cast about for a probable cause?

Now no reasonable man would compare the catching of gamblers to the treasonable Communist conspiracy. The Red intrigue is certainly to be feared and fought; but it must be fought with weapons that do not injure our nation as one of free men. the heart of the issue here is the same in either case: the medicine of wire-tap is equally bad, for it is the prescription of the police state.

Indeed, the cnnvictions in the courts of many of the Communist leaders show that police state methods are not needed. There are statutes on the books under which they can be, and have been, successfully prosecuted. And if need be, the Congress can provide for the calling up of the militia should the conspiracy reach insurrection. No nne has suggested that course.

Meanwhile, we see no need for chipping away at the rights and privileges of people who are not Communists in order to catch Communists. Perhaps the latter can be more easily trapped through wire-tapping; certainly it will make the job of our police easier or the Department of Justice would not have considered endorsing last year the proposal Representative Keating has again introduced. The job of the police would be made easier also if they could go about arresting anyone they chose and if they could break down any door and if they could hold in prison a suspect as long as they wished. But restraints were placed on Government and on police so that these things could not happen.

So it should be with wire-tapping. Let it be accepted in one field of law enforcement and it will be soon accepted in all. Intimate conversations will be recorded by unseen ears, and the unseen hand of fear and suspicion may rest on every phone call; perhaps on a wrong number.

—The Wall Street Journal

Make Ballot Boxes Available

Senator Soles has introduced a bill in the Student Senate to make ballot boxes available on election days tu every dormitory housing 100 inhabitants.

Someone has pointed out that similar plans have been provided in most of the representation bills now pending in senate.

Since Senate seems to be in a "get interested in your government" mood, we see no reason why the bill shouldn't go right through. There are two reasons for this. One, it would make the presently cumbersome bills less full of small details. Second, since it may be some time before any action is taken on the representation bills, it wouldn't be a bad idea to get a good idea started soon to offer some accessible incentives to voting.

It Still Exists In Many Forms

CHICAGO (AP)—Elevators at Roosevelt University will be barred to men with mustaches and coeds under 5 feet 2 tomorrow.

Blonds will he barred frnm the library, and three floors of the school will be open only to students with freckles.

The school newspaper said this method of observing Brotherhood Week was chosen to point up "the arbitrary and ridiculous distinctions of discrimination."—From the Tallahassee Democrat.

Rugged Individualism

The Lift File

Business First Policy

A subtle change is coming over your government which can be hurtful to you as a citizen interested in democracy and its perpetuation, and a consumer who would like to enjoy the fruits of industrial democracy at a fair price.

The change can be charted, among other areas, in the regulatory commissions and agencies that are supposed to protect the public interest in the economic fields which touch your life so closely—the railroad, ocean and air carriers and the rates you pay as a passenger or shipper; the telephone monopoly and its rates and services, radio and television and their development in the wisest manner; electricity and gas and in time atomic power and the rates you pay for them.

What is happening, and it is apparent to anybody here who knows government and observes it, is that the personnel of regulatory commissions has been reshaped through the appointive power of the President—and purposely. The aim is to produce a "sympathetic" attitude toward business, as it is put.

In view of the dangerous shift in government going on here now we are lucky to have back in Congress, as the result of last November's Democratic election victories, a man who perhaps knows more about this whole problem than anyone in government today Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) came back despite the oratorical onslaughts of Vice-President Nixon and New York big money.

He got his knowledge from long legislative experience—he was in the Senate continuously from 1934 to his defeat in 1952—and from specialized study as director of the so-called Temporary National Economic Committee. That was a joint Congressional committee, of which he was chairman, which explored the whole problem of monopoly for many months back in 1938 and compiled a record that is still sort of a bible on the subject.

The Wyoming Senator raised his voice in warning at the seventh annual Roosevelt Day dinner in New York this week about present trends and policies of the Administration which he said, seems to be striving with might and main to remove the economic capital from Washington, where Roosevelt restored it, and move it back to the counting houses of Wall Street.

On the problem with which we are here especially concerned, he said:

"The legislative powers of Congress outlined in the very first article of the Constitution are the bedrock of popular government yet they are now being absorbed by the White House which, to a degree never before undertaken even in World War II, is becoming a law-making as well as a law-enforcing arm of government.

"Every lobbyist in Washington knows that the lines of control, even of the quasi-judicial commissions, are in the hands of the anonymous assistants in the White House. Thus, the legislative power delegated to commissions are being, as it were, redelegated to the White House staff."

And again:

"Scarcely a day passes that the journals of finance in New York and Chicago do not announce another industrial or financial merger. Boards and commissions, created by Congress to enlarge opportunities for the people as a whole, seem to have altered their policies and to regard themselves as champions of big rather than of little business."

This is a perceptive analysis by one who knows whereof he speaks.

It is distressing to sit here and watch how clever and skillful economic interests take advantage of President Eisenhower's limited knowledge of civilian government and of our economic history, particularly of the last quarter of a century.

—Thomas L. Stokes
(Copyright 1955 United Feature Syndicate)

NEW SEMESTER RESOLUTIONS

Resolve to . . . refrain from scheduling any classes with professors who are consistently tardy or absent or both . . . Spend one hour a day in the library not necessarily studying, but rather getting acquainted with the setup in case you ever wish to take out a book for kicks . . .

Laugh at your instructor's jokes at least once a week to humor him, but not too often for you may encourage him to go overboard . . . Don't fall into heavy slumbers while the prof is lecturing because it gives him the idea that you are bored . . . .

See your adviser before you graduate, preferably the day before, so he can tell you what required courses you still have to take . . . Either wear glasses or avoid blind dates . . . Quit loaning out term papers to fellow students who end up with better grades that you . . .

—Miami Hurricane (University of Miami, Coral Gables, Florida) ACP

IBM SNAFU HEXES STUDENTS

ACP In this technological age we thought the IBM machine was infallible, like the balance on your bank statement. Comes a report from the Campus, University of Connecticut weekly at Storrs, that a number of students had to do some tall explaining after their midsemester grade reports were received at home.

"About 25 to 30 persons were affected by an IBM machine error," the Campus reports. F's were substituted for D's on grade reports. The midsemester grades do not appear on the students' permanent records, however.

The Dissenter

A Means For Ostentatious Display

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

With spring elections so near that little else is talked about in Longmire, it might be a good time to examine the so-called "two-party system."

Has it measured up to the goal so ambitiously set for it? In other words, has it resulted in a more mature discussion of political issues?

Unfortunately, it has not.

Gene Lawler, presiding officer of last year's Student Senate, told the group at the end of the year that they would "probably be the last Senate not organized on party lines."

This year's Senate hasn't been organized on party lines either, except for one occasion. At that time the State Party faction, aided and assisted by certain "Independents" and even some "Student Party" people, rejected an appointee to a vacant seat in Senate. Their stated reasons for doing so—they were in the minority, but benefitted from the two-thirds rule—were vague and flimsy. Their real reason seemed to be the fact that the person in question was an important Student Party official.

Little else has been fought on party lines and there were some individual exceptions in the case previously mentioned.

Issues in Senate are not issues that should be divided in a partisan manner. There are no perennial problems before Senate such as those before the Federal government, except for that of more student control for student problems. There is always unanimity behind the assertion that student government should be more autonomous.

The other questions are strictly problems of the moment. To expect all senators to vote the way their party leaders do on these issues, such as parking regulations or rules of procedure, would be to advocate the final demise of good government on this campus.

There are a number of qualified people in Senate. They debate and vote in the manners which they believe to be right. The rest of the senators, lamentably not as qualified or as interested as the leaders, follow them when it comes to casting their votes.

Let us hope that the day does not come when all people of one party are expected to vote against strict traffic regulations and the other party senators for them. Individualism is a necessary factor in student government.

The Debate Team members are fond of saying that parties on this campus are to the politicians as lampposts are to drunks. This may be an extreme analogy, but the fact remains that parties are but the means to get elected and personal friendships, associations and interests—not issues—determine which party a campus politician casts his lot with.

While we're on the subject it might be noted that the parties, as far as their electioneering activity goes, are too big.

It is about as fair for the conventions to pick candidates for class officers and senators as it would be for the Democratic and Republican National Conventions to select the candidates for senator from Florida.

The party primary or convention is an integral part of the elective process, but if a sophomore, for instance, has to share that function with freshmen, juniors and seniors in selecting his candidates for senator, the value of his own franchise is lessened.

What business the parties have with the class officers is a very big mystery indeed.

Reflections

Experienced Riot-Maker Tells How

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Since the reaction to the "riot" in front of Kahler's a week ago is liable to end up in a mass persecution complex at FSU, we yield to the enormous pressure brought on us. We shall tell what a REAL riot is like. Our theory is that when the students here know the facts about such matters, they will not be so ashamed of their own lawlessness.

At this point we should make it known that the description to follow is the result of a scientific study made at tremendous personal risk. Actions taken by participants in the study, it should be realized, were done only in the interest of science.

The study began about three weeks ago when it was decided that there was a definite need for accurate data on the nature of riots. It was agreed to stage one, making it necessary to decide on a time and place.

The students finally chose New Orleans as the place, since it is commonly known as "The Sin Center of the South." Mardi Gras was deemed an appropriate time. The hazards involved were great, however, and only two researchers were willing to take the risk.

Our base of operations in New Orleans was an obscure dive in the French Quarter known chiefly for the fact that it was the only place in the world where 300 people could get into a 30' by 25' room, as it was.

At about 1:30 Sunday night, the place wasn't too crowded—having only about 250 people inside. According to the New Orleans police, though, there were about 3,000 in the street outside. We decided it was about time to start the riot. So.

We grabbed the nearest guy and threw him over the bar. Soon about half the people were fighting and a couple of policemen came running in. Attempting to stop the fighting, they were surrounded by the enraged mob. Drawing guns, they backed against the wall and began edging toward the door. When they left the brawl began all over as more people rushed into the place to find out what had happened. We heard cries for help as women and children were crushed underfoot.

But the policemen called reinforcements. All available officers came to the French Quarter and as more arrived they tried to stop the rioting mob in the street. Seeing their efforts we did our best to keep the riot going.

Acting like a pirate we leaped on the bar stripped to the waist, carrying a cutlass in one hand, and threatened the mob. Rushing us, the officers broke up one of the planks behind the bar and shattered a mirror. They were beginning to tear up the rest of the place when the police threw tear gas bombs outside.

Pretty soon the police had the situation well enough in hand to line some of the rioters up against the wall and arrest them. As they threw them into the paddy-wagons thousands of bystanders jeered. They began throwing glasses, rocks and beer cans at the police.

Later on, during Mardi Gras day, we heard that 300,000 people had come into New Orleans the night before. The police must have heard too, because they had assigned 500 patrolmen and 300 plain clothes detectives to the French Quarter that night. Also they had 200 mounted police ready to patrol the place and tear gas guns had been issued.

All in all we decided we had started a pretty good riot. As scientists we now feel that we are in a position to advise FSU students, when bigger and better riots are made, we will make them.

Etcetera Etchings

Industry Is A Paradox In Idealism

By DAVID DREIS

(This is the last installment in a series of articles depicting the rise of the movie industry, its stars and ideals)

PART SIX
Conclusion and Beginning

Today's movie industry is a paradox in idealism for one basic reason. That reason pertains to the financial backing of a film—large or small. The movie industry will graciously accept any money a backer wants to use for the purpose of putting out a film, but they will not support a film that contains a poor story, poor performers and anything which appears poor — regardless of how much money is used to back it. Why? The reason is quite simple.

Stanley Kramer has never produced a dud movie (with the possible exception of "The Wild One" that Marlon Brando saved) and by thus doing this he has made a name for himself to the public. He has numerous "credits" which make his services wanted everywhere. The public trusts him and he trusts the public. When he started he was not known half as well as several producers, but he went to work gathering a good story, exceptional actors and fine technicians. He showed this to financial backers. Most of the time he was turned down—but then he found the backers for "The Men," the film which introduced Marlon Brando to the public. With that Columbia put him under contract and Cyrano de Bergerac and My Six Convicts again sounded his name. Now, an independent producer, he has no doubt where he can get his backing, but if it wasn't for his reputation of building audience respect he wouldn't be able to film the Gabors who would do it for nothing.

Through the years Hollywood has learned what the public wants and they fool nobody about this fact. If the public wants trash—they'll get trash as long as they'll buy it . . . but believe it or not, the trash must be good trash (if you know what I mean). Hollywood's innovations are rare and when millions are concerned and careers at stake, it's quite understandable.

The industry knows how to fight competition. Three-Dimensional films and CinemaScope are good examples of a way to fight it. The films are joining industries such as records (Universal has tied up with Decca and their musicals m's stars are being recorded. MGM is signing its top disc performers, etc.) and radio (Paramount pictures has bought top shares in the ABC network). Twentieth Century Fox is building video-films studios. Columbia pictures has the Screen Gems film company releasing exclusively to to television). It's a big business alright and the movies have certainly grown by leaps and bounds. And to think it all started with a horse running past a fleet of cameras. Hmm . . . from little acorns grow California oak trees. THIS IS NOT THE END, BUT THE BEGINNING.

SURFACE NOISE

. . . Look for "The Ballad of Davey Crockett" by Bill Hayes on Cadence to zoom to the top . . . we've been talking for several weeks about Georgia Gibbs' recording of "Tweedle-Dee" . . . it's number eight on Billboard's Hit Chart . . . Victor records reports 100 per cent increase in sales due to price cut . . . Tallahassee Little Theater production "Little Foxes" surprisingly good . . . shows last time tonight . . . Jack Carson whose dramatic talents were glimpsed in "A Star Is Born" is slated for video's U. S. Steel Hour tonight! . . . Jackie Gleason's new Capitol album tops them all.

Letters To The Flambeau

Faith Is Vital

To the Editor:

Believing that faith in the Creator's goodness and purposefulness is vital for civilization and individuals, may I point out some serious fallacies in Intelligent Faith Week in a constructive way.

First, why should college students be offered a program labeled "intelligent faith" which is so obviously packaged and handed down? Why should a professional team, sent by a particular protestant Christian organization, going from college to college across the country, present the one concerted rallying of religious faith on our campus?

For that matter, after Christian Civilization has destroyed a good share of the natural beauty, creatures, and wealth of the planet with irreligious industrialism and pathologic urbanism, inflicted on Mankind two global wars, blow up tens of thousands of defenceless women and children with atomic bombs and spawned the Hitler gas chambers, how after this can Christianity presume to be the intelligeot faith?

Next year why not have at least one Negro on the panel? Negroes too are members of the human race. They too know something about faith thanks especially to Christian slavery. And instead of a religious Juggernaut from outer space why couldn't the students of the University — Protestant, Catholic, Jew, Moslem, Hindu, Buddhist — perhaps inviting a few "experts," and all with contrite hearts and minds for what we have done and will do present a program worthy of the spirit of the times?

Multitudes, multitudes
In the Valley of Decision
TOM MORRILL

Logic

To the Editor:

Whether or not a man may be allowed to express his opinions is no longer open to question. It follows from this that no man may object to M. Gutting expressing his opinion concerning the recent actions of the State Board of Control in regard to athletic competition in this state. By the same token, no man may object to the freedom of M. Bailey to have his opinions. At this point, similarity becomes non-existent concerning the two published opinions especially with respect to elegance.

The opinions of M. Gutting were accompanied by citations of salient fact and undeniable conclusions based on a consideration of human nature under existing conditions; the opinions of M. Bailey were apparently generated by a jaunt to a local hashish house.

If the foregoing be considered too harsh, an examination of some of M. Bailey's comments might prove fruitful.

1. "Mr. Gutter-er-Gutting has just seen the movie 'Chicago Deadline' . . . has a Humphrey Bogart complex."

(No proof of statement offered; opinions are permissable, but when made in public should be substantiated.)

2. "Mr. Gutting has made an unfair and childish attack on Coach Woodruff".

(Attack? Yes! Unfair? Doubtful. Childish? The undersigned respectfully refers the Editor to the quotes in (1) above; no further refutation deemed necessary.)

3. "I am sure Coach Woodruff has the best interests of FSU . . . in his thinking".

(The football team too, I suppose.)

4. "Trash, like Gutting's Ravings, can set back the peaceful co-existence 50 years".

(Non fundamentum in re. Peaceful co-existence is determined by the respective faculties, administrations, staffs, and students bodies of the schools, and in part by the state administration. If the statements made by one columnist in one column, in one campus newspaper, can so determine the coming future of athletic status of the two universities in question, then the aforementioned individuals and bodies are entirely incompetent. Needless to say, the other alternative is the more logically tenable.)

There are merely a few points in favor of my thesis stated in paragraph two of this MS. more will be supplied on demand.

Sincerely
ROBERT J. CRAMER

Background

To the Editor:

I have just finished reading Mr. Bailey's article criticizing my brother's article.

I do not mind if he has an honest difference of opinion of other peoples thinking, but this was very obviously a slam at my brother's character.

Mr. Bailey seems to be under the impression that my brother is a freshman from some small town in Florida who has never left the county he was born in.

I would like to point out that during the last year of World War II when the Germans were still sinking ships right and left, my brother was sailing those ships across the Atlantic. At the time he was only 15 years old! He quit high school (which was in Chicago, a good-sized town in Illinois) and used my birth certificate to order to get his sailing papers with the Merchant Marine.

Upon turning 18 (1948) my brother enlisted in the Marine Corps, served 11 months in Korea with an Infantry company, and participated in the assault and capture of Inchon, the seizure of Seoul, and the Wonson-Hunanam-Chosin campaigns, to mention a few of the operations he took part in.

In the eight years my brother served this country he has received numerous decorations and awards, including a Letter of Commendation from President Truman in 1946.

I would suggest Mr. Bailey, before writing any more trash, check the background of the person you wish to blast.

Sincerely,
DICK GUTTING

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"I've got one student that I dread to see put up his hand."

From Other Colleges

String Those Firecrackers Up!

During a war it's not uncommon to see or hear of someone suffering with battle nerves. Some people react to sudden noises so violently that it leaves them in a state of shock. Of course, there have been no reports of "battle nerves" from the dormitories but there would have been reason enough. Maybe State men just don't react to sudden noises but probably the truth is that they curse, light a cigarette and settle down again. Firecrackers!

The firecracker problem in some of the dorms has reached a surprisingly high pitch. The sudden reports of firecrackers, repeating bombs and other explosives have been disrupting the sleep and study of students for years but there is no excuse for it. This year the problem has grown worse. Exam time brings tight nerves and firecrackers don't help any.

If the Student Government's Judicial Board gets cases of violation of the dormitory rules on firecrackers, its pretty certain that little sympathy will be shown. The Judicial Board has already tried several cases with apparent wise judgment. Certainly the students who commit these violations have no place at State college. They should be sent home, not just a suspension but expulsion, and their case turned over to the courts for it is a violation of the North Carolina state laws to own or to fire fireworks. It may be a harsh law but the dormitory is no place for such foolery.

Firecrackers exploding disrupt study which is the purpose behind the college. Students who are awakened from their sleep are deprived of their rest which is essential to effective classroom performance. It is a minority who are infringing on the rights of the majority of those living in the dormitories and it is these few who should be sought out.

The Judicial Board's sole purpose is to try students who violate the Student Government's Constitution and By-Laws. Violators certainly should be turned over to this body as it has the power to act and it has capable men to judge. However, the affectiveness of dormitory action could possibly be very decisive in quieting this cacophony. The dormitory man concerned have a better chance of finding the offenders than do outsiders and sometimes the effect of threatened action can do a great deal to eliminate a sore spot. More than one boy has quit playing pranks when his father appeared with a paddle.

—from The NC State Technician

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors: Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors: Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff: Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor: David Dreis
Photographer: Lloyd Anderson

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editor: Pat Martin
Rewrite Editor: Margaret Miller
Art Consultant: Frank Adams
Cartoonist: Con Horn
Junior Staff: Mary Reeve, Ann Stanley, Brantley, Potevin

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager: Irma Cox
Distribution: Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity
Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821
211-213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff: Frank Follett, Nina Ryle
Business Staff: Jeanette Pickett, Mary Dreisler
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

Everybody has followers. Dogs do. Jim McCarthy has Roy Rogers and Woodruff has James S. Reed.

Population Compared

Ivy Hamilton's business major is right. I was a copy boy for Two Big High Times. The way I recorded in Chicago had population of almost four hundred. The population of Gutterport is five thousand. So it also points out he has a Seminole fan longer than me. This is undoubtedly true, since the time he was twenty-odd off I was freezing mice with the Marine Corps infantry in such balmy places as the Chosin Reservoir.

In Agreement

In one spot I do agree with Ivy—if I also think Coach Woodruff is a very capable coach—as I do not remember challenging him, and I, too, am glad that Woodruff also thinks.

Ivy also does not like my awful sports adjectives for his club. I like I talk. If he would like to correct my speech, the Flambeau first house is located at 536 College Ave.

All Far It

In his relations with U of F I think Coach Woodruff is far out of line. If it can be proven that Mr. Woodruff also thinks as I do this line I will gladly retract my statement I have made to the contrary.

About Sports Cars

A friend of mine has been asking me to write an article on sports cars "after all, you're a sports editor". To select just one sports car worthy of comment and praise would be difficult. However, I believe I have found the idea model! It is not a Jaguar, MG, or Rolls Royce. The ear of beauty I have selected is none other than—THE CLUNK.

On a good day, this vehicle may be seen going off more steam than a Stanley Steamer. But looks are deceiving.

Strange Riders

Composed of one fifth stock and four-fifths who knows what, this piece of transportation usually nervas co-owners Bernstein and Mendler members of Tallahassa town and Delta Tau Delta, any girls foolish enough to accept a ride and assorted dozens of beetles and bugs.

Geared down to the level where it only eats up in quarts of 40 weight oil a day, this amazing throwback to the stone age is dear to the hearts of the casuals, who wouldn't consider selling it—for less than 60 bucks!

Getting back to human beings?

Theodore Rodriguez the terror of Tallahassee Junior College is back rich with the mere purchase of a pair of his dad's Cadillacs. We never watch this boy, he may end up owning the Student Center.

Miles, Holder Make Pan Am Team

Gym Stars—Jack Miles (L) and Don Holder, who placed third Saturday at the Pan American Olympic tryouts in Chicago. Both boys will leave for Mexico City in late March.

Hatters Beaten By Seminoles; Teachers Win

FSU guard Jimmy Oler set a new all-time FSU and state record for one season of 304 points as the Seminole cagers downed Stetson last night, 86-71. Oler will have a change to add to this tonight when FSU meets Georgia in championship.

The Professors whipped Stetson 96-76 in the first game of last night's twin bill. Tonight's winner will represent the Fla.-Ga. entry in the NAIA tournament in Kansas City, Mo., March 7-12.

Oler broke his old mark for outscoring 14 points to become the first collegiate player in Florida basketball history to rack up 300 points in a single season. He came up with five field goals and eight free throws for 18 points. His total came on a free throw with 1:06 of the second half game. The old FSU record, 458, was set by Bob Hartman in 1951.

Center Gary Wold had his best night this season, leading FSU scorers with 21 points. FSU's All-Automatic Hain Wernke, contributed 17, besides playing his usually fine floor game.

Per Stetson, forward Davis Howard scored 20 points, while Jim Kitchens and Dick Layer with 11 each.

The Seminoles drew out in front from the start and held a lead throughout the numerous scoring changes. Stetson, their shooting hot and cold closed the gap, only to have FSU quickly rebuild a commanding margin. In the first half, the Hatters drew up to 39-26, but from the throws by Wold and a lay-up by Wernke stopped the threat. At half-time FSU led 50-36.

In the second half, Stetson lowered the margin to 60-54. A field goal and two free throws by Rick Benson, along with a technical foul called on the Seminole coach for protesting a decision, and netted by Wernke, extended FSU's gap once more.

Late in the game, they threatened again, 78-72, but a field goal by Benson, Oler and Twomey wound up the affair. Fifty personal fouls, four by Oler, 37 for Stetson, marred the contest.

FSU	FG	FT	TP
Armentrout, f	1	0	2
Benson, f	4	1	9
Wold, c	7	7	21
Williams, c	1	0	2
Wernke, g	7	3	17
Oler, g	5	8	18
Waller, g	2	0	4
	28	19	86

STETSON	FG	FT	TP
Howard, f	8	4	20
Blake, f	4	3	11
Kitchens, c	5	1	11
Lanier, c	1	0	2
Layer, g	3	5	11
Crumpton, g	3	2	8
Gregory, g	6	1	13
	30	16	76

Referees: Lee Williams and Bill Hollis.

Swedish Team Wins Contest; Women Gymnasts Thrill Crowd

By ROB GUTTING

Jack Miles and Don Holder will finished second and third at the Pan American Tryouts, thus securing a place on the Pan Am Olympic team.

Capping first in the all-around event was Chicago's Jack Beckner. Jack, who is in the army and recently returned from Germany, obtained special leave to attend the meet.

Beckner army competitor was Bill Beetzelaim. she graduated from FSU two years ago. Bill was a member of the 1948 and 1952 Olympic team and one of this country's outstanding gymnasts. At the tryouts in Chicago Bill was definitely out of shape and placed seventh.

Scores for the first three places were: Beckner 214.1, Miles 212.4 and Holder 211.8.

Fourth place went to Grose field, a newcomer to the game. Fifth was taken by Kotze a member of the 1952 Olympic team and sixth place was won by Dick Beckner, Jack's brother.

Rafael Levitsa, a sophomore, will also attend the meet in March, but he will represent his native Cuba.

In the special competition, FSU's Dick Ireland placed second on trampoline being beaten in the event by a newcomer.

Only one trampoline man will be taken to Mexico City this March, which eliminates Dick from the trip.

Although happy about winning the tryouts, Miles and Holder expressed regret at the fact that they were unable to compete against the Swedish team Saturday. There was no team competition at the Swedish meet, but the unofficial score was 52.70 in favor of the touring Swedes.

Last year however, FSU upset the internationally famous Swedes in a meet that did count on the record. Score of that meet was 50½-48½.

Saturday's competition was based on individual competition. Top contenders for the title are Malmlin of Sweden and Lucons of FSU. Malmlin won the long horse and calisthenics events and finished a close second in the parallel bars and still rings, while Lucons captured the side horse and parallel bars events.

Joe Taylor retained the title he won against the Swedes last year. He took first on the still rings with a spectacular performance. The win was only other first for FSU.

Final tally had the Swedes winning four and FSU taking three, but the Swedish team edged out FSU in number of second and third place wins and thus had the most team points.

Not to be overlooked are the exhibitions staged by a group of Swedish woman gymnasts. Wearing blue tights the Swedish girls thrilled the crowed with precision drills on a narrow balance beam and uneven parallel bars.

The girls returned later in white costumes for a team ball competition to piano accompaniment. The former was a final place winner in the 1952 Olympics at Helsinki.

The exhibition was completed by rapid-fire high table vaulting by the Swedish men.

All Lettermen

There will be an "F" Club meeting Wednesday at 7:30 at the Woman's gym.

Coach Danny Litwhiler will be the guest speaker and will give a talk on his experiences in professional baseball.

It promises to be the most interesting meeting this year and all members are urged to be present.

Sports-At-A-Glance

TUESDAY—Basketball, District 18 NAIA tournament championship game, Florida High gym 8:15 p. m.

SATURDAY—Golf, FSU vs Rollins, Tallahassee Country Club.

Committee On

(Continued From Page 1)

report at next Wednesday's Senate session, Moore said.

The regular meeting of the full Senate tomorrow will consider a by bill relating to representation—that of Senator Jimmy Boles which would provide that a box to be maintained in every dormitory housing more than 100 students during elections.

The Senate will also consider, at tomorrow afternoon's meeting to be held at 4:15 in the Senate Chamber, the appointment of Mary the Garrett to replace Bonnie Secretary Mary Grace Shoemaker who leaves the latter is interning.

Figures don't lie but girdles condense the truth—the Universal of Oklahoma Daily

Thinclads Make Debut At Chapel Hill ACC Games

By LARRY HOUNTHA

Florida State's varsity track team made their 1955 debut on last Fri 26th, in the Atlantic Coast Conference Indoor Games at Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

The ACC games, considered a southern classic annually attracts powerful entries. This year's edition saw 400 athletes on deck, representing 23 colleges.

The Seminoles competing in the non-conference division, ran into stiff opposition from strong Navy, VMI, U of P, George Tech and Alabama groups in the final standings however, FSU placed 6th out of 15 non-conference schools.

The Indian mile relay took a second in the one-con event, a semi- beaten only by a strong Navy quartet. Split times were Joe Davis :52.8, Larry Hounthanell :52.7, Jerry Terwilliger :53.6 and Charley Watson :52.3.

Tenny Brown created the high jump bar at 6 ft. to gain a tie for second place and a new school record. Lolo Lassen cleared the bar at 5 ft 10 in. just missing a tie for fourth place.

The 60-yd dash saw freshman flash Jack Terwilliger run a close second to Bommer Wilson, U of P star who won the event in 06.2.

Frosh Vernon Dure, running his first race for FSU failed to place in the finals, but turned in the fastest mile of his career 4 35.6, just 03.4 off the school record. Ken Sermer, soph middle distance man, won his preliminary heat in the 880 in the good time of 2:01.7, but failed to gain a place in the final.

Seminole weight men Carlos Pfeiffer and Mike Smith took 6th and 7th in their event. Carlos also took an 8th in the broadjump.

Warren Strickland, FSU vault ace, jumped to a tie for fourth place Joe Davis and Charley Watson running in the 60 yd. dash and 70 yd. low hurdles respectively, reached the semis but did not qualify for the finals. Bill Speedy Osterhoudt reached the finals.

The next chance the Seminole thinclads will have to show their stuff will be on March 5th and 6th, days. March 26th, at Gainesville.

Advertising Executives To Hold District Conference Here, March

Advertising executives from all over the Southeast will meet here March 31-Apr 1st for the Southeastern District Conference.

The conference will feature such prominent speakers in the field as John Mather Lupton

Lupton who heads the New York advertising agency bearing his name, will present his "Tool of Advertising" address.

Mr. Lupton adopts largely visual approach in showing management how various advertising and selling tools can be put to work in well planned coordinated programs.

The Advertising Federation of America has called this the finest district conference in the United States. It is open to all persons interested in advertising and related fields.

31st Annual Meet

This meeting will be the 31st annual educational conference of the fourth district Advertising Federation of America. Meeting in the conference will be district organizations of Alpha Delta Sigma and Gamma Alpha Chi, men's and women's national advertising fraternities, and the Outdoor Advertising Association of Florida.

Lupton's performance centers on the George Babbitt and in the Trophy Room of the Student Center.

The offbeat hotel for the convention is the Hotel Floridan.

Accommodations for the conference will be made at the Hotel Floridan, Tallahassee.

Information concerning registration may be obtained from Ryan H. Ray, Advertising Department, Florida State University.

Reservations for rooms should be made directly with the Hotel

NEWMAN CLUB HONORS ATHLETES

Tom Nugent was guest of honor at the banquet honoring Catholic athletes. Awards were presented to those who participated in physical events at the Newman Club House.

Football awards were given to Al Makowski, Leo Carso and Tom Nugent. Kay Pieper was the holder of the swimming honor while Barbara Rynski and Pat Fraher were given Gamkana awards.

Basketball and basketball laurels went to Fred Twomey and Tom Garnus. Representing Track in the athletics was Jerry Jacobs.

Awards were presented by Father S. Profatia, Newman Club advisor, which were for excellence, achievement in the field of sports and the maintenance of the high ideals of Catholic thought.

Cecilia Jacobs, president of the club, acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Kimpel, Mall Receive Alpha Gam Awards

Karen Kimpel recently received the Most Outstanding Pledge award and Evelyn Mall the Outstanding Active award of the Gamma Delta sorority.

Initiated last Thursday were Mary Kay Barnett, Dorothy Colip, Barbara Emmett, Betty Jean Fick, Judy Haley, Ruth Johnson, Barbara Keesler, Karen Kimpel, Penny Land, Ginny Meir, Evelyn Moll, Gary Mosley, Jo Ellen McKnight, Margaret Pittman, Martha Jane Snyder, Joan Sternoine, Mary Ann Smith, Dana Rogers, Rose Ann Gaskin, Jo Robertson, Bobbie Ann Turner, Sally Williams.

SCHOLARSHIP AVAILABLE TO TYPERCLASS MEN

Delta Brothers Scholarship award is available for male typerclassmen, preferably Seniors, with a good academic standing, good character, and financial need, who have resided at least 10 years, pre-use to entering FSU, in Florida, Georgia, Alabama or Kentucky. The scholarship varies from $100 to $200 per year according to need and becomes effective in September.

For further information see Mrs. Bailey in 205 Westcott before March 31.

SENIOR LIFE SAVING COURSE STARTS MONDAY

A Red Cross Senior Life Saving course will start Monday, March 7, meeting in the Women's Gym on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m.

TALLAHASSEE LITTLE THEATER
Exciting New Production
"THE LITTLE FOXES"
by LILLIAN HELLMAN'S Dramatic Triumph
TONIGHT at 8:15
LAST PERFORMANCE
ALFRIEND MALL
Lee. Calhoun & Call Sts.
50c FOR STUDENTS

HERBERT TARYETON
CIGARETTES

Filter Tip
MODERN SIZE
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
gives you the full, rich taste of quality tobacco and real filtration, too!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

COLLEGE CARNIVAL
April 2-18
$12 a day on this exciting ISLAND PARADISE in the Gulf of Mexico
Here's where the college crowd will gather during the Easter vacation... miles of white beach, moonlight dancing, free golf, water skiing and, this year, the FIRST ANNUAL INTERCOLLEGIATE TARPON TOURNEY for college men and women. Famed Boca Grande Pass is alive with fighting tarpon, under rock, blue fish and some 30 other species for evening entertainment. Here's the elegant Tarpon Room, indoor movies, dance contests and college song fests. You'll be treated like a prince for $12.00 a day, including breakfast and dinner.
BOCA GRANDE
Boca Grande hotel
BOCA GRANDE, FLORIDA
Reservations and Information
WRITE FOR RESERVATIONS

50 million times a day at home, at work or on the way
There's nothing like a Coke
1. FOR TASTE... bright, bracing, ever-fresh sparkle.
2. FOR REFRESHMENT... quick energy, with no more calories or half no average, juicy grapefruit.
DRINK Coca-Cola
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY
TALLAHASSEE COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.
"Coke" is a registered trade mark © 1955 THE COCA COLA COMPANY

TVA EMPLOYMENT
A TVA Representative will conduct interviews with U. S. Arts Seniors At The Placement Office On March 2.

ENJOY EATING IN THE
F. S. U.
SEMINOLE CLUB

PLATE SPECIALS TONIGHT
GRILLED HAM 65c
TEXAS HASH (Fresh Ground Beef) 50c
ROAST BEEF 65c
CHOICE OF VEGETABLES AND SALADS WITH FRESH DINNER ROLLS

FRIDAY IS DATE NIGHT
BY CANDLE LIGHT IN THE
SEMINOLE CLUB

Mermen Trim Emory, 58-24; Cop Three At Georgia AAU

Florida State mermen scored victories in two meets over the weekend, including a 58-24 pasEmory University.

The Seminoles swept nine out of 11 places to clinch their second straight undefeated dual meet season Emory Friday.

Phi also established two pool marks in the 400-yard freestyle relay and the 200-yard medley—and a school record in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Freshman star Graham Phillips swam the 400-yard freestyle—and a school record—in 4:26.7, topping Walt Jarvis' 1951 school record by three seconds, handily recorded.

The Georgia AAU Swimming Over Saturday, FSU swimmers copped three first wins and was first in the 100-yard relay. John Risher headed second in the 100-yard backstroke and Ernie Stock won the second individual medley to make this FSU team aon second medley.

THE SUMMARIES
MEN'S 100-YARD FREESTYLE—1. Ted Butterly (Emory) 2. Hal Smith, FSU; 3. Bud Buckley, Tech; Marion Lee, Georgia. Time 1:00.4.
MEN'S 100-YARD BACKSTROKE—1. Jack Risher, FSU; 2. Jack Bowen, Georgia; 3. Bill Mixon, Georgia. Time 1:08.
MEN'S 100-YARD FREESTYLE—1. Ernie Stock, FSU; 2. Joe Phillips, Georgia; 3. Gordon Fuller, Georgia. Time 1:00.4.
MEN'S 100-YARD BREASTSTROKE—1. John Weber, FSU; 2. Tom Richardson, Swimming Club; 3. Bob Bowen, Emory. Time 1:16.
MEN'S 400-YARD FREESTYLE—1. Graham Phillips, FSU; 2. Walt Jarvis, FSU; 3. Bud Buckley, Tech. Time 4:26.7.
MEN'S 400-YARD MEDLEY—1. Jack Risher, Buddy Tidwell, J. Hal Smith, FSU; 2. Georgia; 3. Emory. Time 4:26.7.
MEN'S 200-YARD FREESTYLE—1. Ernie Stock, FSU; 2. Joe Phillips, Georgia; 3. Gordon Fuller, Georgia. Time 2:17.
MEN'S 200-YARD BACKSTROKE—1. Jack Risher, FSU; 2. Jack Bowen, Georgia; 3. Bill Mixon, Georgia. Time 2:34.4.
MEN'S 200-YARD BREASTSTROKE—1. John Weber, FSU; 2. Tom Richardson, Swimming Club; 3. Bob Bowen, Emory. Time 2:47.
MEN'S 400-YARD FREESTYLE RELAY—1. FSU (Graham Phillips, Buddy Tidwell, Hal Smith, Ernie Stock); 2. Georgia; 3. Emory. Time 3:57.
MEN'S 200-YARD MEDLEY RELAY—1. FSU (Jack Risher, John Weber, Ernie Stock); 2. Georgia; 3. Emory. Time 2:07.
DIVING—1. Bill Hall, Georgia; 2. Bill Stuckey, FSU; 3. Bill Hall, Georgia. Points 157.35.

Ten Seniors Selected For Annual Hall Of Fame

Include Six Politicians, 1 Independent

Ten outstanding Seniors in the class of 1955 have been named to Florida State University's Hall of Fame

Selection for the honor is through nomination by organizations, and is based on achievement in two major and one minor activities A scholastic average of two points is considered among the major activities by the selection committee

Among those selected, six had no one of their major fields of concentration politics. Of the group, nine were affiliated with a national social sorority or fraternity Franklin Adams was the sole independent.

Franklin Adams was chosen for his work in drama, art, organizations and scholastic achievement.

Martha Garrett was honored for her scholastic achievements, organizations, sorority presidency and Mortar Board presidency.

Betty Ja Grubbs was chosen for her work in politics, sorority presidency, organizations and scholastic achievement.

Jack Hoover was honored for his achievements in scholastic, organizations politics, fraternity presidency and Omicron Delta Kappa presidency.

Martha Sue Humphreys was chosen per her work in organizations, music, university functions and scholastic achievement.

Phoebe Jackson was honored for her scholastic organization, political and sorority presidency achievements.

Dave Kennedy was chosen for his work with organizations, politics athletics and publications.

Peter Nimkoff was honored for his scholastic achievement, and work on organizations, fraternity presidency athletics speech and politics.

Alan Sundberg was chosen for his scholastic achievement, and work on organizations, fraternity presidency and Interfraternity Council presidency.

Betty Ann Munroe was honored for achievement in politics, university functions athletics and organizations

The ten Hall of Fame members will have their pictures published in the forthcoming issue of Tally Ho, university yearbook

LET'S ALL SING GOOD AND LOUD!

CARTHAGE Ill.— ACP — Prof. Orville Rogers, dean of that Carthage College students are checked for attendance at chapel by secretaries sitting in a balcony behind the students adopt the theme song.

"When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There."

'A Star Is Born' Ends Tonight; 'Vera Cruz,' 'Melba' On Way

By TANN HAMMOND

Gong, gong, gong, ever to media, A Star Is Born from this area.

If, after a week's run, anyone has missed the movie, he should take time to correct his error. He couldn't help but enjoy the singing and acting of Judy Garland which equals that of her show, The Wizard of Oz.

Tonight is also the last time Nicholas Nickleby plays here. The general reaction to this bit of information is, So what?". This movie is the more version of guys, good and bad, guns, and a girl, plus Indians. Any regular movie-goer can take it from there.

Vera Cruz Starts

Vera Cruz, opening tomorrow at the Florida, is much the same, but on a higher scale with the actors of Gary Cooper and Burt Lancaster and the charms of Denise Darcel.

It has a plus something called CinemaScope which gives two feet in a fifth for every foot of height. This make a movie better? Filmed in Mexico they grant divorces there as well as scenery; the plot has a tie-in with Revolution of 1856.

The State Theatre, starting tomorrow, offers gore, sick double-crosses, blood spatters, robbery, and a moral—be loyal one. Crime doesn't Pay"—in Six Bridges To Cross. The plot, taken from the novel, "The Anatomy of a Crime" gives Tony Curtis something to do besides flex his muscles. He acts. With the support of Julie Adams and George Nader.

At The Ritz

Hobson's Choice opens tonight at the Ritz Art Theatre starring Charles Laughton and John Mills. As a blustering proud Laughton scores another hit in this English film comedy of marriages and manners.

Keeping up the high quality of movies in the Ritz is "Melba" which runs Thursday through Sunday starring Patrice Munsel in the musical film biography of Nellie Melba the soprano who was in a class with Caruso and Jenny Lind, the story deals with her life in the courts of Europe. The influence of Oscar Hammerstein brings her to New York after giving a Command Performance before Queen Victoria.

FIC Slates March Merit Examination For Public Works

Graduates who have majored in psychology, education, business administration, or public administration are being offered a number of positions through the Florida Industrial Commission

The positions available are superintendent, engineer, safety representatives, Employment counselor, Interviewer and Tabulating equipment operator.

Candidates for counseling positions must have course work in counseling, testing measurement and related areas to qualify These positions are open to both men and women.

A Merit System examination will be given in Tallahassee on March 5, for candidates for positions for these examinations will not be accepted after February 9. Interested persons may obtain applications in the Office of Vocational Guidance at Jacksonville 308 Westcott

The starting salary for these positions range from $245 a month to $330 a month Opportunities for advancement exists. Those graduates who achieve a good record in their entry positions.

Admission Exams To Medical School Scheduled In May

Medical College Admission Test will be given Saturday, May 7, and Monday, October 31, 1955, announcement was issued to Florida State University pre-med students planning to enter medical college in the Fall of 1956 by pre-med counselor Dr. Kenneth Roberts. For further details, Dr. Rogers said to contact either himself or Dr. E. P. McCullough of the Test Service Bureau.

Required of applicants for admission to almost every medical college in the country, the MCAT consists of tests of general scholastic ability, a test on comprehension of modern society, and an achievement test in science.

Veteran News

Servicemen who entered the armed forces on or before January 31 are entitled to earn up to 36 months of education and training under the provisions of a new law extending Korean GI Bill benefits.

The law changes a previous presidential proclamation which had set January 31 as the cutoff point for GI Bill benefits. Before enactment of the new law, a man who went on active duty January 1, 1955, for example, could have earned entitlement only through the end of January—or about a month and a half of benefits. Now he can build up training time for as long as he remains on active duty.

KAPPA SIGMA PLEDGES NINE

New Kappa Sigma fraternity pledges are Gene J. Carfano, Bryan Chisolm Jr., Lovan T. Harmon, Gary Lipe James H. Scott, James Stanley Robert D. Swaim, Billy F. Parrish and Michael Hillegas.

Marine Corps Procuring Program Offers College Students Officer's Training Plan

The United States Marine Corps is currently accepting applications from college and university students for membership in its officer training program.

Programs are the Platoon Leaders Class open to qualified Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors.

Education Faculty Pen Articles In Magazines On Teaching Problems

Recent articles published by the faculty of the School of Education are Basic Science Learning Essential to Children and Youth" in Educational Leadership January, 1955, by Dr. Julian Greene, professor of Education.

"Continuity of Learning" in Childhood Education, January, 1955, by Dr. W. T. Edwards, professor of Education.

"Development of a State-Wide Program of Teacher Education in Educational Administration and Supervision, January, 1955, by Dr. Marian W Black, associate professor of Education.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA SLATES RECEPTION

Tom Dumper, pledge master of Alpha Phi Omega, announced that an informal reception will be held February 22, from 7.30 to 9 30 p m in the Student Lounge of the Longmire Building. The reception is open to all who would like to look into the program and activities of the fraternity.

Job Opportunities

Interviews may be scheduled with those representatives by visiting or phoning Ext. 2201, Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 308 Westcott.

Tuesday, March 1

Procter & Gamble
Interviewer Chase Bishop, W R. Grace
Training Sales Representatives
Note Graduating and interested candidates Monday at 4 p.m. in 308 Westcott

Wednesday March 2
Tennessee Valley Authority
Interviewer Howard Hill
Positions Field Cartography, and Art Major

Pickett and Belcher Educational Loan Fund
Interviewer Guy B Beasley.
Note Graduate Students
Hours Appointments between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. at 308 Westcott

Thursday, March 3
Crane Co
Interviewer R. B. Robertson
Wanted Insurance Advisers (any major)

Friday, March 4
Southern Railway System
Interviewer R J McFarland.
Wanted Business Majors (also men facing draft).
Note Interviewing at 4 p.m. Thursday in 308 Westcott.

Monday, March 7
Prudential Insurance Co
Interviewer A W Emmons
Wanted Business Majors, Accounting Arts & Sciences

FSU Debators Place Second, Miami First In Annual Tourney

Florida State University placed second in debate at its own Annual International Debate Tournament, held here last week.

The University of Miami took first place in debate and impromptu speaking, and second place in oratory. Miami compiled 69 sweepstakes points with awarded them the sweepstakes trophy for the fourth straight year. Howard College of Birmingham followed with 49 points, and FSU finished third with 33

Miami Wins

Miami won 10 out of 12 debates to top that part of the tourney. Georgia, Howard and Florida debates won nine out of 12 to tie for second place with Spring Hill College finishing third.

Superior debate teams on the negative side of the Red China question were Miami; Pittsburgh, and Mississippi State College for Women. Superior debate teams on the negative were Miami, Georgia, Tech, and Spring Hill College. Best individual debaters in the tournament was Barbara Odell of Miami with Guy Zaccaro of Spring Hill in second place.

Others rating superior ratings were Mary Elizabeth Jongeblood of Spring Hill Gaddom Posey of Mississippi State College for Women, James O'Toole of Georgia, Bob Thomas of the East University of Pittsburgh, Gerald Kosan of Miami, and Tom Woods and Bert Duperrouset of FSU

Morris Gets Certificate

Certificates of excellence in after-dinner speaking were to Danny Morris of FSU and Bill King of Emory University.

Fifteen schools from seven states took part in the two-day tournament. They are Alabama State Teachers College, North Carolina, University of Pittsburgh, College of William and Mary, Emory University, University of Georgia, Georgia Tech, Howard College Spring Hill College, Mississippi Southern Mississippi State College for Women.

Four Florida schools competing were Miami, Florida, Stetson University of Tampa and FSU Dr Orrea Pfifer associate professor of speech at FSU served as tournament director Assisted by Dr. Wayne C Minnick and Miss Elizabeth Flory.

Twenty-Two Music Seniors Get Ready For Intern Semester

Twenty-two FSU seniors will receive full time experience in the practical teaching of music under local directing teachers, the University School and Dr. Elizabeth Gest, associate professor of music co-ordinator Dr Elmer Hutchens announced.

Interns in music education are Mary Anne Baurline, Florida; Joseph Cook, Patricia Cummins, Calvin Hasbrouck, Delano Driver, Elizabeth Hayes, Elizabeth Hayes, Ray Kotkhuber, Mary Ann Williams, Jamie Hood Sugarman, Martha Rose Humphreys, Gail Jackson, Lynn Jones, Barbara Mayo Bill Poppler, Jean Rohme, Joyce Thomas, Barbara Wills, Shirley Trader, Dan Van Nus and James E Wallis Jr

Ten school of music seniors who interned the fall semester are, Nell Bradham, Hyrold Cooper, Jo Ann Cooper, William Holladon, Robert McMillen, Vic Miccinas, Grace Schnatzman Smith, Norma Semmelkamp, John Stanley and Lucree Williams.

AKP Opens Cooperative House For Membership

Alpha Kappa Psi, business fraternity, has announced the opening of its co-operative living house at 81 West Jefferson.

The house will be headquarters for the members' annual subscription drive now in progress. which ends March 1.

Time, Life, Fortune and Sports Illustrated have been on sale at the Student Center and Dining Hall at lunch and dinner hours during the campaign.

This Is Larceny!

By JOE CALDWELL
Business Manager

Parsley and staff members aren't! You have been charged with an unlawful act. Of what type? Larceny!

For even faculty and staff members have been walking up to a stack of Flambeaus and picking up a copy as they do. For those who are guilty of this act I will hasten to explain that this is LARCENY!

The Florida Flambeau, as other organizations in the university, operates under a budget appropriated by the University Senate Budget Committee

This budget calls for total receipts of $19,000. $10,000 from 4,000 students at $2.50 each and $9,000 from their activity fee. The remaining $9,000 is received from sale of advertising

The Flambeau is at present printing 3 800 copies and cannot receive approval of expenditures for additional copies. It is generally accepted that there are more than that number of students attending the university. Therefore the Flambeau business staff is to print sufficient papers for the demand but here enters the villain—BUDGET 513—money for this purpose is not available

Every week we are running short of Flambeaus and student are sometimes with their orders yet a copy. Here is the answer—our registration counts 5184 students our receipts are for 4,000 students. Not counting the Flambeaus picked up by faculty and staff members this leaves about 3 4 of a Flambeau per student. Even students in college hate not learned to share that well!

The whole problem boils down to 41 1,364 students are getting Flambeaus who have paid but for whom the Flambeau has not been paid +2 a stack must be placed at every stack of Flambeaus to keep light fingered faculty and staff members from making off with copies

With +1 + 2 we still have the sub-problem that although we have not been paid for 1,364 students still they are entitled to the paper

In regards to +2 , the University Directory lists approximately 2000 staff and faculty members. They will be refunded to know The Flambeau offers subscriptions for $2.50 per regular school year and $1.25 per semester.

EGAD! MORE LUCKY DROODLES!

ELEVATOR ARRIVING AT 8TH FLOOR OF A DEPT. STORE
Gerry R. Harding
University of Kansas

BEING LOOKING FOR LOST BET
James U. Cressy
Colorado State College

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see pornograph below.

MOTORCYCLE COP SEEN IN HEAD-VIEW MIRROR AT NIGHT
Frank Skinner
University of Maryland

SECRET JET FIGHTER PHOTOGRAPHED AT UNCONVENTIONAL SPOT
Norman Arkoff
UCLA

IN THE DARK about which cigarette to smoke? Take a hint from the Droodle above, titled: Two searchlight crews, one asleep, one enjoying better-tasting Luckies. Your search is over when you light up a Lucky. You'll find out why college smokers prefer Luckies to all other brands, as shown by the latest, greatest college survey. Once again, the No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

Better taste Luckies...

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for the one used, and for many we don't use. Be sure to send original Droodle to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
One Block From Senior Hall

reigning everywhere
STYLE SETTER
Medical
Mats are king on the campus, by royal fiat, this spring. Fashion's vision of peasant prints have lots more flair.

FIT FOR A QUEEN
Choice center cut
Filet Mignon — with mushroom sauce, crisp brown French fries and a salad — $1.00
M&N RESTAURANT
119 E. Jefferson

IF YOU OWNED ONLY ONE SHIRT...
You'd make it the BRAND NEW Arrow Cabanaro.
Brand new, is right. Cabanaro gives you wonderful sportshirt softness in a vat-dyed weight of rich pure gabardine. And every one of these fine shirts has the famed Arrofoil collar that stays neat and fresh-looking, day after day.
Get yourself the new Cabanaro. They're available in a wide range of colors . . . in your exact sleeve length and collar size.
The moment you experience Cabanaro's flexibility, you'll know why no man would go through 4 years of college without one. And, Cabanaro is only $5.95.

ARROW
CASUAL WEAR
also SHIRTS & TIES
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"A STAR IS BORN"
with
JUDY GARLAND
JAMES MASON
WED. THRU TUES.
"Vera Cruz"
with Gary Cooper
Burt Lancaster
Denise Darcel

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY & TOMORROW
"Francis Joins The Wacs"
Donald O'Connor
THURSDAY
"The Nebraskan"
Phil Carey
plus
"Jungle Gents"
Lee Gorcey and the Bowery Boys

STATE
TODAY
"Smoke Signal"
with Dana Andrews
Piper Laurie
TOMORROW & THURS.
"Six Bridges To Cross"
with
Tony Curtis
Julie Adams

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW
"The Long, Long Trailer"
Lucille Ball
Desi Arnaz
THURSDAY
"The Golden Mask"
Van Hallis
plus
"Drums of Tahiti"
Dennis O'Keefe

RITZ — Today & Tomorrow — "HOBSON'S CHOICE"
CHARLES LAUGHTON
THURS. — "MELBA" — Patrice Munsel

PARTY AFFILIATION
Flambeau
States Position—P. 2

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 33 | PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA | FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1955

Student Party Set For Second Meet Next Wednesday

Convention Registration Begins 6:30

Nominations for at least 15 Student Body officers will be made by the Student Party at a convention Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in Geology Building Lecture Hall.

Also on tap is a report by the constitutional committee, with Day Student delegation the only anticipated change, party chairman Graham Carothers said Wednesday.

Carothers added that the committee headed by Charlie Chester will present a definition of "Day Student" and recommendations to the convention, through the executive committee. The problem of Day Student representation at the party's conventions arose, he said, because no accurate way has been decided to tell who is a Day Student and who is not. Representation is now set at one delegate per one hundred Day Students.

"Once a definition has been decided upon, the representation question will solve itself," Carothers said.

No Flambeau Comment

The Student Party Chairman made little comment on possible party nomination of candidates for Editor of The Florida Flambeau. (Note: The Flambeau Senior Staff had previously decided that those running for editor would not seek party nomination.)

Carothers said he could not say whether the Student Party would nominate a candidate for Flambeau Editor without Senior Staff endorsement, even though he were constitutionally qualified.

The delegation would have to decide," he stated.

Only reference to the matter in the Student Body Constitution is Article VII, Section 3 A, which states that candidates for Editor-in Chief of the Flambeau: Shall have Junior or Senior standing and shall have had over two full semesters' experience on the editorial staff, unless exempt from these requirements by the Senior Staff. The Editor-in-Chief shall be elected by a majority of those voting in the Student Body elections."

Opinion Asked

Carothers said he had asked Attorney General Dave Kennedy to issue an opinion clarifying requirements for editor, with specific definition of "editorial staff." He also asked the Flambeau Senior Staff to state its opinion on the subject.

See Editorial, page 2.

Carothers asked that all students interested in submitting names for Student Party nomination contact party secretary Carmine Ranieri at Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, phone 2-5367, before Wednesday, noon.

He also asked that women delegates to the convention register their names with Gretchen Kerr at North Cawthon residence hall, by Monday. Late permission has been granted the delegates until midnight, he added.

Artist Series Tickets For Yma Sumac Go On Sale Monday

Tickets for the two performances of Yma Sumac and Company are now on sale to members of the FSU faculty and staff in the ticket booth in Westcott. Price of admission is $2.50. Any tickets remaining will be placed on sale to the general public on Monday morning.

As there are very few tickets left, students are urged to get them at once, said Mrs. Kathryn Vernoo, Artist Series secretary.

Performances are scheduled for 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 8 and 9.

Honor System Revision Goes Before Senate

The Student Senate reviewed an amendment Wednesday to tighten the Honor System and write it in entirety into the constitution.

Major provisions are:

Requirement of an honor pledge on each piece of written work turned in to a professor.

Meeting of the Honor Court to try alleged infractions within three school days after their having been reported.

Requirement of a "responsibility" of individual students to turn in violators, those violators to be given 24 hours to turn themselves in or be subpoenaed by the Court.

A minimum penalty for convicted violators of being dropped from the course with a failing grade and placement on probation.

Disqualification of offenders from holding office or receiving scholarships or participating on athletic teams.

Joint Committee

Under-secretary of Honor Betty Jane Woodward told the senators that a joint faculty-student committee appointed by Pete Nimkoff, student president, and Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, had proposed the amendment. She said that "not much had been changed" from the present system, but that "many things needed explaining and should be included in the Constitution."

She said that time in orientation week would be set aside to explain the Honor System to new students and that promised adherence to it would be made an item in the admission papers.

Punishment Mild

She said the minimum punishment for violation, cheating, stealing or lying, "was mild" compared to what the student members of the joint committee had proposed. Their suggestions, she said, included loss of the full semester's credits, as many as 18 hours.

When asked if requiring an honor pledge on each paper would apply to minor assignments, she said it would be up to the decision of the professor.

She commented in answer to a question from Senator Margaret Ann Ballinger, that anyone falsely turned in to Honor Court for cheating would be saved by a provision requiring testimony of two witnesses.

Dave Brubeck—The Man Himself

Tickets To Go On Sale Today For Brubeck 'Jazz' Concerts

Tickets for the Dave Brubeck concerts on March 28 go on sale to students today at the Westcott Ticket Booth. Admission is 75 cents, plus Activities Coupon No. 12.

Brubeck and his quartet will present two concerts in Westcott Auditorium at 6 and 8:30 p.m., Monday, March 28. Tickets will be available exclusively for students until Monday, March 21, when they will be placed on sale to faculty and staff.

Reflects Scene

Brubeck, commenting on his own jazz, has said he thinks it reflects the American scene. It is complex, he said, but free. "It appears to flow along, improvising constantly, yet held together by a firm pattern," stated the band leader.

He said its essence is the tension between improvision and order, between freedom and discipline.

Alto saxophonist Paul Desmond, featured with the quartet, and Brubeck, seems to communicate through mental telepathy, reports of their concerts have stated. They reportedly often get bored with the same idea, or decide to make a switch at the same moment.

Original Tune Lost

"Everything we play," explains Brubeck, "is superimposed on the tune, and each chorus is superimposed on the one before it." Listeners are said to lose all contact with the original tune, perceiving only such things as a forgotten song, a hymn, a twinge of sadness or an insolent snicker.

Brubeck's appearance here at first met opposition from members of the Artist Series committee because it would conflict with other university activities.

The committee voted last week, however, to contract his appearance on this campus due to student interest, despite conflicts with Sandspur and IFC dance.

Musicians To Give Gershwin Concert Here

A concert featuring the music of George Gershwin will be presented in Westcott Auditorium by Thomas Wright at 8:15 p.m., March 18.

Wright, an associate professor of music at Florida State University, will present "An American In Paris," "'I Got Rhythm' Variations for Two Pianos" and the ever-popular "Rhapsody In Blue," among other selections.

Also on the program are a group of songs from "Porgy and Bess." Martha Slayden and J. Dayton Smith also of the FSU school of music, will sing "Summertime," "My Man's Gone Now," "I Got Plenty of Nuthin'," "It Ain't Necessary So" and "Bess You Is My Woman Now."

Robert Glotzbach, David Ward-Steinman and Violet Mandese will assist Mr. Wright in the selections which require more than one piano.

Proved Popular

A similar program to this was presented four years ago on this campus by Mr. Wright and proved so popular that it was decided to repeat it.

Thomas Wright has appeared on national television programs and on radio. He has played with leading concert orchestras all over the United States and done much work for the movies. He was featured with Tommy Dorsey's symphonic orchestra, performing the "Rhapsody in Blue" nightly.

Wright has been interested in the works of Gershwin since he heard him in a personal appearance concert in Indianapolis when Wright was a small boy. He is known as a specialist in the interpretation of Gershwin's music.

HILLEL HOLDS PORIM PARTY

Folk dancing, refreshments and a discussion on the significance of the Porim holiday, will be held this Sunday night, March 6th, at Temple Israel starting at 8 p.m.

Porim is based on the Book of Esther and the events contained within.

NSA Committee Meets Monday, 5

A special Senate committee considering affiliation with the United States National Student Association will meet Monday afternoon at 5 in the Senate Chamber, second floor Longmire.

Members of the committee are Senators Jimmy Joanos, chairman; Liz Cerny, Petey Dunn, Joan Halford and Carolyn Close.

Chairman Joanos asked all interested students to attend Monday.

Senators Reject Additional Polls For Dormitories

Plan Is Called Unsatisfactory By Opponents

The bill to locate polling places in all dormitories housing more than 100 students failed to win Senate approval Wednesday afternoon.

Senator Jimmy Soles, author of the bill, withdrew his original motion to pass it when it became clear that the Senate would not accept the measure.

Opposition centered on the statement by Elections Secretary Betty Jo Grubbs that "Jimmy has a good idea, but practically, it's impossible."

Miss Grubbs said that the elections committee would be unable to supervise the large number of polling places if the bill were passed.

Policing Necessary

When asked by Senator Joan Halford if dormitory governments could provide the necessary elections workers Miss Grubbs replied that "It would still be the responsibility of the elections committee to police those polls.

West Hall's Governor Nick Harrington spoke in favor of the bill, commenting that "We'd be only too willing to co-operate to the fullest extent."

His remarks occasioned criticism from the floor that West Hall's turnout has been "poor" although a polling place has been located there at the discretion of the elections committee. Some senators said this meant that locating polling places in other dormitories during elections would not result in an increased voting turnout.

Gaster Seeks Opinion

Men's Vice-President Gordon Gaster, apparently seeking to obtain outside-of-Senate opinion on the bill, asked Harrington if the newly-formed Inter-Dormitory council would meet soon. Harrington referred the question to Fred Roberts, a founder of the Inter-Dorm Council, who replied that he'd heard nothing of the organization in three months since submitting the constitution to Student Government for approval.

Senator Petey Dunn asserted that additional polling places are unnecessary for women, who she said live close to the regular polls. Senator Margaret Ann Ballinger intimated that dishonesty in elections might result if the elections committee were spread out over a wider jurisdiction.

Senator Ken Gatlin offered an amendment, which was accepted by Gaster, to allow any dormitory government desiring a polling place and willing to furnish elections workers to have its ballot box.

Move Tabled

Gatlin then moved to table the measures and refer them to committee for a week.

It was suggested that the dormitories should work with the elections committee but that the latter should have the discretionary power of locating polling places.

Senator Bill Swigert hotly called for more exercise of power on the part of the Senate, declaring "We should have something to say about what the Elections Committee does."

He maintained that more people would vote if given more polling places.

"We must realize the university is growing," he said, "and the elections committee should grow too."

Senator Fred Mansfield humorously quipped that the election would be assured of at least 300 more people voting—the elections workers themselves, he said.

Gaster Cites Wants

After Vice-President Gaster claimed the students want more polling places and urged the Senate to give them to them, the mo-

(Continued on page 3)

Gaster Nominated For President On State Party Ticket

Staff Photo by Oscar Johnson

No Shakedown Here—Outgoing State Party Chairman Warren Cobb, left, shakes hand swith newly-elected chairman Fred Mansfield. Action took place at nominating convention Wednesday night.

Mansfield Elected To Head Party

Gordon Gaster was nominated for President of the Student Body in 1956 at a State Party convention, Wednesday night in the Geology Building.

He is one of ten students who will compete under the State Party banner for Student Body offices early in April. Other action at the convention saw Fred Mansfield elected State Party Chairman for the coming year.

Mansfield, succeeding Warren Cobb as chairman declared he deemed his election an honor. One of the founders of the State Party, he said it had "come a long way," because "We've had able men to run this party.

"We are as strong if not stronger than the other party," he stated.

President Gaster was placed before the convention by party member Bob Crenshaw, who said the party should select a man with strong leadership for the post.

No Fence Sitter

"We don't want a fence sitter," declared Crenshaw. "We don't want any deadwood promise maker, or sick, lazy fellow sitting in the President's chair. We don't want a president who will shake your hand today and shake the government tomorrow." Gaster's present position in Student Body government is President of the Men's Senate.

Other nominees selected by the State Party are:

Jim Moore, for Vice-President of the Student Body, Jimmy Soles, for Vice-President of Men's Affairs; Pat Hilton, for Secretary of the University Senate.

Meyer Nominates

Also Barbara Graham chief justice of the University Honor Court, who was nominated by Chief Justice Jerry Meyer, Anne J. Winter president of University Recreation Association and Herb Rinehart, Sandspur Chairman.

Also Don Heidel, Smoke Signals Editor and Tom Wilson, Smoke Signals Business Manager. No nominations were made by the State Party for Editor or Business Manager of The Florida Flambeau or Tally Ho, although Jayleen Robertson was offered party endorsement for Flambeau Editor. She declined the offer saying that the Flambeau Senior Staff had established a policy of non-party affiliation.

The State Party's constitutional changes at the convention were, to henceforth have nominating conventions "at earliest reasonable date prior to active campaigning," a change in Day Student representation from six to a number equal to that of the largest dormitory. (West Hall has 11.)

Also, provisions were made for the offices of Treasurer and Corresponding Secretary Claire Bevis and Liz Ahrano were later chosen to fill the posts, while Irene Rodriguez was elected State Party Recording Secretary.

Platform

The State Party Platform for the pending Student Body Elections was decided upon at the convention to include (1) establishment of a Florida State University Student Government charter from the State Legislature; (2) establishment of a method to allow students a fair

(Continued on page 3)

Dr. Rogers To Present Program On Browning At Weekly Event

"Dr. W. Hudson Rogers and Browning" will be featured at the English Coffee Hour today at 4 p. m. in Westminster House.

His book, The Best of Browning, was published in 1942 by Thomas Nelson and Sons. He has also written the History of the Book Review and articles for scholarly journals.

Dr. Rogers, English department head, has been a professor at Florida State University for 33 years, and during that time, it is believed that almost every student completing academic work for a degree is in one of his classes.

"Sooner or later they have to take English," he explains.

Listed in Who's Who in America as an "educator," Dr. Rogers began his own education in Plum Branch, Virginia, with a village tutor. He graduated from New London Academy in Virginia, and Davidson College in North Carolina where he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

No Real Major

In explaining his education, Dr. Rogers said, "A major wasn't known in those days. I had a scattering of everything, the best kind of education."

Dr. Rogers served in World War I, and was awarded the Croix de Guerre by the French for courage under heavy artillery fire while driving a load of wounded French soldiers back from the front. After the war, he started graduate work in English and received the Ph.D. at the University of Virginia. He and Mrs. Rogers came to Tallahassee in 1822.

Dr. Rogers became full professor at FSU in 1928. During 1947-48 he served as Acting Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and was named to his present position in 1948.

INCOME TAX FORMS ARE AVAILABLE

Students may now obtain income tax forms from Fred J. Vogel, student organizations counselor, at his office in the basement of the Longmire building.

TV Series To Show Problem Of Teaching

The University television series over WMBR-TV, Channel 4, Jacksonville, will feature Dr. Odell Waldby, Associate Professor in the School of Public Administration Saturday at 2 p.m.

The series, entitled "The Professor and the Problem," highlights faculty research and creative work. Dr. Waldby will explain the need for public interest in government and illustrate his remarks by showing the number of contacts the individual makes with government in simple activities.

Film Sequence

The show will feature a film sequence in which Dr. Waldby, his wife, and young daughter go grocery shopping. The balance of the program will be devoted to explanation of federal, state, county, and municipal controls and regulations involved in the act.

The series is written, produced, and narrated by Roy Flynn, Director of Radio and Television. Next week's program will feature Mr. Zeil Mabee, Professor of Journalism, who will describe a project being undertaken by a graduate student under his direction. It is an exploration of the possibilities of combining fine art techniques with photography in advertising design and book illustration.

BUSINESS FRATERNITY SLATES OPEN HOUSE

The International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi will hold an open house at its new house at 402 S. Woodward St., Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m.

Advertising Meet Slated March 17 On FSU Campus

An advertising conference featuring speakers in the profession will be held here March 17-20.

The Southeastern Advertising Conference is meeting concurrently with the 31st conference, the annual educational conference of the fourth district, Advertising Federation of America, district conferences of two national advertising fraternities, and the annual conference of the Outdoor Advertising Association of Florida.

Speakers slated for the SAC are Robert E. Kenyon, Jr., publisher of Printer's Ink; William Werner, director of public relations for Proctor and Gamble Co.; Dean James E. McCarthy, director of Outdoor Advertising Foundation, South Bend, Indiana; Henry Hoke, editor of The Reporter; and Clyde Bedell, consultant, creative advertising of Park Ridge, Illinois.

Also Lilly Daché, fashion authority of New York City and Dr. Alfred Haake, Economic Consultant for General Motors Corporation.

Selective Service Deferment Exam Deadline Nears

Deadline for application for Selective Service deferment test is Monday. Interested students have been asked to sign up in 308 Westcott Building, for the only SS college qualification test this semester. Test will be given April 21.

WAC Band Guest Appearance Slated For Monday Afternoon

Monday, March 7, an Army Band from The Women's Army Corps Center, Fort McClellan, Alabama will make a concert appearance at 5 p.m. in the Opperman open-air theater or Westcott Auditorium, depending on the weather.

The only WAC Band in the Army will present over an hour's program of familiar music. The concert is open to the public without charge.

As a concert unit, the 59-piece WAC Band has gained national recognition. They played in President Eisenhower's inaugural ceremonies and parade and had their national radio debut in 1951. Since then they have appeared on television, at service club dances, and other social functions.

Peters Directs

The Band is under the direction of First Lieutenant Alice V. Peters. One of the features of the program at the coming concert will be numbers by the 16-piece dance band, led by Sergeant First Class Majorie Kimmell who plays first trumpet with the full band.

The Band was organized in 1944 at Fort Des Moines, Iowa under the title of the 400th Army Band. They became part of the Regular Army in 1948 and were renamed the 14th Army Band.

Pvt. Diana Schnurmeier

For public appearances, the band members wear the specially authorized white scarfs and shoulder braid. For post parades at Fort McClellan the WAC Band and the 307th (male) Band combine to form what is probably the only coed band in the Army.

Cotillion Schedules Initiation Of Taps Sunday At Center

Members of Cotillion will initiate recent taps at six p.m. Sunday night in the Student Center Trophy room.

New taps are Ann Rayburn, Shirley Jackson, Janice Grosser, Joyce Dopko, Ann Cochran, Claire Dardis, Winnie Cannon, Jane Davis, Sylvia White, Jean Strickland, Ann Jackson, Clare King, Gail Jackson and Karlin Kent. Previous taps to be initiated are Barbara Henderson and Betty Gooch.

Dede Duguid became the new president upon the resignation of Lyda Yarborough.

Election Applications May Be Filed After March 8 Deadline

Deadlines for filing declarations and reports in campus elections were changed by the Student Senate Wednesday.

As applied to Spring Student Body Elections, they are:

Tuesday, March 8: First day for filing declaration of candidacy;

Tuesday, March 15: Deadline at 5 p. m. for filing candidacy;

Tuesday, March 22: Deadline at 5 p. m. for filing expense estimates;

Thursday, March 24: Deadline at 5 p. m. for announcement of official ballot by election committee;

Friday, March 25: Deadline for issuance of orders of revision by Honor Court;

Thursday, March 24: Deadline for withdrawing candidacy.

Candidates who do not meet the Thursday, March 22 deadline for filing expense estimates may be reinstated if they offer acceptable excuse to the election committee before 5 p. m. the next day.

'Kappa Sigs' Lead In Donations To Blood Drive; 59 Pints Needed

Kappa Sigma fraternity is still leading the Blood Drive, with 22 pints, the Blood Bank stated in a revised list issued yesterday. Five of these were donated yesterday.

West Hall gave 12 pints yesterday to tie for second place with Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, which donated Feb. 8 and 24. The Sigma Chi's, which were erroneously credited with 18 pints in the last issue of the Flambeau, have actually given 7.

Other donors so far include one Sigma Alpha Epsilon and seven independents. It is unknown what dormitories these independents are from.

"Several other people have been in this week for blood tests," the laboratory technician from the Infirmary said yesterday. These included "9 or 10" Alpha Tau Omega's and "2 or 3" girls, she said. The Blood Bank was not able to say whether they had actually donated yet.

61 Donated

Sixty-one pints were known to have been donated by noon yesterday, but the Blood Bank reported that they were "very busy" with students all day. With the drive tentatively ending March 14, a goal of 120 has been set by co-chairmen Graham Carothers and Margaret Neller.

In spite of the recent donations, this year's drive has fallen far short of those in previous years. Three years ago with the student enrollment much less, 259 pints were collected, toward a goal of 360.

Some students have said that they couldn't see the absolute need for donating so much blood. Miss Neller commented on this yesterday. She said that college students are at an age when there is a great accident potential.

With a low blood account, if only a few people were involved in an accident a special appeal for blood would have to be made immediately. This would take time, she said, and blood might not be available in time for everyone who needed it.

Test Required

Before donating a student must first take a blood test at the University Hospital, preferably between 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. the week he intends to donate. He is notified if he passes this test and a special car leaves the infirmary every Friday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to take students to the Blood Bank. If a student cannot go at this time, a special car can be arranged to take him at another time, Dr. Hathaway, University physician said.

Dr. Hathaway also wanted to remind students that they are excused from any classes they might miss while donating blood. People under 21 and not in ROTC must bring their parents' permission to give blood.

Divorced Of Affiliation

The staff of The Florida Flambeau does not believe candidates for editor of this paper should run on political party tickets. Consequently, each member of the staff who wishes the editorship has agreed to run on his or her merits alone, and not to seek party backing.

Our reasons have been communicated to the heads of the respective political parties. Whether they have in turn been told the students is another question.

Believing this to be of vital importance to the students, who must win their votes select our editor, we outline our position on this question.

The editorship of a campus newspaper is a job that should be above political commitments. An editor should be non-partisan, particularly if he wishes to use his editorial page for constructive advice and criticism.

This paper for example, has at times supported measures sponsored by senators strongly allied with the Student Party, and at other times we have been equally dedicated to measures sponsored by State Party stalwarts.

A campus newspaper is undeniably an opinion-forming organization. As such, its control should be as open-minded as possible.

Regardless of the integrity of the editor, if he is elected on a party ticket his open-mindedness is in question. If he commends an opposition measure he already help but feel that he is being ungrateful. If he supports his own party on a controversial issue he cannot hope to escape charges of bias.

His efficiency as an editor is thereby impaired, and his freedom of expression is restricted.

Furthermore, an editor's running for office on party ticket subjects The Florida Flambeau to unfair pressures. And a few, who dictate between whom the students may choose. So long as one runs on a party ticket, the other has little hope of defeating him unless he too runs on a platform.

There is only one organization on campus capable of naming those qualified to be editor: the staff itself. By tradition, two candidates are named, usually those people the staff considers best fitted for the job and easiest for the staff itself to work under.

We don't consider this nominative power an unfair right, but a right exercised by individuals who believe and have faith in the qualifications of the person they choose.

If this selective power is taken from both the staff and the students and usurped by the political leaders, the result can at best be the fortunate choice of a qualified person—at worst it can be his defeat.

Then too, an editor can always run on a party ticket and repudiate the party once elected. This, we may add, has been suggested to a certain staff member by a campus politician.

In refusing, the staff member pointed out that this would be more-than-Machiavellian politics, too rotten to spring upon even the parties themselves.

Achievement

The Alpha of Florida Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa is celebrating its twentieth anniversary this week. The Florida State University chapter, first to be established in this state, will honor eleven of the Charter members at the celebration.

With the eventful birthday so near at hand, we are again made aware of the role that this organization has played in aiding the development of our educational values.

As significant a role as education has had in furthering the development of our country, it goes without saying that organizations like Phi Beta Kappa that set up goals of high scholarship have contributed predominately to this end.

With this in mind, we hope that among the many aspirations of the students attending colleges and universities today, they include a healthy and even sophisticated respect for the value of education and scholarly achievements.

And while symbols are important for the setting of goals, we must recognize that achievement is in itself an end, rewarder not in keys, but in community satisfaction.

Necessary Words Followed By Necessary Action

As a footnote to Governor LeRoy Collins' vital words urging scholars to play a greater role in our government we want to point out some action that is already taken commensurate with the improvement of state government.

Some have already heard or read Governor Collins' words last Sunday during the Founders' Week at Rollins College. They bear wide reading for others: "A scholar is defined as one who pursues the truth wherever it may lead him. Why do scholars shun politics as they would the plague?

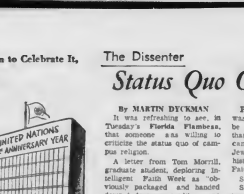
"We so desperately need more citizens in government who are searching for the truth—more scholars. We badly need more knowhow in government and less knowwho.

"Failures in government today are more the result of what educated people have failed to do than they are the result of what uneducated people have done."

In an article below Governor George Leader of Pennsylvania is singled out and praised for his movement to raise the level of his state government. The piece need only be read to see what far-reaching effects his leadership might bring towards effecting better state government. We hope others will give due consideration to this type of improvement.

We will not attempt to answer Governor Collins' question—why do scholars shun politics like the plague? We do not think, however, they shun it because they think politics dirty or hopeless or practically futile or even an appeasing and placating cause as Walter Lippman pointed out recently. Quite the contrary. Many scholars we think need only be asked to render services, and many would probably offer them wholeheartedly. Certainly the case for Pennsylvania is a shocking example.

In fact, the academic community may be one of the few places today from which can be drawn the people who perhaps can supply this "knowhow in government" and almost certainly "less know-who."



Pennsylvania's Leader

Those concerned with improving that most backward part of our political system, state government, might keep an eye on Pennsylvania. Governor George Leader, elected last fall in an unprecedented sweep of a traditionally Republican state, has been devoting much of his time to a program of reform made by a nineteen-member advisory committee composed—shades of the New Deal!—entirely of professors. Most of these men were drawn from the institutes of state and local government at the University of Pennsylvania, Penn State, and the University of Pittsburgh. Each was assigned to study a department of government concerned with which he had a special knowledge; for example, former Surgeon General Thomas Parren, now dean of the graduate School of Public Health at Pittsburgh, reported on the Department of Health.

Additional fairly convincing proof of the young Governor's "vision" can be found in his appointment of Dr. James Charlesworth, professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania, to a new post of Cabinet rank, Secretary of Administration. Dr. Charlesworth is president of the American Academy of Political and Social Science and author of a modern classic on the subject, "Governmental Administration." The contrast between the Eisenhower Administration's reliance on the know-how of business men recruited for government, and the Leader administration's consultation of university scholars may have consequences for the future of democratic government that will be interesting to observe. In any case Mr. Leader has cut off to an administrative start which packs up where he got to know that we earry grateful reminiscence of you as you prepare to different parts of the world.

JOHN WILLIAMS HUGHES
Marian Glass Anderson,
William Pierce Rogers

"That's Not the Way We Plan to Celebrate It, William"

Calling The Card

Jazz And Culture

By WILLIE SMITH

A little bit of G-d-ness will always be rubbed off in real Bohemian style at last Saturday afternoon. I am supposed to be walking down W. Jefferson, he might have counted the cool sounds being issued forth from the Casa.

If this individual had any love for the finer things of life, he might have closed his eyes, stepped into the establishment, and upon opening his eyes, thought he was in one of the famous sunis found in the downtown section of New York City throughout the world.

An informally dressed crowd was sitting around listening intently to a three-piece combo playing some of the most progressive sounds in the field of jazz.

Handling the reeds was Larry Alt who mixes his own style with some of George Shearing's combo. Bent over the skins and working very ugly was Al Hoskins. The bass fingered the art work of Bill Nebley who can hold his own with the best of them.

These boys seem to have an unlimited reprtoir and a mix such classic ballads as "I Only Have Eyes For You," "Just of the Sun," "My Funny Valentine, and "Where or When."

With the classic jump tunes such as "Lady Be Good," "Birdland," Perdido," and "But Not For Me," just to mention a few.

This informal jam session would mark another milestone in Tallahassee's bid for the cultural center of North Florida and vicinity. Ray Jennings, owner of the Casa, has finally given the students and townfolk a place to sit around and listen to some cool, relaxing music. Combo sessions have been planned for Saturday afternoon's starting at 2:30.

I heard a remark passed the other night that the Casa isn't the most desirable section of town. This statement could be answered with just cause by none-commercial is in the best section of town.

Many people have waited a long time for such things as an art theater, symphony. We have waited a longer time for a place where some good progressive music can be heard. Now Tallahassee has both. These forms of art make for business enterprises. They need your support if they are to stay. The success of this art depends entirely on the audience here at FSU. Many have wanted these forms of art, now it is up to us to keep them here in Tallahassee.

Letters To The Flambeau

Unwarranted

To the Editor:

Reader Tom Morrill's attack on Christianity in Tuesday's Florida Flambeau, on the basis of the Western world wars, is not warranted by the facts of church and students for the many centuries extended to us.

No matter how we object to in so many ways that it is impossible for us to write to you individually, but we do want you to know that we carry grateful reminiscence of you as you prepare to different parts of the world.

JOHN WILLIAMS HUGHES
Marian Glass Anderson,
William Pierce Rogers

Good Plot

To the Editor:

I have been following the Bailey-Guthrie debate with some interest. It seems the crucial point of view...Ray's from a column by Mr Guthrie, Inquisitor, and Bob Woodruff of Pensacola.

Through journalistic shuffling the point at hand has been trampled and now seems to be a whole-side display of service records, campaign promises and disaster references.

I was first impressed with Mr Guthrie's honorable service record, his action with the Merchant Marine did not promise much. Recalling the days of World War II, the Merchant ships were manned by Navy gunners, not by Mr. James S. Bailey had three brothers in this highly paid position.

It may come as a surprise to some individuals but many men at FSU have the same type service records as outlined in Mr. Guthrie's letter to the Editor. I might point out that they would not make a good plot for a movie.

The Chamber of Commerce in Binghamton, N.Y. decided to limit the number of the population to 65,000.

Yours truly
"CHUCK" WHITE

What Depths?

To Our Editor:

I have just finished reading

(Continued on Page 3)

by Dick Bibler

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"Well, well, if it ain't our coach!"

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor
Jay Robertson, News Editor — Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Asst. News Editors — Oscar Johnson, Martin Dickman, Art Cronemiller, Cartoonist — Copy Editor: Pat Marston; Rewrite Editor: Margaret Miller; Feature Editor: Francis Adams; Cartoonist: Con Horn; Junior Staff: Jerome Bernstein, Mary Ellen Smith, Jerry Jeff Brachett, Charlie Patterson, Jim Brady, Jan Bradley

Sports Editors — Bob Gutt, Dick Victory
Sports Staff — Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor — David Davis
Photographer — Laird Anderton

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager — Brad Cox
Distribution — Members of Alpha Phi Omega

Business Secretary — Janet Jernigan
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., N.Y. 17

Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building

The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

Member Associated Collegiate Press

Rest Easy

Warv drivers at the north end of Jacksonville Boulevard can go back to fringing on traffic rules. The individual property in that area recently annexed by the city doesn't recording license numbers—only cars for the State Road Department who hope to better traffic conditions on the campus. Maybe widen Jacksonville Boulevard? Huh, maybe?

The Dissenter

Status Quo Of Religion Observed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It was refreshing to see, in Tuesday's Florida Flambeau, that someone was willing to criticize the status quo of campus religion.

A letter from Tom Morrill, graduate student, deploring Intelligent Faith Week as "obviously packaged and handed down," deserves credit as one of the best ever to be published by the paper.

A few centuries ago Mr. Morrill would have been expelled from school for such heresy, and, as added punishment, been burned at the stake.

Although he said, and probably firmly believes that "faith in the Creator's goodness is vital for civilization and individuals," his views must have shocked quite a goodly number of the goodly.

For those who didn't read that letter, Mr. Morrill asked why so many "professional" teams sent by a particular Protestant Christian organization, going from college to college across the country, present the one concerted rallying of religious faith on our campus!"

He also implied that Christianity might not be entitled to claim the title of "Intelligent Faith" because of many warn need "irrelevance industrialism" he sees in Christian civilization has spawned.

Probably even more shocking was his suggestion that Negroes be included in the panel—and that every faith represented on campus—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, Moslem, Hindu, Buddhist—" co-operate in Intelligent Faith Week.

Second the motion.

Such a program would be intended to carry a message across to all who would harken —and many more would listen if they could.

It might be a good idea for the Catholic and Jewish faiths on campus to consider abandoning their own "weeks" and co-operating with the Protestants on a truly intelligent "Faith Week."

This is a university. As students, we should be ready to examine both the narrow confines of our society and study civilization on a broader basis.

All religions represented on this campus believe in one Supreme Being. All have codes of ethics which are related to one another. The Protestants and Catholics, incidentally, get their ethics from the same faith of Jesus Christ—the Jewish.

Furthermore, much divide on campus probably recognize the need for a deeper, intelligent faith" because of many warn need "irrelevance industrialism" he sees in Christian civilization has spawned.

Reflections

The Ideal Is A One- Party System

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Are political parties here a bunch of frauds?

Evidently so, if we are to believe a bunch of pernicious rumors, wild accusations and fantastic exaggerations that have come to the fore lately.

These misconceptions are misconceptions founded on misconceptions. And a review of the facts is in order.

There are many good reasons why we should have a party system at FSU; so many in fact that it is impossible to list them all in this small, 1,000 word space. The most obvious of them, however, is this: The conventions are a lot of fun.

If there were no party conventions, there would be no publication go at night? To a local beer hall? To see the newest home opera? Maybe count the goldfishes in Westcott Fountain? Hardly. The need for a convention becomes obvious.

The entertainment function of political parties can be pursued further. Our friend Webster, with tongue in cheek, defines entertainment as "To engage the attention of pleasurably amuse divert." Politics! Where else may we still claim these functions.

Amuse," the first synonym given may be followed up by an antic at a recent convention. A floor debate which was a far cry across the aisle from Jim Ber name. Then nominated her for party secretary. Then the frustration of the harassed party chairman. The entertainment, tradition in many forms at party conventions, a sadly accepted as a fact of life by the people. Of course, conventions have their serious moments. Delegates, occasionally hold long, boring discussions of qualifications, values and ethics. Given time, though, the parties have survived this fault. We shall see.

The serious side of a political party system are not confined to conventions at all. Some are seen in the extensive preparation that goes on beforehand and in the campaigning around that goes on afterward. Until the staff has carefully selective party-ers can be lured into the dirty mass of the ballot box.

This is where the secondary smears, innuendos, etc. come into play. The reserve of a valuable ballot stuffer at the end of the voting power is not the beginning of the campaign. Correspondence!

The campus is festooned with multi-colored posters and banners. An air of jolly misery and carelessness is imparted to the unknowing mind by the voter. The party system controls the vote, but it is by no means of deciding the issues mentioned. But here is also where to the party.

It is this, those belligerents who seek to discredit the party system point out that because there is one party, the element of choice is lacking. It therefore have two because we

(Continued on Page 3)

Lately It Seems

Election Pots Start Boiling Again

By ORCHID ALONSO

When election pots start boiling, an assortment of rumors of all sizes, shapes and colors follow over the campus like a steam. And before the party lines are drawn, familiar rumors are whacked, presidential nominees loom into the picture, obliterating all others from sight. Such is the case here, might seek the Student Party nomination. This is none other than Bob Woodruff, Attorney general.

It was first rumored that he could change his major and return to school next year as a graduate student in law school. Later, the rumors developed into a possible bid for the nomination might be interpreted so as to allow a graduate student to run for top post.

After a quick perusal of the Student Body Constitution, they found that the latter proposition hardly possible.

Then the politicians and some others started to discuss the issues.

They argued that Kennedy a pie-in-the-sky, had his future mapped out and the also angered out of line. Another factor involved was the chance at stake. If Kennedy sought the nomination that gave no forthcoming and in the end, he would be left with no party backing. Then there was the question of whether he could win the election without the backing of the Student Party and Student Party candidate.

All left certain that Kennedy and his followers realized this, and logically they came to the conclusion that this might all be just rumor-mongering. Second, they argued, perhaps Kennedy would enter the race for the Student Party nomination if the cavalcade witnesses a battle royal between two candidates defeat, the head of the Party will give an added lift to the delegates and give them a lust for battle in the coming elections.

But like water in a pot the rumor boiled down to politics. Leaving aside the personalities the exciting aroma when something is cooking before elections there is always relief felt when rumors are either substantiated or rejected. So those who delight in sleuthing since Kennedy ended all rumors by announcing that he had not considered the move and would support the Student Party candidate.

Etcetera Etchings

Capt. Queeg Never Had It So Good

By DAVID DREIS

The Department of Speech has always been the source of material for a feature article on what plays and actors are doing. Of course, these articles are unasined so nobody gets blamed unless Ah, forget it. Today's column will pave on and on about some of the incidences which we have seen over the past three years. Back, dreisie, back!

It's 1952 and Prashman David Dein has been set for a role in his first college play. Joy! In the cast was a fellow freshman named Franklin Adams who is still holding down leading roles in the DOS Plays. Adams has always struck me as a fine actor, but he never seemed to appreciate the worth of him of my experience and he just smiled. I told him of my intent while at PSU and he smiled again. There was no harsh comment from Adams, there never has been ... he just just smiles.

There was however Lee Hildman who has since graduated me either, but then he didn't recognize me as such. He was a manage, however, to investigate himself into the presidency of the FSU dramatic club. I never . . . quite understood why.

The play was a primitive play called The Pursuit of Fatelin." Costumer Douglas Russell went all out in preparing the costumes and almost everyone had a fine costume . . . except Adams. Ah, there's the style of a "stupid shepherd" and wore a dirty cloth. — that's all. For some reason many actors felt that my best role.

The play I was in was carried to Sarasota and "Miss Adams" and her "mad" me working with performers. Ah, yes, George Carr, whose favorite movement was tiddling his fingers finger forward and walking to the place where he pointed; Reuben Rose, whose pointy frame bounced through every scene like a professional and Charles Bondhan who always appreciated me for the way I always say, "Yes, David" after everything. It's strange that although I got the gift in that show, nobody ever saw me For some reason these fine performers would always walk in my way when I spoke. They called it professionalism.

Through the years there have been critics such as Robert Sherwood, Brooks Atkinson, Stranie I Imagine, to my column last year by calling me a ham. But many fan clubs which were organized for him. Backstage during a production of "The Insect Comedy" the cast and crew were all seen wearing Gilbert Strane Fan Club" pins. Strane, a deep-rooted into drama inherited by me "a pseudo-intellectual" to which he objected to me. The villain of Strane never appreciated me, either.

Perhaps the worst of the acts that no play is complete without it's Thomas who is always said to be blackmailing the director. Thomas is an avid fan of the theater and never missed a mind talkne roles away from me. Thomas doesn't appreciate me.

Oh, I've seen miraculous things at FSU. Juliet after having romanced by Romeo suddenly finds her balcony and walks offstage—in the dark of night. In this play, I was merely cut in act on my finger remains. Also in one of the many second flights, the prince in the play broke up the fight yelling "From those bloodhands shrow those misbegotten weapons on the ground." Then to the corps, I remained still and from by bloody hand dropped the misbegotten—the mistemperred weapon on the stage. Nobody out front knew anything had happened. It was a shame it was just a rehearsal.

FSU Five Tops Teachers, 91-83

By ALAN WHITEMARSH

Kansas City here we come! That's the destination of Coach "Bud" Kennedy's red-hot Florida State basketball team after a thrilling 91-83 victory over Georgia Teachers in the finals of the NAIA District 25 playoffs held Monday and Tuesday nights.

The Seminoles will compete there in NAIA tournament for small colleges beginning Monday. They will be returning to Kansas City! (1) after a year, one of the best for colleges all over the nation; (2) the highest scorer in Florida intercollegiate athletic history; and (3) an undefeated cart of 10-0 in FIBC play as conference champs.

In Monday night's encounters, the Seminoles outfought Stetson, 87-, and Georgia Teachers ended defending district champ Jere Mercer, 56-79, to enter the championship round Tuesday.

Tuesday night, the Seminoles faced slow, stiff both Oler and Stetson, their two prime guards off on their shooting.

The Teachers hot well at the outset, grabbing an early 6-0 advantage, but Coach Kennedy's troops cut the margin to 20-18 at the 10:56 point.

Some clutch shots by Dick Artmeier, who tied basketball's all-time special points which pulled the Seminoles into the lead from below, and a spree by Jim Bennett, Tri-Ta's leading scorer, pulled the locals into a ten point lead in the next ten minutes, and they led 46-34 at intermission with a 46-40 margin at the resumption.

With Oler and Wernke still not hours out of Saturday's fracas, the Teachers began to open up in the early minutes of the second half and pulled ahead of the Seminoles in the ten-minute mark in a count of 68-65.

However, with six minutes left, Oler Cliff Wold sank a free toss and shortly afterwards Oler dropped a bucket and Wernke one which pulled FSU into a 70-68 lead, which they never relinquished.

In the next minute both Doug and Howard Warren, two of the Teachers' starters fouled out, and again they closed the gap to 86-83 mark, but the Professors were able to challenge the winners the rest of the way.

Big Bob Bennett had one of the best nights of his career in the final game before graduation. The lanky 6-7 Senior poured in 29 points and along with Artmeier's 27 formed the sacrius of the Seminoles' scoring punch.

They're Off—FSU's district 25 champs and winners of FIBC, are off for Kansas City, where they will be one of the 32 teams from around the nation participating. This is the Seminoles' second trip to KC.

Oler, who had become the first player in state history to go over the 2,000 mark in the night before, was held to 13 points, seven of which were free throws. Wernke bucketed 16, with six of his scores coming from the foul line.

Dessner Webb, the tournament's highest scorer, led the losers with 29 points, and for the two nights compiled an amazing 66 points. Warren and Don Wallen with 24 and 18 led Professors in the championship encounter.

In Monday night's game with Stetson, it was another big man, 6-7 center Gary Wold who led the Seminoles to victory, scoring 18 of his game-high total of 22 points in the first half to pace the FSU eagers to a 50-38 halftime margin, after which they were never headed in the game.

Tuesday night's game was the first meeting of the two schools in Tallahassee and enabled them to finish the season with by far the best records in the conference.

Losers to Loyola of New Orleans and Georgia Teachers were the scars on their 21-3 mark.

The tournament at Kansas City, one defeat drops a team from the championship bracket, but does not eliminate it from the tournament, for they still have a chance to become consolation champions.

Thus tennis may in the position of the other until they are defeated twice.

Totals	38	16	91	Totals	31

Stetson (38) FG FT TP Georgia Teachers (83) FG FT TP
Artmeier 8 6 22 Webb 12 5 29
Oler 6 1 13 Bennett 11 7 29
Wernke 7 2 16 Warren 9 6 24
Wold 3 2 8 Wallen 7 4 18
Bennett 1 0 2 Cox 0 1 1
Gray 0 0 0 Warren 0 0 0
Totals 25 13 50 Totals 39 13 83

Stetson ..... 38 Georgia Teachers 83
Officials—Woodall, Bowman. Scorers—Wallace 2, Warren. Georgia Teachers—Wallen 2, Warren. Time—Four 20's.

Phi Delts Win Frat Football; Top ATO 6-0

Phi Delta Theta won the intramural fraternity touch football championship Tuesday by eliminating Alpha Tau Omega, 6-0.

The victory gave the Phi Delts their third straight football championship and boosted them into the lead in the race for the over-all intramural crown.

Besides football, the Phi Delts have also won volleyball and singles tennis crowns.

In the games Tuesday, the winners got their touchdown when Art Semple connected with Bruce Pacetti late in the second half on a running pass.

The Phi Delts meet West Hall's Pirates, dorm champs, for the campus championship next week.

Gaster Named

(Continued From Page 1)

return on used books Exchange

4 of the Alpha Phi Omega Bookstore to advertise.

Also, 13- Allocation of a reexamination date for each term, with a view toward reinforcement, revision or revocation; 4- reorganization of the court system here; 15- opposition to compulsory university housing; 16- establishment of a more effective method of representing Day Students.

Funds Increased

Also, 17- Revision of the Funds Regulations so that students may retain all profits of fundraising projects; 18- revision of "juvenile" women's rules; 19- installation of pencil sharpeners on each campus; 110- installation of student phones in Westcott and History Building for students, and; 111- establishment of a non-profit university dining hall.

The last plank was declared by constitutional committee member Soles to be "a very important plank," because "one does not exist in the university today." He also explained that some of the planks had been on the previous platform and had not been completely achieved.

Two reasons Soles cited for the incompletion of some of the planks were that "committees have had not worked hard enough for them in all cases, and because of opposition from other sources."

———

ASPA FEATURES WARNER, GUEST

The American Society for Public Administration will present Dr. Kenneth O. Warner as its guest speaker at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Longmire clubroom.

Warner is the Director of the Civil Service Assembly of the United States and Canada. He has held this position since 1943.

The meeting is open to the general public and everyone has been invited to attend by ASPA officers.

CARLOS WATSON

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
Today Thru Tues.
"Vera Cruz"
filmed in Super Cinecolor
GARY COOPER
BURT LANCASTER
DENISE DARCEL

STATE
Today & Tomorrow
"Six Bridges to Cross"
with
Tony Curtis
Julie Adams
Sunday & Monday
"Black Tuesday"
Edward G. Robinson

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today & Tomorrow
"The Lone Hand"
Van Heflin
Wanda Hendrix
and
Dennis O'Keefe
Sunday & Monday
"Rhapsody"
"Drums of Tahiti"
Elizabeth Taylor

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow
"The Nebraskan"
with Phil Carey
plus
Jungle Gents?
Lee Gorcey &
Bowary Boys
"Boy From Oklahoma"
Will Rogers, Jr.

RITZ—Today and Tomorrow
"MELBA" with Patrice Muncel

Track Team Shows Good Possibilities

By LARRY HOUNTHA

FSU's cinder squad, well represented by veteran appears to have great potential in the field events this season.

Six vets from last year's field team, two of them record holders, have turned out for the current season and are looked upon by the added strength to the over-all Seminole scoring power.

Dean Weaver, record holder in the javelin (177 ft.; is back, and already this season has thrown 182 ft. which unofficially breaks his own record. Shot-put record holder Jerry Jacobs is not again and is fast approaching his last years top efforts.

Slinging Sonny Tims and Robert Green are working with the discs and are both showing steady improvement.

In the jumping department pole vaulter Carl Orenn and broad jumper Bill Graham are rounding into top form.

Barring injury or unforseen problems, the added Indian field team made up of these men and bolstered by other vets such as Carlos Praundorfer, Mike Smith, Warren Strickland, Lloyd Lassiter, Tedder Brown, may well be the best ever.

But this team will not be the case. FSU track fans may see their team chalk up one of the best dual meet records in the south.

Senate Rejects

(Continued From Page 1)

tion to save the bill by tabling it a week came to a vote, and lost.

Secretary Grubbs called for an immediate decision on the bill to satisfy questions of the constitutionality of ejoint elections.

The debate turned into an exchanga of hot words between Sargent and Senator McCann, the latter alleging that a large number of assistants "might stuff the ballot boxes." Swigert slightly replied that the Student Committee could do the same thing if the present if it wished to.

Through tradition the polls have been manned by members and Secretary of Council and Alpha Council, supervised by the elections committee.

Integrity Valued

Swigert and that in his opinion a few dishonest or unconcerned member would have as much integrity as a member of the university-wide committee.

Senator Soles pointed out that the Georgetown already conducts their own elections, and commented that in his dormitory Sandspur Hill, the turnout in the last one was 139 out of 150 residents.

Senator Close denied that interest in government would be furthered by passing the bill.

Fred Roberts, yielded the floor by Senator Gollin, disagreed, calling the dormitory elections "notoriously bad." He advocated letting the secretary of elections make the decision. His remarks were greeted with applause from the floor.

Shortly thereafter Senator Soles, apparently abandoning hope for passage of his bill, asked the Senate to defeat it, pointing out that the constitutional of reconsideration now under consideration by a special committee would remedy similar proposals for location of ballot boxes.

Soles then withdrew his original motion to pass the bill, and after an hour of debate it was defeated in the Senate records as defeated for lack of a motion to pass it.

HARRINGTON APPOINTED

The Senate later appointed West Hall Governor Nick Harrington to call a conference of all dormitory presidents on the matter and report their recommendations to elections Secretary Betty Jo Grubbs.

The Senate passed the measure on the assurance that the recommendations would not carry Senate sanction, but Vice-President Gaster declared:

"If I am elected president of the Student Body the person I recommend to the Senate for confirmation as Secretary of Elections shall be willing to accept such recommendations as this special committee shall offer to the present Secretary of Elections concerning the location of special balloting boxes."

SPORTS LOG

GYMNASTICS—FSU vs. Ga. Tech, 7 p.m. tomorrow in Women's Gym.

GOLF—FSU vs. Rollins, 11 a.m. tomorrow, Tallahassee Country Club.

VOLLEYBALL—FSU in Mid-South Invitational Tournament in Memphis, Tenn., starting tomorrow.

WE HOPE THEY ALL GOT BACK ON TIME

PARKVILLE, Mo.—ACP—Any student of Park College here who cut his last class, eraped, or work assignment before the first final one after Christmas vacation, was to be dropped from the college. His request for reinstatement may be considered by the administrative council and if approved, will be effective upon payment of a $5 fee

Letters

(Continued From Page 2)

"Letters to the Flambeau." I read how Mr. Dick Gutting has criticised Mr. Bailey about criticising Bob Gutting.

Now to what depth has this "Letters to the Editor" gone to? It seems that all this column has produced has been complaints against individuals. The many cares about who was or who was not a hero, or where an individual's home was or came from"?

The letter that Mr. Dick Gutting wrote to the Editors really it was to Mr. Bailey) really was a "tear jerker." I wonder why he just didn't send a personal letter to him?—as it was, it made me real sad.

It looks to me like there should be something concerning active instead of plain out and out "mud slinging" in this column! For instance how about some hints all over campus indicating which buildings are which? The only building you can find without too much trouble is the University Hospital—and if you've been there two days you can find it no matter from which direction you approach the campus.

Also the food! Where on earth did they ever get the ideas for their menus—Hungarian Goulosh, on day, "Bles"; the best, "Chicken a la some thing over noodles?" Even the next day back to the original "Hungarian Goulosh" again.

Well, I'll leave it in your hands. Be the readers thought why don't some of you send in your decent views and opinions like Mr. Tom Bailey.

Sincerely
CARLOS WATSON

U of F, Tribe Golfers Top GW Tourney

The Florida State and University of Florida golf teams stole the show at Tallahassee's annual George Washington Tournament last week

The George Washington, one of the leading amateur events in the South, was almost entirely dominated by players from the two institutions. Thirteen linksters out of the fifteen in the final round of the A Division of the Championship Flight were college students—six from FSU, six from Florida, and one from Rollins.

Since team competition has been eliminated from the tourney, the collegians were entered strictly on an individual basis. A breakdown of the six lowest qualifying scores on each team indicates that a fine team race would have occurred for team honors.

The FSU scorers were Dick Hauff 66, Billy Shelton 68, Jack Vogler 70, Dick Berry 71, Jim Morris 71, and Bob Shuman 74. The Florida scores were Doug Sanders 84, Pat Schwab 68, Dave Ragans 71, Jim McCoy 72, Frank Cain 72 and Jim Cameron 73.

Sanders was the eventual winner of the four day event, with teammate Schwab coming in second. FSU graduate student Art Butler beat out Berry in a race for third place.

The tournament served to open the Seminole season. Their first dual match is slated for tomorrow morning at the Country Club with the Rollins Tars furnishing the opposition.

———

Some cause hapiness wherever they go; others wherever they go.

Basketball Team Best In History

The best basketball team in Florida State's eight-year athletic background hopes to add more glory to its brilliant season's record in the national NAIA tournament opening at Kansas City, Mo., Monday.

Owners of a 21-3 record, Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminoles will carry one of the nation's leading won-lost roadings into the 32-team national playoffs.

The 1951 Seminoles reached the quarterfinals in Kansas City before bowing to runner-up Millikin.

A well-balanced lineup of consistent scorers has been the secret of Florida State's success this season. Four of the five first starters — Jimmy Oler, Ham Wernke, Rex Benson, and Dick Artmeier—are averaging double figures and the fifth man, center Gary Wold, isn't far behind.

Oler, 5-10 junior guard from Economy, Ind., sets a new school record with every basket. Aided by a record 201 free throws, Oler has 517 points for a 21.5 average for 24 games. 24 points more than the previous single-season mark established by Ham Wernke.

Wernke, two-time Helms Foundation NAIA All-Americ-

Player	Games	FGA	FGM	Pct.	FT	TP	Avg.
Jimmy Oler	24	515	315	.611	201	517	21.5
Ham Wernke	24	415	170	.407	154	477	19.8
Rex Benson	24	415	170	.407	154	477	19.8
Dick Artmeier	24	330	155	.469	112	422	17.5
Gary Wold	20	330	155	.469	108	418	20.9
Bob Wilkinson	20	330	155	.469	108	418	20.9
Tom Bunn	13	60	13	25.0	30	13	39.8
Fred Twomey	13	60	13	25.0	30	13	39.8
Bobby Wold	13	19	6	31.6	7	18	1.4
Ronnie Wernke	13	19	6	31.6	7	18	1.4
Bob Hendricks	11	19	6	31.6	7	18	1.4
Others		6	2	33.3	2	6	1.0
Opp. Totals	24	1967	1000	.508	1000	2000	83.3
Opponents	24	1967	1000	.508	1000	2000	83.3

FINAL INDIVIDUAL HIGHS

Most points scored against: Oler 24, Most FG goals game: Wernke 13
Most FT goals game: Oler 15, Most FT goals season: Oler 201
Most rebounds game: Benson, 22

FINAL TEAM HIGH MARKS

Most TP on FG: Wernke 170 vs. Rollins, Most FTA game: 54 vs. Jacksonville, Most FTM game: 39 vs. Jacksonville, Most points game: 110 vs. Rollins

22-CAR COLLISION CAUSES $10,000 DAMAGE

MINNEAPOLIS (ACP)—Minor-smooth ice on Washington avenue bridge leading across the Mississippi river to the University of Minnesota caused a total damage of $10,000 as 22 cars ended up with crumpled fenders and dimmed hoods one morning last week.

Glare ice and clouds of river steam contributed to the mishaps in 20-degree-below-zero weather. Ten of the 22 vehicles had to be towed away. No one was seriously hurt, the Minnesota Daily reported.

Reflections

(Continued From Page 1)

have one. Maybe we should have three. Maybe we have two. You can see that there are good reasons for having parties on campus.

But, the belligerents maintain, the party system will ultimately grow too bulky and would be eliminated anyway as the number is still finite.

Ridiculous. The possible number is one, and there is no reason why it should be increased. In fact it wouldn't be a bad idea if a party used this as one of its planks.

If there were only one party here, the social organizations would be eliminated. With nobody, but nobody, to compete against, pan-hellenics would be eliminated. The school colors could be used, more patriotic government a could result.

Two parties are a lot of fun, but one party is the ideal thing to be better. The thought of NO party should never enter our minds.

MUSIC SESSION at the OASIS
Saturday, 2 p. m.
119 W. Jefferson

ENJOY Dinner By Candlelight Tonight In The F.S.U. SEMINOLE CLUB

Sunday Dinner At 75c Is A Real Treat
SERVED FROM 11:50 A.M. TO 1:30 P.M.

On Campus with Max Shulman
(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

THE CARE AND FEEDING OF BOOKS

You busy college people—you with your classes and your studying and your social activities and your three-legged races—how wonder that you have little time for books. I mean reading for the pure pleasure of it, not to cram for exams. It is a sad omission, and my heart goes out to you. I do, however, take comfort from the fact that the graduation season approaches. Many of you will soon leave the hurly-burly of college for the tranquility of the outside world. Oh, you'll love it outside! It is a quiet life, a gracious and contemplative whole life of ease and relaxation, of plenty of time to enjoy the pleasures of literature.

So with you in mind that I sit now in my cane-bottomed chair, prop my feet on the radiator, light a cigarette and smoke a mellow Philip Morris cigarette and remember books that made me cry and books that made me cry and remembering laugh and laugh again. It is, I say, with you in mind that I sit thus and close my kindly gray eyes thus and smoke a mellow Philip Morris and remember books that made me cry and remembering laugh and cry again.

Sifting and rocking, my limpid brown eyes closed in reverie, a column of white smoke curling lazily upward from my excellent Philip Morris cigarette, I remember a lovely and affecting book called Blood on the Grits by that most talented young author-ette, Richard Membrane Haw. It is a tender and poignant story of a sensitive Alabama boy who passes safely through puberty only to be devoured by bull weevils . . . A lovely and affecting book.

I puff my splendid Philip Morris cigarette and close my dancing blue eyes and recall another book, a thrilling true adventure, lovely and affecting, called I Climbed Everest the Hard Way by Cliff Sherpa. Mr. Sherpa, as everyone knows, was the first man to reach the peak of Mt. Everest by tunneling from below. In his book he gives a lovely and affecting account of his trip, which was not as easy as it sounds, you may be sure.

I light another merry Philip Morris cigarette and close my lambent hazel eyes and recollect another book — Life on the Farm by Dick Woolly. This is a short book—only 93 words—and Father a dull one. If would not be worth mentioning here were it not for the fact that the author is a sheep.

I exhale a cloud of snowy white smoke from my bracing Philip Morris cigarette and shed my laughing green eyes and think of the vast, vast array of historical novels that have given me pleasure.

There is Blood on the Visor by Richard Membrane Haw—ha who wrote the lovely and affecting Blood on the Grits. There is Cold Steel and Hot Flashes by Emmaline Prentiss Moultrie. There is The Black Shield of Scarf-ace by Wendell Wright. There is Four Quarts in a Gallcon by William Makepiece Clambroth. There are many, many others, all lovely, all affecting.

But sitting here, drawing on my mellow Philip Morris cigarette, my saucy amber eyes closed tightly, I am thinking that the loveliest, most affecting of all historical novels is May Cutler's classic, I Was a Secret Spy for F.B.I. Mrs. Cutler, justly famed for her rich historical tapestries, has outdone herself in this tempestuous romance of Angela Bodice, fiery daughter of an enslaved Inf, who falls in love with Jean Pierre Duffy, position of head-linesman to the Emperor of Bosnia and then throws it all away to lead the downtrodden peasants in a revolt against the mark'ed tax. She later becomes Ferdinand Magellan.

But the list of fine books is endless, as you will soon discover who are about to leave the turmoil of the campus and enter into the serene world outside, where a man has time to read and rock and close his rakish taupe eyes and smoke good Philip Morris cigarettes.

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of Philip Morris, who bring you this column, tell you that in our book, PHILIP MORRIS is the mildest, tastiest cigarette anybody ever made.

Social Sororities Elect Officers; Hold Initiation For New Pledges

Pi Beta Phi

The Pi Beta Phi recently elected chapter officers as follows: Pres., Joan Tavel, Vice-Pres., Mary Stewart Bolton, Corresponding Secretary, Audrey Carlton, Recording Sec., Janice Southerland, Treasurer, Ruth Ann Whittle, Pledge Trainer, Dale Leary, Scholarship Jean Tedder.

New pledges are Jane Davis, Maage Marsh, and Sherry Cobb. Betty Hanlon was selected Best pledge and the Scholarship Cup was awarded to Betty Jane Jackson.

New Initiates are: Lucy Crossland, Sara Jane Griffin, Gail Hanahan, Betty Hatton, Jean Hayden, Betty Jane Jackson, Joan Zoerhaugh, Barbara Don Hamilton, Gloria Johnson, Elaine Knight, Priscilla Moss, Mary Shaw, Patsy Stewart, Adrian Ann Whittle, Ann George, Eurenia McLin.

Alpha Gamma Delta

Recently installed officers of Alpha Gamma Delta are: Pres. Bobbie Trimble; First Vice-Pres., Jo Ann Anderson; Second Vice-Pres., Betty Jane Bailey, Treasurer, Jane Zenn; Recording Secretary, Dorothy McNab, Ruth Chairman, Lou Griffin.

Officers of the New Pledges are Pres., Dot Job; Vice-Pres., Sue Durrance; Sec., Sally Lou Carlson; Treasurer, Betsy Youngblood.

Alpha Omicron Pi

Outstanding Alpha Omicron Pi pledge at initiation was Gayle Gardner Scholastic award went to Lynn Shirley.

Initiated February 17 were: Mary Burkholder, Pat Hilton, Lynn Shirley, Joanne Towles, Carolyn Davis, Gayle Gardner, Martha Hall, Sandra Hancock, Dot Hanson, Ann Hill, Barbara King, Liz Lauder, B. J. McFee, Lynell Reynolds and Joan Woods.

Pledge class officers are, pres., Mary Casey; vice-pres. and sec., Connell; soc., Jo Anne Clark; treas., Barbara Green; soc. chm., Gretchen Thompson and Song Leader, Shirley Panossa.

Sigma Kappa

New officers are Sara Aikinson, pres.; Mary Ulla, 1st vice-pres.; Lillian Hasvind, 2nd vice-pres.; Donna Hardy, treas.; Ann Carec, rec. sec.; Rita Dollar, cor. sec.; Ann Markham, Rush chm.; Margaret Jane Morland, house mgr.; Ruth Brushaw, social chm.; Dawn Sharp, scholarship chm.; Ann Jackson, activities chm.; Ann Callahan, registrar, and Joyce Campbell, Pan-Hel delegate.

New initiates are, Martha Adkinson, Betty Benton, Nancy Buchan, Sandra Benton, Janice Grosser, Shirley Jackson, Bobby Jones, Pat Jeanne Kent, Cynthia Mixson, Jakie Pearce, Barbara Phelps, Margaret Roberts, June Silay, Mary Sandy Ann Strom, Mary Walter, Vicky Walter, Charlaine Wilson and Sherry Whitley.

Recently pledged at informal rush were Ann Elliot and Betty Jean Cushman.

Gamma Phi Beta

Virginia Ann Brennand was awarded the Outstanding Pledge cup and Jonalie Robins received the scholarship cup.

New initiates are Virgina Brennand, Barbara Brook, Margaret Cox, Dorothy Dodd, Barbara Dwight, Ann Folsom, Bonnie Foster, Betsy Green, Shirley Hall, Grace Militello, Janice Raines, Barbara Rogers, Jane Rose and Betty Wrenn.

Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women, was speaker at a banquet in the chapter house Sunday.

Alpha Chi Omega

New officers are Carol Wells, president; Carolyn Redfern, 1st vice-pres.; Mary Freeman, 2nd vice-pres., Nancy Henley, cor. sec.; Pat Dewberry, rec. sec., Dottie Thompson, treas., Barbara Bachman, Pan-Hel representative; Marion Weaver, scholarship chm. and Mary Jo Githens, social chm.

Initiates are Jackie Allen, Jeri Bradfield, Mary Breedle, Carole Cheatham, Barbara Cole, Louise Ellis, Mary Hill, Phyllis Hedges, Marion McIlwaine, Barbara Jeffries, Marilynn Keraghi, Allison Kincaid, Jay Smiley, Susan Strock and Janell Verrazon.

Frosh Dorms Elect And Install Spring Officers, Chairmen

New officers have recently been installed in the Freshmen dorms. They are as follows:

Byrd: Patty Pascale and Wilma Fagan, vice-presidents. Regina Francescon, social chairman and Kay Kramer, Shirley Ogram, Loree Coker, Betty Sheppard and Jean Joanlon was elected committee meetins and men's vice-president. Gator was not present when the vote was taken.

Jennie Murphree Sue Purvis and Joyce Weatherup, vice-presidents; Suzane Stokes, Social chairman and Barbara Hall, Ruth Fischer Betty Benson, Calvin Jones, Gayle Gardner, Dorothy Lanier, Joyce Campbell and Shirley Metz, Floor chairmen.

Broward: Janice Kamma and Sandra Poulette, vice-presidents; Marsha Grizard, Social chairman, Jane Albert, Vanne Para and Kay Bishop, Floor chairmen; and Mollie Carroll, Intramural chairman.

Brevard: Jean Perez, president, Liv Cerney and Barbara Hall Jones, vice-presidents; Jan Fussell, social chairman; Marion Mackie, Ellen Steadman, Kay DeCuyler, Catherine Quinn, Martha Douglas, Kathleen Pilcher, Sarah Umsted Betty Addison, and Carol Collins. Floor chairmen; Glenda Bonow, Intramurals, and Marty Bethune Fire marshal.

Activity cup was presented at the Initiates Banquet to Janele Vervasson, and the Scholarship cup to Marilynne Searcatt.

Pledge officers are Rena Jane McBride, president; Sue Scott, vice-pres. and Frao Hamilton, sec.-treas.

Alpha Xi Delta

Jan Kaminis, president of the pledge class, received the scholarship cup and Barbara Hammer the "Best All-Around Pledge" trophy.

New officers are Lou Shafer, pres.; Joan Johnston, vice-pres., Betty Sullivan, treas., Margarite Kasch, rec. sec., Anita Brunson, cor. sec., Nancy Cubbon, rush chm., Barbara Hughes, social chm., and Cortine Sullivan, chaplain.

New sorority members are Mary Albert, Carolyn Baker, Linda Brodrick, Barbara Hammer, Jan Kaminis, Carol Keels, Myrtle Lay, Ann Murray, Wanda Owen, Gail Pater, Stephenie Powell Lori Staples, Barbara Stanton, Beverly Wells, Sara Whiting and Mary Williams.

Bulletin—

Committee In Agreement On Representation

The special Senate committee studying the representation problem came up with a compromise yesterday afternoon which it will recommend to the Senate by a four to two vote.

The Senate will receive as a bill at their Wednesday general meeting.

He commented on the purpose of the Young Democrats and also the events to be sponsored in the future. He said the organization is "to create an active interest in political events necessary for an intelligent choice of leaders politically, economically and socially; that these events have on the individual and society as a whole."

Wyeth Is Speaker

Kennedy and the club had acquired Miss Hortense Wells as a speaker. Miss Wells was a Democratic National Committeewoman for eight years, and a candidate for the office of U. S. Senator. She also worked with James Farley, and was on the screen when FDR first received the nomination."

Miss Wells will appear at FSU Wednesday, March 16.

Kennedy declared that more intelligent men in political circles will result in better government.

"If enough active interest is created and the obligations of the new regime in Washington, established our purpose. I am certain this will constitute a more responsible and dynamic leadership throughout, beginning on campus and spreading to the national scene.

Zo-Em-Ba—Mary Jackson and Pat Arrants take time out from Sandspur rehearsals to let Jack Rogero, John Zilles and Don Teal (l. to r.) give them a swing on the stage ropes.

Young Democrats Plan Gr

Plans for the expansion of the Young Democrats Club along with recruitment of new members have been shaped.

Dave Kennedy, president, outlined the program yesterday. "Present membership stands at about 200; if our drive for new members is successful," Kennedy declared, "it will increase the organization to 1,000, which is our goal." He added, "Membership cards will be sold for $1."

Art Students Attend Seminar At Ringling Museum In April

The Art department of Florida State University will participate in the Eighth Annual Art Seminar at Ringling Museum in Sarasota.

The seminar, to be held April 9-10, includes a series of lectures, concerts and plays. Most events will be held in the Asolo Theater of the Sarasota institution.

FSU students and others who attend the meetings will be addressed by several nationally prominent speakers, who will speak on "Since 1900" the theme of this year's seminar.

Prominent among the speakers will be Alfred H. Barr, Director of Museum Collections of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City. Barr has written definitive texts on Picasso and Henri Matisse. He will speak twice on "Art and Politics."

Zerbe To Speak

Karl Zerbe, visiting professor at FSU, will also speak and appear in a play production. Zerbe, a painter of note, is also known for his expositions of the artist's attitude, methods, and aims.

Bartlett Hayes another prominent speaker to attend the study group, is Curator of the Addison Gallery of American Art at Andover, Massachusetts. Hayes has written books on art and art appreciation and is also known as a lecturer.

Dave Brubeck and his quartet will be shown Wednesday, April 6, and on Thursday, April 7, the FSU percussionists will play "Tocoata in E Minor," by Johann Sebastian Bach.

Works of Gladys Laugher, Vera Eskin, Gretchaninoff and Mussorgsky will then be sung by Miss Ann Hall, Miss Mary Ellen Hamilton of Debussy and Mendelssohn, by Miss Humphrys.

Alabama Priest Here For Newmans' Retreat

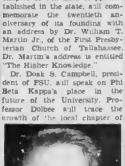
The annual Florida State University Catholic Student Newman retreat starts today and ends Monday.

The annual affair, consisting of series of talks and religious activities designed to be a spiritual uplift for FSU students started this morning with mass in the Newman House at 7 a.m. Conducting mass as well as the retreat this weekend will be Reverend Charles C. Goetz of the Society of Jesus. He comes from Spring Hill College in Alabama where he is chairman of the Religious Department.

Father Goetz, a native of Natchez, Mississippi, attended Louisiana University of New Orleans and later worked for the Natchez newspaper. Ordained in the Catholic priesthood, he came at Spring Hill College and St. Louis University. Father Goetz entered the Grand Colony, Louisiana Jesuit Order in 1934.

A member of the board of directors of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference Father Goetz is also active in the Rural Life Division of the Catholic Welfare Conference of the South.

Active in Mobile, Alabama,



Top Education Honorary Has 20th Birthday

Eleven faculty members who are charter members of the Florida State University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honor society, will be guest of honor at the chapter's twentieth anniversary celebration Saturday evening.

Those to be honored are Professors Venilla L. Shores, Myrtle Dolbee, Dorothy B. Hoffman, Gloria N. Sanderson, Willard T. Hahn, Marion J. Hay, Marian Irish, Harold P. Richards, William H. Rogers, Elmer R. Smith and Anna M. Tracy.

Alpha of Florida, the first chapter of Phi Beta Kappa established in the state, will commemorate the twentieth anniversary of its founding with an address by Dr. William T. Martin Jr., of the First Presbyterian Church of Tallahassee. Dr. Martin's address is entitled "The Higher Knowledge."

Dr. Dosk B. Campbell, president of FSU, will speak on Phi Beta Kappa's place in the future of the University. Professor Dolbee will trace the growth of the local chapter of

DR. SAMUEL L. MEYER

Phi Beta Kappa. The program will begin in the main lounge of the Longmire Building. The public is invited.

Dr. Samuel L. Meyer, president of the chapter, will preside. Barbara Hall, Venilla Shores, vice-president; Dr. Russell Reaver, secretary; William Watson, treasurer; and Mrs. Jeffrey Alfriend, historian.

The reception committee is composed of Mrs. T. Q. Srygley and Dr. Graydon S. DeLand, assisted by Miss Lynelle Thompson and Miss Miriam Wilson.

University Camp Reopens Schedule For FSU Students

The Reservation opens again today for a full time basis.

Tuesday through Friday one afternoon bus leaves the sorority house on the 4 p.m. and returns to the campus at 6 p.m. Saturday two buses will run and one will enable students to "hop the bus, roast some weiners and then head for the beach" after a couple of hours of free relaxation says Miss Mary Ann Alexander, Reservation Director.

Saturdays and Sundays the buses will leave information at 1, 2, and 4 p.m. with an extra bus added at 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. a convenience for weekend campers who desire transportation during the week-end. In order to attend church services The Protestant's week-end buses dates are being "snapped up fast." Not any group wishing to reserve the camp's facilities during the next three months may get information by calling Mrs. Mary V. Alexander's office, extension 5181, or the Reservation, 2-7212.

TUCKER NEW PREXY OF PHI KAPPA TAU

George Tucker is the new president of Phi Kappa Tau.

Other newly elected officers include Max Hemann, vice-president; James Van Middlesworth, secretary; James Poole, treasurer; Derwyn McElroy, pledge master, and Buck Stuckey, house manager.

Recently pledged are Bill Grafton, Jim Pollack, Jim Conner, Fred Tolbert, Jim Hogan, B. B. Rhodes, and Frank Dedefano.

HALF A HAIL TO MINNESOTA

MINNEAPOLIS — ACP — The University of Minnesota Quiz Kids who have showed down twelve universities in the weekly College Quiz Bowl program Saturday night, over NBC, came up with a complete blank on one question last week. The question: Who could repeat the second stanza of the University's alma mater, "Minnesota, Hail to Thee."

Young Democrats Plan Growth; Set Membership Goal At 1000

Plans for the expansion of the Young Democrats Club along with recruitment of new members have been shaped.

Dave Kennedy, president, outlined the program yesterday. "Present membership stands at about 200; if our drive for new members is successful," Kennedy declared, "it will increase the organization to 1,000, which is our goal." He added, "Membership cards will be sold for $1."

He commented on the purpose of the Young Democrats and also the events to be sponsored in the future. He said the organization is "to create an active interest in political events necessary for an intelligent choice of leaders politically, economically and socially; that these events have on the individual and society as a whole."

Wyeth Is Speaker

Kennedy and the club had acquired Miss Hortense Wells as a speaker. Miss Wells was a Democratic National Committeewoman for eight years, and a candidate for the office of U. S. Senator. She also worked with James Farley, and was on the screen when FDR first received the nomination."

Miss Wells will appear at FSU Wednesday, March 16.

Kennedy declared that more intelligent men in political circles will result in better government.

"If enough active interest is created and the obligations of the new regime in Washington, established our purpose. I am certain this will constitute a more responsible and dynamic leadership throughout, beginning on campus and spreading to the national scene.

State Department Officer Tells Of Job Opportunities

Many new opportunities are presenting themselves for students who wish to go into the Foreign Service, United States Foreign Service Officer David Wilson said this week.

Speaking to Florida State University students, Wilson said the State Department will give a written examination for recruitment of 300 Foreign Service officers, on June 24.

Wilson said a bull now before Congress would give Foreign Service Scholarships worth $900 a year for the last two years of the holder's college career. Each member of Congress would be allowed to make one scholarship appointment while the President would make those Congressmen seem only lukewarm to this proposal, Wilson added.

"The world is sick and the nation depends to a great extent on the skill and integrity of our Foreign Service."

Jobs are located in United States embassies, legations and consulates in 77 countries throughout the world as well as in the State Department headquarters in Washington, Applications must be 20-31 years of age, and turn in application for the Foreign Service by May 2.

Application forms and further information is available at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott Building.

A man who brags about his ancestors admits he comes from a family that is better off dead.

House sense is what keeps horses from betting on what people do.

White Returns For Book Fair At Dem School

Robb White, famous novelist and author of The Lion's Paw and The Secret Sea, will be a guest at the Book Fair to be held at the Demonstration school here.

The fair, sponsored by the Association for Childhood Education, begins tomorrow. Hours will be 3:30-8 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. It will run through March 19.

Besides on exhibit and for sale include mystery books, animal books, holiday stories, books on Florida, travel, hobbies, and religion.

Demonstration school students, their parents and teachers, and Florida State University students and faculty are invited to attend. No admission will be charged and refreshments will be served.

White, also author of Our Virgin Island, one of the year's best selling paperbacks on campus not long ago as a guest of the Ensilan Coffee Hour.

ALPHA DELTA PI INITIATES NINETEEN

Alpha Delta Pi sorority has initiated Nancy Bartlett, Judy Burch, Carolyn Canova, Emma Dexter, Nancy Dyson, Sharon Flynn, Susan Hyde, Julia Jones, Mara Lovett, Sara Alice McGehan, Sandra Moore, Jeri Norland, Ann Riley, Betty Ann Scherer, Wanda Starnes, Carolyn Stephens, Billie Stokes, Carol Tarnow, and Lynn Williams.

Talent does things tolerably well; genius does them indescribably better.

British University To Merge In Summer School Program

A joint program of British University Summer Schools for 1955 has been announced by the universities of Edinburgh, London, Oxford and Stratford-on-Avon.

Spokesmen for the group said that the program is intended primarily to provide for the needs of postgraduate students from the universities of America, Europe and Commonwealth countries.

In addition to postgraduates, including teachers in universities and colleges, the courses are also "generally considered" from others with suitable qualifications. University undergraduates in their last two years.

Schools will last six weeks, and feature lectures, tutorial work and opportunities to visit places of historic interest. The fee, board and tuition amount to between $210 and $245, plus $15 charged of accepted applicants.

Courses are:

July 2-August 13 "Shakespeare and Elizabethan Drama, to be held by the University of Birmingham at Stratford-On-Avon at a cost of $284.

July 11-August 19. "Architecture and Music in England" (1660-1760) to be held at the University of London at a cost of $305.

July 1-August 12. "Politics and Literature on the Twentieth Century." to be given at the University of Oxford at a cost of $284.

July 4-August 13. European Civilization: A Historical Survey, to be held at the University of Edinburgh at a cost of $213.

Full information on these programs is available at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott Building.

Job Opportunities

(Information may be secured in the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott Building.)

Monday, March 7:
Prudential Insurance Company
Interviews: A. B. or B. S. degree in Business Administration or Economics.

Tuesday, March 8
Borrough Engineers
Wanted: Civil Engineers.

Thursday, March 10
Leon Hall Music Co.
Interviews: Music graduates interested in selling.

Friday, March 11
Bureau of Personnel
Interviews: Mr. Vernon A. Allen
Wanted: Persons interested in Business Administration.

Monday, March 14
Internal Revenue Service
(Courtesy office of Dean of Men)
Interviews: Graduates, $3811 a year.

GREEN PUBLISHES

Dr. Alex E. S. Green, associate professor of physics at FSU, is the author of a new book, Nuclear Physics, published in the January issues in Pure and Applied Physics by the McGraw Hill Company.

Veterans News

Veterans figuring their Federal income tax need not include as income any payments they have received for Veterans Administration education and training under the tax free, the VA and the Bureau of Internal Revenue said today.

Dividends which veterans receive on their GI insurance policies also are exempt from income taxes and do not be reported as income.

Examples of the tax free payments are the following:

Education and training allowances for post-Korean veterans enrolled in schools and training establishments under the Korean GI Bill.

Subsistence payments made to disabled World War II and Korean veterans training under Public Law 16 Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

Subsistence allowances paid to World War II veterans training under the original World War II GI Bill.

Disability compensation and pensions received by veterans because of service-connected and nonservice-connected disabilities.

Grants for severely disabled veterans for homes designed for wheelchair living.

Grants for motor vehicles to veterans who lost their sight or lost the use of their limbs.

Death benefits to families of deceased veterans also are exempt from taxation. These include compensation, pension and all GI insurance payments.

Most of us know how to say nothing; few of us know when.

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER AND ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN ST.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

SCOUTERS NEEDED FOR SUMMER CAMP
Here is your chance to work in the largest camp for boys in the South
Program: Woodslore, Aquatics & Administrative POSITIONS AVAILABLE IN TEN MILE RIVER SCOUT CAMPS
Serving the Best of New York City
For information—Contact Ed Andrews—Em. 17
Basement Lounge Longmire Bld.

FOR THE SECRET OF FINE FOOD—GO TO FAIVER'S
FOR CHICKEN
NOON DAY LUNCH . . . . 60c up
EVENING MEAL . . . . . 85c up
PHONE 2-4578 1312 W. TENN

Kopaska Diamond Rings
Bulova Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRING
107 S. Monroe St. Phone 3-1467

FOR THE BEST IN SHOE REPAIRING TRY
PALACE SHOE SHOP
(Opp. Post Office)
121 E. PARK AVE

harriett
Your Hairstylist
Coiffure Designers
212 W. College Avenue
Phone 2-5214

50 million times a day at home, at work or while at play
There's nothing like a Coke
1. FOR TASTE... bright, bracing ever-fresh sparkle.
2. FOR REFRESHMENT... a welcome hit of quick energy that brings you back refreshed.
DRINK Coca-Cola
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY
Tallahassee Coca-Cola Bottling Co.
"Coke" is a registered trade mark © 1955, THE COCA COLA COMPANY

THE DEPARTMENT OF SPEECH
Announces
THE CRUCIBLE
by
Arthur Miller
March 11, 12, 14, 15
CONRADI THEATER
8:15 P. M.
Tickets: Students: 40c and Activity Stub No. 7
GENERAL ADMISSION 75c
All Seats Reserved
Box Office Opens Wednesday, March 8

FLAMBEAU EDITOR
Case Goes
To Honor Court—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 34 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1955

Student Party Convention Is Tomorrow Night

Convention Registration Begins 6:30

The Student Party will hold its nominating convention tomorrow night beginning at 8:30 pm in Cooleys Building Lecture Hall.

Party Chairman Graham Carothers expects the delegates to nominate a full slate of candidates for Student Body offices. The election primary is scheduled for March 29.

Selection of platform planks is among other business scheduled for the convention, along with constitutional revision. Probably the most important constitutional change will declare Dru Student." As of yet, Jack Carothers, no definite way has been established for deciding who is and who is not a Bu Student.

Contact Ranieri

Carothers asked that students who wish to place their names on the agenda for Student Party nomination, contact party secretary Caroline Ranieri, phone 2-3367 no noon Wednesday.

Carothers said the complete party platform would be decided at the nominating convention, commenting on the endorsement of a non-profit organization. He said he had the party's executive committee was "definitely against it."

Editorship

The bitterest issue which has arisen so far in connection with the Student Party convention is the possibility of their nominating a candidate for editor of The Florida Flambeau. This depends on a decision by the Honor Court tonight over party policy as to whether the prospective candidate is eligible for the post.

Chairman Carothers said this week that women delegates to the convention will have late permission until midnight.

News Briefs

STA PLANS ANNUAL MEET

The annual FTA Convention for high school clubs in Florida will be held beginning Friday at 9 a.m. through Saturday at 12 p.m. A banquet will be held in the Seminole Room Friday at 6 p.m., at which Thomas Bailey, Superintendent of Education; Betty Jane Henderson, State President of the FTA at college level; R. L. Doman, Dean of School of Education; and Mrs. Hoover Rupert, state secretary of PEA will speak.

Host for the occasion will be Leon High School chaser and Dr. Walker-Westcott chapter at Leon.

PHI MU'S HOLD INITIATION HERE

Phi Mu Sorority initiated the following girls for Fall: Sue Cox, Barbara Essig, Sue East, Wood Tina Gifford, Anita Liddon, Nancy Maxwell, Gay Miles, Trudy Parry, Melanie Pauley, Betty Ann Peacock, Nancy Sandbree and Rosemary Garner. Girls active held a banquet on March 1, for the former pledges. A cup was presented to Barbara Essig and Jackie Pauley for being the outstanding pledges of the Phi Pledge Class, and Betty Ann Peacock was given an award for maintaining the highest grades in the Class. The Ann Tucker Memorial Scholarship Award was given to Gamma Sigma for progressing the most in grades over a two year period.

ASPA HEARS ROBERT THURSDAY

The American Society for Public Administration will present Mr. James F. Wright as its guest speaker at 8 p. m., Thursday, March 10, in room 63 of the Lecturere Building.

Mr. Wright is an employee of the office of Analysis and Review of the United States Navy department and will speak on some of the undeveloped aspects of Public Administration. All interested persons were cordially invited to attend.

SEMINOLE FLYERS MEET TOMORROW

The Seminole Flyers, University Flying Club, will meet tomorrow. The meeting will be held in two parts, the first a Dutch-treat supper at Kalkers at 5:30 p.m. and a business meeting will follow at 7:15 in room 218 Music Bldg.

Faculty staff and students interested in minimum cost flying are invited to attend, announced Kenneth Miller, professor of Physical Education for Men.

ENGLISH MAJORS GET INVITATION

All interested juniors and seniors majoring in English or in Secondary Education who plan to become members of a campus chapter of the National Council of Teachers of English. A meeting will be held in Room 301, Education Building at 5 p.m. on this Wednesday.

Photo By Antonia Shannon

A State Affair . . . FSU President Dr. Doak S. Campbell and Margaret Neller converse at the Phi Beta Kappa banquet held recently. Others around the table are Dr. W. T. Martin, speaker; Miss Myrtle Dolbee and Dr. Sam Meyer.

Phi Beta Kappa Speaker Says Wisdom Is Goal Of Education

The goal of education is wisdom, a wisdom which goes after truth that men may be brought to a certain temper and excellence.

That is the belief of the Rev. Dr. William T. Martin, Jr., of the First Presbyterian Church, who was the principal speaker Saturday night at the 29th anniversary celebration of the FSU chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic honorary.

Need Reminding

"We need to be reminded that wisdom is greater than knowledge," Dr. Martin said. Explaining that knowledge is acquired in information and not what our age needs, the speaker stressed the intrinsic values of wisdom which have to do with the moral and spiritual aspects of life.

Dr. Martin said that any educational system is incomplete that seeks to ignore man's spiritual development. The examination of the mind alone does not constitute an education—it is a fragment of education. The whole man wisely directed is our concern."

What a man becomes is more important than what he learns as the result of his education, he said.

Star Symbols

He pointed out that the three stars on the original Phi Beta Kappa Key standfor Morality, Literature and Reason. With these three guiding stars, the society has declared its belief in responsible education dedicated to worthy ends.

He said the teacher is at the forefront of the humble search for truth, "for it is he who provides what Albert North Whitehead called the sacred trust of our generation—called "the habitual vision of greatness whereby which moral education is impossible".

It is significant to remember, Dr. Martin declared, "that in the early days of higher education in those great schools from which our whole idea of a university has come, men addressed themselves to a teacher and learned from him, not by separating from what he was, as they did from what he said."

Presents Speaker

As president of the Alpha of Florida chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, Dr. Samuel Meyer introduced the distinguished speaker. Dr. President Doak S. Campbell, and Miss Myrtle Dolbee who discussed the requirements and history of Future of Phi Beta Kappa the honorary in respect to higher education.

Party Chairmen Predict Close Race In Coming Spring Election

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Chairmen of both student political parties on campus yesterday assured their opinions on the nature of the coming Student Body Elections battle.

State Party Chairman Fred Mansfield presented probably the most optimistic viewpoint by declaring that he expected the least eight of the nine candidates on his party ticket to be elected.

"I expect the closest races to be for President of the Student Body and vice-president of the legislative affairs," said Mansfield. "This is because, of all the offices contested, these are the only two which will actually be contested on qualifications."

Perhaps conceding Mansfield a point, Student Body Chairman Graham Carothers said he expected the Student Body Elections to "test the effectiveness of the (Student) party as never before and I certainly think that it will be a very active campaign as far as the parties are concerned.

Individuals Important

"I think the individuals will play a very important role, more so than they have in the past."

Going a step further along this line, the State Party's Mansfield said he thought that

"some of the independent candidates are without doubt, the most qualified and capable persons for holding the offices which they seek." This is his personal opinion, he stated, and has no relativity to the race for Flambeau editor."

Mansfield said he didn't think that there will be any big issues in the coming elections (slated for March 29). "However, there are a few things in our platform that I don't think the Student Party will fully agree upon.

"There are bound to be differences in the two party platforms, and in the near future I hope there will be great issues in the party system, so that the party system at Florida State University will have a foothold to stand on," declared Mansfield.

Value of Parties

Carothers, speaking as Student Party Chairman, said he could see "no real fight over party platform differences."

"I think the value of the party can be determined by the caliber of the candidates which it nominates for office and also by the amount of student interest which it promotes in these elections.

"The party system also provides the candidate with a definite program which they hope to accomplish," he continued.

Senate Gets Representation Compromise

The representation compromise amendment will be considered by the Student Senate at its meeting tomorrow, which begins at 4:15 in the Senate Chamber, second floor Longmire.

A committee of eight Senators and vice-presidents who had proposed their own individual measures agreed on a compromise last Thursday.

The provisions which will be offered to the Senate tomorrow are:

Provisions

Two men and two women senators from the sophomore, junior and senior classes, to be elected in the Spring; three women, seven senators, to be elected in Fall;

Two senators at large from Inter-Fraternity Council; two at large from Panhellenic, and two from the Independents, to be elected in the Spring;

One Senator each from Magnolia, Seagle Jenny Mayflower, Reynolds, Bryan-Broward complex, Gilchrist, Landis, Florida and Cawthon Halls, and two from West Hall; to be elected in the Spring within two weeks after school begins.

Live In Dorms

Representatives, under the compromise plan, would be required to live in the dormitories they represent while holding office. Sea Creek living in dormitories would vote there

This would result in a Senate of 32 members, plus the men and women's vice-presidents

Also to be considered by the Senate is a Student Body System amendment to the constitution introduced last week. This amendment, supported by the Secretary of Honor, would:

Require a majority on all written work

Require trial of cases by Honor Court within three school days after offense is reported.

Minimum Penalty

Minimum cheating penalty of failure of course and placement on probation.

Disqualification of offenders from holding office in any organizations on athletic teams.

If Senate passes these amendments this week or next they will go to the Student Body for ratification in the Spring elections.

Weekend 'Fun' Is Destructive To University

An outbreak of college pranks that turned into willful destructiveness occurred here this past weekend.

Roy Harris, a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, reported that Saturday morning at about 3 a.m. a group of boys entered the frat house and stole the alumni banner. It was valued at 40 dollars. These letters were converted into the mantle. It will cost approximately 10 dollars to repair the damages. Three beer mugs were also reportedly stolen by the would-be pranksters.

A week ago, some lettering in gold leaf was taken from the PiKA's Tampa western sign of old English and had the name of chapter plus PiKA.

Fire Crackers

Also Saturday morning, fire crackers were set off behind the Kappa Delta sorority house at 12:30 a.m. and a member of that sorority.

Later that night, some painthappy gentlemen defaced the steps of the Library. Longmire and the Superintendent of Education Buildings, with "U of F" and the Greek letters of Kappa Sigma.

It is believed that these gentlemen were Kappa Sigma pledges from Gainesville on a road trip.

A woman student from Reynolds Hall reported that several Kappa Sig pledges were on such a road trip from the U of F put on a skit in front of the dorm on a skit in front of the dorm and a request for a pledge hour Friday.

The "Welcome Sign" facing highway US 90 opposite West Hall was also defaced by the painters with obscenity.

FORTIN ELECTED CPA CONTROLLER

George F. Fortin, Assistant Comptroller of the Florida State University has been elected a member of the Florida Institute of Accountants, national professional society of certified public accountants.

Blood Drive Has Sitxy- Three Pint Total; Still Short

Kappa Sigs, West Hall Now Leading

The Blood Drive had a slow weekend with only two donors Friday, none Saturday, and none by noon yesterday.

With only one week to go, 63 pints have been donated toward a goal of 120, and a spokesman from the Blood Bank. Of these, 22 pints were given by Kappa Sigma fraternity, giving it first place.

Second place is currently held by West Hall, with 13 pints, followed closely by Phi Kappa Tau fraternity with 12 pints. Other donors include the Sigma Chi's with 9 pints, one Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and eight Independents.

Recent Accidents

Several accidents have occurred recently in which blood was needed. Russell Bump, enrolled in the Nursing School, was injured three weeks ago when his car overturned. Still unconscious and in critical condition, Bump is still getting transfusions.

Merle Fortune, one of the "Flying Ha's" clowns, was hurt Saturday when he lost out in the way of a cannon going off. Though he hasn't required blood, he is in need of more, it," Dr. Hathaway said.

Each pint so donated last year when a girl fell out of a dormitory window.

"It is not a question of one pint when a person needs blood, is a question of two or more to really do the job," Dr. Hathaway said. "We need all types of blood and these types are rare. Blood is frequently used before and sometimes during surgery, and if the supply is used up during the week-end because of a lack of blood, it is gone afterward, and there is really no substitute for whole blood."

Early Blood Tests

Dr. Hathaway also requested that students coming to the infirmary for blood tests come between 9 a.m. and noon. "They can come a little later if they want," he said. So far, students have been waiting till Thursday to get their blood tests and that day. "If they come in the first of the week, they will be through more quickly. Dr. Hathaway said. Anyone under 21 and not in the armed forces must get permission from his parents to donate

A car leaves the infirmary every Friday between 9 a.m. and 1 p. m. to take potential donors to the Blood Bank. Students are reminded that they will be excused from their 10:15 class period.

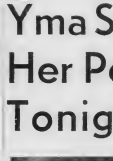
228 Scholarships Available To Any Education Majors

Two hundred and twenty-eight $400 scholarships are available to winners of the state teaching scholarship examinations. The tests are scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday, March 22, in the Education Building.

The examination is open to any interested student enrolled in the School of Education and preparing to teach in the elementary or secondary schools, regardless of whether or not a scholarship is awarded, Dr. Lester Brooks, chairman of the test covers English, social studies and mathematics and science on the high school level, plus general scholastic aptitude.

Examination application forms may be obtained from Dr. B. T. Baker, room 215, Education building. These forms must be completely filled out by the applicant and signed by the county superintendent of the county where the applicant finished high school.

The University Informary will fill host, free of charge, the portion of the application blank which pertains to the student's health status. The completed application form must be submitted to the examination center at the time of the test.



Scholarships Available To Christian Students For Stetson Law Study

Ten college students will be selected to study law at Stetson University College of Law in St. Petersburg this fall. The scholarship program for these students is set up by Leroy Hishbaush, Sr., of the Hishbaush Foundation of Louisville, Kentucky.

Scholarship winners will be selected through competitive examinations to be given later. Time and place for these exams may be obtained from the Dean of Men at Stetson University. The awards are valued at $1,500 each over a three year period.

Summer session for both beginning and advanced students will open at Stetson on June 6. Fall term classes begin September 19.

Yma Sumac Performs Her Peruvian Ballads Tonight, Tomorrow

Yma Sumac

Honor Court To Meet Tonight To Consider Editorship Issue

The Student Honor Court will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. on fourth floor Longmire Building to settle the question of J. Gary Campbell's candidacy for Editor of The Florida Flambeau.

Controversy over Campbell began last week when it was learned that he would seek Flambeau editorship under the Student Party ticket. The Flambeau Senior Staff had previously announced that persons running for office would not affiliate with a party, to prevent any question of biased news coverage.

Carothers Asks Opinion

Contacted about the matter, Student Party Chairman Graham Carothers requested Attorney General Dave Kennedy to give his opinion as to whether Campbell was qualified to run.

Kennedy's opinion, issued Sunday, referred the matter to the Honor Court It did, however, defend the questioned clause affecting Flambeau editors.

The clause in the constitution says "Florida Flambeau editors and business managers shall have had one two full semesters' experience on the editorial staff, unless exempted from these requirements by the Senior Staff. . . ."

Editorial Staff

Kennedy defined "editorial staff" to be distinguished from the Senior Staff, said composed of all those persons who by nature of their work, above that of mere reporting, exercise a directive influence upon what is printed in the Flambeau."

The need for defining the term "editorial staff" resulted from conflicting viewpoints on the part of Flambeau editor Bob Folsom and Gary Campbell as to whether Campbell had worked over two semesters on the editorial staff. Folsom and the Senior Staff believe of the opinion that he had not, whereas Campbell maintained that he had.

Sent To Honor Court

Kennedy's opinion presented arguments stated by both sides in support of their views, and suggested "that the question must be resolved by the Honor Court."

Honor Court Chief Justice Jerry Meyer invited all students interested in the case to attend the session.

Languages' Assistantships Available Here

The Department of Modern Languages has a limited number of graduate assistantships available for the nine months from September, 1955 to June, 1956.

The stipend varies from $540 to $1500 depending upon the qualifications of the applicant, and the part-time services rendered the department. The student is permitted to carry from six to twelve hours of graduate work.

Assistants pay resident registration fees of about $76 per semester. Out-of-state tuition is waived.

The department offers graduate work in the Spanish, French, German, Italian, and Portuguese languages and literature. The M.A. degree is offered in either Spanish or French, the Ph.D in French. Spanish will be added soon.

Applications should be filed at once with Dr. Victor Oguibénine, Head, Department of Modern Languages.

Graduate Fellowships are available at stipends varying from $500 to $1400 for nine months. These awards require no service and provide a full year of academic residence. Fellows pay resident registration fees of about $15 per semester. Out-of-state tuition is waived. Applications for Graduate Fellowships should be addressed directly to the Dean of Graduate School.

TRI DELTS ELECT

Delta Delta Delta Sorority has recently elected its new officers for the coming year. They are Lianne Bell, President; Marian Dellinger, Vice-President; Jeanne Hobbs, Recording Secretary; Shirley Cox Corresponding Secretary; Pat Dekle, Treasurer; Helen Folsom and Bonnie Bruce, Jessie Cadenhead, Social Chairman; Emmy Buck, Rush Chairman; and Jane Putnam, Chaplain.

Show Starts Each Night At 8:15 p.m.

By DAVID DREIS

Yma Sumac will perform tonight and tomorrow night in Westcott Auditorium. The Artist Series program begins each evening at 8:15 p.m.

Acting on a hunch, ticket number six must be exchanged for theater tickets and the show in Westcott. Mrs. Kathryn Vernon, Artist Series secretary announced yesterday that tickets are almost gone for both performances, and said the remainder will probably go today.

Miss Sumac will feature some she has become identified with, as well as new melodies written by her husband especially for her.

Popularity

Yma Sumac's rise in popularity is probably a good example for the reason behind the new emphasis on the Artist Series. Back in 1950, when Capitol records signed tonight artist Series performer to a contract, they released her album with a sultry picture of her on the cover.

Once people listened, they purchased her album. The Voice of Xtaby, to such an extent that it was a hit record and is still in the nation

Only 28 years old, Yma Sumac has been married for almost 12 years. She married Moises Vivanco, a manager of her band who was studying the songs of the Peruvian Mountain people. On June 6, 1943, 14-year-old Yma Sumac became Mrs. Vivanco. He now writes her songs.

Many Tours

When she was 15, she was the toast of the South American continent with tours in all countries except Brazil and Greece, she claim. One country however didn't seem keen on importing a foreign performer for their enchantis. That country was ours, and when Yma Sumac arrived finally came to the United States it wasn't long before the young songstress was so discouraged that she wanted to return to her native land.

Finally Yma presented Capitol records with a few recordings of her voice. The company was fairly young and had taken chances before. Capitol records decided to venture once more and in the fall of 1950, Xtaby Mexarime Inca Love Call Virgins of Bing Crosby and Ethel Merman.

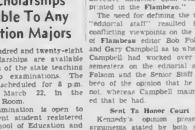
Offers for her services came in droves, but most were turned down because the real Sumac beckoned her to come forward, to the place where she originated. "Flahooley" Yma Sumac became an "overnight" success and from all the press write-ups of the latest show, Yma Sumac scored a personal success.

Prom Officials Are Seeking A Name Band Arrangement

Negotiations will be going on early this week between officials about the possibility of securing a name orchestra for the Junior-Senior Prom on May 14.

Late Friday afternoon Harry Massey, senior class president; Bob Crissey, junior class president and Pete Nimkoff, Student Body President, met with Vice President Bill Martin to discuss the possibilities.

"The Junior Prom it might be possible," commented Massey, "but we don't like to would let us know Tuesday."



Although the dance would be a crowd pleaser to those junior seniors, Massey added, "we thought it really open a concert to the student body for a nominal fee Their support here would encourage us to get a really big performer."

Cabinet, Dean Honor 'Who's Who' Students In Exclusive Reception

The Student Body President's Cabinet and Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby will honor those chosen for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities tomorrow afternoon with an informal reception in Longmire Lounge

The reception will begin at 4:30 and end at 5:30. Dean Oglesby will present engraved certificates to those still on campus who were chosen for the 1955 edition of Who's.

Present at the exclusive reception will be the members of Executive Council Arrangements were handled by Secretary of State Phoebe Jackson.

Gershwin Concert . . . Thomas Wright, associate professor in the School, will present a concert of piano music by George Gershwin, on Wednesday, March 16, at 8:15 in Westcott Auditorium. He will be assisted by Violet Manrose, pictured here.

Insufficient Polls

To imply that three elections polls are sufficient to take care of some 5.000 students who have 10 minutes between classes in which to cast their votes for 16 offices, is characteristic of something other than student interests and democracy. It is comparable to entertaining the idea that one can continue to pour water into an already full glass.

Like cancer, the danger isn't easily recognized until the malignancy causes pain. We believe there is more to the Senate's rejection of the bill to locate polls in dormitories than is apparent in their voiced objections.

To say that the elections committee is not large enough to carry out the work is to say that expansion of that committee should be ignored in spite of the growth of the university and enrollment.

Fear of dishonesty in conduction of the poll's required activities repudiates the character of all persons not currently on the elections committee and assumes that any persons chosen by the committee, in excess of the present members would stuff the ballot boxes.

The statement that such action is "practically impossible" ignores the fact that as many plywood ballot boxes with padlocks as needed could be constructed in one afternoon at one of the maintenance shops, providing the necessary equipment.

The reasons listed and refuted are those on which the Senate disposed of the bill which would have placed polls in dormitories and given the students added time as well as convenience to vote.

Passage of the bill and immediate action thereon might have resulted in a greater turnout by independents at the polls than this campus has ever seen. Also there are many Greek students living in the dorms and their voting would be facilitated as well.

A large vote, in turn, might swing the coming elections out of the balance which present campaigns have been weighing, upsetting the old precedent of having the same people vote every year.

As the campaigns stand now, the voters and the candidates are lined up pretty well. Any extension of suffrage at this time could do large damage to some races and upset others. And we wonder if this doesn't have a lot to do with the decision to restrict ballot boxes.

None of the reasons given by the opposition to the bill, as cited, we think, are valid objections. Rather, they are deceptive.

Be On The Lookout

For those culprits—thought to be University of Florida students—who left their stamp here this past weekend, we offer a word of warning: a watered-down lynching party is looking for you.

Go Ahead And Collect Fines

Traffic court officials have been upset lately. Recently, a student contested an order to pay a traffic fine, producing data showing that FSU's student traffic court was not lawfully entitled to the privilege of leveling fines.

At the time of the incident, an administrative official was told by The Florida Flameau that the traffic court had been reorganized in 1953 on the basis of new evidence which reversed the directive produced by the student.

Apparently nothing has been done to clear up the matter, for other students are now declaring that they are immune from these fines by law.

The directive in question, acquired from Mrs. Hortense Wells at the State Library, was issued in April, 1952 at which time both the University of Florida and FSU disbanded their traffic courts. In August of 1952, however, the Attorney General reversed his earlier opinion, giving the student traffic courts the right to assess and collect fines for traffic violations on the campus.

We hope this clears up matters for the traffic court so they might with a clear conscience collect their fines and answer the complaints.

The Menace Of Conscience

Among all the words of the weeks a footnote must be reserved in the history books for the remarks of Thomas F. Flynn of the American Legion's Americanism Committee.

Flynn was testifying before the Board of Education in support of a resolution that would require ex-Communist teachers to name their former associates as proof of the sincerity of their own break with communism. Opponents of the resolution have argued this is a matter of individual conscience, and that a man's refusal to name othere indicates no fatal deficiency of patriotism. That has been the view of Superintendent of Schools Jansen.

Well, as Murray Kempton reported Friday, Flynn is getting very suspicious of all this talk about conscience. To the assembled Board members he proclaimed:

"I'm wondering what this new slant is. This man Matusow down in Washington says his conscienee is bothering him. I'm wondering if this conscience business isn't a new angle ef the Communist thing."

We guess all this could be cleared up by requiring every teacher to swear he is not now and never has been in close association with his conscience

—The New York Post.

Letters To The Flambeau

"Spill Of Words"

To the Editor:

Your most "unselfish" editorial in the Friday, March 4 edition of The Florida Flambeau headed "Divorced of Affiliation" prompts me to write this letter.

First I wish to ask you three questions which seem to contradict the entire essence of your needless, long spill of words: Were you not elected Editor-in-Chief of the Flambeau while running on the Student Party ticket last spring? And as such have you not endeavored to be unbiased in your news and editorial policies regarding the two political parties, even though the Student Party did support you? Or can and will you admit that you have made it a policy to give the Student Party more favorable publicity?

I think you sought to answer the latter two questions when you mentioned in the editorial that you have ". . . at times supported measures sponsored by senators strongly allied with the Student Party, and other times we have been equelly dedicated to measures sponsored by State Party stalwarts." I now ask, if you have been able to maintain such a policy, why do you suddenly declare it impairing to the editor's efficiency if he be supported by a political party? I see no reasoning here. All I see is a greedy, selfish ettitude suddenly taken on by you and your staff due to what I would coin "fear of competition."

Your rash statement that "There is only one organization on campus capable of naming those qualified to be editor: the staff itself," is quite disturbing. In other words you believe that you have a "machine" and no outsiders (other students than those on your staff) are capable of deciding whether this "machine" is sufficiently capable and satisfying as is, or whether it needs "overhauling" or perhaps even completely "salvaged." I must say, that's quite en "humble" attitude you have there toward the Student Body.

I would be foolish not to egree with you thet "the editorship of a campus newspaper is a job that should be above political commitments." The political party which supports e candidate for the editorship cannot and should not expect that candidate to be biased. The party should support the candidate because they feel he will best serve the interests of the university whole

At Floride State University a student running for en office or position on campus has only one opportunity to publicly speak or be spoken for. That opportunity is at one of the political party's conventions. In this light I wish to make reference to the State Party Convention held last Tuesday at which time e member of your staff, also a member of the State Party, was asked to accept nomination for the editorship and to be supported by them. Of course she declined the nomination, because of your new policy, but I cannot help but believe thet she will still have their entire support, even though it isn't official, should she run for the office I am not condemning this action; merely justifying action that opponents might take.

The Flambeau is supposedly the voice of Florida State University students and is published for and by them. As far as I'm concerned, any student meeting those qualifications set down by the makers of the Constitution is eligible for the editorship whether he has received endorsement of your staff or not. If he can convince the Student Body that he has ability to write, set policy and maintain operations of the newspaper to best interests of the Student Body, he is completely qualified. That's democracy. You say that "your staff" is the only organization capable of naming those quelified to be Editor-in-Chief That sounds like some other kind of 'ism or 'ocracy.

Sincerely,
GARY CAMPBELL

Ed. note: Reader Campbell knows, as we guess a lot of others do, that we ran on the SP ticket. The Flambeau has, too, endeavored to be fair and impartial in party coverage. The reasoning he failed to see was made clear in the editorial: "Regardless of the integrity of the editor, if he is elected on a party ticket his open-mindedness is in question." We do not think party affiliation has impaired our efficiency in the past; we wanted, for the future, to wipe out once and for ell any trace of rumor that has certainly existed heretofore ebout party favoritism.

His appeal to the Student Body about qualifications, elong with e sprinkling of

(Continued on next calumn)

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors — Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors — Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff — Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor — David Dreis
Photographer — Laird Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager — Irma Cox
Assistant Exchange Editor — Joan Halford
Exchange Staff — Susan Hyde
Distribution — Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmira Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors — Pat Marston, Willis Smith
Rewrite Editor — Margaret Millar
Art Consultant — Franklin Adams
Cartoonist — Con Horn
Junior Staff — Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield, Charlet Poitevint, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mery Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff — Frank Tillett, Nina Ryle,
Business Staff — Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dressler

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

"I'm The B-B-B-Bold N-New P-Program"

Letters To The Flambeau

(Continued From Previous Column)

words, "machine," "overhauling," "ism," etc., topped off by that word with magnetic appeal, Democracy, is quite slick indeed. We hope no one is fooled by his play of words, we harbor no Fascist tendencies.

We don't think it rash to say the staff is sole judge of nominating a successor. The staff are student body members all of whom have the welfare of the student body in mind If the individuals on the Flambeau staff, or the individuals nominated es editor, by the staff, are not the most quelified to run this peper, then who is? That is not abrogating constitutional values. If reader Campbell would face up to the hard realizations, and not cloak his words in majestic and hidden overtones, he would know that.

Lack Of Coverage

To the Editor:

I believe that I'm writing this in the interest of many students here, whether they are in a fraternity or not.

From my observations the intra-murals between our various fraternities have not been covered in the sports section of the Flembeau Now it seems to me that when you take in consideration the number of students who are either in a fraternity or are keenly interested in the intra-murals, that better coverage of the games would be imperative.

Take for example the football games which have ended now. Besides all of us fraternity boys out there, there was always someone asking me what the results were. With such a large percentage of students interested in these intra-murals, then, I am definitely in favor of getting the results in the Flambeau. I would like to suggest that someone on the sports staff be assigned to covering the rest of the intra-murals for this year.

Sincerely
W. R. BROWN

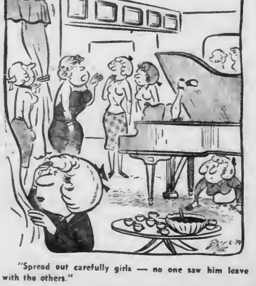
Ed note: Our intramaral sports coverage has not been continuous throughout the school year. Starting with today's issue we hope to remedy that.

Polls

To the Editor:

Having just read the Flambeau's account of the latest Senate meeting, I find myself pretty mach disgusted with the majority of our illustrious and gallant crusaders for the rights of all etudents—namely the student senators themselves. The matter I refer to is the recent rejection by the Senate of the bill proposed by Jimmy Soles for the locating of more polling places on campus for student elections. As things are now there are three polling places for around four or five thousand students, yet the senators seem to think that this is more than enough. I found the arguments against the proposal elmost ridiculous: this is what I mean.

The Secretary of Elections is quoted as saying that is e good idea but that it's practically impossible due to the fact that her committee would be unable to supervise the large number of polling places. From this we are to assume that she cannot possibly obtain any more help either by an increase in her committee or by added assistance from elsewhere. Here, I would like to say that our university is growing and maybe the thinking of some people should grow with it. Are we led to believe that we shall always have the very minimum voting facilities no matter how many students we have?



It seems to me thet the voting records in the pest would indicate we needed some kind of change in the elections. For in previous elections berely 30 or 40 per cent of the students have voted. The solution to the problem of getting a larger turnout, at least in my way of thinking would be to place polls in all the dorms. I might add here that e lot of other people think this way also. With only three polls many people don't have a good chance of getting to vote. Since most people do it between classes, they become easily discouraged by a line and just neglect to do it. However, if polls were present in all the dorms a person is more than likely to vote as they will always sometime or other pass through their dorm during the day, and it is not likely to be crowded. As to getting extra workers I am sure the various dorm governments would fully cooperate in getting capable people to work them.

Some of the other arguments put forth against the bill ere equelly hollow. I refer to the arguments put forth that dishonesty in the elections might result if the elections committee were spread out over a wider jurisdiction, and the ergument that more polls and more workers might stuff the ballot boxes. It appears from this ergument that the more people we let in on balloting, the more corrupt everything will become. Maybe the reason for this is thet some people wouldn't like to see a larger turnout et elections? One thing to remember is that progress is made only through changes or at least attempts at changing bad situations.

I would like to say that the Student Senate has done a lot for this school in the past, and will probably continue to do so in the future, but this one time it has done something which doesn't seem to be in keeping with its good record.

Sincerely,
JACK LANG

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS — by Dick Bibler

"Spread out carefully girls — no one saw him leave with the others."

The Dissenter

More Ballot Boxes Are Needed

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

So far the Student Senate has gone its way blissfully ignorant of students' opinions, and at times not caring.

Consequently, the solons voted down, by a very small margin, a bill to require that ballot boxes be put in dormitories with over 100 residents for campus elections.

They voted this bill down by killing a motion to table it for a week. In that week the bill's sponsors would have easily gotten enough student support to put their measure through. As it was, their fight to save the bill failed by the meager margin of two votes. They withdrew of their own accord, for to fight eny more against the stubborness of certain Senatore would have been a waste of time

The opposition couldn't refuse, however, to give approval to the suggestion that West Hall Governor Nick Harrington contact all the dormitory presidents and relay their views to the elections committee. They had just killed a bill to require additional ballot boxes, but if they had refused to give Harrington something of e vote of appreciation for his interest they would have appeared to be unconcerned with student opinion. That wouldn't have paid off. There are still too many people who think student government should be less a leadership training school than a servant of the student body.

This bill to put ballot boxes in the dormitories met with some arguments which would have been valuable had they been bottled as a substitute for balloon gas As they were, they betrayed some inconsistent and childish "thinking."

1. One couldn't get enough workers to maintain the boxes ell day. (So why not let the dormitories appoint their own elections committees subject to general supervision by the Secretary of Elections?)

2. Dormitory elections committeee would fecilitate cheating and dishonesty in elections. (This was an unpardonable slur on the characters and integrity of the leaders in dormitories and should result in the repudiation, at the polls, of the people who adhered to it.)

3. The womene dormitories don't need ballot boxes because they're so close to the regular polls. (Which are crowded at the most convenient times and empty at others.)

4. The elections committee doesn't have time, in any event. (Senator Bill Swigert disposed of this as follows: "The University is growing and the elections committee should grow with it.")

The unspoken reasons which you couldn't get anyone to admit on pain or death were

More Independents would vote than do now. You would have elmost 100 per cent turnout in the dormitories.

Because they are organized, it doesn't matter to the fraternities and sororities where the ballot boxes are. All their people will vote. It isn't so with the Independents. Politics must be brought to them

Anyhow, both men and women house presidents are scheduled to meet soon. Their reaction to the discrimination shown them by Student Senate may not bring them the bellot boxes but it should be the handwriting on the wall to the privileged few in Senate.

Reflections

Comic Strip Gives Biggest Thrill

By OSCAR JOHNSON

It is a matter of custom that sooner or later everyone tells of "My Biggest Thrill".

Some people are thrilled by getting elected to office When this happens "My Biggest Thrill" may take the form of a book such as the one Fuller Warren wrote efter being elected Governor How To Win At Politics. (This should not be taken as a hint by any of the persecuted paranoiacs at Florida State who claim they also know.)

Others may list "My Biggest Thrill" as getting married, being allowed to enter ROTC; eating Seminole Steak; riding the noon bus to the Student Center; finding seven beer cans in Landis Hall; learning that everybody gets 'a biggest thrill', or becoming assistant nettightener on the ping pong squad.

"My Biggest Thrill" is none of these It is on a much higher level then any of the things mentioned so fer It's not our Rice Paddy 285 Class thet thrills us, either. (We heerd of e student who evidently got a kick out of one of his classes. He took the class during his Freshman year, pulling a "C". After somehow registering for it the neat year, he went through the course all over egain—and got a "D".)

"My Biggest Thrill" happens every morning when we read SMILIN' JACK in the comic section of the paper! There'e nothing to compare with it. Smilin' Jack has everything you cen ask for in a comic strip Hidden subtlety, fabulously realistic character portrayal, devilish and enormously complex pilot—the end is listless.

We must admit that there ere a few things against Smilin' Jack: everybody looks alike; there is intense secrecy concerning Downwind's face (he's different), and it is commonly known that Jack never loses. Despite these thinge, Smilin' Jack is so thrilling it's liable to meke you choke on your toast.

Neturally, if you read Smilin' Jack you're going to read some of the other comic strips—like Li'l Abner, Little Orphan Annie, Little Iodine Little Annie Rooney, Little Nothings and maybe even Beetle Bailey.

The last character is e real nut, who does his best to foul up the army but is always outdone Some of the others are et least as nutty.

In strips like Little Orphan Annie you see references to the downtrodden "little people". Even Li'l Abner gets mixed up with politics, many people seem to think that Colonel Bullmoose (who always says "What's good for Bullmoose is good for the country") is a caricature of Charles Wilson, Secretary of Defense

Bullmoose has pulled off such stunts as moving Lower Slobovia to the United States to corner the ice syndicate This is big business being shoved down the throats of Americans maybe?

Another old hand at politics is Walt Kelley, who is fond of including people like McCarthy in his comic strip Pogo Yet even Pogo does not approach the intellectual level of Smilin' Jeck.

For this reason we must insist that "My Biggest Thrill" is reading Smilin' Jack But prepare yourself for a shock: Smilin' Jack is really an advertisement put out by Ipana.

Etcetera Etchings

Columnist Makes 'Ollie' Awards

By DAVID DREIS

Now—it's time for the Etcetera Etchings Ollie Awards, so performers and pictures, front end center:

BEST ACTOR OF THE YEAR: Humphrey Bogart for three excellent performances: Caine Mutiny, Barefoot Contessa and Sabrina. Last year's winner William Holden was a close second this year with Bridges of Toke-Ri, Sabrina and The Country Girl. (This column judges on consistency—not individual performance.)

BEST ACTRESS OF THE YEAR: Grace Kelly for performances in Rear Window, Bridges of Toka-Ri, Green Fire end The Country Girl.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR: Lee J. Cobb whose performance in "On the Waterfront" (his only for the year) merits him the award Consistency? Tops for years.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS: Pearl Bailey in Carmen Jones." Consistency? Same as above.

BEST PICTURE OF THE YEAR: "On the Waterfront" with "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" a close second. Tops in musicals for the year

BEST MOVIE SONG: Three Coins In the Fountain.

WORST MOVIE OF THE YEAR Major film: Fox's Haiji Baba. Minor film: Gog! from United Artists. Sitting Bull was loused up by Dale Robertson and en idiotic story Gog! was loused up by the most fictionel science-fiction in history Dick Egan starred.

BIGGEST SURPRISE FOR AN ACTOR: Van Johnson for "The Caine Mutiny"—The Last Time I saw Paris and Briggadoon.

BEST FOREIGN FILM: Britain's Hobson's Choice" recently here If you missed it, you've missed it.

MOST UNDERRATED PICTURE: "The Raid" with Van Heflin. It even caused trouble on this campus, but for a low-budget Universal produced a major epic in filmdom. Story had a great message

BEST COMEDIAN OF THE YEAR: (Judged from total performances) Jack Carson for "A Star Is Born" and "Pffft." Carson's versatility was the keynote here as well as in bis television vehicle "Goodbye, But It Never Goes Awey," on General-Electric Theater.

BEST COMMENT OF THE YEAR: Tallulah Bankhead on hearing that Marlene Dietrich spent $6,000 on a gown for her Las Vegas club date: "She must be insane. Anyone who would pay more than $5,000 for a gown ahould see e psychiatrist."

WORST ACTOR OF THE YEAR: Tab Hunter's efforts in "Gun Belt" and "Battle Cry" outdoes Dale Robertson's work in "Sitting Bull." (Robertson won it last year.) Tony Curtis received e nomination for "Black Shield of Falsworth" but "Six Bridges ta Cross" rubbed him out. WORST ACTRESS OF THE YEAR: We're efraid to mention it, but Marilyn Monroe for "No Business Like Show Business" It's too bad, too . . . she's still so so . . but . . . as they said in "Dragnet" 'She can't act.'

Okay, maybe you disagree, but let's hear your nominations.

SURFACE NOISES: . . . Eddie Fisher produced his first dud in "Wedding Bells" . . . he's not even on the hit list except with Debbie . . . Biographers are in a mess trying to get Monty Wooley to play George Bernard Shaw and Perry Como to play Russ Columbo . . . both have commitments. . . Ray Anthony and Mamie Van Doren a twosome. . . Hollister expands to one ayem in three weeks . . Phil Davis and jazz go well together.

A Better Measure

Significance On Broken Treaties

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

It was in November 1873, that the French colonial infantry marched into Hanoi, capital of northern Indochina and hoisted the Tricolor.

Last October, after 81 years, the Tricolor was lowered for good, and French troops pulled out of Hanoi. In accordance with the Geneva agreement the next day Vietminh Reds took over the city of nearly 400,000 inhabitants.

Under the Geneva armistice, the French were allowed to retreat 60 miles southeast to the port of Haiphong, which is the only major port in northern Indo-China, where they could stay until May of this year. Afterward they were to withdraw into South Viet Nam, below the 17th parallel.

The French signed the agreement in good faith, with the understanding that a national election for ell Indo-China would be held in July 1956. However, it is known that the Communists now have under arms 350,000 men which include two armored divisions. With this continuous buildup, they will soon outnumber the anti-Communist forces by more than four to one which brings up the question of what will happen to the election that is supposed to unify the country?

According to the terms of the treaty, the Reds were to let all northern Viet Nam citizens who wanted to live in South Viet Nam leave. Out of millions only 350,000 have been able to make their way south. This plus the infiltration of the Communists into Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam, which is against all meaning of the Geneva treety, brings up the question of Haiphong

Are we going to turn over to the Reds this vital port, which has eccess to the South China Sea and which can be used as e base against the Philippine Islands and Formosa during a war? Or are we going to keep the port, in face of the broken agreement by the Reds?

In reply to this, Secretary of State Dulles recently stated in Manila, in regard to the whole Far Eastern problem, that the time has come to end the retreat in Asia and draw a firm line against further Red advances . . . He went so far as to make mention of a three front war, if necessary, from South Korea, Formosa and Indo-China.

Let us hope that this has some significance on broken treaties

Phi Delts, West Hall Vie For Championship

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

The game of soccer, as seen only around this campus, has come a long way if one is to believe the accounts of numerous historians.

One of these stout fellows claims that the game got its start around the time the Vikings were trying to invade Saxony, and that the game of a Viking occasioned a game of football with the prisoner serving as the football.

However, this method proved to slow, and in order to accelerate the game, the victim was beheaded and only his head used, and sport!

Another historian reports that the game was introduced in ancient Greece where the game was called Harpaston. In this game, the ball was driven by any possible means over lines which were the opposite ends of a town and were defended by opposing teams. The eminent historian didn't say, but I suppose skull cracking was the order of the day in this ancient game also.

No less after the Greeks began the game, the Romans picked it up and used it for military training. As the Romans conquered other lands, the sport was introduced there.

Once again the historians rear up only heads, and claim that behalf of which the game was next entered England with the Roman But the Irish, being defenders of the faith, ideal that kicking games were popular in Ireland 1,000 years before a single Roman crossed the channel.

The game has not always met with approval. On many occasions it was banned. With the approaching Puritan Era, the medieval, undisciplined, mob-type football made the authorities take notice, as in 1340 when Edward III issued the following proclamation:

"That fellaship be forbidden owing to the evil that might arise through so many people handling together."

The reformer, Sir Thomas Elyot, a close friend of Henry VIII said:

"Verile for foote-balle is to adjecte abjected or all noble men wherein is nothing but beastille furie and extreme violence wherevof procedeth hurte, and consequently rancr and malice da remain with them that be wounded, wherefore it is be put in perpetual silence."

In this country also soccer didn't exactly get off to a rousing start. In 1621, the University of Michigan students were having plenty of fun kicking around a soccer ball. They learned that the boys at Cornell were doing the same, so they challenged them to a game to be played in Cleveland, with 30 men on a side.

When President White of Cornell heard about the proposed contest, he would not allow his students to participate and made a statement to the effect:

"I will not permit 30 men to travel 400 miles merely to agitate a ball."

So goes the game.

Golfers Win Opener Against Rollins Team

By DAVE MORRIS

Florida State's golf team opened their dual match season Saturday with a close 14½-12½ win over Rollins.

This was the 15th match between the two schools. The teams broke even in two matches had ending in five 5-4 to 6-4 edge over the Tars. Two contests have ended in ties.

Buck Berry, Tallahassee boy who finished fourth in the recent George Washington Birthday tournament here, was the No. 1 man in FSU's six man team.

Jack Vaughn Bobby Dunn, Norman David Morris and Bill Rosman were FSU's No. 2-3-4-5 starters.

The Rollins team, the chief threat came from golfers Bill Boggess and freshman Frank Bowden, 1954 Winter Park prep hero.

The combination of Buck Berry and Jack Vaiche had the best record of the FSU doubles winning three matches. Vaiche downed Ed Dings 3-0. Rollins retaliated when Bowden and Dings beat Berry and Vaiche 2½-½.

Berry won the medalist honors with a 76 while Vaiche took a 72 Boynton had 73 and Dings took 75.

Bobby Dunn (77) and Bob Shuman (79) broke even with Bill Spencer (77) and Jim Remsburg (76).

David Morris (76) and Stan Zlobrowski (74) also fought an even battle with Dennis Folven (77) and Wendell Wyatt (83). Folben beat Morris 2½ to ½, while Zlobrowski beat Tyrrell 3-0. Folben and Urresti took the team points 2-1.

FSU's next scheduled match is with Davidson March 17.

WCTU SPONSORS ORATORY CONTEST

An inter-collegiate oratorical contest with state and national awards in memory of Frances Willard the alcohol problem has been announced by the National Women s Christian Temperance Union.

Preliminary contest money will be offered if FSU has five qualified contestants Times and place of the state contest has not been decided, but will be made known soon after March 1.

Rules may be obtained from the WCTU 1710 Chicago Ave., Evanston, Ill."

Thanks for your interest in THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU

. . . but . . . we have no checking copies of Feb. 22 issue If you have any please bring them to 213 Longmire.

harriett
Your Hairstylist
Coiffure Designers
212 W. College Avenue
Phone 2-5214

reigning everywhere AFTER SIX formula set keg so composed "Tuxedo" B. "sophisticated" finish. Finely valued at Proper prices. Here lets more follow-go

After Six

FSU Gymnasts Rout Tech 77-31

Taylor Leads Team Victory

By BOB GUTTING

The Seminole gymnasts tumbled Georgia Tech 77-31 to win their 16th straight dual meet championship Saturday.

Sparked by Junior Joe Taylor, the Seminoles captured first place in all events except rope climbing. The one weak spot on the FSU team.

Dr. Price did not use Holder or Miles in the meet but has them working out to get in shape for the Pan American games later this month.

FSU always a top contender in the National meets, has not lost a dual meet since 1949, when it lost to the Military Academy of Annapolis, the only other team to beat the Seminole gymnasts were the members of the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Joe Taylor, the powerful army vet from Philadelphia, won a first on the side horse, the position that he is not as yet too familiar with. He also ropped first on flying rings. A double win.

According to Taylor, he is now breaking away from competition in one or two specialties and besinning to work all-around competition.

"I've found out that it doesn't pay to run over several pieces of apparatus" Taylor said. "In the National meets, one must that really count—it's the all-around workers that walk off with the most points, and that's what I'm trying for."

Taylor, who stands 5' 9" and weighs in at about 145 has the skill and stamina that is required for the all-around competition, and having won first place in his first start on side horse, leaves no doubt that it won't be long before he is offering serious competition in National meets.

Fred Leland, second place trampoline winner at the Pan American tryouts, performed on his customary skill in the same easy first against the Georgia team on trampoline.

Other Seminole firsts were chalked up by Bob Murray, freshman from Boston, who took first on the horizontal bars. This is also Murray's first win for Florida State.

Bill Kosiner, veteran gymnast who has just returned to FSU after a years absence, is again back in shape and took first on the parallel bars, and senior letterman Al Rank returned to the mats once more to take the tumbling event.

Next Saturday the Seminole gymnasts journey to Atlanta, Ga., to compete in the Southern Intercollegiate meet, which they have won consistently over the past five years.

Scores for the Georgia Tech meet were:

SIDE CLIMB: 1—North (GT); 2—Rankin (FSU); 3—Mc Donald (FSU).
SIDE HORSE: 1—Taylor (FSU); 2—Tarara (FSU); 3—Lowry (GT).
TRAMPOLINE: 1—Leland (FSU); 2—Hall (FSU); 3—Mc Gregor (FSU).
HORIZONTAL BAR: 1—Murray (FSU); 2—Rosecia (GT); 3—Taylor (FSU).
PARALLEL BARS: 1— Kosiner (FSU); 2—Murray (FSU); 3—Taylor (FSU).
FLYING RINGS: 1—Taylor (FSU); 2—Hall (FSU); 3—Rankin (FSU).
TUMBLING: 1—Rank (FSU); 2—Fabiano (GT); 3—Schanzon (GT).
TEAM SCORES: 1—Florida State 77; 2—Georgia Tech 31.

Student Affiliates Of ACS To Honor Member At Dinner

The Student Affiliates of the American Chemical Society will honor their outstanding member at a dinner Friday night at the Tallasin Inn. His name will be announced at the banquet.

Dr. Karl Dittmer, head of the chemistry department, and Dr. Werner Herr, faculty advisor to the group, will be guests at the semi-formal dinner.

New officers to be installed at the dinner are Don Johnson, president; Harriet Davis, vice-president; Jessie Allen, secretary; and Niles Bashaw, treasurer.

The group will meet in front of the Science Building at 7:10 p.m.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"Vera Cruz"
Gary Cooper
Burt Lancaster
TOMORROW THRU TUES
"Jupiter's Darling"
Esther Williams
Howard Keel
Marge & Gower Champion

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY—THURS.
"From Here To Eternity"
Burt Lancaster
Montgomery Clift
Deborah Kerr
Frank Sinatra
Donna Reed

STATE
TODAY
"Black Tuesday"
Edward G. Robinson
TOMORROW THRU TUES
"The Far Country"
in Technicolor
James Stewart
Ruth Roman
Corinne Calvet

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN
ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW
"The Glenn Millar Story"
James Stewart
June Allyson
THURSDAY
"ABBOTT & COSTELLO MEET CAPTAIN KIDD"
plus
Charles Laughton
"TWO-FISTED RANGERS"
Charles Starrett

RITZ — Today & Tomorrow
"TROUBLE IN STORE"
Normss Wisdom, Maire Lister, Derek Bond.

Cinder Squad Has Largest Frosh Turnout

By LARRY HOUNTHA

Quite a few new faces can be seen working out with the track team on the West Campus oval these warm afternoons. This year's Indian cinder squad has at present a freshman on its roster one of the largest frosh groups in its history.

Handling the distance grinds for the Seminoles this season will be Jim Hamilton, Bob Gordon Merrins, Tom Babish, Gary Smith and Donald Dittman.

The sprinting assignments will be covered by Jack Terilliver, Phil Young, Mike Rilleau, Nick Mesanof and Jim Maher. Hilleau, Mesanof and Maher make up three lees on a freshman squad. Hartley used to be entered in the Florida Relays. The fourth member of the team has not yet been named.

Jumping for FSU this year will be freshmen Tom Hoole and Jack Browning in the high jump, Paul Ramey and Ken Mearn in the pole vault and Jack Terilliver along with Versaprille in the broadjump.

Taking on the timber-topping chores for the Indians will be Clayton Powell and the versatile Versprille. Bill Musselman will toss the shot and Bill Haynes is slated to fling the javelin.

Other newcomers to the team this year are two-miler Danny Thomas and sprinter Bill Osterhoudt and Jim Harrell. All three are sophs. Transfer student Russell Leidy, pole vault, and half miler Jerry Jacob, although ineligible for dual meets, are working out in preparation for the mid A.A.U. meet in which they may compete.

Gold Key Honorary Plans Program To Better Scholarship

A program encouraging scholarship and designed to better student-teacher relations is presently being planned by Gold Key, men's leadership honorary.

The program, directed by Donn Teal, is one of the many projects undertaken this year by Gold Key members. Other activities recently completed or to include the installation of new bulletin boards for campus activities, a banquet promoted by Harry Massey, and the formulation by Bob Crenshaw of a program designed to get a greater variety of cheers for cheerleaders.

In addition, Coyla Moore supervised the cost check construction at the Homecoming dance, Jimmy Joanos helped publish the Gold Key alumni directory and Tom Woods supervised the repainting of the Gold Key tourist welcome signs.

THE DEPARTMENT OF SPEECH
Announces
THE CRUCIBLE
by Arthur Miller
March 11, 12, 14, 15
CONRADI THEATER
8:15 P. M.
Tickets: Students: 40c and Activity Stub No. 7
GENERAL ADMISSION 75c
All Seats Reserved
Box Office Opens Wednesday, March 8

Leads Team—Joe Taylor (L) who led the gym team to a victory over Georgia Tech Saturday, and team mate Dick Ireland, who won the trampoline event.

Commodettes Play For Saturday Night Zo-Imba Dance

"Zo-Imba" is the name of the Sandspur production this year, but it's also the name of the free dance Friday night at the Student Center.

With music by the Commodettes, the dance will start at 8:30 and run until 11:30 p.m.

The ole Sandspur dance on March 26th will star Buddy Morrow and his orchestra but will be formal. This Friday's dance is strictly informal" announced Frances Bailey Stokes, producer and choreographer of the annual affair.

No tickets will be needed for the "Zo-Imba" dance, but $1.50 is charged for the formal event. Tickets for the dance and 50-cent tickets for the show went on sale today in the Westcott building ticket booth The show is slated to open on March 22nd and will run through a matinee on Friday. All other performances will begin at 8.15 p.m.

JOURNALISM SCHOOL HAS NEW JOURNAL

A new publication, Journal of Journalism History, is being issued by the Bureau of Research of the School of Journalism

The first of its kind in the United States, it is devoted to articles relating to city, state and regional journalism history according to Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of Journalism, who edits the periodical. It is to be distributed throughout the United States.

FSU Cagers Whip Montana In Opener

FSU whipped Montana State 93-84 late yesterday as the first round opened in the week-long National Intercollegiate Basketball tournament in Kansas City.

A breakdown of total scoring was not received as the Flambeau went to press. Nor was it known who will be FSU's opponent in tomorrow's game.

Seven other games rounded out the first day's play. 16 teams will see action for the first time today. By benefit of their win, the Seminoles will enter second round play when it opens tomorrow.

Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminoles, District 25's representative, had drawn pre-tournament mention as a darkhorse title contender. Yesterday's win assures them as a definite threat.

FSU sports one of the highest scoring quints in the national meet. The Seminoles have a 78.2 game average of 88.1 points and a team shooting percentage of nearly 46.

Guards Oler and Wernke, with 317 and 301 points, are both working on individual school records. Oler has the highest single-season total at present and Wernke is a two-time NAIA All-America choice, has a four-year career record of 1,358 points in 71 games.

Intramural Championship Playoff Tomorrow Night

Phi Delta Theta fraternity and West Hall's Pirates will fight for the intramural football championship tomorrow night in Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

Game time has been set for 8 p.m., and there is no admittance charge.

The Phi Delta winners last year over the Penthouse gang in the "Mud Bowl," are out to capture the playoff game between the fraternity and dormitory league for the fourth straight time.

The Pirates are equally determined to become the first dormitory team to ever cop the championship.

A record of 6 won and 1 lost was compiled by Phi Delta over the regular season's play, for a tie with Sigma Nu. The Phi Delts romped the fraternity league playoff later on, however.

The Pirates ended their season with an unbeknighted 6-0 record, for undisputed title to the dormitory championship.

Carrying the ball for the Pirates will be Lloyd Frierson, John Comley, August Serdinha, Harold Elsoc, Carl Loftstrom, Bob Swindle Charles Rainey, Dale Callahaler and Bruce Lane.

Opposing them will be the Phi Delt's Bob Berte, Ted Lowe, Harvey Hall, Art Hemple, Bill McCall ,Bruce Pacetti, Tom Eburhardt, Sonny Cuaca Jim Webb, Bill Plumb and Charles Keen.

Both teams expect rough competition for the championship. Spokesmen for Phi Delta said they will win "with the material we've got," and that the Pirates play a "different brand of ball" than other teams they have faced.

Spokesmen for the Pirates stated that the team has been watching the Phi Delts play and "know pretty well what they're going to use."

Told of the "Phi Delta Wing" that Phi Delta plans to use against them, the Pirates said "We'll make a note of that."

The Pirates said that all West Hall is going to attend to the game, especially the second unit.

Officials for the game will be Delwood MacDonald, Carl Orenn, George Matter and Chris Curran.

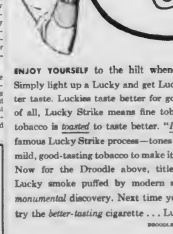
Intramural Football Standings

Sharp competition has been shaping up in intramural track and softball, with fifteen fraternities entering track teams and fourteen mapping plans for softball.

Qualifying round in track was run off yesterday beginning at 3:30 p.m. on the West Campus, but results were not known at Flambeau presstime. The final round will be held the same time and place next Monday.

Softball intramurals start Mar. 28, along with bowling. They will be followed by Golf April 11, and swimming at an announced later date. Intramurals Director Jack Williamson is currently compiling overall intramural standings which will be announced in Friday s paper.

Football intramurals saw the fraternities finishing with the following records: Phi Delta Theta, 6-1; Sigma Nu, 6-1; Sigma Alpha, 4-3; Sigma Chi, 4-3, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 4-3; Delta Tau Delta, 3-4; Tau Epsilon Phi, 1-6 and Kappa Sigma, 0-7. All were in the Gold League.



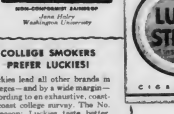
"Garnet League" standings were, Alpha Tau Omega, 5-1; Sigma Phi Epsilon, 5-1; Theta Chi 4-2, Lambda Chi Alpha, 3-3; Phi Kappa Tau, 2-3, Phi Kappa Phi, 1-5, and Pi Kappa Alpha, 0-6

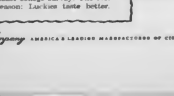
The playoffs between the two fraternity leagues saw PDT over SPE, 38- beat ATO, PDT over SN, ATO beat SPE, ATO over SN, ATO beat PDT and PDT over ATO. Final fraternity standings were Phi Delta Theta, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Nu and Sigma Phi Epsilon, in that order.

In the dormitory league, the teams finished with the following records: Pirates 6-0, Penthouse Gang, 5-0, Rebels, 3-3, Senior Hall, 3-3; Air Force, 2-4, and Methodist, 1-6.

STEP RIGHT UP FOR LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below. Droodle suggested by Robert Bardole, University of Florida.





RAT SHELL IN CHINESE ASSORBASHIST
Roger Bench Peterson
University of Virginia

PYTHAGORAS BUILT BY HALEY BOPPERS AT DARTMOUTH
Second Alternate
Texas A & M

WOMAN WITH LADDER PAINTING ON HAT FALLING INTO HANDCUFFS
Maxine Cooper
University of Pennsylvania

SPOKE RUNS SIDEWAYS FROM LOWER RUNG
Nancy Collins
University of Vermont

"It's TOASTED" to taste better!

LUCKY STRIKE

SIDE-CONFESSOR? JAUNDICE?
Jane Haley
Washington University

LUCKY STRIKE
Nancy Collins
University of Vermont

ENJOY YOURSELF to the hilt whenever you smoke. Simply light up a Lucky and get Luckies' famous better taste. Luckies taste better for good reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better. Now for the Droodle above, titled: Better-tasting Lucky smoke puffed by modern sculptor. Make a monumental discovery. Next time you buy cigarettes, try the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

DROODLES, Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

Better taste Luckies...
LUCKIES TASTE BETTER
CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES!
Luckies lead all other brands in colleges—and by a wide margin—according to an exhaustive, coast-to-coast college survey. The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

CIGARETTES

BATTLE PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company
"AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES"

One Hundred Sixty-Four Education Majors To Intern

The Celebrated von Dohnanyi's . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ernst von Dohnanyi are pictured together, the former internationally acclaimed for his musical talents and the latter, an author well-known and acclaimed in Europe. Mrs. von Dohnanyi speaks on her writing experiences in Hungary, at the English Coffee Hour this week.

Delta Gams Install Prexy, At Banquet

Donna Rader is the new president of the Delta Gamma.

Other officers elected are Shirley Hamblin, vice president; Margaret Ann Ballinger, pledge trainer; Imogene Williams, secretary; Patricia Byrd, treasurer; Jane MacIntyre, rush chairman; Margaret Donaldson, social chairman; Sally Reed, house president; Margaret Gunter, Panhellenic representative.

The new officers were installed Saturday, March 5 at a formal banquet meeting of the conference.

At the initiation Sarah Gipson was awarded the outstanding pledge award and Judy Abrahms won the pledge scholarship cup.

New pledges this semester are Jacqueline Altman, Elizabeth Ann Crevy, Sylvia Lynn Willis, Carol Duel, Charlotte Lucy, and Sandra Faye Smith.

ELI ROBERTS
SERVICE STATION
Corner West Tennessee And Copeland
(Two Blocks From Senior Hall)
WE HAVE MECHANIC AND ROAD SERVICE
DIAL 8-2523

METHOD PROVES TO BE A FIZZLE

WAYNE, Neb. — (ACP)—The Columbist of Nebraska State Teachers College reports a story about a girl who attempted to take Alka Seltzer for the first time and stated that they were too bitter to swallow. End of story.

BRIDGE HOUND
makes contract with Jockey brand underwear
"Don't know what I'd do without Jockey shorts," says Blackwood Gooch, who hasn't moved from his seat at the bridge table for 2½ years. "I made a contract for comfort with Jockey long legs, and I've been sitting pretty ever since.
You don't have to be as chair-borne as Blackwood to enjoy that casual, comforts-be-at-ease appearance that comes from wearing Jockey shorts. Better drop into your dealer's soon . . . buy a supply of Jockey shorts and T-shirts . . . and feel as good as you look!
it's in style to be comfortable . . . in
Jockey underwear
made only by Coopers Inc. Kenosha, Wisconsin

Plan To Observe School Methods

Beginning March 14th, one hundred and sixty-four FSU students will intern in education throughout the state.

The interment will last six weeks. The students, a majority of them seniors will be under the supervision of experienced personnel in the field of education.

By county and school in which they will intern, the students are:

BAY COUNTY: Panama City Elementary—Mary Ruth Armstrong, Joyce Elaine Thomas; Jinks Jr. High—Kathleen Crutchfield, Margaret Spano, Barbara V. Wills, Bay County High—Gloria Parrish; Sylvia Robb, also Betty McLeod, unassigned at present.

BRADFORD COUNTY Starke Elementary: Betsy Ryan.

BROWARD COUNTY—Bennett Elementary: Ft. Lauderdale—Norma Ann Cooley; Colbert Elementary; Patricia M Pilson, and Marlene Diane Lee, South Broward High, Hollywood—Debra Lee Heil and Donald Van Nuis.

CALHOUN COUNTY Blountstown Elementary—Mrs. Joyce H. Porter, Gordon Parker Revell.

CLAY COUNTY Orange Park Elementary; Green Cove Springs, Ruth Eleg Campbell.

COLUMBIA COUNTY. Melrose Park Elementary, Lake City—Katharine E. Jacobs, Gloria Ann McRoan.

DADE COUNTY Dade Demonstration School, Miami—Donna Lou Harpe; Miami Springs Elementary, Miami; Miami Shores Elementary, Miami—Jackson Bldg—Carolyn Ann Eckerd, Sandra Napier, Miami Jackson High—Doris Ann Hall, Miami Edison Senior High—Mary Ann Bascino, West Miami Junior High—Martha Sue Hunter.

DUVAL COUNTY Mr. Miriam M Evans unassigned; Panama Park Elementary—Mrs. Ruth Ann Howes, San Jose Elementary—John Meghan, Duncan U. Fletcher Elementary—Barbara Parmer; Strong Park Elementary—Madeira R. Reker; San Jose Elementary—Jo Anne Setzer, Mary Grace Bloemker; Grieg Park Elementary—Carol R. Sovder; Landon High—Kay Alyce Hines; James Allen Mesdames Elementary—Jeanne Parker, Andrew Jackson High—Barbara Jean Rudin.

ESCAMBIA COUNTY. P. K. Yonge Elementary, Pensacola—Dora Arlene Amos, Elna Jane Wilson Elementary, Pensacola—Nancy Jane Meyer, Brentwood Jr. High, Pensacola—John Eichelberger Jr.; Pensacola Senior High—Bobbie Ann Forrest, Ann Lee Hain, Warrington Elementary—Sarah Gail Jackson; Blount Jr. High, Pensacola—William M. McArthur; Warrington Jr. High—Jo Ann McKay, Pensacola Senior High—Mary Ann Smith.

GALESDEN COUNTY Quincy Elementary—Mary Elizabeth Davis; Elizabeth C. Johnson; Quincy Public School—Nadia S. Gresbner; Greensboro High—Calvin Hasbrouck.

GULF COUNTY Wewahitchka High—Fred Strickland.

HIGHLAND COUNTY: Avon Park Elementary—Elizabeth M Suzor; Mary Belle Twitty.

HILLSBOROUGH COUNTY: Broward Elementary, Tampa—Evelyn Durack; Gorrie Elementary, Tampa—Betty Jo Miller; Franklin Junior High, Tampa—Jean Brownlee; Wilson Junior High—Myrtice Lonchottom, Hillsborough High, Tampa—Esther Rancier.

INDIAN RIVER COUNTY Vero Beach Elementary—Gwendolyn Loy.

JACKSON COUNTY Graceville Elementary—Nell P. Revell.

JEFFERSON COUNTY, Monticello Elementary—Junior High—Shirley Cox; Monticello Elementary—Auro J. Folsom.

LAKE COUNTY: Tavares Elementary—Patricia J. Blair.

LEON COUNTY Cobb Junior High School—Neil Mickler; Bamfil; Mrs. Edna Andreas, Mary Mactan, Minnie Joy Taylor; Paul Wernke.

Demonstration School—Samuel Richard Alderman, Roberta Joy Baker; Carolyn Redfern; Patricia Cummins, Martha Cunningham; Jane McIrvine, Betty Nasrallah; Sidney Dozier; Susan Lucas, Mrs. Bettye Roberts, William Beiler, Kate Sullivan Elementary—Virginia Ann Cook; Sylvia Lewis; Frances McDonald Mills; June Ann Rodgers, Sarah Stevens.

Sealey Memorial Elementary—Ellen Jean H. Johnson; Cora Mae Rickey; Anne Kay Souter; Sara Frances Whitehead.

LEON COUNTY: Leon High School—Florence Brown, Delana Ellen Driver; Hazel Fay Jones; Raymond Kirkhirer; Alex Maiorana; Ray Bellwood McDonald; John Rooney; Shirley Wilson.

South City Elementary—Iva Lesh Monies; Claire Franks will be assigned to a Leon County elementary school.

LIBERTY COUNTY: Bristol Elementary—Eva Duggar, Mrs. Joyce Rowan.

MANATEE COUNTY Bolland Elementary, Bradenton—Elizabeth Jean Baldry, Anna Maria Elementary—Patricia Ann Courter.

MARION COUNTY Oakcrest Elementary school—Florida Ann Brasell.

ORANGE COUNTY: Pineloch Elementary, Orlando — Daphne Faye Ellis; Hillcrest Elementary, Orlando—Mary Ann Hall; Lake Como Elementary, Orlando —Sara Marshall Putnam, Winter Park High—Sandra Ann Brock, Edewater High, Shirley Ann Tinker.

PALM BEACH COUNTY: Palm Beach Elementary—Nancy Carolyn Hall, Lantana Elementary, Betty Bernice Bateera Fermo; Lake Worth High—Jean Ann Bailey, Florence H Pate, Palm Beach High—Harold Kastner; Jinks Jr. High—Jean Ann Pate, High West Palm Beach—Joanna Watts.

PASCO COUNTY Dade City Elementary—Ann Alice Hosmer, PINELLAS COUNTY Lealwood Elementary, St Petersburg —Mary Helen Harraway; Westcoral Elementary, Martin L. Squier; Boca Ciega High—Judith Ann Jones; Mt Pleasant Elementary Senior High—Robert Ballard Senior Smith; St Petersburg High—Patricia Cooper.

POLK COUNTY: Bartow Elementary—Jane Kiley Adams; Inwood Elementary, St Petersburg —Mary Helen Harraway; Westcoral Elementary, Martin L. Squier; Boca Ciega High—Judith Ann Jones; Mt Pleasant Elementary Senior High—Robert Ballard Senior Smith; St Petersburg High—Patricia Cooper.

PUTNAM COUNTY Palatka Elementary—Adrena Miller; Palatka High—Miriam Rose Howard.

SARASOTA COUNTY: Phillippi Shores Elementary, Sarasota—Janet Irene Vannoy, Sarasota Junior High—Betty Jo Grubbs; Venice Junior-Senior High—Elsie L. Silver.

SEMINOLE COUNTY: Lyman High Longwood—William Proctor.

SUWANNEE COUNTY: Branford Elementary—Adrenna Miller; Palatka High—Miriam Rose Howard.

SARASOTA COUNTY: Phillippi Shores Elementary, Sarasota—Janet Irene Vannoy, Sarasota Junior High—Betty Jo Grubbs; Venice Junior-Senior High—Elsie L. Silver.

SEMINOLE COUNTY: Lyman High Longwood—William Proctor.

SUWANNEE COUNTY: Branford Elementary—Adrenna Miller; Palatka High—Miriam Rose Howard.

TAYLOR COUNTY: Foley Junior High—Betty LaRue Inman; Cecil Clifton Jr.

VOLUSIA COUNTY. Deland High—Mary Hill, Jeanette Pillard, Seabreeze High; Jean Bigler.

WALTON COUNTY. Walton Elementary, DeFuniak Springs—Faye Marie Bass, Helen J. Hicks, Sally Jean Bruner.

WASHINGTON COUNTY Chipley High—Mary E Harvey.

MOULTRIE, GA.: Moultrie High—James Wallis.

Speech Production Of Crucible Said To Have Timely Message

"Although this play concerns itself with the witch-hunting problem of the early colonists it has a message that is very timely today."

This is Dr. Paul Davee's opinion of "The Crucible", opening a four-night run Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Augusta Conrad Theater.

Ticket Sale

Tickets will go on sale tomorrow at the Conrad box office, starting 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. through Tuesday. Students Activity book may be exchanged for student rate ticket of 40 cents. Others will be charged 75 cents.

Basically, the play is a dramatic account of what transpired years ago when the colonists were frightened of their beliefs in superstition. "Miller has not attempted at any time in 'The Crucible' to question sincerity, but he has attempted to question 'judgement'."

In the cast of "The Crucible" are Marjorie Tisdall, Forrest Altman, Ruth Harvard, Margaret Malloy, Geraldine Frank, Barbara Waddell, D. David Dyess, Melinda Brown, Libby Mauch, Franklin Adams, Barbara Dobbins, Hal Poe, Duane Lanchester, Dorothy Womble, Virgil Austin, Jr., Eb Thomas, John Paul Davis, Don R. Spivey, Harold Bergman, Mary Alice Newton, and Sheldon Musgrove.

FIT FOR A KING
Choice Center Cut — Filet Mignon
Covered with creamy mushroom sauce and served with crisp brown
French fries and a salad—$1.00
M&N RESTAURANT
119 E. Jefferson

The High and The Mighty . . . Air Force ROTC cadets recently initiated into the Arnold Air Society on the FSU campus are, left to right front, Lamar Mayfield Russell Johnson, William Johnson and James Joanos. Back row, Howard Willson, Robert Stuke, Donald Smith and Coyle Moore.

Women Students Seem To Favor Placing Of Ballot Box In Dorms

By PAT MARSTON

In a recent dormitory poll on dormitory polls, students voted almost unanimously in favor of having polling places near the dormitories.

Sixty women from all the women's dormitories were interviewed Sunday as to whether or not they approved of the bill before the Student Senate to locate polling places in all dormitories housing more than 100 students. Fifty-eight of those women interviewed approved of the bill. Only two were not in favor of it.

"Many people don't pass by a place to vote" said Joan Patterson, a freshman living in Jennie Murphree who thought the bill would save them a place to vote near their own dorm.

Objections Voted Down

The objection that it would be too hard to man and supervise these polls was voted down by the women interviewed, on the grounds that it was time that the Elections committee expanded to give the campus more election places.

Other comments a round it put forth the idea that the Junior counselors in the Freshmen dorms or members of the Sophomore council would be good people to man the polling places.

Jenny Lou Kent, formerly vice-president of Reynolds Hall, said that she "didn't think we'd have any trouble getting people to man the boxes".

Provide Workers

Dot Dekle, president of South Cawthon, said, "I'm sure that we could find enough girls to work and I believe it would make a big improvement in the number of students voting."

Some of the sororities have brought the matter up in chapter meetings and members who live in the dormitories commented that the majority of the girls approved of it.

Reynolds Hall president Pat Perez stated that she "definitely believed we should have polls in the dorms." It has been in that Senate meeting when it was said that there would be more cheating—the dorms can provide workers who are as honest as anyone."

When questioned about the problem of increased cheating or stuffing the ballot boxes, the students interviewed emphatically disagreed.

Freshman Carnival Slated For Gym Next Saturday

Candidates for king and queen of the Freshman Carnival have been announced.

The seven men chosen as representatives of the freshman class are: Bill Alderman, Bubba Bissee, Ira Hill, Jim Kearce, Bonnie Lee, Don Noot and Bill Roche.

Bobbye Crail, Ann Farquharson, Sally Gledding, Janet Johnson, Myra Ann Lay, Patty Marley, and Suzanne Stokes, will vie for the queen's crown.

Voting for the candidates will be held during the carnival, set for Saturday, March 12 in the Women's gym. A vote will cost five cents.

To Have Dance Also

Following the opening of the carnival at 7:30 p.m. a dance will be held in the gym at 9 p.m. until 12 p.m. sponsored by the Intramural Board. Lighting the semi-formal dance will be the floor show at 10:30 p.m. Crowning of the king and queen by the vice-president and president of the class will be held at 11 p.m.

A motorcade on the morning of the carnival will be a feature of the affair. Anyone wishing more information or wishing to participate in the motorcade should contact Don McLeod, Sigma Chi house.

The possibility of using money only to manage the funds being considered, said Tzeschke freshman class president, with the idea that a man manager must be found who is willing to make the freshman class their classman.

Greeks Build Booths

The task of building booths has been assigned to the fraternities and the sororities are building for the Cake Walk. The booth will be awarded for the booth the best and most original.

"We hope to have 20 booths," said Patty Sewell, chairman. So far, booths have been planned for a Cake Walk, Cigarette Board, Wheel of Fortune, Knock Down the Bottle Contest, Penny Pitch and Throw.

"New ideas are being sought on to make the carnival different from previous years, said Sewell.

CLASSIFIED AD

FOUND—Two pair fuses, marked Rivet Sink Contact Jim Hyer 2-4288.

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
Now Open
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Senior Hall)

MAKE IT A DATE!
TUESDAY is 'PIZZA NIGHT'
at FAIVER'S
FOR CHICKEN
ENJOY A DELICIOUS PIZZA PIE—ONLY 85c
Phone 2-4578
1312 W. Tenn.

Put a SMILE in your SMOKING!
Buy CHESTERFIELD today!
Largest selling cigarette in America's colleges
You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness—mildness—refreshing taste.
You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's quality—highest quality—low nicotine.
IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD...
NO CIGARETTE SATISFIES LIKE CHESTERFIELD
© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

GRADE AVERAGES
Announced
For Greeks—P. 4

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 35 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — FRIDAY, MARCH 11, 1955

'Crucible' Opens Four-Day Stand In Conradi Theater

Curtains Rise Nightly At 8:15 Except Sunday

"The Crucible," Arthur Miller's great play about the Salem witch hunts in 1692, opens tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Auditorium Conradi Theater.

It will play through Tuesday night with no performance Sunday.

Ticket sales are reported good as a face value box office extension said late yesterday, however that there are still good seats left for all performances. Some speculators are predicting attendance records to be equaled or toppled for a Department of Speech play.

The "Crucible" Playwright Miller has attempted to do further than his primary definition in drama, a parallel between the basic patterns of early colonial days and our own times. In his introduction Director Paul Davies pointed out recently, "a message that is very timely today."

Large Cast

The local production has assembled one of the largest casts in a community theater. Fifteen-one students have roles in the drama. Eight members are featured in the cast as well as Speech Department veterans. The male leads are played by Lawrence Tindall, Ruth Harvard, Gradie Pittman, Mary Ann Hall, Melinda Brown, Virail Austin Don Spivey and Sheldon Monroe.

Of the veterans, only five have not appeared in play lists with Forrest Allman, Margaret Sally Lobby Mauch, Harold Brown, Mary Ann Hall, Melinda Dorothy Womble Franklin Smith, Barbara Graham, Hal Duane Lanchester, Elizabeth John Paul Davis, and Carol Dena have contributed to this year's production.

Favorable Comments

The controversial play has received much favorable comment on drama critics around the country. It has come under criticism from some in contemporary government who have seen direct similarities of lines of the play to everyday life. Author Miller has denied that he set atmosphere specific to Salem but where this same type of mentalism existed not only when were hunting witches as they do on "The Ed Sullivan Show" but during the days in college He claims that much of the atmosphere hasn't changed since then. Drama critic John Mason Brown of the New York Herald-Tribune commented that "The Crucible" is "one of the most powerful dramas which are being taught to us from any stage, with the passions and dishonesties into which cowardly men are daily tempted."

Village Vamp Taps Initiated Thursday At Pi Phi House

Thirty-five taps were initiated into Village Vamps, professional honorary, last Thursday night at the Pi Beta Phi house.

Virginia Wilson, chief vamp of the hostesses, have ushered for Speech and Acting Series programs this year. Welcoming outside teams and decorating individual suite for certain events are also projects of this organization.

New initiates include: Lacie Bowden, Elaine Brewton, Beverly Brown, Patti Bruce, Joan Cahill, Betsy Craig, Nancy Cubbon, Betsy Douglas, Frandy Duncan, Beatrice Emmett, Ann Parker, Chris Gunnerson, Becky Hay, Sara Jane Griffen, Barbara Hazen, Mary Ann Hanna, Sue Harmon, Jean Hayden, Nina Hicks, Shirley Ison, Sherry Johnson, Karen Kimbrough, Jeani Kitchens, Patsy Knowles, Beverly Laurent, Mary Ann Martin, Martha McGinnis, Ann Monroe, Mary Eleanor Owens, Jean Rush, Ruth Shuler, Rosemary Stephenson, Nelson Templeman, Mary Wallace, and Vicky Walters.

Sandspur Matinee Not Being Held

The Sandspur matinee, originally scheduled for Friday, March 25, the day of the Sandspur Dance, will not be held, Director Herb Reinhart said Wednesday.

Production dates for "Zotinos" are Tuesday, March 22, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, the 26. All performances begin at 8:15 p.m.

Tickets for Friday's Dance featuring Buddy Morrow and his Orchestra, have been reduced to $2 a couple and are on sale in the office of the Coordinator for Student Organizations. It was said yesterday.

'College Knowledge' Test Slated Tuesday

The "Knowledge of College" test will be given for all new students and transfers Tuesday, March 15, at 5 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium. This examination on university rules is required of all women students who have not yet taken it.

Declarations Of Candidacy Due Tuesday

Tuesday at the deadline for filing declarations of candidacy for the spring elections, the elections committee said recently.

Declarations must be turned in by 5 p.m. to the secretary of elections or at the information desk in Longmire where blanks may also be obtained

For additional questions concerning election procedure," said Betty Jo Grubbs, secretary of elections, "candidates are requested to read the election code. Copies can be obtained at the desk in Longmire.

She said that expense estimates of candidates which must be turned in by March 22, will be issued along with the declaration blanks.

No Blanks

Six ballot boxes will be in use for the Student Body elections March 29, she said.

They will be located in West-Side, Student Center, Semunole Club, the vicinity of the new dorm behind Westcott, Landis Green and Broward, open next Wednesday, March 16.

The history and decorative uses of Japanese writing will be illustrated by the collection of Dr. George Lensen, assistant professor of history at FSU.

The evolution of Japan's written language or "calligraphy" will be demonstrated by examples of early brush-written on bamboo, later decorative scrolls and the modern books and magazines of this far eastern people.

Dr. Lensen's prized collection is one of the results of a recent 10-month stay in Japan on a Fulbright research grant.

The exhibit will be desumed and installed by students in a course of museum techniques under the supervision of Dr. Hale G. Smith and Mr. William Russell West, Departmens of Anthropology.

Tryouts For Dance Group To Be Held March 17, 22 At 7

The Florida State University Modern Dance Group will give tryouts next week for all interested men and women students.

Practice sessions will be held in the Virginia Key and FSU Tryouts will be held March 17 and 22 at 7 p.m. All sessions will be held in the dance studio of the Women's Gym.

Those interested in joining the dance group may sign for practice on Tuesdays from 7:30-9:00 p.m., the time the group meeting is held. Previous experience is not required, however, necessary. Opportunities are also offered to those who wish to work with lighting and costuming. Information may be obtained from Betty Gooch, Broward Hall.

Fails To Get Vote

Compromise Representation Bill Attacked In Senate As Unfair

The compromise amendment on representation presented to the Student Senate Wednesday, after heavily attacked from the floor, failed to pass.

The committee which brought forth the proposal was given another week to consider all objections and try to come up with an acceptable solution to the month-old representation problem.

Under parliamentary rules the bill needed a two-thirds majority to pass, but the vote was 13 for 11, nine against, and two abstaining, not the required margin.

Senator Hank McCann attacked the compromise, amount which he had voted in committee, by charging that some students would have no votes ever Senate while others, he said, would have six.

No Voting

He said that a freshman woman day student would have no votes day student delegates at large would be elected in the spring while a day student could not vote in the freshman women dormitory elections in the Fall.

A freshman living in West Side with 1,645 students would have a total of five senators—his three class senators and the two from the dormitory. A day student, he claimed, would have six—his two and the four from his class.

Senator Jimmy Soles added that "the small workers wouldn't have to hunt through twenty-four sheets of paper"—residence lists and separate ballots.

Men's vice-president Gordon Gaster surprised onlookers by coming out in support of the bill and calling it "the most democratic" yet. His claim was that minority differences in representation strength would be so technical.

The Senators voted as follows; For the compromise—Gaster, Tavel, Arnold, Avis, Graham, Raiford, Wasnick, Gatlin, Jones, Ballinger, Close, Jones and Dunn.

Against — Stanelli, Watzner, Mansfield, Moore, Soles, Watzer, McCann, Blue and Swigert.

Senators Temple and Cerny abstained.

"Not Wanted"

Senator Jimmy Joanos, a sponsor of the compromise, declared "I would say Senate does not want this functional type of representation," exempting from his attack Senator Jim Moore who had suggested such a compromise. Senate amendment should only change the system of distribution and should leave the actual representative groups to be determined by statute.

The measure was credited by Senator Jimmy Soles as a step forward. The committee—Senators Gatlin, Raiford, Joanos, Gaster, Vaughn, McCann, Arnold—will vice-presidents Coyle Moore and Gaster surprised onlookers by collect all objections and bring in a new measure next week.

Senator Jim Blue and Swigert's amendment to assign Senators to attend dormitory, fraternity, sorority and day student meetings but leave the present class system of election intact was tabled for a week.

Bill Re-Introduced

Senator Jimmy Soles re-introduced his bill to require the placement of ballot boxes in all dormitories housing more than 100 students, and referred the Senate to Florida Statutes 99.01 ums, editorials and opinion polls concerning the bill which did not earmered enough support the meeting before

The Honor System amendment was tabled for a week to permit the senators to investigate it further. It came in for some criticism on a provision requiring an honor pledge on all written work. Scattered student sentiment against banning an honor system bill was made known to the group.

Which Is The Witch?—Duane Lanchester, Franklin Adams and Dorothy Womble argue over the merits of a witch hunt, to be seen in the "Crucible" production.

Mrs. Von Dohnanyi To Speak Today On Writing Experiences

Mrs. Ernst von Dohnanyi, writer and wife of the celebrated composer and pianist, will speak at the English Coffee Hour at four p. m. today in the Westminster House.

Mrs. Dohnanyi, native of Hungary, has lived in many European countries and traveled widely. She is the author of fifteen volumes, most of which were published in Hungary. Some are published in South America, where the Dohnanyi's lived after Communists took over their homeland.

Maiden Name

Mrs. von Dohnanyi writes under her maiden name, Ilona Zshar. Her work includes biographies, translations, and fiction. One set of her books, a Trilogy of Hungarian women in the Italian went unnoticed from editions. Five of her works appeared on this season's European listings, indicating that they are still selling in Hungary, but she receives no royalties from that country because it is now behind the Iron Curtain.

Mrs. von Dohnanyi has published many articles, and worked several years as an editor with a leading firm in Budapest. Of late, literary interest is writing, she says. "It was a natural bent. My father was an author, a professor of law at the University of Budapest, and his grandfather was Secretary. I suppose it's in the blood."

Writer Patriot

"Kazinczy" is the Hungarian writer-patriot." Mrs. von Dohnanyi stated, "He established the Hungarian language—well, somewhat as Chaucer did earlier for English. He risked his status for a permanent place in the literary world by writing in his native tongue, rather than in French, the language of literature. When he was imprisoned for political reasons, he cut a vein and wrote with his blood for ink on the walls of the jail."

An accomplished linguist, Mrs. von Dohnanyi has been schooled in Latin, Greek, German, French, Italian, and Roumanian. "But I will remember to stick

(Continued on Page 5)

Lensen Relics Of Japanese Are Displayed

Japanese Sun and Symbol, a new exhibit of the University Museum, opens next Wednesday, March 16.

The history and decorative uses of Japanese writing will be illustrated by the collection of Dr. George Lensen, assistant professor of history at FSU.

The evolution of Japan's written language or "calligraphy" will be demonstrated by examples of early brush-written on bamboo, later decorative scrolls and the modern books and magazines of this far eastern people.

Dr. Lensen's prized collection is one of the results of a recent 10-month stay in Japan on a Fulbright research grant.

The exhibit will be desumed and installed by students in a course of museum techniques under the supervision of Dr. Hale G. Smith and Mr. William Russell West, Departmens of Anthropology.

Organist To Play Concert Tomorrow Night In Opperman

Claire Coci, organ virtuoso, will present a concert in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow.

She has toured the country in concert and has been gratefully received guild spokesmen said.

The tickets for the performance may be obtained at the Music School Office. Gridley's or Jenkin's Music Store in Tallahassee. The admission price for the concert is 50c for students and $1 for university employees.

Moore Nominated By Student Party For Top Executive

Economist Says There Is Now Much Less Group Antagonism

By DICK VICTORY

Native radical groups that once were sharply critical of capitalism and his business in our part are losing their antagonism and sending more and more to cooperation among themselves—and with government—than at any other time in history.

This was Bentamin F. Rogers' message to members and visitors of the American Studies Seminar Tuesday night.

Rogers, speaking on "Radicalism Since 1918", the fifth topic in the American Studies lecture series, explained this development. He said it has become especially intense since the outbreak of the second world war, a result of the good times and security that come with almost full employment.

Sketches Traditions

Rogers, an inveterate speaker, first briefly sketched the United States' long tradition of radicalism that lineered until the end of World War I, and then centered his background with the contemporary scene.

Rogers said that radicalism reached its peak with men like Thomas Jefferson; that "all during the 19th century and up until 1924 the U.S. had the most radical out for all kinds of revolutionaries."

"Since then," however, he continued, "there has been a steady decline in radicalism in all fields."

In the labor union realm, he traced the disentegration of the International Workers of the World, the subsequent growth of the American Federation of Labor and the rise in 1935 of the Congress of Industrial Organization.

Rogers cited the latter two as being a sharp swing to conservatism in their objectives, "especially in terms of the IWW."

Farmers Felt Tendency

The farmers, after 1924, also felt this tendency, Rogers illustrated this point by speaking of their new attitude toward big business. They now dropped the idea of taxing business and "became more interested in getting the government to help them out."

Political parties, as a radical force, Rogers said, were watered down by the organizational difficulties that occur when laborers and farmers, who seldom saw eye to eye.

One of the clearest examples of the trend in radicalism toward cooperation with business and management, Rogers pointed out, is the sphere of labor especially, where the workingman is growing bourgeoisie because of the additional benefits that have been conceded to him.

"Because of this," said Rogers, "labor, now middle class, has become to hate the strike" for fear of losing security.

Honor Court Finds Campbell Ineligible For Editorship Post

The Honor Court ruled Tuesday in an advisory opinion that J. Gary Campbell is constitutionally ineligible to hold the editorship of the Florida Flambeau.

The Court based its decision on the constitutional requirement that candidates for editor to have over two full semesters of experience on the editorial staff. It was on the contention of the Flambeau Staff Photographer Bruce Fletcher, that Campbell's experience did not total the required amount.

In rendering its decision, which the Court said was "not necessarily legal ethics," it complied with Attorney General's Opinion which defined the editorial staff as all those on the paper above mere reporters. They added: "Editors, sports editors, special photographers, artists and cartoonists."

Woods Is Counsel

Campbell's counsel, Tom Woods, attempted to prove that Campbell's experience was adequate, and that the summer Flambeau's five issues should count as a whole semester, in which 26 issues are printed.

Chief Justice Jerry Meyer told the Court and attorneys to discuss only Campbell's qualifications in reference to the constitutional requirements.

Main points voiced by Fletcher

(Continued on Page 3)

News Briefs

DELTA TAU'S INITIATE 9

Delta Tau Delta fraternity recently initiated nine new members. They are Larry Merrill, Hank Taff, Don Van Nuis, Dick Gant, Art Good, Lloyd Carish, John Hall, Wayne Johnson, and Bob Newman. Pete Hall received a Rush Chairman Shipper in honor of the new initiates.

SCHULTZ SPEAKS AT GRADUATE COFFEE

Dr. Raymond Schultz, associate professor of Education, will speak on "Employment After Graduate School" at the Graduate Coffee Hour March 17 in the Conradi Main Lounge at 4 p.m.

All mature, married and graduate students are invited to attend. For background or more information, call 4371.

ARD ELECTED HEAD ENGINEERS

Newly elected officers in the Real Estate and Insurance Office are Wards Ard, President; Hilton Whitton, Vice - President; Pat Polhson, Secretary - Treasurer; Virginia Robson, Publicity Chairman; and Frank Grady, Membership Chairman.

The club will hold their next meeting Tuesday, March 15 in the Small Lounge in Longmire at 6 p.m. All business majors are invited to attend.

DEPUTY TO AID IN FILLING FORMS

Florida State University faculty, staff, and students may receive aid from the Internal Revenue Service in filling out the preparation of income tax returns.

A Deputy Collector will be posted at the entrance to Westcott Auditorium belonny Wednesday, March 16, during the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m.

KA'S PLEDGE 21 MEN

Kappa Alpha has recently pledges Dix Darnell, Fred Reinhoff, Andy Wollins on, Ken Abbott, Lawrence Bryan, Gene Cook, Lovell Dowling, Walter Fisher, Frank Fain, Ronald Hare Lem Hoover, Jim Keaze, Bill Kirkland, Gary Landrum, Palmer Munroe, Billy Payne, Ralph Rhodes, John Riley, Dixon Robinson, Mike Rou, and Ron Weiberntzon.

Bob Butler won the Scholarship cup for having the highest grades in his pledge class last semester and Jerry Merrill and Dix Dodge were awarded the Best Pledge award.

FirstGlee-Club Spring Concert Set for Tonight

The Women's Glee Club presents its first spring concert tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The program will honor Miss Ina Robertson, professor in the School of Music and past director of the Glee Club. Miss Robertson will retire this June.

Vocal selections by the Glee Club will be divided into three categories, hymns, Ukranian folk songs, and popular numbers by Jerome Kern, Cole Porter, and others. The Collegians will join the Women's Glee Club in singing "What Is This Thing Called Love," by Porter.

Popular numbers to be sung are "Sunday Kind of Love", as arranged by Claude Thornhill and Audrey Wright, student assistant in the school of Music. "Always" by Irving Berlin, "Story Weather" and "Wunderbar", as arranged by George Roth, of the piano faculty.

Ten Candidates Seek Election On Party Roster

The Student Party nominated Chris Moore for President of the Student Body at its convention Wednesday night. He will oppose State Party nominee Gordon Gaster for the post.

Nine other candidates selected by the party include Jimmy Joanos for vice-president of the student body, Hans Tews for men's vice-president and Nancy Vaughan for women's vice-president.

Platform adopted by the Student Party emphasizes the necessity for students to understand the problems of the administration. Also an increase in the number of student services; improvement of parking facilities for students along with increase in number; Co-ed and elimination of present lava affecting students.

Broderick Nominated

Other Student Party candidates pledged to support the platform are Jim Broderick, for Tally-Ho Editor; Ray Tolley, for Tally-Ho Business Manager; Thomas Lewis, for Honor Court Chief Justice; Ann Lee Greene, for Honor Court Clerk; Ina Jean Pruitt, for chairman of judiciary and Thomas Ramsey, for secretary of the senate. Nominees were not selected for the office of Historian.

Heading a list of Constitutional Revisions that have been proposed at the convention to one per fifty Day Students. The term "Day Student was defined, however, to include only unmarried undergraduates living off campus and taking at least twelve semester hours of classes. Overall effect of the change was to reduce the size of the Day Student delegation from 15 to 14 in comparison with the previous system of one delegate for 100 day students.

Other non-technical changes included the February party convention for electing party officials and other business and a change in the composition of Student Body officers, a later amendment would select nominees for class officers.

Keynote Address

Student Body President Peter Nimkoff, a party member, delivered the keynote address to the convention. Referring to former student body Vice-President Gene Allen's appointment that "Superiority is the cheapest of political terms," Nimkoff said that attempts to create "Greek"-Independent rivalry are an example of "political mudsmearing."

Nimkoff stated, "The Florida Flambeau has thrown Greek and Independents into the political arena in the hope that they will fight to control the paper. The Flambeau has a right to print whatever it chooses within the canons of good taste and libel restraints, but "The columnists are guilty of fabricating differences which do not exist.

"I don't think there are any particularly bad feelings between Greeks and Independents." Nimkoff said. He described their relationship as "reciprocal."

Nimkoff turned to reasons for existence of political parties at

(Continued on page 3)

To Retire In June—Miss Etta Robertson, seond from right, will be honored with a concert tomorrow for her 30 years of membership on the FSU School of Music staff. Students in picture, soloists for the Women's Glee Club Concert, are: Mary Jackson, at Piano, and l. to r., Barbara Schaller, Carol Ann Nydegger, Martha Slayden and Shirley Paonessa.

Daily Declarations Of Honesty

A person who cheats in class penalizes only himself. A class graded on the curve hurts only itself if it tolerates cheating on the part of individual members.

With this in mind we believe that the Honor System amendment to the constitution now before the Student Senate requiring an honor pledge be signed on all written work be soundly defeated.

It is not right that honest students, by far the majority on this campus, should be forced repeatedly to declare their fidelity on such items as tests, reports, and the like.

At registration, every student signed an Honor Pledge promising that he would not cheat. By so signing, he admitted that his integrity is not to be assumed, but rather that it must be declared and promised.

Are we to repeat every day the catechism: "I am not now cheating. I never have cheated, and I will not cheat?" Are we going to have to make a constant, almost daily declaration of honesty?

Honesty is a matter of individual conscience. A person who will cheat has no conscience and will not quail from signing an honor pledge which means nothing to him. To have his honesty repeatedly questioned is an unforgivable insult to the honest man.

The Matter Is Dropped

We would like to refer the readers to Richard Lukas's letter in this issue.

Amid many wild, unsubstantiated and unreasoning charges Mr. Lukas also seems unable to appreciate the fact that J. Gary Campbell did not work long enough for this newspaper to qualify under the constitution.

If we were to count his experience as a mere reporter, we would have to credit every person who ever turned in anything to the Florida Flambeau. Does this make the writers in the public relations office, whose releases we use on occasion, qualified to run for Flambeau editor?

Mr. Lukas would like nothing better than to convince the campus that we are anti-fraternity. For the record we state that his charges are completely and absolutely in error.

It is often held against us that the preponderance, although by no means the entirety, of the staff are non-fraternity. This is due to the fact that the Flambeau requires a great deal of time and effort on the part of its staffers, particularly on Monday nights, when the Tuesday issue is prepared. Most fraternity and sorority members do not have this time to give.

If Mr. Lukas had any conception of the problems of editing the Florida Flambeau he would not go around maintaining that a man who has not actually worked on more than 26 issues of the paper could possibly take over the editor's job.

Furthermore, it is a matter of certainty that Gary Campbell's candidacy would have been used by certain politicians to gratify their over-expanded sense of political power, and that is an illustration of why the staff opposes candidacy on party tickets.

Who is Mr. Lukas to talk of selfishness? Better that he ask J. Gary Campbell why he did not volunteer his services to the paper one time this year, yet then maintain that he deserved the job of editor?

If Mr. Lukas thinks the Flambeau could be run better he is most welcome to offer concrete suggestions, and if he is not too busy spouting his untruths and misconceptions, he is even more welcome to work for the Flambeau. He might even edit it some day?

And for the edification of Mr. Lukas, Mr. Campbell and everyone else concerned we point out that if J. Gary Campbell had not resigned from the paper when he did, he would by this time have probably been managing editor or news editor under Bob Folsom, and would certainly have received a staff nomination for editor this spring. That this is not the case is due entirely to his own reasons and not to any "anti-Greek" prejudices on the Flambeau staff.

The Flambeau recognizes that he had to work. So do other members of the staff—some as many as 130 hours a month—and yet they give what time they can to the paper.

As far as we're concerned, the matter is now dropped.

Serious Questions Raised

Many have read about the Reverend Georges Bissonnette, an American Roman Catholic priest in Moscow, being ordered to leave the country by the Kremlin. This, presumably, was retaliation for the decision by our government not to permit the further residence here of the Metropolitan Boris of the Russian Orthodox Church.

This decision goes much further than the newspaper reports. It raises serious doubt about the way certain aspects of our governmental policy are being shaped, as George F. Kennan, former U. S. Ambassador to Russia, and now a member of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, pointed out in a letter to The New York Times last Sunday. Mr. Kennan raises serious questions about this action:

I would like to raise the question as to whether the action taken with regard to the Metropolitan Boris really represented the deliberate decision of the persons responsible for the over-all conduct of our foreign relations, taken in full consciousness of all the implications, or whether this was one more instance of governmental confusion—and particularly of American policy being needlessly distorted by persons responsible only for internal security considerations and not conscious of the other aspects of national interest.

While no outsider can be sure he knows all the facts, they would have to be, in this instance, very unusual ones indeed to persuade the writer that the security of this country would have been appreciably endangered by the Metropolitan's further presence here. . . .

Mr. Kennan then questioned the report that U. S. postal authorities are doing all they can to prevent delivery of copies of the Moscow newspapers Pravda and Izvestia to persons in this country "not authorized to receive them."

Is this a deliberate decision of the highest authorities of our Government, taken in full cognizance of the advice that might be offered by persons familiar with the content of these newspapers or is it merely the decision of security authorities who have no obligation to take into account the wider issues involved and no facilities for doing so?

I have followed both Pravda and Izvestia most of the time for some 27 years, and I can think of nothing more conducive to a correct understanding of Soviet realities in this country than the widest possible acquaintance with these journals on the part of interested Americans.

I have known hundreds of our countrymen who have read them assiduously but none who was ever converted to communism by that exercise, and none who failed to derive from it a sharpening of his understanding of precisely those features of Soviet life and thought that are most unacceptable to American feeling and tradition.

These newspapers naturally contain propaganda; but it is not aimed at the foreign reader, and it is not beyond the capacity of the average American reader to recognize it for what it is. The denial of the free circulation of these periodicals cannot, on the other hand, fail to burden Soviet studies in this country at a time when we have most serious need for authoritative knowledge about the Soviet Union.

. . . I can only raise again the question I have raised on previous occasions: Are there really people in our Government who believe that our own political philosophy is so unconvincing, our attachment to it so weak, our youth so bewildered and gullible—and the outlook of our adversaries, on the other hand, so forceful, so logical and so persuasive—that we must shield our people physically from every confrontation with Communist thought?

It would seem so, Mr. Kennan.

Unequivocal Indecision

Secretary Dulles' mission to Formosa might be described as a way of serving unequivocal notice on the world that the U. S. has taken a forthrightly ambiguous stand on the defense of Quemoy and Matsu.

Each man, it seems, can read his own hopes and fears into Dulles' words. Homer Bigart summarized the matter plainly: What Dulles has tried to say is that the Chinese-Communists may nibble away at Quemoy and Matsu but a big vulgar bite will provoke retaliation.

What if the Communists take a, well, moderate mouthful, somewhere between a chunk and a sliver? Will the National Security Council be called into secret session to determine whether a major violation of table manners has occurred?

The situation is too grave for long laughter. The Communists may have a different definition of what constitutes a nibble; the peace of Asia—and perhaps the world—is being allowed to hinge on that disagreement.

This business of allegedly keeping the Communists guessing is not a policy. It is a desperate improvision designated to camouflage the absence of policy.

The world wants to hear America speak out clearly in behalf of a UN trusteeship for Formosa. Of all proposed solutions, this is surely the most honorable one. What are we waiting for? Why are the Democrats so silent on an issue that clearly warrants full and free national debate?

The New York Post

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors ... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors ... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ... Alen Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor ... David Dreis
Photographer ... Laird Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager ... Irma Cox
Assistant Exchange Editor ... Joan Halford
Exchange Staff ... Susan Hyde
Distribution ... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity
Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821
211 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors ... Pat Marston, Willia Smith
Rewrite Editor ... Margaret Miller
Art Consultant ... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist ... Con Horn
Junior Staff ... Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jari Bradfield, Charles Poitevint, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Lia King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff ... Frank Tillett, Nina Ryle,
Business Staff ... Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dressler
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

"Boss, Do You Want To See Government Get Ahead Of Private Enterprise?"

Letters To The Flambeau

Selfish Group

To the Editor:

I attended the recent Honor Court hearing which was concerned with J. Gary Campbell's qualifications for the editorship of the Flambeau. There editor Folsom, I saw you and several of your cohorts arguing that Campbell was not qualified to run for the editorship of our school newspaper.

In my opinion, your selfish group has successfully squelched a chance for an energetic, capable and conscientious man to run. I feel that the reason why you put up such a fight to see Campbell prevented from running is that you and the majority of your staff are anti-fraternity. I feel that you would have gone to any extreme to ruin a chance for a fraternity man to run for that office on a party ticket. Because you know, as well as I, that if Campbell was nominated by the Student Party, he would have won overwhelmingly. The reasons: He's well liked, capable, fair and a fraternity man, who would have had the support of the fraternities and other groups on campus who are tired of having to put up with a selfish editor and staff, "dedicated to the proposition that the only people who can run for editor, are the ones we choose."

With the exception of some of your prejudiced staff members, most of the people who attended the hearing felt Campbell was definitely qualified to run. However, after hearing both sides, in their opinion, the Honor Court deemed Campbell unqualified. To enlighten some people, one of the justices on the Court is the past party chairman of the State Party and has said in the last State Party convention that he believed it best that a person be divorced of any party affiliation in running for the editorship of the school newspaper Another justice is on the Executive Committee of the State Party. Did these justices, in analyzing the evidence for and against Campbell, erase prejudiced convictions which they might have held about a man running for the office of editor on a party ticket? I'm inclined to think the answer is in the negative.

Nevertheless, the damage has been done Many thanks to you editor Folsom and associates—may you go on choosing "qualified" candidates.

Sincerely,
RICHARD LUKAS

Improving Intellect

To the Editor:

Recently you published a letter from Gary Campbell, who has unexpectedly, through some mysterious motivation, expressed an interest in the Flambeau which we suspect is not too "unselfish" in itself.

In this letter, he altruistically contests the right of the Flambeau staff (so-called "a machine") to select from its members an individual who has proven himself, through service and talent, worthy of the position of editor. The right of the staff unfortunately (but of course incidentally) leaves Campbell out as a possibility.

There is still another road to success for someone in Campbell's position, however, and that is nomination by a political party. Since it is doubtful that he would have any success at all without some sort of political or (perish the thought) organizational backing, we can easily understand his dismay when the Flambeau adopted a policy of non-party affiliation. Nobody on the staff may accept a political nomination, therefore, Campbell must admit that he has the qualifications of a staff member pre-requisite to election and accept the decisions of that staff, or else announce that he does NOT have the required qualifications of a staff member and seek nomination as sort of a "layman" editor, something new in the field of journalism.

Campbell, ignoring the obvious improvement in quality of the Flambeau over the past two years and the fact that most newspapers and magazines (college ones, included) employ a heirarchical succession of editors, dictatorily chosen without recourse to the opinions of the majority of the staff, let alone campus population, feels that we should bring "democracy" to the Flambeau. Unfortunately, the term "democracy" has many repugnant connotations to me—standardization, conformity, content aimed at the lowest common denominator of student appreciation—when applied to the field of Art (if this includes journalism).

I would argue, on the other hand, that we should bring a little intellectual aristocracy to the Flambeau and take this matter out of the hands of the students entirely so that they would not have the right to choose, by whim or prejudice, who will edit a college newspaper. It is obnoxious to me that a candidate for editor, who may have neglected many of his canine courtesies while improving his intellect, should have to grovel for the approval and support of a group of students who are for the most part unsympathetic with either his ambitions or his way of life.

CON HORN

FLASH! RED IS TUFTS COLLEGE "SEXIEST COLOR"

MEDFORD, Mass.—(ACP)—Red was declared the "sexiest" color by 66 per cent of those sampled in a poll by the Tufts College Weekly. Slinky black garnered 25 per cent of the votes. Nine per cent of the voters—all men—gave their preference to lavender.

Women polled by the college weekly were almost unanimous in voting for "fiery, brazen, and active" red as the most sexy color.

Analyzing the data, the Tufts Weekly concludes that "the bold red color of the Stars and Stripes still represents courage, as it did in the days of Betsy Ross."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"Don't let th' housemother know we have any beer—I only bought enough for the four of us."

The Dissenter

No System Can Do Full Justice

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Student Senate is learning, the hard way, the penalties of conservatism.

No, they haven't passed a resolution supporting the Taft-Hartley act status quo. But because of their reluctance to make an all-out change they've gotten themselves in a very deep mess.

This issue is the representation problem, and the conservatism is partly their reluctance to dispense with the old-fashioned and poorly functioning class system of electing senators.

Most senators are in favor of some change — only freshmen senators Hank McCann and Polly Atwater have voiced confidence in the old system, and they, through their own amendment, have admitted that perhaps the senators don't know as much about what the students are thinking as they ought to know.

The only way to change the present system is to provide for pure out-and-out precinct representation, because any other proposal is unworkable, ineffective, and undemocratic.

Senate defeated a measure which would have kept some class senators, but would have given the dormitories a stipulated number of senators, and provide senators at-large from the Greeks and the day students.

The trouble with this plan, as Senator McCann pointed out while helping to defeat it, was that some people would have more senators than others.

Just how would this happen? Here's Joe College, class of 1959. There are three freshman men's senators, because some people in Senate think that the freshmen must have an equal number of senators (to preserve their rights or something?). He has three senators there. If he lives in West Hall he has two more, which makes five, but if he's a day student he has only three—because the two for the day students are elected the spring before.

Complicated, isn't it?

A freshman girl not living in a dormitory (day student) would have no votes whatsoever, because her day student senators would have been elected while she was celebrating senior week in high school and the only freshman women senators would be chosen in the fall by the women's dormitories housing freshmen.

When precinct representation first came up almost a year ago, its supporters declared that each senator should represent the same number of peo[ple]. Furthermore, they declared [he] should live as close to his [con]stituents as possible, prefera[bly] with them.

One idea of theirs was [to] foster intra-dormitory po[litics] and get every resident out [to] vote for the man to repre[sent] him in Senate.

Since then certain sena[tors] have tried to change the [ar]chaic class system which [has] no interest whatsoever o[n the] part of most students—it [is] removed from them. O[thers] have protested that the Gre[eks] couldn't get along within [pre]cincts — any two fratern[ities] could cancel out the [...] larger one by combin[ing] against it, so that they [would] have to compromise to elect [a] senator, which is polit[ics], not dirty or disgusting in [any] way.

Others scream that the d[ay] students can't be distric[ted] [and] use this argument to opp[ose] districting the Greeks [and] dormitories. They disregard [the] fact that no system can do f[ull] justice to the day students.

By refusing to take the [...] step—the courageous appr[oach] to the future of this a grow[ing] university — and provide [for] precinct representation, [...] Senate has bogged itself hop[e]lessly down.

Tongue And Cheek

The Gadflies: Are They Extinct?

By CON HORN

Speaking before the American Studies group Tuesday night, Dr. Rogers (History) pointed out the very definite decline in radicalism since 1918 in this country. That the United States has attained a divine and unquestionable perfection is highly doubtful, and it would be well to ask whether this decline of the critical viewpoint is not indeed dangerous.

First of all, it is necessary to remove many of the disparaging connotations of the term "radicalism," which many today feel is an attitude not far removed from insanity No less respectable a figure than Socrates, when he could secure an audience, was fond of portraying himself as a "gadfly" in the community, a role which he considered essential to its well-being. Don't let the kiddies hear this, but to put it bluntly, Socrates, unwittingly revered lo these many centuries, was a r-a-d-i-c-a-l. In return for his pains, Socrates was exterminated by the state, an action which seems to have established a precedent in regard to the treatment of nonconformists.

This is due mainly to the fact that too many of us do not appreciate the true function of radicalism in society. While the conservative element of the population serves as the static and unchanging bulwark of civilization, it is acted upon by the progressive influence of radicals in varying degrees. Radicalism then, is an ideological Ex-Lax administered to a body of civilization that would tend to stagnate and decay were it not continually forced to improve and re-arrange itself.

If we admit that radicalism is necessary to progress, then where are we going to find individuals produced by a fear-ridden society who are willing to advocate change? Dr Rogers claims, rather optimistically, it seems to me, that these individuals are and will always be found in the universities, both on the faculty and in the student body. Asked to point out any signs of nonconformity or healthy radicalism on our own campus, he singled out the Student Senate as a group of free-thinking, liberal individuals Whether or not the Senate itself would go along with [...] opinion or even be over[...] to be involved in the discu[s]sion is an interesting po[int].

FACTS - WHICH - NEVER - CEASE - TO - AMAZE DEPT: Nick Harrington, [...] with "wearing thin [...] prince of West Halls [...] Party delegation, was a[...] an extra added at[...] with Student Party [...] Wednesday night. Isn't [...] carrying bipartisanship a [...] too far, or should we con[sider] it a trend toward unification?

IT'S - A - SMALL - WORLD DEPT.: Coyle Moore's accept[ance] speech at the Stu[dent] Party Convention deliv[ered] hand-to-breast in an eloque[nt] Southern drawl, smacked q[uite] considerably of Mr Co[...] words not too long ago o[n a] somewhat similar occasion a[s] was pointed out by War[...] Cobb (non-combatant [...] class). Two great minds.

LET'S - RAISE - A - FLAG DEPT The Curriculum Committee has decided to propose that the Senate consider offering a course next year [in] the Administration of Cere[al] Baking. In simpler terms, Oatmeal Cookies.

Lately It Seems

It Is Distressingly Necessary!

By ORCHID ALONSO

The inevitable has happened. All the fears that have festered in the minds of free Americans for months have broken out into a blistering that may well mark the end of all our freedoms.

And McCarthy has been the cause of it. If he hadn't been so nosey about red streaks, today our blue streaks (once a treasured tradition) would not be endangered.

This crime, this despicable intrusion into our freedoms of speech has occurred in one of our freshman women's dorms

But fear not. These malignant supressors of our rightful wrath, will not, can not, continue to rule ruthlessly over our revered rights We will all revolt. Better yet, we will go underground. Furthermore, we will stand behind the fifth (amendment, that is) and proclaim our neutrality to those who hide behind the cloak of lady-like language

Ever since last Sunday when we payed a visit to a freshman dorm we have been busily engaged in organizing splatter brigades and underground activities to combat the hateful picture that is still fresh in our minds: "Profanity in this dorm is a house council offense."

The action in itself was not too revolting What was disgusting was the utter insincerity of the whole affair. The collaborators, not wishing to reveal their true fascist colors, insisted that it was being done in the interest of "lady-like behavior."

And, astute that they are, they appeal to the loyalty of the residents. What a paradox! Seek in the name of loyalty what is so obviously disloyal to all the basic principles of Americanism

They maintain that it is ignoble and uncharitable for their young ladies to "spill, not just say" words of profanity. Noblesse oblige. Can it be that these book-burners, these witch-hunters are construing for their purposes a mental attitude that would not condone freedom of speech?

Is it possible that any true, loyal, red-blooded fan of 'Lil Acorn Fannie' will fall for the red herring line that a string of coarse words thrown out a front window for all to hear, or shouted with glee in a hallway so that it is heard by all gentlemen callers through the PA system is foul?

FSU is indeed falling into a quagmire which will eventua[lly] change our whole way of [...] Imagine educating some [...] women every year to be cle[an] language and considerate [of] their peers then sending them home all over the state whe[re] they will eventually bring up children to think the same [...] It sounds like a well organ[ized] conspiracy is now right this minute, undermining our students.

But, as it was said before we'll go underground. Card carrying members will be instructed to substitute a number, ranging in order from 1 to whatever the individual capacity may be. Plans at the first meeting calls for the election as president of the "Underworld, Inc.," that persons who can count the longest and loudest.

After all, this is a democracy.

Etcetera Etchings

'Late' Radio Provides Nice Listening

By DAVID DREIS

If you're one of those 'early to bed' guys—you're missing something in the way of good entertainment—I kid you not! If course many people don't want to be entertained after midnight, but some know what I'm talking about. It's radio.

Midnight-to-dawn radio has always intrigued thousands and for that reason on many stations it is keeping hope alive that video hasn't won all. The main reason is that the announcer on these shows will usually work his best in order to keep you from snuggling down each night. If you shut your radio off thinking you're missing something he's doing his job. I haven't slept for nights.

Throughout the country over many stations the American Airlines sponsors "Music-till-Dawn" with classical and popular instrumental music sufficing for the stretch. Each station has the same theme and the same easy-going, soft talking announcer who ad-libs occasionally about his sponsor. Time is cheap around this area and the airlines takes advantage of it.

One station features a program called "Late Music" with each midnite - to - dawn show playing renditions of one male singer, one female singer and one instrumentalist. They do this in consistent rotation so you can guess who follows who. We heard on one night Frank Sinatra, Paul Weston and Sarah Vaughn in that order. It was great.

Of course, there are still "talk" programs featuring discussions and lectures on everything from politics to religion. (Not that these two are far apart.) There's hillbilly music, waltz music—in fact, you can choose your brand all over the dial. That's more than you can say for most of the program day.

Now my radio is housed off-campus, but I'm told that by hanging an aerial outside your window, even the smallest set can pick up something. Don't pass it up, it's good broadcasting SURFACE NOISE: Rumor has it that summer theatre [in] the Department of Speech wi[ll] feature three plays. . . . Another rumor has it that a new Conradi theater is in the pla[n]ning with plush seats a[s] in Westcott Auditorium. . . Syracuse University students have nicknamed their university FM station "The Secret Station" . . . we wonder why. . . . Charles Allen and Hal LeVay are rea[lly] turning out good basketb[all] play-by-play . . . we always knew they could do it. . . . Prediction: The Capital Post wi[ll] outsell the Democrat in its first year unless the Democrat equals the columnists and comics this new paper has . . besides, it's in the morning. . . . Kahler's to feature a Sandspur special as a tie-in with the show . . Rick Hollister's phone number was given out by rival Phil Davis one evening . . Hollister soon learned just how many listeners weren't listening to him that time of night. . . "Earth Angel" t[he] number one record in Tally . . . Jenkins all out.

Beloit Beats Seminoles At Kansas City

Outscored 110-88 In Second Round

Beloit (Wis) College's Buccaneers, shooting with amazing accuracy, defeated FSU's Seminoles in the second round of the National Intercollegiate Tournament Monday, 110-88.

The total of 198 points were a new scoring record for the tournament, eclipsing the 194 in 1953 in Hamline's 102-92 win over Mississippi Southern.

Beloit, the second-seeded team in the country, hit on 39 of 68 for a percentage of 57.3. Normally, FSU could make only 119 times, for a dismal 37 percentage.

The Bucs held the Buccaneers even for the first five minutes, but thereafter, the boys rolled a solid lead. Beloit led 49-43 at halftime.

Forward Rick Benson led the Bucs attack with 21 points. A-center chipped in with 20 and Wernlein was close behind with 19.

Monday, Oct. 18.

FSU gained the second round by virtue of its victory by whipping Atlanta State, 93-84, Monday.

BELOIT (110)				FLA. STATE (88)
	G	F	T		G	F	T
Benson, f	9	4	21	Arnold, f	4	4	12
Ward, f	1	0	2	Wallace, f	3	6	12
Wernlein, f	8	3	19	Hall, c	5	6	16
Patton, c	7	6	20	Pasteur, g	1	3	5
Hall, g	1	1	3	Wilson, g	3	0	6
Wilkinson, g	3	1	7	Wernlein, f	3	0	6
Bell, g	1	0	2	Gray, g	0	2	2
Totals	39	20	110	Totals	33	22	88

Referee score: Beloit 10, Stetson 8.

Free throws missed—Beloit: Benson, Ward, Wernlein 3, Johnson, Atanasoff, Wilkinson, Bell. Florida State—Arnold, Wallace, Hall, Pasteur, Wilson, Wernlein, Gray, Bartlett.

1951 (10)	Won.	State (101)
	W	P
Kimbrell	2	0	0
Carter, g	6	0	0
Bird, g	2	0	0
Valdmanis, f	5	1	10
Hall, f	2	0	4
Oliver, g	6	1	13
Hartley, f	2	0	4
Hartley, g	0	0	0
Burleson, g	6	0	9
Kaup, f	6	0	12
Knapp, c	6	0	9
Totals	39	2	81

Referee: FSU 62, Montana 51.

Free throws missed—Florida State: Carter, Valdmanis, Hall, Williams 2, Bird, Montana 2, Carter 2, Andrews, Oliver 2, Ingalsbee 2.

Who's On First—FSU will be without the services of valuable Fred Twomey, lettermen first sacker, when it travels to Lakeland Friday to meet Florida Southern. Twomey, who hit .347 last season, is in Kansas City with the basketball team.

Florida State Baseball Squad Opens Today At Lakeland Against Southern's Moccasins

Florida State embarks on its most interesting baseball schedule in history today in the first of a two-game series with Florida Southern at Lakeland.

Both games—the other is set for Saturday—are afternoon affairs.

Guided by former major league Danny Litwhiler, FSU is playing an extensive 24-game schedule against such opponents as Wisconsin, LSU, Georgia, Miami and Stetson.

Today's game also marks Litwhiler's debut as a college coach. He was in the National League for 11 seasons. The 38-year-old Litwhiler joined FSU's ranks back in January.

In Florida Southern, the Seminole's face one of their oldest-and keenest competitors. The Tribe holds a 104-6 edge in the series and 31 games to 1 in the last 32 games.

Coaching his address. Nimkoff urged candidates to not flee their party affiliation if elected.

Moore Accepts

Presidential Nominee Moore nodded Nimkoff in urging party unity during his acceptance speech. Accepting the party nomination with the words "I accept gratitude." Moore and that student government has "progressed in the last few years from an archaic type . . . that had its heads tied in knots to a point where we now have a fairly reasonable amount of peace."

He stated that if students can prove that "student government here has come of age," then it will have a better chance to get the added responsibility it needs. Emphasizing that the Student Senate has functioned well this year, he said that "we have passed over twice as much legislation this year" as in previous years.

Moore spoke particularly in support of two planks on the Student Party platform: Student control over student money and student representation on faculty committees.

"There are over 20 other planks on our platform," he said, "It is a platform on which I am proud to run. It is a platform which I want to fulfill!" The planks will be listed in the next issue of the Flambeau.

Moore Nominated At Convention

(Continued from page 1)

Florida State University, citing their accomplishments in a movie of cooperation, (2) arousing interest in Student Government, and 3) "Getting back to the students."

Concluding his address, Nimkoff urged candidates to not flee their party affiliation if elected.

Moore Accepts

Presidential Nominee Moore nodded Nimkoff in urging party unity during his acceptance speech. Accepting the party nomination with the words "I accept gratitude." Moore and that student government has "progressed in the last few years from an archaic type . . . that had its heads tied in knots to a point where we now have a fairly reasonable amount of peace."

He stated that if students can prove that "student government here has come of age," then it will have a better chance to get the added responsibility it needs. Emphasizing that the Student Senate has functioned well this year, he said that "we have passed over twice as much legislation this year" as in previous years.

Moore spoke particularly in support of two planks on the Student Party platform: Student control over student money and student representation on faculty committees.

"There are over 20 other planks on our platform," he said, "It is a platform on which I am proud to run. It is a platform which I want to fulfill!" The planks will be listed in the next issue of the Flambeau.

Traveling Seminars Offered Students For This Summer

A traveling seminar the summer will give students an opportunity to interview Sir Anthony Eden and Mendes-France.

Designed for editors of students newspapers, students of journalism or of radio broadcasting, the seminar will spend 53 days on a study tour of Europe.

The group will travel by air and by bus and will with limited cost meet in Europe and visits to the leading newspapers, newspaper and radio stations.

Students joining this tour will have assignments from their college paper or from some local publication. The complete cost will be $1,250 from New York to New York.

Further information is posted on the Florida Flambeau bulletin board or can be obtained by writing to the Scandinavian Traveling Seminar, 1790 Broadway, New York, 19, New York.

Mrs. Dohnanyi Speaks Today

(Continued from page 1)

to English," she smiled, "at the English Coffee Hour."

Dr. and Mrs. von Dohnanyi came to Tallahassee five years ago when her husband accepted a professorship here at the School of Music. Their son and daughter, Julius and Helen, are students at the University.

A delegation of foreign students and their faculty adviser, Mr. Sam Baptista, will be special guests of the English Department at the Coffee Hour today honoring Mrs. Dohnanyi.

Court Ruled Campbell Ineligible

(Continued from page 1)

were.

That Campbell had worked in an editorial capacity only 36 issues, totaling only one semester's work, at the time.

That his reportorial experience on the paper's music school beat did not come under the designation "editorial staff."

"Intent of Committee"

Woods attempted to have the court consider the intent of the commission as well as the technical wording.

In a speech to the Court Campbell himself listed his experience as summer news editor of the Bainbridge, Ga. school of music beat and a one-month period as assistant to the academic news editor as "more than three full semester's work."

In ruling against him, however, the court decided that mere reportorial experience should not coun as "editorial staff" experience.

By-play before the Court included the Senior Staff's policy regarding political party nominations and the qualifications of the present editor.

West Hall Pirates Capture Grid Title

West Hall's Pirates won the campus intramurel football championship Wednesday night by downing Phi Delta Theta, 12-2, in FSU's Seminole Bowl.

It is the first time an independent football squad has won the campus championship in the history of intramurals here.

Up until this year, the Phi Delta had won three straight campus championships. Last year they defeated Hall's Pi Penthouse Gang, 14-12, in the rain.

In the Wednesday night clash, the Pirates scored both their touchdowns in the first quarter. They passed for both.

The initial touchdown came

Track Finals Rescheduled For Today

Because of a conflict between football practice and track finals, the latter has been rescheduled for today at 4 p.m. The original date was Monday.

The track finals will be held on Doak Campbell.

Fraternity League qualifiers: 220-yard dash—Reynolds and Bird, Phi Delta Theta; Hall, Phi Sam; Alpha Tau Omega; Bisbee, ATO; Tulser, Sigma Nu; Hall, A.K.A.

440-yard dash — Bennett, Kappa Sig; Bisbee, ATO; Phi Delta Theta; Mickell, Phi Delt; Lampe, Sigma Nu; Parsons, SAE; Hunter, Theta Chi.

120-yard low hurdles — Cass, Phi Delta Theta; Hall, Phi Delt; Nunes, Kappa Alpha; McArd, Theta Chi; Blow, SAE; Christo, ATO.

180-yard dash—Reynolds, Phi Delt; Theta, Southern, ATO; Williamson, ATO; Mansfield, Lambda Chi Alpha; Lampe, Sig Nu; Kulser, Sig Nu; Alford, Kappa Sigma. Tie for sixth place, both qualified.

Dormitory League:

220-yard dash—Lampe, Senior Hall; Elliot, Pirates; Pabor, Penthouse; Revel, Senior Hall; Bennett, Pirates.

440-yard low hurdles; Versprille, Senior Hall; Weaver, Senior Hall; Pabor, Penthouse; Jones, Pirates; Brenlan, Off-Campus; Student Union; Walker, BSU.

180-yard dash—Weaver, Senior Hall; Elliot, Pirates; Pabor, Penthouse; Davis, Penthouse; Sparling, Pirates, Odum, Senior Hall.

440-yard dash: Conely, Pirates; Raffaia, Penthouse; Sparling, BSU; Mikell, BSU; Versprille, Senior Hall.

STUDENTS FIGHT CONVICTION OF HYDROGEN BOMB TESTS

NEW YORK—ACP—A "Students to Stop the Bomb" movement has been formed by rash students at Columbia University, the Harvard Bulletin reports.

The purpose of this group, recognized by the University Committee on Student Organizations, is to urge the cessation of atomic and hydrogen bomb tests by the United States. A spokesman of the student group said that similar groups are being formed at City College and New York University.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
Today Thru Tuesday
"JUPITER'S DARLING"
with Esther Williams, Howard Keel and Marge & Gower Champion

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today and Tomorrow
"Her Twelve Men"
with Greer Garson and Robert Ryan and Barry Sullivan plus
"The Charge at Feather River" with Guy Madison

STATE
Today Thru Tuesday
"THE FAR COUNTRY"
with James Stewart, Ruth Roman, Corinna Calvet

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today and Tomorrow
"Abott and Costello Meet Captain Kidd" with Charles Laughton plus
"Two-Fisted Stranger" with Charley Starrett

RITZ — Today & Tomorrow
TIMES GONE BY"
with Gina Lollobrigida and Vittorio de Sica

20 WALLET SIZE PHOTOS FOR ONLY
$1.00
POSTPAID
30 PHOTOS FOR ONLY $2.00
FROM ANY PHOTO OR NEGATIVE ACTUAL SIZE OF PICTURE
THE PERFECT GIFT for your classmates, friends, relatives, and Ideal for Dates. Send $1.00 with your favorite picture or negative of any size. The original will be returned in perfect condition, along with 20 top quality permanent prints on double weight paper, or 30 prints for $2.00. Minimum order 20 pictures from one pose. Satisfaction guaranteed
SEND COUPON TODAY
BILLFOLD PICTURES
Box 1071, Dept. D
Chattanooga, Tennessee
Enclosed is _____ for _____ prints.
Name _____
ADDRESS _____
CITY _____
STATE _____

BEARLESS BOSDICK by AL CAMP
FOSDICK'S ALMOST BEHIND WITH A SCORE OF 4
BUT CHIEF—I'M BEING HELD UP BY A STONE HEARTED KILLER
WHY, MEAD IS MADE OF STONE!
I'M CUTTING OUR SALARY TO 25¢ PER WEEK!!
29 CENTS? JUST ENOUGH TO PURCHASE A WILDROOT SHAVE CREAM!!
KEEPS BEARD SOFT AND NATURAL—HELPS AVOID RAZOR BURN—LEAVES FACE REFRESHINGLY COOL!
BUT, WOLF, ALWAYS CALLED ME MUSCLES!
WILDROOT CREAM-OIL, CHARLIE!!
ONLY 1¢ PER SHAVE AND CONDITIONS HAIR THE NATURAL WAY
FAT, FLAT TOPPED AND DUMPLE-TONED!

Lettermen Give Track Coach Something To Smile About

By LARRY HOUNTHA

Track coach Mike Long appears to have something to smile about this season. A glance at the track roster will show the reason why. Coach Long will have a total of ten lettermen ready for action.

The backbone of a track team is its lettermen. They are the hard core, the nucleus of the team's point scoring power. If a team has a large group of these men it's a good bet a fine season will result. The F.S.U. cinder squad has a large group of them.

Today's issue of the Flambeau will cover five of the ten track lettermen. The remaining five will be covered in the next issue.

Carlos Fraundorfer, 6'5", 165. An all around performer. A three year letterman who holds school records in both the disc and broad jump. Ruth point man in '52. 50 shot putter who was a mainstay in scoring in '55.

Verner Bonn, 5'11", 160 lb. In the first meet of this season Bonn cleared the high jump bar at 6' to set a new F.S.U. record. An early season jump of this height could be a preview of what might well turn out to be Bonn's best year.

Mike Smith, 5'11", 200. Smith, a soph letterman is a consistent point getter in the shot. His last year's best effort was only a few inches short of the school record.

Ron Weaver, 5'11", 175. Last years season saw Weaver hoist a new school record in the javelin, a record which he has already broken unofficially. With a very little improvement Weaver will be a real standout in his event.

Charley Watson, 5'9", 170. One of last years top point men. A steady performer in the high and low hurdles. Watson is also a key man on the Indian mile relay.

Look for the remaining five letterpen in the next issue of the Flambeau.

Mexico City Bound—(to r) Rafael Lecuona, Dr. Hartley Price, Don Holder, Jeck Miles and Dr. Howard Danford got together for final goodbyes yesterday morning. Holder and Miles will represent the U. S. in Mexico City's Pan American game March 21-24. Lecuona will represent Cuba.

Practice Game On Slate For Gridders Tomorrow At 3 p.m.

The FSU football team will play a vital intrasquad game tomorrow at 3 p.m. to determine who plays in the annual Garnet and Gold game March 19. Tomorrow's practice game will be played on the practice field.

Coach Bill Peterson has announced that he will be seeking the two best men at each position. He will then divide the squad up on that basis. In order to keep the Garnet-Gold affair as even as possible.

This year's Garnet-Gold clash will be a novelty in that proceeds will go toward football scholarships.

There will be no charge for students. Only the activity book must be presented.

SEQUEL TO SUCCESS STORY (OR, IT BEATS STUDYING LAW)

(ACP —The Associated Collegiate Press reported recently a letter from Sylvester Smythe Jolly Orange that Gloria Mossalino, who aided so hard for her law degree at two universities, achieved success at last. She became an understudy for Marilyn Monroe in Hollywood.

Miss Mossalino reports this item from Dorothy Kilgallen, Broadway columnist. "The girl who understudies Marilyn Monroe in Monsalino, will trek to the altar with a Venezuelan millionaire as soon as he's legally parted from his present wife. His lawyer's fee to Gloria was $7,500 in cold cash—to pay her psychiatrist."

EARLY MORNING BIRD

PITTSBURG, Kans.—ACP—Pittsburg State College will feature this spring semester a course called "Birds of Kansas."

The best ball for your game has the exclusive DURA-THIN COVER
Here's amazing new durability in a high-compression ball. The Dura-Thin* cover provides this great new Spalding DOT® with real scuff resistance . . . keeps the DOT indented and true, even on rugged high-iron shots. The new DOT has a greater compactness for truer, more uniform flight. It's actually an economical ball for you to play.
And, with all this new durability, new DOTS still offer the long, long carry every hard-hitter wants.
At school, or on your home course, make your next round a better one with this greatest of all golf balls, Spalding DURA-THIN DOTS.
SPALDING sets the pace in sports
*Trade-mark

Kenpeks Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
107 S. Monroe St. Phone 6-1607

harriett
Your Hairstylist
Coiffure Designers
212 W. College Avenue
Phone 2-5214

Carter's SPORTING GOODS
Your Friendly Sports Shop
MacGregor Baseball Gloves, Mitts, Balls and Hobby Headquarters
119 So. Adams St.
"IT PAYS TO PLAY"

On Campus with Max Shulman
(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 2

Though this column is intended solely as a vehicle for well-tempered dissertations on Philip Morris, I have learned to use this space from time to time for a short lesson in science. They are the most decent and obliging of men, the makers of Philip Morris, as one would guess from sampling the product. Only from bounteous hearts could come such a flexible cigarette—so delicious when kindled, so gratifying to the taste, so soothing to the psyche. And, as though bringing the most agreeable cigarette on the market were not enough, the lovers of Philip Morris have enclosed in their warm inner mouth Pack, an ingeniously contrived wrapping that yields a treasure without loss of time or cuticle. And, finally, the gift of cigarettes, wrapped in the purest of packages, is had in king-size or regular, as your taste dictates. Who but such a winning combination? Not I.

Some weeks ago in this column we had a brief lesson in chemistry. Today we take up another attractive science—medicine.

Medicine was invented in 1066 by a Greek named Hippocrates, who carried around him a group of devoted disciples whom he called "doctores". The reason he called them "doctors" was that they sat around a dock all day. Some fished, some just sat. On Monday-sun. In truth, there was little else for them to do because disease was not invented until 1492.

Then doctors became very busy, but, it must be reported, their knowledge of medicine was lamentably meagre. They knew only one treatment—e change of climate. For example, a Roman doctor would send all his patients to Switzerland; a Swiss doctor, on the other hand, would send all his patients to Rome. By 1789 the entire population of France was living in Switzerland, and vice versa. This later became known as the Swiss-Tom Explosion.

But until 1921 did medicine, as we know it, come into being. That year in the little Bavarian village of Papa-Dago an elderly physician named Winko Sigafoos discovered the hot water bottle. He was, of course, hurried as a witch, but his son Hans, disguised as a limelype, smuggled the hot water bottle out of the country. He called on Florence Nightingale in London but was told by her housekeeper, with some asperity, that Miss Nightingale had died in 1910. Hans muttered something and, disguised as a feather boa, made his way to America, where he founded the blood stream.

Medicine, as it is taught at your very own college, can be divided roughly into two classifications. There is internal medicine, which is the treatment of internes, and external medicine, which is the treatment of externes.

Diseases also fall into two broad categories—chronic and acute. Chronic disease, is of course, inflammation of the chron, which can be mighty painful, believe you me! Last summer my roman Haskell was stricken with a chron attack while out picking up sinfoil, and it was months before the wretched boy could straighten up. In fact, even after he was cured, Haskell continued to walk around bent over double. This went on for some years before Dr. Caligari, the loveable old country practitioner who treats Haskell, discovered that Haskell had his pants buttoned to his vest.

Two years ago Haskell had Addison's disease. (Addison, curiously enough, had Haskell's.) Poor Haskell catches everything that comes along. Lovable old Dr. Caligari once said to him, "Son, I guess you are what they call a natural born catcher."

"The joke is on you, Doc," replied Haskell, "I am a third baseman." He thereupon fell into such a fit of giggling that the doctor had to put him under sedation, where he is to this day.

But I digress. We were discussing medicine. I have now told you all I can; the rest is up to you. Go over to your medical school and poke around. Bring popcorn and watch an operation. Fiddle with the X-ray machines. Contribute to the bone hamper.

And, remember, medicine can be fun!

©Max Shulman, 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, who bring you this column, have never heard their forceful tobaccos to bring you the most pleasurable smoke obtainable.

Alpha Gams, Sigma Chi, Lead Greek Grade Average

Theta's, PiKPhi's Come In Second

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority 1.7197, women—1.5122 and an overall Sigma Chi fraternity achieved 1.4727. Junior Class men — the highest grade average last semester. 1.4313. women—1.2532 and an over-

In posting the highest fraternity average, Sigma Chi continues its virtual domination in recent years of men's scholastic leadership. Alpha Gamma Delta climbed to the number one sorority spot from its runner-up position last semester. Delta Zeta, last semester's seventy leader, dropped to number nine.

Top Three

Top three sorority grades were, Alpha Gamma Delta, 1.8677; Kappa Alpha Theta, 1.7953; and Zeta Tau Alpha, 1.7945. The third place holder, Zeta Tau Alpha, was voted the best chapter in the United States and Canada last spring semester. Its average of 1.7920 put it in fourth place at Florida State University. The Alpha Gam pledges were also top

Three highest fraternity grades last semester were Sigma Chi's 1.4727; Pi Kappa Phi's 1.3529 and Sigma Nu's 1.2569. No dormitory grades were announced, although close latinas were as follows:

Freshmen Class, men—.8502, women—1.2543 and an overall was 1.1492, Junior Class men, 1.6644; Sophomore Class, men — 1.2806 and women, 1.3682.

Sorority grades beamung with fourth place are, Chi Omega, 1.7580; Kappa Delta, 1.6972; Alpha Chi Omega, 1.6625; Delta Gamma, 1.6621 and Delta Delta Delta, 1.6468.

Also Delta Zeta, 1.6458; Pi Beta Phi, 1.6385; Alpha Omicron Pi, 1.5972; Alpha Xi Delta, 1.5570; Sigma Kappa, 1.4452; Alpha Delta Pi, 1.4413; Phi Mu, 1.3632, and Gamma Phi Beta, 1.3645.

Beamung with fourth place, fraternity grades were posted as follows: Alpha Epsilon, 1.2066; Alpha Tau Omega, 1.1947; Delta Tau Delta, 1.1915; Kappa Alpha, 1.1733 and Lambda Chi Alpha, 1.1745.

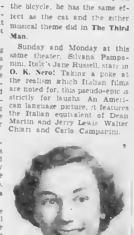
Also Theta Chi, 1.1440. Phi Delta Theta, 1.1340. Kappa Sigma, 1.1046, Pi Kappa Alpha, 1.0839. Phi Kappa Tau, 0.9343. Tau Epsilon Phi, 0.8353 and Sigma Phi Epsilon, 0.8208.

Overall student body average

It's Not The Size That Counts . . . Diminutive "Johnny," of Phillip Morris fame, sits among Pi Beta Phi sorority members while at FSU during tour Tuesday. In foreground are company representatives J. B. LaBarre and T. P. Smith.

Local Movies Offer Historical 'Spectacle,' Painted Elephants

By TANN HAMMOND



M-G-M gives its "answer" to history's question of why Hannibal did not conquer Rome According to them all the credit goes to Esther William and a lot of elephants.

Jupiter's Darlina, playing through Tuesday at the Florida Theatre, is a spectacle in every sense of the word. Cellini Cecil picture "The Giant of Spectacles" is the only way they could ever explain the painted elephants, the underwater living statues and the out-of-nowhere dances of Marge and Gower Champion.

Howard Keel, masking as Hannibal, uses part of the movie's 96 minutes to state. This should make Howard Keel fans very happy. And should anyone have an elephant fixation, they too, will be happy seeing Jupiter's Darlina.

The Far Country, at the State Theatre through Tuesday, is all about cattle in Alaska With the quite capable acting of James Stewart and the torrid expressions of Corinne Calvet and Ruth Roman, viewing The Far Country is a wa- to spend an evening of escape Running true to the code of the West and the Hays Office, virtue triumphs over evil and everyone is happy All the bad men are dead That's one way to handle a plot that gets out of hand.

A bright spot in the gloom of elephants and stunted shooting duns is Carol Reed's The Man In Between, starring James Mason

To Lead FBLA Convention Here—Nona Kessenig Meadows, State President of the Future Business Leaders of America, will lead the conference of more than 200 high school students and sponsors meeting on the FSU campus this weekend Registration begins today at noon in the trophy room of the Student Center. At 2 p.m. an Oral Roberts Contest will be held in the Geology Building auditorium, to be judged by members of the Speech Department.

cremeister. Five Fingers and A Star Is Born" Claire Bloom (Terry Is Limelight- and Hildegarde Neff.

Filmed in postwar Berlin, this picture has the same bitter suspense that made The Third Man great. The Ritz Theatre shows this thriller on Monday and Tuesday. Watch for the boy on the bicycle, he has the same effect as the cat and the zither musical theme did in The Third Man.

Sunday and Monday at this same theater, Silvana Pampanini, Italy's Jane Russell, stars in O. K. Nero! Taking a page from the realism which Italian films are noted for, this pseudo-epic is strictly for laughs An American-Italian language picture, it features the Italian equivalent of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis Walter Chiari and Carlo Campanini.

Howard Keel, masking as Hannibal, uses part of the movie's 96 minutes to state. This should make Howard Keel fans very happy. And should anyone have an elephant fixation, they too, will be happy seeing Jupiter's Darlina.

Noted Organist Gives Recital Tomorrow Night

Claire Coci, official organist of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, will give a recital in Opperman Music Hall tomorrow, at 8:15 p.m.

Among her selections will be a Bach concerto and Bach chorales. She will also play Brahams chorales and preludes as well as Francks 'Chorale in B Minor,' Duare's 'Fileuse,' and Dohnenyi's 'Pasean'

Miss Coci has received wide acclaim throughout the country. Credited with "technical prowess, color, and expressive personalness" in New York, her performances have also been called "unforgettable" breathtaking," and "exciting" by critics.

Sponsored by the Tallahassee American Guild of Organists, tickets are $2 general admission, students and $1 for other people They may be obtained at the Music School Office or at Gridley's or Jenkins Music Stores.

Job Opportunities

(Note: Students interested in any of the following announcements should contact the office of Veterans Guidance and Placement, 203 Mathes.)

Monday March 14
Miles Laboratories
Interviews in the morning for Bachelor's degree in Chemistry, Bio-Mathematics, Physics, Engineering, Business Administration, Liberal Arts. Floyd D. Gaines.

Wanted: Men interested in selling for summer employment or permanent employment.

Tuesday March 15
and Wednesday March 16
Southern Bell Telephone
Interviews in the morning for Bachelor's degree in Mathematics, Engineering, Business Administration, Liberal Arts. Floyd D. Gaines.

Wednesday March 16
Rohr Aircraft Corporation
Interviews in the morning for Bachelor's degree in Engineering. Floyd D. Gaines.

Thursday March 17
Rohr Aircraft Corporation
Interviews in the morning for Bachelor's degree in Engineering. Floyd D. Gaines.

Monday March 21
Ribis Manufacturing Co.
Interviews in the morning for Bachelor's degree in Engineering. Mr. Sweeney.

Scholarship
Florida Chapter of Women's in Special Education
Deadline March 15
Dorothy Bullock, New York
Assistant Paul Jenkins, boom and room

Church News

EPISCOPAL STUDENT CENTER

The Episcopal Student Center has announced a meeting Sunday, March 13, at 4:30 p.m. to elect new officers for the current year.

PRESBYTERIAN

At 12 noon today, 30 students from the Westminster House will depart for an All-State Student Conference at Weekiwachee Springs. The students, accompanied by Miss Miriam Wilson, will feature speakers as Elizabelle Rodger, former student body president at FSU and present director of religious affairs at Georgia State College for Women, who will lead the Bible Study.

Rev. Calvin Leonard of Miami University will be one of the discussion leaders, Rev Neely Mac Corter, Student Worker at University of Florida, and Rev. William Cross from the Belzoni Church will also speak. Rev. Cross a missionary, will return to FSU with the students Sunday evening and will proceed to visit various student groups on campus.

The new elected officers of Westminster House are Graham Caldwell, president; Stella McGarry, vice-president, and Diane Lachmer, secretary-treasurer Betty Jones, former president, will replace Miss Wilson as student worker for six months while she is touring.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Forty-seven members from Wesley Foundation will leave today at noon to attend the Methodist Student Movement Conference at Lewisburg Man on the Run" will be the theme of the conference. The students, accompanied by Dr. Sam Nevi, will return late Sunday evening.

Following the Sunday supper, March 11 at 5:15 Dr Hester will lead a discussion titled "Before You Wed" the second in a series. It will be followed by Dr. Jasine Sunday with a discussion on "Three is Make a Marriage a Success."

FLORIDA HALL HAS FANTASY BALL

"Neptune's Gardens," is the theme of Florida Hall's Fantasy Ball to be held tonight from 8-12 Social Chairman Jane Watson reported that the dance will be from 8-12, with music furnished by The Rivera. Alan Bryan is chairman of decorations.

ZTA Initiates 21; Name McDonald Outstanding Pledge

Zeta Tau Alpha has recently initiated Selby Allen, Patsy Boulware, Mary Fern Carlton, Frandy Duran, Chris Ginocchio, Barbara Harless, Joan Harmon, Jo Jones, Joan Jones, Ann K-lly, Lala Mc Donald, Mary Margaret Meadows, Mary Reed, Sue Purvis, LaQuita Renfore, Rosemary Rhyne, Ruth Shuman, Ethel Steadman, Kitty Wade, Ann Williams, and Mary Margaret Williams.

Lala McDonald was chosen by the chapter as the Most Outstanding Pledge, and Mary Margaret Williams received the Scholarship Award for having maintained the highest grade average during the semester. A banquet in honor of the initiates was held at the Tallahassee Dining Room.

New pledges for the Spring Semester are Mary Ann O'Neil and Sara Umsted.

Beauty Contest Opens April 30; Picks Talented New Miss Tallahassee

The "Miss Tallahassee" contest open to FSU coeds, will be held April 30, according to Junior Chamber of Commerce spokesmen.

Applicants must be from 18-25 years old, and may not have been married or had a marriage annulled. They must be Tallahassee residents or FSU students.

The Jaycees said that contestants must display talents such as singing or dancing in the local contest. They commented that "many" prizes will be awarded, possibly including a scholarship for the local winner, who will then go on to the state contest as Tallahassee's representative.

Information and application procedure is forthcoming.

Blood Bank 'Completely' Empty But FSU Has 64 Pint Credit

The Blood Bank in Tallahassee, including its FSU student account, is completely empty, Miss Mary Alice Ries, director, said yesterday.

The student account is still credited with 64 pints, but due to several town cases requiring a large amount of blood every day, the bank has been completely depleted.

Miss Ries, who has been calling all the major cities of Florida in an appeal for more blood, said this was the first time she had been in "such a position . . . I just can't get blood. If it hadn't been for you students out at FSU I don't know what I would have done I sort of depend on you students to help me out in an emergency such as this."

Drive Extended

The drive on campus was scheduled to end Monday. However, co-chairman Margaret Neller and Graham Carothers are extending it a week in an attempt to reach the goal of 120 pints.

So far, only 64 pints have been donated, with Kappa Sigma fraternity in the lead with 22 pints. West Hall has second place with 12 donated 12 pints, followed by Phi Kappa Tau with 12 pints. Sigma Chi with seven, Sigma Alpha Epsilon with one, Alpha Phi Omega with one, and right other Independents. Although we have not reached our goal, I am very pleased with the

4 THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU
Friday, March 11, 1955

results as they are coming along." Miss Neller said

Mobile Unit Impossible

An attempt was made to get the Blood Bank to the campus in order to make it more convenient to donate. In view of the present crisis, however, Miss Ries said this would "just be impossible."

A special car leaves the Infirmary every Friday between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. to take students to the Blood Bank to donate. Students will be excused from classes that they might miss while donating.

Students wishing to donate must first get a blood test at the Infirmary any day that week between 9 a.m. and noon Dr Ritzmann suggested that people enrolled in at the beginning of the week to avoid a crowd on Thursday. Anyone under 21 and on DOT is required to bring written permission from his parents.

Miss Neller said that she "would like to extend her thanks to Graham Carothers, Mary Ann Davis, Dr Hathaway, John Cooper and Vernon Williams for their help and co-operation in the drive so far "I'm sure there are many more students out there, but I have not heard their names mentioned." she added

Summer Jobs Now On File In Westcott

The Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement has files of summer jobs for interested students, director Carter E. Tully said this week.

Emphasizing that Florida State University students who plan to work during the summer should start lining up jobs now, Tully stated that his office can help students get names and addresses of prospective employers.

"Students should go to work on this certainly before April 1," Tully said. "Camps and resorts make their selections early in May."

Camp Informations

Besides information on camp and resort jobs, the Placement Office has addresses of hotels, ranches, businesses, industries, restaurants, transportation companies, hotels, state parks, motels and national parks which offer jobs to students.

"Student initiative," declared Tully, "is the factor that pays off in getting this work" He urged students to come to the Placement Office to get applications for summer work for the coming listed.

Tully made a distinction between jobs in nearby locations and those found further north. He said that he northern Jobs furnished good experience in working with people and other benefits, but required more transportation expense.

Nearby Jobs

The nearby jobs place a greater emphasis on high salaries and greater savings, he said, also furnishing opportunities to meet people

The Placement Office has technical jobs available also, which are students direct contact with their fields of interest. These furnish better chance of placement after graduation," according to Counsel or Frank Baker.

Baker said that the Placement Office keeps a file on technical jobs and student-aid training.

ART INTEREST CLUB FORMED

An Art Interest Club has been formed on campus.

The club is sponsored by the Art Education Department.

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER and ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. ST.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

TIS TO MALONE'S BOOK STORE
Ye Should Be Goin' for Everyday Supplies and Sundries Stationary, Greeting Cards, Books
107 S. COPELAND

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)

DINE AT THE WONDERFUL Quaker House
DINNERS - LUNCHEONS - FAST ORDERS
at the COUNTER, on the CURB, or at your Door
Your Favorite Splits . Sodas . Sandwiches . or Sundaes Made As YOU Like Them
PHONE 2-8677 NO BEER SERVED
OPEN 6 A.M. TO MIDNIGHT
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
LOCATED ON W. TENN.

THE SEMINOLE CLUB PRESENTS
Dinner By Candlelight for Your Enjoyment Tonight
FACULTY, STAFF, and GRADUATE STUDENTS also INVITED
ENJOY SUNDAY DINNER for only 75c

COLLEGE TO COLLEGE, COAST TO COAST—
WINSTON is really going to town!
FINER FILTER!
FINER FLAVOR!
KING-SIZE, TOO!
Winston
FILTER-CIGARETTES
WINSTON tastes good—like a cigarette should!
■ No wonder so many college men and women are getting together on Winston! It's the filter cigarette with real flavor—full, rich, tobacco flavor! And Winston also brings you a finer filter. It works so effectively, yet doesn't "thin" the taste. Winstons are easy-drawing, too—there's no effort to puff!
Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!

CRUCIBLE SHOW Ends
Tonight; Review—P. 2

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

Vol. XL, NO. 36

PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA

TUESDAY, MARCH 13, 1956

...andidate Must ...ile Declaration ...efore 5 Today

...Gaster, Moore ...File For Prexy; ...State Unfilled

...the last day for Dec... of Candidacy in the ... Body Elections.

...ersity Committee member ... Wilson said the deadline ...n set for 5 p.m. Declara... are available at the ... office in Lonmire. ... They are to be filed ...

...idates who do not file ... today will be ineligi... for office said Wil... the Elections Com... ...nvalidated before deadli... the declarations will ...nd an acceptable ex... ...failed.

...dates who had filed dec... as of yesterday morn... Gordon Gaster (State ... Moore (State); pres... the Student Body: Jo... (State; men's vice-... Javieen Robertson ... Johnson, The Florida ... Editor; Ina Jean ... Student Secretary; ... Carmine Haniere) ... and Pat Hilton, ...ecretary of Senate; ... Redfern, Traffic Court ... Mary Elizabeth Sch... Business Manager; ... Winters (State) chair... the University Recreat... Association.

...s expected to run, are ...more (State) student body ...dent; Thomas Lewis ... Honor Court Chief ... Barbara Graham ... Honor Court Chief Jus... Butch Pugh (Student); Hon... Clerk.

...Hans Tews (Student); ... vice president; Nancy ... (Student); women's ...dent; Jimmy Jones ... student body vice ...

...Don Heidel (State); ... Rehals Editor, Tom Wil... Smoke Signals Business ...ger; Jim Brodrick ... Tally-Ho Editor; Rick ... Student; Tally-Ho Busi... Manager; and Herb Rine, ...Sandspur Chairman.

...Chairmember Wilson ... in case there are no ...ions for an office, it will ...e presidential appointee ... write-in votes.

...ominations for the offices ... in March 22 at 5 p.m. ...xpense estimates must be ... before that time. Election ... and copies of the Elections ... are available at the Lonmire Building director's office.

...AN STUDENTS TO HOLD ...PORTE BALL DANCE

The Day Students will spon... a "Tropical Island" dance ...ch night, March 18, in Leto... Auditorium. Palm trees and ...ndlelight will be/ background the ...e of the dance.

...Students will enjoy the music ... Kerry Kohler's trio from 8:30 ...m to 11:30 p.m. Refreshments ...ll be served at the semi-for... dance which is free to all ...ay students.

Senior Committee To Make Final Gift Selection

A committee to choose between ...ssociation of herbs and south ...ers to Westcott Building or ...ntainment of a scholarship ...as the Senior Class gift for ...s was appointed by class ...sident Harry Massey last week ...bers of the committee are ...Brooks, chairman, Betty Jo ... Jerry Jones, Joanne ... Phoebe Jackson, Pete Hum... Betty Ann Munroe and Mike ...

Deadlines for ordering Senior ...s Announcements is April 12. ...s can be purchased at the ...y Bookstore for 60, 30 or 15 ...nts each. Deadline for or... caps and gowns is the same ... and a deposit of ten dollars ...quired of which seven will ...e refunded.

...Arrangements may be made at ...e bookstore.

BRUBECK TICKETS NOW ON SALE

Mrs. Katherine Vernon, Artist Series Secretary, announced yesterday that students may obtain tickets for the Dave Brubeck concert this week. Tickets will cost $.75 per student and may be called for at the Westcott booth during the hours of 8-4:30 p.m.

Tickets will go on sale to faculty and staff members next week, but although tickets are sold exclusively to students this week, they may purchase tickets as long as they last, said Mrs. Vernon.

Thomas Wright, standing; Robert Glotzback, foreground, and David Ward-Steinman will perform in "Gershwin Festival."

Gershwin Festival Tomorrow Features Wright As Soloist

Westcott Show Open To Public; Starts At 8:15

Tomorrow at 8:15 p.m., the second All-Gershwin festival will be presented in Westcott Auditorium, featuring Thomas Wright as piano soloist.

The first Gershwin Festival was presented four years ago by Wright and other faculty members at FSU. The program was such an outstanding success that this repeat performance has been planned.

The concert, which is free and open to the public, will include all of the major piano works of the late George Gershwin, whose music critics consider as part of modern America.

Students Assist

Mr. Wright will be assisted on the program by two faculty members, Robert Glotzbach, pianist, and J. Dayton Smith, tenor; two students, David Ward-Steinman, pianist, Martha Snavden, soprano, and Miss Violet Madeira Ganuit, who has earned two degrees at FSU.

The program will open with Mr. Wright's performance of "Three Preludes for Piano", followed by "An American in Paris."

The next group, which will be performed by Mr. Ganuit, will consist of the "Concerto in F" and "Second Rhapsody." This solo part will be played by Mr. Wright, with Glotzbach and Ward-Steinman playing the orchestra part at the second and third pianos.

Porgy And Bess

The third group will feature J. Dayton Smith and Miss Snavden in vocal selections from "Porgy and Bess", with Mr. Wright performing the piano accompaniment. The two will sing "Summertime," "My Man's Gone Now," "I Got Plenty o' Nuthin'," "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "Bess, You Is My Woman Now."

In conclusion, Mr. Wright will perform "Variations on I Got Rhythm" and a group entitled "Blue" with Miss Mandese playing the second piano.

Thomas Wright has appeared on many national television and radio programs. He has done much work for the movies and has been featured with leading pops concerts all over the country. Recently he played with Tommy Dorsey's Symphony orchestra, performing the "Rhapsody in Blue" nightly.

Wright says he has been interested in Gershwin's music since he heard him in a personal appearance concert in Indianapolis when Wright was a youth. He knows to many as a specialist in the interpretation of Gershwin's music.

Senators Could Have Answer To Representation Amendment

Senate may have at last come up with an answer to the question of how to change the system of representation.

Members of a committee whose committee proposal was rejected last week said that at tomorrow's meeting an amendment will be offered which they expect will delay all objections by leaving them to be ironed out by statute.

The amendment will provide stamps for representation from dormitories, classes, fraternities, sororities and day students. It bypasses the Senate and is approved by the voters during Spring elections it would then be up to Senate alone to determine how many seats would be allotted and the manner of their election.

J. Moore Questions

Their action answers a demand made by Senator Jim Moore that Senate's constitutional amendment should only change the system and not set it up.

The Honor System amendment before the group for two weeks will be up for a vote. Indications are that the Senate will move to strike from the measure a provision requiring an honor pledge on all written work.

Senator Jimmy Soles' bill to require the placement of ballot boxes in all dormitories having more than 100 students will come up for its second vote.

Bill Re-Introduced

The first time through, widespread opposition caused Soles to withdraw his bill, but at last week's meeting he re-introduced it.

Two appointments tendered the Senate last week by President Peter Nimkoff may be rejected on by the Elections and Appointments Committee and voted on by the entire group. They are the appointment of Joan Mikesell replacing Don Wells as Senior Women's Senator, and the choice of Lon Hatton to replace George C. Martin as senior member of the Honor Court.

Signals Offers Prize For Short Story Writing

The winner of this year's Smoke Signals short story contest will receive a ten dollar prize, the magazine staff yesterday.

The magazine also announced the extension of the Smoke Signals Queen Contest to March 24.

The winning manuscript, any two typewritten pages, will be printed in the magazine. Entries should not exceed 1,500 words, but a very limited rearding choice of subject matter, editors said. Entries should be typewritten on white paper and should be placed in an envelope with the name and address of the contestant. The deadline is Friday, April 13.

Manuscripts may be delivered to the Smoke Signals office, 209 Monroe Building, mailed to box 783, Campus Mail, or brought to 305 West Hall.

This summer's Queen Contest is open to any FSU coed. Entrants are asked to submit either an 8 by 10 inch glossy photo or a suitable snapshot in heels and shorts.

The winners and a court of four will be chosen and featured in the May edition of Smoke Signals.

Photos should be left, as soon as possible at the magazine's office or with Pete Hilton, contest director for student organizations, in Longmire.

Florida Governor Initiated Into 'ODK' Honorary

Governor LeRoy Collins was initiated yesterday into the Florida State University chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's leadership and scholastic honorary.

Collins was cited by Student Body President Peter Nimkoff for his "outstanding endeavor in a career as an outstanding law student and attorney and in legislative research and debate.

"For Collins' service to society as reflected in your repeated election to the Legislature and distinction as its most valuable member and your untiring work within your own community.

"For your character shown in dedication to a religious faith and a perpetuation through your own church and many benevolent organizations.

Leadership, Dedication

"For your leadership and dedication to the democratic ideals reflected in your career which presently is culminated by your election to the highest office of responsibility in our state."

Also participating in the ceremony were Dr. Doak Campbell, University Chaplain, Dr. William J. Tait, ODK president Jack Hoover and members of the group. The initiation was held on the steps of Westcott Building.

Plan Outlined For Changing School Funds

A change in state handling of school funds to allow for additional instructors was outlined by Dr. Leonard Culpepper, university secretary of the Board of Control, Sunday.

Speaking before the three Florida chapters of the American Association of University Professors, Culpepper said that legislation has been proposed whereby universities could use money received from additional students who were not accounted for when the budgets were arranged.

A similar view was expounded by Ed Henderson, executive secretary of the AAUP. The state of Florida is arrowing for money to finance adequately both public schools and higher education, he declared.

Attending the meeting were delegations from Florida State University, Florida A & M and the University of Florida.

Mark Lectures On 'Polymers' Here, Friday

Dr Herman F. Mark, Professor of Chemistry and Director of Polymer Research Institute at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn will speak on polymers before the American Chemical society Friday. The lecture will be held in room 306 Science at 4 p.m.

Dr. Mark was born in Austria and held numerous positions of responsibility in pre-War Europe. He was appointed Director of the First Chemical Institute at the University of Vienna in 1932. In 1938 he came to China and joined the staff at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute in 1940. He has also published over 500 scientific papers and many books.

Polymers are of considerable interest, not only as the source of rubber or synthetic plastics, but also in the development of surface active agents, protective coatings and fibers, said spokesmen. Dr. Mark will discuss the way in which they are synthesized and used for these purposes as well as the differences in various polymers.

All interested students are invited to attend the lecture and a reception sponsored by the Student Affiliates, following his talk.

Frosh Carnival Called Success; Gladding, Noot, Are Crowned

"The Carnival was an over-all success," reported Joan Hemmann, General Chairman of the Freshman Carnival, "although attendance was lower than expected."

The committee members felt that the carnival suffered from a "lack of sufficient publicity," she said.

John Blackburn, staff advisor on the carnival committee, revealed that $238 was made. This sum will be used by the class their senior year toward the senior class gift.

During dance intermission ceremonies, Sally Gladding, Jacksonville, and Ken Noot, Phi Delta Theta, were crowned Freshman Queen and King. Music for the dance was furnished by the Universals.

Trophies were awarded to Sigma Alpha Epsilon for the best decorated booth and to Kappa Alpha Theta for the best decorated cake. The winning cake was donated by Gainesville's merry-go-round.

Comments on the carnival, Joan Hemmann said that she wished to thank the sharpeons, Gainesville wind students, who gave generously of "their time and effort, to make the carnival a success."

A less-pleasant note to the carnival was the theft of some of the women contestants' pictures. The theft took place between 10:30 and 11 p.m. Saturday night. Two pictures were removed from university students, who had taken them, but four pictures are still missing.

They belong to Myra Ann Lay, Sa'Zete Stokes, Patty Marley and Ann Farquharson. Betty Paulick, chairman of the king and queen election committee, pleads for their return, saying that "the girls' parents are heartbroken" as the pictures belonged to them.

Station WFSU To Broadcast Debate Sketch

A capsule sketch of the Sixth Annual Florida State University Invitational Debate Tournament will be broadcast by WFSU-FM at 7:30 p.m. each night this week.

Tonight's feature is the "one man debate" between Dan Levin of the University of Pittsburgh and LeRoy Howe of the University of Miami on the subject, Resolved, that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the communist government of China.

Tomorrow night's program will feature the finals of original oratory. Thursday features a second debate, this one between Beverly Ducornuet of FSU and George Von Hilsheimer of the University of Miami.

Friday evening closes the series with the finals of impromptu speaking and the presentation of awards at the closing tournament luncheon.

Blood Bank Will Be Closed Next Friday For Donors

No blood donors can be accepted Friday, blood drive officials said yesterday.

The bank will be closed as Miss Mary Ann Mobley, Miss America, be out of town.

Margaret Weller, co-chairman of the recently-ended campus blood drive, said that no more effort to solicit donors will be provided, but if students still wish to donate they may. Necessary arrangements for transportation may be made by calling her at 224-9111, she said.

Students under 21 and not in ROTC must have their parents' permission to donate blood. Students must have their blood tested during the previous week.

"WEAR GREEN" PARTY SLATED

The FSU State Scholarship Club will sponsor a "Wearing of the Green" party tomorrow night, March 16, from 7:30 until 9:30 p. m. in the Lemaire Club room. There will be an informal program, entertainment and refreshments. Since this is the eve of St. Patrick's Day everyone is asked to join in the spirit and wear green!

Oh What You Did!—President Candidates' Records And Political Goals Are Compared

Men's Veep States Aims For Top Post

By MARTIN DUCKMAN

Gordon Gaster, who, as men's vice-president in the Student Senate has fought hard on many issues, indicates that he'll carry some of these issues into the Student Body Presidency, if elected.

Gaster said yesterday that any person whom he recommended to the Senate for confirmation to an office would have to be "willing to follow certain suggestions such as allowing organizations to keep 100 percent of their profit." He also said he would work for placement of ballot boxes in dormitories.

Gaster was "directly responsible" for the attempt to allow any organization that carried out a funds raising project to keep 100 percent of their profits. His floor fight for the measure succeeded in raising the percentage from 30 to 50.

"In the near our university student employees were paid more according to their ability and experience through a graduated wage scale," he said, "even to the point of raising the minimum wage to compensate those individuals who are more deserving of a wage increase."

Gaster Favors Wage Reforms

Gaster indicated that he would work for the wage reforms through the secretary of labor and the student senate.

It's a little known fact that the Student Body President has the power to veto Senate legislation, as neither president in the last two years has used it.

Gaste rindicated that he would use the veto power if he felt the interests of the students demanded it.

What's the major issue of his campaign? As Gaster puts it, "It's time people started considering the records and accomplishments of an individual rather than the political appeal."

Gaster said that more student-administration-civic official cooperation is called for, and agrees that a student government charter would be a good thing. He pointed out, however, that there must be more "ass" in the Senate before it can be chartered, and said he would work to have a "graduate student" representative, "if the graduate students want one."

Also Senate Record

The major issues of his senate service, as outlined by Gaster, are:

Coed visitation in the student union and student responsibility for the attempt to allow any organization raising funds to keep all of the money; introduction of the resolution asking instructors be given time to release grades ahead of the registrar's office initiation of Senate action on the accident insurance.

Opposition to the hiring of outside caterers to replace student dents in the dining halls sponsorship of the bill which would be provided for special elections to fill vacant senate seats and control of executive appointment, the "only vote" against the present system of traffic violations, and "direct responsibility" for the reduction of the maximum parking fine from the original five dollars to the present three.

He began in FSU politics as governor of the fourth floor of Florida Hall, then a men's dormitory called Freshman Hall. He rose to dormitory governor, then won the Student Party nomination and the election for sophomore senator, helped last year to organize the State Party and was elected to the men's vice-presidency.

Coyle Moore Sees Strong Government

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Coyle Moore, Student Party candidate for President of the Student Body, said Saturday his main objective once in office is strengthening the student government power.

The major fault with student government now Moore stated, "is that it doesn't have enough power to get things done for the students." He said there is a very good chance that next year its scope and power can be expanded.

One of the Student Party platform planks Moore plans to support is that this line clash with elimination of veto power by the faculty committee on student affairs over student government measures, and the setting up of a charter from the state legislature for the student government.

Was Senator

A brief glance at Moore's record shows that he was a student senator during his Freshman and Sophomore years and is currently vice-president of the student body. In addition he is a member of Gold Key, Methodist Student House ROTC and many other organizations.

A pre-law student majoring in accounting, Moore has completed a 2.8 grade point average during three years at Florida State University. Last year he was selected as Florida's Most Outstanding College Student by Associated Indiana College of Florida.

Moore was the author of a bill this semester which called for raising the students approximately $40,000 each year in additional funds for use by student activities.

UF, FSU Athletics

An interest in athletic competition between Florida's two state universities prompted the Student Body President candidate to make a survey last year of all states in which state institutions compete. Moore's survey showed that all such games are wholesome, built up school spirit and were rewarded as surest-of-all events. In a Senate resolution to the Board of Control asking that athletic competition be instituted between Florida State University and the University of Florida.

When the administration adopted a policy of substituting quality points for "P" grades at the beginning of this year, Moore introduced a bill in Senate to reverse the policy because of his view that "it isn't fair for people to get through school on a course in which a student makes a good effort because he fails in another." The policy is now that requested by the resolution.

Student Union Plank

Planks in the Student Party platform considered "equally important to those previously mention are a minimum wage of $1.25 per hour for students employed by the university; placement of students on faculty committees; particularly the work of curriculum committee which determines General Education requirements and the calendar; calendar committee which schedules events; and revision of dormitory rents according to facilities so that students in older dormitories will pay less. The rest of the party plans Moore is pledged to support are listed elsewhere in this issue.

Moore said he would begin "immediately after election" to fulfill the planks while still chairman of the Senate.

Once in office, he declared, "I'll even go into Senate if necessary to request that the planks be carried out."

Zerbe Given Permanent Post With FSU's Art Department

Students and Expressor of Impressions —Karl Zerbe is shown above holding 2,000 year old Roman glass, which inspired his painting "Roman Glass" In background are Yvonne Streetman and Franklin Adams.

Karl Zerbe has accepted a permanent position as professor of art at Florida State University.

Zerbe, who has been at FSU this year as a visiting professor, has been head of the Department of Painting at the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts. He resigned that position to accept the permanent position here.

Zerbe is best known for his encaustic painting. He has been working in gouache (opaque watercolor, since he has been in Florida.

Zerbe gives his desire for a change and his liking for the Florida climate and landscape as the reasons for the move to Florida.

He says he finds the students here just as talented as those who he has taught elsewhere. He has also 40 advanced arts students in his classes now.

Enlightenment

"Sincerity is the cheapest of political virtues," quoth Student Body President Pete Nimkoff, keynoting the recent Student Party convention.

He considers The Florida Flambeau guilty of trying to start a Greek-Independent war. "The Flambeau has thrown the Greeks and Independents into the political arena, hoping they may fight," he charged.

Yet President Nimkoff made no charges of biased news coverage or unfair editorial mention, but singled out the columnists exclusively as guilty of "fabricating breaches" that do not exist, but if they do, according to our executive, the columnists don't do anything to eliminate it—they widen it.

It may come as news to Mr. Nimkoff, but these columnists' opinions don't necessarily represent the paper's viewpoint in any way.

In analyzing the campus political situation, however, the columnists are bound to antagonize certain people, as they themselves don't always agree. It seems that they have antagonized Mr. Nimkoff.

For his enlightenment, therefore, may we point out that the columnists have not tried to precipitate a Greek-Independent war. What they have done is to bring to light a manifestly unfair situation: Independents don't have as much chance to be elected to campus offices as Greeks do, all qualifications aside. This is due not to any vote-fraud or foul politics on the part of the Greeks; they're just well-organized and they all vote because of that tight-knit organization.

The Independents, on the other hand, are not united in any way, except among the few who are politically-minded and who try to get elected. Notably unsuccessful in past years, this faction is having better luck now. Perhaps they have become more competent—perhaps there are just more Independents who possess an interest in politics and citizenship.

The columnists have done nothing to violate Mr. Nimkoff's canons of journalism and service to the campus. They have merely discussed the political situation.

It would seem, therefore, that certain people don't want the political situation to be discussed at all, unless such discussion strikes out a controversy. If this newspaper were to refuse to accept controversial columns it could perform no greater disservice to the students.

It is important to remember that student government does not exist for the enjoyment and training of those who hold office but rather for the benefit of the student body. There is about as much justification in Nimkoff's accusations as there would be should the president criticize the American press for trying to get more people to vote.

The president also regards letters-to-the-editor as "ineffectual." He doesn't seem to like the editor's notes which are sometimes run after letters which either through their worth or ignorance demand further comment.

We might point out to the president that no letter is ineffectual if what is said makes sense. Letters to the editor are always well read.

Dear Dairy

Not One That Writes About Himself

By CON HORN

(Note to readers, if any: Please observe that I am not one of these nuts that writes about himself. Actually I am a great guy. I write about the boy next door, to coin a popular phrase. He is a poor nut. But, "full many a flower is born to blush unseen," and other suitable quotes. We must realize his function P.S. If you want to know, I STEAL the diary!)

Friday, March 11.

Dear diary. Well here I am writing a diary of all things and who would of thought that old George Horn would be doing a fruity thing like that for erring out loud. Well, actually I am not so redhot on the idea my self but my roomate who is a smart guy he says that I should in case I set famous and then people they will be interested in it. The dairy. The diary, that is. I mean, you, dairy. Also we decide that in as much as I work he uses good huh? that I am bound to flunk every thing anyways best I distist wast all my time and with this diary like is a good way, very intelegent, and worthy about me a lot about how I wast a lot of time not doing any thing but I figure since I am not doing so redhot it is not wasting it be in I help him out studdying by the staring of records which they are a great aid to studdying only he says he does not like it too much my pajama and my studying but I think just the same it is a good idea and I have got a fine restful stuff like Be Bop Wino and Hearts of Stone which is a good thing and I have got the way and others and he don't say anything about it so I guess actualy he don't hardly say nothing any more this I learned today in a double quick time how to use it but I figure that is be cause he is a smart guy and educated so much of the time thinking about stuff. He is a smart guy.

Saturday, March 12.

Dear dairy. How are you? I like you fine. Today was nice out sun shine and every thing. Well nothing much at home on sunday. It is very quite and my roomate he is messing around piano and he is much of the time not so redhot and getting redhaded now. Here is the say now and I hope it does'nt wake up my roomate as he is asleep only we will play real low. This guy is a real "cat" and has lots of "cool" records he says. I can not tell right now but I think he is drunk which my roomate is not like it if he wakes up I hope not. Love, George other day when I sat him why he does it come down to spend Easter with me he say I am not exackly redhot on that idea and I all most laughed my head off. He kills me. He is redhot, boy.

Sunday, March 13.

Dear dairy. Well I was fully mesmiins to go to church today but unfortunately do not wake up in time although I had planed hard on going today. This make me feel like a fay data that I half not ben so church. Almost a fear in fact. Next week I will not be so defainly go like I planned to today, honest.

Monday, March 14.

Dear dairy: Not much time for writing tonight as there is a guy down the hall going to bring his record player in here so as we can listen to some records which is very good in as much that mine is still not so red hot and getting redhaded now. Here is the say now and I hope it does'nt wake up my roomate as he is asleep only we will play real low. This guy is a real "cat" and has lots of "cool" records he says. I can not tell right now but I think he is drunk which my roomate is not like it if he wakes up I hope not. Love, George

Focus On Asia

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

With the approach of spring the question of the Chinese Invading Formosa and the islands of Quemoy and the Matsus has again come to the forefront. For it is during the months between April and October that the waters separating Formosa from the mainland are the calmest.

Taking this into consideration Secretary of State Dulles said in a recent speech that the Chinese Reds might find themselves faced with a three front war. Indo-China, Formosa, Korea—if they tried an invasion of Formosa. The idea being to confront the Reds with a chain of opposition.

In line with this it is felt in Washington that if the United States continues to show a disparity of power which would cause more damage on the enemy than the enemy could inflict upon us, it will cause them to think twice before acting.

United States officials, however, have decided to keep American forces at a minimum in case of a showdown. They will depend more on Nationalists resources for the defense of Quemoy and the Matsus while increasing the flow of supplies and ammunition to Chiang Kai-shek's forces.

To dramatize the situation even more so, attention has been focused during the past week on a Finnish tanker heading toward Red China with a 12,000 ton cargo of jet aircraft fuel. To this writer, what makes this tanker so important is not the fact that the ship is carrying jet fuel to a potential enemy, but the fact that it is a striking example of how a war with Red China could arise without the Communists attempting to invade the offshore islands and Formosa.

Senator Knowland (R-Calif) has advocated that the U. S. Seventh Fleet should stop the tanker from reaching it's destination if the Nationalists fail to. But from Communist China it's a-sailing has come that it will tolerate no interference with the ship. It is felt that the Nationalist China is ready and capable of settling the matter.

The crux of the matter, as raised by the Sense Investigator

(Continued on Page 3)

Letters To The Flambeau

A Voice In The Wilderness

To the Editor:

When enough thinking people have suffered the toils of learning and loving the "filad" at eighteen or nineteen or twenty, when enough intellectually curious minds have been forced to read even great English poetry with a glossary in one hand, when enough sensitive souls have experienced the humiliation of clutching an album as at an unfamiliar landscape then, and only then, will Greek and Latin, French and German become back to the children's books.

It is frightening to be aware of the vast ignorance and vulgarity of children being led cautiously through the edges of education. A system which deprives young minds of the undeniable thrill and pleasure which comes from learning the difficult has become self-defeating and inhumane, inanimate. In attempting to serve children from the evils associated with mediocrity of teaching the great vehicles of Western culture, the learning has been discarded with the methods The present cruelty is more insidious because it is not so apparent—stunted, even by those whose rightful heritage has been irreparably diluted. At the age when the delight and wisdom of poetry and prose should be most keenly experienced, this generation must suffer the bewilderment and indifference and the humiliation of surface understandings—a sorry

"Don't Even Think About It"

A Better Measure

Letters To The Flambeau

Filling Space

To the Editor:

The editorial of Friday, March 11, regarding the "Daily Declarations of Honesty" is another example of a journalistic neophyte in college who has before a typewriter and writing an editorial at an hour's notice will space left vacant by lack of syndicated material.

To the writer (s), who have taken offense with the fact that they will have to sign the honor pledge to writing, every inch of the aunnendment is passed, and consider it an insult to their personal intelligence and honesty, may I ask this question: Did you, while in elementary and high school, consider the pledge of allegiance to the flag every day an affront to your loyalty? I'm sure that the pledge to the flag in high school is not too far removed in principle to the pledge of honesty at college. In both school the pledge was so remiss us that we had obligations to our country, to confuse the pledge is to remind us that we have an obligation to ourselves as well. I'm proud enough of my honesty to reaffirm it to others, who, even though they may have no reason to doubt it, do not know me well enough personally to concede it.

As for the matter of the daily morning seek of the "honesty catechism," my sympathies certainly go out to you gentlemen who have such a tremendous task to perform.

(Continued on Page 3)

Who Is Overshadowing Who?

By BOB FOLSOM

Glancing over the exchange papers I ran across a couple of stories from separate Southern schools that celebrated an athlete in the institution.

The first athlete had made All-American, and accordingly got a banner headline, his picture and news story on the front page; on the editorial page he received a 500-word editorial, which said among other things that he had succeeded in spite of odds; on the sports page, for a 2-inch-by-2-inch action shot, another story enlarging what was said on page one, a story on the best game mentioning his high-scoring feats, and finally, the sports editor gave him a paragraph in his column.

The other athlete was being celebrated with a "Day," for he too, had made All-American. So on page one the student paper saw him in 3-column headline with story and picture of himself with the governor of the state. On the editorial page he got an editorial wishing him good luck, and then the editor gave him a plug in his column. There was nothing on the sports page.

I base this on mostly for the benefit of Miss Rose, whose letter appears on this page today. Because I think it ties in with what she has to say in her letter.

For these two stories only emphasize the role King Sport plays in the country. A role of that has gone beyond the ordinary bounds it should never have left. A role that is now cherished by many above any form of scholarly achievement, with more to enter this group. I would even suspect that a scholar are already in this category.

And with this increasing emphasis—it is, of course, bound to increase—other scholarly accomplishments by students will remain secondary, not because there won't be any achievements, but because minor accomplishments are never recognized as too worthwhile, even though they are.

Moreover, who would want to become part of this minority when there are no trophies but little self-satisfaction and recognition, as compared to the acclaim given the athlete by the majority opinion that influenced our educational methods in various ways and forms. It couldn't help but shape some methods. More over, such a superficial nature are brought into play, and others are overshadowed. And those that are neatly buried are the courses that offer a deeper approach to cultural understanding.

This is happening to a certain extent today that even the students who have achieved scholastic distinction themselves are not actually educated but only superficially so.

The Dissenter

A Lesson In Political Syllogisms

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

What is it that the collegian's fancy turns to during the pre-election days when politicky need be identified as Spring, Love? Baseball? Income tax? No! Politics.

This might be cause for unrest, but, instead, it is the department of history and political science were the sense of political life is temporarily confined strictly to the campus.

A few people, those gunning for the big offices, have been trying to party it through for months—some even for years. But, for the most, it's confined dash to glory or oblivion. But most of those concerned have had the sense to realize that it is that impending period of chaos: the primaries.

Officially, "This word is of the utmost importance," active campaigning starts March 22. Practically speaking, the election has been in progress and the tons of paper which will be plastered over campus walls by then will differ from last year's campaign. One of them is the seemingly-perennial drive for bigger lock boxes in dormitories. This request, which actually represents mental resentment festering for over a year, would result in a new appreciation of the reading room.

Now PSU's wild and woolly days are remembered only by a bunch of old grads who spend their hours recounting experiences of trouping the Keystone Tales of yesterday's scandals are the talk of today's collegians, and will probably be passed on from tongue to tongue until the latest of the penalmen writes them down into a book entitled "PSU Epic." As it stands now, the closest contact we have with the days of the past—the days of the old Army barracks at West Campus—is what may be called the relics. Their present inhabitants still amuse Freshmen by their references to "Down Place."

Last week, despite all this, something happened which disrupted the harmony. Eight students got a peek at the other window. We're practically back

(Continued on Page 3)

Etcetera Etchings

Conversation Is Becoming Obsolete

By DAVID DREIS

The art of conversation is swiftly becoming obsolete. You who have not lived in the blistering vanity of television are living in a fool's paradise. You have time to read the latest novels and time to criticize your friends.

Television is like a disease. It eats away slowly and before you realize it, you've a permanent addition to it—a subject to be every where, to its every move. You become a cheering mass on the floor your feet and cobwebs tear you on your arm. Your like vanishes, your eyes and ears are fixed on the mechanized object.

No longer do you think about everyday happenings that are pure around you. You find yourself seeing with Martin Kane, listening in on commercials for Love of Happiness and guessing occupations of pretzel twisters, soap carvers and peddle pushers.

Your values change and a gentle replica of Arlene Francis' locket becomes foremost in your mind as you look into the cupboard and find every box - top missing because of other "offers." You and yours have taken advantage of.

Manners become orientated to the medium and upon entering a room you say, as if you were at the Yale Club and quietly take your seat without disturbing anyone. Guests become less frequent as they haven't got televisions and in that case you tell them how to pick a set out whether they want one or not.

Occasionally you'll take in a movie if the cinema's aren't showing anything and you don't feel into your set up. If you have a TV-Set, you'll spend the time while you notice the extreme largeness of the screen, the width of CinemaScope and the approximate size of the viewing area. Perhaps you'll be so overwhelmed it was worth moaning Jackie Gleason and Jack Benny to see the big screen. You yourself become involved with Martin Kane, listening in on conversations of how long it will take to get on television.

Television? A pox on it. It corrupts life and for a person who likes to talk it cuts him down to a ten-inch screen. A child is punished and sent to his room. In the future, a television set will be a few TV magazines. This is capital punishment for a child if there's a 21-inch screen and a UHF converter. In his room he can only get channels on VHF, besides in his room it's only a small screen shadowing a video disc. There's much more room for any school set-up.

SURFACE NOISE: The color shot of Dorothy Malone in this week's TV GUIDE is the best pin-up of the year, Woohoo!

We're back on the air . . . RECORD JURY: (-)6 (sandra), WINT, please tune in, will ya? All set here, and I must suffer dept.: When you lean back in the Rita Hayworth everybody leans back . . . Marcelle Truitt's ballad-singing is professional & you never hear any . . . John Zilles, the Billy Bigelow of "Carousel" opened by Dept. of Speech's "Crucible" . . . We're prediction: Parry Cuma's "Poet of Dreams" will shoot to the big-time . . . shouldn't miss the PSU Film Club on Thursday night . . . it's about a girl who becomes the subject of gossip and is helped by a peasant boy who attempts to save her . . . Pedro Armendariz and Delores Del Rio star. . . .

'Crucible' Offers Fine Performances

By TANN HAMMOND

If ever a play belonged to the actor who stars in it, it is Arthur Miller's tribute to Franklin Adams Hall. Proof to owner ship is established by his superbe performance of the double - edged confession - cum - John Proctor.

Winston John Proctor ever lived in Salem, Massachusetts during the time of the infamous trials which is the setting of the play, can be argued by historians. But there is the chance that he lived on the stage of the Conrad Theatre last Friday night. The last Crucible performance will be tonight, beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Margaret Malloy, while sometimes a bit stiff in her portrayal of Abigail Williams, the young girl responsible for the death and torture of many innocent people under the charge of witchcraft, cannot be denied the excellence of her voice and expression. Her scene in the first act where she names those seen with the "devil" is one of sheer delight with evil.

Frightening Realism

Outstanding in their frightening realism of people trying to do what they believe to be right were Hal Poe Dorothy Womble, and Harold Bergman. Their every movement and sound was positive and clear, leaving no doubt as to their intent. Barbara Waddell and David Drea as Mr. and Mrs. Putnam were complete opposites as one who cared only about her own possessions had been buried before their first year and one who was hanging with a rope around her neck, played with a rare lack of confidence by Jo Ann Hall. Duane Lanchester did his part in the course of the evening were Duane Lanchester did his part in the course of the evening were Duane Lanchester as Giles Corey, who when they hit a middle point in the play made direct contact with the other actors and the audience and were vital, living people. In his scene with Proctor, he played with a rare lack of confidence by Jo Ann Hall.

Gabbing With Gutting

By Bob Gutting

With the recess, sports car [illegible] Sebring, a popular topic conversation once again is the [illegible]

Although possessed of an ignominious beginning, the automobile has had a long way from obscurity to fair, streamlined racing [illegible] today.

By the turn of the century the automobile was as strange an apparatus as the bearded lady in the circus. In fact, the famous Duryea "horse-wagon" was given top billing in the Barnum and Bailey show over the head of the fat lady, and the clown.

These early cars caused much concern to local folks, and much discriminatory legislation was placed against them. Because of the choking, clanking, hissing monsters frightened horses, some early car enthusiasts were forced to take their machines apart and hide them in the woods at the approach of a horse and buggy. One state tried to pass a law that would have forced motorists to stop every ten minutes and get out of their machines.

Americans remember the turn of the century in terms of every Manila Bay and his famous ride to the capitol of Cuba. [illegible] may live when ready. No one begrudges the [illegible] immortality, but [illegible] men—the Duryea brothers for instance, made even more [illegible] contributions to American life and remain more [illegible] than they have been unheralded by the history books.

Charles and Frank Duryea built their first car in 1892, which according to the advertising, "actually operated under its own propulsion."

It was a Duryea car that was the first automobile race held in America on Thanksgiving Day, 1895. The fourth of the course was from Chicago to Evanston, Illinois and return. Average speed for the 52 mile run was 5:46 miles per hour. So the race was not as easy as some may suspect, and one driver had to drop out of the race from sheer exhaustion.

The automobile has not always been the perfect specimen by any means, and many makes died along the way to the perfection of today's car. It is sometimes considered a wonder that the industry even survived such cars as The Seven Little Buffaloes, Nothing Black Crow, Blood, Cruelty Darling, Eagle Poor Fish, Horsecope House, Duck, Klinic, Tooth Moon, Sun, Star, Pet, Peter Pan, People's, Puppy, Vitamin and some two thousand others. It seems that automobiles have been making news in some way ever since they were first [illegible] Some events of the day, as reported in the September 16, 1908 New York Times are typical of the automobiles history.

President Theodore Roosevelt was in a jovial mood. "Bully!" he cried when reporters told him that Charles Evans Hughes had been nominated for Governor of New York state on the Republican ticket. . . . Justice Davis decided against the city in its case against an auto[illegible] who had been arrested in Central Park the preceding December 18 "The charge against this man is that, while with skid chains and the law does not prohibit their use, he declared the Court. The White Star Company Announces the construction of its new ocean liner, the keel is one ship is now being laid and it will be called the Olympic; the keel is the second ship will be laid later and it will be called the Titanic . . . Wilbur Wright remain in the air over LeMans, France for 39 minutes and broke distance records by flying 36 miles . . . Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns were matched for the heavyweight championship of the world and agreed to fight in Sydney, Australia.

So much for the automobile pioneers.

Ball Team Wins Two From Southern

Southern Crown Is Claimed By Gymnasts Fifth Year Straight

By BOB GUTTING

Led by senior Jim Tanaka, the Florida State gymnasts wrapped up their 24th team and fifth straight Southern Intercollegiate championship Saturday at Georgia Tech.

FSU piled up 109 points to outclass North Carolina (85), Duke (18), and Georgia Tech (16).

Jim Tanaka turned in the best performance of his career as he captured first place honors in the all-around competition. Tanaka, who is now in Mexico City with teammate Don Holder preparing for the coming Pan American games, and Joe Regna graduated last June.

Al Rudy, competing in the Southern Intercollegiate meet for the first time in two seasons, walked off with the free exercise and tumbling events.

Dick Ireland remained the trampoline title that he lost last year to Jim Padigan. Padigan placed second in the aerobatic competition between the two.

The Southern meet served as a warmup for the NCAA championship coming up later this month in Los Angeles. It will be then that Coach Price's Seminoles will gun for their third NCAA crown.

Results of the Georgia meet:

ALL-AROUND—1. Tanaka, FSU; 2. Taylor, FSU; 3. Hudson, North Carolina.

SIDE HORSE—1. Hudson, NC; 2. Taylor, FSU; 3. Tanaka, FSU.

HIGH BAR—1. Tanaka, FSU; 2. Taylor, FSU; 3. Hudson, NC.

PARALLEL BARS—1. Taylor, FSU; 2. Tanaka, FSU; 3. Hudson, NC.

FLYING RINGS—1. Tanaka, FSU; 2. Hudson, NC; 3. Taylor, FSU.

TUMBLING—1. Rudy, FSU; 2. Tanaka, FSU; 3. Williams, NC.

TRAMPOLINE—1. Ireland, FSU; 2. Padigan, FSU; 3. Murray, FSU.

FREE EXERCISE—1. Rudy, FSU; 2. Murray, FSU; 3. Tanaka, FSU.

Veteran Catcher—Gary Ashley, returning junior letterman, will add experience to Coach Litwhiler's Seminoles in the three game series to be played this weekend.

Litwhiler Proves Successful As Club Routs Moccasins

Coach Danny Litwhiler's debut for Florida State proved to be a sensation. In a two-game opener against Florida Southern, his boys won 4-1 and 15-0.

In the opening game Friday veteran pitcher Max Long limited Southern to five singles. The Seminoles responded with a tight defensive game and took advantage of almost every opportunity, leaving only three runners stranded.

FSU stole three bases and kept Florida Southern off balance with its base running. The Mocs made five errors.

Long, FSU's leading pitcher with a 4-3 record last spring was strong all the way. The Jacksonville junior mixed up his pitches using a change-up and curve frequently, and twice retired the Mocs without damage after they had loaded the bases with none out.

In Saturday's contest, plate-store Tommy Carels pitched and batted Florida State to a 15-0 rout of Southern in a one-sided Florida Intercollegiate baseball game.

Carels, 5-7, two-pound yearling from Port Myers, collected three singles, scored two runs, gave up only three hits in six innings and struck out five.

The Seminoles gave him plenty of support by playing error less ball and clubbing four Southern pitchers for 11 hits in the seven-inning game.

Centerfielder Bob Hudson slammed a triple and a single, and catcher Gary Ashley belted two doubles for FSU.

The Seminoles bunged all in a fast start, scoring three runs in each of the first two innings. They followed up with four runs in the fourth, tour more in the sixth, and one in the seventh.

State continued to run, swiping five bases. Litwhiler had the Seminoles going for extra bases and it paid off with eight stolen bases in the two-game series, only 11 less than the number stolen in 25 games last year.

The Seminoles left only eight runners stranded in the two games, taking advantage of almost every scoring chance.

Friday noon FSU opens a 13-game home stand against Furman. A double-header against Furman and LSU Saturday afternoon concludes this week's card.

FSU	ab	r	h	FSC	ab	r	h
Carels'b	3	2	1	Chellis'b	3	0	0
Hudson'b	3	3	2	Hudson 2b	3	0	0
Ashley c	3	2	2	Brewer 2b	2	0	1
Martin c	1	0	0	Wiley 2b	0	0	0
Ashley c	0	0	0	Pharr'r	0	0	0
Strickland	3	1	1	Hall ss	3	0	0
Davis ss	3	2	1	Bryant c	2	0	0
Bendoff	1	1	0	Dirksen, rf	2	0	1
Lassen rf	3	1	1	Terry c	1	0	0
Sinrath rf	1	0	0	Daniel 1b	2	0	0
Lowther 1b	3	2	2	Ashley 1b	2	0	0
TOTAL	25	15	11	TOTAL	20	0	2

FSU	220	404	1—15	11	0
FSC	000	000	0— 0	2	2

RBI—Hudson 3, Carels 2, Ashley 2, Strickland 2, Davis 2, Lowther 2, Lassen, Martin, Bendoff 2, Brewer. 3B—Hudson. SB—Hudson 3, Sinrath, Carels, Ashley, Strickland, Davis 2. 2B—Ashley, Davis. PO—FSU 8. FSC 3. Assists—FSU 6, FSC 3. Errors—FSU 5, FSC 5. Left on bases—FSU 8, FSC 7. Double plays—Brewer to Hall to Bryant. Losing pitcher—Carels. Umpires—Lassen, Dirksen.

ROADY TO SPEAK ON FREEDOM'S TROUBLES

The students and faculty of FSU are invited to hear Dr. Roady speak on "Is Your Freedom In Trouble?" at an informal discussion sponsored by the Student Christian Association today. The discussion will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Small Lounge of Lonamire.

Sports-At-A-Glance

THURSDAY — Tennis, Georgia, 2 p.m.; Golf, Camp[illegible] courts; Golf, Davidson, 1:30 p.m., Tallahassee Country Club.

FRIDAY — Baseball, Furman, 3:30 p.m.; Golf, Campus diamond. Football, annual Garnet-Gold spring intrasquad game, 8 p.m., Doak S. Campbell Stadium.

SATURDAY — Baseball, Furman, 1 p.m.; LSU, 4 p.m., East Campus diamond. Golf, Auburn, 1:30 p.m., Tallahassee Country Club. Swimming, Florida A.A.U. at Gainesville. Volleyball, Florida A.A.U. at St. Petersburg.

Focus On Asia

(Continued from page 1)

tions subcommittee, is that since the start of the Korean war, and the United States has banned all American trade with Red China and the United Nations has called upon members and non-member nations to stop shipments of strategic material to the Chinese Communist.

The tanker, which is Finnish and which Finland says it can't stop because the shipment was made under charter from a Romanian port, is owned by a Chinese Communist firm which operates from the British Crown colony of Hong Kong.

Garnet-Gold Skirmish Will End Spring Drills

Florida State's spring football candidates polishes their drills Friday's Garnet-Gold scrimmage, wrapped up the fourth and last week of drills Saturday with a game—condition scrimmage.

Work thus far, obviously pleased with the Seminoles' progress, was due to select personnel for the two squads after studying the day's results with assistant coaches.

"We've progressed just about as we anticipated," said Nugent. "Our chief emphasis throughout the drills has been tackling. We've had a remarkable improvement in that department."

Nugent indicated, however, that a search will be on in the Seminole camp for linebackers and tackles.

To help fill the hole created by the loss of Senior Al Makowski, Bill Proctor a 6-4 235-pound transfer, has been moved to a tackle post where he's in line for starting berth.

Friday, Nugent had a number one candidate at end of Tom Feamster and Ronnie Schonberger at each. Proctor and Don Powell at tackles. Bob Barber and Jerry Jacobs at guards, and Cecil Crenshaw at center. Running in the backfield were quarterback Vic Fusina, halfbacks Lee Corso and Buck Mesta and fullback Joe Holt.

Barber, the 215-pound Belle Glade junior-to-be, was a fine-looking tackle last fall, but has made the switch to guard with surprising ease.

Another shift has involved Interman end Bud Leonard, who's been moved to fullback. A husky sophomore, Leonard is battling Holt for a starting position.

Nugent has singled out Barber, Jacobs and Schonberger as the most improved linemen of the spring. He also thinks Feamster, the flanker end, has improved greatly on both offense and defense. All were regulars in '54.

Friday's Garnet-Gold clash is set for 8 p.m. in Doak S. Campbell Stadium, with proceeds going to summer FSU football scholarship fund. Admission price for adults is $1.00. FSU students will be admitted on their activity books.

Track Team Roster Complete With Depth And Experience

LAWRENCE GEORGE

Last Friday's issue of the Flambeau carried the first of two articles dealing with the athletes who are expected to form the basis of the track team's scoring power during the coming campaign.

Thumbnail sketches of five of the ten varsity cindermen were given. Today's issue will carry the outline of the remaining five.

Lloyd Lassen, 6'2", 178, Lassen, a soph letterman, is a capable performer in the high jump. A dependable point getter, his best leaps is only 2" off the school record.

Warren Strickland, 6'1", 180, "He flys through the air with the greatest of ease." So far this season, stick-climber Strickland has shown promise of great things. A new vault record may be forthcoming.

Joe Davis, 6'0", 150, Davis is a standout sprinter. He is a specialist in the century and the 220. Joe is also a fine timber-topper and a key man on the mile relay.

Larry Hamilton, 6'0", 150, A capable middle-distance man. School record holder and 1954 State A.A.U. 880 champion. Member of the mile relay.

Record for Jacobs, 6'0", 205. Making use of his bulldoze strength and smooth style Jacobs set a school record in the shot put last year. He ought to be a tough man to beat this season.

Letters (Contd)

(Continued from page 2)

dous academic load that you will have to sign the honor pledge to daily written work. This reminds me of the old saying "... all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy ...", and this certainly seems to fit the bill.

Granted that we are going to have dishonesty and cheating even though we have an honor system. It would be naive indeed to think otherwise. The idea behind the honor system is that the students will have a common bond between them, and that the responsibility of publishing the violators of this bond rests with the students themselves, not with the administration. Most will agree that a police government is an inherent right of students on college campi—and if the students are capable of making laws for their own government, should they not

NOTICE TO VETERANS

Students who have had at least 90 days active military service may have their military service evaluated March 21 through April 6th. Bring separation papers, GED Tests results, and any certificates showing service schools taken while on active duty to Miss Glover, 102B Westcott on Mondays through Fridays from 8-12 a.m. and 1:30-4:30 p.m.

also be capable of the responsibility of the enforcement of these laws, which they can do through a strong honor system? That is the purpose of the amendment to the constitution, to strengthen the honor system so that it will be capable of recognition and enforcement.

Are the students incapable of complete and efficient self-government? Can they make the rules, but not enforce them? Are we doomed to live in the sheltered world of bliss for an additional four years? If so, then there are going to be a great number of people who will be sorely disillusioned when they finally do face the world of reality.

Instead of syndicated copy in the editorial column which we can buy at the local news stand while it is still news; why not have more material concerning college news, activities and controversies? Why not material for the students by the students? If it is not possible to fill the space twice weekly in this manner, then why not cut down to one issue a week. For I'm sure that a majority of the students would prefer quality over quantity.

Sincerely,

BRUCE REINHOLD.

Phi Delts Lead In Intramural Race

TRACK FINALS

Phi Delta Theta with 57 points
ATO 45 points
SAE 18 points
Sigma Nu 9 points
SPE 8
PKA 4
Kappa Sigma 4
Kappa Alpha 3
Lambda Chi Alpha 3
Theta Chi 1

Dorms

Senior Hall 45
Penthouse 37
Pirates 22
BFU 14
Rebels 5½
Methodist 3½
Newman 2
Magnolia 1
First place in any event 5 points, second four, third 3 and fourth 2, Fifth, 1.

All-university standings (unofficial) will begin Monday, March 21. Entries are due to the intramural office by 5 p.m. Friday, March 18.

OVERALL STANDINGS

Phi Delta Theta—403
ATO—360
Sigma Nu—264
Theta Chi—414
SAE—413
SPE—367
KA—364
Lambda Chi Alpha—360
TEP—353
Delta Tau Delta—345
Sigma Chi—329
Phi Kappa Tau—286
Kappa Sig—278
Phi Kappa Phi—258
Phi Kappa Alpha—242

Tennis Team Is Shut Out By Presbyterian

Florida State's tennis team opened its spring campaign on a losing note here yesterday, dropping a one-sided 9-0 match to strong Presbyterian on the East Campus courts.

Led by Allen Morris, the South's record-ranked player and David Cupper, Presbyterian swept every match in two sets but one. FSU's Don Wyly extended Scott Watson all the way, but lost, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1.

In the day's feature match, Morris disposed of Seminole ace Hal Schaus, 6-2, 6-4.

Presbyterian, rated one of the South's strongest net squads, plays such nationally-ranked teams as Harvard, Yale, Rollins, and Miami.

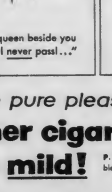
FSU, commencing on its tough-est schedule ever, meets Georgia here on Thursday, then entertains Auburn on Friday. Both matches are set for the East Campus courts.

Robertson, Johnson Seek Editorship Of Student Paper

Jay Robertson and Oscar Johnson have been nominated by The Florida Flambeau senior staff to run for next year's editorship.

Both students will run independent of any party affiliation.

Miss Robertson, presently the Flambeau News Editor, is a junior in the school of journalism. She has been on the Flambeau staff since 1951, and was Feature Editor last year.



Johnson, a sophomore in the school of journalism, is assistant news editor and has worked on the paper since coming to FSU in 1953.

JIG ALONG TO MALONE'S BOOK STORE for all your supplies & sundries
"Everything For The Student"
107 S. Copeland

50 million times a day at home, at work or on the way
There's nothing like a Coke
DRINK Coca-Cola
1. Bright, bracing taste . . . ever-fresh and sparkling.
2. A welcome bot of quick energy . . . brings you back refreshed.
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY
Tallahassee Coca-Cola Bottling Co.
"Coke" is a registered trade mark. © 1955, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

At Fleet's—
All Yours!
for the smartest step up the fashion ladder
Fashion Craft
BEAUTIFUL SHOES
The very topmost in style . . . deliberately designed to put a thrill in every step—in fashion-right feeling into every scheme.
IN BLACK PATENT or White Calf $9.95
See Them Only at fleet's
106 E. Jefferson Ph. 3-0876

When the campus queen beside you murmurs, "Gash, I'll never passl . . ."

Then turns to you and whispers, "Will you help me after class?"

M-m-man, that's PURE PLEASURE!

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!
No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!
P.S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos — one of the reasons why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

'Zo-Im-Ba' Opens Tuesday, March 22, In Opperman

District Advertising Meet Starts Thursday

Advertising executives from all over the Southeast will meet March 17-20 for the Southeastern Advertising Conference.

Called the "finest district conference in the United States" by the Advertising Federation of America, the affair will feature prominent leaders in the field. It is open to all persons interested in advertising and related fields.

John Mather who heads the New York advertising agency bearing his name, will present his popular "Tool House of Advertising" address which he has given before more than 40 business and civic groups throughout the country.

Visual Approach

He adopts an unusual, largely visual approach to showing management men how various advertising and selling tools can be put to work in a well planned, coordinated program.

His performance centers on a scaled down version of a farmer's tool shed, stocked with all equipment needed for model agricultural practices. Miniature tools are fastened to the tool house by magnets. Using these props Lupton, dressed for farming, draws parallels between such implements as hoes and rakes and various media available to advertisers. The demonstration points up the need for sales managers to be familiar with all the tools of advertising.

Lupton is one of 15 business and advertising leaders who will highlight the regional conference. Others include Dr. Alfred P. Haake, Economic Consultant of General Motors, William G. Werner, Director of Public Relations of Procter and Gamble, and Robert E. Kenyon, Jr., publisher of Printer's Ink magazine, who will give the keynote speech. Presiding will be Dr. Royal H. Ray, head of the FSU department of advertising and Lt. Gov., fourth district, AFA.

Fourth District

The meeting is the thirty-first annual Fourth District Conference and will also include the AFA Conference and Fourth District Educational Conference. Also invited are Alpha Delta Sigma, Gamma Alpha Chi, The Outdoor Advertising Association of Florida, and other advertising and sales personnel in the Southeast.

Held in the Geology Building auditorium, Suwannee Room, Student Trophy Room, and Hotel Floridan, the meetings will also feature panel discussions as well as entertainment provided by FSU students.

Plantation Party

Opening the conference will be a Plantation Party Thursday on one of the plantations near Tallahassee. Other entertainment will include a style show by the Student Fashion Institute, a male quartet, and circus acts. Saturday night will feature a banquet in the Hotel Floridan.

Registration begins Thursday, March 17, in the lobby of the Hotel Floridan, from two to six p.m. A $20 fee entitles the registrant to the Plantation Party, admission to all convention sessions devoted to professional speakers, the two luncheons, and the banquet. Food will be served at cost.

They Make It Pay—Advertisers making plans for the Southeastern Advertising Conference, to be held here beginning Thursday, are, l. to r., A. J. Dwyer, director of the state Advertising commission, Dr. Royal H. Ray, general conference chairman and head of the department of advertising at FSU, and Frank T. Adams, Jr., head of extension education for business General Education Division of Florida.

Reinhard Credits Ward - Steinman With Fine Score

"Zo-Im-ba," 1955 Sandspur production, is off to a good start.

Director Herb Rinehard said yesterday that the first big rehearsal, held Sunday night, "came out better than we expected." The first full-dress rehearsal is slated Friday night, said Rinehard, and a sneak preview will be held for faculty and staff next Monday.

Reinhard described Dave Ward-Steinman's music for "Zo-Im-ba" as "the prettiest I've heard. Dave has done a great job."

"Zo-Im-ba" will open Tuesday, March 22 at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall, with additional performances scheduled for the following Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Friday is the day for the big Sandspur dance, featuring the music of Buddy Morrow from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Suwannee Room. Tickets are now on sale for $2 per couple.

"Zo-Im-ba" is a satire based on an anthropological expedition to a small island off the coast of Borneo—the isle of Zo-im-ba. Natives on Zo-im-ba practice polygamy, which leads to an elaborate plot. The play is complete with sarongs, shrunken heads, and grass skirts.

"Zo-Im-ba," written by Donn Teal, features music by Ward-Steinman, who was assisted in the scoring by David Friend. Sandspur producer is Frances Bailey Stokes. Barbara Rynski is in charge of costuming and sets, assisted by Carl Reimer of the speech department.

BUDDY MORROW

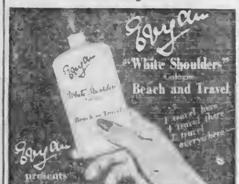
Director Reinhard said yesterday that he is considering plans for taking Sandspur on tour if the production merits such action and the faculty approves the plan. He said this would promote interest in Florida State University. "Zo-Im-ba" is the fourth Sandspur production he has worked on.

Job Opportunities

JOB OPPORTUNITIES [illegible] contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott or extension [illegible]

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16
Southern Bell Telephone Co.
Interviewer: C. S. Henagan, E. B. McKinney
Wanted: Accountants, Journ., Arts and Sciences, Management. Note: group meeting of [illegible] candidates Tuesday 4 p.m.
Western Electric
Interviewer: G. T. Sperry
Wanted: [illegible]
Note: Group meeting of interested candidates Tuesday 4 p.m.

THURSDAY, MARCH 17
and FRIDAY, MARCH 18
J. C. Penny Co.
Interviewer: C. J. Wilcox, Martin [illegible]
Wanted: Retail Management, Liberal Arts, [illegible] (any major)



OPPORTUNITIES REPORTED
(R[illegible] from these organizations are not scheduled to visit the campus this year [illegible] information)
Veterans Administration.
[illegible] Therapists
Salary $3410-[illegible]
Keesler Air Force Base:
Recreation Supervisor [illegible] single female age 26-40.
Pan American Union:
Research [illegible] Fields of Economics. Advanced [illegible] work. English, Spanish [illegible]
U. S. Atomic Energy Commission:
[illegible] Admin. Asst. [illegible] background
Armstrong Cork Company
Sales training [illegible] non-technical [illegible] $375 [illegible] expense account [illegible] etc.
Yale and Towne:
[illegible] Engineering Sales, [illegible]
Florida Citrus Commission
Merchandising [illegible] in northern states
American Houses, Inc.:
Salesmen, experienced
Waterman Pen Company, Inc.:
Salesmen
United Chromium Inc.:
Salesmen with two or more years exp.

Patronize Our Advertisers

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Senior Hall)

TALLAHASSEE'S FINEST COSMETIC BAR
Featuring - - -

"White Shoulders" Beach and Travel. The essential atomizer—an unbreakable bottle. Press—and you are enveloped in a fine mist of the unforgettable "White Shoulders" fragrance.

Contents 2 oz. . . . . $2.75 PLUS TAXES

Linden's

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"JUPITER'S DARLING"
Esther Williams
Howard Keel
Tomorrow Thru Tues.
"Battle Cry"
Van Heflin
Tab Hunter
Aldo Ray

STATE
TODAY
"The Far Country"
James Stewart
Corinne Calvet
Tomorrow & Thursday
"Fire Over Africa"
Maureen O'Hara
—plus—
"They Rode West"
Robert Francis
Donna Reed

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today and Tomorrow
"Gone With The Wind"
Clark Gable
Vivien Leigh
Thurs. Thru Sat.
"Racing Blood"
Bill Williams
—plus—
"El Alamein"
Scott Brady

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today and Tomorrow
"Dial M for Murder"
Ray Milland
Grace Kelly
Thurs. - Sat.
"Tulsa"
Susan Hayward
—plus—
"Killer Ape"
Johnny Weissmuller
as Jungle Jim

RITZ — Today & Tomorrow
"THE MAN BETWEEN"
JAMES MASON

Student Party Platform

[illegible] are set down in groupings [illegible] with the [illegible] Statement of Purpose. There are four [illegible]
1. [illegible] to understand the Problems of Adm[illegible]
2. [illegible] the number of [illegible] services
3. [illegible] the working conditions and expand the number of jobs [illegible] students
4. Clean up present laws.

PLANKS ARE AS FOLLOWS GROUP I
1. Place students on faculty committees that deal with affairs [illegible]

COMMITTEES RECOMMENDED
a. [illegible] committee
b. General Education committee
c. Schedule committee
d. [illegible] committee
e. Curriculum committee
f. St[illegible] committee
2. Yearly publication of a complete itemized audit of money used in [illegible]
3. Establishment of a definite system for student education concerning [illegible] policy-making function of the University through a series of lectures [illegible]
4. Proposal to [illegible] the faculty Senate by a Student Delegate
5. Continued support of inter-dormitory councils for both men and women, to coordinate such dormitory [illegible] as athletic events and [illegible] and dormitory government affairs. Proper maintenance of dorm [illegible] facilities

GROUP II
6. To advocate advisor of our choosing to replace faculty Review Committee in Student Senate
7. Recommendation that additional parking space be provided
8. Establishment of a Veterans' Loan Fund for the purpose of registration [illegible]
9. Establishment of a secretary of Veterans' affairs
10. R[illegible] an extension of the "grace hour" now associated with [illegible] to one hour per semester
11. Provision of counsel under [illegible] of the Attorney General [illegible] students accused of breach of honor if such a counsel is desired [illegible]
12. Presentation of a plan for institutional dental services on campus
13. Recommend improvement of present housing facilities offered [illegible]
14. T[illegible] the dormitory rents according to facilities

GROUP III
15. Recommend that University Services be staffed wherever possible [illegible] a minimum of $[illegible] per hour
16. Recommend that students be [illegible] on the Review Committee [illegible] who have lost University jobs
17. We oppose the [illegible] for cold drinks on campus
18. Re[illegible] of [illegible] University Court system to determine the [illegible] jurisdiction of the different branches.
19. Establishment of definite policy concerning the chartering or approval of student organizations
20. We continue [illegible] against compulsory R O T C and advocate exemption for students [illegible] in Reserve units and or National Guard
21. We oppose compulsory University housing for men.

State Party Platform

1 We favor an FSU Student [illegible] charter from the State Legislature. Such an accomplishment [illegible] definitely establish a strong, independent governing body [illegible] only to its own good judgment and its constituents, the students. FSU Student Government would then have [illegible] of age.

2 Some method should be devised whereby students are able to get a fair return on books which are [illegible] to be used again. Reciprocal agreements with other schools [illegible] publishers might be arranged [illegible] we will not be left holding the bag [illegible] with books which [illegible] at the University Book Store if they are [illegible] be used again. We advocate expansion of the Alpha Phi Omega [illegible]

3 We advocate a re-examination of the Honor System with a view toward reinforcement, [illegible] or revocation.

4 We favor a reorganization of the court system. The present system is cumbersome and in need of streamlining.

5 We oppose compulsory [illegible] housing.

6 We favor more effective and representative organization of the day students.

7 We favor revision of the Funds Regulation so that student organizations may [illegible] 100 [illegible] of profit realized from [illegible] projects they may undertake. The State Party this year [illegible] supported in Senate such a measure. It succeeded [illegible] the student organizations' share of such funds from one-third to one-half. Now we propose to finish what we started last year in this respect.

8 We favor revision of juvenile women's rules that have outlived their purpose—if ever they served a purpose. Many adjustments could—and should be made.

9 We strongly urge the installation of some pencil sharpeners around campus for student usage. There is an obvious and irritating shortage of them.

10 We advocate installation of student phones in Westcott and in the History Building.

11 We favor the establishment of a non-profit university dining-hall.

School Principal Speaks Today

Thord Marshall, Leon High School Principal, will speak today on "What the Principal Expects of a Music Educator at the High School Level."

The FSU chapter of the Music Educators National Conference is sponsoring his talk, which will be given in Room 215 of the Music Building beginning at 2 p.m.

Officials of the chapter said that any interested persons may attend.

The chapter recently elected Joyce Thomas president. Other officers elected are Shirley Dallas, vice-president; Florence Ashby, publicity chairman, and Judy Naftulin, program chairman.

ARROW BUTTON-DOWN SHIRTS . . .
JUST THE TICKET FOR ANY OCCASION!

It's the one collar that says: "Right you are," from morning coffee to midnight oil.

You get variety of style, too, with Arrow button-downs. In round collars, spread collars, collars with a soft roll. They're precisely tailored to give you the button-down you like best. See your Arrow dealer. He has button-downs in a variety of colors, just right for you . . . (and your budget, too). $3.95 up.

ARROW
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

Wonderful Savings
in
Pure Irish Linen
• Crease Resistant
• All Colors
Now Only $1.39 a yard . . .
SAVE AT GILBERG'S

Put a SMILE in your SMOKING!

Buy
CHESTERFIELD
today! Largest selling cigarette in America's colleges

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness—mildness refreshing taste.

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's quality—highest quality—low nicotine.

In the whole wide world no cigarette SATISFIES like Chesterfield

© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

GARNET 'N GOLD
Football
Game Tonight—P. 3

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 37 | PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA | FRIDAY, MARCH 18, 1955

Spring Election Campaigning Begins Tuesday

Expenses Must Be Filed That Day By 5 p. m.

Candidates for office may begin the process of covering the town with electoral material next Tuesday.

The law for Student Body offices will begin at 5 p.m. After that time, posters, banners, signs, placard bulletins, announcements and other campaign material may be posted.

Fulmates Due

Candidates must file petitions of expense before 5 p.m. tomorrow, the Elections Committee said this week. "This is merely an estimate of expenses the candidate must file with the committee's approval before the candidate's name is placed on the ballot," the committee stated.

A final expense statement is also sent by those candidates elected to office. The committee said that no excuse for late filing shall be accepted unless notification is made beforehand that it will be late.

Regulations concerning expenses are that they shall not exceed the following amounts:

Amounts Given

Men's offices, $15. Court member, $20. University Court chairman, $30. Men's and Women's vice-presidents, $25. Chief justice of Honor Court, $35; student body vice-president, $40; Student Body President, $50.

Regulations covering campaign literature are:

Elections placards may be posted on any available space in buildings and outside buildings within these limitations. (1) Student erecting placards must take the responsibility of removing them after the elections is over.

Remove Posters

Candidates eliminated in the primary must remove their placards within 48 hours.

(2) No nails or tacks may be driven into trees or into buildings walls. (3) No placards may be stuck to plastered walls with saliva, paste or adhesives.

(4) If the individual who posts a sign which damages university property cannot be identified the candidate whose name is on the placard will be held responsible for the damage and will be required to pay the cost.

Havana Fellowship Open To American Graduate Students

Competition for the Father Felix Varela Fellowship for study in Cuba is open to American graduate students.

Dr. Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York City will send information on request.

The fellowship is good for study at the University of Havana during the 1955-56 academic year. Closing date for the competition is April 1, 1955. The award covers tuition and most maintenance expenses.

Candidates in the fields of philosophy, history, philosophy, Spanish literature, history, education, social sciences, and law are preferred.

Applicants must be U. S. citizens. Other eligibility requirements are a Bachelor's degree demonstrated academic ability and capacity for independent study, good moral character; good knowledge of Spanish and good health.

Applications may be secured from the United States Student Department of the Institute of International Education.

News Briefs

DELTA SIGMA PI PLEDGES NINE

Delta Sigma Pi, business fraternity, held official pledging recently for Franklin Kessler, Victor Palmer, William Pfeiffer, David Pichard, Charles Scarbrough, John Schill, Stanley Smith, Jr., Albert Wilson and Robert Wright, Jr.

GAMMA PHI HAS FIRST LEGACY

Gamma Phi Beta sorority had its first legacy February 25. Is Soon Cay Taylor was born to Gamma Connie Taylor and Fireman Joe Taylor. The sorority serenaded the couple late.

ROVETTA HEADS FOOD CONFERENCE

Dean Charles A. Rovetta, of the FSU School of Business, was chairman of the planning committee and coordinator for the National Conference on Food Distribution of the National Association of Retail Grocers in Chicago March 21-23. Retail grocery leaders from nearly all states, Hawaii, and Alaska are registered for the conference.

UF Press Takes Coffee Hour Spotlight This Afternoon At 4

A panel discussion on The University of Florida Press will be presented at the English Coffee Hour this afternoon.

The weekly coffee, held at the Westminster House at 4, will feature Dr. Lewis P. Haines, director of the UF Press, and his wife, an editor for the Press. They will tell the audience on the functions, purpose and operation of the Press.

Dr. Haines Jepsen and Dr. Russell Reaver, authors and professors of English at Florida State University, will also take part in the discussion. Both have had books published by the University of Florida Press.

Dr. Jepsen holds degrees in Latin, Greek and English from the University of Iowa, and has done graduate work at Harvard and at William and Mary. She has developed two courses at FSU, one a tragedy and the other in the European novel. Her book Ethical Aspects of Tragedy, on Greek and Shakespearean tragedy, was published by the Press.

Reaver On Panel

Dr. Reaver is also on the panel graduated magna cum laude from Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. A poet and teacher, Reaver is the author of Emerson's Imagery, published by the University of Florida Press in 1954.

At present, Dr. Reaver is editor of a book of folk tales, collected throughout the South.

FSU Bridge Tournament Set Thursday

The Florida State University unit of the National Intercollegiate Contract Bridge Tournament will be played next Thursday night in Lossmire Building.

Mr. Fred Vonel, counselor for student organizations said it will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday Deadline

Five o'clock Tuesday, March 22, is the deadline for entries. Any student with duplicate bridge experience may enter by paying the fifty cent national fee and signing up in Mr. Vogel's office in Longmire, or registering with Miss Meredith Payne, Pi Beta Phi house, or Mrs. Gene Turano, Pi Kappa Alpha house.

Mr. Vogel added that students who signed up to play but does not cannot should withdraw his name by Tuesday.

Dr. Claude R. Flory, has been designated as director of the local tournament, he will be assisted by Dr. Hilda Turner and Mr. Morrill Hall.

The local contest will consist of the play of sixteen boards and will for next week supersede the regular Thursday night intramural duplicate game.

Tournament Heads

The tournament heads have been set up on a "par" basis by a national headquarters for analysis and comparison with other colleges. Local, sectional and national winners will be announced April 15.

The tournament, directed nationally by J. Wayne Stark of Texas A&M is participated in annually by colleges and universities throughout the country.

Study Radiation Effects

Local Chemists Erecting Hut For Atomic Studies

By STAFF WRITER

Students here are casting a wary eye on preparations now being made for studies with atomic radiation at Florida State University.

Scientists have converted a small brick room between the History and Science buildings on campus into a laboratory for research projects using radioactive Cobalt 60. The structure was formerly used for storing acid.

Johnsen In Charge

Dr. Russell H. Johnsen, assistant professor of chemistry at FSU, is in charge of the studies. The purpose, Johnsen said, "is to study the effect of radiation on materials such as metals and fibers." He hopes to find what chemical and physical changes result from radiation.

Radioactive Cobalt emits Gamma rays similar to radiation released during an atomic blast, according to Johnsen. Gamma radiation is also closely akin to X-ray radiation he continued, differing chiefly in energy.

Oak Ridge Lab

The FSU unit will utilize 500 "curies" of the radioactive material, to be shipped within the next few days from Oak Ridge National Laboratories in Tennessee. Johnsen pointed out that one curie is an arbitrary unit of radiation, equal to that given off by one gram of radium.

Gamma radiation from the Cobalt 60 has no lingering effect, and materials which have been exposed can be handled without injury, Johnsen said. Only direct exposure or contact is harmful to living bodies.

Brass Tubing

The Cobalt used to the FSU studies will be kept within an insulated system of brass tubing arranged so that material may be exposed without danger to the scientists. Consisting of 24 small hollow tubes in two circles around a larger central tube, the system is sevred feet long. It is lowered from the ground in an opening surrounded by about six inches of steel pipe and four inches of concrete. The Cobalt, in capsule form, is dropped down the twelve brass tubes next to the center tube, through which material to be exposed is lowered.

Johnsen said that the concrete and iron actually do little to stop the radiation and that the seven

Senate Situates Representation Act In Statutes

Solons Kill Bill Adding Ballot Boxes

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Student Senate closed the way Wednesday for a possible change in representation.

They passed a constitutional amendment which, if ratified by the students, will leave the election of senators to be determined by statute. Men's Vice-President Gordon Gaster pushed through another amendment which would require any legislation of this type to be passed by a two-thirds majority.

Under the present Senate could allot representatives to whatever groups it chooses—islands, dormitories, fraternities and sororities, and day students, or any of the above, in whatever numbers it selects. If Gaster's amendment is also ratified by the Student Body Senate could only apportion representatives by a two-thirds vote.

Ask For Definition

Senator Ken Catlin, who along with Senators Joan Hallord, Jimmy Jossnos, Nancy Vaughn and Vice-President Coyle Moore, introduced the main amendment, tried to have the Senate define the groups which would be representated.

He said that day students, Greeks, fraternities, sororities and dormitories should be guaranteed representation to the Senate, but that it should be left to Senate discretion to determine the manner of this representation and the number elected from each.

His efforts failed to prevail against arguments that his amendment was purposely vague to provide for necessary study in a system set up might not work, and might need to be changed.

Joanne Ivey argued that previously that two alternatives would be offered upon ratification by the students. The Senate would be asked to set up a dormitory-day student-Greek-Greek assembly, and if that failed, would be asked to re-examine the present system of class representation, leaving to next year's Senate the problem of creating the actual change.

Bill Ballot Bill

The Senate killed Senator Jimmy Soles' bill to require ballot boxes in all dormitories housing more than 100 students. Chief argument against the bill in debate was the contention that the two additional ballot boxes promised by Soles in the original version would be addition enough for the Senate.

The Senate treated with cold indifference a statement by Senator Al Mansfield that some all dormitories couldn't have ballot boxes, none should have them. Mr. Mansfield argued as an attack upon West Hall, the only dormitory in a ballot box situations committee policy, and was seen also as being to direct concern for the ballot box problem for president, Gordon Gaster, who supported the ballot box bill.

Honor System Bill

The Senate passed the honor system amendment, which makes the provision requiring an honor code in the Student Body Constitution done at the request of Secretary of Honor Betty Ann Munroe. The Honor System Amendment wouldn't get student ratification if it included that requirement.

The amendment provides among other things for a minimum penalty of failure in the course in which cheating occurred and placement on probation. duration of which to be determined by the committee. It also prohibits offenders from holding office, scholarships or athletics.

Frosh Must See Counselors Soon

Second semester freshmen are asked to make appointments at once with their educational counselors.

For the purpose of summarizing first-year programs and making plans for the second year, the conferences are to begin now and conclude April 1.

Students who are sure of the name or location of their counselor should contact the office of Dean Councilor of Counseling, 301 Westcott, or call Extension 5321 or 5221.

These conferences must take place within the next three weeks announced Dr. Melvene Hardee, Coordinator of Counseling.

PHI DELT'S HONOR OUTSTANDING PLEDGE

Tom Barrows was awarded the Phi Delta Pledge Outstanding pledge award at the annual Founder's Day banquet held Tuesday night. Sam McKenzie, providence president from Atlanta, was the main speaker of the evening. Local alumni were guests of honor.

Initiated Sunday were Tom Barrows, Terry Barrows, Dick Bowden, Robert Glenn, Tim Lea, Jim Webb, Graham Treshler, Donald Noel and Hank McCann.

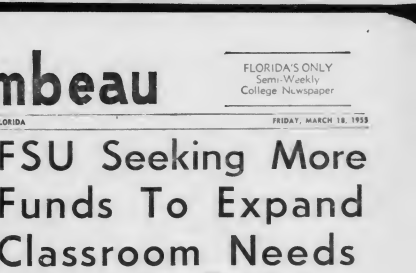
Candidate Letters Due Wednesday 12

Candidates in the Student Body Elections may turn in letters to the Florida Flambeau. Letters, which must to be before Wednesday noon, should be typed double spaced. They must not exceed 200 words.

Editor Bob Folsom said that letters exceeding the limit will be cut at the discretion of the editor.

Menzel Talks On Oysters For TV Series

Oysters and their continuous struggle for existence will be the problem," Joe Jones said in University television series over WSBB-TV, Channel 4, Jacksonville, Saturday at 3.30 p.m.



Dr. Robert W. Menzel of this FSU Oceanographic Institute will be the professor whose research involves detailed study of the oyster.

Entitled "The Professor and the Problem," the series has run for eleven weeks over the Jacksonville station. It has highlighted members of the faculty from most of the academic divisions of the university interpreting creative work or research directed by them.

Dr. Menzel will describe the gross anatomy of the oyster, the environment in which he lives, development of the oyster, and the primary enemies of the oyster in his battle for survival as the dominant life form on the ocean floors. He will have live specimens of oysters and their enemies displayed on film. The program will also feature films showing research projects currently being conducted at the Oceanographic Institute at Alligator Harbor.

The series will run for one more week, featuring Dr. Otis McBride of the Audio-Visual Department in a presentation involving seeing, hearing, and learning.

Programs are written, produced, and narrated by Roy Flynn, Director of Radio and Television.

Staff photo by Laird Anderson

Upcoming Drama . . . Rehearsing for the reading of T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral" are, l. to r., H. E. Bowen, Jack Lawler, Len the Marcie Rea Lee. The play is scheduled for Wednesday, March 23, at 8:15 p.m. in the auditorium of the new Demonstration School.

FSU Seeking More Funds To Expand Classroom Needs

Staff photo by Roger Herndon

This Is The Score . . . Frances Bailey Stokes, Chairman of the 1955 Sandpiper, discusses the production's music with writer Dave Ward-Steinman. Sandspur opens Tuesday, March 22 in Opperman at 8:15 p.m.

Two Dorms Included In New Plans

Florida State University officials are hoping to receive an additional $7,000,000 in building funds to relieve crowded conditions.

Three new class room buildings, two dorms, and expansion of the Student Center are on the agenda.

The State Budget Commission, in a move to determine whether FSU needed the buildings requested, sent a House and Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to study the campus.

Rent Being Paid

A Tampa Tribune story yesterday said that President Campbell would release funds on rent paid for office space by professors off campus. Vira President A. B. Martin, contacted at the Board of Control meeting in St. Petersburg yesterday, said he understood that the issue would not be discussed there.

Business Manager Rod K. Shaw had no figures where he could estimate the cost. Talks with President Campbell, Mr. Shaw continued, buildings would, among other things, replace the old frame building which now houses the Special Welfare Department. The buildings would also relieve crowded conditions existing now in classrooms and make space to move many offices off campus that are now off campus and paying rent.

These classroom buildings would be financed entirely from legislative funds.

The two new dormitory buildings—one for women and one for men—would be built only be partially financed by legislative funds, since it is partly self-liquidating.

The Student Center, badly in need of expansion would also be partly self-liquidating.

Board Approves

Additional sources said last night that the request for funds had been approved by the Board of Control and needed only legislative approval. The building commission would in no way be affected by the move.

Plans are being made now because of the time involved in transferring the revenue bonds. Sources said that even if it were approved now it would take about two years before any construction could begin.

It couldn't be said that of the money requested, over $ 5 million of it would come from general revenue while only 2 million dollars would come from other sources such as revenue certificates.

Members

Members of the subcommittee on campus to determine whether the buildings are unobtainable in the new Senator Verle Pope of St. Auttustine; Rep Mallory Horne of Panama City; Sam Gibbons, Hillsborough Rep. Wayne Land Apopka; and Rep. Eli Roberts, Palatka, Rep.

University Museum Features Exhibition On Japan 'Writing'

By Charlet Polsterini

Want to learn about Japanese writing?

Then see "Japanese Sign and Symbol," an exhibit of the written language or "calligraphy" now open at the University Museum.

Various Japanese writing tools, books, magazines and manuscripts are being shown in the museum, located in the Seminole Club.

Japanese writing is featured in the exhibit from its earliest stages through writing on bamboo to its later developments in decorative scrolls and modern books.

Lensen Collection

Dr. George Lensen, assistant professor of History, owns the unique relics which he collected while in Japan on a Fulbright research grant.

Although the emphasis of the new exhibit is on the history and decorative use of the Japanese written language as a basis of culture, Dr. Lensen's special interest is the influence of Russian culture on Japanese civilization.

His doctoral dissertation, a study of Russia's expedition into Japan from 1852 to 1855, was accepted by the University of Florida Press for publication.

The young educator began acquiring his wide knowledge of the Orient at Columbia University where he took his M A and Ph.D. degrees in the department of Chinese and Japanese.

The exhibition will be open to the public until July 1.

Power Failure Darkens Area Monday Night

Approximately half the campus experienced electrical power failure Monday night. The condition was soon restored to normal through the efforts of the engineering crew.

According to Bill Townsend, electrical superintendent, the power failure was caused when a transformer burned out in the library. The transformer had been exposed to such an added amount of pressure that it "just couldn't take any more" said Townsend.

The situation affected most of the south end of the East Campus, including Westcott Building, Science Building, History Building, the Library and Gilchrist, Landis, and Reynolds dormitories.

The performance of "The Cruicible" in the Conradi Theater was interrupted temporarily, but continued when lighting was restored.

A larger transformer was installed to carry the additional electrical load until the new library can be completed. At that time Mr. Townsend said the old library will be remodeled into classrooms, and completely revised.

Patterson Speaks To Politics Club Wednesday At 8

The Honorable Giles J Patterson will speak to the Politics Club next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Lossmire Auditorium.

Mr. Patterson is Chairman of the Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar of the Florida Bar.

He is a past president of the Florida State Bar Association and one of the finest lawyers in the state. Graduate of Harvard Irish heag of the Political Science department, Mr. Patterson is the author of books and articles on legal subjects and has devoted his time, during his recent years, to the subject of legal ethics.

Tom Waits Elected Head Cheerleader For Coming Season

Tommy Waits is the new head cheerleader for the 1955-56 season. Other members of his squad are Pat Harris, Jo Kirkland, Sarah Hamsley, "Sticks" Richardson, and Margaret Ann Ballinger. Two freshmen will be selected for the squad next fall to replace Betty Ann Munroe and Ellen Allen, graduating seniors.

The cheerleaders have been in training for a week, in practice for the Garnet and Gold game this Friday.

A Scholarly Chemist . . . Dr Karl Dittmer, FSU chemistry department, presents a book award to Richard G Pittman, Jr., Freshman, who compiled a 99 average in chemistry first semester, in a field of 350 students.

Word Of Mouth Isn't Always Right

The success or failure of a student production on this campus is not always due to the merits of the production itself. It is a sad but true fact that students voice opinions condemning something they haven't yet seen, because they attended a student production once, and found it not to their liking.

We refer to the coming Sandapaw show, and current controversy which sees the premise that Sandapaw flopped two years and now many reach the illogical conclusion that this year's performance will not be worth going to.

We should like to commend the effort and work which has attended this production in the making for the past several months, and at the same time express our confidence in the ability of the cast to present a noteworthy, if not professional, show. If the students do not give moral and attendance support to their own events, who will?

'Reds' Are Increasing

We have noticed an increasing number of reds on campus lately.

No, Joe, not Reds; reds. The difference is that one group are communists—the others are sunburned.

Before last weekend our hearts were filled with sympathy for those whom, we felt, had used "bad judgment" in staying in the sun too long. We sympathized with those miserable creatures who tottered around campus on screaming scarlet legs, or who winced in agony when their raw backs met those unyielding chair backs.

But we must confess we maintained a slight air of superiority all the while. We had been careful. We had not made a mistake.

Then, after this past weekend, we decided rather abruptly that no amount of intelligence, foresight or caution will prevent sunburn. We got fried ourselves.

Still, we will concede no defeat in the matter. We deem it our duty to lend the benefit of experience to the entire campus population. Here is how to become a red:

DO: Take along a long-sleeved shirt and trousers when you go out in the sun.

DON'T: Put them on.

DO: Take along sunlan oil.

DON'T: Put it on until you notice a red tinge to your skin.

DO: Go on the beach as long as it's good and hot.

DON'T: Leave before you have to.

DO: Catch up on your sleep at the beach.

DON'T: Turn over while doing so.

DO: Occasionally refresh your skin with a layer of saltwater, sand and small shell pieces.

Tongue And Cheek

Tally-Ho Needs A Shot In The Arm

By CON HORN

Everyone realizes that the best publicity a school can have is its yearbook. This is what hurts Florida and should hurt you as to FSU, it's probably the most disheartening picture of campus life a person can hold in his hand, and when we try and remember 20 years after graduation, we would be lost without it.

It is my personal belief, and I think you will all eventually concur, that if and when the 1955 Tally-Ho comes out, although completed and complete, it will lack the attraction of the publications of other schools, our size and even smaller. As much as I would like to assume a position of Olympian omniscience and patronizingly ridicule the efforts of the Tally-Ho, which would certainly be a lot easier —I cannot. For only too obviously the Tally-Ho is more to be pitied than censured." It needs a shot in the arm...what that would be remains a question; humor, dummy—I do not pretend to know.

I think however, that there are individuals on this campus who WOULD know, and if we could only get them to WORK on the Tally-Ho, we could increase amazingly. Those individuals are badly needed on the small, inexperienced staff.

Therefore I would suggest to the administration that, as much as they hate to spend money and I can appreciate their hesitancy when I look at some of the rash expenditures of the Senate, which seems to me to be directly to throw away money before it gets spent, that would be highly beneficial to the university if more emphasis were adopted whereby many more of the minor others on the annual were SALESMEN pure and simple.

There is not the incentive to work on the yearbook that there is for a journalism major to put any reward or recognition. The need to offer some sort of inducement to get competent, constructive workers for the Tally-Ho. I'm hoping that measures are already being taken in this direction.

SOUR GRAPES DEPT.: Bob McKillop of the Tally-Ho, it seems that after almost all the fraternity pictures had been taken this year, and after the Tally-Ho deadline, the ATO's Honorary Sweetheart Betty Willmon in the Inaugural Ball ceremony. Hot dog! What next?

LET'S START AN ARGUMENT DEPT.: Since the Tally-Ho and Smoke Signals will never get around to it, I'll start a Best-Dressed Gal on Campus list with the names of senior Connie Coleman, freshman Layte Bowden, who always manage to look cool, calm, and well-collected. Mmmmboy.

DON'T: Bother to rinse off in fresh water.

For those who are already sunburned, and would like to get over it so they can begin the whole glorious process all over again, we offer the following advice:

DO: Proudly display your redness as a mark of distinction.

DON'T: Cover it up with any of the preparations designed to ease the pain.

DON'T: Go to the Infirmary. There you have to wait until it's gone.

DON'T: Forget to go right back for more.

DO: Wear woolen skirts or trousers, as nothing else will make your sunburn feel—it can only be expressed in the French "si bon".

DON'T: Neglect that hriak walk to class every morning. This will loosen the tight skin of your sunburn. Everybody likes loose skin.

No Denying This (We Hope)

The State Budget Commission cannot determine whether FSU "needs the new buildings" requested. They have asked a House and Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to study our facilities.

The committee was on campus the last few days, and it is no secret that their report will determine whether FSU will get additional funds for buildings and expanding facilities.

We do not know just what factors will determine the final report, but we think that among the many committee members, none will deny that we need at least one new building—a replacement for the white-framed Social Welfare Building. It's only 110 years old.

Those Dirty Ballot Boxes

Student Senate witnessed the heights of arrogancy at Wednesday's meeting. Senator Fred Mansfield demanded the Senate unanimously request the elections committee not to place ballot boxes in any dormitory.

He said that since they couldn't be placed in all dormitories, it would be unfair to have a box in any one case.

His attack was obviously aimed at West Hall, whose great distance from the campus and large population make a box almost mandatory.

The resolution for which Senator Mansfield demanded a unanimous vote died a quick and merited death. No one even seconded it.

Happy To Comply

A reader has written in requesting a copy of The Florida Flambeau be placed on a centrally-located bulletin board, because some are not able to get a paper before they give out.

We are happy to comply with this request. Starting today, a copy will be placed on the bulletin board in front of Longmire Building.

We ask that no one remove it.

"He's Perfectly Healthy — Just Terribly Sensitive"

At the Cinema

A Bit Of Realism

By TANN HAMMOND

An honest, realistic movie has come to town. Battle Cry, a war picture best-seller recently has been filmed by Warner Brothers in Cinemascope -but then what hasn't been since Hollywood discovered the large screen?.

A war story based on actual events, Battle Cry stars an impressive list of Hollywood's best, old and new. Van Heflin, Aldo Ray, Mona Freeman, Nancy Olson, James Whitmore, Raymond Massey, Tab Hunter, Dorothy Malone, and Anne Francis take the leads in this World War II epic which plays through Tuesday at the Florida Theater.

What will make a Battle Cry seem even better is the program at the State Theater this weekend. Dodge City, a fairly blameless Errol Flynn movie, and along...is the setting for another garbled western. Damsel in distress, honest sheriff, a villain, and more cattle and Indians than you can count, make up the plot of Masterson of Kansas.

The only redeeming feature of this Joyable evening spent with Masterson of Kansas is its featuremate, Pirates of Tripoli. Jewels, booia, and sword, the plot's like that always.

The redeeming features are Paul Henreid and Patricia Medina. Henreid has for years been recognized as one of the best supporting actors in Hollywood. Watch to see how he does as a heel. Patricia Medina's acting is of an unknown quality, but she is sexy looking—enough to hold some people.

Music takes over at the Ritz Theater Friday and Saturday with The Young Caruso. The voice of Caruso is done by Metropolitan Opera star, Mario Del Monaco who is famous for his silent songs as Caruso was Caruso, in the flesh, is played by Ermanno Randi in this American biography. Romantic interest is handled by Gina Lollobrigida who has seen here last week in Times Gone By. Dean Jagger, Ann Blyth, Jim Backus, Eleanodra Rossi Drago, Blue eyes and sex, it ends like a Shakespeare tragedy. Why not?

Reflections

'Fight' Altered To 'Flight' In Song

By OSCAR JOHNSON

We could hardly let 1955 pass without some sort of memorable occasion. This year is the fifth anniversary of the Florida State University Fight Song.

Word, to the Fight Song were written by Florida graduate, umnist Doug Alley, on Oct. 6, 1930, and were later set to music by Alfred Antonini, FSU Music School. Since these words have been one of the songs along the coast to check up on the fifth anniversary should be marked by some kind of concern ourselves with trivial matters around here.

Consequently, we present our slightly altered version, which might be more appropriately named the "FSU Flight Song":

We're going to run, run, run, from FSU—
We're heading out to 'Gator Town.
You get to swim, swim, swim, and win, win, win!
And really wreck the joint.
For FSU is set to sweep it up
Those coast parties are pretty great—

So fight, flirt, flirt, flirt, flirt, flight to eat that elam.
You Seminoles from Florida State!

In case any faculty members have read the foregoing, we ask that the Florida Flambeau is inciting a revolution. The purpose of the Fight Song is to build up school spirit.

Now that the annual observation has come and gone, along the coast to check up on the fifth anniversary should be marked here and there, it is only right that we retaliate. The Flight Song can become quite catchy also.

We realize that the provision for supervision of the coast was put into the Florida Constitution by the faculty revision committee. Still, we are inclined to view it with suspicion. Actually we aren't too sure about such a provision. It does seem to remember something of the sort.

In days to come, if a professor refuses to allow a student to head for the coast instead of the History Building,

Returning to the TV situation, we feel that although the law makers have every reason to assume that duplicate TV facilities would cost the tax payers money, we cannot see how any group can arbitrarily assign one university have a monopoly over a law to stop the other from having such facilities.

If the institutions of higher learning in Florida are to progress for "separate but equal" opportunities to students, then it stands to reason that, if not now, at least in the near future, FSU should set a TV station.

We have here some superlacked by UF that, in time, out of state students. Although with TV and other facilities we are sure that even more students will leave their home states to come to Florida.

But even more important, it is unfair to penalize students who choose this university for its educational values by excluding them the values of an educational TV station right here on campus. UF has never stopped trying to draw more student matter by any means possible, but to do this without the aid of the elected officials is not circled.

The Dissenter

Stock The Fountain With Piranha

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

For each thing that is said in this way into print, there are thousands of events and comments that can't be called to attention—some of them humorous, some of them sad, but worthy of mention. This column today will be devoted to those little things.

A fellow Flambeau staff member and I were riding back to campus on West Call Avenue two days ago, around 2:00 a.m., when we spotted a hapless out—but she'd never get to bed in time.

"Anjhoe, I said 'Hello' to her and she responded with 'Hello, Mr. Dyckman.'

"If we could but see ourselves as others see us."

Student Senate, regardless of its many bitter disappointments, occasionally interposes a good laugh now and then.

During the argument over whether or not dormitories should have ballot boxes, Senator Ken Gatlin, a day student, took the floor and vanied to know why he (a day student) couldn't have a ballot box in the Union.

He sarcastically added that he had a further suggestion. Why not have the Tallahassee Bus Company run a bus from the corner of West College and Monroe to accommodate all the day students who work on Tuesday and don't come to campus to vote?

* * *

No one wants to deprive the fraternities and sororities of their rights, but since they have born members in water, but the Florida Flambeau protest the non motorcades attendant to these Westcott Fountain christenings.

One of them, obviously lacking in respect for tradition but also in a desirable sense of humor, suggested that Westcott Fountain be stocked with piranha, a small, man-eating tropical fish.

* * *

The Tallahasee Democrat, in a front page story Monday, devoted to the Kindergarten-through-college groups' Education Week, had a boo-boo in his box reading: "Dear Mr. Editor, I wish you would..." Signed, the women of FSU.

Etcetera Etchings

Trend Is Toward Rhythm And Blues

By DAVID DREIS

If you're a record-burner—or a record listener too (uh-well—you know what I mean) you've noticed that there is a trend present in rhythm and blue. Well, on this present list of the top hits the R&B tempo is being done not by the artists who have made their names in this jazzed-up music, but the popular artists. What I mean is that (Ka - Ka - Mo) and Georgia Gibbs (Tweedle-Dee), Oh, yes, Faith Angel has hit with Teen Penguins, but it's indeed rare that The Crew Cuts are giving them somewhat of a joust for the top coin on this tuna sea level.

The point we're making is that the top song and instrumental stylings know a new way to move in the direction the country is going for. At least, if not they, then their music boss is.

It wasn't out of the ordinary for Vaughn Monroe to make his best selling disc in years with They Were Doin' The Mambo. At that time the nation was Mambo-crazy and in some quarters it still exists. At any rate, RCA Victor was truly been on the ball and to satisfy the hold-overs on mambo tunes, Perez Prado has hit the top several times, the latest around song to "Underwater" and Sammy Kaye's Apple Blossom White. Now that Ralph Marterie's Dary Crewtick is number three on the top hits parade and this from nowhere the trend, we feel, is the ballad-type song and Victor is again making ready pushing its stock of Merry Mailman Music, one of Arlotte's success at calypso rhythm and his latest popularity since Carmen Jones, has scored his interest ten-fold.

The instrumental field was busy at one time with the Ames Bros., Ray Anderson, Percy Faith, Paul Weston and Richard Hayman appearing on the roster. Roby, The Song From Moulin Rouge, Anna, Rich Girl and Faraway Hills, and others were being jumped on. Motion pictures were a great source of instrumental hits that year as well.

So, we admit there are trends, so what? Well, this is what? The major labels aren't going to risk their laundry on something they don't think will hit. Hit records are becoming easier to predict and you realize that artists appearing on records these days must indeed be versatile to meet with sur-

Lately It Seems

UF Wants To Corner TV Market

By ORCHID ALONSO

The Television Committee of the Florida Legislative Council has recommended an educational television station at the University of Florida.

The committee proposed that the legislature enact a law that would prohibit any other state institution of higher learning from having an educational TV station.

President Doak S. Campbell said recently that to exclude FSU from such television station facilities would be silly. He said FSU would serve the various state departments and could be of tremendous service in that respect as well as developing educational TV.

Under the plan proposed by the State Budget Commission, however, it would be impossible at the present for FSU to request TV funds. In fact, under the budget proposed, many things would have to go by.

Wednesday House and Senate appropriations subcommittee members said they cannot put up to set a first hand picture of whether the university's request for building funds are "musi" items for the next biennium.

Music takes over at the Ritz Theater Friday and Saturday with The Young Caruso. The voice of Caruso is done by Metropolitan Opera star, Mario Del Monaco who is famous for his silent songs as Caruso was Caruso, in the flesh, is played by Ermanno Randi in this American biography. Romantic interest is handled by Gina Lollobrigida who has seen here last week in Times Gone By. Dean Jagger, Ann Blyth, Jim Backus, Eleanodra Rossi Drago, Blue eyes and sex, it ends like a Shakespeare tragedy. Why not?

Logic

To the Editor:

As I read the editorial of today's Flambeau, I was struck with the humor and pathos of the situation into which you have fallen, perhaps without realization; or perhaps with full intent.

It is interesting to note that you declare that the writings of the columnist do not necessarily represent the paper's viewpoint in any way." This I take to mean that The Florida Flambeau is unbiased in its presentation of the facts contained aloof from the Greek-Independent dispute—this as an example. Furthermore, it seems that with this statement you are stating that you are not and will not be responsible for the articles composed by the columnists, that they are free presentations. All of this I consider to be the best of journalism. I believe that your stand on this is above reproach and that the basis of the policy is clear and evident.

However, in your defense of the columnist you are enormous their stand. In fact you go so far as to declare: "What they have done is to bring to light a manifestly unfair situation." This is a definite commitment to the conflict in any way of thinking. How can this was intentional, if you declare to take this position: I commend you, but please come out and say so rather than crawling in a defense of something still which you maintain no responsibility. If it was unintentional, your logic is deplorable.

May I take this opportunity to say that it is a pleasure to see our editorial column filled with editorials concerning FSU rather than Secretary of State Dulles or the far eastern crisis. I feel that such information is available to the student body in the papers in the library and on the newsstands. We cannot set editorial opinion concerning such matters in a place where else except in The Flambeau.

Sincerely yours,
JERRY JONES '55

Ed's note: We commend your letter. We thought the points was clear, however. The editorial said: "does not necessarily represent the paper's viewpoint." Staying within this interpretation we can agree or disagree with any of our columnists. Therefore, the point is misinterpreted—a manifestly unfair situation"—shows our position.

Letters To The Flambeau

Our Institutions

To the Editor:

Evidently the American Studies seminar was created to a significant talk last Thursday. Apparently it amounted to this radicals since 1918 aren't what they used to be because they all got governmental jobs. This I can believe. And since our institutions have become radicalized, there is no point in any more such voices erring in the wilderness as the W.W. Sacco and Vanzetti, et al. There is no need for a revolution. Our institutions are carrying it on splendidly.

Sincerely
VAN G. PETERSON

Tally-Ho Needs A Shot In The Arm

By CON HORN

Everyone realizes that the best publicity a school can have is its yearbook. This is what hurts Florida and should hurt you as to FSU, it's probably the most disheartening picture of campus life a person can hold in his hand, and when we try and remember 20 years after graduation, we would be lost without it.

It is my personal belief, and I think you will all eventually concur, that if and when the 1955 Tally-Ho comes out, although completed and complete, it will lack the attraction of the publications of other schools, our size and even smaller. As much as I would like to assume a position of Olympian omniscience and patronizingly ridicule the efforts of the Tally-Ho, which would certainly be a lot easier —I cannot. For only too obviously the Tally-Ho is more to be pitied than censured." It needs a shot in the arm...what that would be remains a question; humor, dummy—I do not pretend to know.

I think however, that there are individuals on this campus who WOULD know, and if we could only get them to WORK on the Tally-Ho, we could increase amazingly. Those individuals are badly needed on the small, inexperienced staff.

Therefore I would suggest to the administration that, as much as they hate to spend money and I can appreciate their hesitancy when I look at some of the rash expenditures of the Senate, which seems to me to be directly to throw away money before it gets spent, that would be highly beneficial to the university if more emphasis were adopted whereby many more of the minor others on the annual were SALESMEN pure and simple.

There is not the incentive to work on the yearbook that there is for a journalism major to put any reward or recognition. The need to offer some sort of inducement to get competent, constructive workers for the Tally-Ho. I'm hoping that measures are already being taken in this direction.

SOUR GRAPES DEPT.: Bob McKillop of the Tally-Ho, it seems that after almost all the fraternity pictures had been taken this year, and after the Tally-Ho deadline, the ATO's Honorary Sweetheart Betty Willmon in the Inaugural Ball ceremony. Hot dog! What next?

LET'S START AN ARGUMENT DEPT.: Since the Tally-Ho and Smoke Signals will never get around to it, I'll start a Best-Dressed Gal on Campus list with the names of senior Connie Coleman, freshman Layte Bowden, who always manage to look cool, calm, and well-collected. Mmmmboy.

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor
Jay Robertson, News Editor

Asst. News Editors ..... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors ..... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ..... Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor ..... David Dreis
Photographer ..... Laird Anderson
Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Cox
Assistant Exchange Editor ..... Joan Halford
Exchange Staff ..... Susan Hyde
Members of Alpha Phi Omega
Typesetters ..... Members of Alpha Phi Omega

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
311, 313 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Circulation Mgrs. ..... Pat Marston, Willis Smith
Rewrite Editor ..... Margaret Ann Cox
Art Consultant ..... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist ..... Con Horn
Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradfield, Charlet Polsinelli, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Lis King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff ..... Frank Triller, Nina Rylo,
Business Staff ..... Jeanetta Puckett, Mary Dressler
Published semi-weekly by the Florida Flambeau Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

"Ok, you guys! Let's quit clowning around with that shot put!"

1955 Spring Gridders—1st row, l. to r., Tom Feamster, Ted Rodrique, Al Pacifico, Coaches Owen Hale, Vaughn Mancha, Frank Toomey, Tom Nugent, Wynn Siegfried, Vincent Ragunas and Bob Harbison, Bobby Morris, Bill Odom, Vince Sisson and Jimmy Trado. 2nd row, l to r., Bob Baggett, Bill Mustellman, John Craig, Don Powell, Pat Versprille, Junior Metts, Bud Leonard, Bill Weaver, Bubba Bisbee, Bob Crenshaw, Buddy Reynolds, Harold Cummings, Carmen Battaglia and Len Swantic. 3rd row, l. to r., Bill Proctor, Ron Schomberger, Jerry Daniels, Steve Dean, Joe Holt, Sam Walden, Jim Young, Ray Staab, Hobo Ackerman, Gene Cox, Windell Satterfield, Mike Norman, Billy Swilley, Bill Kicklighter and Bob Elliott. 4th row, l. to r., Sammy Moates (mgr.), Troy Barnes, Winston Parsons, Norman Olson, Ed Kercher, John Griner, Bill Gardner, Vic Prinzi, Lee Corso, Jerry Henderson, Emil Abood, Ron Weiherington, Jerry Jacobs, Pete Overton, and Charlie Chester (mgr).

Photo by Cecil DeMille

Grid Clash Begins At 8 P.M. In Doak Campbell Stadium

The most eager and per-haps hardest-hitting Florida State football squad ever assembled splits up tonight at FSU's annual spring game, Garnet and Gold intrasquad game.

The full-speed regulation game, to be Doak S. Campbell Stadium at 8 p.m., climaxes five weeks of actual practice sessions — if spring can be said.

Practice will go toward sus-taining FSU's athletic scholarship fund.

Head Coach Tom Nugent has divided his 52-man squad into as evenly balanced teams as possible. The game, expected to draw a good-sized audience, is a virtual toss-up.

The teams clashed in a Garnet-Gold preview a week ago and the result was a 14-13 victory won by the Garnets on the last play of the most spirited intrasquad game at FSU in years.

The Garnets and Golds have worked secretly at different locations all week and have drummed up a good-natured feud for the final spring session. There will be 24 lettermen sprinkled through-out the lineups.

A bruising, driving game is in the offing. With the exception of this week when the teams polished up their offense, the Semi-noles have worked only on de-fense, with the emphasis on tack-ling.

The least biased on-looker will be Nugent, who will watch the proceedings from the press box as Assistant Coaches Vaughn Mancha, Vince Ragunas and Owen Hale will coach the Garnets, and Bob Harbison, Win Siegfried and Frank Toomey will handle the Golds.

The Seminoles will elect 1955 captains before the game and the results will be announced at half-time. A special halftime show, featuring a giant fireworks display and an exhibition by State's gymnastics team, is also on the program.

Probable starting lineups:

GARNETS	Pos.	GOLDS
Schomberger (199)	LE	Gardner (175)
Daniels (190)	LT	Barbee (196)
Baggett (195)	LG	Jacobs (205)
Brown (200)	C	Crenshaw (175)
Barnes (188)	RG	Griner (190)
Kicklighter (189)	RT	Prinzi (175)
Staab (185)	RE	Feamster (220)
Versprille (189)	QB	Priest (175)
Young (170)	LH	Odom (185)
Reynolds (180)	RH	Morris (190)
Holt (180)	FB	Leonard (190)

FSU Baseball Team Active

Florida State's baseball Semi-noles, fresh from a two-game sweep of Florida Southern, open their home schedule here today against Southern Conference pow-er Furman.

The clash is set for 3:30 on FSU's East Campus diamond and will mark the first of 12 straight home affairs for Coach Denny Litschler's Indians.

All in all, it'll be a busy week-end of diamond activity for the Tribe. Saturday afternoon a unique double-header is on tap at downtown Centennial Field with Furman and Louisiana State the opponents.

Tribe Tennis, Golf Teams See Action Today Tomorrow

Florida State's tennis and golf teams pull the string on one of FSU's most crowded sports weekends here today and tomorrow against teams from the Southeastern and South-western Conferences.

Coach Don Veller's undefeat-ed Seminole golfers will tee off against Auburn at Tallahassee Country Club Saturday after-noon.

State's all-letterman tennis team, coached by Keith Pitch-ford, engages the Auburn net squad on FSU's varsity courts.

Seminole golfers have disposed of Rollins and Maxwell Field in their previous starts this spring.

FSU sports events this week:

Today—Baseball vs. Furman, East Campus diamond, 3:30 p.m.; golf vs. Auburn, Tallahassee Country Club, 2 p.m.; tennis vs. Auburn, varsity courts, 2 p.m.

Saturday—Baseball, vs. Furman, dou-ble-header, 1:30 p.m.; golf vs. Auburn, Tallahassee Country Club, 11 a.m.; swim-ming—at Florida A&U, Gainesville; volleyball at Florida A&U, St. Petersburg.

'CinemaScope' Shot

Any organization which de-sires a group picture, similar to to one appearing today, should contact Cecil D. DeMille, Box 2502, campus, for an appoint-ment.

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer is responsible for design analysis of $3,000,000 turbine-generators

The average large steam turbine-generator costs $3,000,000 and takes two years to build. It is one of the biggest pieces of electrical equipment made. Yet its thousands of parts are put together as carefully as a fine watch. Even a small change in design can affect the stresses and vibration of the turbine, and the way it performs. At General Electric, several men share the responsibility of pre-dicting those effects before the turbine is built. One of them is 29-year-old E. E. Zwicky, Jr.

His job: analytical engineer

Here's what Ted Zwicky does. He takes a proposed mechanical design feature, de-scribes it mathematically, breaks it down into digestible bits, modifies it, and feeds it to electronic computers. (It may take two months to set up a problem; the computers usually solve it in twenty minutes.) Then Zwicky takes the answers from the com-puters, translates and interprets them so they can be followed by design engineers.

23,000 college graduates at General Electric

This is a responsible job. Zwicky was readied for it in a careful program of development. Like Zwicky, each of our 23,000 college-graduate employees is given a chance to find the work he does best and to realize his full potential. For General Electric believes this: When young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the in-dividual, the company, and the country.

TED ZWICKY, B. S. '50 and '51 from the Uni-versity of New Mexico, Class of 1951, joined General Electric after a year in the Navy, completed our Advanced Engineering Program in 1950.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Today let us investigate a phenomenon of American college life called the student council. First of all, what is the student council? The answer is simple: the student council is a council of students.

Next, what does the student council do? Again the answer is simple: it meets.

Next, what goes on at the meetings? This question is rather more complicated than the others. Perhaps it can best be an-swered by reproducing here the minutes of a typical meeting of a typical student council.

Meeting scheduled for 8:30 p.m. at Student Union Building. Call to order 9:51 p.m. by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Motion to adjourn made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative. Motion ruled out of order by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Hunrath Sigafoos called "old poop" by Louis Bicuspid, fresh-man representative. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding.

Minutes of last meeting read by Zelda Pope-Toledo, secretary. Motion to accept minutes made by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding. Motion defeated.

Treasurer's report not read because Rex Mercredi, treasurer, not present at meeting. Rex Mercredi, treasurer, impeached in absentia.

Motion made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative, to allow sale of hard liquor in school cafeteria. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Motion tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, old poop.

Motion made by Booth Fishery, fraternity representative, to permit parking in library. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Gladye Algae, junior representative, to allow attendance in pajamas and robes at first hour classes. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Elwood Feldspar, athletics representative, to conduct French Conversation classes in English. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Esme Plankton, sorority representative, to allow hypnosis during Rush Week. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Pierre Clemenceau, foreign exchange student, to conduct German Conversation classes in French. Motion referred to committee.

Motion made by Harriet Critter, ag campus representative, to allow faculty members above the rank of assistant professor to perform marriages. Motion referred to committee.

Observation made by Martha Involute, senior representative, that in her four years no student council every motion referred to committee was never heard of again. Miss Involute was tabled.

Motion made by Louis Bicuspid, freshman representative, to allow sale of hard liquor in Sociology I and II. Seconded by Delores Wheatgerm, sophomore representative. Motion tabled by Hunrath Sigafoos, presiding crossly.

Refreshments served. Coffee, cake, Philip Morris Cigarettes. The following resolution adopted by acclamation:

"WHEREAS Philip Morris is milder, tastier, more exhila-rating, and chock full of rare rich vintage tobaccos; and WHEREAS Philip Morris is contained in the patented Snap-Open pack which is the quickest, simplest, neatest container yet devised for cigarettes; and WHEREAS Philip Morris, the most commendable of smokes in the most admirable of wrappings, is available in both king-size and regular; therefore BE IT RESOLVED that it is the sense of this meeting that Philip Morris is far and away the best cigarette buy on this or any other campus."

Meeting adjourned with many a laugh and cheer at 9:58.

Respectfully submitted,
Zelda Pope-Toledo, Secretary

©Max Shulman 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, who bring you this column, more than today's PHILIP MORRIS is the best ever. We know you'll second the motion.

. . . something exciting is happening,

Vardi

brings you a jewelry show by Fred Metzke of F.S.U. running through March 23.

IMPORTS by VARDI

106 w. jefferson street

(One block south of the College Ave. Colonial Store)

Tallahassee, Florida

Sport Car Fashions

by Cover Girl dress flats by PALMA

THE CIRCE

☆ Black Patent
☆ White Kid
☆ Pink Kid
☆ Turquoise Kid
☆ Lilac Kid

7.95

The New Low Open Look
Racy And Smart As
The Latest "Jag" Still
With The Steady Comfort
Of A Cadillac.

THE NEW CONVERTIBLE

☆ Black Kid
☆ Navy Kid
☆ Red Kid
☆ Yellow Kid
☆ Pink Kid
☆ Turquoise Kid
☆ White Kid
☆ Black Suede

7.95

The strap on the Convertible can be removed for wear as a Pump, or turned over for Contrasting Two-Tone. The new Convertible is low-er Heel, new last, with a new type lining and taped binding.

Ours Alone

MILLER'S Bootery College Ave.

PKPI AND SK'S SPONSOR DANCE

Friday night, March 18, the Bama Kappa Sorority and the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity are co-sponsoring a Candlelight Dance at the Student Center from 8:30 to 11:30. Music for the informal dance will be provided by the Juke box.

WATER SAFETY INSTRUCTORS COURSE TO BEGIN TUESDAY

A Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course will start Tuesday, March 29, at 8 p.m. in the Women's Gym. The class will meet on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Only those persons holding valid Senior Life Saving Certificates are eligible to enroll.

OPEN DANCE NIGHTLY
To Popular Music At The
V. F. W. CLUB
(FORMER QUINCIANA)
To the Music of "THE STARLIGHTERS"
SATURDAY NIGHTS—9:00 'TIL
West Jefferson St. Quincy, Fla.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
Today Thru Tuesday
"Battle Cry"
VAN MEFLIN
ALDO RAY
MONA FREEMAN
NANCY OLSON
RAYMOND MASSEY
TAB HUNTER
in CINEMASCOPE

STATE
Today & Tomorrow
"Masterson of Kansas"
George Montgomery
plus
"Pirates of Tripoli"
Paul Henreid
Patricia Medina
SAT. ONLY—COWBOY MATINEE
"South Pacific Trail"

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
Today & Tomorrow
"Racing Blood"
Bill Williams
Jean Porter
plus
"El Alamein"
Scott Brady
Rita Moreno

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow
"Tulsa"
Susan Hayward
plus
"Killer Ape"
Johnny Weismuller

RITZ — Today & Tomorrow
"THE YOUNG CARUSO"
GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA ERNANO RANDI

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER AND ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. ST.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

DINE AT THE FRIENDLY Quaker House
DINNERS · LUNCHEONS · SHORT ORDERS
at the COUNTER, on the CURB, or at your Door
Your Favorite Splits . Sodas . Sandwiches . or Sundaes
Made As YOU Like Them
PHONE 2-8677 NO BEER SERVED
• OPEN 6 A.M. TO MIDNIGHT
• SEVEN DAYS A WEEK
• LOCATED ON W. TENN.

Contest Aimed At Prospective TV Writers Open To Students

A new $4,000 Christopher contest1000 words long, typed, and should open to all college students in the United States and Canada was announced this week.

Aimed at prospective television writers, the contest seeks story ideas for the public service Christopher program presented over 256 television stations each week.

Prizes are $1000, first; $750, second; $500, third; $250, fourth, and 15 additional prizes of $100 each. Choice of subject is limited to four: "Teenagers Can Shape The Future," "Improving Labor Relations," "Earnings and Property Rights of All" and "Changing the World Through The Housewife."

Sponsors said that entries should be in story form and have enough dramatic interest to serve as a script which would "have wide appeal for the general TV audience."

Each story should also reflect powerful motivation that springs from love of God and others, said sponsors, rather than from protection of self. Entries should be

Address of the sponsor is "Christopher College Student Contest," 18 East 48th Street, New York 17, New York." Additional information is available in the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott.

THETA CHI PREXY

Walter Wilson Jr. is the new president of Theta Chi fraternity at FSU. Other officers chosen are Robert Scarbrough, vice-president; Rick Hubert, secretary; Glayden Schaefer treasurer; Richard Hancock, chaplain; Ron Tevlin, social chairman; and Mike Tschirret, pledge marshall.

The ten pledges recently initiated are Skip Hibbard, Jerry Iverson, Owen McCarron, Lee Miller, Dick Crawford, Coleman Davis, and Ed Hinson, Jerry O'Leary, Ariel "Breeby" Davies, and LaVern Williams.

The Theta Chis honored Yma Sumac and Moises Vivanco, her husband, at a dinner on March 9th.

Pi Beta Phi's To Sponsor Workshop During Summer

Courses in weaving, enameling, metal work, jewelry, pottery, decorative design, and recreational crafts are being offered both for college credit and non-credit, June 13 to July 15.

The eleventh annual Craft Workshop in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, is sponsored by Pi Beta Phi and the University of Tennessee.

Graduate and undergraduate credit is granted through the extension department of the University. Students may attend for the full or half-sessions, with room and board accommodations at the Pi Beta Phi Settlement School in the Great Smoky Mountains, announced Jean Tatel, president of the FSU chapter of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Further information may be obtained by writing to Pi Beta Phi School, Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

FSU Contracts AF For Weather Study On $25 000 Grant

A two-year contract between Florida State University and the Air Force Cambridge Research Center for study of tropical weather phenomena has been increased about $25,000 and extended for another year.

Dr. Werner Baum, Meteorology head, reported that the work would involve airplane reconnaissance into hurricanes and other tropical weather systems to obtain information for further study and analysis.

The Air Force will supply military aircraft, and the work will be directed primarily by Dr. Leon Sherman and Dr. N. E. La Seur of the FSU Department of Meteorology.

The program will continue until July 31, 1956 with most of the funds used to support graduate students participating in analysis and evaluation of data.

LAMBDA CHIS INITIATE 11

Recently initiated members of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity are John Ware, James Heagerty, Rod Smith, John Sinclair, Robert Means, Green Harrison, J. D. Lauer, Carrol Pordham, James Davis, Robert David and Paul Boven.

Church News

NEWMANS INSTALL 1955 OFFICERS

Members of the Newman Student House will hold installation of officers for the current year Sunday, March 20, at 7:30 p.m.

The new officers are Charlie Jacobs, re-elected president; Edward Quinlan, first vice-president; Esther Pendleton, second vice-president; Kathy Friedheim, treasurer; Roland Taylor, parliamentarian, and Morrie Hamilton, freshman advisor.

RUGE HALL NAMES OFFICERS

New officers and Vestry of the Episcopal Student Center for the coming year are Bert Miller, president; John Wave, vice-president; Ann Wall, secretary; Spencer Roods, treasurer; Del Gannon, social chairman; Barb Tillerson and Lucille Turnage, food chairmen; Connie Long and Jack Watson, house; Cynnia Maxon and Beverly Perkins, altar guild; Fred Peacock, worship; Bob Payne, public relations; Susan Lineberger and Dick Lauer, music; Sonny Dave, acolyte, and Irma Cox, librarian.

Egyptian Magazine Needs US Reporter To Cover Campus

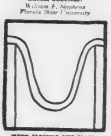
An Egyptian weekly magazine is in need of a campus reporter at FSU.

According to Ezzat S Younahan, to whom Egypt is home, a new magazine whose translated name means "Campus Life," wants news, articles, or reports about American campus life in general, and FSU in particular.

"The magazine," Younahan said, "is the only one in the Middle East for international campus news, and has a weekly circulation of 20 000 copies."

FOUND—A necklace May be claimed in 104 Westcott. See Mr. Don Farquharson.

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)



Seminole Club Opens Later

Because of longer daylight hours and more afternoon activities, the Seminole Club will remain open until 7 p.m. Monday through Friday. This will start on Monday, March 21.

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
R.L.P. Siler
107 S. Monroe St. Phone 3-161

DATE NIGHT
By CANDLE LIGHT
TONIGHT
THE SEMINOLE CLUB
Now Remaining Open Until
7:00 P.M. Monday Thru Friday For — Your Convenience

SIAMESE BOOKWORM
William F. Nordeen
Florida State University

WORK CROSSING SIGN CRACK IN SIDEWALK
Nancy Reed Jackson
University of Washington

MEETING OF CHINESE AND AMERICAN OIL WELLS
Larry A. Nielsen
University of Chicago

3 ABBOT ARTS GOING A.W.O.L.
Abbot of Florida
Boston College

LUCKY DROODLES! GET 'EM HERE!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.
Droodle suggested by Norman Gerber, C.C.N.Y.

HAVE A LITTLE FUN when you smoke. Enjoy yourself. Give yourself the pleasure of a better-tasting Lucky Strike. The enthusiasm often inspired by Luckies' famous better taste is illustrated in the Droodle (right) titled: Alphabet soup for Lucky smoker. So why stew over what cigarette to smoke? Luckies' taste is letter-perfect. After all, L.S. M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better... cleaner, fresher, smoother. When you light up, enjoy the better-tasting cigarette... Lucky Strike.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So, send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER...Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!

PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company — AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

There's even more to Chevrolet styling than meets the eye!

1 Pinned headlights

2 Lowered High-Level air intake

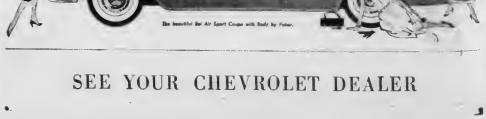
3 Sweep-Sight windshield

4 Distinctive dip in belt line

5 Fender-high taillights

6 Tasteful two-tone color styling

This is beauty with a bonus ... for Chevrolet styling is designed to add safety and comfort while you drive, and to return greater value when you trade.



Truly modern lines are shaped by usefulness. You can see what we mean in the deep crystal curve of Chevrolet's Sweep-Sight windshield ... a dramatic safety note, certainly, but one that stems from the need for wider, safer vision. Or take high-set taillights—they add to the impressive length of line ... but they are up where they can be seen for safety's sake.

The smart new accents on the hood aren't just decoration ... they mark the intake for the High-Level ventilation system for cleaner, fresher air. And the whole shape of the body—its lowness, the dipped belt line—is merely a reflection of a lowered center of gravity, the added stability.

This is truly functional styling that serves you better every mile, and preserves its value against the distant day when you trade. This is Body by Fisher—another Chevrolet exclusive in the low-price field. Come in and let us demonstrate that this new Chevrolet is just as exciting to drive as to look at!

motoramic CHEVROLET

CHEVROLET
STEALING THE THUNDER
FROM THE HIGH-PRICED CARS!

The beautiful Bel Air Sport Coupe with Body by Fisher.

SEE YOUR CHEVROLET DEALER

DAVE BRUBECK Here Next Monday—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY Semi-Weekly College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 38 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, MARCH 22, 1955

Politicians To Start Active Campaigns This Afternoon, 5

Elections Set For Tuesday, From 9 To 7

...ational Week" will begin on ...pus this afternoon at 5 p.m. ...e candidates begin active cam...gning for Student Body offices.

...distribution of posters and oth...campaign literature will be the ...gan of chance, although po...rallies and other "politics" ...ll also be held. Primary day ...for Tuesday, with the finals ...o be held a week later for elec...which have to be run-off.

...he annual Omicron Delta Kap...announced political rally has ...y tentatively set for Monday ...at 4:30 p.m. in the Mad...Amphitheater.

Open Until 7

...lls will be set up from 9 a.m. ...7 p.m. at the Student Center, ...Business Building and Seminole ...to be manned by Sophomore ...ists as the bus stop behind ...ium is to be manned by the Vil...ge Vamps.

...ch polls will be located at ...her Hall, manned by the Alpha ...hild and on Landis Green near ...ch Magnolia and Florida ...

...In case of rain the bus stop ...ill be moved next to the ...ber Booth at the Conradi Thea...in the History Building and ...Landis Green poll to the front ...ance of the Women's Gym.

...Inter-secretary of Election Bet...Wilson reminded candidates ...ey were that Expense Estimates ...e due at 5 p.m. today. Estimates ...be turned in at the direc...office on Longmire Building ...d, or the candidates' name ...ot appear on the official ball...

Prior Excuse

...Late estimates cannot be ex...ed for she stated, unless the Elec...n Committee has been noti...d before the deadline that they ...ould be in on time.

...Organizations helping man the ...olls this year are Sophomore ...ists, Villiar Vamps and Al...pha Council. Elections Committee ...embers are Secretary Betty Jo ...ith, Miss Wilmon, Gene Wil...ms, John Smith, Mitzi McCul...ough, Dave Harris, Shelby Dris...l, Carol MacDaniels and Larry ...ore. They are assisted by Ex...ive Darrell J. Paul Jones, Lou ...ewitt and Buddy Reardon.

Compliance Urged

...The committee urged candidates ...comply with regulations concer...g the use of campaign material. ...Rules state that elections placards ...y be posted on any available ...ace in buildings and outside ...ildings within the following lim...tations.

...Students erecting placards must ...ake the responsibility of removing ...em after the elections is over. ...Violators eliminated in the pri...ary must remove their placards ...ithin 48 hours.

...No nails or tacks may be driv...n trees or in building walls.

...No placards may be stuck to ...laboard walls with scotch tape ...r adhesive.

...The individual who posts a ...ard which damages university ...roperty cannot be identified, the ...ndidate whose name is on the ...ard will be held responsible for ...e damage and will be required ...o pay the cost."

First Place Taken By FSU ROTC Men In Recent Match

...The Florida State University ...ir ROTC Rifle Team member ...ve placed first in the Florida ...ollegiate District in the William ...Randolph Hearst ROTC Match held annually.

...The FSU team won a score of ...10 out of a possible 1,000.

...Members of the team were ...Sarah Coy D. Winchester, who ...as high scorer for FSU and the ...ir of Florida with a score of ...00 out of a possible 200; Paul ...Jones, runnerup with a score ...of 191 and winner of third place ...in Florida; William Bowles, ...Jerry T. Tucker, and Joseph ...Thompson.

...Firing positions were prone, ...kneeling, and standing.

...The team also placed eleventh ...out of fifty-nine competing ...teams in the Third Army Area ...comprised of the states of Ala...bama, Georgia, Mississippi, Ten...nessee, South Carolina, North ...Carolina, and Florida.

YON SPEAKS ON REPUBLICANS

...D. Peyton Yon, Republican ...State Committeeman, will ad...dress a meeting of the Young ...Republicans Club, which begins ...tomorrow at 8 p.m. in 406 Long...hall.

...Daniel Gorham was recently ...elected president of the club. ...Other officers elected are Lar...ry Brickey, vice-president; Ted ...Yon, treasurer and Neal Crapo, ...sergeant at arms.

IFC Beauty Contest Set For April 1

...The Interfraternity Council ...has announced a beauty contest ...to be held April 1 at 5 p.m. in ...Westcott Auditorium. The win...ner will reign as Queen of the ...dance to be held that night.

...Duke Elkhatan and his ar...chesters will furnish a musical ...background for the contest, ...which will be conducted in two ...parts. During the first part of ...the contest the girls will wear ...formals, and after a brief inter...mission they will appear in ...shorts and form-fitting blouses. ...The contestants will be judged ...on beauty and poise.

Five Finalists

...The judges will select five ...finalists whose names will be ...announced at the contest. From ...these five the queen will be ...chosen, out the winner will not ...be announced until the dance ...that night.

...The contestants, their sorority, ...and their sponsor are: Fair Ab...bony, Pi Beta Phi; Phi Delta ...Dream Dawn Johnson, Kappa ...Delta, Kappa Alpha; Carol ...James, Kappa Alpha Theta, Sue ...Ann Alf's Emotion, Phi Beta Lay, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Kappa ...Alpha, Delana Driver, Sigma ...Kappa, Sigma Nu.

...Also, Susie Fisher, Delta ...Delta Delta, Theta Chi; Mary ...W. Dahl, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi ...Kappa Phi; Janet Johnson, Chi ...Omega, Lambda Chi Alpha; Ann ...Yon, Phi Kappa Tau, Edith ...Wiley, Tau Epsilon Phi; Beverly Gleason, Kappa Sigma; ...Mary Ann Williams, Sigma Phi ...Emulon; Sara Hambley, Chi ...Omega, Sigma, Chi; and Jean ...Hayden, Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Tau ...Omega.

Frank Slaughter

International Relations Under Strain Unfavorable To Liberty

International relations in condition of strain afford a climate unfavorable to liberty, Dr. Vincent Thursby told an audience Thursday night.

Dr. Thursby, professor of political science at FSU, said we are being forced into an awareness of that fact today.

Even domestic freedoms are placed in jeopardy, he said, in the conflict for freedom on a grander scale. The demands of national security, essential to freedom itself, Dr. Thursby declared, involve restraints on many particular freedoms.

Bill Of Rights

The provisions of the Bill of Rights of hoary tradition are called into question, he continued. In our own little college world we hear cries of violation of academic freedom, he said, and all of these are related in the complexity which is modern life.

Dr. Thursby spoke before a meeting of the Student Christian As-

(Continued on page 4)

(Continued On Page 3)

Laundry Fire Causes Little Damage Here

A small blaze in a university laundry drying machine was extinguished without serious damage around 12:30 yesterday afternoon.

Four Tallahassee fire trucks and two chiefs' cars responded to the alarm turned in by the laundry staff, but the blaze was "in the process of being extinguished" when they arrived, the fire department said.

Laundry manager Kimey Ger-

Dave Brubeck Quartet

. . . These Jazz-men 'Feel' Their Music Out

You Gotta 'Feel' Jazz, Man!

By WILLIE SMITH

You walk down two flights of stairs into the Purple Grotto. You duck your head to avoid hitting the stalactites. There is a musty damp feeling in the catacombs tonight. A swing session is in progress.

The man bent over the piano is concentrating as if he were studying Einstein's Theory of Relativity. His eyes are shut and there is a mumbling murmur of movement. The alto sax is being handled by a be-spectacled cat who, when improvising, may pick up the air of an Old English folk tune or a Confederate Army song.

Improvising

The drummer is improvising by mixing his beats in such a way that you can't tell where he's going next. The bass player is hunched over his instrument, plucking in an unpredictable way, yet keeping up with the other cool ones.

The song being played is "These Foolish Things Remind Me of You." Layin' the foundation for what's ahead is Dave Brubeck, moment as does bass player Bob Bates, both supplying a rich and firm background rhythm. Bobbeck takes off and when he subsides from his feeling, he returns to the familiar harmony, "swings into a recapitulation of the introduction," and finally takes it out.

Jazz expert, George Avakian, has this to say about the Brubeck Quartet, "A kind of teamwork which is without parallel in the entire field of music."

Dave Brubeck is a modernist. He characterizes the musicians who have created a new jazz age in the United States. He reflects the American scene. "It is tremendously complex, but free. It flows along, improving constantly, and yet it is held together by a firm pattern."

And as you leave the Purple Grotto, you can't help but feel that Brubeck has found his soul. This goal being to show that jazz is music. That it is an art that will take its place as culture as did the rest of the arts that have been handed down from generation to generation.

Coffee Hour In Westcott This Friday

Large Crowd Expected For Noted Author

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Friday's English Coffee Hour will be something of a novelty.

It will be held in Westcott Auditorium to accomodate the large crowd expected for the appearance of Frank Slaughter.

Slaughter, in less than 18 years, has produced 30 novels and three non-fiction novels. For several years his name has been an almost permanent fixture on the best seller lists, and he books have been translated and published in 11 foreign countries.

Heavy Schedule

He has a heavy schedule during his visit to Florida State University. Scheduled to arrive in Tallahassee at 11 a.m. Friday, he will make a presentation of his latest historical novel, "Absalom Gold," to the Governor's office at 11:30. Following this will be a press conference at the office of the State Advertising Commissioner, slated to begin at 11:45.

Slaughter will address a luncheon of the Tallahassee Exchange Club, business and luncheon group, at 1 p.m., in the Cherokee Hotel. Dr. Malcolm Mallory Horn can arrange for attendents to attend the luncheon if desired.

Autographs

An autographing party will begin at the University Bookstore at 2:30 p.m., preceding the Coffee Hour lecture. Slaughter has declined additional social invitations.

His visit was arranged by Mrs. Olive Cross of the English Coffee Hour committee for the "Meet the Author" series.

After graduating from Duke University, magna cum laude, at 16, Slaughter spent the next 20 years of his life studying the spectacular skills of a surgeon.

He received the M.D. degree from Johns Hopkins Medical School in 1930. After four years as an intern and resident at Jefferson Hospital in Roanoke, Virginia, he entered the private practice of surgery at Jacksonville, where he still resides during the winter months. After changing professions he was named a fellow in the American College of Surgeons and diplomat of the American Board of Surgery.

Late Writer

He took to writing as a profession rather than as a hobby only eight years ago. Since he's books are "The Road to Bithynia," "The Galilean," "The Song of Ruth," and "The Healer."

News Briefs

NAVAL PROCUREMENT TEAM VISITS CAMPUS TOMORROW

The United States Navy is stationing a special Officer Procurement Team on campus tomorrow and Thursday. Students will be able to secure information concerning the requirements for obtaining officer's commissions.

According to spokesmen of the group, men who are seniors in college will be considered six months after graduation. Women interested in joining the WAVES as commissioned officers must be college juniors.

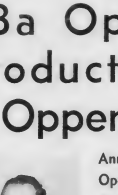
The team will be available for applications and interviews in room 403 Longmire.

DEADLINE NEARS FOR SMOKE SIGNAL'S QUEEN CONTEST

Bill Brancik, editor of the Smoke Signal, announced today that he is waiting for submittance of pictures for the Queen contest is Friday, March 25, at 5 p.m.

Carol Rogers Chosen President

Carol Rogers



Officers recently elected in Coullion Club were: Carol Rogers, President; Claire Dardis, Vice President; Beth Payne, Secretary; Anne Stark, Treasurer; and Winnie Cannon, dance chairman.

The Coullion Club Coullion Clube will hold their regular dancing lessons of the Spring Semester beginning Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Student Center and continuing through the month of April. All are urged to attend, officers said.

Coullion members will give lessons in dancing at West Hall for students interested in learning to dance.

Zo-Im-Ba Opens 1955 Production Tonight, Opperman

Annual Show Opens Nightly At 8 P. M.

Gov. LeRoy Collins

"Zo-Im-Ba," the 1955 Sandspur production, opens tonight at 8 in Opperman Music Hall. Producer Frances Stokes has said the show is "one of the best possible."

The script, written by Don Teal and David Ward-Steinman, features music by David Ward-Steinman as well, and choreography by Frances Stokes.

Opera In Studio

The show opens in a television studio and ends on the mythical island off the coast of Bermuda, Zo-Im-Ba, after which the production is named.

Performances of "Zo-Im-Ba" are scheduled for tomorrow evening, Thursday and Saturday evening night. Buddy Morrow's orchestra will intervene with the Sandspur formal dance, from 9 p.m. to 1 p.m.

Formerly, the Sandspur production has had a matinee on the afternoon of the show, but because Buddy Morrow was able to appear here on Friday only, the Sandspur committee decided the students would prefer an evening show rather than a Saturday matinee.

Tickets for the production and the Evening with Morrow dance are on sale all day in the Westcott ticket booth and from 11-3 p.m. at Kahler's and the Student Center.

Prices Cut

Producer Stokes cut prices to the production from seventy-five cents to fifty because of people in attendance and the high cost of tickets. Producer Stokes and her committee went two steps further and had only 1,000 tickets printed to the dance and prices reduced to a dollar a person.

Although who doesn't take advantage of Sandspur this year," ignored Miss Stokes, "is pretty hard to please."

Director Herb Reinhard says he is looking for a break in Sandspur attendance records.

Sandspur was one of the first new institutions started by FSU students when the college became educational. Through the years students in music, speech, art and journalism have teamed their talents to make the all-original musical comedy an all-student production.

Kahler's restaurant is offering a Sandspur Special to the holders of tickets to the performances. These specials, consisting of lime freezes, are free on presentation of ticket stubs after each performance.

NOTICE TO VETERANS

Students who have had at least 90 days active military service may have their military service evaluated March 21 through April 8 They will need to bring their separation papers, DD Form results, and any certificates showing service schools taken while on active duty to Miss Lou Merritt, Time for "Record Jury" is 1:05 to 1:30 on Saturday afternoon.

Monday through Fridays 8:00-12:00 and 1:30-4:30.

'Murder In Cathedral' Offered Tomorrow By English Honorary

Florida State University students will relive the assassination of Archbishop Thomas a'Becket tomorrow night.

A concert reading of T. S. Eliot's version of the twelfth century occurrence, "Murder In The Cathedral" will be presented tomorrow night in the Auditorium of the new Administration Building at 8:15 p.m.

The performance, presented two weeks ago at a meeting of the Florida Council of English Teachers here, is sponsored by the FSU chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, national professional English Honorary.

Canterbury Festival

"Murder In The Cathedral," originally written for the Canterbury Festival in June, 1935, has been performed consistently since then. A movie version was recently released.

The play pictures Archbishop Becket in 1170, amid the conflicts of temporal and churchly duties. It gives a basic background for Becket's assassination.

The Tempters, who appear to Becket but are repulsed, will be portrayed by Forrest Altman, H. E. Bowen, Beo Henry and Jack Lawler.

Canterbury women will be Catherine Hartley, Marcie Rae Lee, and Celia Wells.

John Paul Davis and Tom Hall will read the parts of the priests.

Pryor Directs

Becket is portrayed by William Lee Pryor, who is also directing the special concert reading tomorrow.

Featured in the background will be music suited to the twelfth century, arranged by Charles Donald-son. Donaldson conducts the chamber orchestra that will provide the music.

No admission will be charged.

Radio Station Features Two FSU Programs

Two WTNT radio programs are featuring Florida State University students weekly. One is a classical music program and the other has its emphasis on popular music.

Jonathan Bowers is the master of ceremonies on the first program. Mr. Bowers, a concert pianist, interviews outstanding students from the School of Music.

Heard every Sunday night from 7:05 until 7:30 p.m. the program is entitled "Music At Its Best." Last week, Wendell Barthell, a junior in the School of Music was the guest. Asked Barthell, Bowers said, "He has one of the most beautiful voices I've ever heard. It's phenomenal for one so young."

On popular music, the program "Record Jury" furnishes the listener with the latest popular records and a panel of students commenting on their commercial appeal.

The panel then rates the record from one-to-twenty with the best possible score from five panelists being a hundred. This week's panel features Constance Coleman, Dick Guttins, Wilpahs Shuffmuller, Marcello Truini and Mary Elizabeth King. The panel is moderated by David Dreis and is produced by Lou Merritt. Time for "Record Jury" is 1:05 to 1:30 on Saturday afternoon.

Collins To Get Diamond SAE Pin At Special Banquet Tonight

Governor LeRoy Collins will be presented with a diamond-studded Sigma Alpha Epsilon pin tonight at a banquet at the home or in the Suwannee Room.

Dr. John O. Moseley, representative of the National Board of the fraternity, will present the pin to the governor. The dinner will be held in the Suwannee Room at 6:30 p.m.

Bill Brancik, spokesman for the local SAE chapter, said the presentation of the pin is sponsored by the National SAE Council, and is awarded to fraternity members for their outstanding record in being elected governor of a state.

Big Guests

Heading the list of guests expected to attend are Dr. Dook B. Campbell, president of the university, Dr. Albert B Martin, vice president, Dr. Louis D. Corson, Dean of Men; and Dr. R R. Oglesby, Dean of Students. Mr. Rod Sisk and Dr. Bill J. York, outstanding local alumni, will also be present.

Many of the SAE alumni from the Southeastern United States are expected to attend the ceremonies tonight, including Tom Prevatte of Atlanta, Will R Keran Jr of St Augustine, Leonard Wesson of Tallahassee and J. Lee Ballard of St. Petersburg, chairman of the Board of Control.

Bill Brancik, of the local chapter will serve as toastmaster for the banquet.

400 Expected

About 400 people are expected to attend the reception at the SAE house following the dinner, Governor and Mrs. LeRoy Collins head the reception line along with Mr. and Mrs. Moseley, Mr. and Mrs. Moseley, J. Lee Ballard and Mr. W J Flynn, Edna Nolton, honor student of the chapter, editor, and Joe Harris, president of the local chapter.

The governor was initiated into SAE in 1931 while he was attending the law school at Cumberland College in Tennessee. Moseley, who is a native of this state is presented with a diamond pin by the National Fraternity.

SAE Executive

Dr Moseley, who is here to represent the national organization, is now the Executive Secretary of SAE. He was formerly a national president Moseley has served as president at the University of Nevada and of Central State College in Oklahoma and also as Dean of Students for the University of Tennessee.

In 1946 the National fraternity

(Continued On Page 2)

Majority Reasoning

In the complicated game of politics, the "majority" party is usually quick to claim all credit for itself.

In reality, however, much of that deserving credit is the product of political cooperation—of bipartisanship.

A handbill has been circulated on campus, stating a party's record of accomplishments in the Student Senate this year.

We cannot refute any statamant appearing on the handbill, nor do we wish to withhold credit where credit is due. The facts are a matter of public record. No one can deny that the accomplishments listed were carried out to some degree by the efforts of the "majority." But it is a matter of fact that had not the "minority" introduced and supported some of the same measures, today no one would be able to claim them, for they would not have passed.

If we follow the reasoning set forth in this circular, we was to assume that any good bills that failed, did so due to the "afforts of tha 'majority' group" in Student Senate?

"Maybe I Shouldn't Have Pulled tha Trigger"

Please Synchronize Them

There are a few hardy individuals on campus that always make a datarmined effort to get to their 8 o'clock classes on time. Their procedure is to wait until they hear Westcott Chimes and the class bell go off (on tha hour) and then rush to class.

Lately, however, an insurmountable obstacle has been thrown in their path: tha chimes and bell don't go off at the same time. We therefore maka a humble plea—won't somabody, in tha interast of order, decency and human understanding, please synchronize them?

Let's Draw The Line

We would like to know: when are those woman students who have man's haircuts going to start waaring trousars, too?

We understand that tha Voluntary Health Insurance plan for students, as a mattar of fact, was initiated on campus in 1948.

Sinca tha plan passed Senate only last year, we wonder why it hadn't been revived previously.

Dear Dairy

Entering Politicks

By CON HORN

"To you unfortunate readers who were somehow deprived of the privilege of reading last week's episode, let me point out that this ensuing work of art is the product of a poor slob who lives next door. Each night, with the help of his roommate, I select the cream of this buddins BMOC's intermost thoughts.

Friday, March 18

Dear dairy: Not much time tonight dairy but wait till you here it is. Just when every thing was dull along comes some guy and now I am a candidate for politicle office. Pretty exciting. Yes dairy I am through messing around and my roomate can go ahead and woo. Now I can get down to biz ness. I'll be doing things for the school, ect as well as making a big name for my self and maybe even governta for later life. Woo knows maybe some day I will be president in the colledge.

Sunday, March 22

Dear dairy. Unfortunatly did not go to church again But will definitly go in a couple weeks when I have got more time. Right now am busy working on plans for writing the election. Now it all started in real funny and I will hatf to tell about it. It was realy funny I was sitting in the coffee house to fix my record player which got broke again for the second time in only a week which is quite a coincidents I think when in comes this guy he is talking about politicks. Well I says I am very intrested in politicks and he says what office were you thinking on running for. Well I says I am not exactly what I ment but he says that is OK we are looking for guys to run for office. Well I says actuly I am just so redhot when it comes to things like that and do you think I have the necessary qualifications and he says do you have a dollar and I says I think I can afford that much for a good cause and he says that is the only qualification you need We do not care how good you are as long as you think you can get a few votes. I was a little worryd about my grades which are not too hot and I sat him about this and he says don't worry about that you will have more time to devote to your job if you are sumatimes ly whatever that is thinking. Lots of guys are the same way he says. So now I am running for office. How about that.

Monday, March 21

Dear dairy. Well by a good

Letters To The Flambeau

Explains Facts

To the Editor:

After reading last week's Flambeau I thought I would take the opportunity to explain a few facts that your "cartoonist" Con Horn forgot to mention in his article about the ATO's and the Tally Ho. I personally do not feel that we the ATO's owe an answer to anyone for our actions, but in our own interest I feel compelled to throw a little light on the subject.

First of all after finally getting a date to have our Fraternity picture taken and assembling all our men in suits inside the Frat house, the Tally Ho didn't even show up as they proceeded to contact Tom Woods, editor of the Tally Ho, in an effort to discover what the trouble was. He informed me that the only way they were taking fraternity pictures this year was individually in front of the houses. This upset us quite a lot as we pay $50 a year to have our group shot in the Tally Ho. I thought they should have at least asked for each fraternities approval. I was told that it had been brought up at a meeting once before (Mr. Mayo he had, but this was the first time I had heard about it. After a long talk with Mr. Woods, he decided to present the problem to the cabin at our next IPC meeting.

I then proceeded to contact all the fraternities who had had their pictures already taken (out of approximately 7 or 8 contacts, there were at least 4 who weren't at all satisfied.

At our first IPC meeting, everyone was given a delegation to hear what the Tally-Ho had to say. We never had the opportunity to as they again they failed to show. We then moved to have the individual pictures taken the way we wanted them in the first place. This was in keeping with the house.

So, Mr. Editor, as you can well see, all the facts about our case were mentioned in your latest edition Maybe Mr. Horn is a member of the Tally Ho staff, who knows! personally don't see any grievance. I do know one thing however and I believe I can speak for every fraternity man on this campus. Your opinion and form of our fraternity section is in the definite minority. I don't know whether or not you're a fraternity man. If you are, you're entitled to your opinion, if you're not, I suggest that you go back to drawing cartoons and let the fraternities who pay for the Tally-Ho spread have their say.

In closing, Mr. Horn, I'd like to say you did one word of good advice. Before you start writing a story, be sure you have all the facts. A story can be very one-sided without them. Ours was a very good example of something very poorly planned and very poorly written.

JON HATTON,
President, ATO.

Choose Carefully

To the Editor:

At 8 o'clock today, we will find ourselves on the campus as far as the appearance is concerned. Five o'clock today marks the beginning of a week that will prove to be hard and tiresome for many students. We are seeking an office in the coming Student Body Elections.

Some students have party nominations and some students are running independently. Don't let this alone determine how you cast your vote. It is your responsibility as a student at Florida State University to VOTE because of the democracy in which we live.

It is, however, your duty and responsibility as a "voter" person and as an example of "true" democracy to know all the candidates: to find out their qualifications and experience, to find through personal contact and demeanor and vote accordingly. If this is done by each of us before we cast our votes in the coming election, we will have a leader for the person whom I believe will strive to strengthen the structure of democracy as well as our student government.

Mary Ann Sherman of the State Party, I would like to say that all of the Florida State Party are putting on the State Party ticket are highly qualified and well experienced in the capacity for which they are seeking to serve. Even though I personally don't deem will take it upon himself to meet each candidate personally, I plan to distribute ballots to assure sometime this week which ability and will be in accordance with our candidates.

Remember, it all this hard work on the part of the candidates be done in vain. They are putting forth many hours in a great effort to serve you in the future by maintaining and keeping a good student government at FSU. The least you can do is to look and listen before you cast your vote. Be sure to study the campaigning, decide who you think will be the best, meaning and "vote" accordingly in the Student Body Elections of March 29.

FRED MANSFIELD

Social Fraternities

To the Editor:

I have noticed how the social fraternities have been under attack in the Flambeau here on our campus and at various colleges and universities throughout the country.

This time it is their altered "discriminatory" practices and charter clauses restricting membership to persons of a race, creed or color, that draws the fire. The same old antifraternity cliches are used as a base operation, but the new "diversity" theme is used under the disguise of equal rights is gathering momentum.

The "anti-discrimination resolutions" were passed by the Alliance of Student Associations, as well as by several other student governments on various campuses. These have urged school officials to adopt resolutions which will be barring new fraternities and sororities, and other social groups that have discriminatory clauses against race, color, religion or nationality in their constitutions or charters.

Now that the issue has been openly raised, it should now be answered. The first question is one of vital importance to each one

The National Interfraternity Conference at its meeting on the November 19, 1954 proposed for consideration a resolution reading in part: "The Conference believes that a College Fraternity inasmuch as it has certain aspects of a social organization, has the right to select from among the students in a university or college free from any discrimination by reason of race, the educational institution itself. Upon this principal the fraternity may if it chooses, adopt restrictive rules for its membership based on such factors as color, religion, or national origin."

If college fraternities were not discriminatory in selecting their members there would be very little need for these resolutions To use discrimination in selecting companions and associates has always been unjust. To be discriminating with whom you live, and about whom you call "brothers" is a fact good sense. The welfare of a fraternity, like that of a church, business or Government depends upon the ability to discriminate and act prudently one from another. This is freedom — and freedom of choice is an accepted principle of democracy. Therefore, if fraternities are to be denied the right of selecting their own members, the very foundation of that right would be a violation of the 14th Amendment of the Constitution.

The purpose of college fraternities is to organize the social lives of college students and to promote their educational objectives. These organizations are formed by mutual selection, based upon contentment and community of interest. Membership may be acquired by a reciprocal process of choice —in other words, freedom of choice by both the fraternity and the individual. But in the main, THE FRATERNITY SYSTEM THE MAN. This minist appear to achieve the result of forming a clannish, division of ground one another, while mass thinking on the other hand is designed to want an exact opposite goal. Which is not the case with their members coming from every stratum of society and economic level; fraternities condemn all forms of provincialism. Diversity in membership broadens outside interests and larges personal contacts; consequently friendly relations promotes mutual understanding. This helps develop a forward and inward socialization of the individual for a truly democratic society.

Much bitter opposition has been expressed of late in various newspaper and magazine articles against fraternities, and the Florida University is no exception because of membership discrimination, the entire assistant of Student Affairs has issued against them. But despite all of this adverse criticism most college students would like to join.

Equality before God and in Government, do not imply equality of individual ability intelligence or other personal qualities. Differences between Man and Man always have been and always will be And so with organizations whether they be religious, civic organizations or social fraternities. Certain groups have appeal to the like or equivalent of ideals or nearsimilarity in tastes and there are always margins — sometimes wide ones—of differences between them, that separate organizations separate and apart. Our Constitution guarantees the liberties of these groups the same as for the individuals.

Like most private institutions, membership in a college fraternity is a privilege that may be rescinded either a public or a quasi-public body. It is the right of business, or a labor union, or an industrial organization to limit holds itself out to represent the economic interests of its members. It is a voluntary

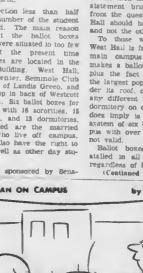
(Continued On Page 3)

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor
Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Asst. News Editors ... Oscar Johnson, Robert Robertson
Sports Editor ... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ... Alan Whitman, David Morris
Amusement Editor ... David Drais
Photographer ... Lavid Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.



Assistant Business Manager ... Irma Cox
Exchange Editor ... John Hufford
Assistant Exchange Editor ... Susan Hyde
Distribution ... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Copy Editors ... Pat Marston, Willia Smith
Rewrite Editor ... Christopher Bell
Art Consultant ... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist ... Con Horn
Junior Staff ... Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jan Bradford, Charlet Pottervill, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Lis King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff ... Frank Tillett, Nina Roy, Business Secretary ... Jeanette Drexler

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

The Dissenter

Max Shulman Makes A Good Point

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Few readers of Max Shulman's humor column, which appears weekly in the Florida Flambeau, missed getting the point of his latest offering: A student government that functions but doesn't achieve anything.

At least that's the most obvious interpretation of the column in which Mr. Shulman degorges a student council as simply a council of students which meets.

Unfortunately, he's not so far wrong. There's a marked tendency among student leaders to confine their role to the chambers of government and forget about the results.

For instance, our student government has been guilty of indifference toward student government on the part of the majority of the student body. Why should a student government representative only a small fraction of the student body be treated as official?

Resolutions are generally treated with more deference than bills are. They're usually always adopted—sometimes not in the way the Senate would like, but after receive due consideration. This can be attributed to the publicity attendant to them and to fact that they usually are the most widespread student opinions.

Something else that makes student government seem ineffective is that it is the active unimportance of the student body president.

According to John Stuart Mill, a legislative body can serve primarily as a forum to give or withhold approval to bills and as a sounding opinions and arrevances.

Mill's doctrines can be applied but as well to student government as to any legislative body. The most qualified person should lead the way. It is his 'job so to do. Legislation once passed, we say. It is reviewed with competable respect and enforced equally.

It's ridiculous for a presidential candidate to promise things if he doesn't have strength and wisdom to follow them out unless elected. There is nothing in our student constitution that would keep a president from leading the Senate instead of being led by it

Student government, for direction, purpose initiative and leadership.

Lately It Seems

The Best Laid Plans Of Mice . . .

By ORCHID ALONSO

Student leaders seeking a scapegoat for their inter-ests find the press an able victim. Be it censorship, favoritism or rationalization can blame the press for their mistakes, omissions or malpractices.

The Florida Flambeau is a subsidiary of Student Government, but this does not imply that it is the organ of publicity sands for student leaders, the editor of which is merely assigned as a publicity medium for those who would seek such.

The "Voice of Florida" the Flambeau has traditionally remained neutral in political and student government circles, serving instead, to evaluate such activities and event as it happens and to cast a critical eye in the direction of government and student events.

Actually, the Flambeau has only newspaper should a reader that they are above political considerations, journalism. A newspaperman does not function in thanks for bias. Rather, he feels a satisfaction of his position in which he can appraise both sides of issues and inform, commend and criticize both sides as the situation demands.

In other words, we are admitting that newspaper people are a mixed lot, proud of their weapon but so proud that they will not sell their souls for their political purposes Indeed, a newspaperman is not happier than the majority among us when he can point out what government is doing — and has no self-interest or immediate motivation, but expect the leaders of the political parties to praise the students unbiased face.

If there are any axes to grind by the Flambeau it is only what they consider will serve the students best and not what will serve themselves or them.

For what is there that Flambeau can hope to profit from any political issue that is important to the whole student council?

Only rarely is the process completed, and a bill emerging from its long path in the form worded as to fill in the dot exactly a weekly tribute to the ideals of Democracy.

Thus we are acquainted with the problem of student government. Senators should be elected by classes or by areas

The present system of representation is that they are by classes. There is a Senior, Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes. The argue is that a senior, junior, sophomore and one also unless he knows him or she only wants to live in one to live near him. Also, quite few students begin school in the Spring but graduate and do not hold the office To represent them on the represent. This is the question.

In attempting to provide the answer, proposed by the present administration, the Senate has adopted its campaign device back and forth in its various bills on the subject. We note that it does not give out or steam at this point. Presentation-ation is a thing to be desired fervently to be desired, and the Senate should redouble its efforts to find a solution. As a workable method for incorporation into the Student Body Statutes.

Reflections

Some Progress Has Been Made

Only rarely is the process completed, and a bill emerging from its long path in the form worded as to fill in the dot exactly a weekly tribute to the ideals of Democracy.

Thus we are acquainted with the problem of student government. Senators should be elected by classes or by areas

The present system of representation is that they are by classes. There is a Senior, Sophomore, Junior and Senior classes. The argue is that a senior, junior, sophomore and one also unless he knows him or she only wants to live in one to live near him. Also, quite few students begin school in the Spring but graduate and do not hold the office To represent them on the represent. This is the question.

In attempting to provide the answer, proposed by the present administration, the Senate has adopted its campaign device back and forth in its various bills on the subject. We note that it does not give out or steam at this point. Presentation-ation is a thing to be desired fervently to be desired, and the Senate should redouble its efforts to find a solution. As a workable method for incorporation into the Student Body Statutes.

A Better Measure

Large Vote Is Needed

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

Last Wednesday the Senate killed Senator Jimmy Soles' bill which would require bids before one is allowed to house more than 100 students.

The chief argument against the measure being that two additional houses had been promised by the university fraternities, and this addition would satisfy all requirements. To this writer the above reasoning is absurd. Fact elections alone have shown the fallacy of this argument.

Last election less than half the total number of the student body voted. The main reason for this was that not enough available were allusted to too few places. At the present time ballot boxes are located in the Wescott Building, West Hall, Student Center, Seminole Club in the middle of Landis Green, and the box in back of Westcott Auditorium. As bald boys on a campus with 16 sororities, 18 fraternities, and 18 dormitories. Not included are the married students who live off campus, but who also have the right to vote, as well as other day students.

The bill sponsored by Senator Soles, was not only logical but would have been advisable to the student body a more convenient method by which students could cast their votes. Not only that, but in all likelihood, it would have meant a larger vote. A vote that would have a decisive voice in the results of the coming spring elections.

After the Senate vote in which the bill was defeated, Senator Fred Mansfield suggested that since all the dormitories couldn't have ballot boxes, then none should. This statement brings to the forefront the question of why West Hall should have a ballot box and not the other dormitories.

To those who answer that West Hall is far away from the main campus and that this makes a ballot box mandatory, plus the fact that it also has the largest population living under roof, does not make it any different from any other dormitory on campus. What it does imply is that the present system of six boxes for a campus with over 3,000 students is not valid.

Ballot boxes should be installed in all the dormitories regardless of how much it will take nothing short of genius to devise something that will fill a started need. A large enough majority.

Last Wednesday it was suggested that a report introduction of three different committees be appointed to determine meeting a compromise amendment, another bill, and another amendment on the representation issue. It defeated the resolutions by really passing something

Yes, as it has been settled. If everything goes well, a change will be put into the Student Body Constitution next fall. If the method of representation will be decided by statute, not by amendment, and if this is the Senate can begin all over again to determine the type of representation to have, without the necessity of the student body voting on it.

Admittedly it looks pretty ridiculous to have to vote on such a ballot box mandatory, plus the fact that it also has the largest population living under roof, does not make it any different from any other dormitory on campus. What it does imply is that the present system of six boxes for a campus with over 3,000 students is not valid.

Ballot boxes should be installed in all the dormitories regardless of how much it will take nothing short of genius to devise something that will fill a started need. A large enough majority.

Last Wednesday it was suggested that a report introduction of three different committees be appointed to determine meeting a compromise amendment, another bill, and another amendment on the representation issue. It defeated the resolutions by really passing something

Yes, as it has been settled. If everything goes well, a change will be put into the Student Body Constitution next fall. If the method of representation will be decided by statute, not by amendment, and if this is the Senate can begin all over again to determine the type of representation to have, without the necessity of the student body voting on it.

Admittedly it looks pretty ridiculous to have to vote on such a ballot box mandatory. During the three and a half months of fig-ure, most of our legislative friends have made up their minds what they want, and how they are going to vote. Such is the way of politics. However, since most of them have different views on the representation issue, when it started, suite a few were in favor of the issue that was sounded reasonable good. Now

Etcetera Etchings

Seminoles Are Theater - Conscious

By DAVID DEVIS

With all the talk going on this campus each week, it's a bit surprising that theatrics are so much a part of campus from students, but also from townspeople as well. Talahassee, for its size is a bit surprising with its support and its activity as far as amusements are concerned.

The Department of Speech always serves as a base and an audience for its productions. We have seen a great many plays, professional, educational and amateur, but the Drama plays from a strictly technical aspect rank with the best. Even the University of Alabama Players can come up with lighting and costuming to rank with them, although they've got a money-making set-up at the Bama Theater. Unfortunately for Florida also has a fine set of productions, but their plays still do not measure up to FSU. Student support at Miami and Florida is not as great as at FSU—that's a fact. Directors and actors are usually fine and good until you've worked with both you can not rate them from one school or another.

Going from Speech to Music, the crowds that poured into Carouse also testified to the fact that the Seminole are a "theater-conscious." Whether good or bad, the students and townspeople are interested and supported this student production. "Susannah" had a lot of loot coming in from multitudes. We're dumbfounded to hear that it was not profit. In any rate, at many colleges they would think twice before venturing into a production with as great a scope as do appear.

The Artist Series for the first time in many years presented "theater." Although the Rains and Charles Laughton production stood above the rest, Cornelia Otis Skinner also was an entertaining performer on their style of theater. What we're getting at is the fact that popularity of "theater" has extended to the Artist Series and their plays rank with the better

The Tallahassee Little Theater chopped its buck ticket in this area for support and their plays rank with the better Little Theater groups around the state of Miami. The Miami Civic Theater folded after competition in that town proved too fatal. However, Miami has come up with another professional legitimate theater and the Coral Gables Country Club has Little Theater support.

Getting back to Tallahassee Sandspur opens to-night and while Saturday night is expected to be most popular, a great deal of interest is evidenced in their ducats for tonight and Wednesday and Thursday. Performances are given by wondering w-either students would continue to support these and because of a bad script w-ould be becoming a tradition. Through the years, however, students have backed Sandspur and stood show after show. Perhaps this year they again are expected to take time out for the big weekend.

Artist Series: The Artist Series is rumored to have signed the lead company for "The Seven Year Itch" for next year. One of the Themes of this dramatic experience was the role of a rocket man in Sandspur two years ago. Seminole notes, more desire Life's cover this week: "Desert Rats" in uniforms of smoke Fort Marbyn."

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

I would like to recommend that somebody get around to doing an FSU Gabbing Deb; I possibly advance this suggestion due to the fact that it is becoming increasingly apparent that we have here at FSU the finest staff of coaches of any school going.

The new FSU sports record book only started last semester as Coach Tom Nugent and his staff were very capably guided the football team to an 8-3 win-loss record, including a top bowl in Texas.

This new sports tradition has been followed up by Coach Bud Ingram and his backwood boys in the season just passed—red-hot basketball team rolled up 17 records.

Even 24 records have been set for the university baseball team, and this year's team virtually rewrote the book. Besides the list of records also a team point total of 2,000 an average of 88.3 points per game during the 26 game season. The team also ran up an impressive 22 won, 4 lost record and formed the Semicolon to NAIA tournament in Kansas City.

Keeping pace with the other coaches is Dr. Hartly Price, most nationally famous swimming coach here who every meet ends this year except the All-Southern Gym Club meet, they placed second in a 3-cornered meet, and the individual competition against the Swedish National team.

Price's gymnast have also retained four years crowns for full consecutive years. These include the Southern Intercollegiate Gymnastics League, the Alabama Invasion Meet, and the Florida vs Georgia AAU meets.

Another additional individual crown are Rafael Lecuona, Jose Miles, and Don Holder, who competed in the Pan American games in Mexico City this past weekend.

Another coach vying for honors this year is Coach Don Veller who's linksmen won their initial triumph of the season Saturday by outshooting Auburn Plainsmen 26-1. One of the lesser sports on campus Veller is rapidly gaining fame for himself and his team with a cool display of ability and a well-kept links course around the state.

Coach Bun Brutis Mermen also come in for recognition, having completed their third undefeated season this year.

The mermen the year established such foes as Southwest Conference powers Texas A&M, and Southern Methodist plus Southeastern entry Georgia Tech.

Coach Stubs Mermen also romped three times at the Georgia AAU to tie up that meet, and over the past weekend they easily outswam UF and Miami to win the Florida AAU.

Not to be overlooked on the Coaches roll of honor is newcomer Dudney Livshier, who has guided the Seminole basketball club to five victories in the first five games of the season, beating Florida Southern (4-1) and 15-0, and defeating Furman 71-57 Friday and 63 Saturday in a double header with LSU. Livshier's boys also defeated LSU 73-61.

There are still 19 ball games on the card, but if the coaching ability of Danny Litwhiler's army and indication of the outcome of the season, FSU should have the best yet in this sport also.

Not to be slighted is Coach "Wild Bill" Odneral, of the FSU volleyball team. Always a powerful team in AAU American play, Coach Odneral is all to a man meet, and in the individual competition against the Swedish National team.

FSU Victorious In Big Sports Weekend

Seminoles Defeat Opponents In Four Different Games

By BOB GUTTING

Florida State athletes completed a heavy weekend of sports activity by winning all events that they entered in.

Ball Club Tops List

Topping the list were Coach Litwhiler's ball players, who defeated both Furman and LSU in a three-game series Friday and Saturday.

The first game the Seminoles routed Furman with a 17-6 score, followed the next day with a 6-3 and 5-3 win against both Furman and LSU in a double-header.

Stars in the weekend games were freshman shortstop Phil Hunt and pitcher Tommy Garcia. Hunt banged four singles in six trips to the plate, scored four runs, started two double plays, and caught several smashes that dazed his way to turn them into easy outs.

For the second straight time, freshman Tommy Garcia practically won his own ball game. The Fort Myers flahthrower had to go the 14 hits by Furman, but was strong in the late spots.

While he wasn't throwing, Garcia was busy driving in runs. He batted in four, with two well-timed singles and a sacrifice fly.

Another first time hero was sophomore John Ash, who shacked LSU on four hits—three in a three-run third inning—and gave up only one hit, a bunt single, in the eighth inning after a brief rally by LSU.

Merman Win Aid

In other sports action, the FSU mermen, paced by breaststroker Ernie Stock, won the Florida AAU swimming meet by a total of 97 points.

Stock scored 13 points by winning the 100-yard butterfly and swimming legs on the FSU 400-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle relay teams that finished first and second respectively.

Golfers Score

The Florida State volleyball team, under Coach Odneral, successfully defended their AAU crown over six opponents in the round robin tournament. The Seminoles lost only one game while winning 11, beating such teams as Stanford Navy, Jacksonville Navy, St. Petersburg Recreation, Miami Y, and Miami Beach Recreation.

Leading the scoring for FSU were Phil Slaton, Lois Lasiere, Gene Lewis and Bernie McCan.

Linksmen Trim Auburn

FSU Hinkmen also won the weekend meet with the Auburn golfers, trimming them by a neat 26-1.

The Seminoles were led by Jack Voehte and Norrie Wright who both shot a three under par 69.

Following Voehte and Wright for medaling honors was freshman Dave Morris with 70 and Bunk Berry with a 74.

No Word On Gymnasts

Word has not been received on the Pan American games in Mexico City, but according to Jack Miles the U. S team was favored to win.

However, Jack pointed out in a post card that the "people here are headle t w a r d Americans — it's showing in the diving scores. We expect it to show in our scores too."

Auburn's only point came when Bobby Dan Bryant, best Bil' Foulford 2-1. Foulford was Auburn's low man with a 75.

Miles also said that "This is the greatest gymnastics team I've ever worked with."

One big drawback is the altitude of Mexico City, which visibly affected the American gymnasts, according to Miles, who said that after each exercise the gymnasts could hardly breathe

Seminoles Increase Score

It was learned at press time that Coach Litwhiler's Seminole ball club increased their winning streak by defeating the Georgia Bulldogs 9-2.

The Seminoles will take a winning streak of six games into the tilt with Amherst this afternoon.

Linksmen—Left to right Bunk Berry of Tallahassee. Coach Veller, Jack Veghte (N.Y.) Bill Shelton (Ala.) and Bobby Dunn (Ga.), who defeated the Auburn Plainsmen 26-1 in a weekend tournament.

Hot Stuff—Letterman Max Long and freshman pitcher Tommy Garcia, who helped the Seminoles win the three game weekend series by defeating Furman 17-3, 6-3, and LSU 5-3.

Women's Intramural Winter Sports Started

MARTY REEVES

Women's Intramural tournaments are now under way for the winter sports of baseball, badminton, and table tennis.

Landis Hall was in first place last year, winning in basketball and badminton singles and doubles and the badminton doubles. Alpha Xi Delta the table tennis singles, and Byran, the table tennis doubles.

During the tournaments, the teams are grouped into leagues. Playoffs are held within each league with the winners then playing each other. In the final playoffs, which will be held next week the sorority winner plays the dormitory winner.

The winner in each sport receives a trophy which she may keep one year. Her name is added to the other winners engraved on it.

Besides the winter season, which runs from Feb. 7 to March 18, there is a fall season from September 27 to December 17 and a spring season beginning March 21 and ending May 12.

Volley ball, bowling, and clinics in hockey and soccer highlight the fall season, while the spring sports feature tennis, swimming and softball. "We hope next year to broaden the program," said Miss Marsha Moore, faculty advisor.

Practices will be held Monday through Thursday from five to six p.m.

Social Fraternities

(Continued From Page 2)

tary, non-profit private association. It is a group of scholars within the community. AND IT HAS BEEN HELD BY THE COURTS GENERALLY THAT THE PURELY SOCIAL RELATIONS OF OUR CITIZENS CANNOT BE ENFORCED BY LAW.

If the anti-discriminationists were all in good faith they would have organized their own interracial organizations permitting the free mixture of race, creed, or color in their membership. But since most of the complainers and their outside supporters have not even attempted to organize such interracial groups, it must be concluded that their intention is precisely what it seems to be— to stir up strife discord and dissention among our citizens Their pious chant of bleeding our people into a strong united democracy has every evidence of being a sham and a double-cross. Their true intent appears to be to divide and separate; to arrest class against class, race against race, and creed against creed.

Fraternities have been a wholesome contribution to the whole concept of education, in that they have given primacy to the development of the individual for his human place in society. Although much has yet to be accomplished in correcting certain of their known weaknesses, college fraternities do not deserve the bad demonstration of democracy in action on any campus.

In writing this one can say I'm one sided as I do not belong to a social fraternity.

DANIEL OORHAM.

Large Vote

(Continued From Page 2)

impose on the Law of Gravity in charge with the collecting of the ballots. If there aren't enough people to do the collecting the Senate should pick one or more students from each dormitory. This would solve the problem without any additional time or cost on the part of the Senate.

The five Senators who voted for the additional boxes should be commended for their insight on the reality of the real problem facing the student body on electing their representatives to the student government stroke of luck today another guy comes around and this time I am ready for him and we gets the conversion around to me running for office which he also thinks it is a good idea. He also runs with him a lot of these here offices that nobody is runing for only this time I picked a couple so as I would have a better chance I ast him how he hapened to come to did he hear any thing about me and he says it does'nt matter how littel you are as long as you aren't runing on the opositions ticket and I laugh. I figured that is a joke at the time. being, but after talking w. I my roomate he says that this guy and also the other party is both going to be pretty mad but I figure now I ave nothing to lose because nobody else is runing against me for some of the things since I am up on both partys for the same thing. Why nobody has ever thought of this before is beyond me. Why do'nt even powodents of the US do this same type of thing? Certainly it do'nt make that much differnia who gets elected because they are mostly for the same things anyway.

Dear Dairy

(Continued from Page 2)

LOVE, GEORGE

International Relations

(Continued From Page 1)

sociation last Thursday night in Longmire on the concept of liberty.

Professor Thursby called liberty the absence of restraint or constraint, and said there exist so many potential forms of restraint and constraint that the problem of liberty in its simplest form is exceedingly complex.

Legal Restrictions

In the political sphere, he declared, liberty is absence of legal restrictions.

He asserted that advocation of wide participation in government is an integral part of the dynamics of the libertarian position in the modern world.

Dr. Thursby referred to Judge Learned Hand's statement that "right conclusions are more likely to be gathered out of a multitude of tongues, than through any kind of authoritarian selection. To many this is, and always will be, folly; but we have staked upon it our all."

The FSU professor said that our all is not too much to make if we believe that knowledge of the truth will make us free. In the intersectional arena such knowledge may be necessary to keep us free, he asserted.

Classified Ads

FOUND — Watch in Mabry Heights—Contact Jack Williamson at 330 Hall Drive after 5 p.m.

50 million times a day at home, at work or while at play

There's nothing like a

Coke

DRINK Coca-Cola

1. SO BRIGHT . . . so right for you . . . so zingy in taste, ever-fresh in sparkle.
2. SO BRACING . . . so quickly refreshing with the lift of wholesome energy.

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY

Tallahassee Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark. © 1955, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

Collins Gets SAE Pin

(Continued From Page 1)

with a gold medal for being the most outstanding freshman man. He considers the FSU chapter of SAE as being as young but thriving one."

SOFTBALL, BOWLING

The Intramural department has announced that the campus softball and bowling seasons will get under way March 28. All entries should be in their office by March 25, at 9 p.m.

BIG LETTER MAN
praises Jockey brand underwear

Alphabet Squee, who collects the biggest letters of anybody, says, "J will always stand for Jockey, in my book. I like things BIG . . . and there's no bigger comfort value anywhere than Jockey shorts! Why not try 'em for a spell?

You don't have to be a letter-man to enjoy that casual, at-ease appearance that comes from wearing Jockey shorts! Better drop into your dealer's soon . . . buy a supply of Jockey shorts and T-shirts, and feel as good as you look.

It's in style to be comfortable . . . in Jockey brand underwear made only by Coopers Inc. Kenosha, Wisconsin

On Campus with Max Shulman

"Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

THE TREEHOUSE OF THE AUGUST MOON

Spring is just around the corner, and with spring, as always, welcome tree-sitting contests. This I applaud. Tree-sitting is healthful and jolly and as American as apple pie. Also it keeps us off the streets.

Tree-sitting is not, however, without its hazards, as you will gloomily see when I tell you the dread and chilling tale of Manuel and Ed Sigafoos and Ed Pancreas.

Manuel and Ed, friends and room-mates, were walking one day near the folk music room in the School of Dentistry and Fine Arts. Suddenly they stopped, for coming through the door of the folk music room was a clear and thrilling alto voice singing the lovely folk tune, I Strangled My Tree-Love with Her Own Wisteria Vine, and I'll Never Tell Her Where I Buried Her.

When the last shimmering notes of the ballad had died away, Manuel and Ed rushed into the room, and there they thought they'd swelling beasts must burst asunder. For the singer was as beautiful as the song: Fair as the morn she was, doe-eyed and ravishlear.

"My name is Manuel Sigafoos," cried Manuel Sigafoos, "and I love you madly, wildly, tempestuously!"

"My name is Ed Pancreas," cried Ed Pancreas, "and I love you more than Manuel Sigafoos."

"My name is Ursula Thing," cried the girl, "and I've got a sun-dandy idea. Why don't you two have a contest, and I will sit steady with the winner?"

"What kind of contest?" cried Manuel and Ed.

"A tree-sitting contest," cried Ursula Thing. "Watch!"

"Done and done," cried Manuel and Ed, and they clambered up adjoining sapsos, taking with them the following necessaries: food, water, clothing, medicaments, bedding, reading matter, and—most essential of all— plenty of Philip Morris cigarettes.

As who live on the ground, with all the attendant advantages, know how important Philip Morris cigarettes are. Think, then, how much more important they must be to the lonely tree dweller—how much more welcome their vintage tobaccos, how much more soothing their mild pure flavor, how much more comforting to know as one sits in leafy solitude that come wind or weather, come light or dark, Philip Morris will always remain the same dependable, reliable, flavorful friend.

Well supplied with Philip Morris, our heroes began their contest. Manuel with good heart, Ed with evil cunning. The shocking fact is that Ed intended to win the contest with a Machiavellian trick. It seems that Ed, quite unbeknownst to Manuel, was one of three identical triplets. Each night while Manuel dozed on his bough, one of Ed's brothers — Fred or Jed — would sneak up to the tree and replace him. Thus Ed was spending only one-third as much time in the tree as Manuel. "How can I lose?" said Ed with a crafty giggle to his brother Fred or Jed.

But Ed had a surprise coming. For Manuel, though he did not know it himself, was a saint. He had been abandoned as an infant at the hut of a poor and humble woodcutter named Winthrop Mayhew Sigafoos, who had raised the child as his own. When Manuel got into the tree, he found to his surprise that he'd never felt so at home and happy in his life, and he had absolutely no intention of ever leaving.

After four or five years Ed and his brothers wearied of the contest and conceded. Ursula Thing came to Manuel's tree and called him to come down and join her. He declined. Instead he asked her to join him in the tree. She declined not do, being subject to acromegaly (a morbid allergy to woodpeckers) so she ended up with Ed after all.

Only she made a mistake—a very natural mistake. It was Ed she ended up with, not Ed.

Ed, heartbroken at being tricked by his own brother, took to metallurgy to forget.

Crime does not pay.

©Max Shulman, 1955

This column is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS cigarettes, who suggest that if you are ever up a tree when trying to find a gift, give PHILIP MORRIS. They're sure to please.

Practice Session Marks Set By FSU Thinclads

LARRY HOUNTHA

The Seminole speedmerchants are currently tearing up the track campus track in their practice sessions. For so early in the game this season's practice efforts are outstanding. The top marks posted so far are:

100 yds. J. Terwilliger 9.9
220 yds. J. Terwilliger 21.8
300 yds. J. Davis 32.7
440 yds. L. Hounths 52.0
880 yds. K. Segner 1:59.8
1 mi. V. Dure 10:30.8
220 L. H. C. Watson 24.6
120 H. H. T. Brown 16.1
S.J. T. Brown 8'11"
B.J. C. Frsandorfer 21'44"
P.V. R. Lasly 12 ft.
Shot J. Jacobs 44'10"
Disc. C. Frsandorfer 132'
Javelin. R. Weaver 182 ft.
Track Captain Elected

Ron Owens, FSU record holder in the javelin, was elected captain of the varsity track team for the coming season. Weaver, a 20 year old Junior who hails from Atlanta, Ga., replaces Carlos Fernandorfer who led the team during the '54 campaign.

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Senior Hall)

IT'S MALONE'S BOOK STORE FOR EASTER CARDS
COLLEGE OUTLINE SERIES
"Everything for the Student"
107 S. Copeland

Camp Opens For Summer

By JERI BRADFIELD

With the arrival of spring and warm weather, the Reservation has been reopened for the summer season.

The Reservation is located on Lake Bradford, approximately five miles southwest of the campus, and has a variety of activities for the enjoyment of the students. These include shuffleboard courts, volleyball courts, badminton, horseshoe courts, and ping pong. Outdoor cooking facilities are available for students use. A juke box is located in one of the cabins for dances, and the top of the boat house is often used for dances.

Low Lake Level

There are no waterfront activities being carried on at the present time, because of the low level of the lake. While the boats are out of use for a while, they are being renovated and will be in excellent condition when the water level rises, said the Camp Director.

Miss Mary Alexander, associate professor of physical education, says one of the new features of the camp is the Craft Shop, with its headquarters on the porch of cabin No. 2. Miss Laura Chapman is in charge, and is willing to help anyone who is interested in taking up the art of crafts.

Various types of leather, copper, metals, and woodwork, are available at the Craft Shop for those who are interested. Miss Chapman has made some illustrations of the possibilities of the Craft Shop and they are on display.

High School Group

The camp is rapidly becoming the headquarters for high school organizations and other groups during the week, said Miss Alexander. A total of 2,200 high school students will be using the camp during the month of April. However, she added, the weekends are being reserved entirely for the use of the FSU students.

Among the improvements made at the camp during the past winter was the complete renovation of the big cabin. A tile floor has been installed and fluorescent lighting has been added. The University has many plans in mind for the betterment of the camp and improvements are constantly being made, said the Director.

Student Members

Miss Alexander said she is very elated over the fact that beginning July 1st, there will be two student representatives on the Camp Committee. This is the first time that students have been members of this committee. The two members are Bruce Fletcher and Germaine Murray. "I feel that the addition of students to the committee will bring many new ideas and improvements toward the betterment of the camp," added the Director.

Edicts Of 'Nots' Cover True Colors Underneath Raincoats

By TANN HAMMOND

Ever since the Edict of Nots including "Young ladies will not wear shorts on the campus of Florida State University" was issued, the raincoat has become an indispensible part of every FSU woman's wardrobe.

This article of clothing is not worn to keep her from getting wet; it is to keep her from getting sent to House Council. A worthy motive. The Edict of Nots also includes petalpushers and Bermuda shorts, but does not cover going out for a quick cup of coffee as "unless engaged in a sport." Now that the powers that be are cracking down on personal comfort, what's a poor girl to do?

Unless she wants to pack for home, she conforms and wears skirts. In the winter, this's not so bad. Wool doesn't wrinkle easy and spots don't show much on plaid, but come spring and summer, it's a different matter.

Cotton has to be washed, starched, and pressed—often. This takes time and unless a girl can keep one hand on an iron and the other taking notes, she has only two choices. Look like a hag and make a two point, or flunk out looking like a Charm Cover.

Trying to find a middle way, a girl has to shop with one eye on her pocketbook and the other on the dress tag. This dress tag business is pretty important, it tells—like the ads say, "Is this material sanforized?" — and the type of material it is and how to care for it. Nylon, dacron, and all the other 'ons have little drying time and no ironing needed to their favor.

As to style, in the summer there's not much dispute. It's a matter of taking off as much as possible to be cool and still not be sent up on a morals charge. Between the H-line and the up and down hemline, a girl is driven weeping into her closet, wailing, "I have nothing to wear!"

And so she goes back to her shorts and raincoat, waving a banner that reads, "Down With The Edict of Nots!"

Notice To Second Semester Freshmen:

Second semester freshmen are asked to make appointments at once [illegible] educational counselors [illegible] purpose of [illegible] their [illegible] program and making plans [illegible] second year [illegible] begin now and [illegible] April 1st.

In the event students are not sure of the name and location of their counselor they should contact the staff in the Office of Coordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott Building, or [illegible] 331 or [illegible] announced Dr. Melvene D. Hardee.

Exemption Tests

Students [illegible] take exemption [illegible] of general education [illegible] do so from 4 to 6 p.m. in Wednesday, April 20, 1955 and Thursday, April 21 in room 201 Education building. Recommendation [illegible] for [illegible] may be obtained from the Test Service Bureau, 10 Education or [illegible] the Coordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott Building.

These cards signed either by the [illegible] Counselor, Dean or Department Head may be turned in to the Test Service Bureau by Thursday, April 14th. A student may take not more than two examinations [illegible].

The General Education Courses in which Exemption Tests may be taken are:

Humanities 101, 102, 103.
Biology 101, 102.
Social Science 101, 102.
Personal Development 101, 102.
History 101, 102, and [illegible] Science 101, 102.

All College Students
Laundry Picked Up, Washed and Dried, Folded, Delivered Back Afternoon, Every Wednesday
6c Per Pound, Plus 15c delivery charge
LAUNDEREASE
Phone 2-5384

ELI ROBERTS SERVICE STATION
Corner West Tennessee And Copeland
(Two Blocks From Senior Hall)
WE HAVE MECHANIC AND ROAD SERVICE
DIAL 2-8523

lap of luxury
AFTER SIX formals are so debonair so handsome so comfortable with "natural" styling. For your social high spots, have more fun—go Epsilon Chi Officers . . . New officers of Epsilon Chi, junior affiliate organization of the National Council of Teachers of English, are left to right, standing, Martha Shannon, treasurer, Carolyn Jo Sherman, secretary, and Carolyn Redfern, vice-president. Seated, is Margaret Malloy, president.

COLLEGE RESCINDS BAN ON CHAPLIN FILMS

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (ACP)—Muhlenberg college students got to see some old Charlie Chaplin movies after all, after a protest from Lentz post of the American Legion here almost banned the showing.

Following an announcement that the movies would be banned, the Muhlenberg Weekly, student publication, front-paged the decision of the administration and protested in editorials and letters to the editor. President J. Conrad Seegers reconsidered and announced that the films, originally to be presented to the public, would be shown to students only.

Richard G. Miller, Jr., editor of the Weekly, said that about 450-500 persons attended the two showings, and that there were a few people from Allentown in attendance. He said that "Audience reaction to the films was probably as uninhibited as that of many years ago. The group I was with thought that many of the situations were uproarious—and they were. Half way through the first film, I was asked which character was Chaplin: such was the lack of interest in Chaplin, per se, rather than in the little man who hustled back and forth across the scene. I thought that there was no anti-Chaplin feeling at the showing of the films, and there was no overt action in Allentown either by the Legion or by other persons."

FATERNITY PRANKS BRING REPRIMANDS

(ACP)—Fraternity activities got out of hand in Texas and Colorado recently, resulting in front-page publicity and suspension of social activities for the groups in both states.

At the University of Houston, members of a social organization were declared to have abandoned eight pledges on Galveston's West Beach without clothing on January 26 during an initiation ceremony. Axle grease and potato chips had been smeared into their hair and lipstick smeared on their faces. The students walked seven miles before they were able to receive aid.

Officers of a fraternity were told to resign and the chapter was placed on probation at Denver University after the brothers stood a coed on her head and stenciled their fraternity emblem on her panties.

Malloy Is Elected Head Of English Teachers Council

Margaret Malloy was recently chosen president of Epsilon Chi, junior branch of the National Council of Teachers of English.

She, and other officers, were elected at the FSU group's organizational meeting. Carolyn Redfern was elected vice-president; Carolyn Jo Sherman, secretary; and Martha Shannon, treasurer. Definite meeting times and dates have not been established yet, they said.

Miss Blanche Trezevant, active in the national group where she held an office, has been largely responsible for the present movement.

Membership is restricted to students of junior standing or above in this field although those sophomores who attended the charter meeting were accepted. Miss Blanche Trezevant, Mrs. Martha Willson and Miss Fay Kirtland of the demonstration school have accepted the sponsorship of the organization.

Social Work Club Plans Meeting Tomorrow

Social Work Club will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow beginning at 7:30 P.M. in the club room on the second floor in Longmire.

Guest speaker will be Harold Lee, psychiatric social worker of the Tallahassee Alcoholic Rehabilitation Clinic. Mr. Lee received his B.S.S.W. degree from the University of Arkansas and his M.S.W. degree from Florida State University.

Election of new officers will also be held, officers said.

Laundry Fire; No Damage

(Continued From Page 1)

rell said that some towels and pajama tops were destroyed. The cause of the fire he attributed either to a pin or metal button striking a spark because of the dryer's action or to a match or matches being left in a pocket.

Gerell said some student laundry was among that involved in the fire. The owners would be notified, he said.

He added that "ninety percent" of all laundry fires occur in drying machines of that type.

Three pump trucks, a hook and ladder and two chiefs' cars responded to the alarm. They stood by while the fire was put out with a hand extinguisher.

'PRINCE VALIANT' WORSE (Or, the Lesser of Two Medievals)

ATLANTA, Ga.—(ACP)—"The ten worst movies of 1954" were listed in the Emory Wheel, "The South's Most Independent Collegiate Newspaper," by columnist Larry Custer. His choices:

Desiree—The ladies were costumed attractively, making the scenery quite interesting, but we will never be able to accept Napoleon as a great lover.

Demetrius and the Gladiators—They should have left well enough alone. "The Robe" was enough.

The Adventures of Hadji Baba—We could never figure out how those tire tracks got out in the middle of that desert.

The Egyptian—We don't know just where they dug this one up. Sex in spectacular proportions.

The Vanishing Prairie—Just a remake of "The Living Desert," but an Oscar should go to those prairie dogs. And that lady buffalo really put herself into her performance.

The Barefoot Contessa—A fairly good movie but it had the most disappointing scene of the year.

Beau Brummel—So what was all the fuss about?

Prince Valiant—Just another one of those medieval horse operas that seem so popular today. We could have listed dozens of others.

Phffft—The New Yorker best summed this one up: "Ptu!"

White Christmas—Bing should just retire, take it easy and never make another movie—how much money can he get? Danny Kaye saved this one from being a complete flop.

Its All Greek

Frats, Sororities Register Weekends

By PAT BRADY

Weekends, initiations and parties were the center of sorority and fraternity life this week.

Nancy Rice, Tri Delt, is the new Phi Kappa Tau sweetheart who reigned over their formal dance at the women's Club this weekend—Friday night a barbecue was held at West Campus—Sunday, a coast party ended the activities.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon initiates Carmine Battaglin, Bobby Blow, Ronnie Blue, James Browning, Dick Fletcher, Lee Flitcraft, Lee Haynes, Ken Hearn, Phillip Hunt, George Kyle, Paul Morgan, Don Preisser, Ed Threadgil, Tommy Turpin, Jim Wade, Dick Sweetman, Ed Manders, and Chuck Ebert—They presented the chapter with an autographed picture of brother LeRoy Collins and Bob Hudson, pledge trainer, with a gift—Tommy Turpin received the best pledge award.

Sara Hambley, Chi Omega, is the new Sigma Chi Sweetheart—The Sigma Chi's held their formal dance Saturday, March 19, at the Legion Hall—A dinner at George's, Friday night — and all the men's dates were initiated into Sigma epsilon Chi (SEX), throughout the weekend.

Alpha Delta Pi held a retreat out at The Reservation Friday night and Saturday—Games, songs and a campfire were enjoyed by all—A coast party and weiner roast was held at the Coast for members and their dates, this Sunday.

New pledges of Sigma Alpha Epsilon are Bill Grow, Joe Tolle, Frank Ruess, Bill Roebe, Tuffy Parsons, Dave Gibson and Jim Brooks.

Alpha Tau Omega initiates Lonion Koos, Red Brannin, Ray Staab, Guy Millner, Bob Spaulding, Tom Speck, Hobo Ackerman, Jim Moore, Bill McKemie, Guy Revel, Paul Caro, Bud Williamson, Lou Bauerle, and Jack Rynerson—Those to be initiated are Tom Sawyer, Tim Harris, Jim Oler, and Dick Artunter — Annual founder's day banquet held Sunday, March 13, had Dean Lewis D. Corson as the main speaker — Bill McKemie is the Most Outstanding Pledge.

Sigma Chi recently initiated twenty-five—Laird Anderson, Joe Bagby, Nell Bowers, Dudley Davis, Karl Edwards, Mel Fleischer, Bruce Jacob, Joel Jacobs, Richard Johnson, Robert Johnson, Jim Kauffman, Don Lewis, Durfee Marshall, Jim Moore, Mark Movold, Bob Payne, Bill Phillips, Carswell Ponder, Frank Sattler, Al Schussler, Bob Skiff, Bill Swigert, Jack Terwilliger, Sam Walden and Carlos Watson — At a banquet held after the initiation, Laird Anderson received the best pledge award and Bruce Jacob received an [illegible] for having the highest ach[illegible] average of the pledge c[illegible]. New pledges are George E[illegible], Bert Kuhn, Millard Noole, [illegible] Olsen, Percy Steele and [illegible] Wolfe.

Chi Omega held its annual weekend March 4, 5, and 6 — Carnation Ball was held Friday night at which Bert Daly, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was announced [illegible] Owl Man for the coming year and a coast party was held Saturday—Chi O's won the basketball games with the Alpha Delta Pi's, Sigma Kappa's and [illegible] Pi Beta Phi's twenty-[illegible] Omega members were [illegible] Elaine Brewton, Joanne Fos[illegible], Martha Grizzard, Sally Ha[illegible]phreys, Janet Johnson, M[illegible] Johnson, Janice Lanier, Bar[illegible] McCartney, Mary Ann Ma[illegible], Gail Moody, Beverly Odom, J[illegible] Rush, Mary Virginia Sale, Sandra Scott, Pickens Talley, Be[illegible] Jane Woodward, Charlotte [illegible]corn, Pat Cartledge, Nance Jones, Adrienne Daly, Ann P[illegible]up, Jean Robertson, and [illegible] Scarborough—Beverly Odom [illegible] the "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" contest.

BAN ON TEACHING EVOLUTION SOUGHT

BOULDER, Colo. (ACP)—The question of the teaching of evolution is headed for the state legislature, the Colorado Daily reports.

Rev. Gladden William James, head of the Foundation for the Authenticity of the Bible and for Religious Liberty, has presented to a state representative a resolution seeking to ban the teaching of evolution in state-supported schools.

The basis of the James resolution comes from the First Amendment of the U. S. Constitution dealing with separation of church and state powers.

When asked whether he considered the teaching of evolution a subject of religious nature, Rev. James said "I certainly do. The teaching of evolution is a question of religion; it is not one of science.

"If we don't get legislative support," Rev. James added, "we will submit an initiative to the people of the state, and try to push across an amendment to the Colorado constitution banning the teaching of evolution.

"However," he concluded, "we don't mind having books by Darwin and the other evolutionists in the library, because that is following the idea of freedom of speech and the press. Our complaint is lodged against actually teaching it in the classrooms, or using those books as textbooks."

J. G. Mackie, a state legislator from Boulder, took the opposite view of the issue, according to Jenk Jones, Colorado Daily reporter. Mackie stated "I for one will fight the James resolution. We would not even consider such a resolution in the House, in fact, it would probably be buried in committee."

Mackie added, "This is not something for the legislature to decide. The University should have its choice of what subjects it wishes to teach."

Seniors Hold Special Class Meeting Today

A special senior class meeting will be held today in Longmire Auditorium at 5 p.m. for all students who will receive their degrees in May.

The main topic of discussion will be whether or not to change the time of graduation in order to have unlimited number of visitors, or keep the present schedule and have a limit of two visitors per senior or graduate.

HOME EC CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

New officers of the Home Economics Club are Mona Lee McKelvey, president; Elizabeth Ann Cerny, vice-president; Virginia NeSmith, secretary; Fredna Haas, treasurer; Tina Stahl, A.H.E.A. representative; Mary W[illegible]is, senior representative; Naomi Young, junior representative; Sylvia Roberts, sophomore representative; LaVetra Armstrong, June Bowen and Ruth Fritchie, social committee.

Injured 'Circus' Clown Released From Infirmary

Jerry Fortune, 'Flying H[illegible]' clown, is out of the [illegible]firmary. Fortune, who was injured accidently two weeks ago during [illegible] circus performance when a s[illegible] cannon went off, underwent [illegible] operation at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital last week.

Fortune suffered an avul[illegible] of the heel. He will be g[illegible] classes on crutches but is s[illegible] considered a "patient" at the University Hospital. It will be some time before he fully recovers, said Dr. E. E. Dussia, University physician.

ACS HONORS NEW OFFICERS

Manuel Moshonos was honored as the outstanding student affiliate at a banquet held this p[illegible] Friday night by the Student Affiliates of The American Chemical Society.

Also honored were the new officers, president, Don Joh[illegible]; vice-president, Harriet D[illegible]; treasurer, Niles Bashow, and secretary, Jeanne Alles.

WHAT'S YOUR CLASSIFICATION?

(ACP)—A letter-to-the-editor writer in a Western Unive[illegible] weekly classified college students into five categories: "The pr[illegible]tariat radicals, chip-on-shoulder, who would be more at home in a linseed oil factory than in a classroom; (2) the bourgeoise soc[illegible]ists; (3) the nouveau riche pseudo intellectuals; (4) the lip curling aristocrats, and (5) the esoteric listening the depraved mouthings of others in detached silence."

1 DARK SUIT + 1 NEW ARROW SOFTONE SHIRT = 1 WELL-DRESSED COLLEGE MAN

With dark suitings the big campus preference, Arrow introduces its new Softone shirts with harmonizing ties—soft muted colors to blend naturally, easily, with darker fabrics. They give you the look of a man who wears his clothes well.

See your campus Arrow dealer for these fine colored shirts. You'll find a wide range of checks, stripes and solids. Best of all, Arrow Softones are priced right. You can own one (or several), and still have money left to eat on. They're but $5.00 the shirt.

ARROW
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
UNDERWEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA	STATE
TODAY "Battle Cry" Aldo Ray, Tab Hunter, Nancy Olson. WED. THRU SAT. "Violent Men" Glenn Ford	TODAY "Conquest of Space" WED. THRU SAT. "Destry" Audie Murphy
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR	CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW "Sabrina" William Holden, Humphrey Bogart. THURSDAY "Southwest Passage" Rod Cameron, "Prisoner of War" Ronald Reagan	TODAY & WEDNESDAY "City Beneath the Sea" Robert Ryan. THURSDAY "Pony Express" Carlton Heston and "China Venture" Pat O'Brien

RITZ — Today and Tomorrow
"FAN FAN THE TULIP"
Thursday — "Les Miserables"

CAMPUS "STAND-OUTS" ★ ★ ★ Man Most Likely To—

Dig those L&M's! — America's best filter cigarette. What a filter—that pure white Miracle Tip really filters. And you get all the taste! Campus after campus agrees—"L&M stands out from all the rest!"

© Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

AMENDMENT VOTE
Students
Asked To Kill It—P. 2

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 39 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA FRIDAY, MARCH 25, 1955

Sandspur Dance Starts Tonight With Morrow

Annual Event Starts At 9 In Suwanee

By DAVID BRIDS

Bob Morrow's appearance tonight as the Sandspur Dance convinces will probably be more versatility than other name bands in Florida.

The annual Sandspur dance sponsored by the Suwannee Room will be from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Formal for men and women is required.

The theme of the dance is based on a Moslem architectural motif, to be called "Istanbul—Bob Arabia." This accompanied with the usual theme of the musical production.

Ticket Sales

Tickets are on sale at Kahn and the Student Center between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and also in the Westcott ticket office.

Tickets to the show "Zo-im-ba" during its last showing tonight in the Open Theatre. Music hall are also on sale these places as well as the Union Store goes up at 8:15.

Morrow was believed to have been signed by RCA Victor records as a substitute for the famous Tommy Dorsey. Since Dorsey's untimely death Morrow has been considered by many the best and recorded by the new star.

Even Morrow became a personality of his own, he recorded his styling which was the combination of rhythm and soft numbers. The disc executive frowned on this style but was unpopular the time he made them aims a different tune. Now, with the piano and brass craze going throughout the nation, Morrow is as popular as ever.

Rhythm

However, Morrow is not himself to rhythm and blues, as are previously versatility as a band which to fame by playing some "Night Train" has become a selling-standard and one of his recordings and all have had extensive sales in the juke box state. A big ending as I am the only is expected to "storm" the dance music pop concert said with only 1,000 tickets printed for there is room for dancing, is expected.

Stations throughout the nation have been broadcasting Morrow's recordings for some time but it has only been the past five years that he has covered the star personality.

Although faculty and students are all invited, to attend Sandspur dance, all sponsors have announced tickets are being extremely sell at present.

Jimmy Waites is general dance chairman and K O Bliss in charge of decorations. Jimmie Waites said "Sandspur this year will top Bob Hope's Cosmopolitan weekend from Palm Beach to the shore in the Bob to Arabia (the dance) in the near east."

M-m-m-boy!—These FSU lassies are finalists in the IFC Beauty Contest. Judging will be held Friday, April 1 at 5 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Coeds sponsors and residences are, l. to r., Mary Davis, Pi Kappa Phi, Cawthon Hall; Beverly Gleason, Kappa Sigma, Broward Hall; Myra Ann Lay, Pi Kappa Alpha, Alpha Xi Delta, Caryl James, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Gaylord Hall; Jean Hayden, Alpha Tau Omega, Pi Beta Phi; Deane Jackson, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Delta, Mary Margaret Williams, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delano Driver, Sigma Nu, Sigma Kappa, Ann Yon, Phi Kappa Tau, Reynolds Hall, Sarah Hambley, Sigma Chi, Chi Omega; Janet Johnson, Lambda Chi Alpha, Jennie Murphree, and Suzanne Fisher, Theta Chi, Jennie Murphree.

McBride On This Week's TV Series

Dr. Otis McBride, head of the Audio-Visual Center, will be featured on "The Professor and the Problem" TV show tomorrow.

Dr. McBride will present the problem, buying and operating the WJBB-TV, channel 4, Jacksonville, at 3:30 p.m. This will be the last program in the series.

Dr. McBride will demonstrate a variety of audio-visual equipment explaining its use in the classroom. He will be assisted by Gertrude Webster, instructor in speech. He will use and explain the function of A-V equipment ranging from the simplest, the black board, through the most complex, television.

The program will mark the end of the twelve week series which has presented faculty from most academic divisions of the University in explanation and demonstration of on-the-job work, research, or service.

The list of featured professors includes Dr. Raymond Shehe, Dr. Irvin Cooper, Dr. Berry Wells, Mr. Howard Jones, Dr. Bill Tait, Dr. Charles Fairbanks, Dr. Robert Brizee, Dr. L. A. Rumsey, Dr. Odell Waldor, Mr. Zell Mabee, Dr. R. Winston Mendel, and Dr. McBride.

The series was produced by Roy Flynn, Director of Broadcasting Television, who also appeared as narrator. Film sequences on each program were photographed by Bob Macklin, University photographer.

JUNE GRADUATION TO BE HELD SUNDAY

At a Senior Class meeting held Tuesday in Lemaitre Auditorium it was decided that graduation will be held on Monday May 30 at 4 p.m. instead of 10 a.m. the original hour planned. This was voted on after Dr. Shores explained the possibilities of hours for the commencement exercises.

Westcott Audience Will Hear Frank Slaughter Today At 4

By MARGARET MILLER

English coffee hours have been comparatively small gatherings in the past but the appearance of Frank Slaughter, well-known and prolific author, is expected to draw a large crowd.

The coffee hour will be held in Westcott Auditorium this afternoon at 4.

Because his address is directed to a large group more representative of the public than the usual coffee hour attendance, Slaughter will speak on current topics reflected in his writings. Which also are now gathering. His title, public health, and censorship.

Interest in his anticipated visit is indicated by the demanding tickets that were issued for the event. Immediately after his arrival at 2 a.m. Slaughter will be taken to the University office to present his latest novel, "A Touch of Gold" and will be interviewed at a press conference just afterward. Then at 1 p.m. he will address a business men's luncheon in the Cotton Room.

At 2:30, Slaughter will appear at the Book Corner. 100's S. Monroe Street, for an autographing party. Not the University Bookstore as previously reported to the Florida Flambeau.

Autographed books, including pocket editions, will be on sale at Westcott Auditorium to address and Coffee hour attendants. The visit was arranged by Mrs. Olive Cross of the English department.

A part-time resident of Jacksonville, Slaughter has not always been a professional writer. After graduating at 18 from Duke University, Slaughter entered

(Continued on Page 3)

FSU Gymnasts To Perform At Celebration

FSU's Gymkana show will perform Friday and Saturday to help celebrate the opening of new Doc Gus Building on the Quincy Highway.

Barbara Vickers, John Byrd, Sidney Burr, Floyd Ganaloff, Bob Sharpe and Barbara Rynski comprise the committee responsible for the performances. They are taking charge in the absence of Dr. Hartlee Price who is in California with the arm team.

Dick Gutnus will handle the job of master of ceremonies on Friday night with Floyd Ganaloff taking over on Saturday.

The show will feature events and acts from the regular road show, Calisthenics, side horse, hand balancing, tumbling and parallel bars are among the feature events.

A new act highlighting an Adagio group will have its premiere performance. Judy McCoy and Bruce Parenti, Pat Hardy and Charles English and Claude Hilton and Barbara Chambers will perform in this act.

The comedy parts will not be neglected either. Dick Guttna will perform on the Trampolette and Trampoline while Larry Beuman shows off on the parallel bars. Larry and Ronne Amster will present a comedy wrestling exhibition.

FSU Students Attend Music Educator Meet

A group of Florida State University students are attending the Southern Music Educators Conference in New Orleans March 25-29.

The formal convention is a division of the Music Educators National Conference, itself a department of the National Education Association. Attending from FSU are Misdy Boyer, Dick Boyer, Gwyneth Cooper, Zora Diamond, Katherine Allen, Ellen Brown, Bob Hall, Sarah McClure, Phyllis Keen, Jim Ross, Donald Graebner, Ardath Chandler, Judy Naftulin, Anda Brunson, John Gustafson Robert Kennedy, Thomas Malone, Frank Grosso and Sonny Hawkins.

House-wright President

Dr. Wiley Housewright, professor of Music here, is president of SMENED.

FSU group officers and the program at the conference will include Creola folk music, a New Orleans pageant showing "la culture le peuple, la musique, et la danse" (the culture, dance reading clinics, music workshops and lectures.

Delegates will discuss their experiences at a MENE meeting April 3 at 2 p.m. in room 222 Music Building.

News Briefs

WATER SAFETY COURSE TO BEGIN TUESDAY

A Red Cross Water Safety Instructors Course Tuesday, March 29, at 8 p.m. at the Women's Gym. The class will meet each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Only those persons holding valid Senior Life Saving Certificates are eligible to enroll.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB HONORS LATIN AMERICA

Tonight is Latin American Night for the International Club, which will be at 7:30 p.m. in Lemaitre Auditorium. The club meets every other Friday, but only two regular sessions remaining on the calendar.

A special program will be presented by members representing Latin countries as Brazil, Puerto Rico, and the Dominican Republic. Following a night club theme, the show will feature typical songs and dances of Latin America.

Arts And Sciences Set Annual Dinner For Next Thursday

The fifth annual Florida State University Arts and Sciences banquet and lecture will be held at 6:30 p.m. next Thursday in the Suwannee Room, said Dr. William Randel, Chairman of the Banquet Committee.

The speaker will be Dr. William Thorpe, Holmes Professor of Belles Letters and Director of the Harvard Program in American Studies at Princeton University.

The subject will be "The Loss of the Word."

This is a university-wide function sponsored by the faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences. The price of the tickets is $2.15 per cover. Dress will be formal.

Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Dorothy Wade, Department of Political Science, 221 History Building by March 29.

Only Five Offices To Be Contested Over Party Lines

Seven Posts Declared Free Of Competition

Florida State University's student political parties will flesh out five contests for Student Body offices in voting four days from now.

Seven other offices are sought by only one candidate in the Tuesday Student Body Elections. Two offices will not be decided on party differences, and two are now vacant. The Elections Committee said yesterday.

Major battle shaping up is between Gordon Gasler (State) and Jim Moore (Student) for President of the Student Body. Jimmy Jones (Student) and Jim Moore (State) are vying in the race for student body vice president.

Other Officers

Other disputed positions are, Jim Sloss (State) and Hana Tews (Student) for men's vice-president, Jo Jones (Ind.) and Nancy Vaughn (Student) for women's vice-president). Steve Bolton (Ind.) Pat Hilton (State) and Carmine Rainieri (Student) for secretary of the Student Body. Gyla Sims (State) and Ted Lewis (Student) for Honor Court Chief Justice. Jimmy Johnson (Ind.) and Jat Robertson (Ind.) for Editor of The Florida Flambeau.

Uncontested races are, Ann Futch, Elections Chairman and Jean Pruitt, Chairman of Judiciary. Carolyn Redfern, Chief of Traffic Court. Annie Winters, president of the University Recreation Association. Don Heidel, Editor of Smoke Signals. Jim Broderick, Editor of Tally-Ho. Mary Elizabeth Kilts, Business Manager of the Flambeau, and Tom Hilton, business manager of Smoke Signals.

No Candidates

There are no candidates for the offices of Tally-Ho Business Manager and Sandspur Dance Chairman. Standard procedure calls for them to be filled by appointment or appointment of write-in votes.

Polls will be set up Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Student Center, Westcott Building, and Seminole Club to be manned by Sophomore Council, at the bus stop behind Westcott, to be manned by the Village Vamps.

Absentee polls will be located at West Hall manned by the Alpha Council, and on Landis Green manned by Florida and Florida Hall to be manned by the Men's Pan Council.

In case of rain the polls at the bus stop will be moved to the Open Booth or to the Conrad Theater in the History Building and the Landis Green poll will be re-located at the front entrance to the Women's Gym.

As it stands now, the only race which will possibly be in the runoffs is the women's vice-presidency. If any of the three candidates receives a simple majority vote there will be no runoff election the following the Tuesday.

Japanese Prints On Exhibit In Museum Starting Sunday

Part of the extensive Karl A. Bickel collection of Japanese prints will go on exhibition in the University Art Gallery Sunday.

Bickel, former newspaper executive who lives in Sarasota, Florida, is expected to come to Tallahassee for the opening of thus exhibition. Mr. Bickel has served on many governmental committees, and has for many years been a member of the Operating Committee of the Ringling Museums.

Japanese Art

Featuring such prominent Japanese artists as Kiyoshi Saito, Tomo Maro, Koshiro Onchi, and the well-known Yoshida family the exhibition will show a considerable cross section of the work now being done in that country.

Sixty-one woodblock prints will be shown, representing a variety of subject material and styles, said Dr. Adolph Kail, head of the art department. Dr. Kail is in charge of the exhibition during gallery hours through April 14. Hours are 12:30 to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday, and 1 to 4 p.m. on Sunday. On Monday the gallery is closed.

Special Japanese music will be played during the exhibition will be shown, and materials from the collection of Mr. George Lensen on Oriental Calligraphy will be available in vitrines in pairment. Quite a number will the adjoining University museum Western influence, chiefly arom.

WFSU-FM To Feature Student Produced Programs In Future

Experimental music programs produced by students in Thomas Wright's class in Radio and Television Music have been added to the schedule of WFSU-FM, Roy Flynn, Director of Radio and Television, announced today.

Mr. Wright is professor in the School of Music.

"These programs, like the station's coverage of news, sports, and special events, are being developed under faculty supervision using WFSU-FM as a laboratory," Flynn said. "We are prompted to be above average in listener appeal and will allow students complete freedom in exploration of techniques of presenting musical programs."

Campus Jazz

"Campus Jazz," the title of a show produced by Bob Wright and John Swaley on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature campus dance bands and small combos. After the series has been established on WFSU-FM it will also be aired through WMEN and made available to the tape network of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters for use in educational stations over the country.

On Monday at 4:45 p.m. Mary Elizabeth Kilts presents "Personal Collection" assisted by Mary Scrivener on the piano as interviewer. The show will present recordings from the personal collections of students and faculty. Owners of records will be interviewed concerning their albums.

At 6:45 p.m. on Tuesday, Dallon Hanler and Jack LaBaure produce "Showcase," featuring Kay Kaiser's Kay Allen as interviewer. Most often showcased are musical personalities, working in live performance of music where suitable.

October 30 Deadline Set For Fullbright

Announcement of applications for 1956 Fulbright scholarship has been made by Dr. Albert Lefur, executive secretary of the Fulbright advisor at Florida State University.

Application for foreign study grants in all fields will be accepted from students here until October 30 for study abroad, he said.

The scholarships, which he described as "well worth going after," are available to FSU and other who will have completed Bachelors' degrees by summer of 1956. Applicants will compete with colleges and universities all over the United States.

Dr. Ledue, assistant professor of modern languages here, stated that a knowledge of the language of the country in which students will study is necessary. Any field is open, but "out applications should be appropriate to the student's present attainments and future career."

Scholarship amount varies among the different countries but amounts to full board, room, tuition and travel expense. In many cases, the value may reach $2,000, in addition to the travel opportunity.

Further information can be obtained from Dr. Ledue, extension 381.

Concert Band Plays Wednesday

The FSU Concert Band will perform in Opperman Music Hall Wednesday beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Members on the program conducted by Manley Whitcomb, will include "Triumphal March" from the opera "Aida" by Verdi, "Soliloquy for Trumpet," "Overture, Sir Lancelot," by Tambini.

"March Americana We," "Overture Straddle," "Romanic Episode" by Clark, "Suite" will be conducted by associate conductor Richard Hemingway.

"T.V. Suite," a light number by Harold Walters includes four parts called "Commercial," "Whodunit," "Harold Hot Down," and "Big Name Band."

The last number which emphasizes lighter music, offers a program for the enjoyment of the student, Whitcomb said. Membership in the Concert Band is open to all students who wishes to play concert band music.

ODK Sponsors Rally Monday

Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honorary for men, will sponsor a political rally beginning at 8:30 Monday night in the Music Amphitheater.

Jack Hoover, in charge of the rally, said that all candidates will be given five minutes, except for the candidates for president, who will be allotted ten minutes each.

Charles Turner—Left, will be trumpet soloist at FSU Concert Band concert, Wednesday. Manley R. Whitcomb directs. Trumpet solo will be "Soliloquy for Trumpet."

State Party Plans Motorcade

The State Party has scheduled motorcade to begin at Dale Campbell Stadium beginning night's political rally. Party Chairman Fred Mann said the pre-rally motorcade will leave the stadium at 7:30. He asked that those taking part assemble at 7 p.m. Rally is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Purpose of the motorcade Mann stated, is to "let the citizens as well as our candidates know that we are behind you. It will last 30 minutes.

Added

All of the State Party candidates, members of the executive council, party officers and committees are expected to take part in the motorcade "We welcome all students who are interested in the State Party and candidates," Mansfield said. "We want as many cars available in this parade. If you have to drive your car, it is your responsibility to see that it is properly decorated," he concluded.

DUBOSE ELECTED NURSING PRESIDENT

Edith Dubose was elected president of the Student Nurses Association this week.

Other officers elected were Jo Gamble, vice-president; Doris Green, secretary, and Stanton, treasurer.

Jim Moore, Senator, Asserts High Student Government Values

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of articles concerning personalities in Student government.

By STAFF WRITER

"Today Senate has degraded itself more than it ever has in my two years here."

And Senator Jim Moore, with these words come more assorted to Student Senate the hub values which he has constantly advocated for Student Government.

He said it last Wednesday during Senate meeting amid charges and counter charges between the two party's senators.

But this is not the first time the sophomore senator, in his second term of office, has displayed a deadly courage to back his convictions.

Conformity

Early in the year, it was Senator Moore, chairman of the standing Elections and Appointments committee who got the "gumball" in a controversy over of many over a Presidential appointment.

His committee turned in a unanimous unfavorable report on the appointment of Dave Kennedy as Attorney General. When the senate voted on the report, Senator Moore was the only member of the committee to vote against the appointment.

Why? The committee had agreed to turn in as unanimous reports any vote (majority) taken in committee. Senator Moore, although he was one of the two votes in committee who favored Kennedy, was the only member of the committee who had the courage to back up the agreement—endanertas his own stand. Even those members of the committee who voted the unfavorable report refused to vote openly against the appointment in a full situation.

Senator Jim Moore

It was also Moore who aided a definite stand against compulsory Student Government attendance for freshmen.

A sidelight to Senator Moore's political life is the existence of two other Jim Moore's on campus. Senator Moore who is not seeking an office in next week's Student Body election has often been confused with the State Party candidate who is seeking the office of Student Body Vice-president.

Said Moore, "No, I'm not THAT Jim Moore.

Another Jim Moore, a freshman this year, is reported to be considering seeking an office in the future. This will undoubtedly complicate matters even more.

Senator Moore's fans and he has many, maintain that he will someday be Governor of this State. Some even go so far as to say that when he runs for that office, he will win overwhelmingly over any opponent.

Their hopes may be attributed to Senator Moore's ease in meeting people and the ease with which the people realize his potentialities, power, and personality.

By the way, the Senator carries his Senate business around in a brief case. Anyone for a Homburg?

Literary Hucksterism

In the last few weeks a high-powered campaign has been carried on at Florida State University promoting the appearance of a well-known author who talks today at the English Coffee Hour in Westcott.

Book displays have been set up, autograph dates inaugurated, posters displayed, all drawing attention to his appearance. That's all right. It's all in the game.

But now it has resulted in English classes being called off today and students asked to attend the lecture. Students not attending this, we are told, are requested to write a 50-word biography of this author.

How far does this job of selling have to go?

The English Coffee Hour since its inception has been a very good thing. It has fostered an interest in literature and the values of art. Accordingly we thought it a select program—not one for "selected" students—but a program with a cultural appeal for any individual who would care to go.

But we think it has lost sight of this purpose. We used to discuss and evaluate authors, and listen informally. It seems now to have turned into a major production, with the machinery-of commercialism clearing a path towards Westcott Auditorium.

It is now being popularized and glamourized. But to us, the program has lost its cultural appeal. The cultural appeal that is directly opposed to the commercialism we are now experiencing.

Educational TV

The present Federal Communications Commission allocation plan provides for nine non-commercial educational TV channels in Florida. Tallahassee is included in this very high frequency allocation. So is Gainesville.

Then comes a special legislative committee report on Educational Television. They recommend that the University of Florida be given educational television facilities, and that no other state supported institution be allowed to have one.

The committee recommendation cites expenses already incurred by the University of Florida. They have set aside space underneath the stadium to be used for a future studio.

The committee, however, did not forget to mention that FSU has initiated plans, beginning with the employment of a former news editor from television studio WOI-TV in Ames, Iowa, first educational television station on the air in America. The FSU School of Journalism has offered campus and extension courses in television.

In addition, President Campbell appointed the Director of Public Relations to the new position of Director of Radio and Television.

Some question has been raised on duplicating costs and public monies for two such programs. There would be duplication if television were merely a formal program of instruction. Educational television programs are more than that. They are a means of extending the University to the people of the state, which is not to be confused with publicity through the existing commercial stations of the state. Educational television implies a planned, purposeful, continuing process directed toward definite educational program objectives.

The legislative committee was directed to study several factors, including (1) the value of television as an educational medium, and (2) the resources for programming.

The first factor has been adequately recognized above. The second is even more important, because it reveals why the Tallahassee area would serve the needs in outstanding proportions.

There are in Tallahassee two state universities, the State Department of Education, and all of the state agencies. No other station could assemble such prominent features of resources.

In addition, FSU has a long history of educational work in communications. The establishment of WFSU-FM has already started the process of orientating the professors and the students to the problems of educational communications as contrasted with a commercial station (such as the University of Florida has).

And for an obvious answer to the question—just ask anyone who has over a long period of time viewed both the FSU and U of F series over WMBR-TV in Jacksonville. The general concensus of opinion reflects the greater technical genius of the FSU show.

We do not believe that FSU can or should be disregarded as a potential Educational Television center.

Political Footballs

Some people are trying to run the current political campaign on promises.

And then, as if to prove that they believe in what they promise, they cause the issues concerned to come before the Student Senate in the form of resolutions.

You know what? Both sides are now and have been in agreement for a long time on these issues. About all they can do, however, is pass resolutions.

So they go ahead and pass them before the elections, as if to proclaim that there are people who mean what they say. They try to take all the credit upon themselves—disregarding the fact that the other party doesn't argue or object, but votes yes for resolutions they know express student sentiment and work for the good of the student body.

How is it that one side can do this and get away with it, and then yell bloody murder when the other side brings up an issue which has been on the fire for a long time although it still is a political football in this election.

Let's be specific. Coyle Moore introduced a resolution asking for a student government charter. This is on Gordon Gaster's platform. Both are running for student body president. Gaster didn't speak against the resolution nor did he question Moore's motives. He voted for it.

Ken Gatlin introduced a resolution asking that men active in National Guard or reserve units not be forced to take ROTC. This is on Gaster's platform. Gaster didn't oppose it. He supported it instead, regardless of who would receive the credit.

Then Gaster introduced a resolution asking for more telephones in dormitories. This is on Moore's platform, although, according to Gaster, the problem has been kicking around the Senate for quite a while. Immediately Senator Gatlin jumped to his feet and protested that Gaster had stolen this from Coyle Moore. He said he was being specific. So are we laying the facts on the line now.

Should the benefit of the students be made a political football with the winner claiming all the credit? There's a word for such a type of political irresponsibility: treason.

It might be better if the students were to disregard all these promises and charges and counter charges and try to decide who is sincere—who is capable—who will rescue student govenment from the mess it fell into Wednesday.

Vote No On Tuesday

The Florida Flambeau is not given to statements on how students should vote. Usually we are content to present the basis of any issue and let it be decided by students themselves.

This time, however, we cannot follow such a policy. The issue concerns a constitutional amendment which will be voted on by the student body during elections Tuesday; such amendments have an uncanny habit of being passed whether deserving or not.

The amendment asks the students to approve of a method for deciding how Student Senators shall be elected in the future. If this sounds familiar, it is because the Senate has occupied itself with little else for many months. So far it has tried to decide on representation by incorporating means in constitutional amendments which have to be student-approved just like the one for Tuesday.

Last week Senate decided to change its course in the middle of the stream. It decided to put means of representation into the Student Body Statutes, a method whereby it would not have to be approved by the students.

But to do this the Senate is faced with a paradox: It has to get such a measure passed by the Student Body. That they hope to get done in the Tuesday elections.

The Senate does not take into account its own capriciousness; once it gets the power to change representation whenever it gets the mind, we will witness a parade of changes, alterations and revisions that will put to shame its already-outlandish record of bickering. It is up to the students not to forget.

Senate must realize that a constitutionally guaranteed representation is a necessity. Statutes are too open to change. Since Senators evidently do not deem this important it must be pointed out to them by the students.

A vote of "No" Tuesday will do the job.

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor

Asst. News Editors — Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors — Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff — Alan Whitmarsh, David Morris
Amusement Editor — David Dreis
Photographer — Laird Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.

Assistant Business Manager — Irma Cox
Exchange Editor — John Halford
Assistent Exchange Editor — Susan Hyde
Distribution — Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 2 3 Longmire Building

Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor

Copy Editors — Pat Marston, Willie Smith
Rewrite Editor — Margaret Miller
Art Consultant — Franklin Adams
Cartoonist — Con Horn
Junior Staff — Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield, Charlet Poitevint, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.

Advertising Staff — Frank Tillett, Nina Ryle,
Business Staff — Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dresslar

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17

The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

"Fireman, Save My Child"

Letters To The Flambeau

True Liberty

To the Editor:

I am indebted to the Florida Flambeau for printing Tuesday a significant definition of liberty as the absence of restraint.

This definition, it should be pointed out, goes too far, and by removing all restrictions on human acts confuses liberty with license.

True liberty is, of course, the absence of physical restraint, in which atmosphere the moral restraints on human acts can be freely practiced.

Sincerely
VAN G. PETERSON

Teamwork

To the Editor:

When I came to FSU in 1952, I was surprised to discover that few people had heard of soccer and even less had seen a soccer game. Immediately, I became very interested in forming a team at this university and stimulating interest among the student body in soccer as I believe it is a thrilling game to watch and an invigorating one to play.

With some encouragement from friends and an egregious amount of effort I was able to cope with the arduous task of forming a soccer team. Since our team was not sponsored by the FSU Athletic Dept., we found that making any progress was difficult but with the spirited co-operation of the members of the team and the gratifying display of interest on the part of the students who turned out for our home games, we were able to win four games, tie two, and lose two to the U. of F. and the U. of Miami.

During the past year, however, our team has reached a nadir from which it will be exceedingly difficult to extricate ourselves. No matter how assiduously I tried, the dearth of team spirit has made ineffectual my prodigious attempts at resuscitating it from its fatal desuetude.

The very word, team, connotes a group of individuals with a common goal and a desire to reach that goal through co-ordinated activity. Once a team loses its spirit and desire to achieve its aim, there is no longer a reason for its existence; therefore, I am tendering my resignation from the position of captain of the soccer team.

With the asseverative reminder that I shall cordially welcome any suggestions concerning similar endeavors in the future, I remain

Yours in good sportsmanship,
EDUARDO DEL RISCO.

Music Program

To the Editor:

Thanks a million for the nice plug you gave in your paper about my program, "Music at Its Best." While it isn't an FSU program in the strictest sense of the word, due to the fact that it isn't "sponsored" by FSU, I am very flattered that you mentioned it as being so.

As you know, I am not associated with Florida State University in any shape or form. I am only a free-lance concert pianist, teacher, composer and arranger. It has long been a desire of mine, since undertaking the duties of playing most of the piano literature, including some "firsts" many works of Dohnanyi, the Liszt transcription of the Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, to promote and to publicize the top musical students in the FSU School of Music. I can remember when many people, like Milton Cross, were kind to me and gave me the chance to perform on the radio. I would like to return, in my own small way, the favor. I think that with our first broadcast in this series, featuring Wendell Bartholf, we made a most auspicious start. The broadcast this coming Sunday will star Miss Martha Slayden, that very lovely soprano with a most beautiful voice. Actually the program with Martha is a birthday program to the memory of the noted newspaper writer Joan Kilgore.

On future programs we plan not only to have FSU students, but certain faculty members. On April 10 there will be an all Dohnanyi program in honor of the forthcoming marriage of Helen Salazz Dohnanyi. If there is any student or faculty member who happens to know, and to have the Dohnanyi love songs, please get in touch with me WTNT and I hope to have, someday if ever the President of Florida State University, Doak S. Campbell, of whom I have understood plays the violin as a hobby like Dr. Albert Einstein. That would be a program indeed!

Sincerely yours,
JONATHAN BOWERS.

Cartoon Draws Fire

BOULDER, Colo. (ACP)—"Inaccurate reporting by the Denver Post touched off a three-ring circus of comments, denials and clarifying statements over the merits of a cartoon printed in the Colorado Daily," the student newspaper of the University of Colorado says.

"The Post story stated 'the cartoon provoked resentment in both houses of the state legislature.' And Senator Donald Dunklee (D) of Denver was quoted as declaring 'we resent being pictured as fat old 19th century plutocrats in striped pants.'

"However, in an exclusive interview with The Daily, Dunklee said 'there were no objections to the cartoon among the legislators, as was reported in the Post; only comments.' Dunklee added 'as cartoons go, I think it was all right. The student holding up the tin cup put across the idea of the Univer-

(Continued on Page 3)

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"Flossy said she got so much out of your course, professor, I want to enroll."

The Dissenter

Giving Student Senate More Power

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

For a long, long time the Student Senate floundered helplessly in the very important problem of what groups should be represend in Senate, and how many representatives each should have.

The senators came up with original amendments and substitute amendments and one set of committee reports and another set and wound themselves up in a parliamentary fishnet so tangled that only the presiding officer had an idea of what was going on.

Then, at last week's meeting, they reached what some called a solution. They passed an amendment to the effect that the Senate should be organized by statute, rather than detailed by the Constitution. They passed another amendment requiring that any such legislation be passed by a two-thirds majority.

But what they actually did was merely to stall the real problem still further. In a sense, they failed, after those many, many weeks to change a system of representation which is at its best actually unrepresentative—at its worst ineffective.

You, the students, will be called upon Tuesday to vote on the representation question. You won't necessarily be voting for a change. You won't be voting for anything but to give Senate the power to determine how the student government will be organized.

One Senator has admitted that if the amendment is passed the Senate will be offered a bill which is no different than one previously discussed and defeated, when it was a constitutional amendment. And if that fails, he says, Senate would then be asked to reinstitute the present system—the class system.

Senate tries to justify its actions by claiming that giving them the power to organize representation would make them able to change it if it doesn't work.

It also would give them the power to legislate out of office a senator who for some reason, perhaps conscientiousness, might make himself obnoxious to his colleagues. Surely, this won't happen—but it could, even under a two-thirds majority rule.

There are other facets to this problem—Senate could give senators to any groups it wanted to—classes, dormitories, or the like. There is not the assurance that the system would be a fair one that there would be had the students the final vote on it.

All that Senate has done is to postpone the problem. They were given a charge—change the present system—replace it. This charge was clearly given to them by the many students who want a change. And they proved, during those many weeks of wrangling, that agreement will not come easily on any system, and that it is not likely to come at all.

So about all that's going to happen is that if the students ratify the amendment and the two-thirds amendment as well, the Senate will hastily re-establish the class system. Maybe they won't do that, but the other system isn't much better. It still remains that out-and-out precinct representation, obviously a very big change, is the only answer.

The choice is up to the students. Perhaps, if they defeat it, next year's Senate can come up with a workable amendment specifying who would get representatives, not necessarily saying how many. Perhaps senate should be put on its own; honestly don't know.

There's also a possibility that if the present amendment were ratified, Senate would be unable to agree on anything and we'd have an anarchy with no representatives at all. Bully! Let's try it.

Sketches

People I Knew: At The Graveyard

By DICK VICTORY

Bubba Burton, a wizened lad of 11, and new in the neighborhood, was sure that there was some person or some thing digging in the graveyard next door late at night. Hadn't he heard the clank of a shovel? Hadn't he heard something rush past his window for the past four nights? He sure had.

"I sure have," he told the three boys, "and if you don't believe me, why don't you come and see?"

• • •

The moon was perched on the peak of one of the tall pines that were being planted intermittently along the galvanized fence that ran around the boundary of the cemetery. On the other side of the fence, at the same level, there was a thick hedge. "Pinecone" Dobbs, the tallest of the four boys, had his chin resting on the bar that ran along the top of the fence. The bar was cold on his neck and he pulled back. "We can see good enough from here," he said.

The other boys smiled grimly and climbed over the fence and the hedge, getting a little scratched by the stiff limbs of the bushes in the process.

"This way," said Bubba, pointing to a huge gray monument that stood closer to the center of the cemetery. He ran off. The others followed.

They all stopped near the monument and peered about like men standing watch in a crow's nest. "Where's all the holes?" said "Pinecone." "Where's all the holes?"

"I didn't say there was any holes," Bubba replied, frowning. "I just said I heard digging noises and somebody go past my window. That's all I said."

James Rutledge, a boy of 10, whose head was almost completely shaved in Mohican fashion, adjusted his baseball cap and mentally calculated how many steps it would take to get back on the other side of the fence. He was having trouble, however, keeping his mind on the distance because the cap was much too large now with his hair gone and it sat low on his head, pressing down on his ears and usually, before long, it slid around sideways, the bill facing off at some absurb angle. It looked like somebody had carelessly tossed a cap on a headpost. He finally got so annoyed that he jerked the cap off and stuffed it in his back pocket. Then he went back to calculating the distance.

The boys stood around in a very light area and kicked at the grass.

Finally, "Pinecone" said I'm going and started off running and the nameless youth looked pleased and said Me too and started running after him. As for James Rutledge, he was sure it would take at least 25 giant steps but he only used 16.

Bubba watched them go and then turned and cut across the center of the cemetery to go home the short way.

• • •

He kept looking over his shoulder—either for the boys or some unknown creature—and he didn't see one of the freshly dug holes that one of the pine trees was to be planted in. After a short fall he landed on his side and then rolled over on his back. Some of the loose dirt on the edge of the hole slid down and got in his eyes. He clamped them shut. The dirt stung and he began to rub frantically to get it out with his fists. Some was in his mouth, too. He spit to get the gritty taste of it out.

It wasn't long before he had it all out of his eyes, but he didn't open them, even then. Instead, he lay there stiffly on his back, facing upward, but not seeing.

Reflections

'Hall's' Successor Must Be Larger

By OSCAR JOHNSON

"The university is planning to build another men's dormitory the size of West Hall," the sign said. "If you have any suggestions for improvements, please write them down and put them into this box."

The box and sign were sitting innocently in the lobby of West Hall. Innocently, that is, except for blood stains, crumpled up pieces of paper covered with loosely scrawled complaints, remnants of a Confederate flag and other signs of the furious battle that had been waged there. It was evident that the dormitory residents had been carried away.

Undismayed, we resolved that we would write a few suggestions ourselves. After all, we had lived at West Hall for two years and were well qualified to cast judgment. "I Will," we screamed morosely, "Be Heard!" We made a hasty diagram of the barbed-wire fences surrounding the suggestion box and the searchlights trained on it. We intended to sneak back later and put in our recommendations.

Such suggestions are of course, normally kept secret. But for benefit of the readers of this page, we present them in full:

(1) First of all, West Hall's successor must be larger. This obviously follows the trend established here in recent years. As a starter, a conservative recommendation would be 20 stories, a height guaranteed to keep residents in prime shape if the elevators break down on schedule.

(2) Provision should be made for the numerous residents who raise pigeons, a popular habit since "On The Waterfront" hit town. This could be in the form of immense chicken-wire pigeon works erected barricade-style across the roof. This would also be very useful for sending messages to the women's dorms after hours.

(3) Some residents at West Hall have complained about the beds there. Each one consists of a 2 inch sponge rubber mattress resting on solid concrete. These men are just shortsighted and cannot see the value of such an arrangement. The purpose is to keep their backs straight; it is a form of health insurance. The university therefore should incorporate this outstanding feature into the new dormitory, only to positively guarantee straight backs it should do away with the foam rubber mattresses. As an economical measure, Hindu nail-beds might even be used.

(4) The fountain in West Hall's main lounge is a good decoration, but it is difficult to swim there. Residents have to swim in circles using a combination overhand-scissors stroke while bent on a 60-degree angle at the waist, all the while dodging the numerous pipes sticking up from the bottom. The fountain should be expanded into a full-size swimming pool in the new dorm.

As long as we're being realistic about this matter, we might add (5.) that the new men's dorm should do away with a ground floor snack bar,

(Continued on Page 3)

Etcetera Etchings

Divine Tragedy Or: A Star Is Born

By DAVID DREIS

This is the story of Eddie Fink. Eddie Fink was probably the most oustanding actor in the Drama department and play after play featured his name on the table of contents handed out at every performance. Oh, how wonderful was Eddie Fink. Everyone was betting on him becoming a star; everyone including his fellow actors—which is strange indeed for to admit a fellow actor has what it takes is a sign of weakness.

"Eddie," said the director, "you should become a great star someday, but the odds are rough." Eddie looked at the director. "When the president hands you your sheep skin, head for the stock company I suggest to you."

Eddie Fink look down the name of that stock company and went to it saying, "Yessir, I'm, the greatest little actor who ever came your way. Eddie Fink is the name . . . greatest little bunch of talent you ever saw." With this much enthusiasm and self-esteem the stock company hired Eddie Fink.

Eddie worked hard, painting flats and working on sets, but also taking minor roles against a list of professionals, "who had been around." Eddie didn't care. He told them, "My name is Eddie Fink. Greatest bunch of talent you ever saw. Someday I'll be a big star. This much enthusiasm and self-esteem and Eddie Fink became the most popular guy in the company.

Years past and Eddie Fink was considered a "comer." The director back at FlopEasy College displayed Eddie's pictures to the class telling them where he was now and to watch for the boy to become a star. Eddie, meanwhile, was playing in his eighth stock company telling everyone, "Yessir . . . name's Eddie Fink, greatest bunch of talent you ever saw. Someday I'm going to be a star. Watch me climb."

Then, one day it happened. A talent scout was out in the audience of a drama called, "Raise The Curtain." Eddie was outstanding that night and when the talent scout went backstage to offer Eddie a contract, Eddie said, "Yessir, Eddie Fink's the name. Of course, I'll sign. Greatest bunch of talent you ever saw." Eddie Fink's enthusiasm and self-esteem got him a 7-year contract with Pageant Pictures.

Years passed and nobody could find hide nor hair of Eddie Fink. The college director's clippings yellowed and he wondered if Eddie had quit the theater and had gone into some honest business. The students who had appeared with Eddie also wondered. So did the actors, agents, producers and directors. Eddie was always so sure of himself.

The story was that Eddie Fink immediately had his name changed to Bendix Kenmore. He had his nose shaped a completely different way because too many actors had theirs shaped like him. His stature was increased by elevator shoes and he wore a belly-band to pull himself together. Good old Eddie Fink, now the sensation of Hollywood, America's new box-office king, lover of sultry actresses and number one headliner.

But as the professors, the students, the stock actors go into the theaters to further the career of Bendix Kenmore, a thought goes through their mind. "What ever happened to Eddie Fink?"

Introducing The Campaigners

President

Dear Students:

I am running for Student Body President because I believe that the students want a person who will take the initiative in working for them rather than continually follow the senate. If this be treason then I may make the most of it. Student government must be made more than a backdrop for heataan politicoes with rubber stamps, rubber words, and rubber knees.

I believe my past record conclusively excludes me from the aforementioned group. Let the record speak for itself.

1. Co-ed visitation in the infirmary
2. Right of the professors to release grades early.
3. The student accident insurance
4. The bus trip to the FSU-Auburn football game.
5. The formal organization of the inter-dormitory council.
6. Providing the Men's dorms with equipment to practice for intramural sports.
7. Reducing the minimum parking ticket fine from $5 to $3.
8. Allowance of any organization sponsoring a fund raising project to keep 100% of their profits
9. Senate resolution asking that the administration revise its "cut" system penalizing students absent immediately before or after holidays.

If elected Student Body President, I think I am strongly equipped to continue this positive and progressive program of "doing" rather than "dodging."

We can predict the future only by the past.

With your endorsement and support, I hope to expand this past program many times over in establishing a student government that acts firmly and forcibly on behalf of the student.

Sincerely,
GORDON GASTER
Men's Vice-President

Fellow Students:

Our student government today stands at a crossroads. We are in a position where we can move forward and expand the power of student government so that it can be used as an instrument of real service to the students, or we can be content with the status quo. Never have we [illegible] more clear headed analysis and more bold decision in student government. I am dedicated to the idea of energetic and conscientious service and to the principle of expanding our government and promoting measures that will be of tangible benefit to all students.

Student government is now in a position to act in the following areas which form part of my platform:

Minimum wage of 75c per hour for students employed by the university.

Place students on faculty committees which formulate student policies — especially the Curriculum Committee which determines required courses.

Eliminate veto power of faculty committee over student government.

More student telephones in dormitories.

Construction of additional parking lots close to classroom [illegible]

Establishment of a veteran's [illegible] for registration etc. [illegible] from ROTC for [illegible] enrolled in National Guard [illegible] Reserve Units.

[illegible] women's regulations [illegible] ment of facilities [illegible] dormitories

[illegible] are measures that will [illegible] the students. As your [illegible] I will assume leadership [illegible] whatever groups are [illegible] to see that these objectives are fulfilled. It is my [illegible] desire to have the privilege of serving you as your next President

Sincerely,
COYLE MOORE

Vice-President

Members of the Student Body:

I believe that my experience with the Student Government here at FSU will enable me to fulfill the duties of the Vice-President of the Student Body if you choose me to serve You.

Thank You.
JIM MOORE
Your Candidate for Vice-President of the Student Body

Men's Veep

Members of the Student Body:

I am basing my campaign for Men's Vice-President upon my record of service to the student body and experience in our student government. I invite you to compare my record with that of any other candidate for the office I seek.

Since entering FSU I have served two terms in the Senate and a term as summer councilman. I have served on the Constitution committee, the finance committee, the Judicial and rules committee, the Homecoming committee, and the special committee to study student government.

I have been an active, aggressive senator . . . there is no record of my having been a fence sitter. Instead I have been outspoken and my stand has been known on every senate issue.

Experience is absolutely necessary for our major offices . . . there is no substitute for experience. I believe the experience gained in the two years I have been serving the student body in other positions will enable me to serve competently as Men's Vice-President.

Sincerely,
JIM SOLES.

Dear Students,

I am a candidate for the office of Men's Vice President with the sincere desire to serve YOU. I am in favor of progress here at Florida State that will benefit not only a certain group of students, but each and every one of you. Every candidate in the Student Body elections is in favor of building a stronger student government, and of course I am, too. However, I have also several other things in mind that will benefit you, the students, more directly. I shall mention three of these projects here.

Our camp offers us wonderful facilities for recreation. We have canoes, a refreshment stand, showers, and many other facilities; the only problem is that we cannot utilize these facilities fully because there is no water in the lake! I favor building an outdoor pool for the use of the Student Body.

Another problem which confronts us is the prices at the local theaters. Whenever we have a "crummy" picture playing we pay regular prices, however, should there be an excellent picture playing, we have to pay an advanced price. I am certain that with your cooperation we can get reduced student rates at our local theaters.

Indeed, some cold drink companies must think that the students at FSU have unlimited funds to buy cold drinks, and the new addition to this campus, the six-cent "slo machines" not only rob some students, but are a big nuisance in general. Since ours seems to be the only campus in the Southeast to be "blessed" with the six-cent soft drink, I am in favor of breaking the price-making cartel that has caused it, and with your cooperation, it can be done!

If you like progress, if you like some of the things I propose to accomplish, then be sure to vote TEWS on Tuesday.

Your friend,
HANS TEWS

Women's Veep

LOOK for the name NANCY VAUGHN on the ballot when you go to the polls to vote Tuesday and please consider my qualifications. As a Junior Counselor and a Freshman class officer, I have been made aware of the needs and problems of women students on this campus. After having served as President of Sophomore Council and this year as a Junior Women's Senator, I feel that I am familiar with the regulations and procedure of Student Government. And now because of my past experience and my willingness to work for you, I am seeking the office of Women's Vice-President. I'd certainly appreciate your consideration and support.

Sincerely,
NANCY VAUGHN

Chief Justice

Dear Students,

Election time is here again, and it seems such a short time since last spring when I was asking for your help in running for Honor Court. Because of your support I was able to serve on the court this year and feel I have profited a great deal and learned a lot from the experience. I have seen many of the advantages and had to face many of the problems of the Honor System. I have seen its obstacles and progress, its advantages and its drawbacks. I think the office of Chief Justice needs someone with this experience.

Getting a form of Honor System which everyone wants, understands, is enthusiastic about, and will work for is, I feel, one of the most important problems which faces our student government now. We have come a long way but it has been a slow way and there have been many digressions. Now is the time for everyone to take a look at just what it is we call an Honor System and to reappraise our goals. We have come to the place to stop and ask, "Is this what we want and if so how can we iron out the flaws and what new suggestions can we offer?" This is everyone's problem and one we must face now less we slip back instead of going forward.

I hope you will all give me the chance as your Chief Justice to work with you and for you on this problem.

Sincerely
BARBARA GRAHAM

Sec. of Senate

March 23, 1955.

Dear Students,

During this week of active campaigning you will be considering your Student Body officers for the ensuing year. Your final decisions will be of the utmost importance because the people whom you choose will be your representatives.

The position of Secretary of Student Senate is one of the offices under consideration. The person holding this position is responsible for keeping an accurate recording of the proceedings of Senate meetings and for carrying on the correspondence connected with Senate affairs.

I feel that the secretarial courses which I have taken and the experience of holding secretarial positions in various clubs qualify me for this office. My primary aim is to serve the student body to the best of my ability, and if elected to the office of Secretary of Senate, I shall endeavor to perform the duties efficiently and conscientiously.

But regardless of your choice of candidate, take advantage of your privilege as a voter and register your opinion at the polls on Tuesday.

Sincerely,
STEW BOLTON,
Candidate for Sec. of Senate.

Dear Fellow Students:

In a few days student body elections will be held, and on your ballot you will see the name of Pat Hilton for Secretary of the University Senate. Since you may not be familiar with the name or the experience and responsibility required for such a position—let me elaborate.

This is the first time I have run for a government office here at FSU. Therefore, there isn't a long list of political offices on my record. However, the experience needed for Secretary of the Senate is of a different sort.

Since my major is a combination of Business Education and Business Administration, I have studied a wide range of business and secretarial subjects both in high school and here at FSU. I possess a knowledge of typing, shorthand, and all the other skills that are essential to the making of a good secretary. For the past two summers and two semesters I have had actual work experience as a secretary.

On the basis of capability, interest, experience, I ask for your vote and support. Remember—Pat Hilton for Secretary of the Student Senate

Yours for Better Government,
PAT HILTON.

Fellow Students:

Tuesday you will go to the polls to cast your vote for the people who will fill the major offices of this University's student government.

The SECRETARY OF THE SENATE is a major office and I believe is one of the most important. This office is one which requires much time, ability, and meticulous accuracy for the individual's success. The Senate Secretary must take notes at each weekly senate meeting; take roll at the meetings and work with the Vice President of the Student Body. I believe I have the qualifications to fill this office and would like to take this opportunity to tell you a few of them. As a freshman I worked as co-chairman of one of the Carnival Committees. This year I served as SOPHOMORE CLASS TREASURER, chairman of the ticket sale for the Sophomore-Senior Breakfast, and also served as a Sophomore Councilor. I have also recently been elected SECRETARY OF THE STUDENT PARTY. All of these offices have been extremely valuable experience for me.

I am running on the Student Party ticket and I am very proud of our many good planks of the platform.

In closing I want to remind you to vote for the qualified, experienced, candidate and one who is sincerely interested in the welfare of our Student Government. However, whoever your candidate, be sure to vote!

Sincerely,
CARMINE RANIERI
CANDIDATE FOR SECRETARY OF THE SENATE.

Flambeau Editor

Dear Students.

I am running for Editor of the Flambeau, and will appreciate your vote in Tuesday's election.

The Flambeau editorship requires many hours of work to put out two issues per week. Something more is needed, however. We do not want just news, but complete news coverage, not just any editorials but those which will be read because students want to read them, not just a dry, uninteresting paper, but one which comes alive—one that sparkles with information and opinions attractive to the student body as a whole.

To create such a Flambeau requires more than good intentions. It requires experience, proven ability and determination. Experience does not mean casual or token work, but an intimate knowledge of the entire newspaper business. My four semesters' work on the Flambeau plus two summers on commercial newspapers qualifies me in this respect. You have had the opportunity to judge my ability by reading this and last year's Flambeau.

As for determination, a daily Flambeau is my eventual goal. But in attempting this I would like to make it clear that quality will not be sacrificed for quantity. An immense amount of wordage which is not read will benefit nobody; a quality Flambeau comes first.

Sincerely,
OSCAR JOHNSON.

To the Student Body:

Realizing that a student newspaper is a voice for the students, of the students, and by the students, and that paraphrasing such a bromide does not constitute a platform, I refuse to campaign on such glittering generalities.

Believing that it takes courage and experience more than anything else to be Editor-in-Chief of The Florida Flambeau and remain in that position, I shall cite my standing on both counts.

I have not been in the past nor will be in the future, intimidated by any of the various pressure groups on this campus, student or otherwise, being aware that my position will bring criticism regardless of what is printed in the paper.

My staff and I will be biased —towards using facts and truth as weapons of criticism or tokens of praise, whichever the situation demands, and regardless of the names it involves. I shall continue the crusade against lethargy in student government or any other group where students are supposed to "think" and "act." I shall welcome any number of students to the staff with similar or opposing views, as long as they work, and the term means just what it says.

I have managed to survive three years of working on the Flambeau, the three editors and their varying policies, and the work involved in being a reporter, Feature Editor, Managing Editor, and News Editor.

With malice toward none . . . yet.

JAYLEEN ROBERTSON

BUDDY MORROW sensational band stylist will play at the Annual Sandspur Dance tonight. Starts at 9 in the Suwannee room. (Story p. 11

High School Works Shown In Art Gallery

Best examples of paintings by high school students throughout the state are on display in the University Art Gallery today and tomorrow.

The paintings are winners of regional contests sponsored by the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs in many parts of the state.

Three prizes of $100 art scholarships will be awarded. The painting awarded first prize will be sent to the national convention of the Federation of Woman's Clubs this May in Philadelphia where it will be considered for an additional scholarship of $400 offered by a large manufacturer of greeting cards.

The Jury of Awards will consist of Ralph Hurst, instructor in the Department of Arts Education, Mrs. L. J. Graves, chairman of the Division of Art of the Tallahassee Woman's Club, and Mrs. Nancy Reid Gunn, local art teacher and member of the Junior Woman's Club.

Paintings in all media were acceptable in the competition, and judging will be on the basis of originality, technical competence and expressive force. Winners will be announced Thursday afternoon.

The exhibition will be open to students and the general public during regular gallery hours: 12:30 to 5 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Job Opportunities

(Note: Students interested in any of the following announcements should file an application with the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott.)

Capitol Drive-In
Interviewer: Mr. Greene.
Wanted: Boy or girl to work during summer school, 4 nights, from 5:30 or 6 to 10 or 10:30, $2 to $2.50 a night.

Guides for Know Your Government Program.
Interviewer: Mrs. Williamson, ex. 3401
Wanted: Students to act as guides every Wednesday during April and May, 10 a.m. to 12 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., 75 cents an hour.

Wednesday, March 30
Eastern Airlines
Interviewer: Mr. Coleman
Wanted: Girls interested in jobs as hostesses.

Tuesday, April 5 and Wednesday, April 6
Commercial Credit Corporation
Interviewer: Mr. McGrath
Wanted: Interviews with students interested in company positions.

Cancellation
Southern Bell Telephone has postponed its appointment here. Will be at FSU later, but cancelled scheduled appointment due to strike.

Sullivan Presents Graduate Recital Monday At 8:15

Eda Sullivan, soprano, will present her graduate recital Monday evening in Opperman Music Hall beginning at 8:15. She is a student of Etta Robertson, professor of music.

Miss Sullivan will be accompanied on the piano by James Staples.

The program will include "Alma Mia" Ariette from "Floridante," and "Aria d'Elisa" Handel; Aria from "The Marriage of Figaro," Mozart; "Come O Month of May" Gluck; "L'Heure Exquise," Hahn; and "Night of Stars," "Romance", and "Fantoches" by Debussy.

Also Schumann's "Der Nussbaum" and "Widmung" and Brahms' "Wie Melodien zieht es mir" and "The Blacksmith." The more contemporary compositions offered are "Silver", Gibbs; "A Green Cornfield", Head; "Lilacs", Kernochan; and "Who'll Buy My Lavender?" by German.

Reflections

(Continued from Page 2)

but should instead a[illegible] e night club on the roof complete with food service, floor show and nightly jazz performances for the entertainment of the residents.

[illegible]ether these suggestions are followed or not, however, [illegible] add one sour note try as they may, the university cannot create a dorm. [illegible]y that will beat West Hall.

An Open Letter

The Florida Flambeau is reprinting the following letter from a Committee of Parents of Children in the Public Schools of Florida on the subject of providing more well-educated teachers for the schools of Florida. It brings to light a most urgent problem: it studies the severing of liberal arts from teacher training programs; something that is happening at too many schools, FSU included.

The shortage of public school teachers has been pointed out by proponents of forthcoming legislation as a reason for increasing teacher salaries. Desirable as salary increases are, there is another important cause of the present teacher shortage which we wish to call to the attention of the political-administrative officials of the State of Florida: One former source of excellent high school teachers has recently been almost completely eliminated. It is our plea—in the interest not only of filling the present need for MORE teachers, but also of continually improving the QUALITY of teaching—that this source be restored. If the officials of the State are sincere in wanting to provide more and better teachers for the children of Florida, they can do so very easily: simply restore to the liberal arts colleges their former share in the training of teachers.

In 1949, about 20 per cent of the students graduating from the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Florida were prepared to go into public high-school teaching. Now barely 2 per cent of the students in Arts and Sciences are preparing to teach. Why? Because the College of Education requires that such students take 33 semester hours of professional education courses in order to meet the 20 semester-hour requirement set by the State Department of Education. This means an extra semester's work for the Arts and Sciences student. The Arts and Sciences faculty will permit its students to include the amount of "methods" courses specified by State law in their four year programs, but it will not sacrifice "subject matter" beyond this point.

As recently as five years ago, the College of Education offered to Arts and Sciences students an arrangement of "methods" courses which permitted the meeting of this certification requirement in 21 semester hours. Then the College of Education ruled that all students must take the 15 semester hours internship program with its 18 semester hours of prerequisites rather than the 6-hour practice teaching course which up to that time made it possible for Arts and Sciences students to be certified with 21 rather than 33 hours of "methods" courses.

The College of Education still lists the 6 hours of practice teaching. Refer to the University (Florida) Catalog for 1954-55. On page 387 are listed two courses, EDS 501 and 502, Theory and Practice of Teaching, but if you will complete the inquiry and call the department concerned, you will find these courses are not presently being given. When they are given, no one can take them except TEACHERS who have already taught two years.

The foregoing refers to the preparation of high school teachers. All elementary teachers preparing at the University are trained by the College of Education, which requires 75 hours of education courses for elementary certification. This situation is repeated throughout the nation, for colleges of liberal arts lost years ago any part they formerly had in the training of elementary teachers.

For every extra credit in methods of teaching over and above the legal requirements, prospective teachers must sacrifice the opportunity of taking content courses in history, math, science, language, literature, etc. Many intelligent students resent as unreasonable the load of courses in methods of teaching—always the emphasis on learning HOW to teach, the de-emphasis of learning WHAT to teach—and consequently turn away from the teaching profession. Is there any reason for thinking that salary increases alone will induce this group to become teachers?

We strongly object to the College of Education at the University enforcing increased requirements in methods upon students in the College of Arts and Sciences, thereby depriving many prospective teachers of the opportunity to become EDUCATED rather than TRAINED. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors, urges colleges, "Give us educated men! We can train them ourselves. But we can't educate them." Albert Lynd, businessman, former college teacher and school board member, wrote: "If you will look around, you will find that the superior teachers and the most intelligent administrators have usually been mavericks — persons who came into public schools from Liberal Arts or some other profession with a minimum of anointing by Professors of Education."

In efforts to raise standards of education in Florida, the legislators have followed the advice of the "experts" — the professors of pedagogical methods— and have provided much money to carry out their program. It is we, the people, who are guilty of negligence in passively sitting by and permitting a small number of "experts" to convince authorities and legislators that their recommendations represent the accepted opinions of the University and the academic community as a whole. The professors of education have gained a position of power which enables them to defy the academic standards of other departments within an institution, a power which has much more to do with the present state of public schools and the teaching profession in America than citizens are apt to realize. Schools or departments of education claim that they have a greater concern with education than any other department in the universities. Professors of pedagogy consider themselves the only authentic professors of education, dismissing as incompetent the educational views of their colleagues in all other departments. The program they promote may not be approved by university scholars in the field it purports to cover, but the voice of the scholars or their representatives is not heard in the State Legislatures. In the words of Marten Ten Hoor (AAUP Bulletin, Autumn, 1954),

"In short, at the present time, those who are the experts in the subjects which teachers teach have no real power in determining the content and standards of education in these subjects. These are the practical reasons why, in the school of education, students as well as professors, and, in the elementary and secondary school world, teachers as well as principals and superintendents, have little interest in the acquisition of knowledge of subject matter. The political-administrative system which the schoolmen have established by means of the power they have acquired is almost completely indifferent to scholarship in any fields except the fields of professional education. It is because of this system that the scholars also have no influence in the controversy over ideas. Having the power, the schoolmen safely ignore the scholars. For it is by power, not by talk, that cultural changes are brought about."

We urge, 1) the discontinuation of a procedure which permits any single unit of our State University to dominate all phases of the teacher training program; 2) the encouragement of Arts and Sciences students to enter the teaching profession by permitting them to meet State Department of Education certification requirements in a regular four-year college program; 3) the maintenance of a balance between liberal arts subjects and methods courses in all programs of teacher training; and 4) the enactment of future school legislation only upon joint recommendation of both professors of subject matter and of methods.

(Continued from Page 2)

Cartoon Draws

sity's financial needs quite well'"

Annette Goodheart, illustrator of the cartoon which drew front-page notice in the Denver Post said "In all the furor over the editorial cartoon, it appears that its real purpose of pointing out the University's financial needs was overlooked."

She further commented, "I think it was nasty of the Denver Post to write up that sensationalized story without even printing the cartoon, so the people could judge for themselves if it was an insult to the state legislators."

CAMPUS PARKING PROBLEM 'SOLVED'

(ACP) — We know somebody somehow, somewhere, would come up with a perfect solution to the campus parking problem which plagues college students and campus cops across the nation. Dennis Krzyamak, instructor in chemistry at South Dakota State College at Brookings, offers these solutions:

1) Paint the tires the same color as the campus policeman's chalk. Several months will elapse before his current supply is exhausted.

(2) Coat tires freely with concentered HCL, which will react with chalk, producing carbon dioxide and water.

(3) Purchase tireless cars.

(4) Obey the committee's current parking regulations in hopes that their research efforts will bring us more modern modes of transportation, such as space belts, short range rocket pencils, etc.

ACE, PERSONALITY CULTURE TESTS SCHEDULED

The Test Service Bureau announces that the required tests which students have missed may be taken in 124 Science at the times indicated below

Test	Time	Date
ACE	4:00	Wed., Mar 30
Minnesota Personality	5:15	Wed. Mar 30
General Culture	7-10 p.m.	Wed., April 6

EXEMPTION TESTS

Students desiring to take Exemptions in courses in General Education may do so from 4-6 p.m. on Wednesday, April 20, and Thursday, April 21, in Room 20[illegible], Education Building. Recommendation cards for [illegible] examinations must be obtained from the Test Service Bureau, 21[illegible] Education or from the Coordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott. These cards signed either by the student's Counselor, Dean or Department Head, must be turned in to the Test Service Bureau by Thursday April 14.

The General Education Courses in which Exemption Tests may be taken are as follows:

Humanities 101 102 103
Social Science 101, 102
History 101 102
Physical Science 101 102
Biology 101 102
Personal Development 101, 102

SEMESTER FRESHMEN, NOTICE TO SECOND

Second semester freshmen are asked to make appointments at once with their educational counselors for the purpose of planning their first year program and making plans for their second year. These conferences begin now and continue April 1. [illegible] the [illegible] students [illegible] of the name and location of their counselor they should contact the staff in the Office of Coordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott Building, [illegible] ext. 331 or 332 [illegible] Dr. Melvene D. Hardee.

Men . . . Go To Elinor Doyle for your Sandspur Dance
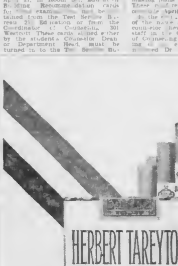
Corsages
ELINOR DOYLE, FLORIST
202 S. Adams



TRY OUR TASTY
JUMBO HAMBURGERS 50¢
AND
FOOT LONG HOT DOGS 25¢
AT FAIVER'S
FOR CHICKEN
DELIVERED TO YOUR DORM, SORORITY OR FRATERNITY HOUSE
PHONE 2-4578
1312 W. TENN.

Keepsake Diamond Rings
Bulova & Elgin Watches
PAUL TURNER
JEWELER
REPAIRS
102 S. Monroe St. Phone 3-1442

IMMEDIATE OPENINGS FOR GIRLS, EVENING WORK
"EARN EXTRA MONEY"
Apply Arthur Murray Studios
1 TO 10 P. M.
Pk. 32221 109 E. College

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)

FILTER TIP TAREYTON
Gives You The True Tobacco Taste
You've Been Looking For!
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

One Thousand Eighteen Make Dean's List

The Dean's List for the fall semester has been announced.

A "B" average in academic work is required for undergraduate students to make the Dean's List. Students on the graduate level must make correspondingly higher marks to be named on the list. They are:

MIAMI — Judith Abrams, Marilyn B[illegible], R[illegible] Bailey, Marion Hackett, H[illegible] Ha[illegible], Mary Joyner, Joyce McRae, Germaine Murray, L[illegible] S[illegible], Joan Stanton, Lois Tichenor, John Wilson, Jenau Bartle, Arnold Bobson, Nancy Carr[illegible], Alma Cisneros, Bruce C[illegible], Caryann Davis, Richard Gant, Charles Haber, Emile Hu[illegible], Joan Johansen, Jean Kennedy, Barbara Koesby, Jane MacIntyre, Anna Mauch, Helen McLain, Jean Morgan, Joanne Robbins, Constance Rodabaugh, Alice Rodgers, Jay Schwartzman, William Taylor, Suzanne Tindell, Howard Willson, Loretta Woods, Dorothy Leslie, Loretta McLaughlin, Louise Yarborough, Pauline Hecht, Richard Ma[illegible]o, Sara Tornay, Hugh Ainsworth, Lois Ainsworth, Susan Ball, Joseph Fogel, George Lewis, James Massey Jr., Irma Richards, Polly Atwater, Phyllis Dye, Gerda Poddick, June Watson, Michael Kish, Wilma Fagen, Patricia Bill, Robert Cohen, Kermit Kindred, Gail Pater, Donald Blaine, James Youngblood, Linda DuBose, Lavinia Duncan, Judith Jones, George Bennett, Rettie Surma, Irene Rail, Barbara Burke, Dorothy Sharitz.

CORAL GABLES — Carolyn Close, Maria Rume, Helen Moss, Ann Kelley, Joyce Weatherup, Patricia Cooper, Jean Kitchans, Bette Richardson, Sue Humphrys, Stanley Asplund, Joan Siecker, Temple Mitchell.

BAY VILLAGE — Arnold Greenfield.

HOMESTEAD — Joseph Crane, Florence Lowe, Margaret Delinger, Edna Runnels.

MIAMI BEACH — Frances Allen, Christopher Corrie.

PERRINE — Juanita Geary.

NORTH MIAMI — Ruth Henshaw.

GOLDEN BEACH — Spafford Taylor.

MIAMI SPRINGS — Edward Polyhamus, Betty Cox, Nancy Hooton.

JACKSONVILLE — Hurschell Mathis, Jeanne Parker, Sarah Prosser, Wallace Reichert, Dianne Rowe, Norma Smiley, Virginia Smith, Gordon Speed, Ellen Starbuck, Alan Sundberg, Dorothy Womble, Ralph Wyly Jr., Susan Bailey, Cynthia Brown, Mary Freeman, Deane Jackson, Lynda Lane, Barbara Lewis, Robert Martin, Betty Nichols, Patricia O'Brien, Betty Parmer, Madelyn Rieker, Jo Anna Seifert, Mary Grace Shoemaker, Donnie Thompson, Carolyn Tompkins, Nina Wadsworth, Diane Westheford, Carol Wells, Anne Wolter, Nancy Wise, Annette Hechmire, June S[illegible], Martha Snyder, Dorothy Wanna, Richard Lee, Susan Linebaugh, Susan Lucas, Sheldon Torn, Alice Miller, Helen Ray, Carol Snyder, Frank Summers, Clyde Reese Jr., Mary Will, Davis, Carole Jenkins, Judith Blitch, Loretta Bryan, Mary Burkholder, Delores Duguid, Donna Hardy, Jerry Hyde, Carol Ann Irwin, Betty Jackson, Phoebe Jackson, Nancy Johnson, Marie Meyenhoff, Ernest McMath, Clarence Smith, Warren Cobb, C[illegible] Ga[illegible], Garrett Saxman, Mary Jo Fordham, Albert Se[illegible], Jonita Brock, June Rogers, Rosemary Hollander, Bruce Fletcher.

NEPTUNE BEACH — Donald Milligan, Horace Owen Jr.

KEYSTONE HEIGHTS — Lawrence Moore Jr.

ARLINGTON — Alice Lamb.

JACKSONVILLE BEACH — Richard Putnam J.

ATLANTIC BEACH — Robert Knight.

BAYARD — Barbara Rudin.

LUTZ — Nellie Wilson, Joann Vogel.

TAMPA — Barbara Avala, Arnold Bechett, Ca[illegible] Collins, Alexander Hay Jr., Virginia Hunter, David Kennedy, Aleyna King, Suzanne Loeb[illegible], Nancy Maxwell, Ellen Mo[illegible], Marie Secuno, Mary Jo Stiefel, Victor Stoto, Jane [illegible], Elvira Alvarez, Vivian [illegible], Coleman, Frances C[illegible], C[illegible], Ellen Darack, [illegible] Elliot, Eliz[illegible], Ann [illegible], Ann Hixon, [illegible], Hopk[illegible], Keen, Tenita Lanes, Lynn M[illegible], Mary Moran, Deena Perez, [illegible] Roocler, Mary Alice Smith, Peggy S[illegible], Frances Stokes, Sarah Umstot, Anna Williams, Walter Wilson, Margaret Donaldson, Diane Fisher, Nancy Hollis, Elizabeth Stainer, Barbara Agee, Dolores Costo, Deborah Fennel, Susan Hukie, Raymond Kickliter, Martha Sue Mizell, Norma Semmerkamp, William Hi[illegible], Albert Markovitz, Evie White, Patricia Browder, Iris Epps, Janice Kiminis, Jaileen Robertson, Laura Alexander, Watha Ard, Maryann Going, Frederick Harrison, Patricia Hawes, Arthur Radin, Harriet Demoupied, Joan O'Brien, Nancy Pegen, Constance Treffinger.

PLANT CITY — Martha Pate, Roberta Cl[illegible], Martha Hawthorne, Martha McGinnes, Virginia Nesmith, Mildred Carlton, Jo Anne Oramming, Virginia Hodges, Anne Wh[illegible].

SEFFNER — Raymond McCoy, Wilbur Bann[illegible].

KNIGHTS — Dora Carlton.

ST. PETERSBURG — Mary Albrecht, Mary Allen, John Brown, Joan Harmon, Charles Her[illegible] Jr., Barbara Lou Lester, Bertram Miller, Winifred Alman, Robert R[illegible], Frank S[illegible] III, Barbara Chamber[illegible], Neil C[illegible], Thomas Cunningham, Helen Dardis, Janet Goracryk, Mary Hargrave, Sara Harkness, Beverly K[illegible], Evelyn Lorner, Mary Ann Mathews, Nancy Mitchell, Priscilla Pearce, John Platt, Priscilla Swain, Wayne Terry, James Vernon, Yvonne Weidman, Don W[illegible], Edith W[illegible], Aurelia Fisher, Nancy Vaughn, Sandra Dallin, Karen Kimpe, Ellen Sims, Naom, Stott, Stella Carter, James Pearce III, Peggy Sutor, Patricia Marston, Helen Redcay, Mary Cofer, Dorothy Hoppman, Jane Soper, Elizabeth V[illegible], Labe, B[illegible], Robert Clarke, Emma Damron, Sebe Dewberry, Roxanne H[illegible], Donald Hickson, Ralph F[illegible], B[illegible] Shook, [illegible] Smith, W[illegible], Jacquelin Wiggins, Charlotte H[illegible], Jane Peeples, Donald Hedel, Marilyn Fowler.

LARGO — Thomas Brockman, Robert S[illegible], J[illegible] M[illegible], Harriette Hepner, Martha Reese.

CLEARWATER — Marion Dickman, Howard Hartley Jr., Anne McManus, Alice Guinand, Philip Keyes, Mary I[illegible] Snook, Charles Kebitch, Betty Hembree, Jane Rigge.

DUNEDIN — S[illegible], E[illegible], Gretchen R[illegible], [illegible] Tyler, Ar[illegible] G[illegible], O[illegible], Poppler, Eleanor K[illegible], Pa[illegible] P[illegible].

GULFPORT — Carmine Ranieri, Meredith Dawson.

PASS-A-GRILLE BEACH — Robert De[illegible] Jr.

INDIAN ROCKS BEACH — Dorothy E[illegible].

TARPON SPRINGS — Marion Porter.

LAKELAND — Vernon Edgar Jr., Jack Reinhold, Margaret Ellsworth, D[illegible] Fable, Dorothy Shafer, Janice Southerland, Jack Sinclair, Bobby Jones, Florence Pace.

WINTER HAVEN — James Glass, Jeanne Cronm[illegible]er, Eugenia Ruth Ogden, Joseph Chastain, Robert Crittenden, Iva Thornton.

AUBURNDALE — Mary Kate Griffin, Jeanene Stokes, Mary Williamson, James Soles.

LAKE ALFRED — Jerome Jones, Sally Humphreys, Shirley Stokes.

HAINES CITY — Frank Knowles, Joan Higgins, Jane Smith.

BARTOW — William Martin, Edna Alford, Barbara Harlese, Beverly Odom, Sybil Snel[illegible], Mary Williams.

FROSTPROOF — Anne Webb.

MULBERRY — Bennie Jo Cozart, Mary Lou Harralson.

LAKE WALES — Nancy Hudgins, Thalia Whitehurst, Betty Tindel[illegible].

PIERCE — Shirley Simpson.

MALONE — Alvin Helms.

WEST PALM BEACH — Mary Almore, Joanna Crane, Cornelius Van Dorp, Avery Vaughn, Beverly Brunson, Carolyn Crumbles, Shirley Harper, Jean Martino, Barbara Emmett, Virginia Barnett, Rebecca Wood, Grover Gentry, Patti Wisener, Barbara Blank, Jane Rayboo.

BOYNTON BEACH — Jeri Bradfield.

PALM BEACH — Ellen Francesco.

RIVIERA BEACH — Nancy Brenner, Bernice Fermo.

WELBORN — Virginia Phillips.

LAKE WORTH — Nancene Price, Robert Canada.

CANAL POINT — Frances Wilson, Dennis Wilson.

BELLE GLADE — Esther Friedheim, Wanda Mackey.

PAHOKEE — Margaret Shirley.

DELRAY BEACH — Billie McFee.

ORLANDO — Thomas Wilson, Elizabeth Beeton, Harriet Davis, Joan Hiscock, Shirley Ogram, Adriano Whittle, V[illegible] Austin Jr., Dorothy Johnson, Madeline Johnson, Sylvia Parrish, Jane Putnam, Mary Rourk, Corrie Simmons, Patricia Smith, Joan Taves, June Wheeler, Julia Wilson, [illegible]ce Brewton, O[illegible] Liming, Edward Williams, Ed[illegible] Foster, William Corbett Jr., Patricia Day, Gay Hargis, Shirley Ann Waters.

MAITLAND — Jacqueline Goddard.

WINTER GARDEN — Dorothy Kannon, James Rose.

WINTER PARK — Anne Crane, Jaina Farcell, William Lapinski.

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Spencer Roads.

OVIEDO — Susan Watsenbarger.

DAYTONA BEACH — Louise Gillespie, N[illegible] Wenner, Selby Alleo, Sarah Woodward, Joyce Cayard, Forrest McGinley, Carol Owen, Willard Schifferm[illegible], Elizabeth Mims, Kay Haines, Nancy Carter, Homer Crawford, William Perry.

DELAND — David Marcell, Ruth Kuswa.

HOLLY HILL — Mary Meadows.

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Joan Birch.

ENTERPRISE — Sylvia Hayman.

PORT ORANGE — Margaret King.

PENSACOLA — Paul Caro Jr., Samuel Faircloth, Eloise McGirr, Eva Newman, Doris Rogers, Raymond Rogers, Helen White, Doris Amos, Betty Clopton, Alice Cornwell, Nancy Mayer, Jo Ann McKay, Ann Southerland, Elizabeth Stasinos, Jesse Thornton, [illegible] Anne Winter, Kenneth Nelson, William Agnes, Shirley Larson, Howard Robertson.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Louise Hover, Sara Staple[illegible], Jeanne Allen, Lawrence Miller, Marie Schurman, Norma Cosby, Carol Landry, Mary McNatt, Margaret Nesler, Alice Ross, Helen Sparling, Astrid Tindall, Joan Jones, Audrey Blomgren, James Staples, Don Van Nus, Harry Strandhagen.

HOLLYWOOD — Alice Lentz, Richard Lukas, Ruth Ward, Patricia Filson, Lona Cochran, Edward Gearhart.

HALLANDALE — Earl Peterson Jr.

DANIA — Mary Turpin, Phyllis Cruz.

MELBOURNE — Susan Earle.

OAKLAND PARK — Charles Anderson.

DAVIE — Barbara Hammer.

GAINESVILLE — David Bachman, Janice Watkins, Alice Cook.

ALACHUA — Shirley Traxler.

TAVARES — Ka[illegible] Jones, Mary Campb[illegible].

EUSTIS — L[illegible] Lazear Jr., Janet Osborn, Joyce Jeffers.

MOUNT DORA — Bettye Ray, Elizabeth Haas.

UMATILLA — Virginia Brennand, Beverly Welch.

GRAND ISLAND — Harry Day.

CLERMONT — Barbara Brown.

MINNEOLA — Georgina Shortt.

LEESBURG — Kenneth Jarrett.

TALLAHASSEE — Kenneth Bass Jr., Drew Boggs, Alouette Buskey, Graham Caroth[illegible], Richard Ervin, Ann Farquharson, Barbara Fitchner, Marties Gessler, Nancy Haddad, John Harris, Linda Harris, Bobbie Hartsfield, Wendel Heaton Jr., Elton Henley, Anne Hill, Jan Jarrett, Janice Jarrett, Shirley Ke[illegible], Earl Koos Jr., James K[illegible], R[illegible]eau Laffitte, Crystal McRae, Robert Meeks, Selma Anne Morgan, Alan Mullins, Gary Nahsted, Peter Nimkoff, David Porter, Richard Sanderson, Thomas Sands, Sandra Scott, Ram[illegible], Simm[illegible], William Stanley, Elizabeth Vea, Marie Wadsworth, Hildegarde Wagner, Roscoe Whiddon, [illegible] W[illegible], Rodney W[illegible], Bessie Woodward, Samuel A[illegible], M[illegible] Sheard, Helen Ca[illegible], Ma[illegible] Curtis, Lawrence Lienfeld, William Evans, Laura Fox, Richard Gutting, Thelma Hawkins, Don Holder, Barbara Hughes, Mary [illegible], Norma Marchant, Donald M[illegible], Evelyn McRae, Pappy Nolen, Carolyn Redfern, Rena Rehwinkel, Mary Ross, Anne Soutter, Dale We[illegible], Sara Whitehead, Kathryn Be[illegible], Patricia Cummins, Margaret Greene, William Houston, Karl Mohr, Alford Belden, Bernard Benstock, William Bond, W[illegible], De[illegible], Elizabeth Fiery, George Frank, George G[illegible], Wanda Gustafson, Samuel H[illegible], T. E. Hermanson, G[illegible] H[illegible], Edward Reamer, Mara L[illegible], N[illegible], William L[illegible], A[illegible] M[illegible], Nat[illegible] Rockwood, Ann J[illegible], S[illegible], Charles Coulter, Leah Fe[illegible], Carl Fitzgerald, Carol Fl[illegible], Janet Hamrick, Vera Jenson, Marguerite Mead, Kay Edw[illegible], Beverly Fisher, James Johnson, Harold Stewart, Fred Thornton, Ronald Brown, Dorothy Maner, Quinton Moore, E[illegible] Dentremont, Donnie Hoss, Rosemary Johnson, Gilbert King, Cove Moore Jr., David P[illegible], [illegible]n Sch[illegible], D[illegible] S[illegible], Joseph [illegible]h, M[illegible] Taley, William Tesak, J[illegible] T[illegible], J. T. Williams Jr., Betty [illegible]n, M[illegible] Green, Charles Howard, Ve[illegible] M[illegible], Michael Bennett, Marteesa Lindamood, Lewis Aiken J[illegible], Martha Shannon, George Spencer, Joan Haskett, Joseph Wilkin[illegible], Michael D[illegible], M[illegible] Simo[illegible], W[illegible], [illegible] Ga[illegible] Parker, Walter Wil[illegible], [illegible] Elizabeth Maxwell, Joseph Ka[illegible], John Thompson, Arthur Butler, Theodore Clevenger, George Crozie, William Caroll, John Owen, Richard Peterson, Peggy Pennell, W[illegible], T[illegible], Fred[illegible] S[illegible], Wayne Wentworth, Gwyneth Cooper, John Cooper, Acquilla Berlas, Harold Covell, Mostafa El Sayed, Eric Kent, Elon McRae, Ezzat Younathan, Elke Frank, Geraldine Ortia, Luis Almocovar, Joan O'Brian.

OCALA — Mary Ann O'Neal, Jeannette Alford, Gladys Wiggins, Gloria Bohler, Charline Cavines, Jane Jones, Sonia Lovell, John Newberry Jr., Rose Rives, Sandra Starry, Elizabeth Clardy, Janyce Craig, Jobo Newsoma.

OKLAWAHA — Martha Willis.

ANTHONY — Wilma Brazell.

PALMETTO — George McAdon, Patricia Courter, Susana Ford.

BRADENTON — Donn Teal, Kalliope Economos, Sandra Lee, Alan Downes, Effie Silver.

ONECO — Patrick Wolfe.

SARASOTA — Freddie Solomon, Ann Wall, William Harmon, Joe Coates, Shirley Davis, Marjorie Dunn, Con Horn, Bruce Jacob, Jean Levinson, Carol Membert, Patrick Murphy, Hilda Odom, Ronald Troyer, Marcello Truzzi, Arden Wright, James Young, Betty Jo Grubbs, Dawn Sharp, Jacquelina Bouder, Louanne Self, Florence Ashby, John Zilles, Lawrence Zuber.

VENICE — Jacquelen Spencer, Ruth Jelks, June Smith.

SANFORD — Harold Kastner Jr., Beatrice Bisbee, Clyde Walker, Margaret Wilson, Clarence Grantham.

FORT MYERS — Constance Bassett, Agnes Bassett, Lee Banshaw, David Raney, Frances Shofner, Elizabeth Ferguson, Nathan Blount.

ALVA — Tom Limbaugh, Nall Limbaugh.

MELBOURNE — Marilyn Murray, Dian Hoskins, Robert Britt, Eliza Dick.

COCOA — Charles Donaldson.

EAU GALLIE — Horace Gray.

ST. AUGUSTINE — Margaret McCullough, Arnold Melchar Jr., John Sellers, Joan Medlin, Ione Parry, JoAnn Avril, Gene Johnson, Patricia Byro, Barbara McCarter, Margaret Ann Young.

QUINCY — Elizabeth Edwards, James Hussong, George Crichton, Eldon Greene, Anne Kelley, Frank Orrick, James Rogers, Mary Davis, Mary Edwards, Elizabeth Johnson, Carol Sapp, Charles Hurns, Ryan Edwards, Sarah Frances Aodera, Steva Edwards Jr., Betty Gregory, Norman Fain Jr., Anthony Wheat.

CHATTAHOOCHEE — Spurgeon Johnson, Velma Jones.

HAVANA — Henry Ferrell, Marjorie Moreland, Favolene Williams, Jeannette Ruod, Charlie Lester, F. DeWitt Miller Jr.

PALATKA — Elizabeth Bailey, Martna Hughes, Ardrenn Miller, Effie Miller, Dorothy Ann Starbird, Donna McNab, Bill Suttlemyre.

EAST PALATKA — Donna Gray.

PANAMA CITY — Barbara Jean Balske, Powell Brewton, Robert Ferguson, Eleanor Poteat, Gertrude Surber, Georgia Ann Welch, Susan Baymiller, Gail Allen Byrd, Alica Campbell, Betti Lawrence, Mary Pilcher, Sherry Whitley, William Emfinger, John Connell, Lucius Graddy Jr.

LYNN HAVEN — Glen Mayo.

FOUNTAIN — Richard Wagnar.

PARKER — Vera Ann Pratt.

JUPITER — Sandra Kendrick.

AVON PARK — Arlene Sargent, Elizabeth Suggs, Myrtice Longbottom.

SEBRING — Mary Twitty, Ann Yaager, Shirley Wallace, Charlotta Abney, Clara Saunders.

ZEPHYRHILLS — Joan Bradan.

DADE CITY — Anne Futch, Cedora Platt, John Terwilliger.

LAKE CITY — Glorida McBride, Linda Arnold.

ONA — John Rooney.

WAUCHULA — Barbara Ullrich.

LIVE OAK — Robert Butler, Emma Dexter, Frances Hearn, Norma Jean Tedder.

BRANFORD — Mildred Hatch, Jacqueline Fletcher, Laura Jones, Mildred Jones.

VERO BEACH — Beverly Cox, Liz Gra[illegible], Jan[illegible] C[illegible], Gwen Loy, Lil[illegible] A[illegible], Donald S[illegible].

SEBASTIAN — [illegible] Auten.

MILTON — Marie Gauger, Betty Strain.

ARCADIA — Adrianna Daly, Mary Martin, Ann Hays.

MADISON — Franklin Adams, Charles Capp, Forrest Brown, Dorothy Browning, Margaret Cantey, Yvonne Duval.

LINETTA — Frances Woodward.

GREENWOOD — Laura McLeod.

GREENVILLE — Florence Pate, Arthur Methvin, William Byrd.

DE FUNIAK SPRINGS — Shirley Rachels, Faye Bass, Carol Carian, Marcus Fountain Jr., Bettye Kirkland, Bobby Sellars.

CHAIRES — Danny Morris.

PERRY — Irene Mantzanas, Joseph McClellan, Betty Peacock, Mary Griffith.

FOLEY — Imogene Simons.

KEY WEST — William Nehlett, Anne Yates, Oscar Oropeza, Kathryn Sanchez, Eleanor Gato, Barbara Twichaus.

BROOKSVILLE — Nelda Whittle, Maria Sh[illegible]den, Carol Law.

FERNANDINA BEACH — Betty Corbett, Helen Williams.

HOBE SOUND — Ruth Kegel.

CRESTVIEW — Robert McKnight, Hugh Watson.

FORT WALTON — Ramona Simmons, J[illegible]n Stanley, Patricia Miller.

BUSHNELL — June Hamilton.

WEBSTER — David Collins.

WILDWOOD — Patricia Jones.

STARKE — Florence Brown.

LAWTEY — Mary Futch.

LAMONT — Frances Neeley.

AUCILLA — Stephen Walker.

MONTICELLO — Nancy Rainey, Hu[illegible] Clayton, Shirley C[illegible].

GREEN COVE SPRINGS — Ellen Campbell, Mary Priscilla Duck.

CLEWISTON — Charles Miner Jr., JoAnn Kay Pitzen, Elizabeth Stitt, Joy Elizabeth Crouch, Helen Espenlauh.

CHIPLEY — Catherine Dunn, Evelyn D[illegible], Sandra Lee Sanders, H[illegible] C[illegible]nut.

VERNON — Martha Brigman, Loran Ha[illegible].

BONIFAY — Kathryn Zappolo, Mary F. Davis.

WESTVILLE — Charles Matthews.

PONCE DE LEON — Elliott Whitton.

GLEN ST. MARY — Irene Crews.

MACCLENNY — Mary Harvey.

PUNTA GORDA — Janice Caroll Jones, Sylvia W[illegible]s, Elizabeth Cerny, Beatrice Smith.

CROSS CITY — Joe Ann Brannen, Betty Sue Wil[illegible].

TRENTON — V[illegible] Sheppard.

JASPER — Ma[illegible] Benson.

BLOUNTSTOWN — Harriet E. Ramsey, Helen Runn.

ALTHA — Merle Jo[illegible]e, Hanna Cynthia Di[illegible]ard, Kat[illegible]n Williams.

CARRABELLE — Max Kilbourn, Mary Page.

APALACHICOLA — Alfred O'Neal Shuler.

BUNNELL — Charles Turner.

MAYO — Virginia Cook, Dolores Hart, Bobbie Murray.

WAUCHULA — Mary Eliz Miller.

SOPCHOPPY — Steve Revell.

BELLE GLADE — Catherine Friedheim.

WAKULLA — Nancy Dittman.

PORT ST. JOE — Beverly Duperrouzel, Mary McFarland.

WEWAHITCHKA — Ann Mayfield.

ORANGE — Bessie Fenn.

HOSFORD — Lilia Shular.

JAY — Dale Childers.

PAMONA PARK — Philip Alvers.

FT. PIERCE — Martha Baggett.

COTTONDALE — Betty Lou Dilmore.

GREENWOOD — Mary Carol Bevis, Mary Willis.

MARIANNA — Richard Carroll, Margaret Miller, Joan Strickland.

GRACEVILLE — Joe Ann McIntosh, Sylvia Rabb.

MALONE — Jo Ann Snipes.

CAMPBELLTON — Evelyn Henley.

ST. CLOUD — Edwin McGough, Herman Smith, Grace Smith.

KISSIMMEE — Theodore McGonigal.

MINNEOLA — Georgina Short.

OUT OF STATE

NAPERVILLE, ILL. — Donald Alford.

TULSA, OKLAHOMA — Rex Bennatt.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLAHOMA — Joanne Poe.

VALDOSTA, GEORGIA — Marty Bethune.

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS — Charles Biersborn, Lee Barber, Erich Weber.

HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT — William Blunien.

LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS — Shalby Brewar.

COLON, MICHIGAN — Ellen Brooks.

NEW YORK, N. Y. — James Brooks, Patricia Rooney, Harold LeVay, Rima Greenberg.

HICKORY, N. C. — Melinda Brown.

MACON, GEORGIA — Gustav Bischoff, Joan Cassidy, Sarah Stevens.

RICHMOND, INDIANA — Monroe Dooley.

ATLANTIC CITY, NEW JERSEY — James Fadigan.

SHELBY, N. C. — Forrest Gold.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA — Mary Hill, Joan Guard, Jane Sanderson, Barbara E. Graham, Martha Grizzard, Evelyn Hoge, David Medford.

FRANKLIN, TENN. — Walter Buna Gray.

CAIRO, GEORGIA — Frankie Harrison, Anna Barnette Verran, Charlia Harrison.

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE — Barbara Hastings, Charolett Patten, Phyllis Patten.

ALBANY, GEORGIA — Ray Johnson, James Wallis Jr.

PONCHATOULA, LA. — Houston Mathes.

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK — Joyce Larsdell.

KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE — Andrew King.

OCEAN CITY, MARYLAND — Constantine Mangason.

JOHNSON CITY, TENNESSEE — Barbara Murphy.

KEOKUCK, IOWA — Richard Rhoton.

AUGUSTA, WISCONSIN — Harry Senske.

WAKE FOREST, NORTH CAROLINA — Barbara Tribble.

CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA — Meta Viohl.

BOULDER, COLORADO — Mary Walters.

COVINGTON, INDIANA — Robert Williams.

LYNN, INDIANA — Sandra Zevin.

RUSHVILLE, INDIANA — Richard Arlmeier.

SANDY SPRINGS, GEORGIA — Glenda Briscoe.

HAZELCREST, ILLINOIS — Richard Ireland.

COTTONWOOD, ALABAMA — Sylvia Lewis.

BAINBRIDGE, GEORGIA — Mary Robertson, Catherine Nelson.

PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA — James Tanaka.

[illegible]SBURG, VIRGINIA — Charlotte Ver[illegible].

SAVANNAH, GEORGIA — Benny Wallace.

AVONDALE ESTATES, GEORGIA — Grace Atkinson.

THOMASVILLE, GEORGIA — Miriam Betzer.

MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA — Suanne Lett.

TIFTON, GEORGIA — Elizabeth Zimmerman.

CULLMAN, ALABAMA — Mary Burns.

EUFALA, ALABAMA — Edwin Cargill.

VALDOSTA, GEORGIA — Nancy Dvorak.

GREENWOOD, SOUTH CAROLINA — John Ficklin.

MOBILE, ALABAMA — Nancy Wakefield, Patricia Fitzsimmons.

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA — Thomas Greenshaw.

DUE WEST, SOUTH CAROLINA — Anne Hoffman.

KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE — Anne Holcomb.

LANSING, MICHIGAN — Frank Kirmer.

BREWTON, ALABAMA — Robert McMillan.

CHICAGO HEIGHTS, ILLINOIS — Bernandine Paolini.

COLUMBUS, SOUTH CAROLINA — William Pharris.

CORNELIA, GEORGIA — Sue Purvis.

NORFOLK, VIRGINIA — Ruth Searborough.

TYLERTOWN, MISSISSIPPI — Larry S[illegible].

NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA — Janet Silas, Zora Diamond.

ALEXANDRIA, LOUISIANA — David Ward-Steinman.

OBERLIN, OHIO — John Annable Jr.

BELMONT, NORTH CAROLINA — Jean Armstrong.

WOODSTOCK, VIRGINIA — Richard Boyer.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO — John Burge.

MURRAY, KENTUCKY — Joe Cable.

ROCHESTER, NEW YORK — Charles Caseau.

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA — George Cha[illegible].

SANTA CRUZ, CALIFORNIA — John Hendrickson.

WASHINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA — James Larkin.

BEDFORD, NEW HAMPSHIRE — Ronald Lavoie.

McCALLA, ALABAMA — Wallace Letson.

AURORA, ILLINOIS — Glen Martin.

COCHRAN, GEORGIA — Mary Meadows.

CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA — Louis Nelson.

WATERBURY, CONNECTICUT — Ann O[illegible].

HARRISVILLE, RHODE ISLAND — John Pendleton.

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY — Marvin Rosenblatt.

FAIRFIELD, CONNECTICUT — George Sikorsky.

BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA — Catherina Sn[illegible].

BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA — Gynnie Smith.

THOMAS, WEST VIRGINIA — Ruth Stemple.

RICHMOND, KENTUCKY — Thomas Stone.

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN — James E[illegible].

[illegible], ALABAMA — Richard Vinson.

CHARLESTON, WEST VIRGINIA — Stanton Withrow.

KINGS PARK, NEW YORK — Richard Young.

BREVARD, NORTH CAROLINA — [illegible].

HIGHLAND PARK, NEW JERSEY — Kenneth Zankel.

BATAVIA, NEW YORK — Norma Boston.

ROANOKE, VIRGINIA — Patricia Cartledge.

GOSHEN, INDIANA — Anne Emmert.

TOLEDO, OHIO — Patricia Lynch.

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND — Constance Coleman.

BOSTON, GEORGIA — Dorothy Dekle.

BELLE PLAINE, IOWA — Gay Argo.

BURNHAM, PENNSYLVANIA — John Reaver.

PLAIN DEALING, LOUISIANA — Willis Bellar.

PARK RIDGE, ILLINOIS — David Collins.

FINDLAY, OHIO — Robert File.

GOLDSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA — Jack [illegible].

ENDICOTT, NEW YORK — Arthur Illg.

COLUMBUS, MISSISSIPPI — Karlin Kent.

SOUTH BEND, INDIANA — Lloyd Lasser.

ORANGEBURG, SOUTH CAROLINA — Joseph Moss, Richard Hutto.

[illegible], MISSOURI — Wayne Patton.

VINELAND, NEW JERSEY — Harold [illegible].

SCHENECTADY, NEW YORK — Charles Russell.

FORT VALLEY, GEORGIA — Penelope Vinson.

DECATUR, GEORGIA — James Webb.

LAURELTON, NEW YORK — Madeline Weinhaum.

COHUTTA, GEORGIA — Vern Williams.

FLUSHING, NEW YORK — Gerald [illegible].

WOODLAND, GEORGIA — Charles [illegible].

[illegible], PENNSYLVANIA — [illegible] Faulkner.

CHESTER, PENNSYLVANIA — Lavinia Duncan.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Van Paterson.

GENEVA, OHIO — William Geho.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C. — Jean Risher.

LANNETT, ALABAMA — Judson Wood.

HUMBOLDT, TENNESSEE — Charles Hopper.

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, OHIO — Mary Perkins.

JAMESTOWN, NEW YORK — Norman Olson.

LEONARD WOOD, MISSOURI — Helan Whitemore.

PAULSBORO, NEW YORK — Herbert Josephs.

GRIFFIN, GEORGIA — Richard Slade.

FOREST HILLS, NEW YORK — Valeska Taxwood.

ST. CROIX, VIRGIN ISLANDS — Donald Rogers.

SAO PAULO, BRAZIL — Loretta Castellino.

BANGKOK, THAILAND — Charoon Chantrakrua.

DORAT, THAILAND — Boonyiem Chitradan.

CENTRAL HERSHEY, CUBA — Marilynne Searight.

SUANYI - NONDABURG, THAILAND — Nikom Wangvaw.

MANITOBA, CANADA — William Propkopi.

QUIZON, PHILLIPPINES — Raul DeGuzman.

SCHENENIHAGEN, NETHERLANDS — Anna Erdman.

DUBLIN, IRELAND — John McGlynn.

BANGKOK, THAILAND — Charoe Vadhanapanich.

DBONBURI, THAILAND — Runjuan Intarakhumhana.

HONOLULU, HAWAII — Ruth Matsuda.

ANSUNCION, PARAGUAY — Janet Vanouse.

The Guilty Ones—The Flambeau staff is caught hands down. Note students busily engaged in putting out next issue. This unposed photo proves motto: "Nearly everyone on the Flambeau reads the Flambeau." Snap was taken during expose of campus illegal activities. These students are wanted by the FBI.

Attorney General Assistant Speaks Here Monday

Jack Lloyd, assistant attorney general in the state criminal division, will speak to the Student Body cabinet Monday afternooo at its regular meeting which begins at 4.

President Pete Nimkoff invited all interested students to attend. He said that if enough come the meeting will be held in the Senate chamber, second floor Longmire, or else in the president's office next door.

On Tuesday morning, he added, the cabinet will observe a meeting of the state Cabinet in the Capitol.

Survey Shows Tourists Like Florida

By MARY SHAW

Facts regarding the annual mass movement of tourists to and from Florida have beeo revealed in a nationwide survey ot Florida's tourists.

This survey was made at the request of the Florida State Advertising Commission, by J. Richard Stevens, associate professor of advertising at Florida State University. Designed to reveal the effectiveness of Florida's tourist advertising program, the survey covered the year of July 1 through June 30, 1954.

The transportation figures showed that 81.5 percent of our annual visitors arrive by car, 2.8 percent by bus, and 8.9 percent by train, with the remaining 8.3 percent arriving by airplane.

Motel Business

Since the greater number arrives by car, a big business is indicated for motels. Forty-nine percent of the tourists choose motels for their accommodations while in Florida while 18.9 percent choose apartment houses. The resort hotels accommodate 17.8 percent, trailer parks house 2.5 percent, and various other medians accommodate 11.4 percent.

According to Mr. Stevens, tourists spend an average of $181 per person or $8.15 per person per day. This means that one minor portion of all Florida tourists spent an estimated $82,782,218, of which $4,816,781 is returned directly to the treasury in taxes. The partial sums consider only those tourists who had responded to the state program by sending in keyed coupons from Florida tourist advertisements published between July 1, 1953 and June 30, 1950.

How does the tourist spend his money while in Florida? He spends 15 percent for gasoline, 29 percent for meals, 20 percent for lodging, 18 percent for retail purchases, and 7 percent for theatres and amusement, with the remaining 5 percent for travel attractions.

This leaves no doubt, according to survey officials, that the Florida tourist advertising program is a decidedly profitable investment. Anthony J. Dwyer, Director of Advertising, states that $880,000 is spent yearly on tourist advertising. For each dollar of the state appropriations, $121.71 was spent in Florida with Florida citizens and businesses and $7.08 came back directly into the State Treasury as a result of Florida tax revenues.

It should be noted that the $880,000 includes all the tourist trade activities carried on by the Florida State Advertising Commission in this year, in addition to the space and time and production cost of paid publication and radio advertising, such as: tourist booklets, point of purchase merchandising program, publicity stories and pictures, posters and tourist information, etc.

Sixty percent of Florida's visitors like it so well that they definitely plan to return, although a few express pet gripes.

Among the criticisms which Florida visitors raise are those of the unsuccessful fisherman, as expressed by an individual from Atlanta, Georgia, who has "bought three non-resident fishing licenses in Florida and has not caught "even one fish."

A more irate Texan complained about the police. He said: "Never again. County police are rude, dictatorial, aggressive, and mercenary." A citizen from Pittsburgh feels that with all Florida's orange groves, restaurants should serve fresh orange juice.

But the great majority of comments in the survey were favorable and many were super-enthusiastic. Of the 1,877 comments received of types which could be classified as favorable or unfavorable, 1,528, or 91 percent were favorable.

The general comments were generously sprinkled with lavish phrases like "Heavenly", "[illegible]", "A Paradise", or "Unbelievably Beautiful".

Many of the responses from tourists contacted offered friendly suggestions. One from Eastern Maryland, said, "We came only for fresh water fishing. Don't let industrial waste ruin it, take a lesson from northern rivers and avoid pollution."

These facts show that the Florida tourist industry is growing and will continue to grow as long as the tourists are as satisfied as these facts show.

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPER-TO-BUMPER AND ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. St.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

Church News

DR. LIDDELL SPEAKS TO HILLEL SUNDAY

Dr. Anne Forbes Liddell, professor of philosophy, will speak to the Hillel Foundation, Sunday at 8 p.m. on "The Influence of Ancient Jewish Thought on Modern Western Ethics.

Discussion and refreshments will follow the lecture which will be held at Temple Israel. President Alan Cordish invited interested students, faculty and staff to attend.

Next weekend, members of the University of Florida Hillel Foundation choir will be at Florida State University for a joint weekend with the FSU Hillel Foundation.

METHODISTS ELECT OFFICERS FOR 1955

The newly elected officers of the Methodist Student House are Barbara Cooper, president; Evelyn Moll, vice-president; Esther Jones, recording secretary; Charlotte and Phyllis Patton, attendance secretaries; Curtis Simmons, treasurer, and Sill Roche, recording treasurer.

Installation of these officers will be held Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in place of Sunday School.

Evelyn Moll, present vice-president of the Student House, was elected president of the State Methodist Movement at the recent conference in Leesburg. Also, Mary Catherine Freeman was elected to the state office of treasurer, Methodist Student Fellowship Fund.

There will be a coffee hour tonight from 10 to 11 p.m. at the Student House open to all who wish to come.

Calendar Of Events

Today, March 25

11:45 a.m.—Faculty Luncheon in the Trophy Room of the Student Center.

4 p.m.—Dr. Simon Freed will speak on "Chemistry of Solutions at Low Temperature," in 306 Science.

5:30 p.m.—Alpha Kappa Psi will hold a dinner at 811 West Jefferson for members and rushes. Call 2-5328 for reservations.

8:30 p.m.—A Faculty Square Dance will be held in the Student Lounge of Longmire.

Saturday, March 26

Panhellenic Workshop:

12 p.m. — Luncheon in Suwannee Room.

1:45-3 p.m. Discussion Groups in Longmire.

CAPEZIO® SKIMMER
By The Angel
Cobbler — Capezio
• White Kid
• Black Kid
• Pastel Blue Kid
• Pink Kid
• Black Patent
• Red Kid
• Sand Kid
• Navy Kid
• Straw Cloth
7.95
Exclusive With Strickland's
...1930 Silver Anniversary 1955...
115 E. College Ave.

College smokers know why
WINSTON
changed America's mind about filter cigarettes!

WINSTON brings flavor back to filter smoking!
■ It didn't take long for word to get around campus! Winston's got real flavor —the full, rich, tobacco flavor you want. No wonder so many college men and women are getting together on Winston!
Along with finer flavor, Winston also brings you a finer filter. The exclusive Winston filter works so effectively, yet lets the flavor come right through to you. Easy-drawing—that's Winston!
Smoke WINSTON the easy-drawing filter cigarette!
R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

From The Sidelines

By Alan Whitmarsh

Sports Staff

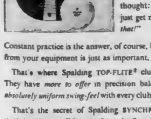
A Banner Year

The sports year of 1954-55 is fast turning out to be one of the most successful in the history of Florida State University. A trip to a major Bowl game by an 8-3 winning football team; a national tournament appearance by the Seminole cagers; a shoot-to-kill season by the school rifle team, running up a sensational 22-4 mark; the Florida AAU title to the FSU swimming and volleyball teams; in spring sports, through Wednesday, the baseball team was 7-1, the golf team 5-1 and the tennis team 3-1; the gymnastics team enplaned for Los Angeles in seek of their third national title in five years.

What do all these accomplishments add up to? For one thing, the increasing importance and added prestige for the Seminoles in the world of college sports. For another, it points out a major challenge for a certain Robert Woodruff, so-called athletic director of a certain university down in Gainesville. In early years, the exemption of Florida State from Florida's schedule was generally believed to mean that the Seminoles, still in their growing years, would not furnish a suitable amount of competition to merit a hotly contested rivalry between the two schools.

Now, the continued advents of Mr. Woodruff, tending to shy away from facing FSU in dual competition on the athletic field, are bringing more and more inferences that Florida is afraid of having their prestige hurt by a loss to their "baby brothers." Despite losing to the Gators in the Gator Bowl competition, the Seminole basketball team continually proved itself the Gators' better during the remainder of the year and the baseball team is doing so in far more spectacular fashion, as the swimming team already has.

The 9-2 Seminole triumph over Georgia along with their 7-6 defeat the next day a outstandingly significant in the face of the fact that the weekend before the Bulldogs had successfully completed a relatively non-arduous rout of Florida by scores of 20-4 and 11-4. The swimming team from FSU easily outdistanced the Gators in the recent AAU meet in Miami and walked away with the state title.



On Par With Gators

In golf and tennis, the Seminoles are certainly capable of being the Gators' equals and the year is not far away when they will be able to make the Gators swallow their pride on a football field. Despite the continuing rise of the Tallahassee school, Mr. Woodruff continues to shut his eyes to the possibility of the two schools meeting in any sport, or making his conditions so overwhelmingly favorable to Florida that Seminole officials would question accepting them.

Ostensibly, he aides behind his schedule, claiming fervently that his SEC commitments prevent him from playing more than one state school, in this case, the University of Miami. Yet, the Gators have George Washington University of Virginia scheduled for a home game in Gainesville next year. What can possibly be the strategy of such a contest, when obviously interest would not be so high as such a contest as to attract to large number of fans from such a distant state and also obviously, an FSU-Florida rivalry would certainly bring half of Tallahassee to Gainesville to see such a contest. Is this what the honorable Mr. Woodruff considers "schedule difficulties?"

A meeting between the two schools would seem inevitable in the near future. Yet, it would also seem that it cannot be accomplished until a direct change is made in the Gators' athletic policy, either by removing Woodruff or giving him some insight on school athletic relations. One thing is sure, with the publicity that such a meeting is getting at present, it will be a major sports attraction for the Sunshine State when it is brought about.

WHO ARE THE "TOP-FLITE" GOLFERS ON YOUR CAMPUS?

If you've watched them on the course, you've probably thought: "Boy, if I could just get my game down like that!"

Constant practice is the answer, of course, but getting the best from your equipment is just as important, too.

That's where Spalding TOP-FLITE® clubs have the edge. They have more to offer in precision balance that gives an absolutely uniform swing-feel with every club in the matched set.

That's the secret of Spalding SYNCHRO-DYNED® clubs. And, it will pay off for you from the first round. You'll make the same shots with new uniformity. The perfect balance of these clubs lets you swing through the ball with confidence. Without "choking-up" or "compensating." You get the ball away cleaner, longer, and with more shot control.

These are the clubs that have lowered handicaps by as much as ½! Spalding SYNCHRO-DYNED TOP-FLITE clubs. Your Golf pro has them now. And, now's the time for you to start playing better golf.

SPALDING SETS THE PACE IN SPORTS

Seminoles Top Amherst, 10-1, Behind Garcia

Tommy Garcia, a diminutive FSU freshman right-hander, checked Amherst on six his Wednesday, while cruising to an easy 10-1 victory.

The triumph was the seventh in their eight starts for coach Danny Litwhiler's Seminoles.

The Tribe met the Lord Jeffs in the second and final game of the series late yesterday.

LATE FLASH

The Amherst baseball team scored two runs in the tenth inning yesterday afternoon to turn back FSU, 9-7. The Tribe's record now stands at 7-2.

The Seminoles meet Mississippi College here Monday afternoon.

In Wednesday's win, Garcia struck out five and walked but one. First baseman Fred Twomey continued his batting barrage by pounding out a three-run homer and a single. Twomey's three r.b.i.s gave him 13—for team leadership.

In eight games to date, the Tribe has scored 72 runs while holding the opposition to 28.

The victory for Garcia was his third straight of the year. He has now three than any other Tribe hurler.

Catcher Bob Vaughn smashed four hits for the Tribe, including a double.

The Tribe split a two-game series with Georgia Monday and Tuesday winning the first game 9-2 and losing the second, 7-4.

AMHERST	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
Mowrey, ss	4	0	2	1	3	0
Wetzelle, cf	4	0	0	3	1	0
Wood, lf	4	0	0	3	0	0
Wood, 2b	4	0	0	0	4	0
Hall, 3b	4	0	0	1	2	0
Hanson, rf	4	0	0	1	0	0
Davenport, rf	3	0	0	0	1	0
Hall, c	3	0	0	7	1	0
Iannitella, p	1	0	0	0	2	0
Lamberton, p	1	0	0	0	0	0
Ayers, p	0	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	33	1	2	16	15	2

	AB	R	H	PO	A
Campbell, 2b	4	1	1	4	3
Hudson, cf	4	2	1	2	0
Twomey, 1b	4	2	2	8	0
Twomey, lb	3	2	3	0	1
Vaughn, c	4	1	2	7	0
Vaughn, 1	1	0	0	0	0
Brewer, rf	3	0	1	3	0
Hall, ss	4	0	0	1	3
Warnke, lf	4	0	0	0	0
Garcia, p	3	0	0	0	2
Totals	34	10	10	25	9

GEORGIA	AB	R	H	PO	A
Fullerton, cf	4	0	1	2	0
Callaway, 3b	4	0	2	2	1
Andrews, ss	4	0	0	1	3
Sapp, 1b	4	0	0	9	1
Wade, lf	4	0	0	1	0
Bradley, lf	1	0	0	0	0
Knight, c	3	0	1	1	1
Fowler, rf	3	0	0	1	0
Cabaniss, p	1	0	0	0	1
Carter, p	0	0	0	0	0
Totals	33	2	5	27	7

	000	000	020	—	2
	000	002	000	—	2

Georgia ..... 000 000 020 — 2 0 1
FSU ..... 002 010 00x — 3 1 0

Seminole Golf Team Edges Georgia, 15-12

Birdies by Bunk Berry and Jack Veghte on the last hole gave Florida State's golfers a 15-12 victory over Georgia here Tuesday afternoon.

FSU's Bobby Dunn notched low-scoring honors with a 78. Berry and Veghte had 77's, Georgia's Billy Blake a 72.

For FSU, it was victory No. four in five starts.

Billy Blair '72; and Karl Bowden '73, Ga. defeated Dick Hauff '80 and Norrie Wright '77, 9-0. Bobby Dunn '70; and Bob Schuman '76, FSU, defeated Jack Lumpkin '77; and Jake Howard '73; 7½-1½. Berry '78 and Jack Veghte '78, defeated Leste, Kelly '74 and Archie Griffin '74, Ga., 7½-

Tribe Tennis Team Tops Ohio State Courtmen, 8-1

Florida state University's improving tennis squad scored its third straight victory Monday winning over Ohio State, 8-1. The Tribe has lost only once this season to Pittsburgh, one of the top southern net powers.

The letters face Pensacola Navy here today and Georgia Tech. also here, tomorrow.

Seminole netmen started on on the right foot Monday, winning all of the single matches and two doubles before losing the final doubles event.

Schaus def. Hanlon, 8-1, 6-3; Tom Cundy def. Frits Hartog, 1-0, 8-6, 6-3; Shelby Creigh def. Bob Gates, 8-2, 8-4; Don Wyly def. Don Moore, 8-3, 2-10; Shelby Brewer def Howard Hirsch, 6-1, 6-8. Tom Morgan def. Lee Scherberg, 6-0, 6-1.

Schaus-Creigh def. Harring-Gates, 8-2, 1-6, 6-0; Cundy-Jim Wade def. Hanlo -Hirsch, 6-2, 6-1; Moore-Bill Miller QSR, def Larry Kersey-Dick Walker, FSU, 7-5, 7-5.

Good Field, Good Hit—Bob Hudson, senior centerfielder for the Tribe baseball squad, is off to a fast start in this year's batting parade. In Monday's game against Georgia, Bob cracked four hits. One was a homer.

A Little Advice—Coach Keith Pitchford gives five of his tennis aces—l. to r., captain Hal Schaus, Joe Harris, Don Wyly, Tom Cundy, and Shelby Creagh — some instruction on one of the game's finer points. The FSU netmen meet Pensacola Navy here today and Georgia Tech tomorrow.

Action Picks Up In Women's Intramural Competition Today

ACTION PICKS UP . . . apta 2-94

Action nas picked up in women's intramural sports, with activity presently centered on basketball and badminton.

In the round robin tourney now under way, in league one, the undefeated team is Zeta. Thi Alpha; in league two, two squads have yet to lose, Chi Omega and Alpha Omega Pi; and in league three, West Landia is the only undefeated team.

Two teams have lost only once, Alpha Xi Delta and East Landia.

In today's action, AOPi meets Chi Omega.

In games on Monday, Jaunte faces Broward, Alpha Gamma Delta meets ZTA, Kappa Alpha Theta plays Sigma Kappa, East Landia meets Cawthon and Kappa Delta faces Delta Zeta.

At the conclusion of Monday's games the winning teams from each league will begin the championship playoffs which start Tuesday.

In badminton singles competition, in the playoffs yesterday Reynolds met ZTA. The winner of that match meets West Landia in the finals today.

In the doubles, Delta Gamma met West Landia. The winner of that match meets AKD today. Getting still more involved, the winner of today's game plays Pi Beta Phi Monday for the championship.

A Jungle Love Scene—Actor Donn Teal casts a long look at Karen Kimpel during scene from "Zo-Im-Ba," 1955 Sandspur production to be held last time Saturday at 8 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

All-America Stock Travels To Ohio For Tournament

Sophomore All-American Ernie Stock, perhaps the greatest swimmer in Florida State University history, left yesterday with Coach Bim Stults for the National Collegiate Athletic Association swimming championships at Miami (O.) University.

A native of Royal Oak, Mich., Stock won the 220-yard medium relay breaststroke title with a sparkling 2:42.8 time in the Florida AAU meet at Gainesville last week. Ernie scored 13 points in pacing FSU to an easy victory over Florida and Miami in the meet, and also played a major role in FSU's 21-steet underfoot dual strung that dress back to back in the 1952 and 1953 years.

Stock will compete in the 200-yard breaststroke and butterfly events in the NCAA meet.

Wanted—Staff writers for Flamboyant. Interesting. Apply Lonsmure.

Dance Group Taps 29 New Members

After a series of practices and try-outs, the following people have been accepted for the Theatre Dance Group.

Mary Jo Crum, Ruth Johnson, Barbara Emmett, Sue Purvis, Polly Atwater, Martha Pate, Nan Waggington, Jane Laurence, Ed Franklin, David Harmon, Sue Shivers, Sandra Whiting and Sara Prosser.

Jean Ritchens, Carolyn Jones, Sally Morgan, Emily Hudson, Lee Bouier, Astrid Tindall, Anne Breen, Denise Johnson, Irene Hughes, Sara Umstat, Bert Braun, Sandra Dees, McDonald, John Paul Davis, Joan Grantham, Barbara Wilderson and Ann Blackshear.

Westcott Audience Hears Slaughter

From Page 1

lande, he spent the next 20 years as a surgeon. His private practice was spent in Jacksonville.

Before entering a profitable writing career, Slaughter was named a fellow in the American College of Surgeons and diplomat of the American Board of Surgery.

Some of the books he has written which are available in local book stores are "That Nose Should Die," "In a Dark Garden," "Divine Mistress," "The Road to Brithmia," "The Galileans," "The Song of Ruth," and "The Healer."

Patronize Our Advertisers

—Special Book Display—

Books Autographed by Frank Slaughter, Noted Novelist

He will appear on "Meet The Author Series" – Today, March 25, at 4 P. M., in Westcott Auditorium. Books will be on display before and after the program.

UNIVERSITY BOOKSTORE

In The Student Center

FSU Athletes Seek NCAA Championship

By BOB GUTTING

The Seminole gym team left Tallahassee Wednesday for Los Angeles, where they will participate in the National Collegiate Athletic Association meet to be held this week-end.

Representing Florida State will be gymnasts Don Holder and Dick Irvine and ex-cpatriate, Jim Padgaon. James Hanka, Rafael Le-quna, Tom MacDonald, Robert Murray, Al Ruda, Jim Tanaka and Joe Taylor.

Holder and Lequna will join the team in Los Angeles after competition at the Pan American Olympic games in Mexico City.

In last years meet at Champaign, Illinois FSU placed third, trailing Penn State and Illinois. This year Penn State is heavily favored to retain the title they have held for two consecutive years.

Dr. Price said that he had figured on such things as Penn State's cunning ability to take 1-2-3 in that event, and Penn's Karl Schwenzfeier to win the all around championship won last year by Penn's Grunewald.

If the meet turns out the way Dr. Price figures Penn State will end up with 49 points, FSU 39, and UCLA 74.

At last meet Coach Don Holder took second in the all-around competition and Jack Miles first. Irvine scored 13 points in this last year, will not be on hand for the meet as he is currently studying in Sweden

Last year Holder also won the NCAA still rings crown and Jack Miles the NCAA long horse vault title. Holder has used up his remaining eligibility, will not compete in this years NCAA but will be on hand as the NAAU's in Rochester, N. Y. April Preliminaries will be held Friday afternoon with the finals for UCLA at 8 p.m. Saturday night.

On Campus with Max Shulman

(Author of "Barefoot Boy with Cheek," etc.)

I'VE GOT NEWS FOR YOU

It is my earnest hope that an occasional column of mine has pleased you enough to make you want to clip it out and keep it. But I'm sure that being preoccupied with more important things — like getting down to breakfast before your room-mate eats all the marmalade — the impulse has passed and been forgotten.

So I am pleased now to report that the makers of Philip Morris Cigarettes, bless their corporate hearts, have published a booklet called MAX SHULMAN REVISITED, which contains a set of my favorite columns, along with some brand new material, all of this profusely illustrated — all of this available to you gratis when you buy a couple of packs of Philip Morris at your favorite tobacco counter on or near your campus.

But this is not the only news I've got for you today. Following you will find a roundup of news highlights from campuses the country over.

Southern Reserve University

Dr. Willard Hale Sigafoos, head of the department of anthropology at Southern Reserve University and internationally known as an authority on primitive religion, returned recently from a four year scientific expedition to the headwaters of the Amazon River. Among the many exciting persons he met on his journey in his one-man canoe was the notable Philip Morris Snap-Open pack. A gentle tug on the tab and the package pops obligingly open. A gentle push on the open pack and it silently folds itself back, sealing in the savory vintage tobacco until you are ready to smoke again.

Eastern Reserve University

The annual meeting of the American Philological Institute, held last week at Eastern Reserve University, was enlivened by the reading of two divergent monographs concerning the origins of early Gothic "runes," as letters of primitive alphabets are called.

Dr. Tristram Lathrop Spleen, famed far and wide as the discoverer of the High German Consonant Shift, read a paper in which he traced the origins of the Old Wendish rune "pt" (pronounced "krahtt" - to the middle Lettic rune "gr" (pronounced "albert"). On the other hand, Dr. Richard Cummerbund Twonkey, world known translator of Tao Te Ysung Game into Middle High Bactrian, contended in his paper that the Old Wendish rune "pt" derives from the Low Erse rune "mf" (pronounced "gr").

Well, sir, the discussion grew so heated that Dr. Twonkey finally asked Dr. Spleen if he would like to step into the gymnasium and put on the gloves. Dr. Spleen accepted the challenge promptly, but the contest was never held because there were no gloves in the gymnasium that would fit Dr. Twonkey.

(The reader is doubtless finding this hard to believe as Eastern Reserve University is celebrated the length and breadth of the land for the sane of its glove collection. However, the reader is asked to remember that Dr. Twonkey has extraordinarily small hands and arms. In fact, he spent the last war working in a small arms plant, where he received two Navy "E" Awards and was widely hailed as a "manly little chap.")

©Max Shulman 1955

The makers of PHILIP MORRIS, sponsors of this column, urge you to get to your nearest store soon for your copy of MAX SHULMAN REVISITED. The supply is limited.

Student Senators In Controversy Over Resolution

Governor Receives Pin—Attending presentation of diamond-studded Sigma Alpha Epsilon pin to Governor LeRoy Collins Tuesday in the Suwannee Room are FSU President Doak S. Campbell; toastmaster Bill Stancik; Collins, John O. Moseley, SAE alumnus; Joe Harris, president of the local chapter, Tom Previette, province archon, and vice-president A. B. Martin. Four hundred attended.

Collins 'Pins' Wife College-Wise

Governor LeRoy Collins receiv- by candlelight at the governor's ed a diamond-studded Sigma Al- mansion.
pha Epsilon pin at a banquet re- Following the stag banquet, held cently. in the Suwannee Room, a re-
After he was presented with ception was held at the SAE the pin by Dr. John Moseley, house. The governor and his representing the National branch wife along with Dr. and Mrs.
of the fraternity, the governor Campbell braided the reception turned around and pinned his line. Other notables serving in wife. the line were Dr. and Mrs. Mose-ley, J. Lee Ballard, chairman of The local chapter, following the Board of Control, Mr. W. J. tradition, serenaded Mrs. Collins Flynn, Edna Holton, house moth-

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU
Friday, March 25, 1955

er for the local chapter, and Joe Harris, president of the local chapter.

Bill Stancik, spokesman for the local SAE chapter, said that the presentation of the pin was sponsored by the National SAE council in outstanding alumni, in recognition for being elected governor of a state.

The governor was initiated into SAE in 1951 while he was attending law school at Cumberland College in Tennessee.

Senators Split Over Platform Issues Of Major Candidates

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Student Senate, relieved at least temporarily of the representation question, passed a flock of resolutions at Wednesday's meeting.

They included requests for a student government charter, for garnet and gold license plates every other year, for lower rates on the Tallahassee municipal golf course, for exemption of men enrolled in National Guard or active reserve units from compulsory ROTC, for more telephones in dormitories, and for more pencil sharpeners.

Not All Agree

It couldn't be said, however, that they were in agreement on all. Charges that the telephone resolution had been "stolen" from the platform of a presidential candidate entered into the discussion of that issue, and several senators made a determined effort to block the ROTC resolution.

Vice-president Coyle Moore introduced the resolution asking for a charter or some other manner of authorization for student government from the Legislature or Board of Control, specifying certain areas in which it can function freely."

Moore said that the University of Florida often held up as an example of a state-chartered student government, has its charter instead from the Board of Control. He expressed doubts as to whether the Legislature would grant a charter for FSU.

The resolution asked that President Doak Campbell support the matter prior to the convening of the Legislature in April.

Senator Ken Gatlin a resolutions asking that men participating in the Florida National Guard or organized military reserve units be exempt from compulsory ROTC here, occasioned bitter debate although it eventually passed with only one opposing voice.

"It is not the duty of the Florida State University administration to determine how much military training a student should have," Gatlin charged.

Arguments against the resolution, voiced largely by Senators Bill Stancik and Bob Berry, claimed it would favor Tallahassee students and held that a member of the reserves could do inactive while at college, evading both ROTC responsibilities only.

Vice-president Gaster and Senators Gatlin, Bill Shepard, and Hank McCann were among those speaking for the resolution, maintaining that freedom of choice between the reserves and the ROTC program should be a factor.

In an attempt to address the problems Shepard suggested it should be considered by Men a Senate only, as a measure pertaining to the student body. This tactic, however, was voted down.

One roll call vote failed to pass the resolution, owing to a large number of abstentions, but on a second vote it passed with only Stancik and Berry opposing and Senators Jo Jones, Polly Atwater, Bonnie Blue and Joan Mikesell abstaining.

A resolution authored by Senator Jimmy Joanos asked that garnet and gold, FSU's school colors, be alternated with orange and blue on Florida automobile license tags.

Joanos's resolution pointed out that in many states the tag colors are alternated among the state universities and colleges. He did not say whether he thought the colors the state has used for the past few years, orange and blue, are those of the University of Florida by coincidence or intent.

Men's vice-president Gordon Gaster's resolution asking for more telephones in residence halls drew a blast from Senator Gatlin that it "smelled like a spoiled potential apple."

Declaring that he wouldn't "mince words" Gatlin alleged that the proposition was taken from the platform of vice-president Coyle Moore, Gaster's opponent for the Student Body presidency in next Tuesday's elections.

Gaster said that the telephone question had been under consideration for several months. An attempt developed to send the resolution to Senator Halford's basic student services and education committee but this was defeated. Gaster added that the needing had previously been referred to that committee after consideration by men's Senate.

Senator Hank McCann declared that Berry Senate had been in the year, discussed the telephone situation.

Further heated debate drew a blast from Senator Jim Moore who charged that "Today Senate has degraded itself more than it ever has in my two years here!"

When the resolution came to a vote vote it passed unanimously, however.

A resolution asking for more pencil sharpeners was passed, as was one protesting a doubling of the rates at the Tallahassee golf course.

Senator Bobby Temple, apparently disturbed by the controversy over the telephone resolution, urged that whatever party differences may exist be kept to a minimum. "When it comes to where people start charging each other with things like that is reference to 'steal' charges; I just don't like to work with it."

Lacey P. Moore was confirmed as a member of the elections committee. Elections senators approved were Paul Jones, Elton P. Daniels and Otis R. "Buddy" Branden.

Senators Stancik and Blue introduced a bill to abolish the cabinet position of secretary of recreation and replace it with a secretary of student welfare and education. The secretaries of recreation, insurance and veterans' affairs.

A constitutional amendment was introduced to give semester freshmen the right to hold office on the Summer Council.

Meet The People

Poll Reveals Student 'Knows' Candidate Who Gets His Vote

By PAT MARSTON

Candidates, let those posters up and meet the people!

If you want to be successful in the coming Spring Elections, you need to be known by as many people as possible. That's what a recent poll taken of students seems to indicate.

Students questioned as to why they voted for candidates in elections revealed that they voted for the people the knew.

In a race in which they didn't know either of the candidates, they tended to go according to the posters they saw. They also asked people who knew the candidates for information.

"I don't know them. I ask someone who does known them," said Nancy Hudson, a senior.

Some students tended to be influenced by campaign literature and the number of posters a candidate puts out.

"If I don't know them, I vote on a poster," stated Carolyn Shepard.

Others like Muriel Rotherham "don't believe in voting on campaign literature. If I don't know them personally I can't find out anything about them. I don't vote at all."

Platforms and plans for the future play a big part in the opinions of many students.

"I vote on their qualifications, what they've done and what they stand for," commented Dot Sharitz.

Another person who asked that he not be quoted said that he was against a certain candidate for president because he spent quite a while tearing down his opposing candidate and practically no time telling of his plans if elected. The other candidate hadn't mentioned his opposition but spent his time stating his platform and what he wanted to do if he were elected, said the voter.

In general, the important thing for a candidate seems to be to have himself known by as many people as possible. Posters and campaign literature that bring his name before the people and a good platform and past record all help.

But no matter what a candidate or party does, there is always the student like one interviewed who says, "Frankly, I don't vote because I don't care one way or the other. I'm not interested."

Marines Interview Students Interested In Corps Training

A Marine Corps Procurement Team is in the Trophy Room today to interview students who want a commission while still in college.

Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors are eligible for the platoon leaders class. They receive their training during the six-week summer sessions and are paid. They are deferred from induction and commissioned as Second Lieutenants upon graduation.

Seniors and graduates are eligible for the officer candidate course. These receive a ten-week course after graduation and then are commissioned as Second Lieutenants.

Women are eligible for officer training classes similar to the men's program.

LOST—$5 reward for white gold Kappa Alpha pin with alternating rubies and opals. G. R. D. engraved on back. Call George Day at KA house.

Brake Failure Cause Of $550 Damage Accident On Tuesday

Mechanical failure in heavy traffic on Woodward Street cost a Florida State University student an estimated $550 in damages around 1 p.m. Tuesday.

A 1952 Ford sedan owned by Bill Dorey, FSU junior from Miami, and driven by Richard Haldeman, junior at Emory University, stalled at the crosswalk between the Geology Building and the Student Center. It was during some of the day's heaviest traffic.

Haldeman, who was going up the hill at the time, said that the foot brakes locked, the hand brake wouldn't work, and that he couldn't get the car all gear, in rolling backward he swerved around a 1950 Ford sedan, going in the line of fill. But he said, traffic was so heavy he had no choice but to stop his disabled car the front of a concrete mixer truck.

No charges were filed against Haldeman, the cause being listed as "unavoidable." Police said mechanical failure was to blame for the accident.

Panhellenic Association Begins Annual Workshop With Saturday Luncheon

Sorority Heads Discuss Greek Improvements

Panhellenic Association is planning its annual workshop to be held tomorrow noon with a luncheon in the Suwannee Room, sponsored men as d.

The purpose of the Workshop will be to familiarize the newly elected sorority officers and pledge initiates with the activities and organization of the Panhellenic Association and its members' functions.

Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant to the dean of women, will speak at the opening session. Discussion groups on running activities, pledge programs and inter-sorority relations will follow in Lounge Building.

These will include:

Rushing

Improvement of rushing Lecture auditorium, led by Marie Garrett.

Improvement of sorority scholarship, room 204, Dean Kathryn Warren.

Pledge programs and activities, room 401, Nancy Fagan and Phoebe Jackson, former pledge trainers, and others.

Sorority relations, unanimous decision, led by Louise Yarbrough with Joan Holford presiding the independent women's area.

A general meeting will be held from 3 to 3:30 p.m. to review the minutes of the different groups

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA	STATE
Today & Tomorrow "The Violent Men" Glenn Ford Barbara Stanwyck Edward G. Robinson	Today & Tomorrow "Destry" Audie Murphy
Sunday & Monday 'Many Rivers to Cross' Robert Taylor Eleanor Parker	Sunday & Monday 'This Is My Love' Linda Darnell Dan Duryea
PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR	CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
Today & Tomorrow "Southwest Passage" Ted Cameron plus "Prisoner of War" Ronald Reagan Sunday & Monday "Torch Song" Joan Crawford Michael Wilding	Today & Tomorrow "Pony Express" Rhonda Fleming Charlton Heston plus "China Venture" Edmund O'Brien Sunday & Monday "The Blue Gardenia" Anne Baxter Richard Conte

RITZ—Today & Tomorrow "Les Miserables" Valentina Cortesa

Sunday & Monday "The Golden Coach" Anna Magnani

For Delivery Call 2-8701 KAHLER'S For Delivery Call 2-8701

..... Call or Delivery Service ...

DINNERS

Southern Fried Chicken $1.25
Rolls, Cole Slaw, French Fries, Pickles
Fried Jumbo Shrimp $1.25
Rolls, Cole Slaw, French Fries, Tartar Sauce
Barbecue (Pork or Beef) in the Bun $1.25
Rolls, Cole Slaw, French Fries, Pickles

DRINKS

Milk Shake (all flavors) .25
Coca-Cola .10
Lime Ade .10
Orange Ade .10
Coffee .10
Iced Tea .10
Half Pint Milk .10

DESSERTS

Pie .15
Foremost French Pints (all flavors) .35
Foremost Individual Cups .10
Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry
Foremost Half Gallon Party Pack $1.15
Strawberry Sundae .25
Chocolate Sundae .25

SANDWICHES

Special Steak .60
Barbecue Chicken .35
Barbecue Beef .35
Barbecue Pork .35
Cheeseburger .30
Hamburger .25
Ham .35
Sliced Chicken .45
Sliced Turkey .45
Lettuce and Tomato .20
Fried Egg .25
Bacon, lettuce, tomato .35
Ham and Egg .50
Bacon .45
Ham and Cheese .45
Cheese .20
Tuna Fish .30
Chicken Salad .30
Egg .25
Hot Dog .25
French Fried Potatoes .20
French Fried Onion Rings .20

—$1.00 MINIMUM ORDER—

STOP HERE FOR LUCKY DROODLES!

YOU'LL GET the Droodle above. The title is: Daredevil enjoying better-tasting LUCKY just before being shot from cannon. Luckies are going great guns everywhere. The reason for their booming popularity is simply this: Luckies give you better taste. They taste better, first of all, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. Enjoy yourself when you smoke. Have a little fun. Light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

DROODLES, Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

BRUBECK INTERVIEW
Tells Of America's 'Voice'—P. 4

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 40 | PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA | TUESDAY, MARCH 29, 1955

Duke Elimination Will Play Free Concert This Friday

Duke Plays For Crosby's That Night

By DAVID DREIS

America's eyes will be focused on the IFC "Capers" when Duke Ellington appears here Friday night. Look Magazine has announced that it will send its reporter and photographer to cover the event for publication in a near-future issue.

One of the principal reasons for their national interest is the Duke's Elimination in the first battle of the band leaders to appear on the Florida state universities.

The IFC, hoping to have everyone, independents and fraternity men and women, take part in IFC Capers has opened the afternoon concert to all students. However, seats are expected to be at a premium and students are requested to get theirs early. Time for the free concert in Westcott Auditorium is 4 p.m.

The dance is a closed affair for fraternity men and their dates. However students may be able to buy tickets for the event from a fraternity man who can't attend. Time for the dance is 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Suwannee Room.

Big Name Band

Probably the biggest name name band to come to an FSU campus, Ellington has recorded for almost every one of the major record companies and has probably cut and several brand new discs since featuring his works. Many under exclusive contract to Capitol Records with which he has released two packages "Duke Ellington Presents" and "Duke Ellington also has current albums out on RCA Victor and Columbia series and on the labels Mainstream, reprise, Volumbia and Records has released "Ellington Indigos" and "Ellington Uptown" collection songs. The band leader's compositions include "Mood Indigo" and "Sophisticated Lady" to name a couple.

Life Article

Recently an article in Life Magazine featured noted musicians whose careers have been influenced by some famous Ellington's name was mentioned in the article as a follow-up as well as those of Louis Armstrong, Dave Brubeck and Count Basie.

As in the Florida Flambeau's effort during these weeks to determine the names of the stars who appear here in its readers, the Ellington case is a hot one to place. No man it seems has been in greater demand for years as he is now as Ellington. Even went to Margaret Truman and Sammy Kaye, who have appeared at FSU, were newcomers when Ellington had already made his name in music.

Besides, Duke Ellington appeared as one of two big stars with Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey's video program "Stage Show" which sponsored by Jackie Gleason. The show was a natural because the ratings of the show with Ellington his names in recordland showed on last place.

$500 SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED BY DZ's

Delta Zeta is sponsoring a $500 Audrey Scholarship available to students planning to marry Audrey or allied fields, according to the Delta Zeta Foundation department.

Any single, senior, or graduate student who is interested should contact the guidance department.

(Continued on Page 3)

Thorp Speaks At Arts Banquet Tomorrow Night

Princeton Professor Speaks On 'Word Loss'

Dr. Willard Thorp of Princeton will speak tomorrow night at the annual Arts and Sciences Banquet.

This is the eighth year the Banquet has been held. It will take place in the Suwannee Room beginning at 6:30.

Dr. William Randel, professor of English, chairman of arrangements, said that all members of the faculty staff and friends of the University are invited to attend the event.

Dr. Thorp is an authority in the field of American literature. He has been a professor of English at Princeton University since 1926.

He will speak on the topic "The Loss of the Word."

Besides his present position on the Princeton Faculty, Dr. Thorp has been a Holmes Professor of Belles Lettres since 1942.

He has held visiting professorships at the University of Hawaii, the University of Virginia, Harvard, the University of Minnesota and Duke University.

Dr. Thorp has been associated with a number of works as both editor and author. Among his books are "Sones from the Re-Oxford Anthology of English literature Theater," 1864, "As a new edition of "Moby Dick," 1952; "Herman Melville: Representative Selections," 1938; a new edition of Moby Dick, 1948; "The Literary History of the United States." 1948

Dr. Willard Thorp

Voting For Major Offices Held Today Until 7 P. M.

First Snow of Season—Spring Season that is. And we hope it's the last. "Sunshine State" license plate belies the scene—just nine days into spring. FSU coeds enjoyed it though, making "Indian" snowman from snow atop car in Opperman parking lot.

Only Seven Offices Are Being Fought

Choice of next year's Student Body officers will be decided at six polling places on campus today.

Voting was scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. today and last through 7 p.m. Only seven of the 16 are in doubt, with five resting on party differences. Candidacy has not been declared for two other offices, according to the Election Committee.

Ballot Boxes

Ballot boxes were to have been set up as follows:

1. Student Center, manned by Sophomore Council.

2. Westcott Building, by Sophomore Council.

3. Seminole Club, also by Sophomore Council.

4. Westcott Bus Stop, near the Library, manned by the Village Vamps. In case of rain it will be moved to the Ticket Booth by the Conradi Theatre in the History Building.

5. Landis Green near Magnolia, Lincoln and Florida halls, manned by the men's PP Club. It will be moved to the front entrance of the Women's Gym in case of rain.

6. West Hall, to be manned by the Alpha Gams.

Under secretary of Elections, Betty Wilkinson, asked that all students try to vote today in order to vote at one of these polls.

Results

Results of the voting will be posted at the IBM room on first floor Educational Building, as in the past. Run-off elections will be for a run-off election next Tuesday, as there is only one three-way race. If one of the candidates gets a simple majority vote then the night's count will mark the end of the 1955 Student Body Elections.

Major battle shapes up to be between Gordon Gaster (State) and Coyle Moore (Student for President of the Student Body. Jimmy Joslin (Student) and Jim Moore are vying in the three-way race for student body vice president.

Other Officers

Other disputed positions are, Jim Sides (State) and Hunt Howell (Student) for men's vice-president, Jo Jones (Ind. and Nancy Vaughn (Student) for women's vice-president; Stew Bolton (Ind. Pat Hilton (State) and Carmine Ramos (Student) for secretary of the Senate; Barbara Graham (State) and Tommy Lewis (Student) for Honor Court Chief Justice; and Oscar Johnson (Ind. and Jay Hooper, Ind.) for Editor of The Flambeau.

Uncontested races are, Ann Fusco, Honor Court Clerk; Ina Jean Pruit, Chairman of Judiciary, Carolyn Redfern, Chief of Traffic Court, Annie Winters, president of the Women's Recreation Association; Deo Heidel, Editor of Smoke Signals; Jim Broderick, Editor of Tally-Ho; Mary Elizabeth King, Business Manager of the Flambeau and Tom Wilson, business manager of Smoke Signals.

No Candidates

There are no candidates for the offices of Tally-Ho Business Manager and Sandspur Chairman. Standard procedure calls for these to be filled by presidential appointment or write-in votes.

Under-secretary Wilkinson issued a reminder yesterday to candidates, that winners must file final expense statements with the Elections

(Continued on Page 3)

Gaster Rebate Rumor Refuted In Statement By Tom Woods

A public statement has been made refuting certain rumors, which presidential candidate Gordon Gaster alleges, have been circulating implicating him in an attempt to get a rebate on the student accident insurance program.

The statement, signed by Tom Woods, says:

Statement:

"Last summer a member of the Student Body and one that Gordon Gaster had attempted to get a rebate on the student accident insurance program. This year I repeated what he told me several times. When it was called to my attention that this story was become a malicious rumor I made further investigation and found this story to be completely unfounded. After viewing the evidence I can see no indication that Gordon Gaster has ever used his office for dishonest purposes. This statement is intended to clear the name and character of Gordon Gaster and does not reflect my political views or the political views of anyone else."

After Honor Court

Gaster obtained the statement after asking the Honor Court for advice, he commented.

Before the statement, the rumor was first raised last May, "probably during the last week," he said that the Insurance Commission gave him a rebate to clear himself and that clearance was forthcoming.

Gaster's case was that a student approached him during January this year and informed him that the rumor would be used against him if he ran for president.

Not Identified

He said that a freshman girl, whom he wouldn't identify, called the rumor to his attention. Thursday, naming Woods as the person she'd heard it from.

Gaster then presented the problem to the Honor Court, which, he said, offered him the alternative of prosecuting Woods for lying or of allowing the Court to conduct an investigation. Gaster took the latter course.

(Continued On Page 3)

14 Teams Vie For Lead In Bridge Tourne

Fourteen teams representing various sororities, fraternities and other residence units competed last Thursday night in the local phase of the National Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament, according to Mr. Fred C Vogel, Counselor for Student Activities.

Playing in the East-West division Jean Tedder and Sarah Boots Pi Beta Phi, and Dick Brown and Jim Nelson, Sigma Nu, tied for the highest total number of tricks taken with a score of 110. Pamela Duke and Betsy Bond independents, and Joan Wadsworth and Elise Mc Gurr, Delta Delta Delta tied for second with 108. Third place went to Margaret Quiner and Bonnie Ridge Delta Gamma, with 106.

North -South

In the North-South division Jack Graham and Norman McClean, Independent, were top with a score of 110. Bob Bento and Hal Sloss, Pi Delta Theta, came in second with 108 and Ashley Cason and Bill Williams, Kappa Tau Omega were third with 105.

These local scores, however, are subject to re-evaluation by Geoffrey Mott-Smith, national bridge expert, who will analyze the play of all fourteen FSU teams and announce the official local campus champions, along with sectional and national winners, April 15.

Meredith Payne and Gene Turano were student directors of the event. They were assisted by

(Continued on Page 3)

Halford Called Leading Woman Senator In Florida State History

Ed's Note: This is the second in a series featuring personalities in Student Government.

By STAFF WRITER

One of the sad facts of our Student Government today is that one of their most outstanding officers is long overdue a public vote of appreciation for service and devotion.

Joan Halford, now serving her third term in the Student Senate, has to her credit bills and resolutions benefiting the students hardly equalled by any male senator in Lonsmire.

Being Watched

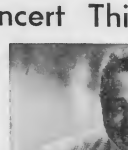
Senator Halford has been watched by many with a careful eye, and in spite of the standing tradition that would have women from active roles in politics, she is considered the most able legislator of her sex.

There is not, in the annals of this school, another woman who could match the service and fruitful application of this Senator with the exception of Mary Ruth Summers Miss Summers was Student Body president in 1952-53 winning overwhelmingly in the first primary over two male opponents. Oddsmers here predict Mary Ruth and in effect have often compared the two.

Born Leader

Mary Ruth was an effective senator and a born leader for students rights. She was a fraternity and sorority girl, but she was first in a field of seventeen aspirants. That year she was one of the avowed supporters of the birth of the Student Party and contributed much to its eventual growth.

She received her second term of office on the Student Party Ticket, but surprise I everyone by sacrificing her own political career the following year.



A staunch believer in equality and opportunity in student government, she left the folds of the Student Party to help in the creation of the State Party. Last year she ran on the Ticket for Women's Senator and was the only defeated by the Student Party candidate. The State Party in that first test only elected two candidates.

Third Term

In the elections following, she rode in victory on the State Party ticket for a third term in Senate.

Senator Halford is known among women students as "their" senator. A strong advocate for modifying the women's regulations, she has backed the help and suggestions of women students all over campus.

In North Cawthon Hall, where she resides, she has instituted a series of informal get-togethers where the interested could come to discuss issues pending in Senate.

Senator Joan Halford better president than her two male successors could ever hope to be.

It is because of this that the statement, that she and Senator Halford are equal, means so much.

Senator Halford first was elected to office before the advent of parties—she came in

Seminole Slate

TODAY, MARCH 29

9 a.m.-5 p.m.—VOTE!

11:45—Faculty Luncheon in the Trophy Room, Student Center.

12 Noon—Biochemistry Seminar, 306 Science.

1 p.m.—Microecology Seminar, Sterling C. Gilbert will speak on "Some Aspects of Hurricane Florence of 1953," in 101 Science.

3 p.m. — Panel Discussion: "Advantages of Professional Unity," with Miss Blanch Trowell, Mrs. Martha Wilson, Mrs. Kellogg Hunt, and Dr. Dwight Burton. Presided by Franklin Chu, Jr., Affiliate of National Council of Teachers of English in North Carolina Parish.

7 p.m.—Varsity Debate Squad meets in 222 History.

7 p.m.—4-H Club meeting and social hour in small lounge of Lonsmire.

7:30 p.m.—Dr. Richard Morse to speak in 218 Music on "The Conquest of the American Economy." American Studies.

7:30 p.m. — ASPA meets in Student Lounge of Lonsmire.

8 p.m.—Phi Alpha Theta Lecture in Lonsmire.

8 p.m. — Red Cross Water Safety Course in Women's Gym.

8:30 p.m.—Sophomore Council meeting in Lonsmire.

WEDNESDAY MARCH 30

7 p.m. — FTA Lecture and Social Hour in Lonsmire, Auditorium.

8 p.m.—Concert Band Concert in Conradi Music Hall.

THURSDAY, MARCH 31

6:30 p.m.—Fifth Annual Colonies of Arts and Sciences Banquet. Dr. Willard Thorp of Princeton University will speak on "Loss of the Word," in the Suwannee Room

6:30 p.m. — Smoke Signals Queen Contest in Lonsmire's lave lounge.

8 p.m.—FSU Film Club shows double feature in Western-Lowlaina Story and Song of the Prairie.

Smoke Signals To Hold Final Judging For Queen Thursday

Final judging in the Smoke Signals Queen contest will take place Thursday beginning at 7 p.m. in the Large Lounge, Longmire Building, Smoke Signals editor Don Heidel has said.

Finalists, selected from over 100 original entries by Rick Hollister, ol local radio fame, are, Jane Sisson, Alison Templeman, Sally Gladding, Deane Jackson, Barbara Emmett, Beverly Laurent, Jean Hayden, Joyce Campbell, Nan Wigginton, Margaret Ann Ballinger, Anne Yates, Louise Peterson, Dede Gaudet, Barbara Hall, Jo Marie Munic, Mary Ann Hannah, Donna Hardy, Sandra Scott, Myra Anne Lay and Mary Ellen Finley.

Meet in Longmire

Heidel asked all finalists to meet in the Lonsmire small lounge at 6:45 p.m. to get instructions, and to wear shorts, shirt or sweater, and heels.

A panel of "distinguished" experts will select the queen on the basis of beauty, charm, poise, grooming and appeal, he said. The editor wouldn't name the panel members, however, intimating his doing so might result in pre-contest influence.

Trophy Awarded

The queen will receive a trophy as well as prizes and gift certificates from a number of local concerns, including Quenzel's Res-

(Continued On Page 3)

Was It? Or Wasn't It Snow?

We saw it, but wa dont' believe it.

It looked like snow yesterday. Falling all over campus around 1 p.m., but then a heavy shower of rain changed the day to be Monday, March 28. Place: Tallahassee, Florida.

J. W. Smith, head meteorologist at the weather station at Shirley Field, says Tallahassee had "only a trace of snow." He added that a total of four inches of an inch of SLEET fell, an all time record in this city for any time of year.

He said the cold snap was caused by a cold air mass moving in from the north, Tuesday cloudy but warmer weather for today. Expected high is 64 degrees.

We still say those flakes we saw falling looked like snow.

LIBRARY HOURS EASTER WEEKEND

April 7, Thursday—8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

April 8, Friday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

April 9 Saturday—8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m

April 10, Sunday—Closed,

April 11, Monday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m

Overdue fees will run as usual on books kept overtime.

Capacity Crowd Packs Westcott To Hear Frank Slaughter Speak

By MARGARET MILLER

Author Frank Slaughter received an enthusiastic ovation for his humorous address at the Author Coffee hour Friday.

Unaware that English students were required to attend, Slaughter expressed amazement at the number of students completely filling Westcott Auditorium. He remarked that students didn't turn out like that for "such things" in his day.

Editor's Note: Westcott Auditorium seats approximately 1700 persons. The English department estimated their attendance at about 700, which points out that a thousand or so FSU students were not in the lecture on their own.

Representing Stirna Tau Delta, English honorary sorority, Dawn Sharp and Ruth Hetzhaus met the guest author honoring membership in their fraternity.

No Controversy

After being introduced by Dr. William Rogers of the English department as a "journalist, scholar and scientist," Slaughter declared that he would not speak on controversial issues as was expected. This initiated with a hearty round of applause

He then expressed interest in the relationship of science and history to problems of today. He said the development of weapons in the past had led to the fear of world destruction just as the atom bomb has today.

"Uprightness of man and kinship to God" he said were the only truly successful "weapons" of man. He added his belief that there is a future in following one's convictions which brings security and purpose to life in spite of world tensions.

Useless Knowledge

Slaughter announced his subject as "The Usefulness of Useless Knowledge." He said he sympathized with students looking the common attitude that they are coerced to learn "impractical" information, but that he wished to show the potential worth of such knowledge.

To prove his point, Slaughter used many little-known historical stories as illustrations. These, he pointed out, had proved valuable only for many of his own stories and thus had realized in personal profit.

In writing Fort Everglades he discovered the story of a young girl who had been captured, educated a passing stagecoach of Shakespearian actors. At the next pow-wow, he said, the braves showed up elegantly costumed as Lady McBeth, Hamlet, etc.

Recognition

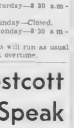
"The only way knowledge is useful," he said, "is when someone recognizes its usefulness." He told how a Harvard professor helped end the small pox epidemic in New England because he had heard of the use of vaccine in Switzerland and then had the courage to apply this knowledge.

The former surgeon assured hopeful writers that learning to write took practice and those their schooling was not necessarily wasted. While still practicing medicine, he said he wrote for five years, earning from his effort an average of $6 a week.

In several remarks, he declared "the pursuit of knowledge the most wonderful thing in the world today." On censorship, the outspoken author thought this could lead to suppression of the search for knowledge.

Road to Bithynia he convicted his best book, because "the people in this story believed in Christ which in comparison reduces such things as A-bombs and censorship to little importance."

Ancient Canoe Found In Lake; Studied In Lab



A dugout canoe more than 100 years old and weighing approximately 1,000 pounds was removed from a lake in Taylor county by Florida State University archaeologists.

According to Dr. Hale Smith, head of the FSU department of anthropology and archaeology, the canoe was probably not made by prehistoric Indians. The canoe made from a pine log and resembling present day Atlantic coast lobster boats had a skeg that was sawed, a bed, a seat and other marks of iron to it.

A Seminole war fort was located on the opposite side of the lake Dr. Smith said. He also was found, the FSU archaeologists said, and it is probable that this canoe was made within the fort was in use

At present the canoe is being

(Continued on Page 3)

Sandspur's First Lady—Carol Fulkerson, lit Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, was crowned as first Queen of Sandspur weekend at formal dance Friday. Sp nsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, she and her two attendants, Charlene Williamson and Jean Hayden were chosen by contest judge Governor LeRoy Collins

Change Women's Hours

One of the most delicate subjects affecting students here is the matter of women's regulations.

It is obvious to all concerned that some form of regulation must exist, but it is equally apparent that a dividing line must be formed between victorian dictums on the one hand and wanton values on the other. This has been the subject of much debate, whence arises the delicacy of the matter.

Without talking impropriety, however, we believe we may offer a few suggestions concerning women's hours.

For instance there's the 11 p.m. deadline on weekdays for women above the Freshman class. A student who attends an Artist Series performance or some other event hardly has time for a snack afterwards. Instead, he must rush his date home first. Haste. A deadline of 11:30 Sunday through Thursday would eliminate such cursory treatment of social life.

Friday night's deadline might well be extended to 12:30, the present Saturday limit. The half hour is not likely to make a large difference in a woman's academic life. On the other side of the ledger, 12:30 a.m. is adequate for this particular city and may as well stay that way.

Also, Freshman women's hours for weekdays are not unreasonable, considering the great changeover they must make from high school life.

One rule that is difficult to comprehend is the ten minute "grace" time allowed per semester. This represents only a concession to the facts of social life and should be longer. We believe it should be extended from between 45 minutes to an hour.

Another pertinent question could be asked of the regulation whose effect is to have a girl sit on a bench in a bus station when she comes in after midnight from a weekend, rather than return to the university.

We believe that the complaints aired above call attention to rules which fall on the wrong side of the dividing line between necessity and dogma. They should be changed.

Politics And Ethics Inseparable

When a person has in his possession facts which can depict false and malicious rumors, it is his duty to make those facts public. The same thing applies to any court of law, or as in this case, the Honor Court.

The Honor Court was asked to investigate rumors that Gordon Gaster, a candidate for the presidency, had attempted to get or had actually gotten a rebate on the student accident insurance policy passed by Student Senate last Spring.

The Court, after conducting an investigation, is withholding an official statement until Friday on the assumption that prior publication might result in its political use.

Unfortunately, ethics and politics cannot be separated. If, as we understand, the court's decision completely exonerates Gaster, then it is the sole duty of the court to release such facts. It's use for political purposes is of no concern of the court. Actually, in withholding what could very well be the truth, they are in effect helping Gaster's opponent, and as such are guilty already of "political use."

The court, once it releases its findings, should not be responsible for what the facts are used for. They cannot, logically, be accused of "mixing in politics". Politics never should have entered into the discussion. If the results of the court hearing are honestly arrived at, then the court has nothing to fear from Gaster's opponents by exonerating Gaster. Truth stands alone.

The Court cannot tamper with the scales of justice—the principles for which they stand.

Disregard Rumors

The rumor-mongers on campus have finally gone too far.

They started one last year about a well-known campus politician and they tried to use it against him in the current presidential campaign.

Somebody was overheard repeating the rumor, however, and found himself in the uncomfortable position of having to defend himself. He issued the following statement:

"Last summer a member of the Student Senate told me that Gordon Gaster had attempted to get a rebate on the student accident insurance program. This year I repeated what he told me several times. When it was called to my attention that this story was becoming a malicious rumor I made further investigation and found this story to be completely unfounded. After viewing the evidence I can see no indiction that Gordon Gaster has ever used his office for dishonest purposes. This statement is intended to clear the name and character of Gordon Gaster and does not reflect my political views or the political views of anyone else."

This statement, signed by Tom Woods, renders complete exoneration from a man who is supporting the other candidate but who can not support a vicious rumor.

There would be no justice in a charge that Coyle Moore, Gaster's opponent, had any part in the spread of the rumors. But the fact remains that they may have hurt an innocent person to a great extent.

The charge that Gaster had sought a rebate was brought to the attention of state officials, who investigated and found no substance in it.

The Florida Flambeau, whose staff members undoubtedly have their own political preferences, is nevertheless confident that either candidate would make a good president. For that reason, therefore, we urge the students to disregard rumors and slander and political mudslinging and vote on realities instead.

Styles, Cartels And Thievery

It has been becoming increasingly difficult for gentlemen on this campus to keep in style.

For instance there's the problem of pink and black versus convention, which erupted into two definite sides. Of late the issue has simmered. Now, however, comes a new issue on the style front.

Tallahassee barbers have raised the price of "flat top" crew cuts to $1.25. What effect this will have on style we cannot say, nor do citizens much care about the cartel effects it has on them, but we issue this warning to eating establishments in the vicinity: Be on the lookout for thievery. The price raise may mean a reversion to the old-fashoned "bowl cut."

Letters To The Flambeau

True Knowledge

To the Editor:

Last Friday under the very competent facilities of the Engineering department, one of the nation's best known contemporary novelists appeared before a large gathering of students and faculty at Western auditorium. His lecture, which dealt mostly with historical evidences of how seemingly insignificant facts when given a proper application can exert powerful influences on man's culture, showed him to be a man of high intellect and keen historical insight.

In concluding his talk, however, he digressed to the subject of his personal dislike toward the censorship bills which the legislatures of this state and of many other states have been trying to make into laws against any literary works objectionable to them. He expressed his belief very strongly that the whole idea of the existency of certain "crackpot" legislators, that censorship would destroy much false knowledge.

On the other hand, a very significant question arises as to whether the state is being entirely unfair in trying to protect the minds of its citizens, young and old alike, from much of the lowest, unchristianlike literature on the newsstands, as well as from Communistic propaganda or any other source contrary to the ideals of Democracy. Such false truths must be destroyed and replaced by true knowledge which may be presented through the lasting quality of truthfulness. Furthermore, true knowledge is pure only when uncontaminated or hidden by the deception of false truths. That is taking these things into consideration, our lawmakers seem not to be remiss in trying to establish, promote and maintain high American ideals and to curb all things which are contrary to them and can lead only to the internal deprivation of the state.

Sincerely yours,
SHELDON MESGROVE

III-Composed

To the Editor:

Mr Whitmarsh of your sports staff had a column in the March 25 issue concerning FSU's banner year in sports. Although highly complimentary to the school, and its athletes, I found much fault with Mr. Whitmarsh's judgment, and with his facts.

To begin with, he considers the 1954-55 sports year only one of the most successful in FSU's history. Having been here myself for four of FSU's ninth years in athletic competition, I cannot recall when there was a better year—ever.

There went undefeated in football one year, but not playing near the competition they have now. And although teams in other FSU's merit have carried better records, the 1954-55 teams were stronger in almost every sport. There seems very little doubt that this will be FSU's greatest year in sports, the memory one of the greatest.

Aside from this, Mr. Whitmarsh seems to overexaggerate things. And for his information, the Sun Bowl is not considered a major bowl.

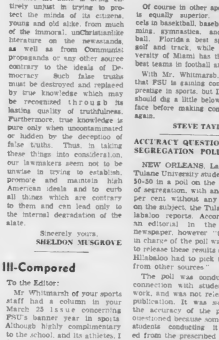
His statement that the Seminoles are certainly capable of being the Gators (University of Florida Gators) equal in golf, should have been made without any consideration.

FSU does have a fine golf team, but in this sport the Gators border on sensational. Competitive scores largely this, but for further proof, take the recent George Washington tournament played here. FSU golfers could do no better than seventh place, while the Gators captured first and second place even though playing FSU's home course.

Florida's Doug Sanders is by far the outstanding collegiate golfer in the state. He averages strokes per competitive round. FSU has no one that close to that.

Of course in other sports, FSU is equally superior. FSU excels in basketball, baseball, swimming, gymnastics and volleyball. Florida's best sports are golf and track, while the University of Miami has the state's best teams in football and tennis.

With Mr. Whitmarsh, I agree that FSU is gaining considerable prestige in sports, but I think he should dig a little below the surface before making comparisons next.



STEVE TAYLOR.

ACCTRACT QUESTIONED IN SEGREGATION POLL

NEW ORLEANS, La. (ACP)—The University of Omaha split $0-$0 in a poll on the question of segregation, with another 20 per cent undecided, according to the subject, the Tulane Hullabaloo reports. According to an editorial in the student newspaper, however, the man in charge of the poll was afraid to release these results and The Hullabaloo had to split them up from other sources."

The poll was conducted in connection with student class work, and was not released for publication. It was said that the accuracy of the poll was questioned because some of the students misunderstood or deviated from the prescribed method.

The poll, a specific assignment, was supposed to be conducted on every fifth student in all colleges of the university. Instead, the newspaper reports, more Arts and Science students were questioned station than prescribed were asked questions. The Hullabaloo said nevertheless that the poll should have been released and that absolutely no changes should have been detailed.

"Well—I guess the reason I talk so much is because it doesn't require any thought."

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors Oscar Johnson, Martin Dickman
Sports Editor ..... Bob Gutting
Sports Staff ..... Alan Whitemarsh, Harry Bernard
Amusement Editor ..... David Drais
Photographer ..... Land Anderson
Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Cox
Exchange Manager ..... John Hafford
Assistant Exchange Editor ..... Susan Hyde
Distribution ..... Members of Alpha Phi Omega
Telephone 2-8000 extension 68 Service Fraternity
211 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor
Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors, Pat Marston, Willie Smith
Reporter Editor ..... Margaret Millar
Art Consultant ..... Virginia Adams
Cartoonist ..... Con Horn
Junior Staff ..... Jerome Bernstein, Marty Revere, Ann Stanley, Jen Bradfield, Charlet Pinkevitz, Pat Brash, Fenn Hammond
Mary Lis King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff ..... Frank Tillatt, Nina Rule, Business Staff ..... Jeanette Puckett, Mary Davidge
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service 420 Madison Ave. New York, N.Y.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

The Dissenter

Campaign Burdened With Slander

By MARTIN DICKMAN

On the surface, the presidential campaign, which concludes at the polls today has appeared clean. No scurrilous literature has been circulated, at least to this writer's knowledge.

Underneath, the political scene has been filthy.

Many students have probably heard by now the rumors which flew around the camp of the candidates, Gordon Gaster, had attempted to get a rebate on the student accident insurance from the company which got the contract.

These rumors, we understand, have been circulating since last year, a member of the Student Senate has been implicated in the slander-outfit.

Gaster claims that he was threatened with this rumor even before the party conventions.

For the benefit of those who don't appreciate the gravity of the charge, alcoholic drink is a kick-back—a cut—from money received. Billboards often used to bribe his alleyways by promising them rebates in return for their business. It's been outlawed.

In effect, the rumors that Gaster tried to get a rebate on the accident insurance contract, has put project last year, and that he offered to use his influence in the Senate to choose one company over another.

There is absolutely no doubt that these rumors are false. One person who participated in their spread has publicly repudiated them. The mere fact that the State allowed the contract, to go through eliminates dishonest from this practice—because the accusation was made last year, before the contract was official.

Coyle Moore, Gaster's opponent, has expressed his abhorrence upon appraisal of the situation, and he should be quite glad to say that he's responsible for it.

Who is? And even more important: How much has it influenced this election?

The identities of those involved aren't as secret as the malefactors would wish, and some evidence of alcohol of cops is in order. If I knew those names, this column would list them.

Let's hope that they haven't influenced the election to a great extent. If Gaster wins he'll probably still have to contend with the muddying of his trivs every active public figure. If he loses, his opponent will enter office burdened with accusations that he might not have won except for the mud-slinging, although the wrong person did his own doing.

While these rumors began last year, Gaster was even given a prime target, though one of a likely presidential candidate was Moore.

If slander is a necessary part of the growth of FSU student government we might strongly conclude that we need a much better term than growth. Mudslinging and vilification don't complement citizens from seeing the public office in many cases and they could easily be used in some effect here, where the student government has such a high reputation to begin with. Public office demands a thick skin from a conscientious man—a skin too much when that man must be crucified by vicious and malicious slander. Morale cannot be divorced from politics on the matter how much we would like to effect a separation.

Lately It Seems

Friend Discusses Politics In Letter

By ORCHID ALONSO

Today I received a letter from a friend of mine in a University in which we own. Because it is similar, I am reprinting it here in full.

Dear Orchid: I'm a freshman, so any mistakes or naivity displayed should be not taken too harshly.

Dear Pal,

Boy, am I was telling you in my last letter, I am going to be a teacher. I hadn't thought much about it but after reading this a man who is in charge of seeing that we kids take the right courses told me that our teachers were needed pretty bad. So I went to see him and courses on how to be a teacher. My counselor, thats the man who sees that us kids take the right courses, told me that I needed to know how to teach English. He told me the courses so I could learn how to teach. He told me, the counselor did, that I didn't need to take any of the other board courses. Geography and history because it would just be repeating what I got in my teaching courses. And its true because all them people like Moore and Bernstein and Ashmore and all those are quoted in them text books on how to teach.

Well, I'm glad to hear that there are political campaigns going on at your school. We're having a lot of campaigning here, too, but the campus is just full of posters, and they help us to select who is to be president but only that, as this a man who is in charge of seeing that we kids take the right courses told me that our teachers were needed pretty bad. So I went to see him and all these posters weren't around to tell us it was time to elect "Jack and James or Ken".

But its all very interesting. Why just the other day one politician had a real fight because somebody said something nasty about him. But the guy who said the nasty thing was very sorry he said the nasty thing after he found out he'd insulted to wait until after the elections to say this in public because it's not considered polite. It's a very bad thing to have in politics into politics just because you said something nasty about a politician.

Another interesting thing about politics is the people you want jobs. Why just the other day some guy went to a candidate who was opposite a friend of his boys, see, and told his friend to his face that he was supporting the boy's friend, like I'd better and asked him if maybe please he could support him to some job of the politician got elected.

This is interesting, because if the boy's friend, wins, he'll probably get a job anyway so why go to the opponent to ask for a job? It would have been so much simpler if he just worked for his friend, and made sure he got a job and then he'd have a job anyway. But my roommate says that maybe the politician he asked to help his friend much because he isn't election himself and about three months ago.

Etcetera Etchings

Magazines Make Movies Mushy

By DAVID DREIS

Fan magazines always give me a charge. Nowadays there's a fan magazine for every area of showbusiness—or at least it seems that way. Every time you turn around these days there's an "Annual" out which is geared to the interest of the happenings of the year. One company produces twelve different animals a year which means they're in constant monthly publication for their distributions. By the time they run the gamut from "Who's Who in Sports" to "Who's Who in Stagecraft" it's another year and we're back where we started.

No longer do the columnists hold court on the inside pages of newspapers, but are dodging pennies from the inside of a fan magazine. Sheilah Graham's Hollywood disagrees with Sidney Skolsky's Hollywood and Earl Wilson's Hollywood each why At times, it's pretty confusing.

The top stars of today are usually in the same poses in one magazine as another—and the audience they appeal to. "My access is the gum-chewing adolescent," is the way Earl Wilson bidden dreams is to be da won't pose for them and the stories about him usually feature pictures of his past films. Favorite shots of course are in a torn shirt and another in a boxing jacket.

There doesn't seem to be any originality about who should be featured in the pages of them. Moore can always be seen with no complaints from this desk's standpoint, but the many actors like Tab Hunter or no. Piper Laurie are getting out of the home girl who prefers home cooking, with her home body hobbies and her dislike for night in her home. The one difference is she goes to the bank regularly. Pat Boone, Debbie Reynolds, Jimmy Stewart's Double Hour Arnin' almost two dreams and Jimmy is good at the part of serving Tom Mix Ma The Art Linkletter story to bring back some classic Ameri oldies altho Yoorup's problem are darn good. Summer plans in Speech are optimum . . . four plays are running. Double bills are interesting the absence of the expensive final play of the year patrons . . . What ever happened to the frosh play Band plans for next year look good.

Balancing Of Courses Is Needed

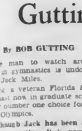
By JEROME BERNSTEIN

The shortage of public school teachers in the nation since World War Two has today reached a point where something is now done, our public schools will be full of children to be left unqualified teachers.

This "turning away" from the teaching profession by our college students has in the past been linked to the low salaries paid. However, there is another reason for the deplorable state of this country's teacher shortage. This is the emphasis of the liberal arts in teachers training programs.

In a letter from a Director of Science of Parents of Children in Florida Public Schools, it was stated that "in 1940 about 70 per cent of the students graduating from College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Florida were prepared to go into public high school teaching. Now barely 2 per cent of the students are preparing to teach."

In stating the reasons, for this, the letter stated that such students must devote an extra semester's work. This is because the College of Education requires them to take 33 semester hours of professional education courses in order to meet the 28 semester hour requirement set by the State Department of Education.



It was pointed out in the letter that while Arts and Sciences faculty will permit its students to include the amount of education courses specified by the State in their four year programs, it will not let them sacrifice "subject matter" beyond this point.

What this boils down to is an emphasis of HOW to teach while de-emphasizing the learning of WHAT to teach. Many students object to this course on HOW. They feel that while a certain amount of courses should pertain to teaching ammount, the other weeks of interning plus what they will learn in the future from actual teaching is enough.

Here at Florida State University several students interviewed by this writer have said they feel they are losing more by taking these extra education courses whereas if they could use the time for more advanced general courses they would learn more. One student went so far as to state that she wished she had time to take more of the courses she is now taking.

What will this mean is that for every extra credit in teaching methods taken by the student he or she loses the opportunity of taking courses in history, math, science, language, literature and others. Consequently they turn away from the professio to a more luxuriate field where they not only have to take the liberal courses, but where they will also earn more money upon graduating.

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

The man to watch around the gymnasiums is undoubtedly Jack Miles.

Jack a veteran Florida State gymnast now in graduate school, is my number one choice for the 1956 Olympics.

Although Jack has been a big gun in starting, it is now becoming apparent that 1955 is his year, the year that will possibly see him climb to the top of the ladder in his field of sports.

The small, broad shouldered Miles, a native of Philadelphia, began his gymnastics career with the Philadelphia Turners while in high school and soon became well known throughout the east coast for his specialty, the rings.

Since he entered FSU in 1950, Miles has been active in all the major meets. Always managing to turn in a fine performance but somehow lacking that certain something that enables one to be termed outstanding. This year Jack has that something. And he is using it to the fullest advantage.

The first indication of this new consistency showed up some place along the line—perhaps at the Alabama invitational meet in February—when Jack led the gymnasts to a first place victory. But this new power really appeared in full force at the Pan American tryouts in Chicago. There, turning in what was to date the best performance in his career, Jack beat out several Olympic and National champions, including teammate Don Holder and two-time Olympic man Bill Roetzheim, and placed second in the much coveted all-around event. This assured him of a berth on the Pan American team.

Many people proved to be skeptical of Miles' victory at the tryouts. "He had a good day" they said. "But what will he do at the regular game in Mexico City?" Miles answered this question by sweeping to a third place victory in the all-around competition against the best gymnasts from the United States and many of the South and Central American countries.

When interviewed later, the modest, unassuming Miles said that it was the greatest moment of his career in gymnastics, the climax to his years of training. But what about the Olympics? At the present time, nobody knows but one thing is sure. At the Olympic tryouts next year Jack will be in there with the best of them, and to date he has given every indication of being capable of earning a berth on the team that is the dream of every boy who loves the United States Olympic team.

Phi Delts Still Lead Fraternity League

Gymnasts Fail To Hit, Take 7th At NCAA

Short Short Stop—Freshman Philip Hunt, 5'9" shortstop from Alabama, shows some fancy field work in preparation for the game with Mississippi College today.

Holder Leads Team In Gym Set Back

By BOB GUTTING

The Florida State gymnasts, obviously tired from the long trip to California, had a bad day at the NCAA meet in California and slipped from last year's third place to seventh.

Two of the team's high scorers—Don Holder and Rafael Levasseur—joined the team in California from Mexico City, where they had been competing in the Pan American games.

While in Mexico, Holder hurt his shoulder doing a routine on the high bar, and was in poor shape for the NCAA meet. However, he ended up as high man on the Seminole team with a second place tie with Rafael Levasseur on the parallel bar, third place on the all-around, and eighth on the horizontal bar.

Illinois took first place with 83½ points; Penn State, champion for the past two years was second with 58 and UCLA placed third with 47½.

Team scoring: Don Holder, Ireland of FSU placed fifth and Jim Fadigan was sixth.

In addition to Holder, Rafael Levasseur placed seventh on the parallel bars and Ireland tied for 10th. Al Ruda placed 10th in both free exercise and tumbling.

At the end of the meet Coach Hartley Price was presented a plaque for outstanding service awarded by the National Association of American gym coaches.

Although unhappy about the Florida State's performance, Price had had a bad day. It's too bad, but that's the way these things happen.

Dr. Price said he did not believe that this setback would slow up the team at the coming NAAU's in Rochester, New York. "I'm not worried about it that one," he said. "It be able to take some all my boys there." Dr. Price was referring to Jack Miles and Hamish Ashmore, ineligible for collegiate competition, but still able to compete under AAU rules.

14 Teams For Bridge

(Continued From Page 1)

a faculty committee composed of Dr. Hilda Hall, Dr. Morris Hall, Ha. and Dr. Claude R. Flory.

Hall Was

At the half-way mark in the tournament, Phi Delta Theta leads with 178 points.

With five of the ten games already played, some teams have yet to play their full number.

The other contestants with their scores are: Lambda Chi, 170; ADPi, 156; Pi Phi, 152; Phi Mu, 141; Sigma Chi, 140½; Alpha Gam, 139; Pi Kappa Alpha, 129½; and ATO, 121.

Also Sigma Kappa Delta Gams 59½, Sigma Nu, 41½; KAT, 40½; Tri-Delta, 28, Chi Omega, 24½; Phi Sigma Sig, 22½ and Zeta Tau Alpha 22.

Smoke Signal's First Judging

(Continued From Page 1)

lauroo, the Florida Theatre Marquee, Bill Gaskins and Gene Strickland's, Vardi's Vanity Shop, Miller Jewelry, Bennett's Gifts, Mae's Shop, Diana Shops, the Vogue and the University Bookstore.

In addition, said Heidel, she will supervise the judging of the sister's "Redevelopment" program on Thursday evening and will be featured in an "elaborate" lavout in the May issue of Smoke Signals.

The judges, as pictured, said, will be open to the public.

Classified Ads

LOST: Yesterday. A silver and black bracelet between Westcott and battery Building between 12:30 and 1 p.m. If found, please return to Susie Parcmont or Reynolds, or the Tri-Delt house

Lost Jeweled SAE fraternity pin and necklace between Sawarie Room and Florida Hall. Reward. MWA. a. B 734 Call Howard Andrews at 2-3983 or 2-0057 Reward.

Gaster Rumors Refuted By Wood

(Continued From Page 1)

Chief Justice Jerry Mevers said yesterday that he would not release as official statement, expressing a desire to keep the Court out of politics Corle Moore, Gaster's opponent for the presidency, told the Florida Flambeau that he placed no stock to the rumors, nor was interested in clearing up Gaster's name and reputation before the election.

Sunday Morning

Gaster obtained the statement from Woods on Sunday morning, but the statement is though to have influenced the Court not to release its own opinion.

Gaster said yesterday "I'd rather Honor Court stay out of it until it's over."

Voting Continues Till 7 p. m.

(Continued from Page 1)

tions Committee before taking office.

She also called attention to Election regulations prohibiting posting campaign literature or active solicitins of votes within 50 feet of the six polling places. She said that candidates are responsible for removing their own placards within 48 hours after the election is over.

Athletes Face Busy Schedule

Florida State's baseballers meet Mississippi College here this afternoon in a start to another busy week for FSU's spring athletes.

It will mark the only activity of the week however, for Coach Danny Litchfield's peppery nine which claims seven wins in nine games.

State off to the best start in several years, won six straight before dropping a one-run decision to Georgia and splitting a pair with touring Amherst in action last week.

Mississippi College returns to the seminole schedule after a three-year absence. FSU holds an 11-2 edge in the series which dates back to 1948.

In another headliner, FSU's rackmen under new coach Mike Long make their first home appearance of the season in a Saturday dual meet with Mercer at the West Campus oval.

Long, Seminole basketball assistant for the past two seasons, inherits nine lettermen from last year including four-time veteran Carlos Fraundorfer. Fraundorfer is school record-holder in the discus and broad jump.

FSU holds five straight wins over Mercer and won last year's meet 61-47.

The Seminole golfers, after a fine early-season start, take on the Florida Intercollegiate tournament starting Thursday at Miami. Defending champion is Florida is again the favorite.

Led by former state high school champions, Bank Berry and Jack Yethe, FSU has rounded up four wins against a single loss to Georgia Tech. The treated chemically at the Department of Anthropology Laboratory. It is necessary to replace the water in the canoe with chemicals, Dr. Smith said. This process will take several weeks. If the canoe were allowed to dry without treatment, it would warp and split, he added.

Ancient Canoe Found In Lake

(Continued from Page 1)

Warren To Attend Dean's Convention; Presides On Panel

Florida State University Dean of Women Katherine Warren will preside this weekend at a meeting of the Southern Association of Deans of Women in Chicago.

Miss Warren will be accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Lyon, assistant dean of women here.

Chairman of the Deans of Women's section, Miss Warren is also Secretary-Treasurer elect of the NADW. She will leave today for the arrive in Chicago in time for a meeting of the Executive Board.

At the General Meeting where Dean Warren will preside there will be a major policy panel discussion on the topic "Mixture Professional Relations."

Dr. Esther Lord Jones of Columbia Teachers College and Dr. Gertrude Peabody Dean of Women of Temple University will be on the panel. Other panel members includes Dean of men at Tulane University.

The panel will discuss the type of people Deans should be in relations with others.

Thirteen Members Tapped By Alpha Council On Sunday

Thirteen men were tapped Sunday night for membership in the Alpha Council, Freshman and Sophomore men's leadership honorary.

Selected from among the men of the Freshman Class were Bill Roach, Graham, Trinkle, Hank McCann, Paul Perry, Bob Bullet, Arnold Greenfield, Bill Sweatt, Laird Anderson, Ronnie Blue, Don Noll, Ronnie Troyer, Don K. Lewis and Jim Holt.

Alpha Council is an organization devoted to promoting the Honor Pledge, furthering school spirit, and promoting religious and other worthwhile activities. The Florida State University chapter was the first one formed.

The thirteen tapa will be initiated into membership in Journal ceremonies Sunday at 6 p.m. in Longmire Buildings, after which a banquet will be held at St Marks.

WESLEY PRAYERS PLAN PROGRAM

"Release," so Easter play will be presented by the Wesley Players Sunday, April 3 at 6:15 p.m. in the Methodist Student House

Cast members are: Dick Moore, Barbara Chumbler, Kro Bynum, Val Austin, Nicie Weisman, John Rodeberry, Russ Parrish, Mark Miller, and Dave Whitlesey.

More Sports Slated In Womens Games

BADMINTON

Thurs — ZTA defeated Reynolds in singles scores 11-1 and 11-8 W Landis defeated Delta Gamma, I; 15-2, 15-6. W. Landis also defeated Alpha Xi Delta 1; 15-11; 13-15; 15-4

Friday—Pi Phi's defeated Alpha Xi Delta 1, championship 15-5 15-4. Final singles game— Dot Carter, defeated West Landis; championship 11-7 10-11; 11-5

Field Badminton

TABLE TENNIS

Thurs — Gilchrist I defeated E. Lewis — 21-11 Jean Mcmoreland Elizabeth Balfour.

W. Landis Joan Riley defeated Richard II, Parker Andrews Score — 21-17.

Singles Finals—Gilchrist defeated ADPi Weimerdinger) Billy Stokes)

Friday—TA—Mary Marsaret Williams was defeated by Westmoreland of Gilchrist — single final

BASKETBALL

Friday—Chi Omega defeated Alpha Omicron Pi.

Tuesday — Kappa Delta and Delta Zeta play in gi3—

Jennie Murphree vs. Broward

Alpha Gamma Delta vs ZTA

Kappa Alpha Theta vs. Sigma Kappa

E. Landis vs Cawthon

Conversation Heard

(Continued from page 2)

informed on this, but if you tell me who the Yanks are, I'll try and give you an opinion.

DYCKMAN: Yankees! In a stack of bearing about yankees.

Know how to indidge in a little serenade on the subject.

You can have the north, it Really isn't worth it.

Well shet mah mouth.

I'll take the golden south

Won't you all join me in a chorus of "Dixie"?

HARRINGTON: Well, Martin, you have an excellent voice You should start West Hall chorus to cultivate the men of West Hall. I could sing more if you as good when you're sober?

WOODS: Please, gentlemen, I wish you would bring up the subject of liquor in my presence

NIMKOPF: I believ.. it was Edna St. Vincent Millay who said: "Candy is dandy, but liquor is quicker." If we examine this statement closer, we find

BLACKBURN: Quit arguing and pass the bottle.

All College Students
Laundry Picked Up, Washed and Dried, Folded, Delivered Back Afternoon, Every Wednesday
6c Per Pound, Plus 15c delivery charge
LAUNDERAGE
Phone 3-3264

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Senior Hall)

ATO's, Sigma Nu Fight For Second Place In Frat Sports

By HARRY BERNARD

The Phi Delta Thetas still continue to lead in the overall Fraternity league standings with a total of 603 points for five team sports and only five sports left to play. The only serious challenge at the present time seems to be from Alpha Tau Omega who has 569 points. Sigma Nu is pushing ATO with 464 points. Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Theta Chi are currently in the midst of a fight for fourth place with 413 and 414 points respectively.

The rest of the fraternities and the respective standings with their points are as follows:

8—Sigma Phi Epsilon 347
7—Kappa Alpha 364
8—Lambda Chi Alpha 360
9—Tau Kappa Epsilon 354
10—Delta Tau Delta 329
11—Sigma Chi 328
12—Phi Kappa Tau 289
13—Kappa Sigma 258
14—Pi Kappa Phi 254
15—Pi Kappa Alpha 242

This list does not include the tennis doubles which are still being held. Currently vieing

All Lettermen!

There will be an "F" club meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. at the Women's gym.

Discussion on this year's concession at the baseball games will be held.

All members are urged to be present.

Concert To Feature Carter's 'Romantic Episode' Tomorrow

Highlighting a Florida State University Concert Band performance at 8 p.m. tomorrow is premiere performance of the overture, "Romantic Episode," by Charles Carter, at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in Opperman Music Hall

Carter, a graduate student in the School of Music composed the FSU Rhapsody which was played at the last concert.

Also scheduled are the presentation of music of Grieg and Delibes, former Broadway show and movie, to be released starring Marlon Brando; the "Triumphal March", from the movie Que Vadis.

Those who are TV fans will recognize some of the music of Dragnet, descriptive shows. The current selection will be routled "TV Suite."

Stanley R. Whitcomb, director of bands at FSU, will direct the concert, assisted by Robert Braunagel, associate director.

'F' Club Initiates 10 New Members; Elect Officers

The "F" club held initiations for new members this weekend.

Those members were Bernard Betty Gray Sally Reed, Martha Jane Hall, Jacquelyn Anderson Callie Trowbridge, Sue Thomas, Carolyn Mollis and Nancy York.

New officers elected recently are Betty Grace, president; Pat Rooney, vice-president; Carolyn Thompkins, secretary-treasurer; Patti Arrington, program secretary, and Tanya Moore, parliamentarian.

The "goats" or new initiates prepared for their initiation by dressing the lame post in front of the dining hall as a Veronica Lakeype gal, a girl from a foreign country and so "F" club goat with her "F" spread down.

The initiation was held at the camp.

'F' Club Initiates

10 New Members

Elect Officers

for that crown are. Tau Epsilon Phi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Kappa Alpha. Tau Epsilon Phi is the only undefeated team in the league. The finals are to be held sometime next week.

According to Mr. Edward Williamson, head of the Intramural department the competitive spirit in both the Fraternity and Dormitory leagues has been one of exuberance and fair play more so than in previous years This may be due to the keener competition than in recent years

Volleyball Playoff

Playoff for the campus crown in volle-ball, to be held at some future date, is between Phi Delta Theta of the Fraternity league and the West Hall Rebels of the Dormitory league. The outcome should prove very interesting as rides turned in similar cords and both had powerful offensive competition.

The remaining sports for the Fraternities are Bowling, which starts this week Softball which also starts this week Swimming, and Golf. The time of the latter three sports will be announced at some future date.

Frat Softball

The time of the Fraternity softball games for Tuesday and Thursday are Thur games at 5 p.m. one game at 6:15 p.m., and one game t 7:30 All games are to be played at the lake front at the same location they will be played on Tuesday and Wednesdays.

The paper will publish the schedule of both lesures next Friday.

In the Dormitory league the Penthouse Gang is leading with 677 points closely followed by the Pirates who have 499. Both are West Hall teams. The Rebels are currently in third place with 447 points, and trailing them in fourth place with 475 points is Senior Hall. The rest of the dormitory teams and their respective points and their respective places are as follows:

5—Methodist 406
6—Magnolia 327
7—Baptist 224
8—Newman Club 234
9—Air Force 231
10—Lutheran Students. 95

Table Tennis

Last week of the campus the Physical Education Department held its first annual Table Tennis tournament. There were thirty-one entries in the double and single competition. Wayne Patton was the winner with Bob Bullock taking second place second. Both men received medals for their achievements. Of the thirty-one entries, the top flight men formed a team to play a Genius Recreation Center at the Women's Gym. This tournament will be an annual Open Campus event every year.

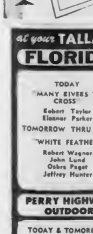
There are no points involved for the Fraternities or Dormitories as this tournament is mainly for the fun of the sport.

School Records Broken At Gainesville By Track Men

By BRUCE JACUB

Two FSU records were broken last Saturday, March 26, at Gainesville as sixteen Seminole trackmen left the beaten path competition of the South at the South's annual Florida Relays.

The new record holders are pole vaulter Ron Weaver and distance runner Kirmey Barnes. Weaver suffered a sprained ankle in his warmup, but braved through it to set a new mark. Barnes, on the other hand, was hampered by a pulled muscle in his right leg, but smashed the existing two-mile school record when he traversed the distance in 10:12. The winning time of 9:59.5, by Barnes of Auburn, was a new Florida Relays record.



Both Jack Terwilliger and Joe Davis registered at 10 flat in the 100 yard dash preliminaries but failed to qualify for the finals. One of the best races of the day was the mile relay in which FSU placed sixth. Ben Geiger, Davis, Terwilliger and Chris Wilson combined to turn in a sparkling 3:22.2 This effort is less than a second off the school record of 3:22.4.

Carlos Fraondorfer and Jerry Brooks threw the shot 47'7" and 46'11" but neither mark was good enough to place. Special mention goes to Geiger, who in a minute flat half mile in the Florida medley. Tenney Brown in the high jump, and Steve Lund and Green in the pole vault. Other members of the team who competed include: Bruce Titus, Green, James Browning, Mike Smith, and Lloyd Lucas.

Everyone competed well, but the competition was too stiff for the Seminoles to challenge the Coach Mike Long Accordins to Long, the strength of the team balance and teamwork if his trackstars are to have a successful remainder of the season.

Dutch Joel Shaakle was the Ralph Aigler memorial trophy for the second consecutive year. The award is made to the outstanding individual performer in the meet. He tied his own record of 6 feet 4 inches in the broad jump, placed second in the 100 yard and third in the 220 low hurdles. Bumper Watson of Florida, tied the 100 yard dash record at 9.7.

South Carolina's mile relay team and sprint medli team set new records in the meet with 3:19.7 and 3:39.5 respectively. Loyola University's two mile quartet mile relay record with a 424 performance.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA
TODAY
"MANY EIVES TO CROSS"
Robert Taylor
Eleanor Parker
TOMORROW THRU SAT
"WHITE FEATHER"
Robert Wagner
John Lund
Debra Paget
Jeffrey Hunter

STATE
TODAY
"THIS IS MY LOVE"
Linda Darnell
Dan Duryea
TOMORROW & THURS.
"PASSION"
Cornel Wilde
Yvonne DeCarlo

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR
TODAY & TOMORROW
"REAR WINDOW"
James Stewart
Grace Kelly
THUESDAY
"MEN OF THE FIGHTING LADY"
Van Johnson
Walter Pidgeon
plus
"THE SARACEN BLADE"
Ricardo Montalban

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.
TODAY & TOMORROW
"MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION"
Jane Wyman
Rock Hudson
THURSDAY
"MONTANA BELLE"
Jane Russell
plus
"SHARK RIVER"
Steve Cochran

RITZ—TODAY & TOMORROW—"Personal Affair" Gear Tierney
THURS. THEU SAT.—"THE LITTLE WORLD OF DON CAMILLO" Gina Corci.

Co-eds—
See the Easter Selections
AT Mae's Shop
All Styles
All Sizes
All Prices
"Style Center Of The South"
213 S. MONROE

Enjoy the Best in Filtered Smoking!
FILTER TIP TAREYTON
with the Activated Charcoal Filter
PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company

Dean Releases Names Of 89 Junior Counselors For 55-56

The names of eighty-nine girls who will be Junior Counselors during the coming year have been announced by the Office of the Dean of Women.

Those selected, said Miss Elizabeth Lyon, assistant dean of women, "have all established themselves in scholarship and citizenship. Each has expressed her own interest in participating in this program. All of them have the approval of the Women's Senate."

Fresh Dorms

Assigned to counsel freshman dormitory students are:

Elise R. Abbott Marion O. Aird, Florence H. Ashby Joy Aiken, Marian Benson, Sylvia Britt, Mary L. Campbell, Mary Pearl Carlton, Jane Chapman, Carolyn Clow, Judith Ann Coulter, Shirley LaVerne Crala, Nancy Chilson Shirley Devine Geraldine Diaz, Laura Eiler, Nancy J. Perusson, Eariece Ford, Joan M Gore

Alice Guinand, Barbara Harless, Pauline Hecht, Barbara Joan Hicks, Patricia Jan Hilton, Betty Lou Hotston, Jane W. Jackson, Barbara Jeffries, Mary Jo Jones, Gretchen Kerr, Susan Lowenbuh Jean McDonald, Dorothy Rose Matthews, June McCaskill, Virginia Louise McClure, Helen McLain, June Alexander, Martha Sue Mizell.

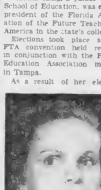
Evelyn C. Moll, Tony Moore, Faye Moses, Virginia Nesmith, Evelyn Nettles, Shirley Nichols, Kathleen Parnell, Carmine Ranieri, Irene Rodriguez, Diana C. Rowe, Edna Runnels, Lynn Smith, Jane Ann Soper, Betty Spence, Lisbeth Stainer, Polly Swain, Lois Tichenor, Lucille Turnage, Joyce Vasque, Susan Wesenhaver, Freda West, Selma White, Betty Lou Whittle, Mary Margaret Williams, Carolyn Woodward and Lola Young.

Day Students

Assigned to counsel new day students are:

Irma Allen, Gail Battina, Marjorie A. Curtis, Barbara Huclick, Crystal h. McRae Charlotte Patten, Betsy Peter, Ruth Rosenbark, Greta L. Sims and Kitty Wade.

Assigned to new transfer students are:



Carole Armstrong, Ruth Aulick, Loretta Castellino, Barbara Hope Corbett, Boye Hass, Rosemary Hollander, Doris Holt, Alice Lentz, Barbara Patchen, Myra Porter, Nancy Rumbler, Lois Scarcoroush, Helen Virginia Sparks, Joan Strickland Mary Anne Turpin and Doris Wardlaw.

Martha King Elected Prexy Of Florida FTA

Martha King, a junior in the School of Education, was elected president of the Florida Association of the Future Teachers of America in the state's colleges.

Elections took place at the FTA convention held recently in conjunction with the Florida Education Association meeting in Tampa.

As a result of her election,

Martha King

Miss King will receive an all-expense paid trip to the National Education Association convention in Chicago this summer.

The local chapter of FTA will meet tomorrow night at 7 in Lonzaine Auditorium Mr. Ed Henderson, Executive Secretary of Florida Education Association, will speak on the topic, "Reviewing the Legislative Program."

The officers for the local chapter will be elected and a social program will follow.

Vote 'No' Today!

The Florida Flambeau is not given to statements on how students should vote. Usually we are content to present the basis of any issue and let it be decided by students themselves.

This time, however, we cannot follow such a policy. The issue concerns a constitutional amendment which will be voted on by the student body in today's elections; such amendments have an uncanny habit of being passed whether deserving or not.

The amendment asks the students to approve of a method for deciding how Student Senators shall be elected in the future. If this sounds familiar, it is because the Senate has occupied itself with little else for many months. So far it has tried to decide on representation by incorporating means in constitutional amendments which have to be student-approved just like the one for today.

The other week Senate decided to change its course in the middle of the stream. It decided to put means of representation into the Student Body Statutes, a method whereby it would not have to approved by the students.

But to do this the Senate is faced with a paradox: It has to get such a measure passed by the Student Body. That they hope to get done in the elections.

The Senate does not take into account its own capriciousness; once it gets the power to change representation whenever it gets the mind, we will witness a parade of changes, alterations and revisions that will put to shame its already-outlandish record of bickering. It is up to the students not to forget.

Sense must realize that a constitutionally guaranteed representation is a necessity. Statutes are too open to change. Since Senators evidently do not deem this important it must be pointed out to them by the students.

A vote of "No" will do the job.

Brubeck Says Jazz Is America's Greatest Version Of Free 'Voice'

By WILLIE SMITH

A jazz that is America's own is the voice of freedom and should be used by the State Department and Dave Brubeck yesterday.

Fresh from a sixty-six stop concert tour throughout the country Dave Brubeck arrived on the FSU campus yesterday to play two concerts for the students.

At an off-the-cuff talk yesterday afternoon in the Music Building Auditorium Brubeck, renowned jazz musician, gave his reflections on some of the questions tossed to him by a group of interested and music-minded students.

For example, Brubeck noted, on some Louis Armstrong an President Eisenhower to Europe there could be trouble. One plays the other talks. Music cannot lie while talking can, and besides Brubeck said, who would get the records?

The first thing a dictator does is outlaw jazz. Hitler and Stalin did it, he pointed out. The United States should take advantage of this.

Brubeck said he received a letter from one German professor stating that there is more of a desire for jazz than for the food parcels sent. People have been known to cross the Iron Curtain lines at the risk of death to listen to Armstrong.

"This is the only thing that is uniquely our own. It is more important over there than it is here," Brubeck said.

Remarking on his own style of music, Brubeck said that it is in two part invention. That each melody is independent of the other with each standing alone. However, these two melodies will fit together.

He continued, saying that it is more or less a hit and miss affair and they are fortunate when it comes out right. Brubeck also stated that his music is ninety percent improvised.

The music he plays depends on how he feels, said Brubeck. Ninety-percent of what he plays stems from emotion. Brubeck sends out "feelers" to the audience to see how much they know, while at the same time the audience is sensing how much he knows.

He will never fade as suggested Brubeck said. Continuing, he said that he disliked the "so, so stuff" — the too drunk type — and Jazz at the Philharmonic type.

For that reason, Brubeck likes the small clubs with no pianos in them, or a room or a place for the Music Audition. It doesn't too but just right for a concert.

Reflecting on the small clubs Brubeck commented that at one time you could go to the right night, knowing, you could play so you felt, "Those days are gone, the clubs are few."

When you felt blue, you could play the blues and when you felt good, you could play a real swinging set," Brubeck concluded.

Concerts are different because you have to play for the audience. They want different moods, and you have to express them, he stated.

Brubeck believes that a great force has been opposed to any serious music composer. He said the composer should not arrange that he wanted him, that is more important in music and should be treated as such.

As to where he gets his ideas, Brubeck said, "that you are a sum of your past. All you have as recorded in your mind will always there. It will come out later."

That is why I never listen to the Hit Parade" Brubeck said, he tries to listen to the better type music and therefore he will play that type.

Noting his favorite composer is Brubeck cited Debussy, Bach, Mozart, and Mavo

As for the best musicians Brubeck likes Chet Baker, Jerry Mulligan, Fats Waller, Art Tatum, Charlie Parker, Miles McPartland and the Modern Jazz Quartet.

Future Brubeck plans include touring, making Los Angeles his "home headquarters", and composing good formal music.

The Music-Minded — Left to right, Art Newcomb, and Dave Brubeck discuss the pros and cons of jazz and the classics.

Students Still May Donate, Says Neller

Although the blood drive is of fun between the fraternities and fully over students may still sororities arrangements to donate was not followed." Miss Neller blood Monday in Neller co-chairman said. Next year the drive man said yesterday. should also be on a competitive so pints were donated toward a basis. A trophy might well serve goal of 1,000 during the drive which as an incentive. ends on February 18 Tuesday. A record of the number of donations Ten more donations were pints voted by students, faculty, needed to reach the goal, Miss and Kappa Sigma fraternity with Neller said. 87 members, the second largest Members APO, a service fraternity, plans to give 60 pints when last time is need for blood. Last year's drive netted 1,000 pints, it next week, said Miss Neller. Also, representatives sent to answer questions at the residence halls and fraternity meeting night help clear up some misunderstandings.

Original Plans

It was originally planned for each residence unit to be in charge of a group for a given period. If it turned out, there was competition that the blood bank could be set up on campus next year. Graham Neller and Chairman Marvin tried to achieve this end this year but found it impossible.

During the campaign transportation to the Red Bank was furnished each Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Transportation will still be provided for people donating but they should contact Miss Neller two days in advance.

Before going to the Blood Bank a student must first get a blood test any day that week between 9 a.m. and noon. Anyone under 21 and not in ROTC is required to bring written permission from his parents.

Mobile Unit

Miss Neller explained the hope to that the blood bank could be set

Today's Smoke Signals Has 'Remember When?' Contest

In the Smoke Signals which comes out today, according to Jeanettes' Lee Corso, Jimmy Rose, editor of advance information Rose, Myrtle Gessler, Patrice Lee, Bob Folsom, Coyle Moore, Pete Nimhoff, Anita Wall, Bob Hilliard, Jimmy Jurico, Wayne Ann Monroe, Bob Crenshaw, Perry, Jayleen Robertson, Tom Feamster, Betty Williams, Marsha Ann Ballentine, Charlotte and Phyllis Patten. Jim Patterson Delano Dorothy Sachs, Bill Smith, Jerry Jacobs and J. Quentin Quinn.

Here are the multiple choice questions:

The Alpha Delta Pi's pledge mommy contest is to be announced tomorrow night in addition to the present group. This addition was decided on by sorority members at a dinner meeting last night. Other suggestions included a dining room, study hall, sun porch, recreation room, bowling room, and music room. The building should be completed by September.

The Tri Delt's entertained Mrs. Ira Larsen, one of their mothers, Saturday morning and Monday of last week. Mrs. Larsen is national math chairman of the sorority, spoke at the state Tri-Delta convention in Delafield, Wisconsin. While in Florida Mrs. Lawton will visit other chapters at Stetson, University of Florida and the University of Miami.

The Phi Delts will challenge the SAE's Saturday at their annual Bert Bell football game. The Phi Delts hope to win back the trophy taken from them last year by the SAE's. A party will be held following the game. It will start at one p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. the members and their dates will attend a joint combo party.

The Lamba Chi's celebrated their Founder's Day this weekend which was Tuesday, March 22. Bobby Morton and orchestra and alumni were guests at the Frosh picnic supper. A Lambda Chi national officer attended Saturday for the occasion and was honored Saturday afternoon with a barbecue at the Reservation. A banquet was held in the house Saturday night and a dance was held afterwards with music by The Commodores.

Pi Delta Phi Holds Initiation

Pi Delta Phi, national French honorary, initiated members this week-end.

New members who must have high scholarship to qualify are: E. Lamon Knox, Jr., Bonnie Kuhn, Donn Teel and Jane McIntyre.

Associate members are Herbert Hearne, Verlan Stark, and Miss Dorothy Thayne.

Dr. Woodhuer, head of the Department of Modern Languages was made an honorary member.

President of the organization, Alan Opyrlak, conducted the initiation.

Greek News

By MARGARET MILLER

Job Opportunities

Note: Students interested in any of the following announcements should file an application with the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 208 Westcott.

Capital Dividends

Interviewer: Mr. Greene

Wanted: Boy or girl to work during summer school 4 mths. from 7:30 or 8 to 10 or 10:30, $2 to $2.50 a night.

Guides for Know Your Government Program.

Interviewer: Mr. Williamson ex. 3991

Wanted: Students to act as guides every Wednesday during April and May from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. 75 cents an hour.

Wednesday, March 30

Eastern Airlines

Interviewer: Mr. Coleman

Wanted: Girls interested in jobs as hostesses.

Tuesday, April 5

and Wednesday, April 6

Commercial Credit Corporation

Interviewer: Mr. McGrath

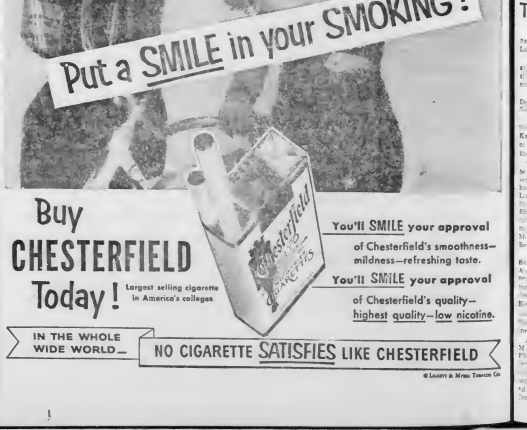
Wanted: Interviews with students interested in company positions.

SEE OUR WONDERFUL ASSORTMENT OF JUNIOR DRESSES

Boobie Brooks
Sportswear

De Weese
Swimsuits

Nelly's SHOP
102 E College Ave.



Dash to— Malone's Book Store

For Easter Cards, Stationery, Stuffed Animals, Supplies, Sundries,

"Everything For The Student"
107 S. Copeland

Put a SMILE in your SMOKING!

Buy CHESTERFIELD Today! Largest selling cigarette in America's colleges

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's smoothness— mildness—refreshing taste.

You'll SMILE your approval of Chesterfield's quality— highest quality—low nicotine.

IN THE WHOLE WIDE WORLD... NO CIGARETTE SATISFIES LIKE CHESTERFIELD

© LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

New Promotions Announced For Air Force ROTC Cadets

New promotions to temporary positions and rank in the Air Force ROTC cadet corps at Florida State University have been announced by Captain Thomas W. Devine, Commandant of Cadets

Cadet James E. Hickey has been appointed to cadet second lieutenant and will serve as a flight commander. The new group Sergeant Major is Charles E. Mann with the rank of cadet Master Sergeant and Coyle E. Moore, Jr. holds the same rank in the position of Chief of the Color Guard. Davi R. Buchanan has been assumed the duty of Flight Sergeant with the rank of cadet Technical Sergeant.

Women First Class

Cadet Airman First Class rank has been awarded to 24 cadets in the position of Squad Sergeant. They include Chesley C. Kennedy, Thomas Kenerly, Assist J. Saddler, Jr. Fred A. Brimehoff Jr. Lemuel H Hosier, Patrick Kemprlin, James F. Kaufman, John W. Crain, Ronald C. Buchanan Charles L. Wafford Jr. George B. Kyle Alfred H. Tebault and John Graham II. Also in the group are Michael Halleck, Harley L. Vause John T. Bo- William B. Weaver James H Scott and Hoyt R. H Heimerdin

24 other cadets were awarded rank of Airman Second Class with the position of Squad Sergeant. Among the group are James L. Allen Tom H. Hafner, Frank K. Bruns Carl W. Alderman Jr. Burnett Stilwell, Teddie L. Sheffield, Bernard C. Hoffman, Frederick P. Kenney Rowland D. Hosier, Claude H. Jewell Frank J. Battle Joseph D Curry and Ernest T. Eubanks.

Second Class

Others to Airman Second Class are Robert C. Bruin Samuel L. Pearson, Gordon Whitney, Winfred H Garrett, Joseph J. Trawick, Patrick L. Napier, Ronald J. Thomas, Morris M. Park, James W. Byrd Fred A. Gould III, Charles H Bolton, Thomas Shaw Robert A. Butler, Vernon R Duce, Joseph Moore and Robert L. Carlton

Gindon Beaver, Robert R. Fountain, Kenneth G Abbott, Jerry W. Baker and Wade H. Cress have been chosen for the rank of Airman First Class.

Among the members of the Air Force ROTC band Howard T. Wilson serves as Band Director with the rank of Warrant Officer and Cadet Master Sergeant Paul A Ort serves as Assistant Band Director Robert E Colon, John F. Davis, Thomas C. Hefner and Ronald F. Anderson have been promoted to Airman First Class while fourteen 34 band members now hold the rank of Airman Second Class including Verne R. Austin Jr. Jimmie M. Bishop Carey Buselle, James Bell Robert W. Bolton, James D. Branford Robert I. Brock Jr. Harry S. Brook, James D. Brook, Reginald B. Chastain Jr. Paul B. Coe, Robert L. Crawford, James H. Culpepper Jr. James R Curtis, Alberto R. Daves Ernest A. Diaz John C. Garrett and Lyman D. Graham Jr.

Also promoted to the rank of Airman Second Class are Lyman L. Hammond, Robert Hardaway, James T. Keaire, James J. Kilcullen, Jack D Lancaster, Robert G Newman Boyce W. Nolls Paul C. Perry, Fred Prudhomme Jr. Henry I Snyder Jr. William G. Shelton Virgil A. Strickland, William H Taylor, Raymond Thompson, and Charles C. Weller.

Vote Today!

SELF PERSONALITY CULTURE TESTS SCHEDULED

The Test Service Bureau announces that the registration date for the Self Personality Culture Tests will be given at the times listed below.

TEST	TIME	DATE
Personality	8:00	Wed. Mar. 30
Culture	8:00	Wed. Mar. 30
Personality Culture	7-10	Wed. Apr. 6

ELECTION TURNOUT Sets Record For School—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY Semi-Weekly College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 41 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1955

Beauty Contest Highlight Of Duke's Concert

Plays For IFC Capers In Suwannee

The annual Inter-Fraternity Council Weekend begins today with a public concert by Duke Ellington and his orchestra at 4 p.m. and a closed formal dance at 9 p.m. in the Suwannee Room.

The free concert, to be held in Westcott Auditorium, will be highlighted by judging of the IFC Beauty Contest. Winner and court will not be revealed, however, until 11 p.m. during the formal dance.

IFC president Jim Crews said Wednesday that he is confident "capers" will be a large success. With the national publicity Look magazine is giving will be stated, "plus the high caliber of Duke Ellington's band I'm sure Capers will be one of the biggest IFC Weekends ever."

Hostess Sorority

The week-long contest will see presentation of the second Woman Sorority of the Year by Kappa Sigma fraternity, with last year by Kappa Alpha Theta receiving the honor. Sorority, to be informally announced, will be formally announced during intermission during the formal dance.

An IFC-AWS party-dance has been set for 4 p.m. at Florida A & M Saturday. Men of each group who are unable to attend the Florida State University performance, will have ticket allotments down to hear Ellington.

Look Magazine

Look magazine has announced it is sending a writer to do a feature story on Ellington while he is in Florida.

IFC president Crews said that plans have been granted that permission until 1:30 a.m. He extended thanks to Mrs. Mary Osmund, director of social orientation, for her "splendid cooperation." Credit is also due Mellie Craig, editor of the News Bureau, he stated.

Trophies will be presented to the IFC Queen and sponsoring fraternity during coronation ceremonies at tonight's dance.

Contest Judges

Judges of the beauty contest are Stanley Whitcomb, FSU director of bands, Tom Brownlee Ruthauer of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, Nat R. Walker, president of the Quarterback Club, Mrs. Sidney Johnnie, president of the Junior Women's Club, and Sam Neal Lundy, president of the Tallahassee Service League.

Committee heads in charge of Capers are Lou Hatton, president of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity Concert, George Tuten, president of Phi Kappa Tau, Dance Decorations, and Kenney Tra Poulton Phi Delta Theta president, Refreshments.

Alpha Lambda Delta Honorary Taps 31 Frosh

Thirty-one freshmen women have been tapped for Alpha Lambda Delta.

Jane Clardy, president of the FSU scholastic honorary, tapped students from the 142 freshmen on the Dean's list.

At a reception given by the Dean of Women's office, March 20,

Dr. Sam Meyer, president of the campus chapter of Phi Beta Kappa national scholastic honorary, was the main speaker for the scholastic-social event.

Freshmen who made a 2.5 or better average for their first semester and were tapped for the honorary are Margaret Green, Sheila Harris, Ann Rhodes, Lenore Williams, Catherine Dunn, Shirley Rachels, Bobbie Murphree, Martha Snyder, Janice Kinsolving, Karen Kimpel, Martha O'Connor, Edna Alford, and Beverly Odom.

Also, June Hamilton, Clara Saunders, Janice Cobb, Judith Abrams, Rita Bailey, Alma Carrow, Wilma Fagen, Joan Blanton, Betty Cox, Maria Hume, Grace McRae, Frances Wilson, Eleanor Gallo, Barbara Twitchell, Glenda Briscoe, Sue Purvis, Anne Verran, and Madeleine Weinbaum.

As a climax to the program Martha Garret, president of the FSU chapter of Mortar Board, presented the outstanding scholarship of Evelyn Bowdoin Thompson. Miss Bowdoin made a 2.84 average her entire freshman year at FSU.

Elections Are Over—Three elected officials are the girl who took over the responsibility of running the elections on short notice are shown above. Snapped shortly after the results were posted Tuesday, are left to right, Jimmy Joanos, elected vice-president of the Student Body; Mitzi McCullough, temporary secretary of elections; Coyle Moore, chosen president of the student body, and Hans Tews, named men's vice-president.

Senate Passes Bill Creating Secretary Of Student Welfare

The Student Senate passed a bill effecting changes in the presidential cabinet as the highlight of an unusually short session Wednesday.

The bill, introduced by Senators Bill Stancil and Ronnie Blue, abolishes the cabinet position of Secretary of Recreation and provided in its place a Secretary of Student Welfare.

Set up under this cabinet member were the assistant-secretaryships of Student Welfare for recreation, insurance, and veterans' affairs.

Minor Provisions

At the suggestion of men's vice-president Gordon Gaster, the senate passed an amendment to its appointment secretaries bill that would have added to the bill. It will eliminate the executive's having to ask Senate to create offices of less than full cabinet rank.

The Senate passed a constitutional amendment during first semester freshmen the right to hold office on the Summer Council. It was introduced by Senators Jimmy Boles and Hank McCann.

Faculty Committee

It was reported that the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs had not yet approved the representation and honor system amendments discussion occurred on the proposal of Senators McCann and Ealy Alvarez to assign Senators to attend meetings of residence and day student groups, overlooking the technicality that their bill, as introduced, was in the form of a constitutional amendment. It had been tabled indefinitely.

Senator Jack Wier offered the suggestion as a bill and consider it next week in lieu of student ratification of the amendment currently before the faculty committee.

Halford's Committee

Senator Joan Halford's labor, student, services and education committee of Senators Carolyn Cope, Bill Wagner, Hank McCann and Ronnie Blue introduced the following resolution:

ASKING that the service facilities to be set up at West Hall for all students.

ASKING that one of the Student Center parking lot entrances on West Call be made an exit.

ASKING for erection of a sign on Lonsmire Green for use of students for special events.

ATTENTION SOPHOMORE COUNCIL

Jane Soper, Sophomore Council president, asks that all Sophomore Counselors check the bulletin board in front of the Longmire building today. The notice concerns help on polls for Tuesday's run-offs

Baby Picture Contest Over Says Heidel

It's all over—The baby contest, that is.

Miss Heidel Don Heidel has "unveiled" the identities of the baby pictures which appeared in the last issue of the Florida State University performance, and has tickets downtown to hear Ellington.

Look Magazine

Look magazine has announced it is sending a writer to do a feature story on Ellington while he is in Florida.

IFC president Crews said that plans have been granted that permission until 1:30 a.m. He extended thanks to Mrs. Mary Osmund, director of social orientation, for her "splendid cooperation." Credit is also due Mellie Craig, editor of the News Bureau, he stated.

Trophies will be presented to the IFC Queen and sponsoring fraternity during coronation ceremonies at tonight's dance

Contest Judges

Judges of the beauty contest are Stanley Whitcomb, FSU director of bands, Tom Brownlee Ruthauer of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, Nat R. Walker, president of the Quarterback Club, Mrs. Sidney Johnnie, president of the Junior Women's Club, and Sam Neal Lundy, president of the Tallahassee Service League.

Committee heads in charge of Capers are Lou Hatton, president of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity Concert, George Tuten, president of Phi Kappa Tau, Dance Decorations, and Kenney Tra Poulton Phi Delta president, Refreshments.

Journalism School Covers Legislature In Lab Newspaper

The Tallahassee Sun, School of Journalism laboratory newspaper, at 8:00 will have a report on bills covering the 1955 Florida legislative session, convening Tuesday, than any paper in the state

Sixteen members of Dr Sidney Kobre's advanced class have been in training two months for newspaper legislative assignments.

On the newspaper class staff are Bob Gustin, Ronny Taylor, George Matter, John Dansby, Louise Hoyer, Mary Elizabeth King, Pat Flynn, Judy Robertson, Eleanor Kirby, Barbara Richmond, Dorothy Massey, Quinton Moore, Addie Summers, Ben Brown, Constance Coleman, and Will Smith.

Rumors Were Flying

Holding Hands, Kissing Reported Not Banned By Administration

By ORCHID ALONSO

Rumors to the effect that kissing and holding hands on campus had been outlawed spread over the campus this week.

The rumors started following floor meetings in several freshman women's dorms in which excessive display of affection was discussed. The rumors insisted that Dean of Women Katherine Warren had issued an official notice

Faked Orders

In fact, "faked" copies of letters from the dean of women's office were displayed prominently in one of the women's dorms.

According to unofficial sources, Dean Warren has not, and is not expected to issue any official orders in the residence counselors outlawing or prohibiting kissing or holding hands.

There is some evidence, however, that FSU President Doak S. Campbell had been approached and severely criticized for some "excessive" behavior on campus by visitors and townspeople.

Policemen Advised

The campus policemen, have, to the knowledge of some, been asked to be on the lookout for extremely poor behavior on campus, while residence counselors have been asked to speak to the women involved. There has been no form of punishment or enforcement formalized, although students are expected to "behave" on campus.

The rumors had their bright side, however, offering no end to witty commments ranging from "are you in the woods" to "are you underneath the Social Welfare Building."

Stop Watches

One student was heard to comment that she was receiving blanks from the dormitories would include stop watches and official sports whistles.

Another student quipped, "holding hands is a basic course offense; one kiss is a judiciary case, and necking will result in Honor Court action."

Some of the students tried to carry the so-called rumor around prohibiting necking on campus in pointed cars, stating that "there must always be one boy always staying at a safe distance."

Police Force Same

Rumors went even so far as to suggest that the campus police force had been doubled. A quick check revealed that this was not so. Not a single officer has been added to the force.

At the house meeting discussions and complaints were registered by students themselves who said they were embarrassed by some of the proceedings on campus.

Coyle Moore Is Elected Student Body President In Record Breaking Vote

Over 2500 Students Vote To Set Record

Regardless of their individual preferences, most student, political leaders are joining each other in praise over the record turnout in the Student Body elections Tuesday.

Two thousand, five hundred and nine ballots were cast, according to Mitzi McCullough, who supervised the election in the absence of under-secretary of elections Betty Willmon. Miss Willmon was called home due to the death of her mother.

Student Center

The Student Center ballot box was the busiest, with a day's total of 875. Close behind came the Florida Club with 562, Westcott Building with 327, the bus stop with 184, West Hall with 296, and Landis Green with 173.

These figures, said Miss McCullough, are unofficial and may contain errors due to hasty counting. The final figure is accurate she emphasized.

The bulk of the voting occurred before 1 p.m. with 1,346 balloted cast by then. Two hundred fifty-seven were cast after 5 p.m., 97 of them at the Florida Club, 68 at the Student Center, 34 at the bus stop, 27 at West Hall, 22 at Westcott, and 12 at Landis Green polling places

Amendments

The representation and honor system amendments did not appear on the ballot, having been cleared by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

According to Miss McCullough, "The elections committee didn't receive any official notice at all. The first we knew about it was when Betty Willmon read about it in the Flambeau. The ballots had already been run off. She called about it, and was informed that it had been held up by a faculty committee."

Kissing Ban Rumors Prompt Demonstration

Rumors that kissing would be banned on campus prompted a noisy but, harmless demonstration before a set of dormitories one night last night.

Estimated by observers to be between 300 and 400 men at its height. It began to break up when Dean of Men Lamar Jernigan arrived to denied any truth in the rumors. Speaking at the dormitories before Jessie Murphree dormitory, Dean Jernigan said "I don't know how such rumors got started. "I assure you there is nothing to that rumor."

The demonstration was apparently organized at West Hall. A large number of men left there by car and foot at 11 p.m., congregating first at the south side of Jennie Murphree.

Disorder Chided

Joined by men from other dormitories, the demonstration moved to the east side of the dormitories where administrative officials made their first attempt to get it to a halt. It was there that Dean Carson chided the students for their "juvenile" actions, expressing "disappointment" in their choice of expression.

He said he had checked "everywhere I could" and found no truth to rumors that university officials were attempting to put an end to kissing on campus.

His words had a noticeable effect on the group which immediately began to disperse. Part of their number moved to the north side of Jennie Hall and continued agitation there. Encouragement was given to the demonstrators by a few residents of both women's dorms.

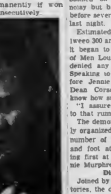
At Cawthon the demonstration rose to its highest pitch, when Tom Hutchinson, A. B. Martin's efforts to quell the disturbance were greeted with boos from both the men and women. At one point a fire alarm was sounded in Cawthon. Girls were heard threatened the girls from leaving the building.

Dr. Martin first requested the women residents for their part in

(Continued on Page 3)

LIBRARY HOURS EASTER WEEKEND

April 7, Thursday—8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m.



April 8, Friday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

April 9, Saturday—8:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

April 10, Sunday—Closed.

April 11, Monday—8:30 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Library fees will run as usual on books kept overtime.

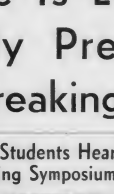
JIM BRODERICK
3rd Ugliest Man on Campus
—1954

APO's Annual 'Ugly' Contest Gets Underway

The second annual Ugly Man Contest sponsored by the Iota Rho chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will be held from April 13 through April 22.

Russ Parrish, chairman, has urged all organizations to select their candidates now so that pictures can be submitted by the registration deadline, April 6. Three prints are required, each being a 5 by 7 glossy upright. Also with a non-dollar registration fee. Applications can be picked up in the Longmire Information Booth.

Both the contest and a dance to be sponsored by the group are raising money for a worthy cause on campus. Last year the goal was set at a radio in each room of the University Hospital. One hundred dollars was raised for this project.



This year, said Parrish, APO hopes to add more radios and if possible, convert them to AM-FM so patients will be able to tune in WTFS-FM.

Last year's winner was Duane Gunderson sponsored by Zeta Tau Delta. Second and third place were to Chris Vroon, Phi Mu Phi, and Jim Broderick, Alpha Xi Delta Votes will be done with pocket change, each cent counting one vote. Any bill larger than a five will count double for each cent at the dance, which will be held in the Student Center on Friday. Winner will be announced April 22.

The winner will be presented with a key for himself and a cup and trophy for his sponsoring organizations, which they will keep permanently if won three years consecutively.

Sixty Five FSU Students Hear Hayes At Ringling Symposium

BARTLETT H. HAYES, JR.

Sixty-five FSU students will hear nationally-known artists and scholars at the Ringling Annual Art Symposium in Sarasota Sunday through Thursday.

Bartlett H. Hayes, Jr., director of the Addison Gallery of American Art Andover, Massachusetts, will be among the speakers. Subject of the symposium, sponsored jointly by the Florida State University department of art and the museum, is "Since 1900."

Hayes Speaks

Director Hayes will speak on "Artist Through the Looking Glass" at 3 p.m. Wednesday. "The Artist Looks Back" Thursday at 9 a.m.

Those attending will be Virginia Anderson, Peggy Arnow, Kenneth B. Bliss, Dick Farmer, Pat Farrell, Marlies Gessler, James Harrison, Bobbie J. Hartsfield, Janice Hendrocks, George Milton, Yvonne Sclaras, Sandra Scott, Jack Wier, Marjolie Lougue, Erin McCauley, Dede Disqud.

Also Jacqueline Spencer, Yvonne Sureshman, Jane Wheeler, Marilyn Miller, Andree Julsen, James Van Ekeren, Lala Mae, Donald Peter Peck, Walter Gray, Barbara Tribble.

Others

Other famed artists will participate in the Symposium, announced the directors. Among those expected are Alfred H. Barr, Jr., Director of Museum Collections at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. Clayton Charles, Chairman of the Art Department at the University of Miami; and Edgar Kaufman, Jr., Historian of Modern Design.

Prominent members of the FSU Art staff and the Ringling Museum will also participate

Tallahassee Woman To Speak At Coffee Hour This Afternoon

Mrs. Mary B. Alfriend, teacher, writer, and civic leader in Tallahassee, will address the English Coffee Hour at 4 p.m. today in the Westminster House

Mrs. Alfriend, who is the wife of the Rev. Alfriend, Rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, is the author of "Dolphin Island."

Her first, San Luis of Apalachee, is a tale of an old Spanish fort on Apalachee Bay. Also included in what is now the Messer property about a mile from the Tallahassee city limits. The other book Joan Ortiz, Gentlemas of Seville, is the story of Dolphin Expedition.

Mrs. Alfriend spent about 10 years in research on these books, including study of translations from the Latin and Spanish. Her classes work in a 19th-Century room of the Piedmont in North Carolina, set in the Civil War period, but Mrs. Alfriend says it's "not a war story."

Mrs. Alfriend came to Tallahassee 30 years ago as a newlywed bride. She had graduated from Chatham Hall, bevan teaching at 17, studying between terms at the University of Virginia and Columbus University, where she received her A.B. and M.A. degrees from the Florida State College for Women where she did graduate work.

Mrs. Alfriend taught at Leon High School and for 15 years at FSCW. While teaching on the campus she instituted a course in Southern Life and Literature which is still being taught.

Easter Holiday Will Begin On Thursday Noon

The student population on campus will suddenly decrease at noon Thursday, April 7, as Easter holidays officially begin. Classes will resumed Tuesday morning, April 12.

Most administration workers will not be leaving, however, as the dormitories, Student Center, and business offices will remain open the entire time. Three meals will be served in the Student Center on Easter Sunday.

In addition, the Post Office and University Book Store will be open every day but Saturday and Sunday. Lonsmire will be open Friday and Monday until 5

All sorority houses will be closed, but fraternities are to decide individually whether or not to close.

The Dining Hall, Mecca and Sweet Shop will be closed until Monday afternoon. The Soda Shop and Kahler's have announced that name leaving Butler to flaint it they will remain open for business, out with Wilson Schiffenmiller.

Beats Gaster By Thousand Vote Margin

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Coyle Moore was elected president of the student body Tuesday with a margin of nine hundred votes over his opponent, Gordon Gaster. The election turnout of 2,509 set a record

One thousand seven-hundred and thirty-two cast their ballot for Moore. Student Party candidate Gaster's total was 738. The wide margin—954—between the two occasioned surprise. Pre-election speculation had forecast a close race.

Joanos Wins

Jimmy Joanos won the vice-presidency of the Student Body, with Hans Tews and Jo Jones taking the men's and women's vice-presidencies. Joanos, independent party, defeated Jim Moore, State, 1614 to 771. Tews, Student, defeated Jimmy Allen, State 1,308 to 1,067. Miss Jones, Independent, edged Nancy Vaughn, Student, 1,311 to 1,021.

A run-off for the Secretary-ship of the Student Senate will be contested between Pat Hilton, State, 1,824, and Carmine Bennett, Student, 987. An Independent candidate, Stew Bolton, had 774 votes.

Barbara Graham, State Party candidate was elected Chief Justice of the Honor Court over Tommy Lewis, Student, 1,269 to 945.

Low Turnout

The election's closest race was between Jayleen Robertson and Carol Johnson, both Independents, who ran for Florida Flambeau Editor. Miss Robertson won the position with 1,131 votes, 204 more than Johnson's 827.

Coyle Moore was promised an immediate start on his platform.

In a statement issued yesterday he said, "I am going to start work immediately to fulfill the various planks of the platform. Some of them will be carried out before the end of the year. Others will be difficult and will require considerable work, and we are going to start laying the groundwork so they can be put into effect next year."

One of the most interesting election coincidences to occur on campus is the fact that Johnson's total received by Miss Heidel is also 827—exactly the number of votes he received

Winners of uncontested races were Ann Futch, Honor Court Chief; Ira Jean Proctor, Judiciary chairman; Carolyn Redfern, Traffic Court chairman, Anne J. Winter, University Recreation Association president. Don Smith, Seminole Burials editor; Jim Broderick, Tally-Ho editor; Mary Elizabeth Hall, Flambeau business manager, and Tom Wilkes, Seminole Signals business manager.

Sandspur Write-Ins

Rick Hubert was the write-in choice of a voters for Tally-Ho business manager. Eight-six people indicated their preference of Herb Reinhard for Sandspur chairman, but officials said he is ineligible by reason of grades.

Bill Doner and Bob Buller were next highest for this job on the write-in side, but it was expected that Doner would withdraw but and Kahler's have announced that name leavma Butler to flaint it they will remain open for business, out with Wilson Schiffenmiller.

PRESIDENT-ELECT—Serving nine and seven will be Kappa Sigma fraternity. Cut chosen as the chapter's Sweetheart, and Jun Thomas, her escort. Miss Coe reigned as queen of the Kappa Sigs Black and White Ball held in the Duval Hotel recently. In her court were Ellie Welbes and Betty Jean Lawson.

Nietzsche Is Peachy... But Freud Is Overjoyed

Several of us all had the same, rather interesting dream the other night:

Two elderly women, with necklines up to their chins and gray robes hanging two feet below their shoes, were perambulating down the corridors—ivy covered, of course.

Said one to the other, "Victoria, the forces of decency have won a long battle. From now on our young poeple will exhibit propriety in their relations toward one another."

Said the other, "Praise be to Westcott!"

"Really, the world has been a sorry spectacle of late, old girl, what with young couples shamelessly holding hands and even going so revoltingly far as to osculate—in public!"

"In public!"

"And in their horseless carriages — I simply can't bear to describe it!"

"Can you imagine it? Such displays of affection before marriage!"

"Yes, but it will all stop now."

"Except for that revolting concession to the animal in them, known as the Good Night kiss."

"As sure as my name is Anastasia Abstinence, that too will stop, in time."

"Yes. In time."

Those of us who had this dream all testify to waking up laughing at the impossibility of it all.

At least we hope its just a dream.

A Record Set

The 2509 ballots cast by students Tuesday established a new school record for voting turnout.

There is little doubt that the addition of two new ballot boxes, for a total of six, contributed greatly to the accommodation of the record surge of voters.

We offer a prediction, however: the 2509 turnout will be eclipsed by a new record during the coming Senate races. This will be true because they will offer the same competitive interest that sparked the Student Body Elections.

A new record will be stifled, though unless the Elections Commttee adds at least one more ballot box. More interest in student government and more centrally-located ballot boxes will facilitate the voting.

Opponents of additional ballot boxes have stated that the Elections Committee cannot handle them. This theory was shattered in Tuesday's elections when the committee turned in a fine, efficient and praiseworthy job despite the unavoidable absence of the secretary and under-secretary of elections.

The elections removed the last objection to an expanded system of polling. We feel that it is the election committee's duty to furnish more ballot boxes in the coming Senate races.

An Efficient Committee

In spite of their recent protests that they would not be capable of managing extra polls and still maintain high election standards, the Elections Committee, we are sure, undersold themselves.

In Tuesday's election there was evidenced a high type of efficiency and effectiveness long needed on this campus. And this they did in spite of a handicap: the Secretary of Elections and the Undersecretary were both unavoidably absent.

The activities of the election committee Tuesday more than justified President Nimkoff's faith in it recently when he said that it was probably the most efficient committee. We agree heartily and may we add that such high type work, not being typical of past Student Governments, is highly deserving of praise and distinction.

"I'm Not Sure I Know How to Come Down"

Lately It Seems

Carrying Segregation Little Too Far

By ORCHID ALONSO

The Tallahassee Democrat, writing in the throes that can only be accounted for by lack of competition, left much to be desired in the way of a Capital city newspaper.

It tried to improve though, frantically grasping at every straw that presented itself. They built up sentiment for themselves while their stalwart supporters built up sentiment against a newspaper which they heard was on its way.

In one last ditch effort just prior to publication of the upstart nawspaper (The Capital Post) the Democrat instigated a Saturday edition, (for tha youth), a series of money-word crossword puzzles, and even a "Find yourself in this picture and collect $5" stunt.

For these reasons, and others, the advent of the Capital Post in Tallahassee seemed to us a great thing.

Since the Post's inauguration' however, things have started to happen. Through coincidence, the Post criticized Governor Collins in one of its opening editorials for his part in the despicable scandal concerning the selection of a president for the University of Florida. This added fuel to the growing canard that the Post was dedicated to "cutting up" Governor LeRoy, under the backing of Charlie Johns and or other unmentionables.

Although stories of this nature are of necessity illogical and in bad taste, they never-the-less occur. However, a very interesting and intriguing sidelight to the fact that a group of merchants are boycotting the Post via lack of advertising can perhaps be attributed to the Post's stand on segregation.

Last week they printed an editorial taking a solid unsouthern stand against segregation. Then the boom was lowered. Advertisers closed their doors.

Let's be realistic. Students should be aware of the economic, moral, and realistic issues involved in happen... around them. Here is a ne... paper that by virtue of its h... townspeople, could very w... add immensely to the econom... conditions existing in t... "City." Realistically a paper ... not free—it is controlled by ... advertisers—but in this case ... going a little too far when y... consider that morally and h... manely speaking, the Post ha... avery right to encourage peop... to behave more charitably t... wards their fellows whatever ... their color.

Here is a first-hand examp... of the levels people will drop to when their narrow-mindedness is challenged. I believe tha... people have a right to their ow... opinion, including segregation but they are narrow-minded when they would sacrifice the well being of their own com... munity to satisfy their own sel... styled being.

And there is no doubt but that a second newspaper can do much to improve the status of this community.

Reflections

We Should've Gone Ape Today

By OSCAR JOHNSON

"The best-laid plans . . ." and all of that.

Our intentions were good, but somehow your best ideas . . . well, they don't go.

Take this paper. You've already taken it in fact. But look at it. What do you see—news? Yes. Politics? Yes, a lot of politics Events, Yes, a few And look at the date, April 1.

Yes, we had great plans for this particular paper at the beginning of the year. We were going to put out an April Fool's Edition.

For instance. The biggest headline is about elections. Fine, we now know who will control Longmire next year. But today we could have had a more appropriate headline—something like "Earthquake Destroys Landis." We could go on to tell how:

"President Eisenhower designated Florida State University a disaster area today, following an early-morning destructive earthquake which took the lives of hundreds and shook to the ground at least one building on campus.

"Landis Hall, normally the home of between 300 and 400 women students, crashed to the rain-soaked ground at approximately 8 20 a.m. this morning in a jumbled mass of concrete, bricks, room furnishings and trapped residents.

"Emergency supplies were rushed to the scene of the disaster as soon as shocked university officials were able to contact authorities . . ."

You get the idea. We shouldn't try to cause any trouble, just create a little excitement. As one literary magazine used to put it, we would write "humor in a jugular vein."

We might even follow Smoke Signals lead and include a few damns in the stories just to add to the confusion. This would easily put us in the April Fools class. (This should not be taken as an attack on individuals. Flambeau columnists never make attacks on individuals.)

We could even go to an extreme and make this thing called "Reeflections" a little bit serious for a change. Something like, "FSU's Student Party proved at least one thing in the Student Body Election. It has power. It copped three of the five races conducted over party lines. We think the party system needs a shot in the arm. Maybe a boot in the pants."

You can imagine it April Fool's Day doesn't come often. Maybe it's just as well though. People might not appre... the artistry, the subtlety th... goes into such an edition.

We admit it is something of a shock to pick up a batte... copy of the Flambeau from the musty floor of the Hist... Building and read "Mos... Selects Tallahassee as H-Bomb Testing Site."

Or "Four Thousand FSU Students Arrested in Mass Panty-Raid," "Dean Warren Announces All Women's Rules Abolished," "Four-Foot Snow Blankets Campus," "West... Fountain Dries Up."

But maybe this would be carrying things too far. Like we say, it didn't come off! Oh well, next year's another year.

A Better Measure

Same Requirements

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

Today with the majority of high school graduates entering college, the question arises "How many of these students are going into education?"

Out of the combined total of students that graduate every year from Florida Universities, only 700 are certified for teaching. The state however, needs 1,000 teachers each year to keep up with the increasing enrollment in our schools. But where are the 300 missing teachers going to come from?

Seeking a solution to this problem, 17 southeastern states are thinking of getting together and making their certification requirements the same. This it is hoped, will make possible an interchange of teachers without their having to worry if they are eligible to instruct in another state.

To Florida this might mean an influx of new teachers which would help make up the annual shortage of 300. On the other hand, unless the salaries were raised and teaching conditions improved, it could also mean a loss which would leave Florida with a "shortage of 700 teachers."

But does the answer to this problem rest only in equal certification? Or does it lie within the classrooms of the universities?

Here at Florida State University many students who have taken Social Science 101-102 find when they take Education 205 that instead of learning anything of great value that is new, the two courses are practically the same. The main difference is that 205 is supposed to build "an understanding of home, school and community life as these affect the individual and the educational process."

Social Science 101-102 is supposed to bring an understanding of the problems and situations of modern civilization."

This combination of Educational basic requirements and General Education requirements is inhibiting the students' quest for knowledge. The duplication of courses, if eliminated, might also mean the difference between going to school an extra semester for students in the College of Arts and Sciences who want to be certified or graduating in a normal four-year program.

One student stated that although she would finish school in the regular four-year period she didn't have the time to take subject matter she thought would help her in her later teaching more so than some of the required educational courses. When asked what her major was and the courses she was referring to, she replied English. One of the electives she would like to take is Mythology, which she feels would be a help to her in English Literature classes. She added that because her schedule was so congested it was also impossible for her to take a minor, which she had hoped to do at one time.

Another student said that while she thinks the present conditions aren't the best, she doesn't see what can be done to rectify the situation unless the whole program is revamped. She went on to say that perhaps the roots of the whole program lie in the fact that there doesn't seem to be an incentive great enough in colleges today to stimulate the learning of knowledge. Too much stress is placed on "How" to teach and "What" to teach. Too little pertains to subject matter and teaching the ability to think clearly.

The Dissenter

Coke, Movies Wait For Attack

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Business people of Tallahassee, Beware! You can be boycotted.

That's the conclusion one can draw if he assumes that Hans Tews's election as Men's vice-president was based on his promise to attack the six-cent Coke and movie prices.

It would be unreasonable to assume that this declaration of war against "cartels" was alone responsible for his victory. It does raise certain interesting issues, however.

First, the six-cent Coke is a nuisance, to say the least. Second, the Tallahassee theaters could have better programs (excepting the Ritz) and certain price reforms are also in order. Third, Tallahassee merchants would be wise to offer a college discount, and fourth, it would take a heck of a lot of co-operation among the students to effect any or all of these reforms.

Now that we've injected this repelling word "co-operation" into the discussion let's see what it means.

It would take just a few weeks of organized boycott to bring down the soft drink prices. I don't have any sales records at hand but obviously a lot of them are sold each day. If the Tallahassee distributors were to be faced with the choice of losing all this business or cutting out that extra penny they'd cut out the penny. But, the boycott would have to be extensive. And how many of us would go without our daily dozen soft drinks?

Another way would be to get one distributor to cut his price. Assuming student co-operation, the other distributors would have to follow suit.

At any rate, this won't come easy.

Now how about the movies? Hans Tews is justified in his protest against raised prices for good or moderetely good films (and what a stinker the Egyptian was!) Again the boycott is the obvious answer—and also well-nigh impossible. Where else is there to go—what else is there to do—in Tallahassee, except go to a show?

One solution would be to substitute a high calibre, quite varied entertainment program on campus. Hans Tews and any other elected officers who are interested, could certainly push this if gentler means of persuasion failed to influence the Tallahassee theater chain.

If a few merchants here and there were to offer substantial student reductions they'd soon force the others to follow suit or get nothing from the rather substantial FSU student economy. (Considered as a whole.)

This economic blackmailing can and should work both ways, however, particularly in regards to food, which on this campus is horrible. Many students head downtown for more than one meal a day and others are being forced into this as the campus food gets worse and worse and the selections get poo... If the food services continue to disregard the fact that the students are fed up with not being fed right it might enrichen the Tallahassee restaurants. If they're quick to capitalize on this, so much the better.

At the Cinema

Indians Done Dirt

By TANN HAMMOND

Half-sly French humor and half-earthy Italian humor, The Little World of Don Camillo playing this week-end at the Ritz Art Theatre, may prove to be the most engaging funny film to come out of Europe.

This English-language picture was made from the Book-of-the-Month Club selection that was an American and European best seller.

The conflict between an Italian communist mayor and the priest of the village, stars Gino Cervi and Fernandel, whose expressions alone are worth the price of admission. Wit, whimsey and wiles are part of The Little World of Don Camillo.

"Give the country back to the Indians!" is an expression that carries a certain ring of justice in it. That is going by the way the movies tell it.

Since Broken Arrow the Indian has never been done more dirt than in White Feather, showing at the Florida through Saturday. In this film, the white man, Robert Wagner, not only ends up with Indian land, but an Indian woman Debra Paget, as well. Ah, and yet we talk about the "rights of man."

Tarzan's Hidden Jungle brings Gordon Scott to the public as the eleventh screen hero of Edgar Rice Burroughs' novels. With quicksand, witchdoctors and pythons, it's a wonder he ever makes it through the 72 minutes the audience is expected to endure. Another wonder is why more people don't come out of this movie swinging from the marque.

Anyone for hot popcorn and The Little World of Don Camillo?

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"I think we should ask the 'grand master' to rearrange the beds in the pledges' rooms."

Etcetera Etchings

People Should Look Before Leaping

By DAVID DREIS

Okay, man—it may be my patriotic duty, but we can't for the life of us disseminate the idea that jazz is for us. Sure, we're square, but this Dave Brubeck's opine that those who don't dig stifled the wing-ding across the borders, but man, you can't tell me that after the first strum on the bass and plink on the piano, all those reds will turn white and blue as well. It doesn't show me a thing.

When Brubeck played his high-notes here there were barrels of fish hold those ducats in hand because they wanted to catch that cool stuff. Then there was the big-eared spectators who jabbed and jabbed throughout the week about the intellectual value of the stuff.

Personally, we guess we're not hep to the stuff, but I won't slip in just for the sake of slippin' into a jazz concert. Brubeck's taped some mighty fine stuff on Fantasy and Columbia tags and we knew what to expect if we caught sight of him. Here's the drag, sonny: We don't lap up the stuff about it bein' intellectual for us to like jazz or—goin' to the extreme—that this is America at its finest. One man's opinion, but what a opinion.

For us—we like the pops and classics with varying degrees in both areas, but man, this jazz we don't condemn—we just don't prefer. Getting Brubeck here was a good idea and it was a far better thing we do than we have ever done before, and if the question was to have or have not it is much better to have.

After the first half of Big Dave and his mob, the theater looked like Custer's Last Stand with the 'intelligencia' troddin' their toesies to the door. It wasn't what they wanted to hear, they were told. Proving the age old fact, that most people should look before they leap. For the past week before the boys arrived, students were running record racks to grab an earful of what this man sounded like. Some awaited his arrival like it was Santa Claus with a bag. Others couldn't quite figure where the tune trotted to and gasped profoundly at the sounds which came forth.

Noted luminaries on campus though Brubeck was 'interesting' and tried to get the scoop on your opinion before making a move. This was a must with the tabulations coming up on Tuesday. So, we find ourself looking at David the Brubeck with an air of mystery trying to figure out if we come under the Smith act if we don't drink his liqueur or if we dropped down on the IQ chart if we don't dig his wierd strains. Might be interesting to look down, man.

SURFACE NOISE: Hall of Fame Dept.: Buddy Morrow wanted to sign Dave Ward-Steinman on the spot—no kidding . . . Wendell Barthelf, a junior has two years to go until he hops on the MGM bandwagon . . . Three people wanted the chore of Sandspur chairman — you couldn't find one after a poor Sandspur . . . FAMU mad because we played up Ellington concert . . . they thought FSU students would attend theirs. Don't worry . . . the FSU auditorium is all filled-up already . . . Okay, Smog Signals . . . we guessed. . . Last week's RECORD JURY winner, De Castro Sisters "Boom Boom Boomerang," . . . on Abbott . . . catch us on Saturday 1:05, WTNT . . . Get your old Benny Goodman discs out . . . U-I films making biograph of the star with Tony Curtis in starring role . . . Since this company bought Decca with Crosby as a partner . . . all their newcomers are being tested for singing ability like Jeff Chandler . . . Next year both Paramount (Bing's studio) and U-I will vie for Gay's taleots.

Letters To The Flambeau

Thank You's

To the Student Body:

I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all my friends and supporters in the past elections. I will always remember your untiring efforts in my behalf.

Now that we have chosen our officers for the coming year, we must support them whole heartedly, forgetting our own personal feelings and prejudices.

Sincerely,
GORDON GASTER

Students:

Believing that action while in office can better exemplify appreciation than words, I only say thank you, thank you very much, for the opportunity of being your Student Body Vice-President for the coming year. I am very grateful to you for your support.

During my tenure in office, I pledge to you my service. Let us all work together and look to a better, more progressive year for Florida State University.

Sincerely,
JIMMY JOANOS

Dear Students:

To those of you who supported me in my race for Flambeau Editor I extend my grateful appreciation. To those of you who voted for my opponent I'm sure you made a good choice. Jayleen will give you a fine Flambeau next year.

Yours sincerely,
OSCAR JOHNSON.

Fellow Students:

How grateful I am for the confidence you placed in me by electing me your Women's Vice-President. You are to be congratulated for the fine spirit with which you took part in the election. I am sure that this interest is going to continue to grow and Student Government at Florida State University will be such that will greatly benefit the students. Remember the Student Government Officers are willing to serve you and always appreciate any helpful suggestions.

Sincerely yours,
JO JONES

Fellow Students:

I am deeply appreciative of the highly encouraging vote which you gave me for President of the Student Body. This manifestation of trust in me inspires me to do the type of job as President that will be worthy of your confidence. I assure you now that I shall give you my best in service during the forthcoming year.

I am sincerely grateful to those who helped in the campaign in any way. Without the aid of so many wonderful people, my campaign would not have been successful.

Sincerely,
COYLE MOORE.

Members of the Student Body:

I wish to thank those of you who supported me in my campaign for men's vice-president. Your faith and trust was an inspiration . . . your sacrifices on my behalf will always be heartwarming, golden memories for me.

Though we did not achieve the goal we sought, we did bring before the student body a constructive, workable program. A program that must be carried out.

Now that your recent work is over we must begin anew . . . we must bury any bitterness caused by the elections and work together to build a still greater university.

Sincerely,
JIM SOLES

To The Editor:

On Tuesday The Flambeau published an unwarranted attack upon the Honor Court accusing us of "Tampering with the scales of Justice." Let's get our facts straight. First of all, since there were no charges filed before the Honor Court, the Court could not actually take any action on the matter involved. It was decided that I, as Chief Justice, should take care of the investigation, and handle the matter completely unless there were charges made in which case the court should be called in. It was on the court's wish that I acted, but the Honor Court is in no way responsible for the course of action which I selected.

On Friday, March 25, Mr. Gaster appealed to the Court to clear his name on a rumor to the effect that he had been dishonest in the installation of an insurance policy last year. The evidence presented to the Court consisted of a statement that Tom Woods had made to two girls. There was no evidence presented that a single vote was changed by the rumor. (In so far as I know the girls did not change their votes) (Also, Tom Woods is not a part of Coyle Moore's official campaign organization, and there was no evidence that Coyle was waging anything but a high level, ethical campaign. I collected evidence showing that Mr. Gaster had accepted no rebate in connection with the installation of last year's accident insurance policy. I prepared a statement to publish on all bulletin boards and in The Flambeau to this effect. Then I learned that a Flambeau columnist was going to publish a column in the same edition of The Flambeau with the caption "Campaign Burdened With Slander."

Thus my statement, prompted by evidence provided by only three students, could be interpreted to mean that there had been a widespread slanderous campaign waged against Gordon Gaster. In this manner I and the Honor Court would become a party to the publication of an even more vicious rumor. No evidence had been presented to the Honor Court or published in The Flambeau to indicate that there was any widespread slanderous campaign. The Flambeau is being unethical when they imply this without publishing names and evidence.

There is some suspicion that Mr. Gaster and The Flambeau were more interested in using The Honor Court for unethical political purposes than they were in the ethical goal of clearing Gordon's name. If not, what is the answer to these two questions?

1. Gordon says that he was warned some time before he was nominated that the rumor would be used against him. Why did he not go to the Honor Court at that time, present the evidence, and have his name cleared? The evidence has been available since last year. Why did he wait till the last days of the campaign?

2. The Flambeau says that this rumor has been circulating for many months, and that Gordon's name was cleared by the State Insurance Commission last year. Did it not have an ethical obligation to clear his name when the rumor first started circulating by publishing the facts? Hasn't The Flambeau been highly unethical in waiting until the day of the election to clear his name, and in the process of clearing it to give credence to an equally vicious rumor of a widespread slanderous campaign? Such a rumor smacks more of politics than ethics since it could make Gordon a "Martyr" and win votes for him on the basis of that rumor rather than on an ethical basis.

When The Flambeau insisted on editorializing on the Honor Court statement in a highly partisan fashion, rather than publishing alone the statement of facts which would clear Gordon's name, I had no choice but to refuse to issue the statement. Meanwhile, on the basis of the evidence which has been presented to The Court, I can ethically state only two conclusions.

1. There is no proof that Gordon Gaster participated in any dishonest "deal" in connection

(Continued on Page 3)

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors — Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors — Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff — Alan Whitmarsh, Harry Bernard
Amusement Editor — David Dreis
Photographer — Laird Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager — Irma Cox
Exchange Editor — John Halford
Assistant Exchange Editor — Susan Hyde
Distribution — Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000 extension 6821
211 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors, — Pat Marston, Willie Smith
Rewrite Editor — Margaret Miller
Art Consultant — Franklin Adams
Cartoonist — Con Horn
Junior Staff — Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jari Bradfield, Charlet Poitevint, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Advertising Staff — Frank Tillett, Nina Ryle,
Business Staff — Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dressler

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave. New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

SEMINOLE SOUTHPAW—John Ash, a sophomore pitcher Coach Danney Litwhiers Tribe, is a valuable spot The crafty left-hander has won one and lost one this season. His victory was a four-hit effort over LSU. The Tribe nine meets Stetson here Monday and Tuesday.

Baseball Statistics

Note—Games Averages

BATTING
(More than five at-bats)

Player	G	AB	R	H	2B	3B	HR	RBI	SB	Avg.
Pete Cusick, P	2	5	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Ray Smith, P	3	10	3	4	0	0	0	3	0	.400
Jimmy Hall, Cf	5	20	3	7	0	0	0	1	0	.350
Jim Kennedy, 1b	4	12	3	3	0	0	0	2	0	.250
Jim Ash, P	2	7	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	.286
Bill Lowe, 2b	5	20	3	6	0	0	0	3	1	.300
Jim Hall, Rf	5	20	3	6	0	0	0	3	1	.300
Jim Lowe, Cf	5	20	3	6	0	0	0	3	1	.300
Bob Dowd, 3b	5	21	3	8	0	0	1	7	1	.381
Jim Goodhue, 3b	5	21	3	8	0	0	1	7	1	.381
Bill Hall, Rf	5	20	1	7	0	0	0	3	0	.350
Jim McCarron, 2b	5	20	3	6	0	0	0	3	1	.300
Jim Wynne, If	5	20	4	7	0	0	0	2	2	.350
Totals	5	196	34	65	0	0	2	34	7	.332

PITCHING

Player	Games	IP	R	H	SF	HBP	Bk	SO	BB	W	L	Pct.
Pete Cusick	2	9	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1.000
Gene Hetherington	2	14	4	10	0	0	0	4	8	1	0	1.000
Ray Smith	3	20⅓	3	13	0	0	0	4	7	2	0	1.000
Jim Ash	2	7	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	1	0	1.000
Jim Wynne	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Jim Kennedy	1	5	3	6	0	0	0	2	3	0	1	.000
Bob Dowd	1	1	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	.000
Totals	5	57⅓	11	31	0	0	0	10	18	5	1	.833

Golfers Seek Intercollegiate Championship

Action in the Florida Intercollegiate golf tournament swings into the second day at Coral Gables with PSU still ranked among the favorites.

PSU fortunes rest in the hands of an eight-man traveling squad.

The three-day event is being held at the Biltmore Golf Club with both team and individual championships at stake. Eighteen holes were played Thursday, 36 on tap for today, and the remaining 18 set for tomorrow.

Florida is the defending team champ. Dator Pat Schwab will also be on hand to defend his individual crown.

PSU Coach Dan Veller has divided his Seminoles into two units. One has Bunk Berry, Jack Veltre, Bobby Dunn, and Dick Hutt. David Morris, Bob Thuman, Billy Bielkin, and Norrie Wrisht form the other.

Berry looms as State's chief threat. The Tallahassee sophomore, a LITHEY state high school cutlist, was runner-up to Schwab for individual honors last spring.

Always a top contender for state honors, PSU has never produced the individual champion. Tallahassee's Sonny Tilney won in 1948 and again in 1951.

Run-Off Election Slated For Tuesday At Three Polls

There will be a run-off election next Tuesday to settle the Senate secretary race and possibly the Sandspur chairmanship, elections secretary Betty Willmon said yesterday.

She said that ballots will be printed. Polls will be located at Westcott, the Student Center and the Seminole Club, said the sophomore council. They will be open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Candidates for senate secretary are Pat Hilton, State Party, and Carmine Nunez, Student Party.

Miss Willmon said that no decision has been made concerning the question of who should appear on the ballot for Sandspur chairman, but that decision will be announced Tuesday.

She reminded all elected candidates that they must file a final expense statement before Tuesday noon at 5. Forms may be obtained and turned in at the Longmire director's office.

Stock Makes Good Showing

Ernie Stock, FSU's all-American basketball star, has been named to the All-Southern Conference team with Coach Ben Stubbs, who has guided the Seminoles to 21 straight dual victories and two consecutive undefeated seasons.

Ernie, a junior, was the only player to be named on the mythical team for the second straight year. He was also selected as the All-Southern Conference Tournament most valuable player after leading the Seminoles to the championship.

Stock, who is also an all-American candidate, averaged 20.4 points per game during the regular season. He was the only player in the tournament to score more than 100 points, totaling 104 in three games.

Stock was also named to the All-Southern Conference basketball team in 1953 and 1954.

A sophomore from Royal Oak, Mich., Stock didn't gain the finals but was impressive in both the

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE

The first thought that comes into our minds upon entering college is, of course, marriage. But how many of us go about getting mates, as I like to call them, in a truly scientific manner? Not many, you may be sure. Most of us simply marry the first person who comes along. This can lead to unpleasant consequences, especially if the person we marry is already married.

It is today make a scientific survey of the three principle forms of marriage—homogamy, heterogamy, and propinquity. We will examine these one at a time.

Homogamy means the attraction of like for like. In marriage it means opposites which attract; the great majority of people marry mates who resemble themselves in taste, personality, and, perhaps most important of all, cultural level.

Take, for example, the case of two students of a few years ago, Anselm Elotits and Florence Vitamin. Anselm fell in love with Florence, but she rejected him because she was majoring in the Don Juanian Poets and he was in the lowly forestry. After graduation Anselm got a job as a lumberjack. Still determined to win Florence, he read every single Don Juanian Poet ever to cover while sitting in his lookout tower.

Then, alas, miscarried. Florence, sent on a world cruise by a grateful convention present, picked up the barrel nut habit in Tahiti. Today, a derelict, she keeps body and soul together by selling a sampan of Mozambique. And Anselm, engrossed in Don Juanian Poets, failed to notice a forest fire which destroyed 29,000,000 acres of second growth blue spruce. Today, derelict, he teaches Herrick and Lovelace at the Connecticut School of Mines.

The second reason why people marry, personality need, means that you often choose a mate because he or she possesses certain qualities that you admire but fully recognize you lack. Take, for instance, the case of Alanson Dunk. As a freshman, Alanson made a fine scholastic record, played varsity lacrosse, and was very popular with his fellow students. Yet, Alanson was not happy. There was something lacking in his life, something vague but undeniable that was needed to make his personality complete.

Then one day Alanson discovered what it was. As he was relaxing out of his class in Flemish pottery, a fetching coed named Grace Ek offered him a handsome brown package and said, "Philip Morris?"

"Yes!" he cried, for all at once he knew what he had been looking for to round out his personality—the gentle fulfillment of Philip Morris Cigarettes, the soul-repairing mildness of their ripe tobacco, the balm of their unparalleled taste, the ease and convenience of their bonny brown Snap-Open pack. "Yes, I will take a Philip Morris," cried Alanson. "And I will also take you to wife if you will have me!"

"I am" she exclaimed, throwing her apron over her face, but she while she removed it and they were married. Today they live at Prince Rupert, British Columbia, where Alanson is with rubber glazing firm and Grace is a hookie.

Propinquity, the third cause of marriage, means closeness. Put Jane and a girl in a confined space for a long period and they will almost surely get married. A perfect example is the case of Infirf Sugafoos. While a freshman at Louisiana State, he was required to crawl through the Big Inch pipeline as part of his fraternity initiation. He entered the pipe at Baton Rouge. As he passed Lafayette, Ind., he was agreeably surprised to be joined by a comely girl named Mary Alice Isinglass, a Purdue freshman, who had to crawl through the Big Inch as part of her sorority initiation. When they emerged from the pipeline at Burlington, Vermont, they were engaged, and, after a good honeymoon, they were married. Today they live in Klamath Falls, Ore., where Farfair is in the weights and measures department and Mary Alice is in the roofing game. They have three children, all named Norman.

For your enjoyment the makers of Philip Morris have prepared a handsome, illustrated booklet called MAN SHEMAN REVINTED, containing a selection of the best of three columns. Get your copy, absolutely free, with the purchase of a couple packs of Philip Morris or your favorite tobacco counter. Hurry! The supply is limited.

Intramural Activity

FRATERNITY

Field No. March 31
7:00 p.m.
1. KA-SAE
2. SPE-PKT
3. PSK-AKL
4. TKE-SAE

April 5
8:30 p.m.
1. PKT-TKE
2. PSK-KA'S
3. SPE-AKL
4. TKE-SAE

Field No. April 4
7:00 p.m.
1. KA-SPE
2. SAE-PKT
3. DU-SIGMA
4. PSK-AKL

Field No. April 6
7:00 p.m.
1. DU-Independent
2. Delta Sig-Independent
3. Kappa Sig-Pentheuss
4. Methodists-Air Force
5:00 p.m.
1. Baptists-Air Force

Field No. April 5
7:00 p.m.
1. PKT-TKE
2. PSK-KA'S
3. SPE-AKL
4. TKE-SAE

Field No. April 7
7:00 p.m.
1. KA-SPE
2. SAE-PKT
3. DU-SIGMA
4. PSK-AKL

INDEPENDENT

Field No. April 4
7:00 p.m.
1. Delta Sig-Pentheuss
2. Phi Sig-Independent
3. Methodists-Air Force
4. Air Force
5. Air Force-Baptists

Field No. April 5
7:00 p.m.
1. Air Force-Pentheuss
2. Methodists-Air Force
3. Air Force
4. Air Force-Baptists

Field No. April 6
7:00 p.m.
1. Air Force-Pentheuss
2. Methodists-Air Force
3. Air Force
4. Air Force-Baptists

Field No. April 7
7:00 p.m.
1. Air Force-Pentheuss
2. Methodists-Air Force
3. Air Force
4. Air Force-Baptists

Summer Menu Features Cold Plates, Salads

Food sold to Florida State University students in warm weather will remain relatively the same as winter food "with a few minor changes," according to Dining Hall manager Ben Adams.

The major change will be the serving of a greater quantity of cold plates and salads, Adams said. Heavy meat, such as beef stew, seem to lose their appeal during warm weather, he continued, and their sale drops off considerably. Such items as cole slaw substitute for them during summertime.

The Seminole Dining Hall serves approximately 2400 students per day, Adams declared. As an example of the volume, about 250 pounds of French fried potatoes are consumed each noon by approximately 900 students.

Among the most popular dishes served at the Seminole Club is omelette and meat balls, which retains a constant popularity due to low price, tastiness and large quantity per serving, said Adams.

Among the meats which rank high on the favorite lists are grilled sandwich steaks and whole meals such as turkey and beef stew.

FSQ is the only campus where you can pick a buck and it kicks back.

Hysterical Fact of the Week. FSQ recalls from Jessie Murphree Hall ers "up in arms."

Shaw Says Road Department to Pave Fraternity Row Soon

"Fraternity Row" may soon be paved, Business Manager Rod K. Shaw said yesterday that the State Road Department had been requested to pave Wildwood Drive, which runs along several FSU fraternity houses.

Shaw told the Senate committee on Labor, Student Services and Activities, headed by Joan Halford, last week, that the road department has been sent a request to pave the road.

In other business pertaining to traffic problems at Florida State University, Shaw said that plans are definitely under way to widen West Call Street 12 feet on the south side.

Shaw replied to a question on the necessity of the post at Westcott Gate, saying that it is a safety measure which should not be removed.

Car washing facilities were recommended by Shaw, to be set up at West Hall. Original Senate request was that such facilities be set up at the maintenance building, but Shaw felt that the location is too crowded.

Letters

(Continued from page 2)

with the installation of the student accident insurance policy last year.

2. The only proof presented in connection with the rumor was that Tom Woods, who was not a member of Coyle Moore's organization, repeated and rumor to two students. This was done at Coyle Moore's knowledge or approval. No evidence has been presented to The Court or published which would indicate that Mr. Moore's campaign organization waged anything but a strictly "high level" campaign. Any implication or innuendo to the contrary is without even proof is an equally vicious rumor.

JERRY MEYER,
Chief Justice.

Prep for marriage is now obsolete, Zoology Dept. is offering extension courses in anatomy, by Braille.

Let there be light. Engineers are supposed to have done a good job. Now we wonder.

50 million times a day
at home, at work or while at play

1. SO BRIGHT in its honest, ever-fresh taste.
2. SO BRIGHT in its brisk, frosty sparkle.
3. SO BRIGHT in the bit of quick energy it brings you.

BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY

Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Tallahassee

"Coke" is a registered trade-mark. © 1955, THE COCA-COLA COMPANY

AWAY IT GOES—Carlos Fraundorfer, senior from Tampa who has lettered three times previous to this season, will be Tribe's most versatile threat when the track team meets Mercer here tomorrow.

Trackmen Meet Mercer Tomorrow

After warm-ups in the Atlantic Coast Conference indoor games and Florida Relays, Florida State's trackmen settle down to the dual portion of their schedule here tomorrow in a meet with old rival Mercer.

The event is the first of a slim two-meet home agenda for the Seminoles this spring. The other is a late April date with Loyola of New Orleans.

Mike Long, FSU basketball assistant for the past two seasons has nine lettermen on deck for his first term as head coach. They include Captain Ron Weaver, Carlos Fraundorfer, Tennee Brown, Joe Davis, Jerry Jacobs, Lloyd Lassen, Mike Smith, Warren Strickland and Charles Watson.

Weaver, a leaping lefty and freshman Vern Duce hung up new school records at last week's Florida Relays, though neither was a winning mark.

Weaver, contending with a turned ankle, burled the spear 185 feet, 8½ inches to erase his old standard of 177 feet.

Duce, normally a miler, switched to the two-mile and to University of Georgia record by clipping 16.2 seconds off the old FSU record with a clocking of 10:13.2 effort. It was Duce's first competitive try in the event.

State's mile relay team of Davis, Watson, Ken Segner and Jack Terwilliger also showed strong potential at the meet. The foursome covered the distance in 3:23.2—fastest mark for a 3-man mile relay team in several years.

Four-year veteran Fraundorfer looms as another FSU threat in this weekend's meet. The Seminoles' all-time high-point man, Fraundorfer holds school records for the hop, skip and broad jump. The versatile Tampa senior is a consistent point-maker in the shot put and discus.

Tomorrow's meet will mark the beginning of spring sports in the schools since the beginning of their track rivalry in 1946. So far the Indians as against one for Mercer.

Probable FSU Entries

100—Davis, Terwilliger; 220—Davis, Terwilliger; 440—Watson, Browning, Hillegas; 880—Segner, Harrell; 1M—Duce, Thomas, 2M —Duce, Segner; 120 HH—Lassen, Brown; 220 LH—Watson, Brown; Mile Relay—Segner, Hillegas, Davis, Terwilliger; Shot—Smith, Jacobs, Fraundorfer, Duce; Discus—Fraundorfer, Pate, Weaver, Smith, Strickland; Pole Vault—Strickland, C. Green, Hall; Jump — Lassen, Brown, Browning, Broad Jump—Fraundorfer, Davis, Terwilliger.

Randel, Killian Represent FSU At ASA Meet

Dr. William Randel and Dr. Tom Killian will represent FSU at the Southeastern American Studies Association meeting to be held April 8-9 in Macon, Ga.

As president of the regional association, Dr. Randel, also Professor of English, will be in charge of all the meetings which are scheduled on the Wesleran College campus. He will conduct a business session Friday morning.

Dr. Killian, assistant professor of sociology, will be one of the speakers Saturday morning on the subject, "The American Pattern."

Principal speakers at the meeting will be Dr. William Thorp of Princeton University, who was the keynote speaker and banquet speaker last night, and Dr. Henry Steele Commager of Columbia University.

Delegates from all colleges and universities in the Southeast will attend the meeting.

Church News

RUGE HALL PLANS PALM SUNDAY SERVICES

Palm Sunday services will be held at 8 a.m. in the Episcopal student house, followed with Holy Communion at 11 a.m. Then there will be a Canterbury supper at 6, after which Chaplain Wacey will lead a lecture on "The Meaning of the Sacraments."

NEWMANITES ATTEND CONVENTION; SHOW MOVIE

A Southern Regional Convention of Newman Clubs will be held in Atlanta April 15-16-17. The convention includes lectures and discussion panels, and an exchange of ideas on the operation and organization of Newman Clubs. All interested Newmanites are asked to sign up before the Easter holidays.

Palm Sunday, at 7:30 p.m., there will be a religious movie on the "Passion of Our Lord," filmed by Dr. Bob Greenblatt of Blessed Sacrament, and John Pascoe, Province Chairman.

METHODISTS RAISE $40 FOR KOREA

Over $40 was contributed to Korean relief at the Silent Social Supper of Wesleyan at the Methodist Student House. The thirty-one students attending the supper were served only bread and water, which they ate while meditating and praying silently. Grace Ball Hall, sponsor of the supper by admits the "Lord's Prayer" and closed with "Oh-ers."

The annual supper gives students a time for individual meditation; and through their contributions people across the world are helped, reports Sue Roper, public relations chairman.

Relief, an Easter production, will be presented Sunday, April 3, by the Wesley Players. The play will be at 6:30 p.m. in the Methodist Student House, and the public is invited.

UNITARIAN TO DISCUSS ARTICLE IN LOOK

Andy Janson, chairman of the Unitarian Fellowship, will lead a discussion on the Look article on Unitarianism, Sunday at the Methodist Student House at 7:30 p.m.

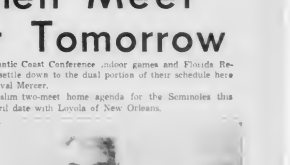
Demonstration

(Continued from Page 1)

the protestors from outside the building, and then went inside to have them taken away from the windows. In the meantime, Junior Class President Bob Greenblatt made an effective plea to the demonstrators to go back to their dormitories.

"I like to have fun as much as any of you," he said. "But this isn't the way to do it."

This time the majority of the demonstrators left, although a small but disorderly crowd of about 50 soon formed in the Florida Field parkina lot on the north side of the building. Here again they were prevented by calls from men. Activity was limited to shouted exchanges between the men and women, until the demonstrators dispersed for the last time at 11:45.



No Punishment

Dr. Martin said no punitive action would be taken as a result of the exhibition. He said the crowd had been relatively orderly and well-confined, and that the students were just "blowing off some steam."

Dean Corson and Student Body President Bruce Nimkoff attempted to head off the disturbance at West Hall, before it began.

University officials apparently at the scene included Dean Corson, Dr. Martin, Dean of Students R. B. Oakley, West Hall Counselor John Buchanan, and Assistant Dean of Men James Carr.

No Tallahassee or campus police attempted to break up the gathering the demonstration, which observers thought a major factor in its early cessation.

COACH KEITH PITCHFORD

Netmen Play At Winter Park

Florida State University's well-balanced tennis team gets into the heart of its first 1955 road trip today with matches against two Florida Intercollegiate rivals on the weekend agenda.

Coach Keith Pitchford's Semioles, sporting a 4-2 record after six straight romped home matches, tested Florida Southern at Lakeland yesterday. They meet Rollins at Winter Park today, and Stetson at DeLand Saturday.

Six lettermen and two freshmen, talented Shelby Brewer and Jimmy Wade, make up FSU's eight-member tennis traveling squad. Veterans Hal Schaus, Tom Condy, Sheltie Creagh, Joe Harris, Tom Morgan, and Don Wyly shoulder much of the load.

Schaus, No. 1 on FSU's tennis ladder, is one of the Seminoles' finest amateurs. The Mansfield, O., senior has sparked the Seminoles to triumphs over Ohio State, Georgia, Auburn, and Georgia Tech this spring.

FIRE DESTROYS BIOLOGY EXAMS IN NYU

NEW YORK (ACP)—Destruction of biology final examination papers in a recent fire is a motive for a $2,000 loss due to the fire set by an incendiary. In addition to the examination papers, almost all of the professor's research and graduate notes were completely burned. Three notes, including his lecture notes, represented an accumulation of many years work, the Washington Daily News reported.

The plant department superintendent said that while the arsonists have not been found, it is generally believed that they were students. This view is backed by substantiated," the Daily News says, by the fact that nothing was stolen, since valuable typewriter and other items of value remained unburnt after the fire."

The professor said that most of the students in his Comparative Anatomy course will receive grade of "F" certifying simply that they have passed. However, he added that a few students will receive a grade of "F."

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA

TODAY & TOMORROW
"WHITE FEATHER"
Robert Wagner
John Lund
Debra Paget
Jeffrey Hunter

SUNDAY—THURS.
"UNTAMED"
Tyrone Power
Susan Hayward
Richard Egan

PERRY HIGHWAY DRIVE-IN

TODAY & TOMORROW
"MEN OF THE FIGHTING SEA"
Van Johnson
Walter Pidgeon

—Plus—
"THE SARACEN" BLADE
Ricardo Montalban
Betta St. John
SUN - MON
"FOREVER AMBER"
Linda Darnell
Cornel Wilde

STATE

TODAY & TOMORROW
"TARZAN'S HIDDEN JUNGLE"
Gordon Scott
Vera Miles
Peter Cushing
Jack Elam
Charles Fredericks

SUN - TUES.
"THE CATTLE QUEEN OF MONTANA"
Barbara Stanwyck
Ronald Reagan

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN
ON WOODVILLE HWY.

TODAY & TOMORROW
"MONTANA BELLE"
Jane Russell
George Brent
—Plus—
"SHARK RIVER"
Steve Cochran
Carol Haney
SUN - MON.
"ACT OF LOVE"
Kirk Douglas
Dorey Kohan

RITZ—TODAY & TOMORROW
"LITTLE WORLD OF DON CAMILLO"
Fernandel with Gino Cervi
Sun.-Mon.—"Both Sides of the Law," Peggy Cummings

BOB'S
Super Service Station
BUMPES-TO-BUMPER AND
ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. St.
(One Block From Sevier Hall)

ATO's Head List Of Donors; 30 Pints Credited To Faculty

Alpha Tau Omega heads the list of blood donations with 24 pints, while West Hall takes second place with 20.

Kappa Sigma, erroneously reported in the last issue of the Florida Flambeau as being ahead, is credited with 18 pints.

Others who have contributed to the drive, which began February 11, are Sigma Chi, 14; Kappa Alpha, 5; Senior Hall, 2; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 1; Phi Kappa Tau, 1; Jennie Murphree, 1; Phi Delta Theta, 1; and three students who did not designate their residence.

90 Pint Total

A total of 90 pints have been donated to the student account or to separate student organization accounts so far. Added to the 44 pints in the account at the beginning of the drive, the students had 134 pints to their credit. However, 25 of these were used, bringing the amount down to 109, as of yesterday morning.

The faculty account, which began the drive with 28 pints, has received only two donations, bringing its total up to 30.

The campaign for blood officially ended March 11, however, many of the donations were made after this date and students may still give blood. Transportation will be provided for anyone who contacts Chairman Margaret Neller two days in advance.

Democrat And Post, Watch Out!—Journalism students will cover the Florida legislature, opening April 5, for their lab newspaper the Tallahassee Sun. Left to right are Ben Brown, Dr. Sidney Kobre, journalism professor; Louise Hoyer, Connie Coleman and Bob Gutting.

Gamma Alpha Chi Elects King Prexy At Recent Meeting

Mary Elizabeth King, newly-elected business manager of the Florida Flambeau, was elected president of Gamma Alpha Chi, national professional advertising fraternity for women, Wednesday.

Gamma Alpha Chi and Alpha Delta Sigma, men's advertising fraternity were partial hosts to the recent Southeastern Advertising Conference at Florida State. Representatives from these groups were sent from the University of Florida, Georgia Tech, Emory and University of Miami.

Mary Will Davis, immediate past-president, presided at a district meeting of delegates at the conference. Dr. Royal Ray is advisor for the fraternities.

Newly initiated members of Gamma Alpha Chi are: June Yates, Nan Hillman, Mary Ann Williams, and Lyda Yarbrough.

GIBBS SCHOOL OFFERS SCHOLARSHIP

Two national scholarships for Senior girls are being offered by the Katharine Gibbs School. Each consists of full tuition ($620) for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500.

Winners are chosen by a Scholarship Committee upon the endorsement of the college or university they attend. Students who are interested in trying for one of these may obtain full information at the placement Office, 203 Westcott.

After all is said and done, the bushes will be the first to go.

Marlon Brando, Grace Kelley Get 'Oscars' For Year's Best Acting

By DAVID DREIS

"I didn't think it was this heavy."

These were the first words Marlon Brando said when he was handed the Academy Award for the role of a longshoreman in "On the Waterfront." After that, there was a pause and then the longshoreman disappeared and Marlon Brando, the person, thanked everyone.

Discussion Topic

The Academy Awards, it seemed, was the main topic of discussion all day Wednesday. Not only discussion, but downright argument. Television sets being as scarce as they are in the Capital City, were at a premium and crowds formed in front of them at almost every bar, restaurant and appliance store that displayed them.

Telephones at the wire services and radio stations could [illegible] from [illegible] movie [illegible] who wanted to know [illegible] won [illegible]. It was almost [illegible] a [illegible] election except [illegible] had already been [illegible] but not announced.

Grace Kelly was handed the Oscar by her [illegible] William Holden. Frank Sinatra and Donna Reed handed Eva Marie Saint and Edmond O'Brien their statuettes.

The "Saint."

The Longshoreman

Kelly Cried

Miss Kelly broke down and cried. Miss Saint thanked [illegible] longshoremen Kazan and Brando and burst out laughing. O'Brien graciously smiled with [illegible]. It was a big night.

Budd Schulberg's screenplay of "On the Waterfront" copped the award and Shulberg accepted [illegible] in the memory of his father who wrote the screen play for D. W. Griffith's "Sign of the Eagle."

Crosby joked around with Bob Hope, who was emceeing, and smiled when Clifford Odets' "The Country Girl" won the Best Adaptation" award. "On the Waterfront" was Best Picture. "Three Coins In the Fountain" was the best movie song, and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" had the best musical score.

Dimitri Tiomkin's "High and the Mighty," took the oscar for the best background music. Tiomkin also won the award last year for "High Noon."

Phi Mu Alpha Sponsors Easter Music Program

A choral program, "Easter Vespers," will be presented at 4:30 p.m. Sunday by Phi Mu Alpha and Sigma Alpha Iota, men's and women's music honoraries.

To be held in the amphitheater, or Opperman Music Hall if it rains, the presentation will be free and open to the public.

Under the direction of Bette Jo Armstrong, the group will begin with Thomas Morely's Agnus Dei, followed by a tenor solo by Wendell Barthoff. He will sing an air from Handel's Messiah.

Other items on the program include the "Crucifixus" and the "Et Resurrexit" choruses from Bach's B Minor Mass. The "Hallelujah" chorus from the Messiah will also be sung.

Also from the Messiah will be an aria sung by soprano Barbara Foster.

Ryan Edwards will be the accompanist.

Zo-ImBa Had 'Bang'

'I Was There' Native Writes Behind Palm Trees Review

By SPECIAL NATIVE CORRESPONDENT

"Zo-Imba" ended its first-night finale with a bang — the palm trees fell over.

Some 200 faculty members and 1500 students saw the production which far surpassed last year's performance in smoothness and hearing facilities.

The "many mike" trick was borrowed from Carousel and aided singers in volume.

Frances Bailey Stokes, producer, and Herb Reinhard, director did their work well and showed the importance of good management, Reinhard proving his ability to whip a show in shape before the last performance.

Miss Stokes, with the assistance of Barbara Vickers, again showed her special choreographic talent in planning and executing the dances. The dances were indeed primitive and sensuous (maybe it was the costumes).

The story, concerning a young female botanist who learns about love on an anthropological expedition to Boreneo, was written by Donn Teal, but was lacking in continuity and strength. Teal also wrote the lyrics for Deve Ward-Steinman's professional-sounding music.

Ward-Steinman has bean mentioned as a budding Romberg but was handicapped by being left-handed and trying to conduct with his right hand.

Faculty criticisms were less than 5 per cent from a survey taken Monday night after the free performance for staff and faculty. Most attending this performance felt that the production rated a tour program next year.

Tuesday's performance was hindered by the blowing of microphone fuses but extras prevented repeats in succeeding performances.

Mary Jackson, as the lady scientist, had a fine voice but was unconvincing in the majority of love scenes. John Zilles, the native love of the botanist, improved over his performance in Carousel, but was not too certain of his role as Tavi, the son of the King and Queen of Zo-Imba.

Al Mattman, professor of "Botany", vied with Nancy Cubbon for the laughs of the show. Miss Cubbon was perhaps the only one in the show with any stage presence or pep, playing the part of the cannibal queen excellently for the most part, but a little overmuch at times.

Mattman's expressive "Botany", interspersed throughout the show, seemed to be the strongest point of continuity in the plot.

Jack Rogero, the head scientist, fit perfectly as the queen's new mate, while Duncan Grey, ministerial student, turned his collar around to play the cannibal king in his usual good style.

Pat Arrants, as the gushy mother, did her best on the line "Liberace did for me what your father never could do," and Beverly Laurent was the bathing beauty that gave spark to the second act. Dave Dreis gave his usual performance of a fast-talking television quizmaster, all enthusiasm and line, but at times, he seemed to falter on his lines.

Karen Kimpel provided the most realistic mood scene singing "Pink Coral," ably supported by Donn Teal.

The chorus and dancers seemed to be improvising at times but added a professional touch, while the choral music was audible but could have had more spirit. The commercial singers were good in action but neglected to sing clearly.

"Conflict," as danced by Miss Stokes, Barbara Vickers and Ed Franklin, proved to be the most popular and dramatic dance of the production.

Thorp Says American 'Slang' Hinders World Understanding

If we are unable to communicate with each other except in signs, symbols and jargon, how can we hope for understanding by our political friends and enemies?

That was a question raised by Dr. William Thorp of Princeton University who spoke here last night at the annual Arts and Sciences banquet. About 150 attended the event, held in the Suwannee Room.

Princeton Profession

Dr. Thorpe, author, editor, and Princeton English professor, was introduced by Dr. William Randel, FSU professor of English.

Official host at the banquet was Dr. Charles S. Davis, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Davis called for tribute to the retired faculty members present and also to Miss Elizabeth Thomson, associate professor of speech, for her 25 years of teaching service for this university.

In addressing fellow professors, Dr. Thorpe, who is considered an authority on American literature, said we talk constantly of the poor writing of students, but efforts to obtain good results from students are increasingly ineffective.

Every year we turn out thousands of college graduates who write "No-English," the speaker said. "It can only vaguely be understood and it defies correction."

Destructive Element

Dr. Thorp pointed out that the "chief destructive element" to good communication is the pressure of the present age exerted through newspaper headlines, officials, and advertising. Possibly the most powerful disintegrant, he said is the increasingly specialized language of each field of knowledge. Content and meaning, he stated, overshadow the way we think.

Rhetoric, or persuading one's audience, "is dead," said Dr. Thorp. He stressed that the implications of the situation carry far beyond the campus.

Dr. Thorp has been associated with a number of works as both author and editor. Among his books are Songs from the Restoration Theater, An Oxford Anthology of English Poetry, a new edition of Moby Dick, Herman Melville, Representative Selections, and Literary History of the United States.

The Social Welfare building is under attack. Everyone's going underground.

Annual Speech Department's Intramural Contests Start Soon

The annual speech intramural contests begin April 12, with preliminaries in after-dinner speaking.

Students entering this event [illegible] in 222 [illegible] may [illegible] as [illegible] ly as possible for no more than six minutes [illegible] department of speech [illegible]. Finalists will appear before the noon [illegible] of the Tallahassee Junior Chamber of Commerce on April 12.

Since 1950

The contests, which have been held since 1950 under the sponsorship of the FSU department of speech, are open to any undergraduate student [illegible] enrolled.

Early entries in after-dinner speaking include Eddie W[illegible]off, Lambda Chi Alpha; Frankie Harrison, Kappa Delta; Bill O'Steen and Robert Pope, Tau Kappa Epsilon; Nancy Cubbon, Alpha Xi Delta; Ina Jean Pruitt, Kappa Alpha Theta; Kent Heath, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; William Griffin, Phi Kappa Tau; and Betty St[illegible], Delta Zeta. Unaffiliated entries include A[illegible] Va[illegible], David Wade, Gloria Sheffield, Ka[illegible] Allen, Kenneth Manue[illegible], S. T. Brewer and V[illegible] Let[illegible].

Oratory, Public

Other events to be held in April and May include original oratory and public speaking. Preliminaries in original oratory, a ten-minute speech on any subject about which the [illegible] feel deeply will be [illegible] Tuesday, May 3, with the finals before the Optimist Club a week later.

Preliminaries in public speaking, on a subject in the field of elementary and secondary education, are slated for Tuesday, May 10 with finals judged by the Toastmasters Club of Tallahassee.

Winners in oratory and public speaking this year will receive a revolving trophy, to be placed for the next calendar year in the dormitory, fraternity or sorority house as directed by the winner.

Certificates

Certificates will be presented to the finalists in all events and to the winner of after-dinner speaking. Last year's winners were Frank Shaw in after-dinner speaking, Paul Wragg in oratory and Jerome C. Jones in public speaking.

Entrants may register and obtain assistance in preparing their speeches by talking to Dr. Gregg Phifer, associate professor of Speech, (extension 2061, James House), or to Betty Flo[illegible], graduate assistant in forensics.

Seminole Slate

Today, April 1

11:45 p.m. Faculty luncheon in the T[illegible] Room of the Student Center.

4 p.m. Chemistry Seminar. Ralph Becker will speak on "Spectroscopy and Exchange Reactions in Porphyrin-like Molecules." 306 Science.

8:30 p.m. Faculty Square Dance in the Student Lounge of Longmire.

Saturday, April 2

1:30 p.m. Track meet at the West Campus Athletic Field. FSU vs Mercer.

Sunday, April 3

4:30 p.m. Easter Vespers sponsored by Sigma Alpha Iota and Phi Mu Alpha in the Outdoor Theatre.

Monday, April 4

4 p.m. Psychology Seminar. Ed Emfenger to speak on "Influence of Special classes on Mental Retardates," in 326 Education.

4 p.m. Student Activities Calendar Committee meeting in Longmire's clubroom.

8:15 p.m. FSU chapter of AAUP meeting. Election of officers and report of committee.

LOYALTY OATH FOR FUTURE GRADS?

LONG ISLAND, N. Y. (ACP) A loyalty oath for prospective graduates is being asked for by Long Island University's Young Democrats, according to the Seawanhaka, college weekly.

"In order to receive a degree, the graduate would have to sign a statement disclaiming past or present membership in the Communist Party or any other organization on the attorney general's subversive list," declared Bernard Rosenbloom, former president.

College Students
[illegible] EASTER AND [illegible] TAKING TIME
Your Center For Cards And Films Is MALONE'S BOOK STORE

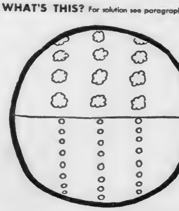
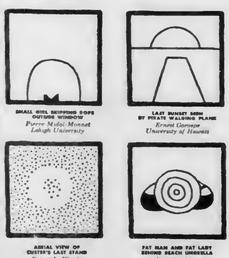
All College Students
Laundry Picked Up, Washed and Dried, Folded, Delivered Back Afternoon, Every Wednesday
6c Per Pound, Plus 15c delivery charge
LAUNDEREASE
Phone 2-5384

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shirt Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
(One Block From Senior Hall)



OPEN DANCE NIGHTLY
TO POPULAR MUSIC AT THE
V. F. W. CLUB
(FORMER QUINCIANA)
To the Music of "THE STARLIGHTERS"
SATURDAY NIGHTS—9:00 'TIL
West Jefferson St. Quincy, Fla



Nothing so cool as cotton...
Nothing so smart as hairlines...
Nothing so right as naturally styled
HASPEL
Prado Cords
Exclusively in DAN RIVER Wrinkl-SHED® Cottons

Cool, unlined, shape-retaining and wrinkle-resisting Prado Cords... styled in the popular Fleet model for that slimmer, more youthful look...tailored in hairlines that are so fine they give a solid fabric appearance. Completely washable, guaranteed never to shrink, fade or discolor.
In narrow hairlines or regular stripe cords $26.50
Turner's
"doorway to fashion . . ."

LUCKY DROODLES! LOADS OF LAUGHS!
WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

SMALL GIRL SKIPPING ROPE OUTSIDE WINDOW
Pierre Midol-Monnet
Lehigh University

LAST SUNSET SEEN BY PIRATE WALKING PLANK
Ernest Gorospe
University of Hawaii

AERIAL VIEW OF CUSTER'S LAST STAND
Robert L. Wright
University of Virginia

FAT MAN AND FAT LADY BEHIND BEACH UMBRELLA
Judy Gendreau
Marquette University

STUDENTS! EARN $25!
Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. So send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

NO MATTER WHERE YOU ARE, you'll get more pleasure from your cigarette if it's a Lucky Strike. That's the point of the Droodle above, titled: Three deep-sea divers enjoying Luckies. You get deep-down smoking enjoyment from Luckies because they taste better. Why do they taste better? That's easy to fathom. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, mild, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, when it's light-up time, light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

Better taste Luckies... LUCKIES TASTE BETTER... Cleaner, Fresher, Smoother!
©A. T. Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

LAB BAND CONCERT Features Combo, Jazz—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY Semi-Weekly College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 42 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, APRIL 3, 1951

Election Run-Offs Slated For Today Affect Two Posts

Senate Sec'ty, Sandspur Head On Ballots

Students will write an anti-climatic end to the Student Body election today.

At stake are the office of Student Senate Secretary and the Sandspur Chairmanship.

Seeking the secretary office are Pat Britton, State Party, and Corinne Ranlett, Student Party.

Wilson Schiffermuller and Bill Starr are battling for the Sandspur Chairmanship. Both entered the race on write-in campaigns last week. A third person whose name was written on the ballots in the primary has withdrawn, said Secretary of Elections Betty Williams.

Ballot boxes today will be placed at Westcott, Student Center and the Seminole Club. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. staffed by Sophomore Greeks.

Miss Williams said that IBM ballots will not be used. The various committee will handcount the ballots, she said, of the 1,000 are expected.

She said that the counting will be held at 404 Diffenbaugh with the results posted probably by 9 p.m.

She reminded all candidates posted last week to file final expense reports before 5 this afternoon at the main desk in Longmire Building.

Her have the elections gone so far?

In the point of view of the Secretary of Elections, who was undoubtably absent during last week's pre-election "rooster" action has been excellent."

All campaign literature has been removed, she noted, adding that no complaints regarding unethical campaigning have been filed and that no vote figures have been contested.

Seminole Slate

TODAY, APRIL 3

11:45 a.m. — Faculty luncheon in the Trophy Room of the Building Center.

12 noon — Biochemistry Seminar in Karl Dittmer and Bob West will report on the "American Chemical Society Meeting at Cincinnati." 306 Science.

4 p.m.—Meteorology Seminar. Dr. Seymour Hess will report on the Meeting of the International Met. Committee" in 315 Science.

4:30 p.m.—Kappa Delta Easter Egg party for children of alumnae at the KD house.

7:30 p.m. — Kuder Preference Record Test. 214 History.

7:30 p.m. — Public previews in the Trophy Room of the Student Center.

7:30 p.m. — American Studies program. "American Newspapers" with Pat Miale, Dr. Sidney Kobre and Daniel Womack.

7:45 p.m. — Sigma Delta Pi luncheon at the Cafe de Paris of Longmire.

8 p.m.—Sigma Tau Delta meeting in Longmire's Small Lounge.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4

12 noon — Organic Chemistry Seminar. Jay Brasch to speak on "Recent Developments in the Chemistry of the Fulvenes" in 306 Science.

5 p.m.—Senior Class Officers meeting in 606 Longmire.

7:30 p.m.—General Culture Test. 214 Science.

8 p.m.—Coleman Literary Club of University Wives meeting at the home of Mrs. Daniel Metz, 1701 Lewers Drive.

8 p.m. — Young Republicans Club meeting in 606 Longmire.

9 p.m.—Gold Key meeting in 410 Longmire.

THURSDAY, APRIL 5

92 noon — Easter Vacation begins.

Dittmer, Spitzer Present Research Paper At Meeting

Dr. Karl Dittmer, Head of the Department of Chemistry, and Mrs. Judy Spitzer, former graduate student in the Department of Chemistry, are authors of a research paper which they presented at the spring meeting of the American Chemical Society in Cincinnati on Saturday.

The paper describes the effect of furylalanine, an amino acid antagonist, on the toxicity of the growing white rat. The research was performed under an office of Naval Research Grant in the Department of Chemistry at FSU.

Also attending the meetings from the Department of Chemistry were Dr. Lionel Zeichner, Werner Herr, Dr. Michael Kasha and Dr. Harry Walborsky.

CORRECTION

Miss Martha McGowan, PSU freshman and member of Kappa Delta sorority, was the lovely young lady to be chosen a member of the Sandspur Queen's court, and not Miss Jean Hayden, as incorrectly reported in a previous issue of The Florida Flambeau.

Nine Named To Gold Key, Men's Group

Six students and three administrative officials were tapped into Gold Key, men's leadership, scholastic and service honorary, Friday.

Taps are Hans Tews, Jim Padgett, Graham Carothers, Franklin Adams, John Cooper and Don Holder, students, and R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students; Louis D. Carson, Dean of Men and James Carr, assistant Dean of Men.

Ceremonies were held in Longmire Building at noon Friday. Presentation of the new members, present Bob Foley and faculty advisor Dr. Claude Flory.

The three administrative officials were the first to be tapped into the organization. Student taps are required to undertake tap projects in order to gain membership.

Initiation has been set for the first week in May.

Weather?

Strange Things Are Happenin Right In South

By MARGARET MILLER

Sunburns wrapped in winter woolens aren't usually news anywhere but perhaps in Palm Beach, California or Hoover, Virginia. But here's a sunburn right here in Tallahassee combining the fantastic phenomenons as snow in March!

A mass of cold air which has pushed in dust from the recent dust storms in Texas is apparently responsible for the first predicted that this cold wave would probably hit this afternoon, but more recent developments are doubtful. It may hit this weekend. If so, rain and sleet, which is similar to the cold wave, can be expected, says the U.S. Weather Bureau Meteorology department.

Students remaining at school during the holidays may nevertheless be able to wear their Easter finery next Sunday. Dr. Hoot and Mrs. Hoot are discussing the possibility of a cold wave, but a few good weather are 4 out of 5.

'UGLY MAN CONTEST DEADLINE

The Ugly Man Contest deadline for photographs has been extended until Tuesday, April 12, at 5 p.m. Application blanks must be in tomorrow, as previously scheduled, at the information desk in Longmire.

'Fortunate'–'Disappointed'

Party Chairmen Give Views, Opinions On Election Results

By OSCAR JOHNSON

"We are very fortunate . . ." —Student Party Chairman Fred Manchester.

"I wasn't exactly pleased . . ." —State Party Chairman Fred Mansfield.

These observations were made by party officials in the wake of last week's record-smashing vote, which pushed Student Party candidates into the top three executive positions.

Party winnings were as follows:

Student Party: President and Vice-President of the Student Body; men's vice-president and the lead in the race for Senate Secretary.

State Party: Honor Court Chief Justice.

Unconsidered Races

Both parties won a number of unconsidered races, and independents copped two contested positions in all, a record vote of 2,500 was tallied.

State Party Chairman Fred Mansfield said the turnout indicated that the students voted for the candidates that they thought were best qualified. "I feel sure we have capable persons to serve in each capacity for which they were elected."

Mansfield made an exception to this statement later. In referring to one election in which he stated he was "disappointed and upset." This was because, he said, "I sincerely feel that the person who was best qualified to serve in the capacity of representative of men's affairs was defeated.

"I say this because his opponent has had no experience in Senate and therefore, I believe he was unqualified to hold such a job."

Student Party Successful

Student Party Chairman Carothers did not comment on individual races, except to say "The Student Party was successful in almost every office which its candidates sought. We are very fortunate in having the Student Body President, Corrie Moore, Vice - President Jim Deanne and Men's vice-president Hans Tews to head the executive branch of our student government."

Carothers said it is the party's hope that it can "effectively carry out the legislative program of our platform through a majority representation in the student Senate."

It wasn't exactly pleased with the results of the elections," declared State Party Chairman Mansfield, "but in most cases it was rather expected to turn out as it did." He said the mandate by which some of the candidates won will hinder them to do a better job, "especially the Student Body President."

Greater Turnout

Mansfield pointed out, however, the Student Party's Carothers stated, "I am hopeful that the student interest and active participation will be substantially greater in the Senate and Class elections . . . Mansfield concluded his remarks on this score to a prediction: "We plan to fill the Senate with State Party members."

He urged party members to start thinking about possible candidates for the class offices, Senate and Judiciary. The State Party will hold its nominating convention in the latter part of April, he said.

Hearts of Gold—New taps for Gold Key, leadership, scholastic and service honorary at FSU, are, l. to r., Don Holder, Graham Carothers, John Cooper, James Carr, Ralph R. Oglesby and Louis D. Corson. Not shown in the picture are Jim Padigan, Hans Tews, and Franklin Adams, also tapped in the high noon ceremonies.

'Hot And Cool Of Jazz' Feature Lab Band Concert April 12

The "hot and cool of jazz" will be featured in a concert Tuesday night, April 12, by the Laboratory Dance Band.

Scheduled for 8:15 in Opperman Music Hall, the program will include arrangements by Tony Swain, Sonny Hawkins, John Barry, Danny Hernandez, and an original composition by Bill Nelson.

Third Year

Now in its third year, this organization is one of the few educational jazz groups sponsored by a university music school. The band gives musicians a chance to play, arrange, compose, and learn more about modern jazz trends," said Mr. Swain. "It's actually a study of jazz."

Under the direction of Robert Brumagel, assistant professor of music, the band consists of 18 members, including five saxophones, five trumpets, and three rhythm instruments.

The original composition, "Psycho," by Bill Holmes, exhibits the unique sound developed by Woody Herman. The FSU instrumentalist will play the tenor sax of Danny Shoemaker and the trumpet of Richard Sisca.

Kraise Style

"April in Paris," arranged by Tony Swain, follows the Stan Kenton style. It includes ensemble sax work and a trumpet solo by Charlie Turner.

Sonny Hawkins has contributed arrangements taken from famous dance bands. These include such numbers as Duke Ellington's "Caravan," Tommy Dorsey's "Blue Moon," and Tommy Dorsey's "Sunday Kind of Love."

"September Song," by John Barry, displays original modern band writing and a trumpet solo by Sonny Hawkins.

Library

According to Brumagel, the band is building up a library to cover a variety of musical sounds and to provide opportunities for students in the Music school interested in dance-band arranging.

Although most of the players are music majors, some members are majoring in such fields as business and industrial arts, said Swain.

Lab Concert Highlights To Include Combo

The Lab Band Jazz Concert scheduled for April 12 will feature a combo within the large band.

Comprising the combo will be Donny Cunningham, trumpet; Larry Ahl, piano; Al Harkness, drums and Bill Nesbitt, bass.

The breakdown of the larger band into a combo is an effort to present to the public the work of the combo in modern jazz, said Cunningham. This type of jazz presentation has taken hold in every other part of the country and is just now being introduced to the South.

Waltzes Arrangement

The Combo will play "Lullaby of the Leaves" as one of their numbers using Jerry Mulligan's arrangement with backing from the Lab Band. The combo is very similar to the Dave Brubeck Quartet in that there will be set beginnings and endings. The combo will begin with the melody. Each instrumentalist will improvise a solo and then back to the melody by the entire group.

Cunningham feels that there are too many misconceptions about jazz held by the public. He feels that too many people have the impression that jazz is loose at both ends. "Jazz is governed in a distinct frame and within this frame is the frame," said Cunningham.

Restricted

He went on to say that you are restricted in the sense that every tune has to follow a certain cord progression and when the musician is improvising, he must rely on his ability to use chords in that tune to create something melodic. Rehearsals are also governed by the beat

(Continued on Page 4)

Spanish Club Initiate 13 Los Picaros

Thirteen new members have been initiated into Los Pinos de Lope de Vega, Spanish honorary.

Those who became Picaros, during the ceremonies conducted in Spanish, are Katherine Pados, Geraldine M. Diaz, Alla B. Spear, Lillian Hasvind, Domingo R. Cintron, Diane Estes, Sylvia Smith, Carlos Shepherd, Alice Lenz, Cynthia Baskin, Claude Jewell, Ann Pratt, and Rafael A. Vega.

The club is planning a "Fiesta de Banderas" for which each member of the group, will make a flag from one Spanish speaking country. The flags will be used to decorate the language laboratory, their present meeting place. There will be a picnic and contests with an aim to further knowledge o. the Latin-American nations.

Joan Bryan, club president, announced that the club hopes to sponsor one or two movies in Spanish to be shown on campus this semester. She further stated that anyone wishing information about "Los Picaros" or the exams to be given for admittance may contact her through P O Box 28 Campus Mail, or by calling Florida Hall.

Wesley Plans Easter Play For Tomorrow

A pre-Easter service will be held at the Methodist Student Center tomorrow at 5:30 p.m. The service is unusual in that the Wesley Players will present activities of Christ from the Last Supper to the Crucifixion.

The pantomime will include familiar scenes as the "Upper Room," "Pieta of Pere," "Garden of Gethsemane", and the "Crucifixion". Members will be taken at a table of twelve in a place arranged like the Upper Room.

The main characters in the service are John Heidenberry, Mark Miller, Ed Threadgil and Robert Pope

Florida Legislature Convenes At Noon Today In Capitol

Collins Speaks To Session At 3 p.m. Today

The Florida Legislature convenes today in the State Capitol.

At high noon a simultaneous drop of navels in the senate and house will rap the 71st session into being. No bills will be introduced before Wednesday or Thursday.

Installation fee

The lawmakers will spend the opening session, noon to 1:30 p.m. formally electing and installing Ted David as speaker of the house, and Turner Davis as president of the senate.

They will also ratify the selection of George Tapper, Port St. Joe, as Speaker pro tem and S. D. Saunders, Middleburg, as speaker pro tem. Mrs. Lamar Beddoe and Audrey David will be appointed as chief clerks of the two houses and Leroy Atchison and Amos Davis as sergeants-at-arms.

Following the organization session, the legislature will recess until 3 p.m. when they will reconvene to hear Gov. Fuller Warren's sweeping recommendations.

From Area Area

Prior to his message, the governor, a former senator, and outgoing House Speaker Dorsey Bryant will receive awards as the most valuable members of the 1951 legislature.

Tonight, the House Elections Committee will meet to discuss proposals to reduce the costs of running for office. Any bills on rules will be left for Wednesday or Thursday.

The session, expected to last 60 to 90 days or longer, will see 13 new senators and 27 changes in the house this year, although some of them are returning after being out of the legislature for one or more sessions.

Rules Adopted

Adoption of rules to govern house and senate may produce some interesting fireworks before the legislature even gets its teeth into the sweeping program of reforms before it.

Opposition is certain to the senate when it tries to made to abolish executive sessions. Efforts to eliminate proxy voting and impose penalties against members failing to attend committee meetings may produce some mutterings in the house although no outright opposition is anticipated.

Former Student Vice President Tells About Harvard Politics

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Harvard University is often thought of as one where the students take a great deal of interest in national politics.

It's surprising, therefore, to hear from a former FSU student who's going there now that interest in student government at Harvard is not as great as that shown here.

Gene Lawler, FSU graduate of last summer now working on his master's degree in mathematics, and vice-president of the FSU student body last year, brought back this information while on his Spring vacation.

Probably Less

Lawler, who plans to enter law school next year, said that "interest in student governments at Harvard is probably less.

"The Student Council had a widely publicized campaign so try to have a public meeting at which it expected a lot of students, but only ten showed up."

He commented that Harvard students take a greater interest in national politics than FSU students do. "They have political clubs for every shade of political opinion," he declared.

Major Difference

What's behind this difference in emphasis? Apparently it's one of the major differences between this school and Harvard, as Lawler sees it.

He cited the "extreme individualism at Harvard," compared it with FSU, whose students he said are "supposed to fall into a pattern."

Other factors, he noted, are the extremely high academic standing of Harvard students, their generally higher financial standing and the school's long tradition.

An interesting note is his statement that Harvard "carries the idea of liberal education and open research to the extent that there is virtually no classified research for the government going on there. Everything's

(Continued on Page 3)

Speech Department Debators Leave For Ohio TKA Tourney

Eight FSU debaters leave this afternoon to participate in two annual speech tournaments.

Tom Woods, Herb Lacoy, Norma Trippodo, Beverly Dunnerousel, and Arnold Greenfield will represent FSU at the Fifteenth Annual Tau Kappa Alpha National Convention, held this year at the University of Ohio.

Bruce Fletcher, Karl Edwards, and Karl Carroll will also depart in the northerly direction for Memphis, Tennessee, where they will attend the Conference of Human Relations at the Silver Anniversary Conference of the Southern Speech Association.

National Question

Students going to Ohio will debate the national question, "Resolved, that the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China." The national discussion question will also be used—How can the American Educational System best meet the needs of society."

Woods, Miss Trippodo, and Miss Dunnerousel also attended the Tau Kappa Alpha Conference last year in Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Fletcher, Edwards, and Carroll will be taking art for the first time in the Southern Speech Association Conference in Memphis. Edwards is presenting a bill in the conference calling for a three billion dollar subsidy for education from the federal government. Fletcher's bill is to permit soviet publications to come into the United States

(Continued on Page 3)

This Year's 'Passover' Holidays Same Time As Spiritual Birthday

By ORCHID ALONSO

As most FSU students prepare with the Tercentenary Week celebrations. The Tercentenary is the spiritual birthday of the more than five million American Jews and approximately one-seventh of the first permanent settlement of Jews in America 300 years ago.

Added Meaning

The exile from Egypt by the Jews in an effort to escape slavery —reflected by the Passover Feast

A Gracious Beauty—Blonde Jean Hayden is pictured above shortly after being chosen IFC Queen at the dance Friday night. In background, with microphone, is IFC president Jim Crews.

Jean Hayden Crowned IFC Beauty Queen

Jean Jayden, the former Miss Jacksonville of 1954, was crowned IFC Queen of 1951 at the Inter-Fraternity Council formal dance Friday night.

Miss Hayden, who was sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, was chosen over 12 other girls. Members of the Queen's Court and their sponsors were Deane Jackson, Kappa Alpha; Caryl James, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Janet Johnson, Lambda Chi Alpha, and Faye Anthony, Phi Delta Theta. The identity of the Queen and her Court was not revealed until the dance, Friday evening.

Judges for the Beauty Contest, which highlighted the Duke Ellington concert in Westcott Auditorium Friday afternoon, included Manley Whitcomb, PSU director of bands; Tom Brownlee, manager of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce; Nat R. Walker, president of the Quarterback Club; Mrs. Ramsey Trimble, president of the Junior Woman's Club, and Bob Seale, president of the Tallahassee Service League.

—and the immigration of those Jews who left Israel from the overbearing Portuguese in Brazil to celebrate their "Spiritual birthday"—have synonomous meanings and implications to the Jews.

The Jews, characterized by their "deep religious faith, strong belief in the harmony of all faiths, their traditional love of science, scholarship, human freedom, social justice and equality of opportunity" plan the Passover Festival seriously.

Lasts Week

The Passover holidays last seven or eight days, depending on whether the celebrant is a reformist or orthodox Jew. The first two days are regarded as full holidays in which no work is performed. The next four days are half holidays and although services and symbolic feasts are held, they are permitted to work half a day. The last two days are also full holidays.

According to legend, the Jews fled from Egypt in such haste they had no time to mix yeast with their dough, so they ate only unleavened bread. Today the unleavened bread, called Matza is the essential symbol of all passover feasts.

Variety blends with meaning so that as well as symbolizing the flight from Egypt, there are used three distinct kinds of Matzos, signifying Deuteronomy and three divisions

"Leavening Search"

While most Jewish families retain the custom of "The Search For Leavening" in which members of the household search the home for any leavened bread, unleavened food—taboo during the holidays, the unleavened Matzo takes on its own special significance during the "Seder."

The Seder is the special supper in which the symbolic foods are tasted in memory of the flight and during the reading of the Haggadah, which explains the Passover Festival and all its meanings. The other symbolic foods include a roasted shank bone which represents the sacrifice of the paschal lamb; a cooked egg as the symbol of life; bitory herbs as unleavened shrub—a refers to the bit-

(Continued on Page 4)

Protest

Thursday night's short-lived demonstration was a good thing. For a while we thought that students had reached such a point of regimentation that any "revolutionary" tendencies would have been thought of as treasonable acts.

But we were wrong, and it comes as quite a relief. For students should realize—not only at Florida State University, but in all colleges—that they have a voice and it should be heard; and when some foolish or irrational measure is taken, their voice, in a group, will most certainly be recognized. And we don't mean to say through negotiable methods, but in a mass demonstration such as happened Thursday night.

We cannot bring ourselves to the belief that the kissing ban rumor was just a rumor. There was a basis for its being started. And we believe in some quarters an attempt might have been made to enforce a ban along these lines if the demonstration had not wiped away the traces.

We don't think this demonstration was a "juvenile" action. Nor was it having "fun." Nor was it "blowing off steam." We give this wordage judicious restraint, though, since it was hasty and ornamental.

These descriptions could certainly be applied to some student uprisings, such as the well-known "panty raids" when students are acting "juvenile" having "fun" and "blowing off steam."

But not in a demonstration such as happened Thursday night. That was serious. A protest rightly done for something that may have been wrongly enforced.

Also, we are not so prone in all cases to leave it to negotiable or channeled methods, for oftentimes it either gets lip service or gets pigeonholed.

We are glad the protest happened. And every time Victorian measures, or any measure contrary to student welfare may be proposed, a demonstration is perhaps best.

The Milkman Cometh

Although a certain international tension still persists, there is reason for every American to feel reassurance today. The problem of civilian defense against H-Bomb annihilation is admittedly grim and complicated, but let no man charge that we aren't getting anywhere. Beginning next month, the Pet Milk Company, in cooperation with the U.S. government, will make available to every citizen, regardless of race, color or creed, a Civil Defense identification tag.

To obtain that tag only a minimum of earnest effort is required. The citizen must mail a quarter to the Pet Milk Company, along with a label proving beyond dispute that he had had a can of Pet Milk in the house. With these credentials, and nothing more, an identification tag will be promptly obtained; no loyalty clearance is required, no birth certificate, no contests.

Civil Defense officials in Washington seem pretty proud of the idea. If the notion that atomic death now has a commercial sponsor seems grotesque to ordinary men, no disagreement is visible among the big brains in Washington who have promoted this plan. According to a CD spokesman, Pet Milk has big plans for all of us; the tag idea will be pushed on TV programs, and in a variety of other ways.

George Gobel, Arthur Godfrey and Red Skelton will all get into the act. Whatever happens, no American will be able to complain that he wasn't warned or det tag.

CD officials vigorously deny that Pet Milk will profit from the 25-cent price on the identification emblem. Out of simple devotion to the larger national interest, the company is prepared to offer the thing at cost to every American who possesses enough patriotism and vision to use Pet Milk.

Surely this is a classic demonstration of the Eisenhower Administration's ability to enlist the services of private industry in a great cause. Doomed we may be by nuclear weapons, but let historians recognize that we did not go to our deaths anonymously; in the final hours we clutched to our chests the symbols of our identity which affirmed beyond dispute the depth of America's devotion to Pet Milk.

Bourbon, anyone?

—The New York Post

"How About Trying To Fix It Right Now?"

A Better Measure

Calling The Card

Brubeck's Music Is Meaningful

By WILLIE SMITH
The Critic

It was disheartening to see and hear the reaction as a result of the fine music the Dave Brubeck Quartet played. With the exception of a few, the general feeling was that what was played by a bunch of mixed up musicians displaying little talent who played anything that came to their minds.

The fact is that these musicians are talented and they were playing exactly what came to their minds. The trouble was the critic that knows so little about this type jazz, for jazz, like music, any kind of music, is that he doesn't understand it and won't try to understand and therefore condemns it as if it were nothing.

By understanding them, people will accept. If they don't accept, they will at least be able to give a constructive criticism rather than just display their ignorance because a jumble of unmeaningful words.

Understanding

The Dave Brubeck Quartet portrays a definite kind of "dream world" which has never been known in the entire field of music. These four men either standing or sitting, or with the entire group exhibit fantastic ideas. Each performance is a completely shaped work of art. George Avakian, the renowned jazz critic, says that "Every part (vertically as well as linearly) is solidly integrated as to form, and every element as well as in total."

These men employ improvisation constantly, more than any other jazz group in existence. Usually there are set beginnings and endings, the latter perhaps not as set at all. At no time are two improvisations on a given tune the same. They improvise with freedom and daring, yet keep the Quartet as an integrated body.

The Foundation

Where do they get their ideas for their improvising? Ninety per cent from emotion. How they feel at that particular time will be portrayed in their music.

Brubeck divides the Quartet in half. The bass and drums lay down a solid beat by supplying a constant rhythm. The bass must hold the group together and does this by giving with the beat and "feeding the harmonic line"

Paul Desmond on the alto sax, along with Brubeck, work against the other two. Usually Dave and Paul join together but they also "flight of fancy" all the time without losing the beat and never sacrificing the total improvisation. The element of surprises then through Desmond's and Brubeck's method of improvising.

They will, especially Brubeck, develop a theme to the characteristics of longhair music. The way Brubeck employs the Gregorian chant, his use of the medium and also the frequent resemblance of passages of the 19th and early 20th centuries; their improvisation on such material is so perfectly integrated as to form an every element as well as in total."

These men employ improvisation constantly, more than any other jazz group in existence. Usually there are set beginnings and endings, the latter perhaps not as set at all. At no time are two improvisations on a given tune the same. They improvise with freedom and daring, yet keep the Quartet as an integrated body.

The Foundation

Where do they get their ideas for their improvising? Ninety per cent from emotion. How they feel at that particular time will be portrayed in their music.

Brubeck divides the Quartet in half. The bass and drums

Limited action. No one is expecting miracles. There is no music set before them.

The Quartet brushes its performance off on the audience. The crowd is quiet and feels the mood

What The Musicians Feel

Brubeck starts out with little motion. As he feels an emotion, his physical being takes shape. The movement usually starts in his legs and goes up to his head until he is swinging all over. As quickly as that starts, his mood may change and the motion ceases; he smiles, shoo laughs and the whole feel one of musical skill. The main burden of this is on Brubeck and Desmond.

Fair Serious Music

The Dave Brubeck Quartet is contributing something no other group has ever been successful with, that is the blending of elements of "serious music with jazz. They have created a style of music all their own. The main burden of this is on Brubeck and Desmond.

Fair Serious Music

The Dave Brubeck Quartet is contributing something no other group has ever been successful with, that is the blending of elements of "serious music with jazz. They have created a style of music all their own. The main burden of this is on Brubeck and Desmond.

Desmond, meanwhile, is a subdued figure standing at the piano. He caresses and fondles the alto as though it were a part of him incidentally, in order to play as he does. It must be. His technique is motion also, once in a while swaying back and forth. He looks as if he is floating and reflecting constantly, almost as if he were in another world with an attempt to secure that important office.

I have been asked if I am serious in my comments and I know what I'm getting into. My answer is both conscious and YES. My posters are humorous because I hope they will help you to remember me but my earnest desire to serve you as Sandspur Chairman is no joke. I realize what a difficult job it is and how easy it would be to fall by the wayside. I promise that I have some ideas that have never been tried here before and I hope you will agree they may help to do a better job.

First, the main trouble has always been a limited production budget. By securing advertising and starting on the money-making side of the ledger we can do more development and polish of the show.

Second, the student body has never had the voice in the choice of the band to play for their dances. I would publish a list of the available bands and a ballot, this with the Flambeau's co-operation, and you would have a chance to choose your own band.

As for my qualifications: I am a sophomore and was on the Dean's List last semester. At present I am majoring in Music although last year I was a Dramatics and Speech major at the University of Florida. I played a 2-F average. I have directed five full length

(Continued on Page 3)

Letters To The Flambeau

Sandspur Chairman

Dear Student Body:

Allow me to introduce myself. My name is Wilton Schiffmiller. And I am running for the office of Sandspur Chairman on today's run-off. You may have seen some of my posters around the campus or heard me speak.

First, let me express my deep gratitude to those who wrote me in on their ballots and encouraged me in my attempt to secure that important office.

I have been asked if I am serious in my campaign and I know what I'm getting into. My answer is both conscious and YES. My posters are humorous because I hope they will help you to remember me but my earnest desire to serve you as Sandspur Chairman is no joke. I realize what a difficult job it is and how easy it would be to fall by the wayside. I promise that I have some ideas that have never been tried here before and I hope you will agree they may help to do a better job.

First, the main trouble has always been a limited production budget. By securing advertising and starting on the money-making side of the ledger we can do more development and polish of the show.

Second, the student body has never had the voice in the choice of the band to play for their dances. I would publish a list of the available bands and a ballot, this with the Flambeau's co-operation, and you would have a chance to choose your own band.

As for my qualifications: I am a sophomore and was on the Dean's List last semester. At present I am majoring in Music although last year I was a Dramatics and Speech major at the University of Florida. I played a 2-F average. I have directed five full length

(Continued on Page 3)

The Florida Flambeau
Bob Folsom, Editor
Jay Robertson, News Editor
Orchid Alanso, Mgr. Editor
Asst. News Editors ..... Oscar Johnson, Marcella Jones
Sports Editor ..... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff ..... Alan Whitmarsh, Harry Bernard
Amusement Editor ..... David Dreis
Photographer ..... Hamid Anderson
Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager ..... Irma Cox
Exchange Editor ..... John Hartley Ford
Assistant Exchange Editor ..... Susan Hyde
Distribution ..... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity
Copy Editors ..... Pat Marston, Willie Smith
Rewrite Editor ..... Margaret Miller
Feature Writer ..... Frankie Adams
Cartoonist ..... Con Horn
Junior Staff ..... Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Sherley, Jeri Bradfield, Charlet Pottervill, Pat Brady, Tevin Hammond
Mary Lis King, Adv. Mgr.
Asst. Adv. Mgr ..... Nina Rule
Secretary ..... Jeanette Puckett, Mary Dresser
Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, Inc., 420 Madison Ave., New York 17
The Florida Flambeau is published semi-weekly by students of Florida State University.
Telephone 2-8000, extension 6412
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Reflections

Telephone, Hiccup Relation Exists

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Sentiments Writ In Haste and Wish No Great Regard For the Pieces

A great discovery, one that may have profound affect on Florida State University, has been announced. Punch, British comic extravaganza, published the extraordinary findings in 1954. According to author Christopher Hollis, they are the results of twenty-five years' study.

Punch, you will remember, is a literary creation nothing a normal mind's great as and, Punic, Chaos, FSU Alumnus Bulletin, True Stories And Epochal Tales. Possessing the rock-like reliability of the New York Times, the Snake Bluff Courier and almost the greatness available there can be little doubt that this researcher is great and alarming increase"

It was also noted that telephoning could not be the only cause of hiccuping, since affliction occurred among non-telephoners; nor one but several fingers or a combination of these, "must be regarded as the cause."

And when I got back to West Hall that night some residents were swearing by the story that their hiccups had gone, but left in trouble for kissing their fellow good-night in front of Florida Hall.

Sirens were passed calling for an ambulance, but it was not something about the " No Kissing" rule.

At 11 o'clock the storm broke. A string of cars accompanied the ambulance as it made way for the women's dormitories. More for 45 minutes they rave and rant, but the "No Kissing" was indeed rising again.

The ban was academic and later that he had intended the whole thing to be a protest demonstration, and all the activity confined to spirited antics. He was among those who quietly left when Dean Corson emphatically denied the rumors.

But the fellows, a much larger crowd now, were having so much of a good time to break it up that quickly. And so they stayed on in Florida Field, a whole thing immensely, until the novelty wore off, the denial of the rumors sank in and the captain of the football team left to make a speech. And one of the more boisterous ended up in the bushes of Florida Hall.

Out of the more amusing aftermaths was a demonstration in the Capital Post that the girls were not kissing boys. It was only thing that seemed to upset the boys the fact that ended as quickly and quietly as it did.

The end of the tumult and the shouting of Thursday night, however, have come some debate. And rightly so. We shall, therefore, refer in the future to this as the "Hiccup Revolution."

First of all, the FSU administration has seen that if any ridiculous, vicarious measure such as a "No Kissing" law were to be passed, it would create an unpleasant and uncomfortable situation. So the normal course of male-female relations will be left to secure for the remainder of the year at least, because the Legislature will not be in session.

Lately It Seems

Four Convicts For Four Hours'

By ORCHID ALONSO

(A true account, well, except for their alleged reason.)

Speed trains will be speed trains, we always say.

A Lark" Speed trap offered great fun since hand experience as a Chrysler-Plymouth dealership taken.

Four these coeds weren't really speeding. It happened they set out to see how fast a Chrysler would go, and a Chrysler (although the hardcovering dealership) can go. It was a cadillac sound a little over the speed limit — approximately seven miles over.

The coeds were on their way home for the weekend, which their parents would not approve, so they did up information on how to be the State Road Department.

One thing they learned: if you a pair of pretty girls, and out to meet the officer half-way. Which is what they did, especially in Levy County. Unfortunately the girls hadn't learned that yet.

But the girls the driver and

(Continued on Page 3)

Etcetera Etchings

Lowdown On Conceit 'Clan' Given

By DAVID DREIS

If you're floundering with the idea that you're one of the group that has that touch of "humility" inside of him, the odds are you have a touch of pathy. What the dickens is this humility." Who has it? Who is he say that he has it? Who as Walter Winchell (my idol) said: "Humility is a fine thing—when you think you've got it, you've lost it."

Arthur Godfrey fired Julius La Rosa because he was bereft of humility. Arthur knew a put down. Mr. G. promptly slipped La Rosa a weekly paycheck and from pulls Godfrey personalities claim Godfrey is a hypocrite because he has the esteem is pretty high. (Personally, we have no quaime with the broadcaster).

This summer, we found ourselves in Hollywood, a people who were making a living on of show business. Most were self-centered. They were self-centered because in the rough and tough jungle of the entertainment, their worth was constantly being measured by others. Buyers of talent who interviewed them first and then tested them. If you were humble, many an interviewer wondered if you were any good. If you were conceited, he dared you to show him and if you showed him, he'd buy your talents. Now, humility is a humble thing. When you're on top of the show business heap—And it can be wonderful to be—it can be wonderful without any sounds, but so many times, it can't. They tell us through publicity that Grace Kelly and William Holden are humble. Maybe so, Miss Kelly came from a rich and whether she was or not, her buyer bought her talents or not, she had some assurance that she could go pretty far with personalities claim Godfrey is a hypocrite because he has the esteem is pretty high. (Personally, we have no quaime with the broadcaster).

This summer, we found ourselves in Hollywood, a people who were making a living on of show business. Most were self-centered. They were self-centered because in the rough and tough jungle of the entertainment, their worth was constantly being measured by others. Buyers of talent who interviewed them first and then tested them. If you were humble, many an interviewer wondered if you were any good. If you were conceited, he dared you to show him and if you showed him, he'd buy your talents. Now, humility is a humble thing. When you're on top of the show business heap—And it can be wonderful to be—it can be wonderful without any sounds, but so many times, it can't. They tell us through publicity that Grace Kelly and William Holden are humble. Maybe so, Miss Kelly came from a rich and whether she was or not, she had some assurance that she could go pretty far with where she was Not so, with William Holden. He was discovered in a Pasadena Jr. College play, he was considered a comic-actor-in-the-making. He was talented enough, but certainly self-confident. He was immediately cast into this type of role in the film version of "Golden Boy" back in 1939. Now with some security under his belt, William Holden is a leader in his Hollywood community.

What we're getting at is the belief that insecurity is the basis for conceit in many of the show business profession.

We're not psychologists so we won't delve into other areas. Mickey Rooney is the prime example. He was another of Hollywood. Rooney has long been known as a great actor of his talents, but very few people feel fit to judge him as an Eddie Cantor. Eddy Vallee and many other big names have gone through scandals and finally were heard.

Insecurity in people of conceit can be both ways. A man may quit when he loses at the odds against him or figures he hasn't the right amount of talent and experience, but also he can quit times that a person asks himself for an honest appraisal and if he's "born-ucity" good, he doesn't mind shooting off his mouth. Personally, we can't fashion how anyone can think they are humble as to slander another individual because he is conceited. Guess that's what makes the world go 'round.

SURFACE NOISE: Dave Crockett pop number one on Billboard's tabulations . . . Bill Mauldin is now on the Tune-Dex ratings . . . Tweedle Dee in fourth spot. . . The Country Gal will also be shortly

(Continued on Page 3)

Gabbing With Gutting

By BOB GUTTING

The one sort spot on the Florida State gymnastics team—Coach Gutting—is rapidly being eliminated by Coach Price.

Mr. Price now has three men among the majority of their team to this sport, which proved to be a big kick in some of the time military men where called upon to scale walls.

The three men—Jimmy Hanks, Ted McDonald, and Lard Anderson will all represent FSU next week at the Georgia AAU's meet in Atlanta. The three men will be additional amount of competition at this meet, for the opportunity in the best performers will be taken to the NAAU championship meet in Rochester, in the end of April.

Though this competition can really get among the boys, all of the boys having learned the tricks from the past season. Best proof to date has been turned in by Jimmy Hanks with a climb of the 30 feet hemp at a 40 second clip—ten tenth of a second off school record set by Benny Fisher.

Another thing that may add spice to Lard Anderson's chances is the fact that he will be competing in his home town.

At the present time the world's record for rope climbing is held by Don Perry, formerly of FSU, who set the record in 1953 with the amazing time of 2.9 seconds. But to top this, he returned the following year and shaved two tenths of a second from his own world record, that now stands at 2.7 seconds.

When Perry set the first world record at the Los Angeles NCAA in 1953, FSU's Benny Wallace was on hand to witness the event in fact, Benny was due to follow Perry in the rope climbing competition.

However, when the judges checked their watches, they couldn't believe the time and called for time out while they measured the rope.

According to Wallace, Perry had walked up that rope," Boy, by said later that he felt like a fool following Perry on the rope. But he didn't let it bother him too much, because he didn't know too many people at the meet. At first, it felt like running some place and hiding but then I thought the heck with it and mechanically climbed the rope. What else could I do?"

The rope competition in Atlanta won't be quite that tough but it is expected that there will be several men there climbing the rope under four seconds.

But according to Price "I don't care if the boys win that competition or not, I want to get used to competition, and ask about developing them into top notch rope climbers during the next year or so."

PROF'S SETS RECORD; 38 DATES ON WEEK-END

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Baylor University history professor here is reeling up after making 38 speech in one 4-week period.

Any hopes for a quiet, Friday-Saturday and Sunday-Monday when he was presented with a stunned audience of 38 comers who had alloted him one among themselves. The activities' publicity director, Jeanne of the university's "Cornation Dating Contest."

Dates, beginning at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, included discussions, dinners, a movie, no-host coffee and malt dates several Sunday church dates and it'll top to a four o'clock supper for meals and refreshments.

To the question of what possible effect this overwhelming activity might have on him, "It will be the turning point of my life," stated to Baylor Lariat reporter Joyce Chelf. "Instead of a recluse I may become a Casanova," he said.

The Lariat reported that author had it that all the professor's history classes would be called on Monday, in order to allow him to recuperate from this ordeal. Instead, however, coffee, grapefruit and other edibles consumed on the hour by Prof.

the "pain" mutiny

Overboard with tight collars and stiff shoulders! AFTER SHAVE brings a wave of new comfort, "nature shaving" stays dry from the first stroke! No trauma cheek needed to go

After Shave

These clubs can prove

YOU'RE A BETTER GOLFER THAN YOU THINK!

Bobby Jones registered woods and irons, and Jimmy Thomson registered woods are SYNCHRO-DYNED® clubs . . . the only clubs made that offer you perfect balance . . . and an identical centered sweet spot.

Because of these clubs swings and feels alike . . . your golf becomes more uniform, your shots consistently better. With golfers reporting handicaps cut by as much as ½ . . . there are the clubs to play.

Make your next round a better one . . . with Spalding.

SPALDING

BETE THE PACE IN SPORTS

Grants Open For Work On Radio Series

Grants - in - aid are available to students and faculty for extended programs in radio production, according to an announcement by Roy Flynn, Director of Radio and Television.

"Individual grants up to $700 will be made through the National Association of Educational Broadcasters of which WFSU-FM is a member," Flynn said. "Applications are due by May 1 for grants involved in the production of radio programs based on the theme of the 1955 meeting of the Twentieth Century. Students need not be enrolled in radio courses to qualify. Acceptable areas in which these series might be directed include the international position of the United States, the social sciences and arts, economics, politics, cultural tradition, the humanities."

Typical Project

"A typical project supported by a grant is a 13 week research and presentation for the broadcast entitled 'Democracy's Myth' which has been broadcast over WFSU-FM," Flynn said. The 26 week series was to present students at the University of Alabama under a grant of $5,000.

The money was used to purchase tape recorders and materials and to pay the travel expenses of the student producers in an extended tour of the South recording interviews and impressions of life in the South today. The project furnished the basis of a graduate thesis." Format and production of the Grant-in-Aid, setting forth conditions and form applications, have not been distributed. Applications will not be accepted until that time. However, anyone interested is advised to begin planning and working immediately in order to avoid the delay when formal announcement is made.

Collegiate Teams Closing Best Year

Fraternity Softball League Started

Frats Square Off In Starting Lineup

By HARRY BERNARD

The men's Fraternity softball league was off to a fast start last week as ten teams participated in the opening games.

Phi Delta Theta, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Delta, Tau Delta and Pi Kappa Phi were all victorious beating Tau Tepsilon Phi, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Pi Kappa Alpha respectively.

On Thursday night, the remaining teams swung into action along with some of the teams from Tuesday night's games.

Victorious Teams

Alpha Tau Omega beat Theta Chi. Sigma Phi Epsilon bested Phi Kappa Tau. Lambda Chi Alpha back on the winning track beat Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Sigma Nu remained undefeated beating Delta Tau Delta, and Kappa Sigma started off the night way beating Kappa Alpha.

Dormitory's

In the Dormitory league which also started play last week, eight teams opened their schedules.

Magnolia beat the Forest of West Hall, the Baptists ran away from the Methodists, the Pirates of West Hall outlasted Senior Hall, and the Penthouse also of West Hall, eked out a victory over the Air Force.

This week's schedule for the Fraternities is:

April 5, 5:15 p.m. Field No. 1, PKP-TEP, No. 2. PKA-KS. No. 3. PDT-PKT; 6:30 p.m. No. 1. KA-SPE, No. 2. SN-TKE, No. 3. SAE.

April 12, 6:00 p.m. Field No. 1, ATO-DTD; No. 2. LCA-SN; No. 3. PKP-KS. 6:30 p.m. No. 1, TEP-PKT. 7:00 p.m. No. 1. PKT-SPE.

This weeks schedule for the Dormitories is:

April 4, 5:00 p.m. Field No. 1, Day Students-Pirates; No. 2, Methodist-Magnolia; No. 3, Sr. Pen-Pentagon. 6:30 p.m. No. 1, Rebs-Air Force.

April 11, 5:00 p.m., Field No. 1, Methodist-Pirates; No. 2, Day Students - Pen-House, No. 3, Methodist-Air Force; 6:30 p.m. No. 1 St. Hall-Rebels.

PHI DELTS WIN IN BEER BOWL

Phi Delta Theta fraternity won the fifth annual "Beer Bowl" football game Saturday by downing Noma Alpha Eta, 12-7 in a 9 on Art Hempel's pa-see to Bruce Pacetti and Bob Bess.

Saturday night the victory was celebrated with a combo party at the Phi Delt house with the SAEs as guests of honor.

Speech Dep't. Debators Leave

(Continued from Page 1)
educational purposes.

Tom Woods and Herb Lacey are slated for debating the negative side of the debate resolution at the national conference with Arnold Trippodo and Arnold Greenfield taking the affirmative.

Flory Accompanies

The Athena delegation will be accompanied by Miss Betty Flory, Graduate Assistant in forensics. Dr. Greg Fuller, who is in charge of the Senate at the Congress of Human Relations, will accompany the Seminole group.

Yesterday FSU debaters took part in three debates with visiting debaters from Middlebury College in Vermont. Norma Trippodo and Arnold Greenfield debated the affirmative of the Red China question; Tom Woods and Herb Lacey the negative. Don Hartley and Harris Litwin of FSU upheld the affirmative in a debate on the subject of congressional investigations. These debates were non decision.

READY—Catcher Bill Beenner is ready for the weekend games with the University of Wisconsin Badgers. The Badgers are headed by first baseman-Captain Jim Tamp, who was in the starting line up of the United States team that played in the recant Pan-American games

Zta's Defeat West Landis To Win Basketball Crown

By HARRY BERNARD

Zeta Tau Alpha sorority defeated the West Landis Hall girls in basketball intramurals to cop the crown for that sport.

Pacing the undefeated ZTA's in their 20-22 victory over the undefeated winners of the dorm league were forwards Ann Williams, Nancy Fagan, Margaret Causey, Lagwin Renfroe and June Yates; guards Mary Ann O'Neel, Frandy Quigan, Dot Browning, Barbara Burkhardt and Pat Pence. ZTA quintet captain was Del Browning.

The ZTA's entered the championship rounds after claiming championship of league I of the Sorority league and blasting the Chi Omega's 39-8. The Chi O's had gone undefeated in regular play to lead League II of the sorority division.

The ZTA's also cleaned up in badminton singles. Berche Building led the Zeta's to a first place in the women's intramural badminton division in singles play. They had a 5-1 record.

The Pi Phi's also came into the championship picture as the winners of the Badminton double elimination tournament with a perfect five goal 0 record.

Extending into Table Tennis, the Kappa Alpha Thetas won first place in that department in League I. Delta Zete, winner of Tennis play in League II copped the overall tennis honors for the women's intramurals.

Gilchrist Hall claimed championship of the Tennis Singles after being leaders in League I. The Zeta's popped up again leading the singles play in League II. Zeta's Mary Margaret Williams paced the ZTA's to second place in the singles section. They were runners-up in Gilchrist

THOSE SNEAKY TRUE-FALSE AND POP-QUIZZES . . .

NEW YORK—(ACP)—True-false tests took a beating and were characterized as "sometimes pretty close to a tricky manner," according to results of a faculty-student opinion survey taken approximately 300 Central State College students. "Pop Quizzes" drew an even more unfavorable reaction.

Two hundred and eighteen students considered true-false tests "misleading" and "a measure of knowledge of a subject," while 66 students disagreed. Students thought that "pop" quizzes should be given, while 272 voiced disapproval.

A report in the University of Buffalo Spectrum gave the following definitions:

Seventy per cent of those questioned thought that at least three to nine tests should be given during a semester before a semester grade was given. Fifty-seven percent thought that from four to nine or even more tests should be administered to estimate a final grade. Tests frequently given were thought to be written for best classes rather than for the current semester, 199 students said, while 126 felt that all tests appeared to be current.

Suggestions offered included: Projects which would indicate material a test would cover; and pressure not to enable students to become familiar with the type of test presented by professors and to give better understanding of what to study.

The survey seemed to reveal that if the instructors would give more tests the student would study more and would be more familiar and keep his studies up to date," the Spectrum report concludes.

Former Student Explains Harvard

(Continued from Page 1)
open."

It's Progressing

Asked to comment on the Student Government of which he was so much a part last year, Lacey stopped for a statement) and said, "I guess it's progressing."

"The one thing that impressed me most in reading the Flambeau this year," he added, "is that personal feuds and disputes I knew when I was here have been intensified."

"Students in student government tend to be upset over unimportant matters of a personal nature."

COLLEGE GRILL
(Formerly Tallahassee Cafe)
OPEN
8 A.M.—11:30 P. M.
658 W. Tenn Call 2-9649
(One Block From Senior Hall)

Four Teams Completed Dual Schedules; Five Still Play With Eye Toward Wins

Florida State's nine intercollegiate athletic teams, assured of the best overall sports year in FSU history, have a .667 winning percentage of .800 heading into the final two months of activity.

In dual competition through March, Seminole teams have won 84 contests and lost only 21. In computing an average record that may be the best in the nation, FSU has won four out of every five athletic starts since September.

Four FSU teams — football, basketball, swimming, and gymnastics — have completed their dual schedules, while five Seminole squads still have several games to play.

By sports, here's how FSU teams have fared thus far during the 1954-55 sports year:

Sport	Won	Lost	Pct.
Football	8	2	.727
Basketball	22	4	.846
Swimming	4	0	1.000
Gymnastics	3	0	1.000
Volleyball	28	10	.737
Baseball	7	7	.778
Golf	5	3	.833
Tennis	5	2	.714
Track	0	0	.000
TOTALS	84	21	.800

Aries Ace

After a 16-day layoff, Florida State's promising baseball team resumed action at 3:00 tomorrow in the opener of a two-game Florida Intercollegiate Conference baseball series with Stetson.

Badgers Here

Coach Dave Hudson's Seminoles, off to a fast start with seven triumphs against but three close their 1955 home schedule in a two-game series with Wisconsin's Badgers at Centennial Field Friday and Saturday.

Both games will be Florida Intercollegiate Conference baseball action with FSU's mark at last winter, swept a season-opening set from Florida Southern at Lakeland with 13-12.

Litwhiler called on Junior righthander Sammie Seidler Friday night in open against Stetson. Only three victories away from an all-time Seminole season record, Coach Long has a 2-1 record this spring. Final baseball game of the season for Gloucester, Mass., and righthielder Creagh, Wyly and Morgan was their matches while Harris and Jimmy Wade were defeated. Final score was 6-1.

At Deland FSU netters beat Stetson 6-1. Two doubles were called because of rain.

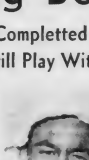
Again Hal Schaus, Cundy, Creagh, Tom Morgan and Jim Wade won for the Seminoles. Frank McGary had the only win for the Hatters.

Morgan and Don Wyly beat Jack Morgan and Kinsley Dreger in the doubles match.

Gymnast Eye AAU

The gymnastics take in the Georgia AAU meet at Atlanta Saturday and will shoot for their 5th team championship in the process.

FSU already has claimed the Southern Intercollegiate, Florida AAU and Alabama-Miss Championships this season in addition to dual wins over Illinois, Navy Pier and Georgia Tech.



With an eye toward the national AAU meet later this month, Coach Hartley Price plans to rest Arvin Hosier, Jack Mims and Rafeal Lecuona this weekend. Instead, he will stress his lesser results to determine his final AAU entry list.

Golfers In Gallery

Eight members of Florida State University's intercollegiate golfing circle will be in Tallahassee for the annual professional Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., April 15-16.

Coach Don Veller and seven freshmen will be in the gallery guards for the three-day tournament which will highlight the nation's leading professional golfers.

Making the trip with Veller will be Seminoles Jack Vegher, Billy Bolton, Dave Wood, Frank Mira, Harry Shoemaker, Stan Zlobrowski, and Chris Bannister.

Hal Schaus

Riley Sievers of Tallahassee are pacing FSU batters through the first nine games. Both T'wonsey, a sophomore, and Sievers, a freshman, have collected hits in 13 trips for identical .440 averages.

A newcomer to the FSU schedule, Tampa U, will invade the Seminole set against a 3:00 p.m. doubleheader at Centennial Field. Friday's game is a night affair while Saturday's finale is an afternoon game.

Netters Victorious

FSU's experienced tennis team, directed by Keith Pitchford, entertains Indiana and Mississippi in a two-meet home stand Thursday and Friday.

Indiana is no newcomer to the Seminole set agenda. The defending Big Ten champs swept a match over FSU here in 1956 and 1951. It's Mississippi's first appearance on the schedule.

Over the weekend, the netters trimmed both Florida Southern and Stetson.

Winners for the day at the Lakeland meet Thursday were Joe Hall, Hal Schaus, Tom Cundy, Shelby Creash, Don Wyly and Shelby Turner in the singles.

In doubles matches Schaus and Creash, Wyly and Morgan won their matches while Harris and Jimmy Wade were defeated. Final score was 6-1.

At Deland FSU netters beat Stetson 6-1. Two doubles were called because of rain.

Again Hal Schaus, Cundy, Creagh, Tom Morgan and Jim Wade won for the Seminoles. Frank McGary had the only win for the Hatters.

Morgan and Don Wyly beat Jack Morgan and Kinsley Dreger in the doubles match.

Gymnast Eye AAU

The gymnastics take in the Georgia AAU meet at Atlanta Saturday and will shoot for their 5th team championship in the process.

FSU already has claimed the Southern Intercollegiate, Florida AAU and Alabama-Miss Championships this season in addition to dual wins over Illinois, Navy Pier and Georgia Tech.

With an eye toward the national AAU meet later this month, Coach Hartley Price plans to rest Arvin Hosier, Jack Mims and Rafeal Lecuona this weekend. Instead, he will stress his lesser results to determine his final AAU entry list.

Golfers In Gallery

Eight members of Florida State University's intercollegiate golfing circle will be in Tallahassee for the annual professional Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., April 15-16.

Coach Don Veller and seven freshmen will be in the gallery guards for the three-day tournament which will highlight the nation's leading professional golfers.

Making the trip with Veller will be Seminoles Jack Vegher, Billy Bolton, Dave Wood, Frank Mira, Harry Shoemaker, Stan Zlobrowski, and Chris Bannister.

Etcetera Echings

(Continued from page 2)
here directly after Easter vacation . . . Comments from Bob Hope after Walt Disney Studios copped some Academy Awards: "Now I know why he drives here in a truck." Disney now has 24 Oscars . . . Danny Kaye's next affair The Jester will be the life of Vaudeville Red Nichols . . . Betty Johnson on BOB's Vogue and Johnny Parker on Coral are big-time new comers . . . Al Hibler who had been into the big time with "Unchained Melody" has been around for years . . . Used to sing with Duke Ellington, of all things.

ELI ROBERTS
SERVICE STATION
Corner West Tennessee
And Copeland
(Two Blocks From Senior Hall)
WE HAVE MECHANIC AND
ROAD SERVICE
DIAL 2-8523

Brubeck

(Continued From Page 2)
pianist has, plus try to figure out where he is going next. . . .

Seems we seldom favor the audience and keeps his face cocked low for Sam Donahue's music . . . Brubeck and his group are some of the best bass work in the annals of musical history.

And so it goes Some people will tell you, "I don't have it." Personally I'll take. It's great. It needs and deserves a hand.

You have to understand it and to heck with the rest. Brubeck will strike when he knows nothing about it . . . Vive la Brubeck and Co.

Sandspur Chairman

(Continued From Page 2)
plays. I am now serving as treasurer of the club and am a part-time announcer on WFSU-FM.

"I hope to do my utmost to make the best Sandspur the school has had," concluded Miss Wilson. A worker for you and FSU.

Respectfully,
Wilsha Schifferwiller.

The Dissenter

(Continued From Page 2)
a campus riot wouldn't make a good impression.

Last year, the male students are showing the capacity to act in a group. While I've always enjoyed the antics of high-spirited schoolish, perverted, and unless overdone as such, I've never doubted the value of a mass demonstration in putting over an idea. That idea needs to be resorted to, however, only when all other methods fail, and we should learn how to employ those other methods.

On Campus with Max Shulman
(Author of "Barefoot Boy With Cheek," etc.)

SCIENCE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 3

Once again the makers of Philip Morris, men who are dedicated to the betterment of American youth, have consented to let me use this space, normally intended for levity, to bring you a brief lesson in science.

It is no new thing, this concern that the makers of Philip Morris feel for American youth. Youth was foremost in their minds when they combined their cigarette. They were aware that the palate of youth is keen and eager, awake to the subtlest harmonies and flavors. A gentle smoke, a mellow smoke, a suave blending of temperate vintage tobaccos, a summery amalgam of the most tranquil and ennuiful leaf that their purchasing agent could find in all the markets of the world—these cigarette in two sizes, king-size and regular, and wrapped them in the convenient Snap-Open pack, and priced them at a figure that would be within the reach of every available set of every tobacco counter in the land.

That's what they did, the makers of Philip Morris, and I for one am glad.

The science that we take up today is called astronomy, from the Greek words astro meaning "sore" and womy meaning "back." Sore backs were the occupational disease of the early Greek astronomers and so were called. Today we have only a very limited night living on the damp ground and looking up at the sky, and if there's a better way to get a sore back, I'd like to hear about it.

Especially in the most Mediterranean area, where Greece is generally considered to be.

Lumbago and other disorders kept astronomy from becoming very popular until Galileo, a diehard flenser of Perth, fashioned a home made telescope in 1924 out of three Social Security cards and a piece of stovepipe. Now schoolboys everywhere know that stirring story — how Galileo stepped up to his telescope, how he looked heavenward, how his face filled with wonder, how he gasped and said, whispered and shouted, "I've found the world! "I've got real west!"

Well, sir, you can imagine what happened then! William Jennings Bryan snatched Nell Gwynne from the shadow of the guillotine at Oslo; Chancellor Bismarck brought in four gushers in a single afternoon; Hal Newhouser was signed by the Hanseatic League; Crete was declared off limits to Wellington's entire army; and William Faulkner won the Davis Cup for his immortal Pevered and Son.

But after a while things calmed down, and astronomers began this staggering task of naming all the heavenly bodies. First man to name a star was Surafoon of Mt. Wilson, and the name he chose was Betelgeuse. After Betelgeuse came Betelgeuse Stafford, prom queen at Michigan State College from 1919 to 1931.

Not to be outdone, Fortnight of Yerkes Observatory named a whole constellation after his wife, Big Dipper Formfig, the famed dirt track racer. This started the custom of astronomers naming constellations after their wives — Capricorn, Cygni, Orion, Ursa Major, Canis Major, and so forth. (The Major girls, Ursa and Canis, both married astronomers, though I canis subsequently ursa left with a dyslexic bridge named Minor.—Ed.)

After naming all the heavenly bodies, the astronomers had a good long rest. Then, refreshed and brown as berries, they undertook the gigantic project of charting the heavens. Space is so vast that it is measured in units called "light-years." These are different from ordinary years in that they weigh a good deal less. This, of course, is only relative, since space is curved. As Einstein laughingly said, "E=mc²."

Well, I guess that covers astronomy pretty thoroughly. Next before we leave this fascinating topic, let us answer one final question: Is there life on other planets?

The answer is a flat, unequivocal no. Recent spectroscopic studies have proved beyond a doubt that the atmosphere of the other planets is far too harsh to permit the culture of the delicate vintage tobaccos that go into Philip Morris Cigarettes . . . And who can live without Philip Morris?

©Max Shulman, 1955

This heavenly column—like the author's many earthy ones—is brought to you by the makers of PHILIP MORRIS cigarettes—who feel you'll find real enjoyment in their product.

Duke Ellington's Concert Arouses Student Interest

LOOK 'Men' Liven Ellington Concert

By JERI BRADFIELD

During the IFC Capers this past weekend at FSU, the University was host to photographer Charlotte Brooks and feature writer George Leonard from LOOK magazine, who were here to cover the Duke Ellinaton appearances.

Both were traveling with the Ellinaton Band in order to aet a realistic outlook for a feature in their magazine.

July Issue

Miss Brooks said that possibly in July the magazine will present a several paae article on the Duke's band, featuring the various members of the musical organization and their concerts on this southeastern tour. The article will mainly feature a story representing Duke Ellington and the members of his band, with a number of photographs to create a clearer picture for the readers.

The two have been traveling with the band for several days and pictures were taken at aeveral appearances, including Jacksonville, Daytona Beach, Gainesville and Tallahassee.

In a personal interview with Miss Brooks and Mr. Leonard on the way to the airport, from where they were leaving for New York Miss Brooks noted their long bus trip with the band as the most interesting experience of their assignment.

Good Opportunity

Mr. Leonard said that the bus trip aave him a marvelous opportunity to talk to Mr. Ellington and the members of his band and to get to know them well. It gave him a very good idea how the band travels and the kind of life its members lead.

An interestina sidelight of the bus trip is the fact that Duke Ellington has a ham radio set on the bus and by means of this, he keeps in constant contact with his New York office and agents. In this way messages ran be relayed to the bus at any time.

Miss Brooks said that the Duke was completely thrilled with the student response which he received at FSU during his short atay here. The lona and prolonged applause which the students gave to the band at the afternoon concert and the formal dance was overwhelming, according to the Duke.

Band Flexible

One of the things which most amazed the Look representatives was the flexibility of the band. At the beginning of each concert the members of the band don't know the program for that particular appearance. They beain the concert and then begin to feel out the audience, getting the audience's reactions and proceeding from there.

Every program varies with its audience recation and each program is built around the response shown to the performance of the band. This is one of the outstandina characteristics of the Duke Ellington Band and could be one of the reasons for its long and constant popularity across the nation.

For a JOB with a FUTURE

KATHARINE GIBBS SECRETARIAL

New York 17, 230 Park Ave
Providence 6, 155 Angell St
Montclair, N. J., 33 Plymouth St

Look Here—Shown above at Kappa Alpha fraternity house are Jim Crews, president of IFC; George Leonard, Jr., Look feature writer; Tom Day, Kappa Sigma fraternity president, and Charlotte Brooks, Look photographer. The magazine staff was at FSU while writing the articles about Duke Ellington.

Jazz Great Rated As' Right On Top'

By JERI BRADFIELD

Last weekend FSU students saw one of the founders of modern American jazz—Duke Ellington, who ranks alongside such outstanding contemporaries as Louis Armstrong and George Gershwin.

"The Duke" has had a most amazing and incredible career, although everything he knows is self-accumulated. According to his public relations aaent, Joe Morgen the Duke's knowledae of technicalities in music is equal to that achieved in a music conservatory education.

Other Talents

Other talents of the Duke include painting and poetry. Among his painting accomplishments are oil portraits of his mother, father and sister. Many of his paintings have been exhibited in charity are exhibits and have brought as much aa $1500 apiece

Ellington has virtually no formal education, for he did not complete high school. His artistic talent was so great in his youth, however, that he was offered a scholarship to Pratt University in Brooklyn, N. Y., to further his knowledae. He decided that his music was more important than his painting and declined the offer.

Duke Is Generous

Since his success in the musical world Mr Ellington has assumed the complete upbringing of his family. His dream is to see the members of his family have the opportunities which he wasn't able to secure during his youth.

Up until a few years ago, Duke Ellington financed six annual scholarships at the Julliard School of Music for worthy candidates. This practice was carried on over a period of fifteen years.

Duke Ellington, now 55 years old, came to the city of New York in 1923 and organized a small band, called the "Washingtonians." He was immediately successful in his under taking and in 1927, he organized his famous 15-piece band. Ever since that time, he has become known across America for his informal, easy to listen to, musical style.

Among the "firsts" accredited to Ellington are that his organization used a bass viol instead of a tuba, and several microphones on the stage for the greater listening ability of his audience.

One of the highlights of his career was the recepton of two of the Presidents of the United States, according to Morgen

In 1950 Duke Ellington was received by President Truman in the White House. After a 30-minute audience with the President, a White House guard asked the Duke on his way out, what he thought of the President. Mr Ellington's answer to this interrogation was, "I found President Truman just like I wanted my family doctor to be."

The night of the audience with President Truman, Duke was invited to the meeting of the National Press Club. This marked the first time that a Negro had ever been invited to such a meeting.

Approximately a month ago, Duke had a pre-dinner reception with President Eisenhower in the privacy of the Statler Hotel. Following the private audience with the President, a newspaperman asked the Duke for his opinion of the President, ann his reply was, "What sort of man would you expect him to be? No one is ever elected President of the United States being an ungracious man."

News Briefs

PHI MU ALPHA HAS ELECTIONS

Karl Mohr was elected president of Phi Mu Alpha, men's music honorary, at a regular meeting, Thursday, March 31st. Other officers elected are Richard Thierry, vice-president and treasurer; Frank Fangler, secretary; and Tony Swain, Warden.

SENIOR HALL OFFICERS ELECTED RECENTLY

New President of Senior Ball is Bill Cullom. Charlie Chester is vice-president and Elton Henley is secretary. The title of treasurer went to Joseph Mattman, whose brother, al Mattman, was elected social chairman. Counselor for the dormitory is Hal Smith.

DeVORE HEADS 4-H CLUB

New officers were installed last week at the bi-monthly meeting of the Collegiate 4-H club. Assisting the president, Carol De Vore, are Wylene Mayfield, vice-president, and Virginia Nesmith, secretary. Marg e Bell is in charge of Rural Youth Conference.

Publicity chairman is June Bowen and Norma Perry was named social chairman.

PE PROFESSOR NEW FCA PREXY

Miss Mary Frances Hall, Assistant Professor of Physical Education for Women at FSU, was elected president of the Florida Camping Association at their convention in Lake Placid, Florida, recently. Miss Hall has just concluded a term as vice-president.

CULTURE TEST

The Test Service Bureau announces that the required test which students have missed on General Culture may be taken in 124 Science, tomorrow at 7-10 p.m.

EXEMPTION TESTS SLATED SOON

Students desiring to take Exemption Tests in courses in General Education may do so from 4-6 p.m. on Wednesday, April 20 and Thursday April 21 in 201 Education building. [illegible] cards for these examinations may be obtained from the Test Service Bureau, 210 Education or from the [illegible] 301 [illegible]. These cards signed [illegible] by the student's Counselor, Dean or Department Head must be turned in to the Test Service Bureau by Thursday, April 14.

The General Education Courses in which Exemption Tests may be taken are as follows:

Humanities 101, 102, 103.
Social Science 101, 102
History 101, 102
Physical Science 101 102
Biology 101, 102
Personal Development 101, 102

Lab Concert

(Continued from Page 1)

which is not suppose to change, he concluded.

Characteristic of the "big" small outfits are Chet Baker, Jerry Mulligan, Stan Getz, Clifford Brown, and Charlie Parker, who gave modern jazz its beginning and who just passed away.

Tobacco Firm Offers Contest For Lensmen

"Campus Stand-Outs" is subject of a nation-wide photography contest for collegiate photographers sponsored by Campus Merchandising Bureau, Inc., Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company.

Any student on this campus may enter the contest and prizes will be as follows: $100 each for top five award-winning photographs; second prize for $50 for the six next best entries, 20 prizes of $10 each to those receiving honorable mention.

Any student on this campus may enter this contest and submit as many entries as they wish. Entries must be 8" by 10" photographs with suitable captions not to exceed six words. All entries must be mailed to Campus Merchandising Bureau Inc., Madison Ave., New York 17, New York and must be postmarked no later than midnight, May [illegible].

The subject of the photographs must be a personality stand-out, i. e., "BMOC", MAN [illegible] MOST LIKELY TO . . ." Winning photographs and captions will be picked on these qualifications: clearness picture, suitable caption; and photographer's originality in illustration technique.

Job Opportunities

(Recruiters from these organizations are not scheduled to visit [illegible] this year. Contact the office of Vocational Guidance for further information.)

Local Jewelry Store
Selling and general store work. [illegible]

Craig Air Force Base
Editor-writers, men or women. Salary $3410-4205 (depending on experience)

Gainesville Daily Sun
Beginning reporter. $50 per week [illegible] week

Boy Scouts of America
Field executive. Southeast region

Bendix Computer:
Mathematicians or engineers. [illegible] open. Applications on file

Army Aviation Center
Librarian. Man only. Salary [illegible]

Harvard Medical Area
Research Assistants [illegible] Lab T[illegible] and Se[illegible]

Pan American World Airways System
1 Systems and Methods An[illegible] 2 Industrial E[illegible] Spec Salary $350[illegible]

Army Transportation School
Editor: Aircraft Maintenance [illegible] rine Stevedore Operations [illegible] uty Chie. of Ext [illegible] Chief of non-resident [illegible] Supv of Exam Sect [illegible] Reading Supv Inst Educ[illegible] Marine Transportation [illegible] start at $4205 or above

American Sumatra Tobacco Co.
Accounting and [illegible] Work. Must understand basic and auditing procedure

Recruiters Corner: For an appointment to see one of the following personnel representatives, ext 5281 or [illegible] the P[illegible] 203 West[illegible]

MONDAY APRIL 4

The Stuart Company
Interviewer B. F. W[illegible]
Wanted Salesman for Pharmaceuticals

TUESDAY APRIL 5

Eglin AFB Armament Center
Interviewer Dr Ster[illegible] Mr [illegible] er cb, Ma[illegible] Hester
Wanted Mathematicians
Note: Group meeting of interested candidates, Monday, 3 p.m.

It's All Greek

Easter Time Brings Egg Hunts

Easter seems to bring out the "hunt" in the sororities and fraternities . . . Among the groups cooperating in giving the loral kids a roll for their money were the Alpha Gams and Kappa Sigs . . . The Alhpa Gams celebrated International Reunion Day Saturday with a dinner at the house . . . Alpha Gam Dorothy Womble is now the possessor of the Beryl Wing Collins Memorial Award . . . Carol Fulkerson, selected Sandspur Queen by choice of Governor LeRoy was honored at the fest, along with Barbara Emmett . . . she's Smoke Signals Queen.

The Alpha Chi Omega's, who still don't know when they're getting their new house, sent in word from Cawthon Hall about a newcomer . . . Joyce Lainsdell, hailing from G'ville became a full fledged FSU Alpha Chi last night at affiliation ceremonies . . . Marilyn Seawright Cawthon coed who joined up with the Alpha Chi's last semester was the choice for the Scholarship Pledge Cup . . . Best All Around Pledge is Janelle Vergason . . Fourth Floor Cawthon is bussin' with Alph Chi excitement . . . Plans have started for the State Day . . . this year it's in St. Pete around April 23.

The Kappa Alpha's left their mansion to join the Siama Kappa's in more of this egg rolling . . . the young folks joined the younger folks of this town at "Rolling Acres" . . . that's where Sigma Kap prexy Sara Atkinson lives . . . The Siama Kappa's then went one better on the whiskered gentlemen, going home to make plans to send flowers and magazines to an Old Folks Home this Easter Sunday.

More helping hands . . . Phi Delta Theta fraternity and Alpha Delta Pi sorority are selling Easter lilies . . . plastic ones, that is . . . reason is that these little ivory things make money for the Crippled Children's Society . . . The Phi Delts and ADPi's, along with the plastic lilies, can be found in front of Kahlers and Sweet Shop all day today.

Once wasn't enough, so the Alpha Delta Pi's went at it again After a fun filled, hair cutting, lion painting expedition last week the ADPi's honored the ChiO's this week with a wiener roast and then the two groups went serenading . . . The numbers must have scared the boys around the lion and Dixie Flag, 'cause there was almost as much fun this time for all . . . The girls say they can't explain the SAE's reluctance to allow the girls on the premises . . . some silly idea about paint and lions . . . and trophies?

The Tri Delt's seemed to be at the Ellington affair enmass . . . they almost put the Duke's hiah note trumpeteer to shame when they heard Tom Day announce the Three D's as the Kappa Sigma Choice fnr Hostess sorority of the year . . . 3D prexy Louanne Self accepted the trophy and thanked the man . . . the KAT's had it last year.

ZTA's had a great aport week . . . they took the basketball and tennis singles and placed second in badminton . . . It's been a great month for Zeta Jo Jones . . . elected women's veep . . . initiated . . . delegate to student government convention . . . What more is there?

AOPi's went camping Saturday . . . must have learned a lot in college . . . they taught the Brownie scouts how to do a lot of things . . . including tying knots . . . some of the girls went fishing . . . that aot them in the mood for another one of those . . . an Easter egg hunt for Tallahassee children . . . helping them do the honors Sunday were the Delta Tau Delta's.

Kappa Deltas played host to ATO's . . . had them over for supper last week . . . Shirleen Sasser KD social chairman did a lot of the work . . . skit came off fine . . . prexy Sally Fussel will ao to National Conclave in July . . . she was elected to make the Pennsylvania trip, and will take along observers Shirley Morgan and Emilie Hudson.

FOR A LIMITED TIME ONLY!

THIS COUPON GOOD FOR . . . $1.00

On the Purchase of Any

- SKIRTS
- SWIM SUITS
- BLOUSES
- SPORTSWEAR

Selling for $5.00 or More

Linden's

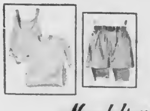
"TALLAHASSEE'S LEADING APPAREL SHOP"

ARROW GUARDS—

BRIEFLY, THEY'RE COMFORTABLE

One thing every man wants in underwear is COMFORT! And, Arrow has it. Arrow Guards, of fine combed cotton, give firm but comfortable support. They keep their shape . . . give perfect fit where you sit.

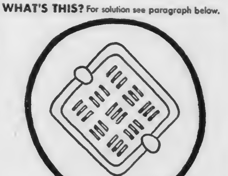
If you prefer a short, Arrow offers the Sprinter model with elastic waist-band, or snap-front model shown below. If you like fancy patterns, slip into a pair of Arrow LOVE MATCH shorts (below right), one of several Arrow specialty prints. Arrow Guards, $1.20. Shorts, $1.50. Fine Arrow T-shirts, $1.25.



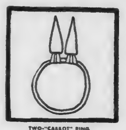
ARROW
UNDERWEAR
SHIRTS & TIES
CASUAL WEAR
HANDKERCHIEFS

Our answer to the Mambo—Arrow underwear!

We've long suspected the Mambo started with ill-fitting, uncomfortable underwear. Why else the squirms and anguished looks?



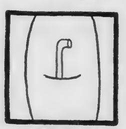
Bring your wracked frame into us. We'll show you Arrow underwear (Guards or Boxer styles), that give you unbounded comfort and classroom ease. We've Arrow T-shirts, and shoulder-strap athletic shirts, too. They're of fine combed cotton, offered at unruffled prices. Arrow underwear, $1.00 up. Arrow T-shirts, $1.25.



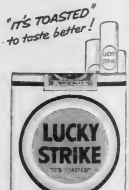
Mendelson's

LUCKY DROODLES! ALL BRAND NEW!

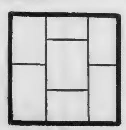
WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.



TWO-"CARROT" RING
Sheila Eisenberg
University of Connecticut

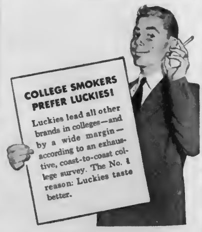


RAINBOW SEEN BY MAN STANDING ON HEAD
Duane B. Cummings
South Dakota State College



CAUTIOUS BABY KANGAROO
Solomon E. Spector
University of Chicago

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!



ARE YOU METICULOUS about your choice of cigarettes? Do you want exactly the right taste? Then take a hint from the Droodle above, titled: Ash tray belonging to very tidy Lucky smoker. Luckies taste neat—and for excellent reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted" is the famous Lucky Strike process that tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So enjoy yourself thoroughly whenever it's light-up time. Light up the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

DROODLES, Copyright 1953 by Roger Price

ELEVATOR STUCK BETWEEN FLOORS
Karl D. Wright
West Virginia University

COLLEGE SMOKERS PREFER LUCKIES!

Luckies lead all other brands in colleges—and by a wide margin—according to an exhaustive, coast-to-coast college survey. The No. 1 reason: Luckies taste better.

Better taste Luckies...

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER

CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A.T.Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

PUBLICATION BOARD Need For One Explained—P. 2

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY Semi-Weekly College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 43 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — FRIDAY, APRIL 13, 1951

University Plans Revision Of Point Grading System

New Plan Calls For 4. Program By Next Fall

Florida State University will be under a new quality point system next year. Points will be given as follows: A-4, B-3, C-2, D-1, F-0.

All students currently enrolled will graduate under the present system, however, as far as graduation requirements are concerned. This system is, A-3, B-2, C-1, D-0 and F-0.

Beginning in the Fall Semester of 1951, all quality point averages will be figured on the basis of the new system, Registrar Charles R. Walker said yesterday. Currently enrolled students will therefore be under two systems during a "transitional period", said Walker, the old for graduation requirement and the new for point average.

Graduation Requirements

Present graduation requirement of 124 semester hours and 124 quality points will remain equal, but one "point" will be added to the quality point average of all students at the end of this semester, Walker stated. Thus a student who has a 1.3 overall average at the end of this semester will have a 2.3 average next year.

Major change under the four-point system is that no minus quality points will be given for "F" grades in determining point averages. Minus points have never been used in determining grade point averages, Walker said, although such a system was indicated in the present catalog. Plans were abandoned primarily because of student objection, he added.

Disadvantages

Disadvantage of the former system which gave values of, A-3, B-2, C-1, D-0 and F -1 was that whenever any "F's" were present, the use of the system always yielded a point-hour ratio which was too high. As an example, a student with eight hours of "C" and eight hours of "D" has the same PHR as a student with eight hours of "C" and eight hours of "F", or 8-8=0.

Variation was shown in a study of the three-point system which was: for an actual "C" average, possible PHR's ranged from 1.0000 to 1.5000. Of 45 possible symmetrical grade distributions considered a true "C" average, on the basis of 16 hours attempted, grades varied as follows: 1.000, single time; 1.0625, eight times; 1.1250, seven times; 1.1875 six times; 1.2500 five times; 1.3125 four times; 1.3750 three times; 1.4375 two times and 1.5000 one time. Under the four point system, all would have been 2.000 or "C".

News Briefs

STUDENT PARTY NAMES DATE OF CONVENTION

The Student Party will hold their Nominating Convention in the Science Lecture Hall Thursday April 21, at 6:30.

READING SHORT COURSE WILL BEGIN MONDAY

A short course in Reading Improvement will be held on April 16, at 4 p.m., and continue daily, Monday - Thursday, for four weeks, Interested students may call ext. 6681 for further information.

SIGMA DELTA PI INITIATES NINE

Sigma Delta Pi, National Spanish Honorary Society, initiated the following students last Tuesday in Lowaire:

Mary Louise Albrecht, Rosa Maria Bancarrosa, Ellen J. Rosa, Katherine L. Hartley, Sara Graham McNutt, Carmine J. Ranieri, Edna Mary Runnels, Cecilia A. Swain and Mrs. Marco Walters

New initiates were entertained after the ceremony at the home of Dr. Graydon S. DeLand, faculty advisor.

QUINTETTE TO PLAY FOR SENIOR HALL DANCE

The "Starlite Quintette," will provide the music for Senior Hall's annual Spring Semi-Formal.

The dance will be held Friday, April 13, at Senior Hall from 6:30 to 11:30 p.m.

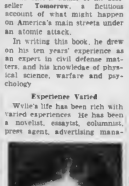
TV CLASSES HAVE PROGRAM

A series of television programs growing from courses taught by Daniel P. Wozniak, assistant professor of Journalism here, is a Saturday afternoon feature of WTHP-TV, Jacksonville.

The shows are produced by interested laymen under Wozniak's supervision, and consist of workshop duty under a course designed to prepare them for the use of facilities of commercial stations for public service programs.

Philip Wylie Speaks Friday In Westcott

By MARGARET MILLER



Philip Wylie, nationally known Florida author, will speak Friday at the Ralph Colbert Hour in Westcott Auditorium at 4 p.m.

Wylie, a son of prophet of the atomic age, is author of the best-seller Tomorrow, a fictitious account of what might happen on America's main streets under an atomic attack.

In writing this book, he drew on his ten years' experience as an expert in civil defense matters, and his knowledge of physical science, warfare and psychology.

Experience Varied

Wylie's life has been rich with varied experiences. He has been a novelist, essayist, columnist, press agent, advertising manager, boat builder, radio commentator, lecturer and lay analyst.

Philip Wylie

ger post office clerk, art editor, fashion dress goods salesman, manufacturer, weight-lifter, accordion player, proselyte and prosecutor.

Having an extensive vocabulary is a matter of personal pride and pleasure with Wylie, who remembers that his minister father enjoyed and rewarded his children for using new words. His mother, Edna Wylie, who had some experience as a writer of popular novels and magazine serials also encouraged his pleasure in verbal expression.

An intellectually violent writer, Wylie writes rapidly and easily. He is said to have finished a 20,000 novelette in a single day.

His writing ability was not appreciated in Princeton, however, in 1922 he was failed in English by Professor now Dean Christian Gauss. His examination questions were answered passably, but his humorous essay on Princeton's method of examining failed to delight academic heads.

His youthful ability to generate trouble has not left him, as in recent years has nationally famous action on the question of Florida waters brought him unpleasant relations with the Florida Chamber of Commerce.

SMOKE SIGNALS BABY' WINNERS

Virginia Neill, Jerri Colton, and Hank McCabe have been announced as winners of the recent Smoke Signals baby picture contest.

Businessmen Suggest Raise

State Universities Take Poll On Median Faculty Salaries

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Median salary of Florida State University professors requested for next year is $6,200, although state businessmen think salaries of professors at the University of Florida should average $9,932.

These figures are given in the asking budgets for new faculty salaries at FSU, and in a report by a UF Faculty Senate committee, respectively. The UF report is the result of a public opinion poll conducted among 1,548 members of 44 clubs in 16 Florida cities.

A comparison of the salaries budgeted for FSU and UF for 1951-52 shows that this university is asking a median $6,200 for full professors, while UF has requested $6,500. Current average salary of FSU professors is $6,200 (men) and $5150 (women), as brought out in a study prepared by the Finance Committee of the Faculty Senate here.

The FSU poll showed that 6.6 percent of those asked favored professors' salaries there of $6,000 or less. And 6.1 percent thought $15,000 and over should be paid. Sponsors of the study said they thought it "sufficiently comprehensive in accurately represent the opinion of the business and professional men of Florida with respect to faculty salaries at the University of Florida."

The comparison of salary requests of the two institutions, brought before the FSU Faculty Senate April 4, showed that the FSU salaries for associate professors, assistant professors and instructors would be above the UF figures. The balance was $300 the other way in professors' salaries.

Medians requested for FSU are $6,500, associate professors; $5,000, assistant professors, and $4,900, instructors. Corresponding requests at the University of Florida are $6,500, $5,200, and $4,500. Finance committee chairmen said "apparently, if the budget goes through in anything like its present form, FSU will be on a par with UF in regard to salaries."

Several reasons for the higher requests were brought out by the Finance Committee study: 11.1 40.0 percent of women faculty members now receive less than $3,000; 31.7 percent of the men receive less than $3,000; 31.7 percent of the women receive more than $6,000; 12.8 percent of the men receive more than $6,000.

Cosmopolitan Covers—"Flying High" Coach Jack Haskin, Janet Johnson, Cosmopolitan Magazine photographer and clown Vernon Nelson talk it over as Fay Moses and Charlie Mathers's dancing on trapeze in background. Student circus will perform here May 6 and 7.

Florida State AAUP Committee Suggests Control Board Change

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

A recommendation calling for removal of institutions of higher learning in Florida from direct political control has been proposed by an FSU faculty committee.

The six member committees on Professional Relations and Standards proposed this be done by reconstituting the State Board of Control from the present seven-laymen membership to a twelve-member board composed of students and faculty.

A standing committee of the FSU chapter of the American Association of Univers. Professors, it also recommended that the president of the local chapter advise the University of Florida chapter of this action and attempt to enlist its support.

All 140 members of the local chapter will vote on a resolution before it can be adopted.

Committee Members

Members of the committee headed by Dr. William Kirk are Mr. Earl Vance, Dr. Carmen Rosers, Dr. Gregg Phifer, Dr. George Yost, and Dr. Kellogg Hunt.

Under the proposed plan, the members of the new board would be educators, including not fewer than two members of the state teachers colleges, the state supported universities.

At present the Board of Control, which supervises the three institutions of higher learning, is composed entirely of laymen with the faculty not being represented. Chairman Kirk said such a board as the committee recommended is ready for it in the State of California.

The recommendation states specifically that the reorganized Board of Control is to have full and final powers to appoint personnel and supervise all activities of the State's system of higher education. If passed, the Board would no longer be responsible to the State Board of Education.

The committee also asked the local chapter's permission to confer or have some other AAUP committee confer with members of the Leon County delegation to the legislature "these groups are to study the best procedure for securing the necessary legislative amendments to the Florida statutes to effectuate the reorganization.

GOP Group In Legislature Speak In Rally

Florida State students will have a chance to bitterly button-hole the entire Republican delegation to the Florida Legislature next Wednesday night.

The FSU chapter of Young Republicans are sponsoring an open Rally in a direct effort to reach the Youth of Florida, according to the group's president, Dan Gorham.

Meeting time is 7:30 p.m. in Longmire.

There will be no formal speeches and the seven legislators will be ready and willing for any discussion, Gorham asserted.

18 Year Old Vote

Noting the Young Republican and GOP plank for 18 year old vote, Gorham said that the question would assuredly be discussed. He said that the issue had failed miserably in Washington last year, but that Young Republican National Federation had the backing of President Eisenhower in push the program in age and all states.

Gorham declared that he was not at all sure whether any member of either the Republican delegation or others had made any public plans to introduce the measure at this session, but added that the Young Republicans on campus have been working on it and are prepared to lobby extensively if it comes up. "But it is almost useless at this time," he said, "if it is undoubtedly fail."

The Republican delegation includes one Senator and six representatives. They are Sen. Houghton of Pinellas, and Reps. Fred C. Peterson, Charles R. Johnson, and B. E. Shaffer, all of Pinellas Also Rep. Coleman of Orange and Reps. Henry Bartholomew and George E. Younsberg, Sarasota.

Declarations Of Candidacy Due Friday

Declarations of candidacy and expense estimates for the coming elections must be filed by 5 p.m. next Friday, elections secretary Betty Willmon said yesterday.

The class primaries will be held Tuesday, May 3; the run-offs a week later.

The deadline for declaring candidacy has been extended to Friday, it was noted. It was originally set for today.

Declarations and expense estimates may be obtained and turned in at the director's desk in Lossmire Building.

Party Convention

State Party Chairman Fred Manifold said that group will hold its convention tomorrow night with registration beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the Greiner Lecture Hall Women students attending as releases will have late permission, he commented.

Student party officials have set their convention for the next day, Thursday, in the Science Lecture Hall, beginning at 6:30.

Offices at stake in the elections for each class will be the president, vice - president, secretary, treasurer and social chairmanship.

Judiciary Members

Three men and three women from the Sophomore Junior and Senior classes of next years will be elected to Judiciary. Two men and two women each from Junior and Senior classes will be elected to the Honor Council. Seats on the traffic court are open to one person from the Sophomore and Junior classes.

Senators—three men and three women from each class—will be elected. The amendment giving Student Senate the power to change the system of representation has not yet been cleared by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, ratified by the group, and acted upon by the Senate.

Jean Hayden Hospitalized After Accident

Easter vacation began with an automobile accident for four FSU coeds, among them IPC Queen Jean Hayden, who is still hospitalized.

Carol Fullerson, Sandspur Queen; Janelle Hall and Dot Cohn were also in the recent model Buick which skidded on rainy roads 17 miles outside of Jacksonville at 4 30 last Thursday afternoon.

They are back in school but Miss Hayden is still in Jacksonville's St. Vincent's Hospital, where her condition was reported "good", yesterday afternoon.

Friends of the girls injured said Miss Fullerson was driving a boyfriend's Buick when the car skidded on roads made slick by rain. The back wheel hit a shoulder throwing it out of control, they said, and it careened across the highway, hitting a tree across the way.

The car was reported completely demolished.

Misses Fullerson, Hall and Cohn were said to have received bad bruises. Miss Hayden is reported to have suffered severe lacerations of the left leg.

Proposed Student Publication Board Goes To Senate

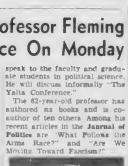
Vanderbilt's Professor Fleming To Speak Twice On Monday

Dr. Donna F. Fleming, Research Professor of International Science at Vanderbilt University, will appear here for two talks Monday.

Called an outstanding authority in international relations, Dr. Fleming will make his appearance under the auspices of the Department of Political Science as its annual lecturer in Political Science.

On Monday morning from 11 to 12 30, in Lonamire Lounge, he will meet with students in comparative government and international relations on the topic, "How Can Germany Be Unified?"

Atomic Arms Race



Monday night at 8 p.m in Longmire Auditorium his subject will be "The Atomic Arms Race." This talk is open and free to the public.

Dr. Fleming has been professor at Vanderbilt since 1928, and in post - World War II Bingham Lecturer at Cambridge University on "Post-War American Foreign Policy." He is widely known for his study on armament subjects.

"He probably knows as much about the atom as any one in existence," said Dr. Vincent Thursby, FSU professor of Political Science.

On Sunday, Dr. Fleming will speak to the faculty and graduate students in political science. He will discuss informally "The Yalta Conference."

The 62-year-old professor has authored six books and is co-author of ten others. Among his recent articles in the Journal of Politics are "What Follows the Arms Race?" and "Are We Moving Toward Fascism?"

D. F. Fleming

Stratton May Introduce Bill On Monday Forcing Grid Clash

Doubts that any agreement is forthcoming over a football clash between the two state universities, may prompt a bill in the Florida Legislature forcing the issue.

Senator Harry Stratton has announced that he will introduce a bill in the Florida Senate Monday if agreement is not reached by then. If passed, it would force Florida State and the University of Florida to meet in football.

At a meeting Monday night, FSU President Doak S. Campbell and UF President Wayne Reitz made no definite agreement.

Agreement Doubtful

Executive secretary of the Central Board J. Reynard Culpepper is reported as saying that there will be another meeting between the two schools shortly, but that it is doubtful that they will reach an agreement before Monday.

Senator Stratton has indicated that his bill would call for an annual athletic battle between the two schools at a neutral field, splitting the profit 50-50.

Expand Facilities

Campbell Stadium at present seats approximately 22,000.

Some observers feel that Stratton's strategy to get his bill through may include threat of a National Collegiate Athletic Association ruling which prohibits members teams from scheduling more than ten games with the exception of bowl games. This ruling, it is believed, could affect UF as a ranking point except that the ruling seems to exempt those games ordered by state law.

FSU Gymkana Troupe Leaves On Road Trip

Florida State University's Gymkana troupe left today for two days of road shows.

First event will be a performance at the state road show competing including the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots at the Marianna High School in Marianna.

The group will perform by special invitation at a convention of the Southern Bakers Association, Saturday night in St. Petersburg. The program consists of 25 specialty acts, dancing, tumbling, gymnastics, comedy stunts and several other events. All acts are original creations of student members of Gymkana.

The troupe will be accompanied by Dr. Hartley Price, faculty committee on arrangements including Janice Everly, Gerry Lesser, Jean Heidt, Kathy Panos, John Byrd, Ray Anthony, Sidney Burr, Barbara Ann Vickers, Pat Hardy and Judy McCoy.

The two trips will be the third and fourth of the season for Gymkana, previous ones being to Winter Haven and the Bydro Gas Corporation in Tallahassee. The Gymkana troupe will return to FSU Sunday afternoon and begin practices for next week's road show in Moultrie, Georgia.

Moore, Gaster Introduce Bill; Editors Speak

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

A proposal to put the student publications under a Board of Publications was given to Student Senate Wednesday.

Naming the editors and business managers of The Florida Flambeau, the Tally-Ho and the Smoke Signals would be among the duties of the proposed board.

Flambeau editor-elect Jaylyn Robertson told the group that if the present proposal drawn up by the editors and staffs of the three publications were not accepted, members of a similar but stiffer nature would be launched by the administration, acting upon certain faculty recommendations

She said also that the plan would put more power into the hands of the publications, be a bulwark against pressure from outside sources, settle shaky publications finances, and ensure that the publications for more effective publication. Miss Robertson added that a board would clear the way for the purchase of a university press to print the Florida Flambeau.

Constitutional Amendment

The measure, which is being drawn up as a constitutional amendment, came in for early criticism from Senator Bob Gatlin. To end discussion, Senator Bill Stanick suggested a committee be appointed to discuss the question with the respective editors.

Named at first to the committee were Senators Fred Manifold and Hank McCann. Vice-president Coyle Moore presiding officer of the Senate said he also would meet with the group.

The plan would set up a Board of three non-student members and five students. The non-student members would consist of a member of the staff of the Department of Student Welfare, another who has had a workable knowledge of business operations of student publications and shall not have the duties of teaching class," and a third from the School of Journalism faculty. They would be appointed by the President of the university.

Five Student Members

The five student members would include the three editors and one man and one woman of junior or senior standing, not affiliated with any of the publications or holding any office in student government. They would apply to the publications, who, voting by staffs, would elect three members to serve for one semester, eligible for reelection.

The chairman would be one of the student members, selected by the President of the University. However, he could excuse himself, endowed with the vote only in case of a tie

The board would select the editors from applicants each Spring.

The Board would consider proposals for impeachment from any two members any university officials, or 100 members of the student body. A three-quarts vote of all voting members would be required for impeachment.

Senator Gatlin immediately

(Continued on Page 3)

Royalty Contestants —FSU entries in the 1955 "Miss Tallahassee" contest are, LaVetra Armstrong, at piano, and l. to r., Louise Pelering, Barbara Evans, June Watson and Ann Purvis.

Board Of Publications

In proposing a Board of Publications to select student editors and to make decisions on all publication matters, we seemed to have raised a bit of controversy.

We want to say we have never wanted a board of publications since we feel the present system of electing editors by student body elections is a democratic way, and represents the choice of the student body.

We have in the past believed that a board of publications would tend to control and censor this newspaper rather than consult and advise.

But it seems now that what we think doesn't make much difference. For in addition to various pressures exerted in student quarters in an attempt to create favorable opinion towards a board of publications there has been a measure recommended to the administration by certain members of the faculty to have a board of publications. This measure was so restrictive in nature that it would have just about meant an end to any semblance of a student newspaper at Florida State University.

We don't have much doubt that it would have been enacted. Moreover, the students could not have done much about it, because it would have probably been swift and quiet.

We have therefore offered to the Student Senate our own measures which we think not only will keep this newspaper in students hands but ascertains its remaining in student hands.

The plan will have a board that consists of five students consisting of each of the student editors and two other students, and three non-student members, either faculty or administration members. The chairman of the board will be a student.

The enactment of this board has created problems, but they can be worked out by the Student Senate and the editors of the respective student publications.

There are some good things to say about a board of publications. It may help in providing a tighter publications organization which would result in better financial conditions, and be a bulwark against pressure from all sources.

The emphasis right now should not be placed on the question of dictatorship and censorship of student publications, but on the rules that this body must work and abide by—for these rules are the safeguards to see that nothing is done by the Board which may be detrimental to student welfare.

Swinging The Cudgel

It looks as if there's finally going to be a football game between the University of Florida and Florida State University.

Because of the atmosphere of force in which this contest is being spawned, we cannot help but look on it with some doubt.

State Sen. Harry Stratton, of Fernandina, is the man with the cudgel. He's all set to introduce in the Legislature a bill which would require a contest to be played every year in Jacksonville, with the proceeds going 50-50.

While we like the idea of splitting the proceeds, and welcome the insurance that the game wouldn't be played every year in Gainesville, with the Seminoles required to do "everything but promise to lose the game," as Coach Tom Nugent phrased it:

We wonder whether passage of a law is the proper way to inaugurate a competitive athletic relationship.

Apparently the powers-that-be share this apprehension, perhaps for different reasons. They are reported to be trying to work out an agreement which would beat Sen. Stratton to the punch, and the Senator has said that if an annual game were agreed to he'd forget about his bill.

We cannot escape the realities of the situation regardless of whatever kind of veneer of cooperation we put on top. FSU and the UF will not enter into athletic competition for the sake of the game. Instead, they'll begin this fight—a carefully chosen word—with the knowledge that the people of the state are looking for a Roman Holiday every football season and expect FSU and UF to provide it.

The time was once when intercollegiate athletics existed solely for the enjoyment and spirit of the student body. This purpose is, regrettably, now a secondary one.

It may seem like crying in the dark to plead for a return to it, but even prominent athletic figures have forecast the end of this athletic colossus.

The birth of competition between FSU and UF calls attention to this situation.

A New Cry

A new motto is echoing among these towering pines, joining such well-known watchwords as "To the Woods" and "Scalp 'em."

The newcomer is "Get up earlier!"

Now why, you may ask, are we to adopt this motto? The answer is very simple. You'll adopt it if you want to eat breakfast in the morning.

There was a visiting group of high school students in the Student Center yesterday morning. They made a long line. It was fun sitting there and watching the faces of FSU students with eight o'clock classes as they came in and reasoned, through observation, that either they would get nothing to eat before class or would go to class late. It was fun, that is, provided you got there before the high-schoolers.

The point is, this is going to reoccur all year. It's the university's Know Your Government Day program which attracts high schools from all over the state. It's a worthy endeavor of course, we may even get a few future students out of it, but if you want to eat in the morning you'll have to get up earlier.

Another Operator Or Two

Would the university please hire another operator or two to help run FSU's switchboard at night? Woe be to the person who has to get an emergency call through. But woe be also to that lone operator — she's probably pretty overworked.

"I'll Just Leave It Here If You Want To Use It"

Letters To The Flambeau

Another Thank You

To the Editor:

To my many friends and supporters who did such a wonderful job in my recent campaign for Secretary of the Senate, let me express my sincere appreciation and gratitude. Since this was my first time in politics, I knew very little about how to run a political campaign. However, you save me the answers to tha many questions that were in my mind, and I feel, even though I lost the election, that it was still a victory in a number of ways.

Stew Bolton and Carmine Ranieri are to be congratulated on their excellent campaigns. I am sure that Carmine will make us a very good Secretary of the Senate.

Again let me say thanks for everything everyone did. My plea is for you to give me that same vote of confidence the next time I run for an office.

Sincerely,
PAT HILTON.

Music Feature

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to tell you of a program I am presenting this coming Sunday on WTNT (7:00 to 7:30 p.m.) that may be of great interest to the students of FSU, particularly those in the School of Music. It consists of, for one, the Tallahassee radio premiere of the Twelve Advanced Studies for the piano by Dr Ernst von Dohnanyi, who composed these in 1951 at Tallahassee. While the good doctor looks upon these as studies primarily, it is also very good music, and not as difficult as it looks.

Also on this program of FSU music (in the broadcast sense of the word) it is my pleasure to give the world premiere of two compositions especially written and dedicate. to me. One, is a very clever transcription of "Dixie" by Dr Franciszek Zachara. The other is a Toccata by a former FSU student, James Yelvinston, and is very much in the modern idiom and fun to play.

During the course of the program I will make an announcement that should be of great interest not to say shock, to my friends and enemies at FSU and Tallahassee in general. I don't hesitate to say what I think on the air, since I don't use a script.

So far I haven't been able to persuade President Doak S. Campbell to play the violin on WTNT this year, but we have made an arrangement that such a performance will happen on January 1, 2000 A.D. Our "modern" friends might be interested to know that we will put on the air very shortly some compositions by Julius von Dohnanyi (Dr. Dohnanyi's son) that should be unique. They are: "Einstein Sonata," "Knuten Suite," "The Marilyn Monroe Sextette," "Atomic Nocturne" and to cap everything off a "Sonata For Fireworks in One Blast." It will be unlike anything you have heard before, assuming that the transmitter doesn't blow up.

Sincerely Yours,
JONATHAN BOWERS

Spillane And Wylie

To the Editor:

In the February issue of Good Housekeeping magazine there is an excellent criticism of Mickey Spillane concerning the man and his morals as reflected in his writings and his private life. The author of this article, Philip Wylie, brilliantly upholds and defends the high ideals in the ethics of literature by illustrating how Spillane deviates from practically every true ethical principle in order to reproduce his distorted effect of sensationalism in the mind of the reader. Furthermore, Philip Wylie presents a true-to-life character analysis of Spillane as an ignorant, egotistical fool who is trying to make everyone believe as he and his characters believe, and he shows what a turmoil the world would be in if everyone did. The author holds to the theory that the only anecdote for such cheap, low-brow literature is a more educated public with an ordinary amount of common sense and ethical values.

I would heartily recommend that everyone read this article for the contrasting ideals of the two men and the ethical principles involved therewithin, and then judge for themselves the character of each. If everyone does this, Mr. Wylie will surely receive a warm reception in his appearance at Westcott Auditorium Friday afternoon.

Yours Sincerely,
SHELDON MUSGROVE

WHAT COMES AFTER A— THE PRETZEL LOOK?

(ACP)—Christian Dior's new "A" look got this unhappy review from Joan Misiewicz, feature writer for the Simmons College News, at Boston:

We were a little too young for his "new look," a little older for his "flat look," yet not old enough for his "H-bomb look." Now that we have finally made it, we don't have to put up with his "A" look!

Spring fashions, 1955, present the "A" line — slender shoulders for the apex, sides slanting to a full base, with the "A" crossing anywhere on the waistline from the high empire to the low medieval. But who wants to look like an upside down ice cream cone?

Not only has he created the "A" line for us, but also the tunic and the cut-a-way. The cut-a-way comes closest to the "Q" look because it features swallow tails in the back emphasized by slanted tabs on hips. This style is so becoming to the short girls—all tails, no skirt. Economical, at least!

I wonder what will happen when he gets to "G" or "S"? Will Monsieur Dior make us females into a pretzel or a snake? Take your pick.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

Lately It Seems

All's Not Bad In Education World

By ORCHID ALONSO

Cooperation is a magical term in most any field imaginable. Cooperation, however, should be the basic factor involving the much abused and little understood controversy over liberal arts versus practical education.

In almost every case, either the advocates of either system are too emotional to give a clear picture, or the innocent bystander is too ignorant of the facts to fully understand them.

As things stand now, anyone who advocates complete abandonment of an educational curricula for a teaching program in favor of liberal arts is telling only half the story. In the same respect, anyone who would concentrate on methodology to the complete betrayal of the liberal arts is telling only half the story. Add these two halves, and you have cooperation of the kind that can produce tolerably well prepared educators to guide the paths of the youth.

In so far as can be seen, the only objection elted in any recent attacks on the school of education's curricula is based on the preponderous of courses required. A well taken point, never-the-less, it is too easy to say but not so easy to understand.

On analysis, the students who complain of the curriculum are in the minority. These are the students who feel that to a great extent they are wasting their time when they could be taking other courses along their major lines (especially in the secondary field). Their gripe is this: they learn, yes, but they are expected to learn too little in too much time.

This poses a delicate problem which is too delicate to go into blinded with emotion. Unequal certification requirements among states, and poor salaries are helping to reduce the number of teachers, or at least to hinder acquiring the needed number of them. This brings in a problem of mass production and its evil—quality versus quantity.

It is this problem the schools of education have to deal w... They are caught in the dirge ... accepting the responsibility of producing acceptable educators and in order to do this they must come down to the level of the preponderance of students. For those few who feel that they can learn in one course what they have to review in three, there are more than can be happily noted who would not grasp the educators "half of the story."

If, as one student put it, the curriculum for teacher training is deplorable, we say make the most of it. As long as disinterest, apathy and salaries remain as they are, the safeguard of the children of the state will depend (a great real more than we care to rejoice in) in the amount of method and comprehension courses utilized. We shudder to say it, but it is by far not a minority of the education students who might as well be stifled by the cumbersome load. We doubt whether these students would benefit from additional courses in the arts and sciences.

The Dissenter

Freedom Can't Be Carried Halfway

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

While most people never question the religion into which they are born, and others change their faith, a few never choose to admit the existence of a Supreme Being.

Beset with criticisms, ostracism, compulsion and even persecution, and no doubt troubled within themselves at times, they remain atheists.

The latest is that someone made a suggestion over a radio program that the Legislature should provide for the investigation of atheism as well as Communism.

The Legislature has a bill authorizing the Attorney General to conduct a study of Communism. Fortunately there is no bill pertaining to atheism.

Such a suggestion is at once ridiculous and tragic. Ridiculous: How do you "investigate" atheism? Tragic: So many people think in such a circumscribed way.

When it comes to investigating atheism, a line must very definitely be drawn.

Suppose a legislature decided to investigate any one particular sect, or even attempt to afford political recognition to it. (Such as the attempt to send Mark Clark to the Vatican as an ambassador, which Congress killed because of the popular outcry.)

In either case, there'd be overwhelming objections.

Religious freedom implies the right not to believe in a god, as well as the right to express a faith without fear of reprisal.

An atheist is not necessarily a communist or a reprobate. He may be quite moral and ethical, holding among the highest of his principles a dislike for hypocrisy.

If such a man is forced into a profession of religious faith, he is made into a hypocrite. If he has character he will underso the unpleasantness. If he lacks it, he will exhibit the formalities of religion, but anyone who thinks that these formalities will make the atheist religious or do him any good are sadly in error.

Why investigate a man because he doesn't believe in a god? Isn't it his right to think and act as he pleases? Doesn't he have religious freedom?

Some will reply, "Yes, but—" to this question. Religious freedom of course, they say, freedom to believe. This is like saying a man has freedom of speech, although he's going to lose his head for what he says.

While it is true that Communism, a dogma essentially thought-controlling in nature, discourages religion, one cannot say that all atheists are communists, any more than one can say that anybody who looks up to his religious leader is disloyal to this country.

This is no place to debate the merits of religion, which in essence is entirely a personal matter, although I do believe that a person who admits no other power or factor in life other than biological mortality is missing something.

We mustn't go along with the idea, however, that freedom can be carried halfway and only to certain people. When we start investigating and persecuting men who cannot honestly say they believe in a god we are making a mockery of the word freedom.

I could point out that persecuting the irreligious paves the way for persecution of the faithful, but this is the practical, the legal, argument. Let us say that thought control is never, never justified. That is the human argument.

Reflections

Just Salute Your Texbook Instead

By OSCAR JOHNSON

How would you like to have a color replica of the Florida State Flag inside each of your textbooks?

It may never happen here but the State Legislature has been considering a project to display the flag in all textbooks given to students in the public schools of Florida.

We aren't complaining about the fact that institutions of higher education will possibly be excluded from this bill. Naturally we all greatly desire to be greeted with a flaming duplicate of the Florida state flag emblazoned in all its splendor on the inside of each book we open. Still, however, there are more important things to discuss.

For example, there's the economy angle. Under the system proposed, the state would no longer need to buy American flags to place in its school rooms. Each child could just salute his textbook, safe in the knowledge that he was properly displaying pride in his state. We calculate this will have Florida $340,987.00 per year.

Next, there's the advantage of precedent. Once we have started along this line (flags in textbooks), it's only a short step to singing "Suwannee River" at some appropriate time, like before each meal.

There's one drawback — the whole thing may be a plot engineered by the Republicans. We hate to cast the project upon the muddy waters of politics to see whether it sinks or floats. Such is not the way to determine its value. But we remember hearing a slogan once: "It's time for a change." A connection . . .?

Don't assume we are set against any form of politics. We were instrumental in forming the Young Marxists, Socialists and Beer Drinkers on campus. As is indicated by the word "socialists," it is a social organization as well as political. Our participation in this club shows we harbor no grudge against parties.

Now, to get back to flags and textbooks, we see no reason why the same notables in the Legislature don't make Tallahassee the religious mecca of Florida. After all, it's the state capital. Besides that, there is no excuse for semi-annual or annual pilgrimages to be enjoyed only by a few. This is a democracy and it should be kept that way.

That would be a project that would really affect FSU. We would have to change our habits to allow for the increased emphasis on religion. We might even have to dismiss football games as being pagan.

Yes, it might take time to get used to the new program. But think of its effect on state pride.

A Better Measure

Comparison Shows Up Salaries

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

"Truckdrivers and hairdressers are making more money than college and university professors and instructors," stated an FSU professor during a American Association of University Professors meeting last semester.

Asserting that the long and expensive undergraduate and graduate school preparation for teaching and research positions on a faculty today was not understood by the general public, the professor advocated a "consistent" program of education to bring these facts before the public.

Along this same theme, newly appointed President J. Wayne Reitz of the University of Florida told the Senate Appropriations Committee Monday that an increase in pay was far more important than the addition of new buildings on campus, even though urgently needed. He asked the value of such buildings without the proper teaching staff to instruct the students.

Dr. Reitz said the university needs all of the $1,350,000 requested for merit increases "because if we take the chance of skimming off our bright faculty members, we're losing the cream."

Here at Florida State University, many students in the School of Education and the College of Arts and Sciences are closely watching the debate in the state legislature over increasing teacher's salaries. To many it will prove interesting whether Florida teachers' salaries are increased $200 or $250. The "skimming off" of future faculty members in our schools could be at stake.

A study of nation-wide figures shows that Florida rates only 35th from the top among the 48 states in support of its schools. Florida spends yearly $230 per pupil while in comparison the state of Wyoming, one of the smaller and poorer states, spends $380 per pupil.

Delaware spends $335 while the states of Connecticut, Illinois, Minnesota, Montana, New Jersey, Oregon, Rhode Island, and Washington range from $308 to $340. The average for the nation being $261. The only two things in Education that Florida is high in is its high rating in having well trained teachers, by normal standards, and that its children stay in school longer than many states.

What is of interest to many Florida college students is the comparison made between the University of Florida and twenty universities for the period of 1952-53 in relation to teachers salaries. This comparison, which included such colleges as Washington and Lee, Tulane, West Virginia, University of Michigan, University of Iowa, Purdue, Ohio State and others showed their professors being paid $2,490 over what University of Florida professors were receiving. The twenty universities salaries being for 1951-52 and Florida 1952-53.

For the same period an Associate Professor at the other universities earned $569 more, while an Assistant Professor received $527 over that paid a UF Assistant Professor.

Students would like to know if this same ratio is still in effect, and what has been done to reduce it. With more luxuriate positions being offered in other professions and the seemingly unwillingness of the state to increase teachers' salaries, these students could not be held accountable for their turning away from the field of Education upon graduating.

Etcetera Etchings

Surface Noise Now Rated Tops

We've heard reports that the SURFACE NOISE tagged onto this slop is the most-read part of this column, so today's edition is dedicated to those readers who like to see dots before their eyes.

By DAVID DREIS

MOVIES . . . Rory Calhoun exposed in one of those 'Inside' magazines as an ex-convict is getting his lover-boy roles swiped . . . instead, Calhoun is besieged with villain roles—something he's been trying to get for years, but producers said he wasn't "the type." . . . Henry Fonda already being groomed for next year's Oscar publix is returning to full-time screen work with Mr. Roberts his stage sock-o . . . The fella playing the Captain in the pix is Jimmy Cagney . . . Sammy Davis, Jr. and Ertha Kitt . . may be teamed in a film together for Twentieth Century Fox . . . Jack Carson set for a heavy-drama in a forthcoming film . . . The John Wayne-Janet Leigh film "Jet Pilot" made for Howard Hughes over two years ago set for a release this year . . . She plays a Russian woman—that's why it was stopped with Red Tape . . . Gordon MacRae who hosted some screen stars on his video show thinks the box-office names are "fixed" . . . can't believe Tony Curtis is in there . . . By the way, Steve Allen of video replaces Curtis in "The Benny Goodman Story" . . .

TELEVISION . . . Alfred Hitchcock is almost set for a television contract . . . he may direct "The Mark Hellinger Theater" which would be some teaming . . . Eddie Fisher may do Irving Berlin's life on a television extravaganza . . . if it's good, it'll be filmed for the movies . . . Television's reputation for eating-up comedians is wondering where to go after George Gobel who's the top rage in the business now . . . Jackie Gleason's Enterprises is booming almost as much as the boss is booming . . . Milton Berle is starting his own "Enterprises" . . . may back a talent show with a race against young comics . . . Dave Brubeck may be on The Colgate Comedy Hour next month . . . show may feature him in regularly if the networks feel they can peddle his talents . . .

RADIO . . . Rudy Vallee's return to the airwaves is pretty dismal and Bing Crosby's radio program is too relaxed to be anything but mediocre . . . when Crosby talks about life, the Academy Awards and such, he brings it out of the Doldrums . . . WTNT featuring the Mutual Network's mysteries . . . Phil Davis' late-night patter with a background of Lionel Hampton or some-such musician is strictly okay . . . Record Jury's new time is 8:30 Saturday nights on WTNT . . . tomorrow night's panel includes Ryan Edwards, Miriam Rosch, Dorothy Womble, Duane Lancester and Harold Poe . . .

RECORDS: Percy Faith's album "House of Flowers" disappointing . . . the RCA Victor album covers will sell the records even if the discs stink . . . Look to "Whatever Lola Wants" to hit the big-time. . . . Percy Faith's single record "Land of the Pharoahs" is fine, but Frankie Laine's warbling of "Man Without A Star" from the picture should be in the top-ten . . . He sings it as the background just like "Blowing Wild" . . . Johnny Ace's "Pledging My Love" is raking in the loot in both pop and R&B areas . . . the boy's been dead for a couple months now . . . killed himself playing Russian Roulette . . .

ODDZENDS: The Panic magazine now has a seal of approval . . . this latest issue is great . . . the cover as wonderful as usual . . . All the old super-men are coming back in the comic books. . . . How do I know? According to reports most college students read 'em . . . Those Columbia starlets are terrific . . . we saw them in some magazine . . . Playmate magazine is a hypoed Esquire . . . bummm . . . silence.

The Florida Flambeau

Bob Folsom, Editor

Jay Robertson, News Editor
Asst. News Editors .... Oscar Johnson, Martin Dyckman
Sports Editors .... Bob Gutting, Dick Victory
Sports Staff .... Alan Whitmarsh, Harry Bernard
Amusement Editor .... David Dreis
Photographer .... Laird Anderson

Joe Caldwell, Business Mgr.
Assistant Business Manager .... Irma Cox
Exchange Editor .... John Halford
Assistant Exchange Editor .... Susan Hyde
Distribution .... Members of Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity

Telephone 2-8000, extension 6821
211, 213 Longmire Building
Member Associated Collegiate Press

Orchid Alonso, Mgr. Editor
Copy Editors .... Pat Marston, Willie Smith
Rewrite Editor .... Margaret Miller
Art Consultant .... Franklin Adams
Cartoonist .... Con Horn
Junior Staff .... Jerome Bernstein, Marty Reeves, Ann Stanley, Jeri Bradfield, Charlet Poitevint, Pat Brady, Tann Hammond

Mary Liz King, Adv. Mgr.
Asst Adv Mgr .... Nina Rula
Business Staff .... Jeanetta Puckett, Mary Dressler

Nationally Represented by National Advertising Service, 420 Madison Ave., New York 17.
The Florida Flambeau is published twice weekly by students of Florida State University.

Volleyball Team At LSU Tonight

Florida State's Southern collegiate volleyball champions shoot for their 21st win of the season at Baton Rouge, La., tonight in a match with strong LSU.

The Seminoles, cream of the state's collegiate volleyballers, are enjoying one of their best seasons ever. The Indians are 20-5 on the season and also claim the Florida AAU championship.

Nationally, Coach Bill Odell's charges are ranked with such teams as California, UCLA, Washington, and George Williams.

The LSU affair will serve as one of a series of w.-tim-us-the national collegiate meet set for May 11 at Norman, Oklahoma.

Didn't Compete

The Seminoles didn't compete the event last year, but placed fifth in 1953. FSU captured fifth place in both the 1951 and 1952 tournaments.

One of the relatively few sports which places volleyball on an intercollegiate sports program, FSU has produced five All-Americans since the sport was adopted in 1949.

Charles Floyd was named to the honor squad in 1950 and 1951. George Edmiston also made it in '51 while Howard Gould and Ronnie Hambrick gained berths in 1952. Gould repeated in 1953 along with Dick Bauer.

Four current Seminoles loom as All-America candidates this spring—spikers Phil Staten and Lole Lazear plus set-up men Wally Cox and Ray Johnson.

Other FSU squad members who'll see action on the LSU trip are Bernie McCann, Eugene Lewis, Jack Mergens, Jack Pritchett, John Fitch, and Matthew Sullivan.

Wesley Plans Speakers For New Program

A new type of program has been planned at the Methodist Student House beginning April 21 after devotion, students will be divided into five discussion groups with speakers appearing in each group.

Dan Guthridge will lead a discussion on drama and movies with Austin Holladay will direct a seminar on "Little Words. Big Ideas." Miss Daisy Parker, Political Science professor at FSU, will speak a talk, "A Curriculum for Christians."

Samuel, Yes And No. Then, will be the subject of H. B. Lee from Alcoholic Rehabilitation Clinic with Mrs. Shelbie leading comments on Race Relations. The subjects and topics will be carried over to the following Sunday.

Fellowship on April 27, Mr. Roger Cartwright, guest of the Student House, will present a program of songs interspersed with scripture and prayer. Mr. Cartwright will begin t.-pro- at 6:15.

Mr. Cartwright has previously been in Shanghai, China and has spent ten years in the Florida Oratorio Society. Last year he sang at the Florida Conference.

The student house will sponsor a party Saturday evening, April 26 at the coast. The bus will take students will leave 5 p.m. and return sometime after midnight.

DELUXE LAUNDRY, INC.
Offers:
Beautiful Shoe Finishing
Expert Dry Cleaning
All Work Done on Premises
Call
2-8611
614 West Tennessee Street
One Block From Senior Hall

FSU Meets Hurricanes At Coral Gables

Florida State and Miami, both hopeful of winning the first Sunshine Intercollegiate Conference baseball championship, renew their colorful rivalry at Coral Gables this afternoon in the opener of a two-game weekend series.

Miami, off to one of its fastest starts, and FSU, enjoying one of its better seasons, haven't met since 1952. The Seminoles have won three of four previous games with Miami.

Sporting a 7-1 record, Miami is expected to use its top pitcher, Junior Jack Marshost (2-0), in the series opener today. Coach Chuck Siemsen (1-0) or Len Scorza (2-1) will pitch the Saturday game for Perry Moss' Hurricanes.

Florida State, which owned an 11-3 record after a 7-2 series-opening triumph over 1954 NCAA finalist Houston this week, will counter with southpaw John Ash (2-1) or Max Long (3-2).

Coached by former National League outfielder Danny Litwhiler, State will carry a 320 batting average into the Miami series. First baseman Fred Twomey, with five doubles, four triples and four home runs, is FSU's individual leader with a .460 mark.

Another Honor—Being tapped for Gold Key is the latest feather in the cap of Jim Holder, FSU's gymnastic ace.

Tracksters Ready For Florida AAU

FSU's young track squad mixes it up with some of the strongest competition they'll face this year when they travel to Gainesville tomorrow to participate in the Florida AAU.

Coach Mike Long will take 11 lettermen, including Joe Davis, Jerry Bivas, Carlos Fraunfelder, Jerry Jacobs, Lloyd Lasseter, Mike Smith, Warren Strickland, Charles Watson and Ronald Weaver.

BURTON HEADS ENGLISH JOURNAL

Dr. Dwight L. Burton, associate professor of language and literature, has been named editor of the English Journal, official high school magazine of the National Council of Teachers of English.

The appointment was announced by Dr. John C. Gerber, professor of English at the University of Iowa and president of the National Council of Teachers of English. The offices of the magazine will be moved to the FSU campus this summer.

Seifert Recital In Opperman Monday Night

Marion Seifert, soprano, will give a graduate recital Monday at 8:15 p.m in Opperman Music Hall.

A student of Rita Robertson, she will be accompanied by Barbara Sapp at the piano. Numbers she will aim are. "As When the Dayspring Lauheth" by Handel; "A Serpina Pensierosetta" by Pergolesi and "Mene Tochter. We ist Meine Tochter" by Gluck.

Also, "Frühlingstraum." "Auf dem Wasser Zu Singen." "Sie Mir Gegenust" and "Unedulld" by Schubert; "Exultate Jubilate" by Mozart; "L'invitation au Voyage" by Duparc and "Rossigols Amoureux" by Rameau.

Also, "Chanson Triste" by Duparc. "Les Papillons" by Chausson; "Water Mill" by Vaughan Williams. Music I Heard With You" by Hageman. "Moon-Trickery" by Weaver and "Midsommer" by Worth.

NOTED SPEAKER

Charles Wells, Associated Press columnist, illustrator, and world traveler will speak today and tomorrow in Tallahassee.

Today's well-known speaker will deliver a talk today at the Trinity Methodist Church on "God Conquers Communism Behind the Iron Curtain" at 6 p.m.

Tomorrow his topic will be "Our New Secret Weapon" at the Trinity Methodist Church at the same time. Wells' appearance in Tallahassee was arranged through the auspices of the Tallahassee Ministerial Alliance.

Seminole Squad Splits Two With Rollins Nine

The Rollins Tars scored seven runs in the first two innings against FSU Wednesday afternoon at Winter Park and then coasted to a 9-2 victory in the second meeting of a two-game series. FSU had won the first, Tuesday, 7-2, behind the tight pitching of freshman star Tommy Garcia.

The Tars, finalists in last year's NCAA tournament, pounded Jim Atwood, George Hehomann and Max Long for 12 hits, while winning pitcher Art Brophy was holding the losers in check with seven hitless.

The defeat was the fourth for the Seminoles. They have won 11, including a pair from a sitting Wisconsin team.

The victory, Tuesday, was the fifth straight for the diminutive Garcia, a Port Myers product. He hasn't lost yet.

The game Tuesday was called at the end of eight innings because of rain.

Best In State

Garcia is currently the best hurler record-wise in the state. He's yielded only four earned runs in 39 innings.

Five players placed a major role with the bat for the Tribe. Phil Hunt rapped three singles in four times at bat; and Hank Wenzke, Jim Barton, Fred Twomey and Garcia each cracked two hits, Twomey delivering a key two-run double in the big third inning when the Tribe tallied four times.

Twomey now has 18 runs batted in in 12 games.

Rollins 6, FSU 2

FSU	000 011 001—3	7	2
Rollins	250 020 00x—9	12	2

Atwood, Hehemann (2), Long (6) and Vaughn, Ashley (8); Brophy and Finnisan.

FSU 7, ROLLINS 3

FSU	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
Wenzke, rf-lf	5	1	2	1	0	0
Hunt, lf	5	0	1	2	0	0
Barton, 3b	5	1	2	1	2	0
Hendrix, 2b	4	0	0	3	0	0
Twomey, 1b	4	1	2	7	0	0
Long, c	4	0	0	6	0	0
Hodges, rf	4	0	0	0	0	0
Garcia, cf	4	0	0	0	0	0
Hunt, ss	4	0	1	3	3	0
Garcia, p	4	0	1	0	1	0
Totals	41	3	9	24	6	0

ROLLINS	AB	R	H	PO	A	E
Hehemann, c	4	1	1	5	1	0
Parsons, 1b	4	1	2	7	0	0
Beller, lf	4	1	2	1	0	0
Fabiarisz, cf	4	2	2	2	0	0
Vaneha, ss	3	0	0	1	2	0
Mansfield, 1b	4	0	1	1	0	0
Lott, rf	3	0	1	1	0	0
Brett, 3b	3	1	1	0	4	0
a-Richmond	0	0	0	0	0	0
Brophy, p	3	0	0	0	2	0
Totals	37	6	10	18	9	0

a-Struck out for Carr in 9th.

FSU	200 010 02—5	11	1
ROLLINS	400 010 20—7	10	0

ABs—Wenzke 2, Twomey 2, Gardner, Hendrix, Mac Garcia, Hodges, Long, Hunt 2—Hehemann, Parsons, Beller, Fabiarisz, Vaneha, Mansfield, Lott, Brett, Richmond, Brophy 2.

Runs batted in—Twomey 4, Gardner, Hendrix, Mac Garcia, Hodges, Long, Hunt 2—Hehemann, Parsons 2, Beller, Fabiarisz, Vaneha, Mansfield, Lott, Brett, Brophy 2.

2-base hits—Gardner, Twomey, Hodges, Long, Hunt, Garcia, Hehemann, Parsons, Beller, Fabiarisz, Vaneha, Mansfield, Lott, Brett.

3-base hits—Twomey 2, Mac Garcia.

Home runs—Twomey 2.

Sacrifices—Hendrix, Mansfield.

Double plays—Hendrix, Hunt, Twomey; Vaneha, Parsons.

Left on bases—FSU 7, Rollins 7.

Bases on balls—Off Garcia 1, Brophy 1.

Struck out—By Garcia 3, Brophy 3.

Hits—Off Garcia 9 in 7 innings, Brophy 2 in 2 innings.

Losing pitcher—Brophy.

Umpires—Bonk, Berry and Jack Venhie. FSU has rolled over Rollins. Maxwell AFB, Davidson, Auburn, Georgia and Kentucky. The only loss was to Georgia Tech.

Coach Don Veller's sextet holds an 8-4 lifetime edge over Stetson, one of their oldest rivals. The series began in 1948. State belted Rollins 14½-12½ in the season opener.

Ten FSU Students Tapped Recently By Phi Beta Kappa

Ten persons were tapped into the Florida State University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa in ceremonies last week.

Those selected are G. Donn Teal, Phoebe A. Jackson, A. F. Beechert, Peter Nicholas Brickland, Charles Watson and Ronald Weaver.

Phi Beta Kappa is a national honorary scholastic society, founded at the College of William and Mary in Virginia in 1776. Its primary purpose is recognition of scholastic achievement, and a 2.5 overall average is required for consideration for membership.

Initiation will be held May 2 at 4:30 p.m. in Main Lounge, Longmire Building. Followed by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. in the Suwannee Room. Principal speaker at the banquet will be Dr. Sidney French, Dean of Rollins College.

FSO Examination Deadline Is May 2

The Department of State Foreign Service Officers Examination will be given June 24 throughout the U.S.

Closing date for the receipt of application cards and examination is May 2, 1958. Students interested in participating may mail applications to the department's board of examiners for the foreign service, unmarked Palmer Building to submit the application by deadline will eliminate candidates from competing for the examination on June 24.

Information pamphlets, sample questions from the examination and application forms are available at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement or may be obtained by writing the Board of Examiners for the Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington 25, D. C.

More than 678,000 persons were injured in weekend traffic accidents last year.

Tribe Junior Varsity Faces Graceville Nine

Florida State's junior varsity baseball team, almost as talented as its varsity counterpart, gets a stern test against a young eager Graceville Club of the Class D Alabama-Florida League this weekend.

The Baby Seminoles, coached by former Seminole catcher Bob Wynn, will engage the professional nine in single games at Graceville tonight and tomorrow afternoon.

FSU's varsity baseballers, enjoying one of their finest seasons, will be busy at the opposite end of the state with a two-game series at Miami Friday and Saturday.

A 21-player Baby Seminole squad—eight pitchers, four catchers, four infielders, five outfielders—are making the Graceville trip.

Pitchers Frank Shuser, Ralph Rhodes, Rudy Hall, Frank Kenney and Vernon Mathis, and southpaws Tony Avitable, John Bristol, and Robert Rousell are available for Seminole pitching chores.

Golfers Traveling To DeLand Today To Meet Rollins

Florida State's well-turned golfers face Stetson at DeLand today in the first of a two-match invasion of Central Florida. The Indians host the Hatters match with Rollins at Winter Park.

Today's opener will find the Seminoles looking for their seventh win in eight starts. Led by lettermen Bunk Berry and Jack Venhie, FSU has rolled over Rollins, Maxwell AFB, Davidson, Auburn, Georgia and Kentucky. The only loss was to Georgia Tech.

Coach Don Veller's sextet holds an 8-4 lifetime edge over Stetson, one of their oldest rivals. The series began in 1948. State belted Rollins 14½-12½ in the season opener.

Publication Board

(Continued from Page 1)

questioned the necessity of a provision for executive-closed-sessions at the discretion of the Board with all members present. He also asked if the Board would have power to dictate editorial policy.

Not A Censor Board

Miss Robertson said it would be a review board, not a censorship group. Gaskin added that the wording of the measure "needs some clarification."

Gaskin said he agreed on the question of financial resolution but expressed doubts as to the rest.

Miss Robertson also raised the issue that the students on the board, representative of the publications, would be better qualified to name an editor than the student body.

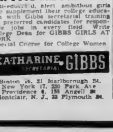
"Half of the student body," she said, "doesn't realize who works." She referred to the elections as "popularity contests."

"The main thing is to keep it in the control of the students, not the way the faculty wants to put it down on our necks," she said.

Senator Jimmy Joanos suggested a board be given financial responsibility only and not the job of naming the editor, leaving that to the students.

Senator Jimmy Gates responded that such a provision would not be accepted by the faculty.

Being In Professionalism



Tally-Ho editor Jim Broderick told the Senate that selection of editors by a board "will bring in a professional element."

He echoed Miss Robertson's comments that the Board would be a better judge of qualifications than the voters

Senator Joanos questioned whether the Flambeau, which he referred to as an opinion-making organ, should be far removed from the ballot box.

The measure is to come up next week for its second reading. Unless strenuous objections force a postponement, a vote should take place at that time.

A welcome note of bi-partisanship is seen in the sponsorship of the bill: Vice-president Coyle Moore and men's vice-president Gordon Gaster, who opposed each other in the recent presidential campaign, won by Moore.

For a JOB with a FUTURE
Well-educated, alert, ambitious girls who supplement their college education with Gibbs secretarial training are in demand by business and industry. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK booklet.
Special Course for College Women
KATHARINE GIBBS
Boston, 21, 21 Marlborough St.
New York 6, 230 Park Ave.
Providence 6, 155 Angell St.
Montclair, N. J., 33 Fremont St.

Church News

RUGE SLATES SPECIAL SERVICE

Holy Communion will be distributed this Sunday at 8 a. m., followed by a morning prayer and sermon to be given by Chaplain Waller at 11 a. m. at Ruge.

That evening at 6 the Canterbury Hour will feature a talk and discussion led by Chaplain Waller, on "The Nature of A Sacrament."

MARTIN SPEAKS AFTER SUPPER

Wednesday, April 23, a Family Night supper will be held in the Westminster House at 6 p.m. Immediately following the supper, Dr. Martin will speak on "The Resurrection" at Holy Communion.

A Christian Vocational Conference at Silver Lake will start Friday, April 25, and will last through Saturday afternoon. Dr. Martin, one of four distinguished speakers, will talk on "Time".

INTRAMURAL NEWS

By HARRY BERNARD

Both the Fraternity and Dormitory intra-mural bowling tournaments are well under way. So far the Fraternities have bowled three rounds in the double elimination tournament. The winners of each round are determined by the best scores of a two out of three games series.

In the first round, Kappa Alpha, Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Pi Kappa Alpha, Delta Tau Delta, and Sigma Nu were all victorious.

In the second round the winners were: ATO, TC, PKP, TEP, DTD, and SC. The results of the third round have not yet been received.

Tennis

Finishing up in the Fraternity doubles tennis tournament, Tau Epsilon Phi, the only undefeated team in the double elimination tournament, must play Sigma Alpha Epsilon, whom they have already met and defeated, in order to determine the winner.

In the TEPs win then will be declared the winners, if SAE wins then an extra match will be necessary.

The Schedule for the Fraternity softball for the coming week is as follows:

Field No.	April 14	Field No.	April 18
	5:00 p.m.		5:00 p.m.
1.	PDT-KA	1.	KS-SPE
2.	TC-DTD	2.	TEP-KA
3.	SC-SN	3.	PKA-PDT
	6:30 p.m.		6:30 p.m.
1.	ATO-LCA	1.	SAE-SN
	8:30 p.m.		8:30 p.m.
1.	PKP-PDT	1.	TC-LCA

The schedule for the Dormitory softball for the coming week is as follows:

Field No.	April 14	Field No.	April 20
	5:00 p.m.		5:00 p.m.
1.	Magnolia Air Force	1.	Seminole-Rebels
2.	Pirates Rebels	2.	Magnolia-Sr. Hall
3.	Baptist-Sr. Hall	3.	Pirates-Methodists
	8:15 p.m.		8:15 p.m.
1.	Day Students-Methodists	1.	Baptists-Day Students.

Co-op Living Is Grand

Eight Men Man Works Well

By MARY, MAG, DEF.

Oh boy, oh boy, girls, don't let the latter confuse you! we've found the ideal man—and right here on the FSU campus. He cooks, he sews, he keeps a neat home, he's attractive, polite and has ambition.

No, we're not teasing. We've really found him.—And not only that, there are eight of these perfect men. You say, "Why haven't we seen them?" The answer is the simple. They abide in the haven of west campus. But don't let that disillusion you. There are always buses—as we discovered yesterday when we three started out for our first big interview with the new officers of the Cooperative Living Organization. Fortunately, as we boarded our third bus, we ran into the parliamentarian, of the born not together and boards this noble group, Paul Ramey. He immediately after several sugary sweetsters undertook the job of official guide.

House Is Neat

I think our greatest surprise was the neatness of the place. . . (No slur intended, boys.) Each occupant has a spacious single room with a cot, dresser, desk, mirror, and closet space. In addition there is a living room for the use of the FSU campus. He cooks, he all and a large kitchen.

As to cooking and washing dishes, each boy cooks two meals a week and washes dishes twice a week. Quiet hours are observed and in the interest of maintaining complete feeling of unity and consideration that is lacking in many larger groups.

To top off all this—it's economical—And what an understatement that is. The rent for the house is $20 a month and divided eight and by the number of months in the month. The food, Ramey estimated, comes to about $4.00 a week. At the beginning of the year all the born not together and boards this noble group, Paul Ramey. He a washing machine second hand—problems. Now they even have an a utility room with facilities for thing.

Membership Limited

Membership is contingent on a vote by all and is limited to ten due to lack of facilities for more. As we passed by the news board we could not help noticing the many applications for membership in this exclusive organization.

After having read this, it sounds as though the group is perfect, but in the final analysis we find one thing missing—the woman's touch. But for some reason the boys don't appreciate our suggestions of flowers in the rooms and organdy curtains at the windows. In fact, when we started mentioning those things they politely reminded us that we had better hurry as our bus was leaving. But another day will come!

Brus Davis, president, James Geoghagen, vice-president; Theodore Walden, secretary; Louis Bashaw, business manager-treasurer, Paul Ramey, parliamentarian and women's guide), and Niles Bashaw, social chairman, are the remaining officers of this masculine cluster with the remainder (we not in official capacity by choice.

OUT EARLY—Shown are a group of restless FSU students, thought to be waiting for Sunrise services. Are you the person in the circle? If so, send five dollars to this paper, and tha Dean of Men will tell you your name.

For more pure pleasure... SMOKE CAMELS!
No other cigarette is so rich-tasting, yet so mild!
P. S. No other brand has ever been able to match the pure pleasure in Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos — one of the reasons why Camels are America's most popular cigarette!
R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Campus Sing Brings Musical Thoughts

By MARGARET MILLER

Music fills the air these days as Greeks frantically use all spare moments to rehearse songs for Campus Sing which is coming up May 13. Preparations are also being made for in advance by Greeks for Circus weekend, when prospective rushees will be entertained. The number one problem is securing enough beds for all the high school students invited.

The Pi Phis asked the SAEs workers have discovered the exto come into the United States over to their house wednesday night for a Kiddy party, which means just what it says. The girls dolled up in short skirts and sashes, the men in short pants and little-boy caps. The Pi Phis are now scouting around for shirts to invite to their weekend with the desert theme. The weekend is scheduled annually with the KAs weekend, occurring April 22-24.

The KAs will start their big parade Friday, April 22, forming at the Floridan Hotel and ending at Bryan Hall, where mock secession ceremonies will be held. Antimp, ban of this fabulous weekend is stimulated by the novel sight on the fastgrowing beards of the KAs.

The KDs entertained the KAs last night in true Southern style with a "mint julep" party on their veranda. The KD pledges were also hostesses to the Theta and Pi Phi pledges at a theater party Wednesday night.

Gamma Phi Beta's honored their Province Director, Mrs. Lawrence Cooper recently at a Desert Party. Many alumni were present.

The Delta Zeta's are celebrating their weekend, beginning today. They will have a picnic supper and square dance at Silver Lake tonight, a picnic luncheon tomorrow noon, and traditional Rose Ball at the Tallahassee Country Club tomorrow night. After attending church Sunday, the group will enjoy a coast party at Carrabelle beach.

Job Opportunities

Prospective teachers will be interviewed this week for positions in Florida schools, it was announced by Mr. Herbert Hutchcraft, director of personnel services for the Florida State Department of Education.

Mr. Hutchcraft's announcement said that interviews are particularly desired with persons qualified to teach in the fields of science, mathematics, commerce, industrial arts, and vocational homemaking.

Interviews, from these organizations will be held in the placement office on the campus.

Mr. Hooper will interview seniors Thursday, April 28, for positions in elementary and secondary schools in Florida counties.

The teaching salary schedule is based on training and experience, Mr. Hutchcraft said.

Mr. Hutchcraft's announcement also listed the following interviews for Florida teachers:

Monday, April 18: Representatives from these organizations will be in the placement office for further information:

Young Women's Christian Association, Miami, Fla., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Veterans Administration, Miami, Fla., 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Monday, April 18: Representatives from these organizations will be in the placement office for further information:

M. B. Montenegro and Company

Wanted: Certified Public Accountants.

Tuesday, April 19: Representatives from these organizations will be in the placement office for further information:

Wanted: Service Department Assistant, Sales Engineer, Sales Trainee.

Triangle Construction Company

Wanted: Accounting and Secretarial Salary $60-100 per week.

Florida Power and Light Company

Wanted: Graduate engineers for representatives, call out 1282, or visit the Placement Office, Dodd Wetherell, as soon as possible.

Wednesday, April 19

Interviews:

Interviews: Gordon Williamson, Inc., Jacksonville, Lecturer, Bruce Benne Sales, Florida Chemical; Associated Spring Corporation.

Group meeting of interested candidates Thursday, 7:30 p.m. This was incorrectly reported in last issue.

Thursday, April 21: Representatives from these organizations will be in the placement office for further information:

Secretaries, Receptionists, Stenographers

There are several openings in Tallahassee for secretaries.

Florida resort Quadrangles Company, Sarasota, Florida, Secretary, Receptionist.

Triangle Construction Company

Wanted: Accounting and Secretarial Salary $60-100 per week.

Friday, April 22: Representatives from these organizations will be in the placement office for further information:

Interviews: H. J. Reed

Interviews for any major, for Florida or Georgia.

Saturday, April 29

Interviews: Gordon Williamson, Inc., Jacksonville, Lecturer, Bruce Benne Sales, Florida Chemical; Associated Spring Corporation.

Group meeting of interested candidates Thursday, 7:30 p.m. This was incorrectly reported in last issue.

Secretaries, Receptionists, Stenographers

There are several openings in Tallahassee for secretaries.

Florida resort Quadrangles Company, Sarasota, Florida, Secretary, Receptionist.

Triangle Construction Company

Wanted: Accounting and Secretarial Salary $60-100 per week.

Florida Power and Light Company

Wanted: Graduate engineers for representatives, call out 1282, or visit the Placement Office, Dodd Wetherell, as soon as possible.

Wednesday, April 19

Interviews:

Interviews: H. J. Reed

Interviews for any major, for Florida or Georgia.

Saturday, April 29

Interviews: Gordon Williamson, Inc., Jacksonville, Lecturer, Bruce Benne Sales, Florida Chemical; Associated Spring Corporation.

Group meeting of interested candidates Thursday, 7:30 p.m. This was incorrectly reported in last issue.

L. F. Audrieth

Illini Chemist Speaks Today

Dr. L. F. Audrieth professor of inorganic chemistry at the University of Illinois, will speak at a Chemistry Seminary here this afternoon.

Discussing non-aqueous solvents in his lecture, Dr. Audrieth will be seen in lab at 4 p.m. in room 124 Science Building.

Dr. Audrieth is touring the Southeast this month as a lecturer of the American Chemical Society. He was born in Vienna, Austria, graduated from Colgate and Cornell Universities, received his doctorate degree in inorganic chemistry from Cornell in 1928. He has been at the University of Illinois since 1928.

Specializing in the importance of nitrogen chemistry as a distinctive field of chemical science Dr. Audrieth has published extensively in that field. In addition he has also carried out considerable work in the field of rare earth chemistry and recently in the field of inorganic phosphorus chemistry.

His type of non-aqueous solvents concerns the behavior of substances such as acids and bases when mixed in substances other than water.

He is one of the founders of Inorganic Synthesis and was Editor-in-Chief of Volume II which became available in 1950. He is a member of the American Chemical Society and the Illinois Academy of Science, as well as of various social, professional and honorary collegiate organizations.

Prix Italia Contest Open To Students

Students and members of the FSU faculty are eligible to submit material in the Prix Italia Contest, according to an announcement by Rov Flynn, Director of Radio and Television.

The competition is international in scope. The National Association of Educational Broadcasters, in which WFSU-FM holds membership, is conducting first eliminations, of which will come the NAEB entries.

The Prix Italia will be awarded for 1) a musical composition written for a literary or dramatic work with or without music. Prize will not exceed $1,200 in France or be less than 20,000 Sirius Francs.

Entries must be in the hands of the NAEB committee not later than May 1, 1955.

Anyone interested in details of the competition should contact Roy Flynn, telephone 4231.

At the Cinema

Bing, Bill And Gracie

With Grace Kelly—and her Oscar, Bing Crosby, William Holden, and a script based on the Clifford Odets' Broadway hit, The Country Girl is one of the most important dramatic films produced in many a year.

While this Broadway success was changed slightly to exhibit the skills of Bing Crosby and Harold Arlen and Ira Gershwin, the basic theme of an alcoholic's fight with himself is as fine on celluloid as on the boards.

As the weary wife who is the soul support of her acting and singing husband, Grace Kelly earned her Academy Award and more. While charging further plaudits for this film does seem questionable, the State Theatre is showing the best entertainment in town this week-end.

The Long Grey Line is the true history of West Point and life of Marty Maher, athletic trainer at the Army school. Playing at the Florida Theatre through this weekend, it tells of that "something extra" that goes into the making of a soldier.

Starring Tyrone Power, at his best, and Maureen O'Hara, this film is directed by John Ford, a name that means a good movie. As a side interest, is a cadet halfback named Ike.

The Ritz Art Theatre, starting Sunday, presents another Alec Guinness hit, The Man In The White Suit. As the sad little scientist, Guinness manages to upset industry and the stock exchange with his invention—and the audience with laughter.

at your TALLAHASSEE THEATRES

FLORIDA

TODAY THRU TUES.
"THE LONG GRAY LINE"
Cinemascope
TYRONE POWER
MAUREEN O'HARA

PERRY HIGHWAY OUTDOOR

TODAY & TOMORROW
"ESCAPE BRAVO"
WILLIAM HOLDEN
ELEANOR PARKER
plus
"ADVENTURES OF ROBINSON CRUSOE"

STATE

TODAY THRU TUES
"COUNTRY GIRL"
GRACE KELLY
BING CROSBY
WILLIAM HOLDEN

CAPITOL DRIVE-IN ON WOODVILLE HWY.

TODAY & TOMORROW
"THUNDER OVER THE PLAIN"
RANDOLPH SCOTT
LEX BARKER
plus
"VICE SQUAD"
with
FAULETTE GODDARD
EDWARD G. ROBINSON

RITZ—Today and Tomorrow
"LOVE OF SILA"
Silvana Mangano & Vittorio Gassman

FSU Chemists Discover Isotope

Manganese-53 Can Be Useful

Two Florida State research perience of a new radioactive isotope of manganese.

Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, associate professor of chemistry and Joseph Wilkinson, a graduate student in the investigation following two and a half years of extensive testing of the substance.

The isotope has been named manganese-53 and has a half-life of approximately 140 years, Sheline declared.

When questioned as to possible uses of the new radioactive isotope, the researchers said that it might be possible to use manganese-53 in the steel and metallurgical industries as a tracer for determining the wearing or easing of metal fabrications over a long period of time.

At the present time, other FSU physicists in the department of chemistry are readying for experimental work testing fibers for a better method of determining their stability after exposure to radiation.

Second Discovery

The discovery of the isotope is the second time find in two months Sheline and another graduate student discovered the radioactive isotope magnesium-28.

Manganese-53 came into being after a long term period of exposure through a cyclotron to iron was bombarded in the betatron at the University of Chicago, Sheline said. It is thought that it was not a short living radioactive substance.

FSU Debaters Won 7, Lost 5 At Ohio TKA Tourney Recently

Florida State University debaters at the National Conference of Tau Kappa Alpha held at Ohio University over the past weekend.

In the process, FSU defeated such schools as the University of Cincinnati, Purdue University, University of Wyoming and Case Institute.

FSU students attending the tournament were Beverly Duperroure, Arnold Greenfield, Norma Trippodo, Tom Woods and Herbert Lacayo. Beverly Duperroure received a certificate of excellence in Discussion, ranking in the top ten in a field of 72.

Woods Is Top

Tom Woods placed third in Extemporaneous Speaking and "the Hidden Gerrymander" in state government—inadequate representation for the cities as compared to rural districts—placing him above 31 other contestants in the event. Norma Trippodo also made the finals in this event which included eighteen out of fifty-three contestants.

The negative team of Woods and Lacayo won four out of six debates in the debate division while the affirmative team of Trippodo and Greenfield broke even.

This is tha third year FSU has attended the National Conference of TKA. Last year's conference was held in Kalamazoo, Mich., and the one in 1953 at Lincoln Memorial University.

Walter James Presents Recital Tonight At 8:15 In Opperman

Walter James, associate professor of music, will give a faculty voice recital tonight at 8:15 in Opperman Music Hall.

Assisting the tenor in presenting his concert will be four other members of the School of Music faculty—Arthur Floyd at the harpsichord and piano; Robert Sedore and Thomas Stone violins; and Norman Sellen, cello. William Hardin, a junior music major from Macon, Miss., will play the French horn.

The program will include a wide range of selections from over three centuries of European music. Three solo cantatas by Buxtehude and Schutz from the 16th and 11th centuries will begin the presentation. Each people, beautiful forms presenting the two-vision bass and keyboard combination of the era. are credited with having inspired some of the gigantic works of Bach.

Art Songs

Second on the program will be four art-songs by Gustav Holst, who died in 1934. Written for voice and violin, they will be presented by James and Sedore.

"Four Portraits" by two modern American composers, Samuel Barber and Henry Cowell, and the Russian Mussorgsky, are grouped together as related examples of realism. They will be presented by James and Floyd.

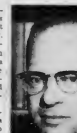
The verse of five English poets make up "Serenade", written for tenor solo, horn and strings by the contemporary English composer, Benjamin Britten.

Following the prologue will be Pastoral, by Cotton: Nocturne, by Tennyson; Elegy, by Blake; Hymn, by Ben Jonson, and Sonnet, by Keats. The strings reduction for piano will be played by Floyd.

The Department of Speech
announces
THE COCKTAIL PARTY
by
T. S. Eliot
April 22, 23, 25, 26 Conradi Theatre
8:15 P. M.
Tickets: Students: 40c and activity stub No. 8
General Admission: 75c
All seats reserved
BOX OFFICE OPENS WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20

'Jewish Education Week' Speaker Is Rabbi Lefkowitz Of Jacksonville

By ORCHID ALONSO



The third independent religious observation on campus this year will start Sunday night with an until next Wednesday. Jewish Education Week sponsored by a division of the Union of Hebrew Congregations through the FSU Hillel and the Office of the PSU Chaplain, follows closely the set-up utilized recently in the annual Interfaith Path Week Program.

Although the scope of speakers is limited—they will have only one—they will attempt to offer the students an understanding of the Jewish faith through class speaking programs. In addition, discussions have been scheduled for some of the Protestant student houses and fraternal, and sorority houses.

Rabbi Lefkowitz Speaks

Participating in the Jewish Education Week services will be Rabbi Sidney Lee Lefkowitz, Rabbi at the Temple Ahavath Chesed in Jacksonville. Lefkowitz appears under the auspices of the Jewish Chautauqua Society a branch of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, of which the Union of Hebrew Congregations is a part.

Rabbi Lefkowitz will open the three-day Jewish Education Week series addressing members of Hillel and guests at the

Rabbi Lefkowitz

Temple Israel Sunday night at 8 p.m.

Monday the class participation program begins with varied topic; ranging from "What Do Jews Believe" in an education class to "Contributions of Judaism to Modern Thought" in a religion class.

The topic of Rabbi Lefkowitz's Sunday night address will center on "Modern Trends In Judaism."

Hillel President Alan Cordish and Joan Gutchrider are in charge of the Greek discussions for the program. Miss Gutchrider is the only FSU student who is a Danforth Foundation Fellow.

Native Of New York

Rabbi Lefkowitz, a native of New York, received his AB from the University of Cincinnati as well as a bachelor of Hebrew Letters degree from the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati. He was ordained Rabbi at the Cincinnati Seminary school in 1933, continuing studies at the University of Cincinnati University of Richmond, and the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va.

Rabbi Lefkowitz was educational director and Associate Rabbi of Beth Ahabah Synagogue in Richmond for nine years prior to service as Chaplain in the Army. Now in the reserve as Rabbi with the rank of the Bronze star and is authorized to wear the ETO ribbon with five battle stars.

The schedule for Jewish Education Week is as follows:

Sunday night, April 17

8 p.m. meeting with Hillel Group. Rabbi Lefkowitz.

Monday, April 18

8 p.m. Reception for Social Service Committee; Rm. 302 Bldg. 6-a.

Tuesday, April 19

Professor Dr. Martin Buber, Schocken Professor, 10:30 a.m. Faculty Club. Subject: "The Life of Religion and the Reality of God." Chairman: Professor Will Herberg, Drew University.

1:15 p.m. Luncheon in honor of Professor Buber. Subject: What Do Jews Believe?

2:15 p.m. Seminar in the New Testament. Professor Buber. Subject: "The Prophet Amos."

3 p.m. Reception for Professor Buber.

4 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

8 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Hasidism."

Wednesday, April 20

8 a.m. History 306 Rm. 1 Professor Buber. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

10:30 a.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

12 p.m. Luncheon in honor of Professor Buber.

2 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

3 p.m. Reception for Professor Buber.

4 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

8 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

Thursday, April 21

8 a.m. Clothing and Textiles 306 Rm. 1 Professor Buber. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

10 a.m. Personal Development Section 3, Rm. 108 Social Welfare Building. Professor Buber. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

11 a.m. Religion 306 Rm. 1 Professor Buber. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

12 p.m. Luncheon in honor of Professor Buber.

2 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

3 p.m. Reception for Professor Buber.

4 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

8 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

Friday, April 22

8 a.m. Religion 306 Rm. 1 Professor Buber. Subject: "The Jew in the Modern World."

10:30 a.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

12 p.m. Luncheon in honor of Professor Buber.

2 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

3 p.m. Reception for Professor Buber.

4 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

8 p.m. Lecture. Subject: "Prophecy and Apocalyptic."

Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week to drive.

Seminole Slate

TODAY, APRIL 15

11:30 p.m.—Faculty Luncheon in the Dining Room of the Student Center

7:30 p.m. Faculty Square Dance in the Student Lounge with Lonsmire

7:30 p.m.—International Students Club meeting in the Club Room and Auditorium of Longmire

8 p.m.—AAUW meets in Longmire Large Lounge

8 p.m. Walter James, tenor, to preform in a Faculty Recital in Opperman Music Hall

SATURDAY, APRIL 16

1 p.m. University Wives Luncheon and Fashion Show in the Suwannee Room

SUNDAY, APRIL 17

7:30 p.m.—Unitarian Fellowship. Dr. Lewis Killian to speak on "Segregation and Human Values" in the Methodist Student House.

MONDAY, APRIL 18

8 p.m.—Annual Political Science Forum. Dr. Delos F. Fleming to speak on the "Atomic Arms Race."

Three out of four accidents involve passenger cars.

Voting Began Yesterday

'Ugly' Contest Ends Soon

Voting began yesterday in the annual Ugly Man Contest and will continues until next Friday night.

Polls are located at the Dining Hall, Student Center, and Westcott, and students may vote as many times as they can afford. Votes are a penny apiece, with anything over five dollars counting two for a penny.

The fifteen candidates, each sponsored by a sorority, are Pete Minhoff, Alpha Gamma Delta; Jerry Dunn, Alpha Chi Omega; Bob Heinemann, Alpha Omicron Pi; Matt Sullivan, Alpha Xi Delta; Bill Bailey, Chi Omega; John Danahy, Delta Gamma; Carlos Fraser, Delta Zeta

Entrants

Jack Schoberg, Gamma Phi Beta; Dutch Powell, Kappa Alpha Theta, James Booth, Kappa Delta, Herman Murray, Phi Mu; Bill Gorgas, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Ed Senn, Sigma Kappa. Dave Arthur, Zeta Tau Alpha; and Bill Stephens, Delta Delta Delta.

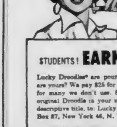
"These are mighty ugly looking men," said Pierre Ivanitorian of the Ugly Man committee, which is headed by Russ Parrish. He added that he thought they were worse than those last year and "some of the most hideous looking creatures you could ever think of."

Sponsored by the Iota Rho chapter of Alpha Phi Omega national service fraternity, the contest will culminate in a dance at the Student Center a week from tonight.

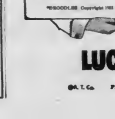
Worthy Cause

Both the contest and dance are carried out for the purpose of raising money for a worthy cause on campus. Last year $100 was raised from the dance, a radio in each room of the University Hospital.

This year, APO hopes to add more radios and, if possible one vert them to AM-FM so patients will be able to tune in WFSU-FM.



A key will be presented to the winner and a trophy to his sponsoring organization, which may keep permanently if won three years in succession.



Last year, first place was won by Duane Purvis, sponsored by Delta Tau Delta.

BOB'S
Super Service Station
EUMPER-TO-EUMPEE AND ROAD SERVICE
Phone 3-1748
637 W. TENN. ST.
(One Block From Senior Hall)

HEY, THERE! MORE LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

STUDENTS! EARN $25!

Lucky Droodles* are pouring in! Where are yours? We pay $25 for all we use, and for many we don't use. Send every original Droodle in your noodle, with its descriptive title, to Lucky Droodle, P. O. Box 67, New York 46, N. Y.

*DROODLES Copyright 1955 by Roger Price

ARE YOU LOOKING for a completely enjoyable cigarette? Then get a clue from the Droodle above, titled: Smoke rings blown by riveter enjoying Luckies. Fasten on to Luckies yourself. Luckies are such great shakes because they taste better. And they taste better for excellent reasons. First of all, Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. Then, that tobacco is toasted to taste better. "It's Toasted"—the famous Lucky Strike process—tones up Luckies' light, good-tasting tobacco to make it taste even better . . . cleaner, fresher, smoother. So, whenever it's light-up time, enjoy yourself fully. Enjoy the better-tasting cigarette . . . Lucky Strike.

"IT'S TOASTED" to taste better!

Better taste Luckies...

LUCKIES TASTE BETTER CLEANER, FRESHER, SMOOTHER!

©A. T. Co. PRODUCT OF The American Tobacco Company AMERICA'S LEADING MANUFACTURER OF CIGARETTES

FLORIDA LEGISLATURE
Would Change
Campus Traffic—P. 1

The Florida Flambeau

FLORIDA'S ONLY
Semi-Weekly
College Newspaper

VOL. XL, NO. 44 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY, TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY, APRIL 19, 1938

Connor Introduces Surprise Football Bill In Senate

State Party Convention Is Tomorrow

Registration Set For 6:30 p.m. In Geology Hall

Registration of delegates for the State Party nominating convention tomorrow, in the Carnegie auditorium, is scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Party chairman Fred Manfred urges all groups entitled to delegates to be represented and says that delegates be on time so that all business on the agenda may be executed.

Candidates for the offices of senators, representatives, clerk of courts, judiciary, and honor and traffic court will be nominated.

Manfield commented that although the State Party was "more unanimous" in recent elections, that is due he believes to the youth of the State Party as opposed to the power of a well established party.

"We must increase our energies and efforts in defiance of the one party system" said Manfield. "The minority of today is very often the majority of tomorrow."

Manafield believes that although the very existence of the State Party has been questioned, recent elections show its developed importance. He commented that "The State Party is here to stay."

Seminole Slate

TODAY, APRIL 19

11 a.m.—Senate Honors Committee Faculty Room of Longmire.

11:45 a.m.—Faculty Luncheon in the Trophy Room of the Student Center

4 p.m.—Meteorology Seminar 203 Science.

4 p.m.—Senior Class officers meeting in 410 Longmire.

4 p.m.—Home Economics French and Graduate Seminar Miss Elsie Lawrence, "Family Member Role Concepts of Adolescents in a Greek - American Community" 106 Science.

5 p.m.—4 - H Club meets in Student Lounge, Longmire.

7:30 p.m.—Program in American Studies Dr. Hugh Stickney "Educational Patterns" 218 Music.

8:00—Junior Panhellenic party in the Club Room of Longmire

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20

3 p.m.— Social Welfare Department Social: Small Lounge, Longmire.

3 p.m.—Faculty Senate, Longmire Auditorium.

3 p.m.—Off - campus Court 405 Longmire

7:30 p.m.—Pi Delta Phi business meeting Student Lounge of Longmire.

7:30 p.m.—Informal opening of exhibition, "The Faculty-Department of Art." Paintings, Prints, Sculpture. The public is cordially invited. University Gallery, dining hall building

8 p.m.— Young Republicans Club Rally, 405 Longmire.

8:15 p.m.— Starlight Band Concert, FSU Concert Band, Stanley Whitcomb, director. Auditorium

THURSDAY, APRIL 21

4:10 p.m.— Faculty Tea — Jennie Murphree, Bryan, Reynolds, Broward Halls.

4:30 p.m.— Physics Seminar Dr. A.E.S. Green, "The Eigenvalue Problem in Nuclear Physics" 174 Science

5 p.m.—Discussion on current events, Debating Group 103 Carnegie House

5 p.m.—Phi Delta Kappa Initiation Club Room, Longmire.

6:30 p.m. — Registration for Student Party Convention. Science Lecture Hall.

7 p.m. — Garnet Key 210 Longmire.

7 p.m. — Home Economics Club, Large Lounge, Longmire

7:30 p.m.—Cavalier and Cotillion dancing lessons Student Center.

7:30 p.m. — Bridge Tournament, Student Lounge, Longmire.

8 p.m.—Industrial Arts Club, Civic Auditorium, Lonmmire Auditorium.

8 p.m.—Sigma Pi Sigma. Address Hemmer, "Bubble Chamber," 119 Science

9 p.m.—Omicron Delta Kappa Small Lounge, Longmire.

The KA's And The South—Get set for annual mock session demonstrations where the new South relives the Old South. Caught trying on official rebellion garbs are left to right, Max Long, Ferrell DeWitt, Berry Willmon, and John Smith.

Kappa Alpha Annual Rebellion Program Starts This Friday At 4

The south will "rise again" this Friday at 4 p.m., when the Kappa Alpha fraternity secedes from the union in front of the 'Southern Belle' mansion known on campus as Bryan Hall.

A dedicated parade will precede the ceremonies at the Southern Belle mansion, starting from the Florida Hotel at 2:30 p.m. Southern era uniforms and ladies dressed in old style costume will ride buggies and surries while Enlisted men and Officers of the Confederate army will march to the tune of Dixie.

The parade route will include a march down Monroe to the State Capitol, Adams to College Avenue to Bryan Hall, where the secession ceremony will take place.

Colonel J. Munday Cravs advisor of the Kappa Alpha Rebellion Ball will take place Saturday evening at the Woman's Club, when the Kappa Rose and her court will be presented.

The ceremony will revive the glories and pleasures of a bygone Era in the Deep South. It will be a salute to the Confederacy and one of the greatest southern gentlemen of all time, Robert E. Lee founder and spiritual leader of Kappa Alpha.

SAUT ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Florida State University chapter of the American Association of University Professors recently elected new officers.

Those elected were: Dr. Robert Miller, head of the department of philosophy and religion, president; Dr. Greig Philler, associate professor of speech, vice-president; Dr. Betty Watts, professor of art, secretary and treasurer; and Dr. Paul Piccard, lecturer in political science, secretary.

Exchange Unit Has Handbook For Information

A Handbook on International Study, covering the field of student exchange as it is related to the United States, was recently published by the Institute of International Education.

Containing information on foreign systems for Americans planning to study abroad, the 300-page book sells for $3.

Included in the book is information on the various educational system and government regulations affecting exchange students; fellowships, scholarships and other arrangements for international study; short term summer projects for exchange students; organizations serving foreign students and visitors both in the United States and abroad; and a review of current research in international education.

The Institute of International Education, located in New York City is a private agency with thirty-five years experience. It administers programs for foundations, corporations, private organizations, international agencies, and the U S and foreign governments. Each year approximately 4,000 persons from 80 countries study in more than 300 country other than their own through the Institute programs.

House Bill To Affect Traffic On Campus

The House Committee on Motor Education is considering a bill that would place Florida State University's traffic under the control of the City of Tallahassee.

The bill, introduced in the House of Representatives Friday, calls for the Board of Control to adopt traffic regulations which it finds "necessary, convenient or advisable" for state institutions of higher learning. The campus would also be subject to all Tallahassee traffic ordinances not in conflict with those of the Board of Control.

Grants Jurisdiction

Presumably, the bill sweeps away all existing methods of regulating campus traffic, as recommended by the committee and passed by the Legislature. It provides that the Tallahassee municipal court be granted jurisdiction for trial of all persons violating said traffic rules" of the Board of Control or the traffic ordinances of Tallahassee, as of September 1, 1938.

It provides, however, that the Tallahassee municipal court judge shall designate a person to accept, at an office on campus, such bonds required on traffic violations or ordinances, "in accordance with a schedule of such bonds established by the Board of Control."

(Continued on Page 4)

Carothers Says Student Party Meets Thursday

To Nominate Class Officers, Also Senators

A Student Party convention will be held Thursday night at 8:30 in 124 Science, reports Graham Carothers, party chairman.

The nomination of candidates for the Spring elections of the class officers, senators, judiciary, and honor court, and traffic court representative will be the principle function or the convention.

Women delegates to the convention will be granted a late permission after reporting their names to dorm counselors. Dean Lucy Cooper, Katherine Wynn will check with the counselors and verify permission.

Other business includes a possible constitutional change, the appointment of a probable amendment concerning the election of class officers.

It is thought by many, says Carothers, that party candidates for class offices will have little competition, the party will, however, remain active in the Senate and Judicial races, regardless of any other changes.

Carothers believes that competition for these offices will be keen, particularly in the Senate and Judicial races, stating that approximately sixty offices are to be nominated.

Plans may also be made at the convention for a dance to be held in honor of Student Party candidates successful in the recent elections.

Staples Earns Berth In NFM Yearly Contest

James Staples, outstanding Florida State University pianists from Ft. Lauderdale, is keeping his fingers crossed when not playing the piano.

He is one of 14 piano students in the country to reach the semi-finals in the National Federation of Music Clubs' annual Student Musicians Contest. Judges for the semi-finals are meeting in Pittsburg, Pa., and have been asked to submit recordings of their playing by April 10.

The finalists will be chosen to appear in person at the finals in Chicago, June 15, as a part of this month. The winner will receive a $500 prize.

